INCREASES IN 'PHONE RATES ARE JUSTIFIED

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT SHOWS CRANBROOK BELOW OTHER POINTS

COST OF MATERIALS HAS CLIMBED HIGH

Salaries of Employes Have Also Very Materially Increased of Late

A comparative statement, which will be of interest at this time, of the rates being received by the Kootenay Telephone Lines, Limited, of Cranbrook, and those prevailing at other places, shows that the local company is not receiving rates commensurate with the increases in cose of operation and materials now prevailing.

The Herald gives space to this interesting data at this time that its readers may be better informed, since the local company is petitioning the city council for the privilege of increasing its rates to care for the additional expenses.

MASONIC FRATERNITY ENTERTAINS OFFICAL

Cranbrook Lodge A.F.A.M., was host Friday evening to a distinguished official of the Province, Grand Master Martin L. Grimmett of Merritt, who was a guest of the order, being accompanied on his visit here by Mrs. Grimmett.

There was a large turnout of the brethren from the local lodge membership, as well as from other lodges in nearby towns, and a delightful evening was had.

FEDERAL GROUP AT SKOOKUMCHUCK IS MAKING EXTENSIONS

Manager McIntosh of the Federal group of claims at Skookumchuck, is getting the property in shape to continue development during the coming winter months.

A compressor is being installed and improvements made to the buildings already there, as well as new buildings being erected.

Mr. McIntosh reports the outlook at the property, where some very high grade native copper was found some time ago, is very satisfactory.

HERALD ISSUES AHEAD OF TIME THIS WEEK BECAUSE OF ELECTION

For the reason that the Herald desires to make a last appeal to the electors to stand by their guns and support Prohibition tomorrow, the Herald is issuing on Tuesday, October 19.

We consider the issue of sufficient importance to keep the electors advised and would call especially to their attention the encouraging message from the headquarters at Vancouver on this page today.

Vote for Prohibition.

PROHIBITION OUTLOOK VERY ENCOURAGING

FINAL WIND-UP TO CAMPAIGN AT MASS MEETING TO-NIGHT

EXPECTING CITY ITSELF WILL GIVE MAJORITY

Even Outside Points, Claimed by Moderates, Are Not Entirely Conceded

Another very enthusiastic prohibition meeting was held at the Edison Theatre on Thursday evening of last week. The hall was very well filled, and in spite of repeated invitations, no speaker for the opposing interests could be induced to come out and take the platform, a fact that seemed to presage well for election day.

Rev. R. W. Lee acted as chairman for the evening, and the speakers were Mr. W. M. Armstrong, principal of the high school here, and Rev. J. P. Westman, of Nelson. The former presented the prohibition issue in the clear, cold light of intellectualism, speaking particularly from the standpoint of an educator. He made out a strong case, and was very well received. Mr. Westman covered the ground more in the way of combatting the arguments of the opponents of prohibition, and was exceedingly forceful. The Herald regrets that in the haste of getting to press two days ahead of its usual schedule it is not possible to deal fully with them.

Another big mass meeting, the final windup in the campaign, is to take place this evening at the Edison, commencing at 8.30 sharp. The speakers are to be Dr. Eber Crummy, M.A., D.Sc., D.D., of Moose Jaw, Mr. G. J. Spreull, Rev. R. W. Lee, and others. Dr. Crummy is in the city in connection with the Methodist anniversary services, and the board of that church very generously released Dr. Crummy in order that he might throw his intellectual weight in the scales for prohibition, instead of having him fulfil a lecture engagement for the church.

Word from the district is most encouraging as to the outcome of the vote on Wednesday. Sentiment at the outlying centres is known by prohibition workers to be far less one-sided in favor of moderation that has been represented in some quarters. Majorities for prohibition are confidently expected in some of these outside polling places, as well as in the city of Cranbrook itself.

CONVICTED HOLD-UP MEN ESCAPE FROM OFFICERS AT G. FORKS

Word has been received from Grand Forks to the effect that the two convicted hold-up men, Pete Lazuk and Dan Urick, who held up and robbed the workers in a lumber camp near Skookumchuck some time ago, and who were arrested and given a preliminary hearing here, being tried and sentenced to the penitentiary at the assizes at Fernie last week, escaped from the officers having them in charge at Grand Forks Sunday night.

How the men escaped from Provincial Policeman Spiller of Fernie and the officer accompanying him is not known, but the train arrives at Grand Forks at about 2 a.m., and it is possible this late hour and the fact that very few people are around the depot at the time enabled the two desperadoes to make a successful get-away.

THESE HUNTERS BELIEVE IN SUPPLYING THE PROOF

Nothing irritates a real live sportsmen more than to have someone enquire of him as to his luck and then give him the haw-haw, when he tells of the big things accomplished. This is believed to be the cause of the several hunters, Messrs. Little, Clapp, Willis, Webster, Dr. MacKinnon and Cooper, having an excellent photo of their party together with the large number of ducks they shot at Mud Lake taken.

The photo, which is an excellent one, should be ample proof of the claims made by the sportsmen on their return from the recent and very successful outing.

