

VISIT ST. MARY'S
AND THE EVANS' MINES

Cranbrook Men Inspect This Group
—Bring Home Good Samples of Ore

Dr. J. H. King, C. R. Ward, Dr. F. B. Miles and Thos. M. Roberts composed an automobile party which left the city last Thursday evening for St. Mary's lake, where they looked for the hospitality of Mr. Hans Lund for the night. The next day they proceeded to the mining property of the Evans brothers, where they found the three brothers hard at work on their many properties. This property has more development work done than most of the properties in this country. It has really merged from the prospect stage into a mine or a group of mines and would be shipping ore today but for the transportation difficulties. The visitors were much interested in inspecting this property and carried away a number of specimens of ore.

It is a pity more people would not undertake trips of this character through the mountain trails around Cranbrook. For one thing they would learn of another world which lies at our doors and of the national wealth locked up in the rocks around us everywhere. Passing along the trail above Whitefish Falls the formation is all recent in geological age, that is, it is mostly gravel thrown along the valley side by old time glaciers or by the streams which drained them. Above on the mountain sides the real rocks appear, strong and rugged and aspiring to the skies. Your geologist will tell you they are quartzites and argillites, but the ordinary wayfarer will notice as he approaches Mackay's Camp a very marked line of sharp cliffs protruding through the quartzites on the right hand side as one goes up the valley. These cliffs are formed by one of the famous silts of gabro diorite now attracting so much attention in the geological world.

Thinking of these you have to realize a semi-plastic mass, like hot putty, rising from the heated regions in the bosom of the earth and being squeezed into the fissures along the line of least resistance. Looked at from the trail the cliffs look to be a few feet thick, but when you get up, and they take some getting to get up to them, you find they are some 400 feet high. The curious and important thing about them is they are highly mineralized, that is, there is a lot of copper and silver in the middle of them. How it got there is somewhat of a puzzle, but the fact we are all concerned in is that the minerals are there for a depth of from forty to perhaps one hundred feet in the center of the sill and this enormous mass of mineral extends along the face of the mountain side for a mile or so. What depth the mineral extends into the body of the sill is unknown, but the opinion is that follows the sill as part of its mass and body. This ground has been covered by the Evans brothers by the claims of the Alliance Group, some six in number. If it be proven satisfactorily that the mineral mass runs sufficiently high in copper to pay for concentration then the future of the White Fish Creek country as a mighty copper producing region is absolutely assured of a record which will rival the Bingham, Utah, production of the red metal.

The sill along the Alliance Group is far from being the only one of the kind in this neighborhood. Following the trail past the Mackay Camp we reach the Home Camp and the Home Group, also belonging to the Evans brothers. Here they have by their own unaided industry for the past fifteen years done work enough to positively outstand one and thereby opened up a fine body of copper. There is enough on the dump to make a large shipment. It is not wise to make all things public, but it can be said that recent investigations point to the probable movement of this material for treatment. On the Home Group is the home camp of the Evans Brothers, more indeed a comfortable home, in the true sense, than a mere camp. Behind it, following up Fiddler Creek on the right bank, is a trail which after a easy grade for a short distance, suddenly turns to switchbacks—fourteen of them and each of them steep enough to test one's wind. These end in a plateau, heavily timbered with some kind of pine which thrives all right in the high altitude. This is a new wonderland, a haunt of strange birds and many caribou. Above it, reared some 10,000 feet Mount Evans keeps watch and ward over this and the treasures of the Achilles Basin, where the Evans Brothers have the pick of their claims. Here you can see a copper lead some sixteen feet in width between the walls which can be traced for a distance of about two miles, that is, from the Achilles Basin clear into the Kelly Basin over the divide between the Fiddler Creek drainage and the head of Hells Roaring Creek. This extraordinary lead carries chalcocite (the ordinary yellow copper) and also native copper to the extent of about 12 per cent of the entire mass. It is the makings of a great mine, and a great mine it will prove before the Evans Brothers are through with it. The minerals which they can show on the Alliance ground, the Home group and the Achilles all combined to do more with the wonderful find they made last year in a huge body of low grade copper in the Kelly Basin where they have staked a sufficient number of claims to protect their discovery.

CRANBROOK MEN
NEED A "HOUSEWIFE"

Ladies of the City Will Make Effort to Provide Each Man With Serviceable One

During Sergeant J. H. Malcolm's stay in the city he called upon Mrs. J. H. King to see if the ladies of Cranbrook could see their way clear to give the Cranbrook boys a small case containing thread, needles, buttons, darning cotton, etc., for personal use. He stated that the men felt the need of these articles very much, as it is impossible to get their clothes repaired in camp.

In response to Mrs. King's request for the exact number of Cranbrook men, Sergeant Malcolm has written the following letter:

"B" Co., 54th Batt., C. E. F.,
Vernon, B. C., Aug. 29th, 1915.
Mrs. J. H. King, Cranbrook, B. C.:
Madam: According to my promise to you I find that there are about 75 Cranbrook men still in the 54th. As doubtless you have seen, we are under orders for England and expect to leave in the next two weeks.

If it is at all possible for you good folks in Cranbrook to let us have the "Housewife" it would be very greatly appreciated. I have spoken to several of the fellows and, though they say that we have been right royally treated already, they would be very grateful for it, as it is so useful.

Yours faithfully,

James H. Malcolm,

Sergeant.

P. S.—I will be pleased to distribute them or they can be addressed to Major Pollen, who is now Junior Major.

The sum of twenty-five cents will purchase the material and contents for a "Housewife." For seventy-five men it means that the sum of $18.75 is required. A fund for this purpose has been opened and anyone wishing to contribute may hand their donation to either Mrs. J. H. King or Miss Harrison during the next week. This will be a gift from the ladies of Cranbrook and will not come under the auspices of any society or order. Anyone wishing to contribute any part of the "Housewife" may do so. The kit consists of black thread, size 24; wool darning yarn, darning needles, plain shirt buttons and bachelors buttons. A spool of thread or a few shirt buttons will be just as acceptable to the committee as the money with which to buy them. In next week's paper the day for making these up will be given.

GRAIN ALL CUT
AT ST. MARY'S PRAIRIE

First Car of Golden Grain Arrived in Cranbrook Saturday—35 Bushels to the Acre

Perfect weather the past couple of weeks has greatly assisted the farmers of St. Mary's Prairie with the harvesting operations in that neighborhood. This week the finishing touches were put to the cutting. On many farms threshing is now in full swing, the merry music of the threshing machine bringing gladness to the hearts of the farmers. The farmers are optimistic to a degree, the heavy yields of grain averaging 35 bushels to the acre. The first car of grain from that section arrived in the city Saturday. It came from the Beattie-Murphy ranch. The heavy grain crops, together with the activity of the mills at Wyeville, has necessitated the inauguration of a daily train service on the Kimberley branch, when each day may be witnessed the passing of heavy trains over this road.

