THE RED CROSS SOCIETY

It is truism that war is a ruinous and destructive operation. It is one thing however to give mental assent to that proposition. It is quite another to feel it in every nerve and fibre of your being and to let your giving to the Red Cross funds be dictated by that intense emotional consciousness as if war's destructiveness were visible in your own town and your own street.

Every citizen at the present time should cultivate an imaginative sensitiveness to the grim realities of Europe. It is very easy to be stoical and confident, complacent and self indulgent. The sights and sounds of war are far away. All its horrors are only distant echoes. It is only by an effort of sympathetic imagination that we can feel the intense human woe that constitutes the dark background to every Red Cross appeal.

When an earthquake has destroyed a town or a volcano devastated whole districts, the whole world has felt a keen emotion and has been lavish with its generosity. But war is an operation far more productive of loss of life and wounds and misery than innumerable tidal waves or earthquakes or volcanoes.

It is difficult to form a sane estimate of the probable casualties of the present war. It is known however that the British casualties have exceeded 250,000. That is certainly at a reasonable estimate much more than ten per cent of the forces engaged at the front. It can easily be seen from this average that the British and Canadian Red Cross Societies face an immense task in the future.

Think of what three or four hundred thousand sick and wounded means. Imagine the entire population of one of our largest cities, occupying each one a bed in some gigantic hospital. The thing staggers the imagination. And yet such a condition is not far from a reality at present.

Certainly any one who takes the trouble to reflect will instantly recognize the immense need which confronts the Red Cross. And the natural result of such reflection is generous and unceasing contribution to the funds of the society.

THE NATION DETERMINED

London, Nov. 2.—Premier Asquith made his long expected address on the war today. His survey which was both retrospective and prospective, being as full as military exigencies seemed to permit. The notable interest in his statement was shown by the crowded House, all the diplomatic, Peers' and visitors galleries being filled to overflowing.

The Premier was given a warm ovation when he rose to speak, this being his first appearance in the House of Commons since his illness.

He opened with an expression of regret at the mishap to King George and assured the House that the King was progressing as well as could be expected and that his injuries were not serious.

Mr. Asquith said he intended to describe, as far as possible, the actual prospective position to the nation, which "is as determined today as it as ever been to prosecute the war to a successful conclusion, and which trusts the government, by whomsoever controlled, to use every means to the attainment of that purpose.

"It is true that today some parts of the horizon are overcast. This, like other wars, has been fruitful of surprises and disappointments. The moment calls for three things—a proper sense of perspective, a limitless stock of patience and overflowing reservoirs of courage, both active and passive."

Mr. Asquith referred to the "small coterie of professional whiners which kept our enemies supplied daily with a diet of falsehoods."

NOTICE is hereby given that the Board of Directors of the Union and Comox District Hospital intends to apply one month after date to the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies for the Province of British Columbia at Victoria, for permission to change the name from the Union and Comox District Hospital to the Cumberland General Hospital.

E. D. PICKARD, Secretary.

The Saloon Must Go.

The saloon must go, The blood of the myriad it has slain cries out from the earth for its overthrow. The groans and tears of heart-broken parents, the agonies of worse than widowed wives, the shame and degradation of a countless host of children, go up to heaven in one mighty accusation against it. Are our eyes blinded, that we can not see the malignant curse it works upon our feilows. Are our ears leaden, that we cannot hear the mighty cry of agony that goes up continually from its victims? Are we so selfish, so careless of the welfare of those of our brethren, that we shall not arise in the interest of eternal right and exterminate these plague-spots of modern civilization, stop up these breeding holes of hell, shut forever those gates of death through whose portals there goes down to damnation an army of 75,000 of our fellow-men every year? The saloon is the key to the enemy's position. Let us capture it and break his defensive line. With the saloon swept away, the strength of the foe will have departed, as did that of Samson when he was shorn of his locks.

Does It Pay?

Does it pay to have fifty working men poor and ragged in order to have one saloon-keeper dressed in broadcloth and flush of money?

Does it pay to hang one citizen because another got him drunk?

Does it pay to have a dozen intelligent young men turned into thieves and vagabonds that one may get a living selling rum? Does it pay to have a hundred homes blasted, ruined, defiled, turned into a hell of misery, strife and want, that some wholesale liquor seller may build up a large fortune?

Does it pay to have hundreds of men and women in the almshouse, penitentiaries and hospitals, and thousands more in asylums for the insane and idiotic, that a few capitalists of the whiskey ring may profit?

What Doee Prohibition Mean?

It means bread to hungry children, it means happiness to sad and overworked women, it means the help of the community for men who are struggling with a fearful appetite.

It means the pratical application of our prayer, "Lead us not into temptation," for our sons and our friends when they step across the threshold of their home

It means that the government of the province or city will not, for dollars and cents, allow men to destroy the happniess of your daughters (or some other man's daughter) whose husband, when not tempted to the uttermost, will prove faithful to his family and useful to the community.

Prohibition means that drunken men kill their wives and daughters there will be no bloodguiltness on your hands who voted to remove the opportunity of intoxication from the inebriate.