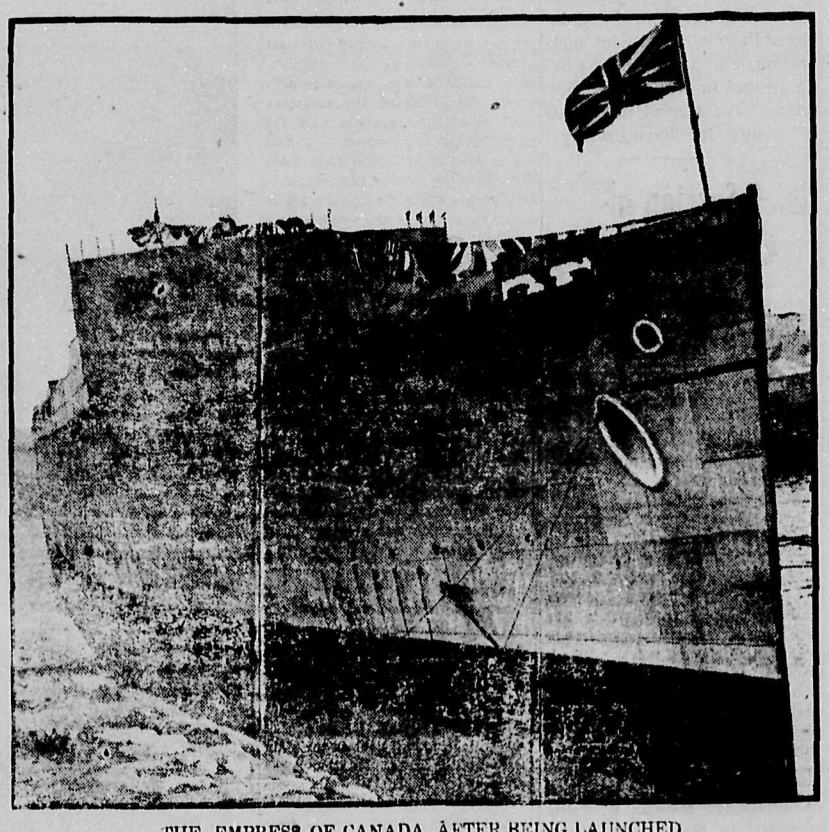
NEW C.P.O.S. LINER



THE EMPRESS OF CANADA AFTER BEING LAUNCHED.

The Empress of Canada, a twin screw geared turbine oil burning passenger liner, built to the order of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, Limited, especially for their trans-Pacific service, was recently launched at the yards of the Fairfield Shipbuilding & Engineering Co., Limited, Govan, Scotland.

The christening ceremony, which was performed by Mrs. G. M. Bosworth, the wife of the chairman of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, Limited, went through without a hitch.

The ship is 653 ft. long, 77 ft. 9 ins. wide and has a depth to the bridge deck of 53 ft. 6 ins. Her gross tonnage is about 22,000 tons, and she is arranged to carry about 490 first class, 106 second class, 238 third class passengers, and 547 of a crew. Of the cargo spaces, a large portion has been fitted for the carriage of silk. The ocean speed is about 21 knots. The vessel is built to the highest class of Lloyd's register to full Board of Trade requirements and sub-divided in full accordance with the requirements of the Bulkhead convention.

A complete system of telephones with a central exchange is fitted to the special and private suites and various offices etc.

The dining saloon is on the upper deck and will accommodate 325 persons, a large reception room is situated forward of the dining saloon with passenger elevator at the fore end, on this deck also is a swimming pool 30 ft. long by 18 ft. wide, and a gymnasium.

Throughout the vessel special attention is everywhere given to the fact that the Empress of Canada is to serve in a semi-tropical climate; public rooms are therefore large and airy and the ventilation amply arranged. The maiden voyage of the Empress of Canada will be a tour of the world, starting from Liverpool, March 15, 1921.

LIBERAL LEADER AND PARTY IN CITY MONDAY

VISITORS DANCE DURING THEIR STAY IN THE CITY

ACCEPT INVITATION OF LADIES' AUXILIARY

Large Audience Listens Attentively to Outline of Policies of the Liberal Party

A very large audience, which filled every seat in the Auditorium theatre Monday evening, listened very attentively to the addresses delivered outlining the policy of the Dominion Liberal party by Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of that party in the Dominion and Messrs. W. C. Kennedy, M.P. for North Essex and Mr. Ernest Lapointe, M.P. for Quebec.

The party arrived here in a special coach attached to the regular eastbound train Monday evening, and only a few of the local Liberals seemed to be on hand to greet them.

While here Mr. Lapointe received a telegram to the effect that his son was very ill, and he may find it necessary to leave the party at Lethbridge. It is hoped Mr. Lapointe will get more encouraging news at Lethbridge.

Hon. Dr. King, minister of works in the Oliver government of B.C., representing Cranbrook constituency, acted as chairman of the meeting, and besides the visitors on the stage were several local liberals, among them being Mayor Genest and Alderman Mackinnon.

Messrs. Kennedy and Lapointe preceded Hon. Mr. King with brief addresses, Mr. Lapointe probably eliciting a greater amount of applause from the audience than any of the speakers because of the numerous anecdotes he injected into his talk and the forceful manner in which he attempted to drive home his arguments.

Mr. Kennedy's remarks were very brief, but he got a good reception and is a good speaker.

When Mr. King was introduced and advanced to the front of the platform, he was greeted with prolonged applause. He, as did the previous speakers, took occasion to throw some nice little bouquets in the direction of the chairman, and these must have made the Hon. Dr. King feel good in view of the fact that a provincial election appears in the offing.

Mr. King said that on entering the theatre he had been handed an invitation from the Ladies Auxilary of the B.R.T. to be present with his colleagues at a dance they were giving, and they would accept, and although the three consumed about three hours' time, the party following the meeting entered into the spirit of the dance.

Hon. Mr. King also said that this, the last of their meetings in B.C., in his opinion was the place to mention the appreciation of his colleagues and himself for the very cordial receptions they had received everywhere. They had spoken to over 20,000 people in B.C. and had found that the bolshevist greeting they were warned they might receive was absent; they had been very cordially received everywhere, and were deeply grateful; they could better deal with Western problems in parliament.

He said that he had been informed that his audience was made up largely of railroad men, and it was to them he promised some data of interest later on.