The potato crop in the St. Mary's country is a bumper one this year, and a large acreage is under crop, approximately 500 acres, which will yield 80 bushels to the acre. This crop is about ready for digging. Next week the diggers will be in working order. This section is known all over British Columbia for its mealy potatoes, which are excellent keepers.

DAVE SUTHERLAND
AFTER THE BIG FISH

J. D. McBride Also Took a Hand in the Game—Fish Rocked
the Boat

Last week Dave Sutherland, first cousin of Isaac Walton, the fisherman's disciple, packed his grip, donned a comfortable shirt, and struck out for St. Mary's lake, the fisherman's paradise and the abode of the scenery artist. Dave was on pleasure bent, but he was also bent on laying both hands on the big fish in the St. Mary's, which has caused as much talk lately as the Homestake mine. Dave reaches the lake and forthwith proceeds to arrange his miscellaneous kit. Dave's one and only thought, gentle reader, is the big fish. He had dreamed dreams of the big monster! How the Cranbrook fellows would envy him! What would Henry think of it! Would his automobile be strong enough to convey the finny fellow to Cranbrook! Dave thusly mused with himself as he set about his work of preparing his fishing paraphernalia. His thoughts turned to London—in the bush—and the Thames river. My early successes will be repeated. I learned every member of the London Old Boys the art of casting for the big 'uns.

Everything ready Dave placed his outfit in the boat and cast off, striking for the center of the lake. In his outfit was a mariner's lead, with which he took soundings and found he was in six fathoms of water, which permitted ample scope for his work.

He baited his hook and gently dropped it into the water. Down it went with a gurgling sound; The bubbles arose and burst around. "I will fill me my pipe and then to work." The pipe was filled and Dave sent circles of smoke in the air. What a great place this was. Everything that mortal man could desire was here. The grandeur of the scenery seemed to take hold of him to the very core. It's wonderful! Wonderful! Look at the mountain peaks with their mystic garb of white glistening in the sun. Ah! nature was at her best! There are no colors that can compare with hers. This is the ideal spot of British Columbia. The distant "chug, chug" of an automobile attracted the attention of this nature-lover. His pipe was out. His dream over. The automobile was now in full view with J. D. McBride at the wheel. He was accompanied by a party of Cranbrook and Montreal people. Jimmy McBride was one of the London Old Boys and had fished in the Thames. If the big fish was to be taken the task had to be accomplished quickly, as J. D. would lose no time in getting after it.

"Hello Dave. After the big fellow?" shouted J. D. "You bet," answered Dave. Jimmy was soon out in the lake and the two London, Ont., men braced their shoulders in anticipation of something big coming their way.

Dave laid down his rod to again fill his pipe, when just at that moment he saw a frothy streak ahead of him. Submarine! Surely not! In an instant his rod, reel, line and everything he had disappeared. His eye caught a glimpse of the rod leaving the boat. Whatever it was, the jig was now up. The fish belonged to McBride. In the direction where Jimmy was fishing the frothy streak again appeared and in an instant, lo! and behold, the boat in which J. D. was fishing was upturned and the occupant was "shot out and shot under" the surface. There was a struggle, when the boat was again righted and J. D. came ashore little the worse for his ducking. The big fish slipped one over the London, Ont., fishermen, who will in future be on the lookout for the "frothy streak."

THIRTY-TWO ITALIANS

Second Quota From This District
Fine Body of Men—Parade
Sunday Afternoon

The citizens of Cranbrook turned out last Sunday afternoon in large numbers to witness the departure of the second quota of Italians from this city. Saturday night it was announced that the men would not leave until Monday afternoon, word being received to the effect that the steamer on which they would sail would not leave New York until September 4th. The soldiers, however, decided that as the citizens had been informed of their departure on Sunday and all arrangements had been made they decided to leave on the day arranged.

The men paraded to the city hall Saturday afternoon, where they were photographed by R. J. Binning. Some thirty-two men were in the line of march. The men presented a striking appearance as they struck off at an even pace, showing at once all were trained men and knew their business. Many complimentary remarks were heard as to the soldierly appearance of the men. Saturday night they were given the freedom of the city, when the key was turned over to them by Chief of Police Adams. The music of the accordion was heard on the streets for the first time in years.

At 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon the men paraded to the station where they boarded the afternoon train for New York, from which city they sail for their native land. The men are mostly reservists, and are answering the call to the colors. Many of them have worked in this district for years, being employed in the several mills in the district.

Saturday evening a dance was tendered the men by Frank Provenzano, at which a large number turned out and had a thoroughly good time.

Lester Clapp, O. Offen and Frank Provenzano furnished cigars for the departing soldiers.

It is expected another batch will leave about the 6th of September.

BASEBALL GAME
ON LABOR DAY

Wardner and Cranbrook Will Try
Conclusions on Monday Next—
Other Games Probable

Cranbrook and Wardner will meet in a baseball match on the local grounds next Monday afternoon at 2.00 o'clock. The local boys are also trying to get Waldo and Michel here on that day but so far have only succeeded in landing the Wardner game. These two teams have played three games this year, two of which were won by Cranbrook and one by Wardner. The game next Monday afternoon will be hotly contested.

The local boys will lineup as follows:

E. Crowe, catcher; A. Crowe, pitcher; Adamson, first base; L. Crowe, second base; George Sullivan, short stop; Cliff McNabb, third base; Carl McNabb, center field; E. Phillips, right field; W. Dallas, left field; Braut, spare.

POULTRY ASSOCIATION
EXECUTIVE MEETING

Transact Important Business at Meeting Held Monday Evening

At a meeting of the executive of the Cranbrook Poultry association held Monday evening at the residence of President B. Palmer there were present Secretary Dicks, Directors Robinson, Cooper and Smith.

A letter from the B. C. P. A. was read stating grants had been allocated for winter shows providing statements of winter shows, prize lists, etc., were filed before September 25th. Cranbrook will get $100.00 on these terms. The secretary was instructed to write Mr. Terry, supplying dates.

Mr. Cooper offered a prize of $5.00 for the person securing the most memberships in the association before December 1st, which was gratefully accepted on motion of Robinson, seconded by Smith.

