FORTY-SECOND YEAR.—No. 25. CUMBERLAND, BRITISH COLUMBIA, SATURDAY, JUNE 23rd, 1923 SUBSCRIPTION PRICE: TWO DOLLARS PER ANNUM.

ANNIE TILBURY O'BRIEN LAID TO HER REST

The Funeral of Annie Tilbury O'Brien took place on Sunday afternoon from Grace Methodist Church to the Cumberland Cemetery. The deceased was the eleven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O'Brien of this city. Only the memory of the lovely child is left, yet how sweet, how uplifting its influence. For, after all, death is but the slipping off of the outer body. The taking away of this child has left a sad Home, but the memories thereof can fancy her awaiting them in the place prepared for her, a little apart from the innumerable company in bright array; in the light. Not of the sun, neither of the moon. We see her beyond the fields of fadeless asphodel, under the waving palms, beside the still waters bordered with silver lilies. These may be merely figures, but they bear a precious meaning to yearning hearts, made for the deep household loves. Hearts that will not be comforted because the angel of the House is missing.

The Rev. J. R. Butler delivered an impressive funeral sermon and the pall bearers, Olive Richardson, Lily Banks, Ella Burns, Nora Glen, Elizabeth Cunliffe, and Olive Jones were school friends of the deceased. Floral tributes are as follows:

Pillow:—Mother and Dad, Bros. and sisters.

MISS HARDISTY MEETS WITH NASTY ACCIDENT

On Sunday afternoon last, a car belonging to Mr. Herbert Bridges and driven by Miss M. Michell, who we understand was taking lessons in driving, ran into some loose gravel and before Mr. Bridges could offer any assistance at the wheel the car struck a stump and turned over.

Miss Hardisty, of Victoria, who was in the rear seat with Mr. Kennedy, on seeing an accident was unavoidable jumped out of the car, and was caught under the running board. The car was raised a little, enabling Mr. Kennedy to release the imprisoned girl. Mr. J. N. McLeod of Courtenay came along and conveyed the injured girl to St. Josephs' Hospital, where she now lies in a critical condition.

The section of the highway adjacent to Oyster River Bridge, where the accident happened, is no place for anyone to learn to drive a car. It is hard enough road for an experienced driver and persons who contemplate learning to drive would be well advised to give this section of the highway a wide birth.

WHIST DRIVE AND DANCE SATURDAY

MODERN GOLF

By—W. J. & Frank Thompson

NOTED CANADIAN GOLFERS

BEGINNERS' FAULTS

I would like to worn beginners at the commencement of this article, against the impression that there is any short road to success in golf. In the last analysis success in the game rests solely and absolutely with the individual. No one can develop another's game. The best an instructor can do is to lay down broad principles, such as maintaining balance at all times with the least expenditure of energy. Most of the instructor's time should be spent in giving the pupil clear ideas about the game, and then allowing each player to develop his own way of executing the shots.

The Wrong Way

Unfortunately this method is the exception and not the rule; too often the player's time is taken up trying to get the club to travel in a certain line and no other. This is an artificial way of learning the game and, I am convinced, is all wrong. In the first place, it reduces all players to a certain type of swing, and the amazing thing about all the stars is that their swings, so far as detail goes, are all different although there are certain general principles, such as maintaining balance, having the weight on the left foot at impact, and general flexibility of the body which are common to all.

It is all very well to say, as one often hears said, that in order to play the game well one must start in childhood. But I would emphatically draw to the readers' attention the fact that there are numerous players who have been under the care of instructors since childhood who are anything but golfers. The reason for their mediocrity is that instead of being allowed to feel their way and play the game as nature intended ,they are compelled to build their games according to some preconceived conception of it, which, in most cases, has turned out subsequently to be wrong.

One of the leading professionals in Britain is credited with the remark, that if he had a son he would simply give him a club and send him off to learn the game by himself with no advice except, perhaps to show him a good grip.

Where Mentality Tells

Golf is largely mental. Given two players of equal physical conception of the swing will be the best player. All instruction, whether written or verbal, will be in vain unless it gives the student a clear conception of the essentials which, Heaven be praised, are not many.