He regarded the 1911 election as the last real test of public opinion in Canada, and referred to the large number of first voters at that election who had now attained seasoned maturity, and also the large number of men from overseas. A large number of foreign born on the prairies had been refused the vote at the 1917 election, and a considerable group similarly treated in this province. He referred also to the important new body of electors, the women. Altogether these elements constituted largely a new electorate, and it was the duty of the government to give this new electorate a voice.

He pointed out the fundamental differences between the National Liberal and Conservative party and Conservative groups, and the great progressive groups, among whom he enumerated the Liberals, the Farmers, the Labor party and the G. W. V. A. He defined the difference by stating that these latter groups chose their leaders and decided their policies by Dominion-wide conventions, while Premier Meighen was the choice of his party as represented in parliament. The Liberal party, he regretted to say, had not always lived up to its name, but the good intent was always there, and it always came back. The Meighen government was not popularly chosen, and therefore was usurping the rights of the people. While the people were not consulted in its establishment, a certain influence that dared not raise its head because it was not a great social force, was consulted. This was the invisible government, consisting of the great interests.

In the last few days, Mr. King said, there had been a revelation of at least one instance of an interest that was able to influence an agency of the government, this reference being to the recent order by the commerce board prohibiting the importation of sugar from across the American border. Could a board that was really in touch with parliament so aid a combine and act against the social interests of the country, Mr. King asked? It quenched the first gleam of hope in the matter of a lowered cost of living, and this was only the last of a series of steps showing the government to be really profiteers, according to Mr. King, instead of being the protectors of the people.

The party to which the Liberals were opposed, he said, was not the old Conservative party. Its new name was used to cover the special groups welded together by special interests. He urged that the various groups opposed to the union government, all of whom had something in common, ought to unite on election day instead of splitting their vote and thus permitting the government to retain its position.

What was true of the sugar situation, Mr. King charged, was true also regarding wearing apparel, boots and shoes, and other articles of common use. One member of the board of commerce who had resigned had said that the government did not want a remedy. He had been on the board

DON'T TAKE CHANCES ON LOSING VOTE

FAILURE TO VOTE WEDNESDAY MAY LOSE YOU PRIVILEGE LATER

BEST TO BE ON SAFE SIDE IN ANY EVENT

No Definite Ruling Yet Received from Attorney-General as far as Can be Ascertained

The Herald's advice to electors is to vote in the plebiscite election on Wednesday, October 20.

The question has been raised as to whether a voter failing to vote on October 20, would be stricken from the present list. This list it is generally understood will be used in the Provincial election, which from all reports available will be held very soon, possibly the latter part of November or the first week in December.

A recent order-in-council published in the Provincial Gazette gives the election on October 20th the same status as a provincial election for members of the legislature, and here is where the joker comes in. If one fails to vote in the election on the plebiscite, and a court of revision is held before the provincial election takes place — and this is a certainty soon — that the voter failing to vote could be stricken from the list.

The elections act defines an election as "an election for members of the Provincial Legislature." But the order-in-council supplements this and therefore, as above stated, such action in marking from the list delinquents in the present contest could be taken.

The present act is very rigid in that electors cannot be approached on behalf of any issue or candidate on polling day.

Voting will take place between the hours of eight a.m., and seven p.m.

Rev. R. W. Lee has been appointed the agent for the prohibition party, and L. P. Sullivan is acting for the moderationists.

EVERYONE'S DUTY

To a few it may seem somewhat drastic to threaten to drop a person's name from the voters' list in the event of their failing to exercise the franchise to-morrow. It may look like but one step removed from compulsory voting. But it is not likely that any hardship will be created by this ruling. The only people who are likely to be stricken from the lists are those who from indifference or laziness do not go to the polls. For those who can show a legitimate reason, such as sickness, disability, or other thoroughly real, genuine alibi, it may reasonably be expected that some means will be devised whereby their names will be maintained on the lists. The idea underlying this new provision of the elections act is undoubtedly to keep the lists as far as possible purged from the dead timber that is at the same time a useless encumbrance and in some cases a temptation to enter upon some questionable electioneering.

Vote early. Don't wait to be taken to the polls in somebody's car. It is nothing to be proud of, that one has to be taken to vote in someone else's car. We ought to have enough pride in our citizenship to want to exercise its highest function without being solicited to drive to the polls, far less demanding it. There are plenty of people who by reason of infirmity or age can justly expect conveyance to the polls, but for the average active voter to look for the privilege means that someone s good nature is going to be presumed upon to pamper the voters' vanity.

The position the government has taken in declaring the day of the plebiscite a public holiday cuts the ground from under a number of people who might otherwise have said that they did not have a chance to vote. Of the fourteen hundred odd voters registered in Cranbrook, there ought to be at least twelve hundred go to the polls to-morrow.

TOMORROW'S VOTE

What answer is B. C. going to send to the prairie provinces following the vote on the plebiscite? The eyes of the entire nation are on B.C., waiting to catch the first word as to the result of the voting.

What is the reason B. C. was called upon to vote five days sooner than the other provinces on the liquor question? Has it ever occurred to the people generally that there may be some sinister suggestion in regard to the fixing of the plebiscite date? What reason prompted the government to set October 20th as the date when B.C. should vote, when three or four other provinces are voting on other phases of the same question five days later?

It is no secret that the prohibitionists tried to get the B.C. vote set for the same day as in the other provinces. There did not seem to be any good reason why it should not be so. The simple fact of the matter is that other influences were brought to bear upon the government, and the government was compelled to concede the point.

The reason why those opposing the present prohibition act would desire things so is perfectly clear. Convincing evidence is also furnished here of the presence of a big driving force behind the "moderationists" in this campaign. What difference could it possibly have made to an ordinary man or woman, or group of ordinary men and women, such as the Moderation League claims it is pure and simple?