Mr. Smith gave formal notice that at the next association meeting (September 17th) he would move to change the name of the association from "Cranbrook Poultry & Pet Stock Association" to "Cranbrook Poultry Association." This to facilitate secretary's work and also to economize space in a stamp now being procured.

The members are reminded that a large number of egg cartons are on hand for their use.

A letter from Fernie association was read acknowledging the secretary's letter suggesting that the two associations co-operate in services of judge and purchase of coops for winter shows, and stating they felt the plan would be acceptable and would be laid before their directors.

The members of the executive pledged themselves to get busy on the question of coops for winter show, each stating how many he would take personally and promising to look up other purchasers.

The plan as laid out is for each member as far as possible to buy a few coops, loaning them to the association for show purposes, himself having use of same for fattening, training and other purposes throughout the year.

By calculation of needs it is estimated that fifty complete coops bought by private members and a number of extra fronts bought by the association will fill the bill if Fernie obtained a like number. The total cost to local association should not be over $200.00 on the body and the private members in toto, when they would then have the fittings for a complete show for years and the members would have a number of very useful articles that every poultryman needs almost constantly.

The secretary informed the board that Mr. W. Miller Higgins will be poultry judge at the Fall Fair. Mr. Higgins is a well known coast poultryman and capable judge so if you want to know which of your birds are the best bring them all to the Fall Fair and then you will be able to select the right ones for the winter show.

After the business the executive enjoyed sandwiches, cake and tea and it is the opinion of the scribe that most of the directors skip supper at home these hard times when the executive has a meeting on. It is going to take a lot of meetings to get Secretary Dicks to look anything like Ted Cooper though. The directors all felt they would enjoy a second visit to President Palmer's. It seems a good place to meet.

On Saturday the Cranbrook members of the I. O. D. E. forwarded a money order to James Milne at Shorncliffe, England, for $24.21 with which to purchase tobacco for the Cranbrook boys at the front. The boxes which are placed throughout the city, turned into the tobacco fund $23.31, to which Mr. Ted Worthington donated $1.00, making a total of $24.31. Contributions will be forwarded each month. The men of Cranbrook are asked to drop a spare nickel in every once in a while to ensure a good smoke to the Cranbrook men. A good scheme which could be worked out to the benefit of the soldiers would be for every working man in the city to drop ten cents in the box every week.

Mr. T. E. South and son Ernie returned Friday night from St. Mary's lake, where they spent a week's fishing. A genuine fisherman's time was had, no less than thirty of the prettiest fish that ever came to Cranbrook being taken out of the St. Mary's. The young disciple of old Isaac hooked a pretty fish, weighing over two pounds. After successfully netting the fish the said turned to his pa and said: "Say, dad, this is better fishin' in the creek. Let's move up here."

R. C. Carr, F. Kummer, J. Woods and L. Perron made a flying trip to Toronto on Sunday. The latter two ninrads located the "Hunters Paradise," and will return to their location for a couple of weeks shooting on Monday, September 6th. Ye editor expects to be ducked on their return.

James Connolly, one of the bad men arrested last week on a charge of being drunk and having no means of securing an honest living, was set free Monday, some good Samaritan paying his fine.

STAGE IS SET FOR THE
EAST KOOTENAY BIG FALL FAIR

Fine Program of Races and Attractions to Entertain Visitors--Exhibits Now
Coming in Rapidly

Ere another issue of this paper appears the great fall fair will have come and gone. The fair will be another great advertisement for the district or else will show its poverty with regard to productive capability. We who know the district have some idea of its standing, but the rank outsider, yea, and many who dwell in West Kootenay, honestly believe that we have neither the land nor the climate. The only way to convince them is to produce the goods. The judges and others who will attend the fair will carry away impressions gained on the amount and quality of the exhibits staged at the fair grounds next Wednesday and Thursday. It is up to the producers in the Cranbrook section to bring of their best and to bring many varieties.

The prize list does not carry so much in the way of cash as in former years but that should not deter any from entering the best they have.

The report on the fair as well as the detailed prize list is copied in many papers in various parts of the country. Let us give them something worth reporting and get the very mention of it "East Kootenay" to call to the hearers' mind, not vast fields of ice and snow and bare, bleak mountain sides, but to make them think at once of cattle and horses, potatoes and grain, or in other words let East Kootenay stand for the best in the way of mixed farming.

Exhibits are coming in fast and they close on Saturday night.

The steep ascent to the fair grounds need frighten no one this year, as a 10 cent automobile service will run the first day and a jitney service in aid of the patriotic funds the second day.

Prospects for a keenly contested harness race on Wednesday are looking brighter and brighter. Don't miss the children's sports on Wednesday or the men's races and pony races on Thursday. A new feature will be the Dominion exhibit, which will be staged by Mr. Farham, of Invermere.

Children's competitions loom large in the different departments, as besides cookery and needlework there will be exhibits of the products of the school and home gardens, together with samples of potatoes grown by boys who are tending one-tenth of an acre of potatoes each in the provincial competitions, and the poultry department will be the richer by several batches of birds raised by boys under the auspices of the Cranbrook Poultry and Pet Stock Association. Come out and see what the young folks have been doing for the betterment of the city and you will receive an inspiration to have a try yourself next year.

St. Mary's Prairie promises to figure on the prize list and there is little doubt but they can have matters a good deal their own way if they decide to come with such crops as they have succeeded in raising this year.

Port Steele will be well represented by the young folks' exhibits, but up to going to press the elders are conspicuous by their absence. Come on Steele—what is the matter? No need to be so proud now you are outside the Cranbrook voting district. You are still on the same side of the Rockies.

MILLS PREPARING FOR BUSY SEASON

Eight Hundred Men Will be Working in the Bush by End of September

Lumber mills are making preparations for the placing of the usual gangs of men in the woods this fall. Big orders are expected from the prairies this season, which will deplete the stock already on hand of most mills. By the end of September some eight hundred men will be put to work in the woods. This means much to the city of Cranbrook, as this town is a lumbering center, depending almost entirely on that industry. The business men are preparing for a better business this fall than a year ago.

FLEENER CONCERT
POORLY ATTENDED

British Columbia Girl Not Very Well Patronized—Rare Musical Treat

Miss Hazel Fleener gave a recital at the Auditorium on Wednesday evening under the auspices of the St. John's Ambulance Association. There was not a very large attendance, but all who were present enjoyed the varied program presented by this versatile lady. Her vocal solos were the best numbers on the program, but she proved herself also a capable and artistic piano player as well as a reader of considerable ability. Miss Wanda and Master Vincent Fink gave a violin and piano duet for two numbers on the program and were in their usual excellent form, greatly pleasing those in attendance. About $15.00 was realized from the entertainment for the aid of the local funds of the St. John's Ambulance Association.

