Statue Of Sir Wilfrid Laurier Unveiled By The Prince Of Wales On Wednesday

Notable Address By Premier Mackenxie King

(Special to The Islander)

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—Before a brilliant assembly His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales unveiled a magnificent statute of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The Prince, who is on a holiday tour to Western Canada, accompanied by his brother Prince George, and Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and Mrs. Baldwin, received a magnificent reception. Following the unveiling ceremony, Premier Mackenzie King delivered a notable address. He said:

The statue, which His Royal Highness The Prince of Wales has graciously consented to unveil this afternoon has been erected by authority of parliament to commemorate the name and memory of one whose life is a part of the history of Canada, and a part of the history of the larger community of British nations of which His Majesty is King.

In the lights and shadows of history, there are few events which present more in the way of parallel and contrast than the ceremony of today and a ceremony of thirty years ago which it serves to recall. Thirty years ago, the British Empire was c lebrating the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria's accession to the Throne. This year, Canada is celebrating the Diamond Jubilee of the Confederation of her provinces. Thirty years ago, at the heart of the Empire of which she was Queen, the revered and venerable Victoria was bestowing, as a mark of royal favor, a knighthood on Wilfrid Laurier, at the time the Prime Minister of Canada. Today in the capital of Canada, the memory of Sir Wilfrid is being honored by the illustrious great-grandson of her late Majesty, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, our future king, who is about to unveil the statue of Sir Wilfrid in the distinguished presence, amongst others, of His Royal Highness Prince George, and the Prime Minister of Great Britain. Where in history will be found aught that speaks more of the inheritance which we of the British communities share in common; or more of its poetry and romance? It would almost seem as if Time itself, had paused to pay a tribute, and to give to the occasion its appropriate setting.

I have said that the life of Sir Wilfrid Laurier is a part of the history of Canada and of the British Empire. It is in the perspective of history that we must seek to view the life of Laurier today. That is not an easy task, for the great figures of history are seen in retrospect. They emerge in their true proportions only as the present recedes into the past. There is much, however, in the Laurier whom they all knew, which his contemporaries, by common consent, would have been quick to concede, and it is of this, more especially, that I desire to speak.

Laurier was, first and foremost, a great Canadian. I do not, I trust, take from the greatness of other lives, some of them commemorated on this Hill, when I say that of all the personalities in our history, his was the most distinctively Canadian. It embodied much of Canada's past as well as of its present. It spoke to us of the two great races that have shaped our destiny, and of a broader toleration in religious faiths.

In his ancestry, by direct descent, Laurier went back to the beginnings of French colonization in Canada. Allied to the first enduring French settlement established by Champlain at Quebec in 1608 was the sister settlement at Montreal founded by Sieur de Maisonneuve, in 1641. Among the number who, as soldier colonists with Sieur de Maisonneuve, sought to gain a wider dominion for their sovereign and their faith, was Laurier's first Canadian ancestor. Others of his ancestors in the years immediately following. For eight generations in unbroken successions, his forefathers pioneered in the wilds af the Laurentians, making for their children, and their children's children, homes on the shores of the St. Laurence.

It was exactly 200 years from the time at which his first ancester arrived in Canada, that Laurier was born on November 20, 1841, at St. Lin, a French-Canadian village not many miles distant from Montreal. In that interval of 200 years, Canada had passed from a French to a British possession. More remarkable still, Canada, largely French-Canadian, had remained British, when elsewhere in North America, British Colonies in 1776 declared their independance. Within this period also, durnig the war of 1812-14, French-Canadian loyalty once more aided in preserving Canada to the British Crown.

The seventy-seven years which elapsed between the birth of Sir Wilfred Laurier in 1841 and his death on February 17, 1919, contain the other epoch-making events of our history —the establishment of responsible self-government, the Confederation of the provinces, the expansion of the Dominion, and Canada's participation in the Great War. It was within this framework, which embraces Canada's development from a group of small

CANADIAN FOOTBALLERS GIVEN ROUSING SENDOFF ON SAILING FOR HOME

Auckland, N.Z., Aug. 2.—Given a rousing sendoff by large crowds lining the quay, the touring Canadian soccer team sailed for home today on board the R.M.S. Niagara. All the players are in the best of condition, with the exception of Noseworthy, who sustained a leg injury a few weeks ago, the muscles being badly strained, and it is feared that he may be unable to play again. Even if he does so, the limb will need a long rest before he is fit to take the field.

In a farewell editorial the Auckland Herald says that the Canadians introduced a higher standard of soccer than that prevailing in New Zealand, and that the cordial spirit ruling throughout the tour augurs well for closer relations between the two Dominions in future.