It was not the Moderation League that set the date for the plebiscite in reality, but the whisky ring of the province. Their line of reasoning was that since prohibition has to some extent been brought into disrepute in this province, it stood some chance of repeal. So far as the prairie provinces are concerned there has been little doubt, even in the minds of the liquor men, that the bone dry vote will carry things. Therefore, they said, let us concentrate on B.C., where we stand a better chance of success. If by chance the government sale proposal does go through in this province, the liquor interests are planning to make the utmost possible use of the psychological effect such an annoucement might have on the prairie provinces. One can imagine how hot the wires would be kept during the intervening five days expatiating on the glorious news.

Present indications, however, seem to show that there is quite a sporting chance that this piece of juggling is likely to react boomerang fashion on the heads of its authors, and that the word which will go forth from this province will be that B.C. is going to keep marching abreast of the times by refusing to take up with the shapeless proposal which has been paraded around as "government control."

WILL IT CEASE?

What good reason is there for supposing that the bootlegging evil will be mitigated to any appreciable extent under the proposed government sale plan of dispensing liquor? Is the idea to place the government stores so thickly through the province that there will be one of them at everybody's elbow, so to speak? If so there will soon arise conditions worse than at present ten times multiplied. On the other hand, if the government stores are only located every so often, is the bootlegger not going to have just as good a chance of plying his illicit business as now? If government sale carries the privilege of importation will not be interfered with, but few people are likely to bother with importation when the government takes to dispensing. The only difference so far as bootlegging is concerned that under government sale conditions the way of the transgressor would be come easier. There is one remedy and one only for the bootlegger, and that is a good stiff jail sentence for the second offence, without the option of a fine.

"Liberal financial support given by you to prohibition cause here, and attitude of Ross[illegible] Miner satisfactory.

"Eldred A. Chester."

The above is a copy of a telegram received from the president of the prohibition party at Rossland, to the editor of the Herald, in response to an enquiry sent as to where the Rossland Miner and its editor stood on the prohibition issue.

It should be enough in itself to put the quietus on the absurd allegation that because the Rossland Miner carried Moderation League advertising and the Cranbrook Herald did not, the editor of the two papers tried to pass as prohibitionist here and moderationist there. As the above telegram indicates the editor of the Miner made no secret of his favorable attitude towards prohibition, so the inconsistency argument falls to the ground because there is none.

Two reasons contributed to the fact that Moderation League advertising appeared in one paper and not the other. The first is that at Rossland a contract was entered into for advertising with the Vancouver headquarters of the Moderation League some time ago, before the proprietor saw fully the necessity of abandoning an attitude of neutrality on the issue and taking up a stand for prohibition. This contract, by the way, was entered upon during his absence, or it would never have been accepted, but having been accepted in good faith, it did not seem the wisest thing to repudiate it. The circumstances were fully explained to the prohibition party at Rossland, and it is worth noting that no whisper of inconsistency comes from that quarter, where it might be expected if any ground existed for it.

The second consideration is that at Rossland there is but one paper, and here in Cranbrook two. In the mind of the editor of the Miner and the Herald it would have been doubtful wisdom to have deprived the Moderationists at Rossland of their only channel of local expression, especially as the prohibition cause has nothing to fear from an onslaught by "moderation" argument. In Cranbrook, on the other hand, we knew perfectly well there was still an organ left which could be made the mouthpiece of the Moderation League, and more than willing to become so. Incidentally, it didn't seem to occur to our perceptive critic that only two or three weeks ago another journal published not a hundred miles from this city in one and the same issue carried both prohibition and moderation advertising, and declared itself editorially for moderation. And with just as little ground in reality our critic might have started in to rail at its editor for "inconsistency."

Brief Session of City Council Held

Only Routine Business is Tranacted at Regular Meeting Thursday Evening

At the regular meeting of the City Council held last Thursday evening there were present Mayor Genest and Aldermen Flowers, Baiment, Jones and Mackinnon. Only routine business was transacted and the usual accounts ordered paid.

A motion was made that a committee be appointed to enquire into the claim of N. A. Wallinger for damages alleged to have been received by Mrs. Wallinger from a defective sidewalk on Burwell Avenue in September. The committee will also be empowered to secure legal advice if it is deemed advisable.

A comunication from the Victoria, B.C. council regarding the case of the Bishop of Vancouver vs. the Victoria council, a test case to prevent church properties being taxed, was filed.

The regular reports of Fire Chief Reece and City Foreman W. Soden, were read and filed.

Dr. Rutledge, as dairy inspector, reported on several dairies and stated he had recommended some changes.

Supt. of Electric Lights Eakin supplied the council with a report of the operations of the plant. This was operated smoothly without trouble during the month.

The Kootenay Garage made a proposition to the council to make sale of a truck to the city. The letter was filed.

Photographs of the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire were ordered framed [illegible] be placed on the walls of the council chamber.

An amount equal to the water tax on St. Eugene Hospital was rebated the hospital and the rate for lighting the hoapital was fixed at 8 cents per kilowatt hour.

The procedure by-law in connection with the electric light plant was passed.

FROM THE VIEW-POINT OF OUR CONTEMPORARIES

Not to be Trusted

When has the principle of Bolshevism yielded to the principle of truth? A leaf from the book of German imperialism was taken by the Red leaders when they began their organization. The word of the Moscow government is not as good as the word of the German empire, which never was given with other intentions than to serve the purpose of the moment. Promises made at Minsk by emissaries of Lenin will be illustrative of the adage that the promises of dishonest men are made, like pie crust to be broken.—Louisville Courier.

The Pleasure of Reading

Reading is a habit as easily cultivated as dancing and holds in a thrall as strong when once acquired. Books are now all that governesses used to be (though it's too bad that governesses have gone out). They are companions, mentors and entertainers. They can show youth more of life than any pair of eyes can see on the great highway itself, and the view leaves no images to distort the mature vision. Let's punch up the cushions in the window seat and call back the glory of the old sunlit scenes. It will be strange if the young folk don't forget all about the door.—Kansas City Star.