EDITORIAL NOTES

New Brunswick had its Fleming, Manitoba had its Roblin and British Columbia may well profit by their example.

The thanks of the people of Canada are due the Royal Commission which did its work so thoroughly in Manitoba.

If Premier Borden is to live up to his press notices his first job when he gets home should be to read Sir Rodmond Roblin and the Hon. Bob Rogers out of the Conservative party.

There are few editors in this province who have not made a vigorous and continuous fight against the city mail order house. This has been done in the interest of the home merchant and without money and without price. If the editors of the land received regular advertising rates for all they have said against these enemies of the country merchant, they would now be wearing diamonds. Now, in progressive communities, the department store man appreciates advertising space, and is willing to take all the editor has for sale and at a good price. What other class of business or professional men would refuse business to help their friends, especially as many of the said friends never seem in the least disposed to return the compliment?—Ex.

BOWSER THE LITTLE BOY WITH FINGER IN DYKE

Ottawa, August 19.—Politicians here are pointing out that the Conservative press has been mighty quick to draw a moral from the Manitoba election. The moral is that the defeat in Manitoba must not be linked up with the government at Ottawa. Of course there are other morals which might be mentioned, such as the need of pure politics and honest cabinet ministers, but the most practical one is that the sins of the Roblin government must not be visited on the powers at Ottawa, even though the honorable Robert Rogers is one of them.

The Conservative press, jointly and severally, complains that it is unfair to link the Borden government up with the doings at Winnipeg. No doubt the people of Canada will play fair and refuse to do any more linking up than the Borden government has done on its own account. When Premier Borden took the Honorable Robert Rogers into his cabinet, he to a certain extent linked up with Mr. Rogers' reputation as the Manitoba Boss. When he allowed Mr. Rogers to take four months off from his job at Ottawa to handle the Manitoba election he carried the linking up a step further.

When Mr. Rogers received a telegram from Mr. Caldwell saying "This means more to you than it does to us," the linking up received its final touch. Bob's past called to him in tones of thunder and he had to go. There is no need of alarm on the part of the Conservative newspapers. The people of Canada will not do any more linking up than the Borden government sanctions and the circumstances warrant. The Rideau Club, which is the unofficial center of political alarms, shows a disposition to make Hog Robert Rogers the goat. The truth is that the Minister of Elections did his best, or his worst—whatever you call it—but the job was too big for him. Like General Buller in South Africa he was put up against something which it was impossible to do with the means at his command. If he had been given a general Dominion election when he first wanted it, Manitoba might still be in the Conservative list. So far as blame is concerned they ought to wobble a little. Bob is getting it all.

In British Columbia Another source of panic is British Columbia, where Attorney-General Bowser is the little boy with his finger in the dyke. If he ever pulls it out the mess will be terrible. Even now the tempest is rising and the flood of wrath is almost upon him. The clergy of the lower mainland and a number of good citizens have banded together and are demanding a Royal Commission to investigate. The figures submitted by their experts indicate that, compared with British Columbia, looting was just in its infancy in Manitoba. Where the Manitoba crowd took millions, the British Columbia outfit got away with tens, perhaps, hundreds of millions. They're no pickers out there in Victoria. When they play poker with the public resources the roof's the limit.

It was a brisk game while it lasted, but the province is about gutted now. A Royal Commission in British Columbia would show the treasury as bare as Mother Hubbard's cupboard, and nothing to line the shelves but the worthless promissory notes of the exploiters and speculators. However, there is little present danger of a Royal Commission in British Columbia to be followed by a general election as was the case in Manitoba. In British Columbia the government has a lieutenant-governor of its own party complexion, and he will make it his duty to sit on the lid. In Manitoba the Roblin government was cursed with a Liberal lieutenant-governor, who insisted on pulling the lid off. That's the main difference. Manitoba had a wash up, British Columbia goes in for a hush-up. Until the sky looks a good deal brighter than it does now, safety first will be the McBride-Bowser line of action. Meanwhile the general situation is being viewed with alarm and trial balloons are being issued from Ottawa from time to time, with a view to feeling out Liberal opinion on a modus vivendi. A Coalition Government is being more or less vigorously opposed by the Conservative newspapers, which is a good sign of what is running in their minds. Some are presumably in favor of it. They speak of national problems and the necessity of a "national government" to meet them. The wish is willing to do almost anything to save its bacon. Although the voters lists perhaps father to the thought. At any rate the suggestion is there, to take or to leave, as may be deemed fit.

In fact, the Borden government is in the unorganized districts are being prepared and decks are being cleared one way or another for a general election, the desire for it seems not as keen as it was before the results in Manitoba put the fear of the Lord into their hearts. Hints of peace, peace with honor and the long end of the spoils, the kind of peace the Germans want, are in the air. The latest is contained in a despatch from Ottawa, which appeared in the Toronto Mail and the Montreal Gazette, simultaneously on August 9th. The gist of this despatch was that an extension of the parliamentary term, a good, long extension, say of three years, which would perhaps see them back into better times, is the way out of the difficulty. The good will and sincere support of the opposition is bespoken for this proposal to give Premier Borden a general election at the time that suits him best. Hopes are expressed that the Liberal party and the house will agree to it and that the Liberal press will do no snarling on the side.

Along with this scheme to get the inside position, goes the faint outline of the policy on which the government may appeal to the country—namely closer imperial relations. This policy is based on the fact that Premier Borden was an invited guest at an Asquith cabinet meeting, just as Lloyd George was an invited guest at a Ross cabinet meeting on his last visit to Canada. Although no change of imperial relations followed, this act of courtesy toward Lloyd George, some of the Conservative party managers think, that the Borden incident ought to be of considerable value in a general election. It may be that the closer imperial relations consist of having a Canadian cabinet minister as high commissioner in London—this has long been a hobby of Premier Borden's—but in any event the idea would give rise to a fine flow of sentiment and would serve well as a party slogan. There would be no harm in trying it and perhaps some advantage.