The outstanding players of the team were Tait, Monaghan, Turner and Archibald, all with the exception of Turner being members of B.C. teams. One noteworthy feature of the tour has been the success of ex-Cumberland players in the persons of Tait, Monaghan, Turner and Milligan. The boys will be home about August 23. Are we in Cumberland to have a time for the ex-Cumberland players on their return.

Will Prince Visit Comox District?

A story coming from Ottawa conveys the information that the Prince of Wales will arrive at his ranch on August 10. He will be in Vancouver on August 18, take the night boat to Victoria and will probably motor to some of the beauty spots of the Island before leaving Victoria on the evening of August 23rd.

Miss Dorothy Maxwell, daughter of Mayor Alex. Maxwell, whilst playing tennis on the local courts on Tuesday evening, had the misfortune to slip, breaking her wrist.

WELSH SOCIETY PICNIC

The Cumberland and District Welsh Society's annual picnic will be held on Sunday at Millard's Beach. For the benefit of those Welsh families having no means of transportation, a truck will leave the post office: 1st trip, 9 a.m.; 2nd trip, 10 a.m. prompt. A collection will be taken on the beach. Sports will commence immediately after lunch.

A large number of residents of Cumberland visited the headwaters of Comox Lake last week-end. Amongst those noted were: Mr. and Mrs. R. Freeburn and family, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Brown and family, Mr. and Mrs. S. Robertson, Messrs. M. Williamson, J. Gillespie, G. J. Richardson, J. Vernon-Jones, Mr. and Mrs. T. Carney and family, Mrs. L. Hunden and family. Messrs. Cameron and Thompson were also out at the Lake testing out their new power boat "Lindy."

Boat Service Will Prove Big Asset To This District

(Powell River, Aug. 3.)

The daily service established by Captain Foote with the motorship Comox, is appreciated by Powell River, and it is hoped that the patronage accorded him will grow as time goes on. The service is creating a spirit of fraternalism that heretofore has been almost impossible. One of the local lodges has the "Comox" chartered for a trip to the Island next Saturday and Sunday. It is not unlikely that some- at least, of the other societies represented here, will follow this lead in the near future. There are enough societies in Comox district and Powell River to patronize the new service at least once every month for a year. It was Captain Foote's sturdy little ship that made it possible for the Courtenay baseball team to cross over the pond last Sunday.

Local Ball Tossers Visit Powell River

Under a boiling hot sun, a baseball team composed of members of the old Courtenay team, augmented by players from Cumberland, lost a ragged game to Powell River on the Papermakers' diamond on Sunday afternoon. It was a regular slug-fest, with the Courtenay players getting the edge with the willow, but the error column easily tells the reason why they lost; they booted, muffed and threw wild balls all over the lot. We stopped scoring them when we reached nine errors for the loggers, as we did not want to get into double figures The papermakers started their scoring in their half of the first innings with three; Courtenay chalked up two in the third, but the papermakers came back with three more.

In the fourth frame the loggers scored two more and blanked Powell River, and in the fifth they scored one and two respectively. The loggers thought they had the game on ice in the sixth when they brought in five runs and blanked the papermakers but the latter put in a new pitcher with the fruity appellation of "Banana," who held the visitors to one hit for a lone tally during the rest of the game, while his team mates tallied three in the seventh and five more in the eighth, making it unnecessary to play the last half of the ninth, the final score being: Courtenay 11; Powell River, 16.

A return game is to be played on the Courtenay diamond next Sunday afternoon at three o'clock and a battle royal is anticipated.

Following is the story of Sunday's game by innings:

1st innings—Bannerman struck out, Dixon went out at first on an assist by Mowat. Tucker connected for a three-bagger, but died at third when Conti went out on a fly to right field. S ubb Hanson was safe at first when Hally Dixon dropped the throw and Lundie was also safe at first on an overthrow. Haslam struck out but Gallagher doubled scoring Hanson and Lundie. Heft went out at first on an assist by Tucker and Al Han-

FUND FOR FIRE VICTIMS

The picnic committee of the employees of the Canadian Collieries took the initiative last week and started a fund for the sufferers in the recent disastrous fire at No. 5 Japanese Town. Two representatives of the picnic committee waited on the Council on Monday last and laid an appeal before the city fathers with the result that $150 was donated by the Council. The representatives also waited on the management of the Canadian Collieries (Dunsmuir) Ltd., who very generously donated the sum of $250. The picnic committee had previously voted $100 from their funds and with $500 now in sight, it is proposed to make an appeal during the next few days to the citizens. As donations are received by the picnic committee, acknowledgement will be announced through the columns of The Islander.