The Inter-Provincial Highway

Premier Oliver is still being kept busy explaining and interpreting what he said at Kamloops with reference to the proposed inter-provincial hightway. His latest statement is substantially, that he really didn't say anything in particular. All he was trying to do was to give the people of the district a few kind words, and he was greatly surprised at the rumpus caused by his official utterance.

The upshot of his remarks and explanations, especially when they are read together with those of Hon. Dr. King subsequently at Nelson, is that no semblance of a decision has been reached as to what road will be built or when it will be built. The provincial engineer continues to "gather information". This he does, apparently, by asking the partisans of each route for their opinion of the other one. The answers are then carefully tabulated for presentation to the legislature.

As a result of this process the public has acquired a vague notion that the one route is buried in perpetual snow, while the other would have to consist mostly of trestles. Presumably, both of these statements contain an element of slander. But how can the Government possibly reach a conclusion while subjected to opposing influences of about equal political weight? As long as the supportrs of the rival routes insist upon offsetting each other, how can they expect to get anything done?—Vancouver Sun.

CONCERNING CANADA

Where thousands of farmers have been cutting the wheat of the western prairies lately once roamed countless numbers of buffaloes. When the Canadian Pacific Railway was being built across the continent the enormous numbers of these animals were the amazement of the workers. But that day is gone and now the grain fields have taken the place of the grass covered prairie where the animals fed in millions. A few of the wood variety may still exist in the far north, but the buffalo as known in the pioneer day is virtually extinct except for the herds in confienement at the government parks in tthe west.

The Wainwright herd dates back to 1908 when the federal government purchased a herd of 600 animals from a rancher in Montana for $250 each. At that time the idea the government entertained, was to prevent the extinction of the great animals, but so well have they thrived in captivity that now the herd numbers about 5000 head, and there are one tthousand bulls that can be sold or slaughtered without endangering the future of the family. Skins of the bison have become very valuable and at recent fur sales in Montreal several heads of the lordly animals were sold at huge prices to fanciers. It is estimated by the government that in a very short time the herd will become more than self-supporting, or, in other words, that the number available for sale each year will bring sufficient to maintain the rest of the drove. An attempt has been made with considerable success to cross the buffalo with Canadian cattle to produce an animal with a great shaggy skin for robes. The product is hardy and large and bear s the name of cattalo. It is being raised on a number of experimental farms.

CURED OF BOLSHEVISM

UNANIMOUS VERDICT

"Cured of Bolshevism" was the unanimous verdict of seventy German workmen who have returned to Swinemunde, Prussia, from Soviet Russia. They were forced to work in a factory, given a diet of bread, which looked like peat and contained chaff and unmilled grain. They are jubilant over their escape from the "Bolshevistic Paradise."

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Extracts from the Cranbrook Herald of this date, 1900

Dr. Bonnell of Fernie, was here today.

A Leitch has returned from a trip to Lethbridge and Oak Lake.

The new depot at Kimberley is completed and the C.P.R. is now building a new water tank. An agent is looked for at an early date.

W. A. Galliher of Nelson, the Liberal candidate for this district, paid a visit to the city this week. Mr. Galliher is a lawyer, and at one time while living at Lethbridge, dallied a little with the editorial quill.

George Johnson has returned from a visit to the group of claims owned by John Leask and others in the Lardeau country near the North arm of Arrow lake. He brought back with him samples of the rock that shows beyond any question of a doubt that the property is a good one. The claims were located about two months ago and show up gold, copper and lead in strong proportions, and arrangements are being made to handle the property in an energetic manner.

NEW PUBLIC SCHOOL PRINCIPAL TAKES UP WORK AT FERNIE

Inspector Calvert, one of the public School inspectors of the province, passed through this city a few days ago on his way to Fernie, where he was conferring with Mr. E. G. Daniels, formerly public school principal in that city, but who was recently appointed to the inspectorate for this district. Mr. Daniels is being succeeded by Mr. Sheffield, formerly of Chilliwack, who has already entered upon his new work.

A Fish Story From Vancouver Island

View of Sproat Lake, Vancouver Island.

"Truth," said one of the sages, "lives at the bottom of a well." She is also to be encountered in the great silent spaces. I met her on the pine-fringed shores of Sproat Lake, in the heart of Vancouver Island. She sprang unannounced from the lips of a handsome dame of healthy appetites and vigorous mind.

Think of the oportunities and industries there are in this little beauty-spot of three hundred miles by eighty, all sea-girt and serene. Lumbering, pulp-making, mining, fishing, canning, poultry keeping, hog-raising, farming, fruit-growing, dairying, manufacturing. There is a man here who makes cement and at the same time cultivates one of the loveliest gardens on the American Continent, and another who grows flower seeds — nothing but flower seeds — for the biggest seed merchants in the world.

As for play, it is manifold and unending.

Sproat Lake is in the heart of the island, reachable at present, through some of the most romantic timbered country God ever made, only by auto, though the steel rail from Port Alberni is pushing ahead.

A huntress in moccasins and velveteens receives you, revolver, jackknife and cartridges slung about her waist and her rifles hard by. This lady, who has a cultured mind as well as a stout heart and a brawny arm, shoots cougar before breakfast, pots bear in the forenoon, hunts deer before tea, and before sundown traps beaver and rodents—all in their season, of course, and when there are no guests around.

Just now she receives you in her house-boat, on the southern shore. In a few moments you and your baggage speed over the still waters to a distant châlet, nestling among the hemlock and jack pines, and encircled by tents.