THE "FOLLIES" AT THE AUDITORIUM

The 1915 Follies held the boards at the Auditorium Monday evening, to a good-sized house. A programme in three parts was carried out and, taken as a whole, was an improvement on the 1914 show. B. C. (British Columbia) Hilliam is an accomplished and able pianist and received several rounds of well merited applause. Miss Anne Lechead has a pleasing voice and a commanding stage appearance. Her rendition of "Megan" won the applause of the audience. Arthur Soames in "How People Read the War News" was greatly appreciated. He had several original skits. "The Foundling" in which Henry Anstie was the star, provoked laughter from anyone who knew how to laugh. His number was the most original and ably presented during the evening. Anstie is original in everything. Miss Dora Rigold sang "The Day" to perfection. Her rich voice, full of expression and naturalness struck the responsive chords of her audience. She was tendered an ovation at the conclusion of her number. The burlesque opera "Oll Well That Ends Well," or "Calgary Rusticana" was not relished by a number of the audience. The number seemed to bring home thought of a year ago, when everybody expected to "get rich quick" over night. People seemed satisfied when the number was done and over with. There was no encore, and it seemed proper. The mention of oil sends a chill down one's spinal column. Wm. Sauter in a Dickens Monologue was good.

Part two of the programme, "The Man in the Stalls," was a piece of acting which was quite realistic. It was a story of the villain again breaking into the sacred family circle and robbing the home of joy and happiness. Cranbrook has a couple of real actors who have been playing this same stunt for years, and not on the Auditorium stage either. The bill closed with a pantomime rehearsal by Cecil Clay, a good bunch of nonsense thoroughly mixed. The entire company took part in this playlet, which was amusing, there being many interesting situations and amusing incidents. Webster says folly is foolishness, and in this act we had the genuine article.

BEAUTIFUL SCENERY ON THE BATTLEFIELD

Glorious Sunsets and the Roar of Cannon Add to the Pleasure of Life

Mr. W. Gilchrist has received the following letter from his cousin, Mr. A. Carnahan, of Auckland, N. Z., who is fighting in the European conflict against the Turk. The letter is extremely interesting, the writer departing from the usual rule of horrible carnage and instead telling of the marvelous sunsets, the beautiful streams in which he takes a daily plunge and says a kind word for the "Terrible Turk." The letter is well worthy of perusal by those contemplating a pleasure trip into the heart of the European battlefields. The letter is written in Turkey and is dated July 18th:

Your very welcome parcel arrived yesterday and I appreciate very much the inclusions, particularly the nice, fine socks, which, with the paper and envelopes will keep me going for a long time, so don't bother to send anything else. The papers were very welcome, as we had not had much news for the last fortnight. Lloyd George's speech was an eye-opener for the "stay at homes," although we have been sadly aware of the facts for a long time. The colonel would like to have charge of some of those gangs. They would get an idea what work was then. We seem to have the "Terrible Turk" well in hand now, and the date of his final threshing is not far off. Although I refer to him as the "Terrible Turk," they have fought us very fair—not a single dirty trick—our hospital ship lay well within range of their guns at times, but are never molested, and on several occasions our wounded, who have fallen into their hands have been found by our people later, properly bandaged and water left with them. When a Turkish battery shelled our boats while picking up survivors of the "Triumph," we suspected it was the hand of the Germans showing up, and I have since heard that the Turks have apologized and explained that it was a battery in charge of Germans who did the dirty work. So far they have not attempted to use gas on us, and I hope for their sakes that they don't. Our men will repay them fourfold, when the reckoning up takes place.

Newspaper Stories Not the True Story When you are thinking of the friends you have fighting try and dismiss from your mind all that you have read of the horrors of warfare. The real thing is nothing like any picture or story that I have ever seen or read of. There has been enough sudden death in our fighting, here as the lists show, but all those gory horrors exist solely in the imagination of the writers, who, I doubt, ever get near enough to see what really goes on. If one's nerves can stand the racket of the continual bursting shells of all sizes, from the 15 inch of the "Liz-zie" to the racking snap of the French 75s, all the rest is easy. The whining of bullets seem quite an impersonal affair and no one takes any notice of them. On the other side of the picture we have lovely scenery, a glorious sunset every evening, plenty of good ticker and the only drawback is the plague of flies. I go for a swim every day and so far have not had a single "light horse man" on me, which is by the way, our nickname for the well known "crawler," so you see we are not to be pitted in the least, unless it is for the awful thirst we are working up against the day we arrive in England, and which from all accounts is not far off. I will certainly be very much surprised if I cannot pay a visit to Duymam before then. Then you will hear all the "terrible tales of the war" as it is. It seems as if the boys only seem to remember their hardships when they can get a sympathetic audience.

Love to all.
Andy.

No. 23065 Writes Cranbrook Man of Doings at the Front—Preparing for Winter in Trenches

Mr. M. A. Beale is in receipt of the following letter from F. Woodward, who left Cranbrook with the first contingent:

Dear Mr. Beale:

I am taking advantage of a short rest given to us by trying to write a few letters, and feel it a duty to write you while I have the chance.

Time flies very quickly and it will be hard to realize in a month's time that it will be 12 months since I left Cranbrook.

I had an idea that time would go slower out here, but these last three months have gone by apparently quicker than any.

Just at present things are comparatively quiet in this part of the field, but it is hardly likely that they will remain so very long.

The time is just about due for another burst up, which seem to come periodically about every six weeks.

I do not look forward with any degree of pleasure to a winter in the trenches, but it looks at present as if that is what we are in for. However, I very much hope that we shall be in trenches considerably nearer the Rhine before winter sets in, those of us that is who keep our numbers intact until then.

After all the slowness of things is more apparent than real, for time helps us more than the Germans, or hinders us less; which ever way you

Mr. M. A. Beale is in receipt of the following letter from F. Woodward, who left Cranbrook with the first contingent:

Dear Mr. Beale:

I am taking advantage of a short rest given to us by trying to write a few letters, and feel it a duty to write you while I have the chance.

Time flies very quickly and it will be hard to realize in a month's time that it will be 12 months since I left Cranbrook.

I had an idea that time would go slower out here, but these last three months have gone by apparently quicker than any.

Just at present things are comparatively quiet in this part of the field, but it is hardly likely that they will remain so very long.

The time is just about due for another burst up, which seem to come periodically about every six weeks.

I do not look forward with any degree of pleasure to a winter in the trenches, but it looks at present as if that is what we are in for. However, I very much hope that we shall be in trenches considerably nearer the Rhine before winter sets in, those of us that is who keep our numbers intact until then.

After all the slowness of things is more apparent than real, for time helps us more than the Germans, or hinders us less; which ever way you look at it.

I cannot profess to be in possession of any inside knowledge, but it seems to me that the Germans have shot their bolt in the west.

They seem, to me, to be preparing more for defence than attack. And although there will be, I suppose, another attempt to reach Calais, it will do us more good than harm, in my opinion, as it will only waste their men.