Local Residents' Unique Experience On High Seas

MORE ABOUT C.P.R. LINER MONT. CALM HITTING ICEBERG

As recorded three weeks ago in The Islander, the Misses Carrie and Katie Richardson, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Richardson, Maryport Avenue, Cumberland, travelling to England for a holiday, on board the Montcalm, had a thrilling experience when the vessel hit an iceberg two days out from Montreal.

The following clipping, taken from an old country paper just received, pays a glowing tribute to the quick work and action of the captain:—

"Over a thousand passengers on board the Canadian Pacific Railway liner Montcalm, which reached Greenock recently, had a thrilling experience, many women fainting, when that liner struck an iceberg in the Straits of Belle Isle, two days out from Montreal, on her voyage to the Clyde and Liverpool.

Dense fogs were met in the passage down the St. Lawrence River, and at 2.0 p.m. on Sunday, July 3, the passengers were startled to hear a crunching noise and to find the vessel heeling over to the port side. The Montcalm had slid on to a submerged ledge of a huge berg which rose high above the funnels of the vessel.

With some way on, she slid along the ledge, and eventually righted herself. The paint on part of the bilge

Respected Royston Resident Laid To His Rest Wednesday

Mr. David Roy, Long a Resident of District, Died Monday Morning

During the early hours of Monday morning one of the pioneers of Roysston, Mr. David Roy, residing at the junction of the Courtenay, Union Bay and Roy Roads, passed away peacefully in his sleep.

Mr. David Roy was a native of Pictou County, Nova Scotia, where he was born in 1869. In 1887 the whole family, consisting of William Roy, wife, two sons and two daughters, following the westward trend, came across the continent to settle on Vancouver Island. After working for a short period at Wellington and Nanaimo, the whole family came to Cumberland, then a small mining camp and since then have made that district their home. William Roy, recognizing the possibilities of Royston as both a farming and pleasure resort, took up a section of land there and upon his death, a few years ago, the estate came to the deceased.

After working in the mines with his father, the young man came to reside at Royston (named from the family, Roy's town), being engaged in putting through the original road to Cumberland (Roy's Road), and it was with great pride he saw its development from a mere trail to what is now the finest stretch of highway in the district. In 1899 he married Miss Isabel Stewart, also of Pictou County, and his surviving family include the widow, one son and one daughter. Being interested in all local activities, his friends remember him as a staunch supporter of the Conservative banner, a member of Hiram Lodge No. 14, A. F. & A. M., and also a member of the Native Sons of Canada whilst his gifts as a violinist made him deservedly popular in musical circles, where his absence will be most acutely felt.

It was the writers' good fortune to have known him long and well, and we only knew him to esteem him more highly as the years passed by. Today we miss his kindly smile and friendly greeting; we long in vain to hear the jovial laughter and to feel again his genial presence.

For the last six years Mr. Roy has been the E. & N. station agent at Royston Station and passengers will miss his cheery word of god-speed to the parting and welcome to the incoming visitor.

The funeral, which was held on Wednesday, under Courtenay Masonic auspices, was largely attended by many friends from all over the district, attesting to the high regard in which the deceased was held. A short service was held at the family residence by the Rev. E. O. Robathan, after which the cortege proceeded to the Sandwick United Church Cemetery for interment, where the Masonic ritualistic service was conducted by Mr. J. K. McKenzie, Senior Warden, in the absence of the Master. The chief mourners were the widow, Mr. Herbert Roy, and Dr. and Mrs. Harrison P. Millard. The pallbearers were Messrs. J. W. McKenzie, Sr., Wm. Baikie, G. H. Pidcock, D. R. MacDonald, J. N. McLeod and W. A. Owen.

Many beautiful floral tributes were received by the sorrowing family and are hereby gratefully acknowledged: Mother, Gladys and Herbert, Dr. H. P. Millard and family, Mr. and Mrs. G. Millard, Royston Womens' Auxiliary, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Stewart, Mrs. Whitehouse and son, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Thomson and Myra, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. McQuillan, Native Sons, Assembly No. 3, Mrs. H. Idiens, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Laver, Dr. and Mrs. R. P. Christie, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Dawson, Mr. and Mrs. F. Dallos and family, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Greig, Mr. and Mrs. J. Marriott, Major and Mrs. Hilton, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Watson, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Irish, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs Gordon Thomas,, Mr and Mrs. Jos. Idiens, Boys of Canadian Colliery R.R. and E. & N. Railway, R. Roberts, Mrs. Wilson and George Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Henderson and family.

Mr. Frank Burde, general manager of the Vancouver Daily Province, accompanied by Mrs. Burde, was in the district during the week and spent a little time out at Little River.