Have you ever bathed in the sweet waters drawn direct from surrounding hills? Under the moon and the stars, when the velvety surface is perfect and unbroken, except by the plop of a jumping trout? In the early dawn, when the sun puts his lips to the brim of his breakfast bowl, and sucks up his ration of creamy mist? In the late afternoon, when the heat makes every thirsty pore drink its fill as you plunge into the emerald depths? Have you sat by the camp fire at night and, dreaming, watched the sparks fly upward? No? Then you have never lived.

One day we had a fish adventure. In outline, Sproat Lake is like the impress of a giant paw. The middle digit, Taylor Arm, runs up fourteen miles to the mouth of the Taylor River. We packed a lunch-basket, and, leaving the women at home, set out early to fish this lonely inlet.

We had a guy farewell. Our wives came down to the beach to see we had everything aboard. Their faith in their husbands' skill with the rod was touching—and they were promised fish for next day's breakfast. Amid smiles and benedictions we were off.

Our tackle was wondrous — the tackle of amateurs always is. We soaked to the waist in the chilly waters of Taylor River. We trolled with worms and spinners for fourteen miles. We cast on this side and we cast on that. We cursed, we prayed. But between the whole bunch of us we had never a strike, never a bite.

As the sun dropped the châlet hove in sight. On the beach awaiting us were two figures in white. We looked into each others' eyes and groaned.

"Hulloa! Hulloa!"

The cry came from a tiny cove. Three fishermen, swarthy as Indian braves, beckoned us. They had the most primitive tackle, a tangle of tin cans and clothes lines. But in the bottom of their skiff lay a gleaming pile.

"We are camping out," they cried, "and our catch will go bad on our hands. Would you care for a few?"

There was no answer but a gulp. Four pairs of eager hands went out and soon five three-pounders and some smaller fry were snug in our basket.

"Our luck is good, but they'll be useful up at the châlet," we said.

The white-clad figures had seen us now and were waving their welcome. We answered in kind and held aloft our string of beauties. Fishermen never lie, and there was no need to begin. The fish just told their own tale.

For three days we were complimented and our advice was sought by every newcomer. Then one evening a visitor arrived. He was uneasily familiar. We were all seated on the stoop.

"You remember our giving you those fish?" quoth he. "My boy has lost a finger-ring, and we wonder whether by any chance it dropped into your boat when we were passing you over the fish."

"For goodness sake!" exclaimed two women's voices in unison, as four figures faded stealthily away.

Too Much Appetite may be as dangerous as too little

When the skin is sallow or yellow, the eyes dull, the head aches or sleep broken and unrefreshing, the back aches, or there is a pain under the right shoulder blade—it is an indication that the body is being poisoned by poorly digested and imperfectly eliminated food-waste. It is a wise thing to take to relieve these symptoms by helping to remove the causes

TRAIN BANDIT UP FOR TRIAL LAST WEEK

Tom Basoff, arrested at Pincher a few days after the sensational train hold-up and its tragic sequence at Bellevue, when two Alberta constables lost their lives in the manhunt, was brought up for trial last week at Macleod assizes. It was not long before conflicting evidence manifested itself in regard to the shooting of the constables. Basoff pleaded not guilty to the four charges preferred against him, two being murder, one of robbery and one of holding up a train at the point of a gun.

After deliberating for about an hour the jury returned a verdict of guilty against Basoff, and sentence of death was passed by Justice McCarthy, the date being set for December 22, at Lethbridge. Basoff took the sentence very impressively, and in a statement made by him published since the trial, endeavors to establish the fact that Constable Bailey did not die from a shot from his gun, but that Auloff, the bandit who was shot in the melee at Bellevue, fired the shot that ended Bailey's life.

DON'T WANT CAPITAL DRIVEN AWAY FROM INVESTING IN PROVINCE

Mining Concerns Asking Government to Change Regulations Now in Force

A telegram from Victoria says:

"Changes in the present regulations to provide for a reduction in Provincial levies in the case of mining companies were urged upon Hon. William Sloan, Minister of Mines, at a conference between the Minister and representatives of the leading mining concerns of the Province held on Tuesday, October 12.

"Among the deputations were J. J. Warren, president of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada, Limited, Messrs. Wooster and Valentine Quinn, of the Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting and Power Company, Limited Mr. Marshall, representing the Brittania Mining Company and the Belmont-Surf Inlet Mining Company Mr. Clarence Cunningham, representing a group of mining interests in the Slocan, Mr. Fowler of the Bluebell claims, Mr. R. R. Bruce of the Paradise Mining Company, Invermere and Mr. McFadden of the Surprise Groups, and others.

"Practically 90 cent. of the active-pressed for a revision of the Provincial taxation upon mining companies under the following two heads:

"An allowance for depletion of ore through mining operations and reduction in the tax on capital when used in the mining industry wherever the origin of such capital might be.

"The conference was an informal one on a subject which has been brought to the attention of the Government on previous occasions. The Minister promised that full consideration would be given by the Government to the representations made, but no hope that the requests would be acceded to was forthcoming.

"At present, under the existing system of taxation, no allowance is made for depletion of mining properties through ore mined, though the value of properties is decreased to the extent of what is taken out.

"The regulations make provision for certain deductions in compiling the value upon which taxation will be levied, but they do not include the deductions urged by the delegation. Allowance is made on capital, where such capital is raised in the Province, but such is of little or no value to the mining operators, the bulk of whose capital comes from outside the province. It was argued that the tax upon such outside capital constituted a drawback upon investors who, residing outside, are yet anxious to assist in the development of the industry by investing capital therein. The delegation urged that such deduction should be allowed, no matter where the capital came from."

"Pape's Diapepsin" Puts Sour, Gassy, Acid Stomachs in Order at Once

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in revolt; if sick; gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented and turned sour; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food—just eat a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin to help neuttralize acidity and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless antacid is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs so little at drug stores.