One of the most glaring faults of the beginnner is the attempt to use the body too much. Somehow or other the novice gets the idea that it is weight that is the important thing in golf. And in order to get weight behind the blow he forces the body into ungainly and ineffectual positions. This is all wrong, for we know it is the velocity of the swing which is the important factor. So long as the beginner attempts to throw the weight from one foot to the other little progress is possible for the simple reason that balance is difficult, if not impossible, to maintain. A distinct sway is introduced by this method so that the body either gets into the stroke ahead of the hands or lags behind them. In either case timing is destroyed, resulting in a topped or founderede ball. Ninety-nine players out of every hundred use the body too much. The chief duty of the body, is to twist so that the hands may get into a hitting position. The smallest movement on the part of the body, compatible with this, the better.

Too Much Swaying

Beginners as a rule have an idea that it is necessary to indulge in wild tagoing from one toe to the other. Nothing could be farther from the truth. One has only to watch Mitchell to realize how far the ball can be driven without swaying the body or taking the feet off the ground a great deal. Notwithstanding the lauded style of Vardon and Duncan, Mitchell possesses perhaps the simplest method from a mechinical and anatomical standpoint, and one which possesses few difficulties in copying.

Beginners, as a rule, make the game harder by taking an inordinately wide stance. One cannot always trust the feelings, and the feeling of the beginner by straddling his feet, is a false one. It is contrary to experience. I think, of all the star players, Mitchell keeps his feet closer together than any of the rest.

A Comfortable Stance

The beginner should take an ordinary stance, which is comfortable. This will enable him to keep the body relaxed and permit it to pivot without great strain.

Another fault common to the beginner and similar to excessive body movement, is seen in the use of the iron clubs. A spectator gets the impresssion that the player is trying to lift the ball up with the arms with a stort of scooping movement, which, of course, results in topping it. Contrary as it may seem, the reverse procedure is the correct way. Instead of the player trying to lift the ball up, he should actually try to drive it into the ground. When this method is followed a straighter ball with a certain amount of back spin follows.

Beginners as a class lack relaxation, which will be taken up in the closing article entitled "Ease vs. Effort."

ISLAND HAS COAL FOR 300 YEARS

There's no need to fear a coalless age on Vancouver Island for generations and generations to come.

This was made clear last week when preliminary results of the boring tests carried on by the Canadian Collieries for coal in the Sable River district, six miles from Union Bay, were made known.

These borings indicate that there are enough coal bodies in that district yet untouched to permit of a production of 3000 tons a day for 300 years. Boring tests to find coal seams and get an idea of the real extent of the resources of the company have been going on for the last couple of years.

Three thousand tons a day means about 1,000,000 tons a year, it was explained today. That would exceed the present production of the Canadian Collieries from their two mining areas at Newcastle back of Ladysmith and at Cumberland farther up the Island. The total production from these two districts last year was 678,139 tons, out of a total of 1,754,656 for the year for all Vancouver Island mines combined.

Western Fuel Corporation operating the extremely rich coal mines at Nanaimo also has coal blocked out for generations to come. The production of this company was 691,401 tons last year.

OUR TALE OF WOE

Editing a newspaper is a pleasant business—if you can stand it.

If the paper contains many advertisements a subscriber complains that they take up too much space. If there is lack of advertisements the paper is unpopular, and the people don't want it.

If the editor attends church regularly, they say he goes for effect. If we stay away from church, they say we are monstrously heathenish.

If we accept an invitation to a wedding, they say we were only invited to "write it up." If we go to a show they say we go on free tickets. If we are seen upon the streets too often they say we are neglecting our business. If we avoid going on the street they say we don't hustle around after the news.

If we publish a man who has brought disgrace upon his family, the friends of the family never forgive us. If we, out of goodness of heart, decline to say anything on the subject, the man's enemies are disappointed, and we are branded as white-livered cowards.

WORTH WAITING FOR

If any boy ever comes across a girl who, with a face full of roses says, as you come to the door: "I can't go for thirty minutes, because the dishes are not washed," you wait for that girl. You sit right down on the door step and wait for her, 'cause some other fellow may come along and carry her off, and right there you have lost an angel. Wait for that girl and then stick to her like a burr to a mule's tail.

And if you should happen to be that girl who went to the door after your hands out of the dish water, just ask the boy while he is waiting, "if he would please cut you some wood so father wouldn't have to do it when he comes home tired from work," or "would he mind sprinkling the lawn?" If he jerks off his coat in a hurry and fills the wood box in ten minutes ,or puts on the hose and sprinkles the lawn, then say to that young man, "I will be at home next Wednesday evening, if you would like to walk to prayer meeting with me," and if he looks delighted, and says: "I should be glad to go," instead of "I am sorry, but I have an engagement to play pool that evening"—then do you with your pretty ways entice and encourage him to come often to your home.