Opium Seizure At Collieries Station

Acting on information, Provincial Police Matthews and Fenton made the seizure of five tins of opium on Wednesday last, at the Canadian Collieries Station.

The opium was cleverly concealed in the hearts of cabbages, the heart being taken out and the opium substituted. It was impossible for anyone, not knowing of its presence, to discern any peculiarity about the cabbages, being perfect in every respect. The shipments were addressed to Wing Lee, a merchant of Chinatown. There was one shipment came in with Tuesday's freight and one on Wednesday. On discovering the opium, Fenton waited for the Chinaman to claim the freight and on doing so he was arrested.

This seizure leads up to the conclusion that opium has been shipped into the local Chinatown spasmodically and in future a stricter watch will be kept.

Boy Jumps From Moving Train; Is Badly Injured

On Thursday (yesterday) a very painful injury was sustained by Victor Tomassi as a result of jumping from the train bringing the morning shift miners from work.

It appears that Tomassi, along with another boy, had been out to Comox Lake, and on returning, the boy Tomassi was with, had been entrusted with his father's pick. On nearing Cumberland, the train slows down considerably before stopping, and it was at this time that the boys jumped off. The boy with the pick jumped first and Tomassi followed immediately, landing on the pick, which penetrated into the groin and leaving a deep gash. Tomassi is in the Cumberland Hospital at present, under the care of Dr. E. R. Hicks, and is progressing as well as can be expected.

This accident will serve as a warning to other children who travel to Comox Lake by means of this train. The Canadian Collieries have signs posted up on the coaches warning the people against jumping from the train whilst in motion, and unless they are obeyed the children will be stopped from riding to and fro.

POWELL RVER'S JUBILEE QUEEN WILL ATTEND DANCE AT ROYSTON

(Powell River, Aug. 3.)

Powell River Assembly, No. 38, Native Sons of Canada, has decided to hold its annual outing on the evening of Thursday, August 11th, when a monster moonlight excursion will be run, the Union Steamship Company's popular ship "Lady Cecelia," having been chartered for that night. It is expected that several hundred persons will avail themselves of the opportunity to enjoy an evening's sail on the waters of the gulf and a few hours dancing at Royston Open-Air Pavilion. Mr. Joseph Idiens, the owner of the pavilion, was a member of the Courtenay-Comox Board of Trade party that made a visit to Powell River a short time ago and is a strong advocate of broader business connection between Comox Valley and that city. "Joe" has already begun to do business with the near mainland, and the Sons of Canada, instead of taking their excursion elsewhere, have decided to reciprocate. A feature of the party will be the attendance, in her royal gown, of Powell River's Diamond Jubilee Queen, Miss Josephine Mitchell, and her attendants. Queen Josephine has the distinction of being the first white girl born in Powell River. On arrival of the excursion at Royston she will probably lead the grand march at the pavilion. The Patricia Orchestra of at least six pieces will be in attendance.

WHAT IS A HOME?

SOCIOLOGISTS and psychologists have rediscovered the great moral importance of the home as an institution. But what is the home? The answer to that question is not as obvious as may appear at first sight. Parents alone do not make a true home. Parents today make more sacrifices for their children than ever before. They may even devote more anxious thought than was ever devoted to the physical, mental and moral training of their children, and yet the net result may be, and often is, disappointing. Why?

Because, some thinkers assert, parental effort must be supplemented by the constant, subtle indirect influence of the home as a distinct institution. That is, the home is a moral as well as a physical entity. To live in a real home, to study, to rest and amuse oneself at home, to be fond of certain rooms, bookshelves, pictures, furniture, and to entertain friends and discuss matters of current interest during or after dinner, is to be the recipient of all manner of impressions and stimuli that mold character and socialize the individual.

Perhaps the influence of the home as a separate social institution has not been stressed sufficiently in late years, although much has been said about the disappearance of the home in the larger cities and its replacement by small flats and apartments in which neither parents nor children spend much of their leisure hours.

"Back to the Home" is a significant slogan. Parents as well as children need the old-fashioned comfortable individual home.

THE WORLD GROWS BETTER

DID you ever stop to think what a slippery, slimy, vile earth this was in the early days before our beautiful sun had begun to put in order? Great reptiles crawled through the swamps and life was at its lowest form. It is still bad enough in spots like the Florida everglades or the African jungles, but it shows signs of improvement.

This was a vile and savage earth of ours before the sun of education began to warm civilization and develop the human mind. The cave man killed with his club and yanked his woman about by the hair of her head. We still have bitter prejudices, superstitutions, envy, malice and hatred to contend with, but we are growing kinder and more considerate of each other.

Yes, the poor, old, scarred earth is growing better and those with their faces turned toward the sun can see the light of a brighter day coming.