SUSPECTS IN WALDO MANSLAUGHTER CASE NOW BOTH IN GOAL

Second of Chouinard Brothers Arrested Last Week at U. S. Barracks Near Spokane

Charles Chouinard, wanted since July, in connection with the death of Taibi Singh, a Hindu, at Fernie, a week or so after he had been murderously assaulted at Waldo, was apprehended last week at Fort George Wright, near Spokane. Under the assumed name of Andrew Garcia, he had joined up with the United States army, but when confronted by the police admitted his real identity. He was traced to the military station by following up the course of some love letters written to him by a girl in North Bend, B.C.

His brother, George, has been held in custody at Fernie since being arrested near Eureka, Montana, in connection with the shooting of the sheriff there a few weeks ago.

Thus the long arm of the law again makes itself felt, and in the course of a few weeks justice will again be vindicated.

For this purpose an extension fund is to be raised.

MORE CONVENIENT WAY OF PAYING LUXURY TAX TO BE PUT INTO FORCE

Special Stamps to be Issued for Use of Merchants and Others on November First

A despatch from Ottawa saye that under the revised system of collecting the luxury taxes now in force in Canada, which comes into effect November 1st every merchant will be under license. The special stamps will be available for all merchants by the last day of this month.

The method to be followed, it is explained, will give the Inland Revenue department a complete check on all transactions and the collections by means of stamps will make the operation of the act much more simple.

Every merchant is to be supplied with a special machine for cancelling the stamps by perforation, and merchants will be charged a nominal license fee of two dollars. They will not, however, be required to pay anything for the perforation machine. Supplies of the stamps will be available at all banks and also at the various local custom offices so that it will not be necessary for merchants to stock up for long periods in advance.

It is pointed out that in the case of merchants who persist in ignoring or evading the law regarding the collection of luxury tax on goods sold by them, it will be within the power of the department to refuse to renew the license of such merchants, and they would thus be unable to continue in business.

MINISTERS STILL BUSY SIZING UP CHANCES AT ELECTION TIME

Practically Certain That When Turmoil of Referendum Dies Down Contest Will Come

Following a two weeks' tour through the Interior, part of which was made in company with Hon. T. D. Patullo, Minister of Lands, Premier Oliver last week paid a flying visit back to Victoria, before starting out on another speechmaking itinerary, this time centreing his activities more around his own home constituency. The Premier and the Minister of Lands are indomitable optimists when it comes to sizing up the chances of the present administration in the election contest that is now in the offing. The Premier expresses himself as being very pleased with the reception tendered to him and his colleague, and also appreciated the keen interest which the residents of the Interior sections are taking in all public matters pertaining to the welfare of the province.

The Premier professed to see in the reception tendered to him an expression of confidence from the electors in the present administration, and he was convinced, he said, that the record of the government, its policies and work during the past four years, will receive the overwhelming support of the electors when next the government makes its appeal to the country.

But on the interesting point of just when this appeal will be made, the Premier is as dumb as ever, merely remarking that he has nothing to say thereon, and that the Government will make its announcement in due course.

Prohibition was a subject which is interesting the people of the upper country, the Premier found, and he explained at his meetings the reasons that impelled the government at this time to submit the referendum that is being voted on this week—that it had been understood there would be another vote taken when the men returned from overseas. In this connection the Premier took pains to point out that there was no reason for the belief entertained by some that in the event of the present prohibion legislation being rejected, any new legislation to give effect to government sale of liquor would be someting suggested by the Moderationists. These people will in no sense dictate to te government any form of control, according to the Premier.

Hon. T. D. Patullo scouts the assertion of Mr. W. J. Bowser, leader of the opposition, that the people are tired of the present administration, and will at the next election, return the Conservative party to power. "Whistling in the dark," is how he airily describes Mr. Bowser's claim.

"It is my experience dnring the past four years that every day the Oliver Govrenment has been growing in the public esteem, and that there is not the slightest doubt in my mind that when it submits itself to the electorate again it will be returned by a large majority," declared the Minister of Lands.

The Minister has it gfiured out that the Conservatives have not a ghost of a chance in the north country, and will lose two seats now held by that party in the dry belt. According to this prediction, the present small Conservative minority of nine will, therefore, be cut to at least six, for in Fort George and in the Southern Okanagan and Similkameen ridings he cannot see anything but a solid Liberal support. The dry belt representatives of the Opposition will go, he considers, because of the aggressive government policy in respect of irrigation. He told the residents there that it is the intention of the Government to carry ahead its policy until every acre of land in that section is under water.

"What is the likelihood of an early election?" the Minister was asked.

"I can't say, for I don't know myself," replied the Minister, who, however, expressed unbounded confidence that whenever an election is held, the Oliver oGvernment will be overwhelmingly sustained.

FERNIE VOTES TO CLOSE CONTRACT FOR NEW SUPPLY OF POWER

By an overwhelming vote, 139 to 5, ratepayers of Fernie recently endorsed the contract which will be entered into between the City of Fernie and the B. C. and Alberta Power Co. It is estimated that the proposed change from steam power which Fernie had had to generate up to the present time, to the hydro-electric energy which the company is expecting to generate at Bull River falls will result in a saving of eight or nine thousand dollars or more per annum to the city, if the company's plans are brought to maturity.

Canadian Persian Lamb

(1) A Karakul flock gathered for inspection. (2) Karakul sheep and lambs.