The Russians seem to be having a hard time, and considering the help they undoubtedly gave to the Allies last autumn, by diverting troops and attention to the eastern front, one would like to see a move made of some kind to relieve them a little. Poland and Belgium will probably bear the marks of this forever. And of the two I fancy Poland is most to be pitied, for although Belgium has suffered most, her compensation will be greater, and history is likely to give her a greater place on the roll of fame than any of the other contending nations. Poland is apparently supplying soldiers for both sides, and is in addition the cockpit for the contending armies. And to crown it all has nothing to gain by the sacrifice that is being made of it.

The weather has been showery here lately, which is rather a good thing for us as it keeps things cool.

I was very sorry to hear you had lost Mr. Flewelling and Mr. Morris, both will be badly missed for a time.

I am at present in the 16th battalion, No. 4 Co. Believe there are two or three more Cranbrook men here. R. Henry was in this battalion when he was killed.

Trusting this will find yourself and family all well.

I remain, yours sincerely,
F. Woodward.

REV. FATHER COCOLA APOSTLE TO INDIAN

Noted Missionary Who Has Done Much Good Work Among Indians—Defiance of Murderous Assault

One of the most prominent of the missionaries to the Indians of British Columbia is Father Cocola, O. M. I., at present stationed at or near Fort St. James, in Northern British Columbia, says the Vancouver Province. Father Cocola is a Corsican by birth and received his ecclesiastical education in Belgium. At the present time he has a brother serving as a general with the armies of France in Northern France. When a member of St. Mary's Mission near Fort Steele in the middle eighties, he was appointed to look after the spiritual welfare of the Kootenay Indians upon a reserve close to Rykerts, and some twenty-five miles from where the Kootenay River empties into Kootenay lake.

At the time of his appointment there were no white settlers or miners in the vicinity of his mission, but a year or so after there was a gold rush into East Kootenay and prospectors and miners came down the Kootenay in small boats and steamers from Bonnor's Ferry, in Idaho. Some of these prospectors camped near the mouth of the river for the purpose of prospecting the banks of the river. Their arrival was not viewed with a very friendly eye by the Kootenay Indians on the reserve.

When Father Cocola arrived to work among them he told them that he had come to instruct and benefit them as much as possible. Among the prospectors who were scattered along the shores of Kootenay lake and the banks of the Kootenay river were many of his co-religionists. Naturally he paid them visits at different times. The fact of his doing so coming to the ears of the Indians gave rise to much discussion and jealousy, as they looked upon the priest as one who should devote his time to them alone. He was told by the chief and others of the tribe that if he continued to visit these white men trouble would ensue. Father Cocola, however, kept on doing what his conscience told him was his duty, and his visits to the newcomers were continued.

At this time Father Cocola dwelt in a small cabin which he had erected close to the Indian reserve. Early one morning he saw the door open, and the chief entered without knocking, for Indians never knock before opening a door. He saw at a glance that it was the chief, and that he was bent on mischief, for his face bore a wicked scowl. In his hand the chief carried a short handled axe, and approached the berth where Father Cocola was lying, told the priest that he had come to kill him. Without showing the slightest signs of fear the priest sprang out of bed. Taking a step or two towards the Indian chief, and fixing his eyes upon those of the intruder, he pulled open the front of his nightshirt, exposing his bosom, and then exclaimed, "Strike minion of the devil, strike!" Cowed by the bearing of the priest the Indian dropped the axe and slunk out of the cabin.

For many years Father Cocola lived and worked among these Indians, but his residence was changed to St. Mary's. Every two weeks, however, he paid a visit to the reserve. On the days (generally Saturday) when he was expected, the railroad station at Creston, on the C. P. R., was always crowded with Indian men, women and children, and the adults always contended for the honor of carrying his satchel and other lotus from the station to the priest's residence not far from the reserve. It was a wonderful exhibition of affection which those once ignorant savages exhibited towards this pioneer missionary to their reserve.

On the commencement of construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Father Cocola was chosen by the church authorities to proceed to Fort St. James to look after the interests of the church and of the Indians who resided in that vicinity. Father Cocola, in addition to his ability as a missionary, is a capable business man. An illustration of his business acumen, and also of his influence with the Indians is afforded by the great St. Eugene silver-lead mine, in East Kootenay. This mine was discovered by some of Father Cocola's Indian flock, who told the priest about it. He disposed of it to the company which long worked it, and devoted the proceeds to his mission work.

Saturday last was Tag Day throughout British Columbia. The Cranbrook district has done well, in fact it leads East and West Kootenay in the amount collected. The purpose of Tag Day was to raise the sum of $25,000.00 for the purpose of supplying extra surgical instruments, X-ray machine with complete attachments, motor ambulances, hot air apparatus, etc., that are not supplied by the government in their equipment, for the No. 5 General Hospital, C. Mr. T. F. Rudnicki, of Fernie, is the new mechanic at the Hanson Garage. Mr. Rudnicki is a skilled mechanic and is well acquainted with the mechanism of the auto.

Will those who have promised provisions to the I. O. D. E. for the fair kindly have them ready on Wednesday morning, September 8th. They will be called for between 9 and 10 o'clock.

One of the main events on the opening day of the fair is to be a harness race, half mile heats, 2 in 3. This will be pulled off on Wednesday afternoon. The prizes are first $20 and second $10.00.

D. B. Schrimgeour, of Vancouver, representing the Mainland Fire Underwriters, is in the city this week canvassing the situation. The fire department made a thorough test of the water pressure on Monday evening, which was satisfactory to the inspector. He is now inspecting the buildings in the city.

A visitor who has recently returned from the Panama exposition, says Fernie is not getting a fair share of advertising. On a large map in the Canadian building Nelson, Lethbridge and Cranbrook are prominently printed in large red letters. Fernie is not mentioned. Billy Ross should look after this at once.

Privates Alfred R. Webb, Speery Phillips and Vopy Richards, of the 54th battalion arrived from Vernon via the Kootenay Central on Tuesday. They expect the battalion to leave within thirty days for England. The boys are all feeling and looking fine and are evidently enjoying their experience as soldiers.

A disastrous fire occurred at the farm of Geo. P. Tisdale on St. Mary's Prairie Wednesday evening which destroyed about forty tons of hay and all the farm outbuildings except the residence. The fire was started in the straw pile of the threshing machine of Lyman Taylor, which was operating on the farm at the time. It is thought the fire was started by friction. Chas. Stevens is the lessee of the property and the heaviest loser. There was no insurance. The thresher was hastily pulled away and saved.

The baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carter of Kingsgate was badly burned last week and was brought in to the St. Eugene hospital. The family were former residents of Cranbrook.