WHAT'S IN YOUR HEAD?

WHAT becomes of all these things we call thoughts? Where do all the good stories we hear go? Why is it when you want to think of the name of a book or a story or a play you never can recall it?

We know a man who says no thought is ever lost. He says our brain is just like a nice competent filing cabinet. Everything you know and everything you hear,and everything you read is filed away there all in order, and the clever people are the ones who never lose the key to the cabinet They can always unlock the door and put in a thumb and pull out a plum, just whenever they feel like it.

Dull people have the filing cabinets, too, but they lose the key, and that's why they can't remember the things they forget.

After all, that knob on your neck is a wonderful piece of machinery and it is truly remarkable how many old recollections you have stored up in that thing you call your brain. Did you ever stop to think that what you have in that wonderful cabinet represents all you have in the world? Lose the power to think and you become nothing.

Fined For Drunkenness

Owing to many complaints having been received as to the conduct of certain frequenters at the Saturday night dances at Royston Pavilion, the Provincial Police took the matter in hand on Saturday night last with the result that four youths were hailed before Magistrate Hames on Monday evening charged with being in a state of intoxication in a public place. They all pleaded guilty and were each fined $25.00 and costs. In deference to the mothers of these miscreants we refrain from publishing their names on this occasion.

WELL KNOWN BOXER VISITS DISTRICT

Vic Foley, without question, the greatest featherweight boxer in the West, and Champion Kid Roy's nearest contender for high honors, was a visitor in the district this week, on a brief holiday preparatory to leaving for California ,where he has been offered lucrative engagements.

Foley, modest, unassuming little fellow, is of the opinion that he will not require to again meet Jackie Johnston, the Toronto boxer who suffered defeat when he sprained his ankle after less than one monute's fighting last week in the Dominion elimination tournament at Vancouver.

"Although it was unfortunate that the Eastern boxer was eliminated through no direct fault of his own, I am positive that I would have beaten him before the contest had terminated," said Foley to a press representative, Wednesday, "and, although I am willing to meet him at any time and any place, I do not think the fans want a return bout. I am in direct line to face Roy of Montreal and it is possible that we will meet in Vancouver when the cool weather comes around."

The B.C. boxer, who is a prime favorite in California, expects to make a two months' stay in the Sunny South and return here primed for an active winter season.

Foley in his fistic career has taken part in over eighty contests, the majority of which he has won.

Statue Of Sir Wilfrid Laurier Unveiled

colonies united by the St. Lawrence and the Great Lakes, to a nation extending from sea to sea, and holding its place among the nations of the world, that Laurier played his part as a leading, and, for a considerable time, the foremost figure in our public life.

PUBLIC CAREER

Laurier was elected to the legislature of the Province of Quebec in 1871. He entered the parliament of Canada in 1874. Three years later, he became a Minister of the Crown in the administration of Alexander MacKenzie. In 1887 he became the Leader of the Liberal Party, and Leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons. In 1896, he became Prime Minister. The office of Prime Minister he held continuously for fifteen years. From 1911 to his death in 1919, he continued the Leader of his party and the Leader of the Opposition. It was a great public career. In period of time alone, it embraced membership in the House of Commons of within five years of half a century.

PERSONALITY

At a moment such as the present, it would be impossible, even were it appropiate, to attempt to sketch the incidents of Laurier's career. At most one can but seek to recall a very few of the characteristics, qualities and guiding principles which gave to his leadership the commanding place it never lacked. "Nature," says one of his biographers, "was prodigal of her gifts to Wilfrid Laurier." In appearance he was markedly distinguished. His manner and bearing spoke of the chivalry of his race, and in more particulars than one, he gave to chivalry its highest expression. His great natural endowments were enriched by a nobility of character that made his personnality one of rare dignity and serenity. Wherever he went, he seemed to shed "a constant influence, a peculiar grace." He was singulary devoid of jealousies and prejudices, singulary charitable in his estimates of others and singulary forgiving. In all things he was a great gentleman. His public and private life were sans peur et sans reproche. He was the type of leader whom men delight to follow, and whom a nation is proud to honour.

A GREAT PARLIAMENTARIAN

Laurier was a great parliamentarian. His life was centered in the House of Commons and its associations. Neither law nor journalism claimed more than the beginnings of his career. Once he became the leader of his party, it was amid the affairs of the state that his life was wholly lived. It is difficult to say whether the gift of oratory, in which he was unsurpassed and which he exercised with a natural and equal grace in the French and English languages brought him more of power and influence on the platform or in parliament. Wherever he spoke men were attracted by his words, and above all by the charm of their delivery and expression. Behind the gift of utterance lay a mind keen in its perceptions and richly stored in a knowledge of affairs, in history and literature; also a heart, tender and strong in its emotions, and warmly responsive to the interests of other lives.