The aggressive and enterprising spirit of the Canadian farmer coupled with the diversity of climates to be found throughout the Dominion result in a continual branching out into new lines of agricultural activity. A recent introduction which has apparently taken vigorous hold and will probably assume important proportions, developing into a commercial industry of magnitude, is the breeding of Karakul sheep, the animal whose young produce the fur variously known as Persian lamb, Astrakhan, and Karakul. This breed is but little known on the American continent although interesting experiments have been made with this breed at Penniac, New Brunswick, and in Prince Edward Island. The home of the Karakul sheep is on the vast sandy deserts of Bokara, which are largely inundated in the spring by the river Zerafchane swollen to overflowing by the accumulation of winter's snow in the Altai Mountains. Many deep-rooted bushes grow in this region, the tender shoots of which form the favorite food of the sheep in the summer, whilst their berries supply winter forage. For the supply of furs, the lambs are killed within three days from birth when the wool is curly, a property it maintains afterwards in the most humid atmosphere. If the animal is permitted to live, the growth gradually becomes straight, losing every vestige of flexure at maturity.

In the year 1912 the Karakul sheep was first introduced into the United States direct from Bokara, and in the following year small herds were established in Alberta and British Columbia. Here they have thrived and propagated successfully and give every indication of making the industry in the west permanently profitable. Recently, F. E. Dawley, an inspector of the United States Bureau of Husbandry for New York, who has been running a herd of 45 animals north of Calgary, Alberta, located land in the Kamloops district of British Columbia, on which he proposes establishing a similar ranch. He believes the district to be particularly adapted to the raising of Karakul sheep on account of its elevation, climate and winter conditions closely approximating the animals' native Bokara in Turkestan. Previous to the war attempts were made to acclimatize Karakul sheep in Belgium and Northern Germany, with some success. The climate of certain sections of Canada, however, provides more ideal conditions, and indications are that the foundation has been laid in the Dominion for a new issue in the livestock industry which should prove a very profitable line to Canadian farmers.

Before the war almost the entire Karakul fur crop from Bokara known as Persian lamb or Astrakhan, was treated and dyed at Leipzig, where two houses alone received 780,000 skins valued at about $2,700,000 (pre-war prices). A full-blood Karakul sheep is worth about $2,000; three-fourths blooded, $800; half-breeds, $150 to $200. Skins at the present time range from $20 to $30 each.

MILEAGE COUNTS IN THESE DAYS OF HIGH FUEL COSTS.

An interesting test of the mileage efficiency per gallon of gasoline has been made in Cranbrook with one of the New Overland Fours, it being desired to see just what the car would do per mile in the consumption of gasoline.

THE OVERLAND FOUR'S PERFORMANCE.

Draining the tank dry of fuel, a gallon only of gas was placed in the tank and off towards the Mission went the little car. Over the most difficult roads hereabouts she kept up the pace and when the engine refused to function longer it was found that exactly 31¾ miles was the distance covered.

A demonstration of the many good qualities of this popular car can be had any time at——

A WARNING!

The Government has officially stated "that it has not considered the question of government control."

VOTERS

The liquor party are seeking to steal a vote.

They see that people are disgusted with the lack of administration of the present Act, and they have compelled the Government to ask you to choose between an Act which they have deliberately and maliciously plotted to destroy, and an abstract idea of Government Sale.

The liquor party is at the bottom of conditions.

They have plotted, but every day of the campaign people are discovering the real position.
Don't be fooled by them. Don't be a victim of their plot.
Don't be fooled, we say. Do you think the brewers want to prevent the extensive sale of liquor?

Certainly Not!

They are not out for reform, but for money--money from the rich, money from the poor, money from the wife, money from the kiddies.

If Government Sale wins, the "booze ring" will control the Government.

MACKEZIE KING AND PARTY IN THE CITY

long enough to find out that that the big interests had special influence in its findings.

According to Mr. King there were at least three ways in which something could be done to reduce the high cost of living. The first was to practice economy in administering the government. This year's estimates amounted to seven hundred million dollars, and eventually this burden of taxation would find its way on to the backs of those least able to bear it. Economy was not to be expected from the men now in office, however, Mr. King averred. A second way of reducing the high cost of living was by reducing the tariff on the necessities of life, thus relieving the consumer, and also by reducing the tariff on instruments of production used in farming. It was still necessary to have a tariff. Mr. King was careful to add, and the system could not be changed all at once. Taxes on incomes, on business profits, and on luxuries would not alone yield the reveune, a tariff would be needed for some time to come.

The Liberal party believed that the tarig at present was not ftir, and demanded its revision, not in a way as to destroy any industry, but so as to let the necessities of life escape with the least possible taxation.

Relieving farm implements of some of their taxation should appeal to British Columbia, Mr. King thought. Putting a duty on them was the same as taxing capital. Freeing them would result in increasing production, benefitting both labor and capital. The farm stood in the same position. Unless there was agriculture, the cost of living in the cities would never be reduced.

Mr. King's third remedy for the high cost of living was to end profiteering. It should be possible for the government to establish machinery to this end, he asserted.

The government claimed to have done a great thing in taking over the Grand Trunk railway system, said Mr. King. The two attractive points about government ownership were the lowering of rates and the fact of public control. Did the people think they owned the Grand Trunk, he asked? The fact was that Canada has guaranteed to pay the shareholders interest for twenty years in excess of the annual dvidends. At the end of that time the company could take it back by paying five hundred million dollars. The big interests had thus been fully cared for, and the people's part was to care for the deficit, said Mr. King. The railroad would be administered by a board appointed by a government that had usurped the rights of the people. This helped to illustrate the difference between the two parties. The opposition wanted two representatives of labor on that board, but Mr. Meighen had opposed this, according to Mr. King,

Each group of the public — farming, manufacturing and others — should be represented in parliament, but its representatives should not be there as representatives but as private citizens. There should be party government, but there ought not to be groups in control of the government.

In international relations, Mr. King said, the party stood for the same principles. They wanted no secret diplomacy. They wanted the relations between Canada and other countries settled in parliament and not in secret cabinet sessions.

The meeting closed with the singing of the national anthem.

Mr. King and his party left for Lethbridge on Tuesday morning by the daylight train through the Crow's Nest.