It is easier to keep a boy from acquiring an appetite for liquor, than it is to cure the appetite after it is acquired, when he becomes a man. Your high-toned, high-licensed saloons, are simply snares for the feet of childhood, and pitfalls in the paths of men. They exist by reason of license laws, and will cease to exist when those laws are repealed. Those laws are passed by the people, and you, as part of the people, are not only accountable for the existence of the saloons, but for the evils which they produce; and how you can consistently pray to God while you license saloons to prey upon the people, is more than we can understand, and we believe we will continue to be led into temptation as long as we make the temptation to be led.

Whatever may be our political principles and party this subject of temperance underlies all political policies and partisanships.

Synopsis of Coal Mining Regulations

COAL mining rights of the Dominion in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the Northwest Territories and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or sub Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns shall be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10.00 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy Minister of the Interior.

"They Also Serve."

(From Punch.)

("Week by week they are waiting for a chance which never comes. Some of them, to the envy of their comrades, have had their day---- in the Dogger Bank, the Heligoland Bight, the Falkland Islands, the Dardanelles. But for most of them the day is still to come. It is impossible to describe the strain of waiting for it."----The Archbishop of York, in The Times.]

The saucy Arethusa met the warships of the foe,
And the Lion and Undaunted helped to send them down below,
But remember, oh remember, while we make their praises ring,
That the men who do the waiting also serve our Lord and King.

The Emden kept things lively from Seychelles to Singapore,
Till the Sydeny found her at the game and settled up the score;
But don't forget the others when you cheer the victors' pluck,
For the men who do the waiting haven't had the Sydney's luck.

Von Spee was smiling broadly when he neared the Falkland Isles,
But he hadn't made allowance for our gallant Sturdee's wiles,
So he and his went under----and we cheer to hear the news,
Yet the men who do the waiting are as stout as Sturdee's crews.

The British Tigers ramped and roared. The cruisers wouldn't wait;
They scuttled hard for port and left the Bluecher to her fate.
Here's to our tars who braved the foe amid the bursting shell----
But the men who do the waiting deserve our thanks as well.

They are ready, yes, and longing for the signal to advance,
But they haven't yet been given the other fellow's chance,
They fret to join the melee, they are eager for the call;
And the men who do the waiting have the hardest job of all.

But the "Day" is not far distant when the thunder-roll shall peal,
And the German fleet to meet their foe shall follow out of Kiel;
The guns shall lift their voices in irrevocable blast---
Then the men who do the waiting will have got their chance at last.

THE LISTENING POST.

These four huge horns gather up and magnify by means of a microphone sounds that are entirely inaudible to the unassisted ear. They are used extensively in listening for air craft, but are also made use of to give notice of any unusual activity in the enemy's lines after dark.

BUYING AT HOME

I bought some rags of Tailor Skaggs, and paid him when I got 'em. He wept with glee; "For now," said he, "I'll pay my bills, dod rot 'em." So on the run he took the mon, and paid the corner grocer, whose trade was bad, and who was sad, because the wolf drew closer. This made him smile, and for a while the man of teas and sages thought cheerful thinks, forgot the kinks, and paid his clerks their wages. And Billiam Burk, the old head clerk, put up some thankful phrases; his wife was ill—the druggist's bill had worried him like blazes. The druggist cried, "Doggone your hide, I thank you for these roubles; I'm in the hole and need a roll to ease my weight of troubles." The druggist paid that winsome maid, his first assistant, Annie, and just for luck she blew a buck for roller skates for granny. And thus my scads brought help to lads and girls beyond the counting; much trouble ceased, and joy increased, kept on mounting, mounting. You see; my friend, if you should spend your coin with local dealers, you're spreading glee and ecstacy to beat the sunshine spielers.

ASK FOR TROOPS

The Cumberland Board of Trade held a special meeting in the Council Chambers on Wednesday evening to consider the advisability of inviting the government to winter 500 troops in this city. Several members pointed out that there were several vacant buildings in Cumberland that could be used as quarters for the soldiers and rented at a nominal figure.

The Board appointed T. B. O'Connell, Robert Henderson and Edward W. Bickle as a committee to get in touch with the proper authorities and report. The suggestion of the Ladysmith Board of Trade to become part of an Island Board was declined as the Cumberland Board of Trade was already affiliated with the Associated Boards of Trade of South Western, British Columbia.

The permanent fuel oil committee reported progress and the secretary stated that a communication had been sent to H. S. Clements, M. P. for the Comox-Atlin district on the fuel oil question. Several other important matters came up for consideration after which the meeting adjourned.

His Critical Moment

"My dog never disturbed you," indignantly roared the owner of a dear departed, "and I can prove that he was as quiet and gentle as is possible!"

"Yes, that's so," sorrowfully answered the neighbor.

"Well," spluttered he of the harrowed feelings, "what in the dickens did you kill him for?"

"Nerves."

"Nerves—when he was like a lamb!"

"True, he never barked," admitted the nervy neighbor; "but he would creep into my garden a dozen times a night, sit down, look at the moon draw his breath, open his mouth, prepare himself for an awful howl, and then just as suddenly quietly close his mouth and slink back. No; I never heard him howl, but the suspense was killing me!"