Influence of and Attachment to British Institutions

Sir Wilifid's political thought was largely shaped by his study of British parliamentary institutions. He never ceased to speak of what he felt he owed to the writings and example of such men as Macaulay and Burke, of Pitt and Fox, of Bright and Gladstone. To him the British Constitution was a bulwark of freedom, and British parliamentary procedure and practice the palladium of liberty. He was an upholder of constitutional monarchy and had a very real concern for the unity of the British Empire of which he believed the Crown to be the great bond. There was, he said, something which appealed strongly to the imagination, and which for him had a great attraction in an agglomeration of continents under the British Crown. The firm basis of the British Empire, next to the British Crown, he believed to lie in the complete autonomy of the self-governing units. Addressing the then Prince of Wales, now His Majesty King George on the occasion of the Tercentenary celebration at Quebec in 1908, Sir Wilfred said: As I advance in years I appreciate the more the wisdom of that British Constitution under which Iwas born and brought up, and under which I have grown old, which has given to the various portions of the Empire their separate free governments. It is our broad boast that Canada is the freest country in the world. It is our boast that in this country liberty of all kinds, civil and religious liberty, flourish to the highest degree." To those of his own race he never failed to extol the degree to which he believed justice to be secured and rights to be protected under the British Flag. Nor did he hesitate heartily to commend the free institutions of Britain to those of other parts. It is an open secret that in the framing and acceptance of the South African Constitution, General Botha was not a little influenced by the counsel and advice of Laurier. In a letter written to Sir Wilfred, and read by him at the Tercentenary celebration to which I have just referred, General Botha said: "It is our intention to follow in the footsteps of Canada in the devolopment of free government.

THE RIGHTS OF MINORITIES

The rights of minorities were to Sir Wilfred a sacred cause. Frequently I have heard him say that to be of the minority in both race and religion was, in his public life, the cross that had been given him to bear. At the time he became the leader of his party, he is known to have asserted that it would mean much of sacrifice in the end. He was thinking of how the real significance of larger issues is often lost in appeals that are made to prejudice and passion. But here let us seek the perspective of History. We know so little of the real significance of crosses and sacrifice. To have been of the minority in race and religion, as Sir Wilfrid Laurier was, and to have enjoyed, as he did, so great a confidence on the part of all will, I believe, come to be recognized as the crowning glory of his career. Not only in Canada did it help to inspire in the breasts of minorities a confidence in his advocacy of British traditions and laws, but in the larger arena of Empire, it gave to men of other races a faith in the justice and freedom of British institutions which, with less in the way of example, they might have found it difficult to possess.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES — UNITY, LIBERTY

As I seek for the guiding principles in Lauriers' Leadership, I find them in the words, unity and liberty. To his mind the one was indispensable to the other. There could be no true unity where doubts existed as to liberty without a conscious unity. liberty without a conscious unity. Unity and liberty, he believed, could only be attained through counsels of moderation and toleration. For this reason he sought in all that pertained to differences of opinion, to avoid coercion and to practise conciliation. Unity and liberty were equally essential as underlying principles in national and imperial policies. Appreciating to the full the significance of the differences in origin of the Canadian people, Sir Wilfrid believed with all his heart that only by a profound regard for each other's point of view in racial, religious and economic controversies could the unity of Canada be maintained; and Canadian unity was Laurier's supreme aim. In the liberty of worship, of language and custom guaranteed to his compatriots by the policy of the Quebec Act of 1774, and confirmed in the Constitutional Act of 1791., he won his first confidence in the breadth of vision of British Statesmanship. In the autonomy of the provinces of our Dominion, he came to feel a security in the larger project of Confederation. In national autonomy, he believed, lay the secret of Imperial unity. Self-government, expanding in area as it developed with time, such was his vision of unity secured by liberty, and his vision of liberty maintained by unity.

VISION OF EMPIRE

The Imperial Conference of 1926 has declared the British Empire to be a group of self-governing communities, equal in status and in no way subordinate one to another in any aspect of their domestic or external affairs. Here and now, it is interesting to recall that as early as 1897, in London, at the time of Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee, Laurier spoke of the British Empire as "a galaxy of Nations." If, as is now generally accepted, "a community of free nations" united by a common allegiance to the Crown is an accurate description of the British Empire, it may, I think, truthfully be said that few, if any, entertained this conception earlier or, in its entirety of outline, more clearly than Sir Wilfrid Laurier; and that working towards its realization as he did, through good report and ill, no man in his day or generation contributed more to what we believe will prove to be the enduring foundation of that great structure.