En route from San Francisco exposition Mrs. Charlton, of Hamilton, Ont., visited for two weeks with her niece, Mrs. J. E. Kennedy. Mrs. Charlton has been abroad several times but this is her first visit to the Canadian Rockies. She thoroughly enjoyed the splendid scenery. While in Cranbrook she gave a very interesting talk on floral decorations at the Women's Institute, which was listened to with great attention. Mrs. Charlton left for the east and will visit friends at Fort William and other points.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Phillips entertained a number of invited guests this (Thursday) evening in honor of Miss Eva Conley, who will soon become a bride, and Miss Florence Beale, who is soon to leave the city for the east. CRESTON

(From the Creston Review.)

The lawn social at Mrs. G. Cartwright's on August 18th, in aid of the Red Cross work, was the most successful yet held. Exactly $42 was turned over to Mrs. St. Jean, treasurer, from the function.

Stan. Hendron, who was taken to the Cranbrook hospital the middle of last week, was operated on for appendicitis on Friday, and is making a very satisfactory recovery. Mrs. Hendron who accompanied him, returned on Sunday.

Up to the present five carloads of apples have already been shipped out of Creston this season, and the sixth is being loaded at the warehouse as we go to press. Satisfactory prices for the whole crop are assured. There is a decided shortage of No. 1's.

Messrs. Lowenberg, Boydell, Doyle and Bevan motored to Bonners Ferry, Idaho, on Sunday, where they spent the day with friends and incidentally inspected the Fitzpatrick ranch. Harvesting is in full swing, some of the oats running as high as 90 bushels to the acre.

Miss G. Knott, who left on Saturday for Glenlily, where she will teach this year, was given a little send-off party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Penon on Thursday evening last when quite a gathering of young people spent several hours very socially. Mrs. Barnhardt, of Glenlily, was among the guests.

Sunday nights gale, which raged from about 9.30 until after midnight, is responsible for a loss of anywhere from 600 to 1,000 boxes of apples and other fruit on ranches between the Alice Siding school and Canyon City and Erickson. The heaviest loss is James Compton who had easily 150 boxes of windfalls, principally Grimes Golden, Kings and Wealthys, as a result of the blow. W. A. Peace at Alice Siding picked up over 30 boxes, though on the well-known Stocks & Jackson ranch hardly 20 boxes fell. Fortunately there is quite a good demand for apples and any apples that escaped bruises will find quite a ready sale at better than 75 cents.

FERNIE

(From the Fernie Free Press)

A. D. McDonald, of the fire department, left on Tuesday for Toronto, where he will study for a veterinary surgeon.

Died—In Fernie, on August 21st, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Ward. The funeral took place on Sunday.

Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. stock took a jump of $9 a share in a single day last week on the Toronto stock exchange.

George Thompson and H. Barnes have passed their examinations at Esquimalt entitling them to Lieutenants' papers.

The coroner's jury upon the death of J. J. Abbott, who was found dead on the track near Morrissey last week, resumed its sittings on Friday evening, and after a thorough investigation brought in a verdict of accidental death.

The first bush fire in this district to amount to anything took place in the Elk Lumber company's limits, near Olson, the latter part of the week. Jack Hart, with the assistance of six men finally got it under control before much damage was accomplished.

The hard times seem to have struck local churches harder than anyone else, but the clergy are equal to the occasion. One is helping to harvest the wheat crop on the prairie, another is doing good manual labor in a warehouse, and yet another is talking of enlisting for the front.

Cranbrook city council asked the police commissioners to reduce the police force of that town from three to two men, but their request was refused. Towns like Cranbrook and Fernie have as much use for three or four policemen as they would have for the same number of magistrates. They capture one real live criminal about once in three years. If the police commission would use the same economy and judgment in conducting the affairs of the city as they do in their own business, Fernie would have one good night man and the chief could look after the situation during the day.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roe.)

Threshing is in full swing on Tobacco Plains.

C. Burgess, wife and daughter left for a week's vacation to Spokane.

Contractor J. A. Broley and son Hubert left Roosville for Victoria this week.

Mrs. Eli Cooper left Elko this week to join her husband who is working at Creston.

Colonel Mackay of the 107th and R. W. Woods were in Elko this week with Mr. Woods' 8-cylinder car.

Mr. Wm. Hutchison of the South Fork, was down visiting with the Stevensons at Roosville this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dempster, of Nelson, were motoring through the Roosville valley and Tobacco Plains this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Patterson, of Lethbridge, and Mrs. J. Thomson motored to Roosville and Flagstone this week.

The mills south are all getting busy, and the cars of lumber rolling east. There is talk of lots of logging going on this winter.

candy factory, Medicine Hat, was in Elko this week and Kootenay river points and reports good business.

The Medicine Hat camp at Elk River entertained the Elko board of trade to a trout dinner with the trimmings before leaving for the gas city.

The annual meeting of the McGuire school, Roosville Valley, was held in the school house, August 28th. The attendance was the largest in the history of the school and to say the harvest was in full swing was a credit to the valley. The meeting called to order, Mr. H. G. Parnell was elected chairman of the meeting. The secretary's report was read and was adopted, and on motion the vote of thanks was tendered Mr. W. H. McGuire, secretary, for the efficient manner he had carried on the work. Mr. J. Letcher was elected trustee. When the order of general business was called it was voted and carried that the residents of the school district give the children a picnic and a committee was appointed to make arrangements for the same. The meeting also voted the fencing of the school grounds and a new flag pole, and the duties of janitor be carried out in monthly terms by the residents in the immediate vicinity, and its a credit to the valley to see the interests that's taken in school matters at this point.

Invermere, B.C., August 26.—Persistent rumors are still afloat to the effect that the Paradise mine situated near the head of the North Fork of Toby Creek is about to be re-opened.

This mine is situated on the Paradise Basin and is located upon a property very rich in galena. A great deal of work was done upon it in past years but owing to the short season during which it was then possible to ship ore the work was closed off for many years; but now with the operation of the Kootenay Central railway on schedule running the conditions have entirely changed. Owing to the fact that this townsite's borders are on the top of a high grade immediately contiguous to the railway siding it is more than probable that when shipment commences that the chutes for the loading of the cars will be made along the bank at the railway siding. In this connection the preliminary examination has been made of a more direct road leading to the mine has already been made. It follows the route of the old original pack trail up to the property and is of easier grade than any road to that part at present in existence.

Work of further developing the lead Queen to the north of here has commenced in the form of opening up the wagon road to the property. A gang of men with teams is busy on the route. Their number will shortly be further increased and the construction of the road pushed ahead. It is the hope of the owners that they will be in a position to deliver at least one car of ore per day to the railway by the first of December next at the latest.