HAVING A GOOD TIME

Did you ever see people work harder to have a good time than do the present generation, who clutter the earth, during what will some day be termed the gasoline age? To those of us who stop to think, it seems that existence today is rather depressing. People do try so hard to amuse themselves but it must be acknowledged that their success is meagre. Where can the fault be?

From morning till night, whereever we go, the people we meet are hurried, worried, preoccupied.

Some have wasted their energy in the eternal and futile effort to keep up appearances, others are disheartened by the meanness and jealousy they have encoutered among their so-called friends. Business competition troubles the sleep of not a few. The working classes suffer the consequences of a ceaseless industrial struggle.

Pleasure should be a relaxation, but do you notice anybody relaxing today as he guides his flivver along the crowded highway? We have shortened the working day that we may have more time to play, and then we work harder at our play than we did during the hours we spent in office or shop.

And what of the old-fashioned pic- a real joy. You went leisurely about your preparations and presented yourself at the home of your host in clean linen, and hungry. The dinner was excellent and there was restful talk about books and plays and then there was music in the living room afterward.

How is it today? You snap down your desk and hustle into your car. There is barely time to shave and dress, and you arrive at the home of your friend just in time to be ushered into the dining room. The meal is served hurriedly, that the tables may be cleared and the cards shuffled before you have finished the dessert. Then it is cut and deal and hurry throughout the rest of the evening. When you tell the hostess you have had a lovely time you know that you are lying. You have been rushed to death all evening by some fat old dame with earrings, who has been saying incessantly, "Your play."

And what o fthe old-fashioned picnic where you lay on your back under the trees and made willow whistles for the youngsters? The picnic today, even in the small town, follows a strenuous afternoon of golf. You stand up and eat potato chips and chicken salad in your knickers. The guests all talk about why they missed a put or sliced a drive. When the shadows gather, you load up the old gasoline bus and roll home in the glare of passing headlights all on edge from the good time you had at the picnic.

What has become of the simple life of our grandsires? Where are the folk dances and games on the lawn? These things have been crowded out of the village life by the automobile and the saxaphone.

"What fools we mortals be."

FOREST INCOME OF 500 MILLIONS MENACED BY FIRE

By Dr. Clifton D. Howe, Acting President, Canadian Forestry Association.

In the last analysis, adequate fire protection resolves itself down to the question of whether or not the people of this country wish to save their wood-using industries. Let us look into the service of these to the country. The value of the manufactured pulp and paper products is $250,000,000 per annum. The various companies have invested in the business some $375,000,000. They employ 33,000 men in the mills and in the forest and they pay them each year $40,000,000 in wages. Isn't that business worth saving.

The value of lumber, lath and shingles produced in one year is $150,000,000. Lumber means boards and deals, dimension stock—not the finished product, as in the case of paper. I can't find just how much is added to this value by the various minor wood-using industries. With reservations, I will say that the minor industries, which depend entirely upon wood, produce products to the value of $60,000,000 annually. They have an invested capital of over $50,000,000. They employ 13,000 people and pay annually in wages around $14,000,000. Is it not worth some effort to keep these industries going?

Are these worth while?

To these should be added the industries that depend in essential part but not entirely upon forest products. These, such as the horse-drawn and motor-drawn vehicles, produce each year products valued at $86,553,314. The capital invested totals over $65,000,000. The employees number over 9000 to whom are paid wages amounting to nearly $12,000,000.

Going back to the lumber industry proper, we find that its invested capital reaches $250,000,000. It employs 55,000 men, and gives them $600,000,000 in wages annually. That business is worth saving too, is it not?

There are more than 100,000 people in Canada at work converting the forest product into wealth in some form or other. They are chiefly heads of families or the bread winners of families, thus they represent probably a half million people dependent upon the forest for a livelihood. Are they worth while in their work? Are they worth while to the country?

Must Invest in Protection

Let me emphasize that our great pulp and paper companies, the great lumber concerns will not exist many years longer unless there is more effective fire protection. In order to get more effective protection, the public must invest more money in it. When we consider the area actally under license or pulpwood concession, the amount expended on it as a whole, average less than one cent per acre per year. In other words we spend less than a cent an acre as an insurance rate on forest lands whose supplies at the present day yields us products to the value of $500,000,000 annually.