INTERPRETATOIN OF LAURIER

All important, however, as is a right development in inter-imperial relations, it was not on the place he would hold in the building of Empire, that Sir Wilfrids thoughts were centred. If he gave thought to the matter at all, it was of the place he would hold in the hearts of the people, in the hearts of the people in the land that gave him birth, and in the humble homes with which, in his boyhood, he was so familiar. There was much about him that made one think of Abraham Lincoln. He gave more study to the life of Lincoln than to the life of any other man. "With firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right" were the words he was fondest of quoting; and more than once he made them words of counsel and advice to the rising generation. To the young sculptor who has made the portrait about to be unveiled, we are indebted for an interpretation of Laurier that would most have accorded with his own wish. It is not the Laurier in the early years of his premiership, receiving a knighthood from the worlds most illustrious Queen; nor the maturer Laurier, at the zenith of his power; but the Laurier of years, the Laurier of the people, fighting for the right as God gave him to see the right.

THE SCULPTOR, J. EMILE BRUNET

That his spirit already has inspired the youth of our land is evidenced by what we shall see in a few moments. In a competition open to the sculptors of the world, the first place was won by the author of the portrait in bronze about to be unveiled. It was only after the award was made that it was discovered the successful competitor was a young French-Canadian in his twenty-seventh year, Mr. J. Emile Brunet, born not many miles from where Sir Wilfrid himself was born. I am free to confess that it was not without some misgivings, because of his youth, that Mr. Brunet was commissioned by the Government to execute the work. On behalf of the Government, I should like publicly to express to him today our satisfaction with the manner in which his task has been performed, and our high admiration of the statue itself. As Canadians, we share his pride, that the honor of executing the statue of Sir Wilfrid Laurier now erected on Parliament Hill should have fallen to one of whom Sir Wilfrid himself would have been more than proud, and who has given to his country one more notable example of the artistic genius of the people of the province of Quebec.

IMPRESSIVENESS OF THE STATUE

In conclusion, as a resident of Ottawa, may I be permitted to say, with what pride we of this capital city behold this statue, in the place which has been accorded it on Parliament Hill. How befitting are the surroundings! Here are the Houses of Parliament with which Sir Wilfrid's life was so intimately associated; yonder, are the Laurentian Hills that he so dearly loved; and, there, the gate through which he was wont to pass. This city was identified with his public life more closely than any other. It contains innumerable associations with his name. It was here that, for many years, he and Lady Laurier had their home. It was his great ambition to make it a capital of which all Canada would be proud.

To me there is something deeply impressive in this bronze figure standing where it is. I have watched little children play about its base. How Sir Wilfrid would have loved that! I have seen men and women of all walks of life come in the quiet of evening to pay it reverence. Today, it is given unto Princes to do it honor. There is something, however, even more impressive than all this. It is left "when the captains and the kings depart." It is what future generations will see, when we who knew him shall have passed away, and others gather where we today are assembled. It is the old man, with his bare head and his white hair, standing alone, fighting for the right as God gave him to see the right.

Things Worth Knowing About Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires

Firestone pioneered, developed, tested and placed on the market the Balloon Gum-Dipped Tire—the genuine FULL-SIZED Balloon Tire.

With but half the usual air pressure, these tires are very soft and yielding. They absorb the holes, ruts and bumps in the road. They cushion the car and passengers from shocks and vibration.

Firestone Gum-Dipping—by which each fibre and strand of cord in the tire is impregnated and coated with pure gum—adds the extraordinary strength and flexibility which makes the Balloon construction practical.

Firestone Dealers are kept up-to-date on tire development and service—continually progressing and improving their ability to serve you better and save you money. See the nearest Firestone Dealer and let him handle your tire requirements.

CROWN COLONY DAYS

Away back in the late sixties thousands of acres of British Columbia's timber were sold for one cent per acre, which looked like a fair price—then. ..Today similar timber is worth from $150 to $200 an acre, so tremendously has timber appreciated in value within the scope of an average lifetime.

What the young growth of today will be worth sixty years from now is beyond computation if it is protected from fire and allowed to reach maturity.

The moral is obvious.

BUCK JONES' HORSE TAKES SILVER CUPS

Silver, Buck Jones' horse, is only a cow horse but "he has won enough cups at horse shows to make a thoroughbred green with envy," says Buck. In "Desert Valley," Fox Films latest production starring Jones, Silver plays an important part. In several scenes he is required to go through his action riderless.

Buck bought Silver on a ranch about four years ago. He found that the horse trained easily and seemed to understand what was expected of him before the camera. He has won nine silver cups, first and second awards, at horse shows in Southern California.