Work is also being done in a quiet way on another claim known as the Top Notch, formerly called the Tecumseh, with the end in view of shipping a carload of ore as a test. This property was also under development in past years, but owing to some legal entanglement as to ownership, was closed down for the time being.

Further sacrifices are being made by small communities for the cause of King and Country in the way this time of giving up of the medical practitioners. The strain is keenly felt in many parts and this is no exception. With a population of at least one thousand persons this district now finds itself without a doctor, the nearest medical aid being at least ninety miles distant. Dr. Darrell P. Hanington, the last regular practitioner is now away to the front as a member of the British Columbia General Hospital Corps.

MEN OF CRANBROOK

WITH MILITARY TRAINING
Food for Thought for Cranbrook Men
—This City Should Have 100
Trained Soldiers

Editor Herald:

Sir: I enclose a copy of a letter written to the Toronto "Globe" by the Bishop of Huron, from London, Ont. It strikes me very forcibly that this letter and the serious position of Canada which it sets forth should be brought home in all its seriousness to us in this immediate district. I would like to see it printed in full in your paper. While it is true that we in Cranbrook have done well both in contributions of men and of money for the cause of our country, I think it is also true that we men, particularly in Cranbrook and district, have not by any means met our full responsibilities in the matter of local military training. Why should it be so difficult to arouse any genuine interest in and enthusiasm for military training under the conditions existing in our country at the present time? Every man in town, no matter what his station in life or society, should be willing and eager in these perilous times to do all he can to fit himself to be in a measure at least prepared for any emergency that may arise. He should be willing surely to sacrifice a little of his own convenience and pleasure for this purpose, and if the matter is looked at in this proper spirit of duty and sacrifice, there would be a weekly turnout in this town of at least 100 men for military training, instead of the mere handful there has been for the past few months. Why can't we Cranbrook men who feel that we cannot at any rate at the present time, enlist for active service, get together and do much more than we are doing to obtain the necessary training for home defence, and it may be for active service later on. Who can tell what the future may hold?

Practically every other town in the country as large as this one and many of the smaller ones have done far more in this respect than we have. Let us in Cranbrook assume our responsibilities in this respect.

Yours truly,

W. A. Nisbet.

The Bishop of Huron on Canada's Defence

To the Editor of the Globe: To play the role of an alarmist is not a very patriotic thing to do at any time, and especially at a time of tension like the present. Nevertheless, it is just possible, in our effort to maintain a calm face and save our people from unnecessary worry that we are overlooking our part, and through false assurance drifting perilously near to dwelling in a fool's paradise.

The speech of George Moore, of Detroit, reported in the papers on August 18th, though intended as a warning to the people of the United States, contains an even more serious warning to the people of Canada.

He declares: (1) That there are 2,500,000 German and Austrian reservists now in the United States who are naturalized; (2) that these are subject to the Kaiser, and report regularly to the German consuls throughout the United States; (3) that the German government has purchased in the United States vast quantities of munitions, "much more than the United States government has purchased for its own use since the outbreak of war"; (4) that these munitions have not been shipped away, but are now stored somewhere in the United States, and (5) that in any of the big cities of the United States (e.g., Buffalo, Detroit, St. Paul, or Minneapolis, etc.) "within forty-eight hours, on an order from the Kaiser," a division of reservists could be mobilized and be ready for war.

Mr. Moore is apparently a responsible man, and speaks of what he knows. Assuming that he is approximately correct, is not the situation for Canada even more serious than for the United States? Suppose an order from the Kaiser came for these reservists to invade Canada, what is there to prevent a division or two from invading Canada either in the Niagara Peninsula or in the peninsula of Essex and Kent? The assistance of the United States government may be eliminated as no account, since for the time being, as Mr. Moore points out, the invaders would be more powerful than any force which the United States government could bring to bear upon them. They would be masters of the situation until they had obtained a firm footing in Canada. The United States being thus incapable of preventing such an attack upon Canada, what means have we in Canada of repelling such an attack? We are told that there are about 70,000 men in training in this country. But these are strung out in a thin line all the way from Halifax to Vancouver, and not over-abundantly equipped if rumor is to be credited. At either Niagara or Detroit a division (let us say 30,000 men) of these reservists, fully equipped with the munitions now secretly stored in the United States, could easily overwhelm any and every force that we could immediately bring against them. Once in possession of either of these two rich peninsulas, they, after the manner of the Teutons, would live off the country, and if any opposition were offered by the inhabitants we would be treated to an experience of German "frightfulness." We would then know what Belgium has gone through.

Assuming, as I said, that the statements of Mr. George H. Moore are approximately correct, I maintain that the position of Canada is perilous and no good purpose can be served by hiding or ignoring the situation. To be ready for such an emergency as may be forced upon us, we ought to enroll all the men in the country who are capable of fighting and begin their training without delay, for untrained men would be useless against the Teuton reservists in the United States, who are all thoroughly versed in the art of war. In the meantime, should not all our militia regiments be summoned to the colors and fully equipped and supplied with munitions. The time to do this is before, not after, invasion takes place. Moreover, such a mobilization would be the very best preventive.

I am writing this letter with full sense of responsibility, but also with grave concern for the peril we seem to be in from our apparent unpreparedness, and also in the twofold hope that, on the one hand, the militia department will take, if it is not now taking, steps to guard our homes efficiently from invasion in this southern district, and, on the other, that our young men will at once enroll themselves by tens of thousands for military training, so that they may be prepared to meet the enemy at the gate should he venture to invade this fair land. Believe me, yours faithfully,

David Williams,
Bishop of Huron.

IMPROVED SERVICE

ON KIMBERLEY LINE

"Passenger" Would Like to See Daily Train Service on North Star Branch

Editor Herald:

Sir: On Tuesday, 24th instant, I had the misfortune to be one of the passengers on the train running from Cranbrook to Kimberley. This train leaves at 7 a.m. and is due to reach Kimberley about 8.30 (9.05 according to schedule, when train leaves Cranbrook at 7.30) as it was heavier than usual Kimberley was not reached until 1.15 p.m.

Considerable time was lost between Cranbrook and Wycliffe. At Wycliffe the freight unloaded would have done justice to a full car, thereby saving another long wait while the unloading was taking place.

Leaving Wycliffe the train proceeded up the hill—part way—then had to wait until the logging train of the Staples Lumber company came to the rescue and pushed the mixed freight and passenger up the line until they reached their own tracks (Staples logging line). After the train left the Marysville branch the train crew saw fit to proceed up the line as far as Kimberley with a load of empty ore cars, leaving among other empty the passenger coach with the ill-fated travellers