OBSERVATIONS OF A FEDERAL MEMBER

May 28th.—On vote in Estimates for Investigation of Wrecks, A. W. Neill, (Comox-Alberni) drew attention to the wreck of the Alaskan last winter, and criticised the investigation held on it, claiming that the scene of the wreck had not been visited, nor important witnesses been called. He urged that the regulations be altered so that boats of less than 150 tons be subject to hull inspection, this boat which was 36 years old and carried 11 men, not having to be inspected by Govt. Inspectors as to her hull. Goverment promised favourable consideration of the question and also of further life saving appliances.

June 5th.—In Committee on Estimates on a vote to place lignite coal on free list with United States Neill (Comox-Alberni) asked the Finance Minister to explain why 2 of the 3 varieties of coal mined in Canada, namely anthracite and lignite, should be on the free list and the third, bituminous coal, should have a duty of 53 cents a ton. He pointed out that there is in the United States tariff now a clause by which on Canada placing coal on the free list coming from the States, then automatically coal going from Canada into the States also goes on their free-list which would mean a stimulant to the coal production of Vancouver Island mines.

The Minister of Finance had some difficulty in evading the question the real reason being that Nova Scotia (the Province from which he and 15 other Liberal stalwarts come from) is a large producers of bituminous coal and the duty of 53 cents a ton on American bituminous coal coming into Canada helps them to meet American competition.

As the Leader of the Conservatives pointed out, the Minister of Finance is strong on Reciprocity with the United States but balks when it is proposed to be applied to coal.

June 6th.—House debated oleomargarine from 3 p.m. until 3 a.m. next morning, finally passing an amendment to the effect that as its introduction was originally only as a temporary was measure and on the distinct pledge that it would cease as sooon as the abnormal scarcity due to the war was over, the question should now be placed back in the same position as it was before the war (when its sale was prohibited) but without prejudice to the merits of the case if it should later be deemed wise to allow its sale.

The Hon. S. Telmie very strong on allowing Oleo.

The principal argument urged in its favor was the "Right of the poor Man" to have a cheap spread for his children's bread.

It was shewn that it is not a cheap but a dear spread in regard to its food value and that children absolutely require the fats of butter; it was shown that most of the imported Oleo comes from the Swift Packing Co. of Chicago and that it is hardly likely that the intensive Lobby maintained by the Oleo Interests at Ottawa since the beginning of the Session, was there in the real interests of Canadaian working men. It was further shown that its principal use and greatest value was when it could be sold and fed to people in place of butter.

The vote which was one of the keenest this Session resulted in 54 for Oleo and 125 against it with 6 paired on each side.

CONTROLLING THE MOSQUITO

The discomfort produced by the mosquito during the early summer months leads not only the scientists but the man on the street to consider whether the pest cannot be controlled. The question often asked, "Of what value is the mosquito?" has not been satisfactorily answered. Fortunately, methods of controlling this insect have been discovered and are being applied with greater or less success. Portions of the tropics would, perhaps, never have been made habitable for the hite man had not successful mosquito control methods been discovered. The means employed in the tropics have been found applicable to other places.

It has long been understood that the multiplication of the mosquito depends on pools or areas of water, more or less stagnant. In these the mosquito deposits its eggs, which soon develop into larvae and then into adult insects. The larvae, it has been discovered, are destroyed by contact with an oily substance. The remedy, therefore, is found in applying oil to the breeding places of the insect. A very small amount has been found sufficient to spread itself over a considerable area of water. This extremely thin layer is sufficient to destroy all of the larvae that come in contact with it.

The Entomological Branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture has for several years been working on this problem in British Columbia. Last year the district surrounding the town of Banff in Alberta was dealt with. An area of several miles in extent was surveyed and breeding places were treated. The area treated included both open pounds and marshy spots clothed with dense willow growths. The work was done during May and June, when 2,800 gallons of oil were applied. Watering cans and knapsack sprayers were used in spreading the oil, which was sprayed on all water where larvae were found. Coal oil alone was used, as it was feared that, owing to cold nights, heavier oil would not become thorougly distributed. Although a number of inaccessible places were missed ,the results of the oiling were very marked. It is estimated that seventy-five percent of control was realized. In an article describing this work, in the May-June number of The Agricultural Gazette of Canada ,the author states that the town of Banff and vicinity was rendered comparatively free from the pest.

When we have what is wanted to make us comfortable, all the rest is vanity, excess and envy. The only poor man is the man who has lost his health. You may not have all the money that you feel you would like to use, but how would you like to trade your good health for a wheel chair and some chronic complaint?

Yesterday we were talking with a man that was rich last week. Today he is poverty poor, and worse—he is in debt. Tomorrow he will be broken in health for he is terribly worried. Speculation did it. Today we were talking with a man who is proudly happy of a debt he has incurred. He borrowed money to build a home. The man who speculated lost all. The man who went into debt to build a home will whittle down his debt and win all.

RURAL CLASSIC IS NOW PHOTOPLAY

"Quincy Adams Sawyer," Famous New England Story, to be Shown at Ilo-Ilo Theatre.

One of the most widely heralded of this season's photoplays is announced as coming on Friday and Saturday to the Ilo-Ilo Theatre. It is "Quincy Adams Sawyer," a Metro-SL picture based on the famous story of New England life which was a phenimenal "best seller" when it appeared a decade or so ago. So great was the popularity of the printed narrative by Charles Felton Pidgin that it was dramatized, and in this form it won more favor. The elaborate photoplay version is even more interesting than the book or the play.

Everybody knows the story of "Quincy Adams Sawyer." Everybody knows and loves its quaint rustic characters. The story of the young lawyer from Boston, Quincy Adams Sawyer; his coming to the small town of Mason's Corner; his experiences in running down a dishonorable scoundrel; his great love affairs—all this is part of the attractive novel which is now a screen play. The delightful rural characters are funprovoking to the extreme, and the fresh, clean, humor will appeal to all lovers of better photoplays.

A lavish production has been given this famous story. To enact the roles in the picture, the entire motion picture industry was searched for its best material. As a result, one of the highest-priced assemblies of talent is seen, and in the list are players who have been starred in their own right. Among the more important are Blanche Sweet, Lon Chaney, Barbara La Marr, John Bowers, Elmo Lincoln, Louise Fazenda, June Elvidge Hank Mann, Zazu Pitts, and Many others.

"Quincy Adams Sawyer" was adapted from the novel by Bernard McConville. It was directed by Clarence B. Badger. The production was made by S-L (Arthur Sawyer-Herbert Lubin) and is released by Metro.

MIX HAS THRILLING FLIGHT A HUNDRED FEET IN MID-AIR

Swaying a hundred feet above a river in a tool bucket less than six feet in its greatest measurement, rocking with the swing of the cable as it tossed from side to side, Tom Mix forged ahead in midair, for more than three hundred yards. When he climbed to safety he had still another dangerous task before him—that of freeing a girl from the hands of kidnappers. This is one of the many exciting scenes in "Romance Land," a Fox production, which comes to the Ilo-Ilo theatre Tuesday and Wednesday.

From advance reports this film seems to have surpassingly fine entertainment value. It is described as the story of a modern "Ivanhoe," intermingled with touches of latter-day tales, after the manner of King Arthur. A tournament forms part of the screen narrative, and it contains numerous dramatic scenes, which mount swiftly to a climax of great tensity. But, winding in and out is a love interest as engrossing as any written about the days of brave knights and their fair ladies.

Nor did the Fox organization omit the element of comedy when they turned out the photoplay. Tom Mix has made so many good pictures that we are led to anticipate in this newest film something of a world-beater. Certainly it's title, "Romance Land," is replete with possibilities.

18 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

The Cost of the Lowest Bid

The electric equipment of a home to-day, no matter how simple that home may be, is a scientific problem and warrants a few minutes attention and study.

Electricity is constantly making life easier, more convenient and more comfortable for everybody and, as the world is grasping the place of electricity in the home, soon it will be the exception for a house not to be thoroughly equipped for every phase of electrical service.

Considering the importance of the electrical equipment of the home, nothing should be left to chance. The wiring should be right, illumination properly provided for, electrical outlets conveniently placed and the materials and appliances should be what experts have decided is necessary for a safe, dependable and permanent job. In other words, your equipment ought to be standard.

Your electrical installation requires a specialized knowledge just the same as your heating or plumbing installation. The heating engineer or the sanitary engineer knows better than you do what your house requires. In these cases, if you are wise, you select a man whom you know to be qualified in every respect to give you a satisfactory installation at a fair price.

There has to be a man who knows, and the community has to have some means to find him. The man who knows electricity, so far as it applied to the modern household, is the qualified electrical contractor, who is in close touch with the latest practise in electrical wiring.

For the BEST installation go to