"Desert Valley" will be shown in conjunction with "The Secret Studio" on Monday and Tuesday, August 8 and 9, at the Gaiety Theatre, and Wednesday and Thursday, August 10 and 11, at the Ilo-Ilo Theatre.

STRIKING COSTUMES WORN BY FOX STAR IN "SECRET STUDIO

Kathleen Kay, noted designer and creator of the costumes worn by the players in Fox Films productions, is said to have surpassed all previous efforts in the apparel she produced for Olive Borden, starring in "The Secret Studio," which will be shown at the Gaiety Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, August 8 and 9, in conjunction with Buck Jones, in "Desert Valley," and at the Ilo-Ilo, Wednesday and Thursday, August 10 and 11.

Particular stress is made on the costumes which the lovely young star wears in a series of tableaux which are the highlights in the divertissements at a ball given by Ben Bard, in the role of an artist.

The first costume is a Grecian effect in a tableau titled "The Faun." In this Miss Borden is accompanied by a coterie of dancers, also in Grecian costumes, and the artistic quality of all suggests a group chiseled from marble.

Vivid Theatre Tale Opens at the Ilo Ilo

Packed with realism, humanness, touches of alternating comedy and pathos, "An Affair of the Follies," comes to the Ilo Ilo on Monday and Tuesday, August 8 and 9, as a distinct screen hit.

Billie Dove is cast as a chorus dancer who marries a fifty-dollar-per-week clerk and relinquishes her career for life in a cottage—or a flat.

Lloyd Hughes is excellent as the husband. Lewis Stone is a wealthy broker who admires the heroine and tries to win her love.

The play retains a situation which caused the original short story to be cited as one of the best of the year. Three men, the principals, lunch in a chop house daily for months, without learning each other's names. An introduction might have averted the dramatic tangle of their lives, but it is not brought about until too late.

Intimate scenes of the Follies and of other phases, elaborate or simple, of New York life, lend realism as well as beauty, feminine pulchritude and fashion appeal, to "An Affair of the Follies." It is as wholesome as it is entertaining, and will be heartily enjoyed.

See Charlie Murray In Inimitable Role

Charlie Murray, the famous half of the vaudeville team, Murray and Mack, does another of his inimitable portraits of an Irishman in trouble in M. C. Levee's First National picture, "Sweet Daddies."

Charlie has won a solid place in the esteem of movie fans the world over, and it was he, along with Charlie Chaplin, and other celebrities, who put the name of Mack Sennett on the film map.

Murray has since graduated from that famous comedy lot and is under a long term contract to First National, from whom he was loaned to play one of the feature roles in "Sweet Daddies."

"Sweet Daddies" plays at the Ilo Ilo Theatre on Friday and Saturday.

Hollywood Leeches

In "Broken Hearts of Hollywood," the Warner Brothers epic of Filmtown, which comes to the Ilo Ilo Theatre Friday and Saturday, August 12 and 13, Jerry Miley, one of the featured players of the all-star cast, which includes Patsy Ruth Miller, Louise Dresser, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Stuart Holmes, taught Patsy Ruth Miller and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., how to act. Not in reality, however, but in a sequence in the story.

Miley plays the part of one of the "social leeches" of Hollywood, who prey upon the unitiated newcomers, teaching them the "art of screen acting" for a "nominal sum." Snaring Patsy Ruth Miller, who portrays Betty, seeking screen career, and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in the role of Hal Terwilliger, equally ambitious, Miley, beguiles them into paying him handsomely for teaching them how to act.

This is only one of the many realistic angles portrayed in "Broken Hearts of Hollywood," directed by Lloyd Bacon, and shows the many pitfalls which the unitiated are subjected to in seeking a screen career. The story is an original written for the screen by Raymond Schrock and Edward Clark, and all that is Hollywood serves as the background for the dramatic incidents.

keel was scraped off, and the propeller blade broken.

As a precaution, the life-boats were swung out and the ship's crews stood ready to launch them. On examination, it was found that the hull of the vessel was undamaged.

The Montcalm was delayed for 44 hours in the ice field, lofty masses of ice being seen. One man who was on deck said that the berg loomed up suddenly out of the mist, and was so near that he could have touched it. Others stated that when the Montcalm canted over it was like walking down a steep incline.

STRIKING UNAVOIDABLE

Prior to meeting the iceberg, the Montcalm had passed several small bergs, and the captain kept the vessel proceeding at a slow pace. When—states a passenger—the large iceberg came into view the captain immediately steered to the right, but was unable to avoid striking the berg on the left hand side.

All the passengers, who had rushed on deck, were ordered to put on their life-belts. The vessel heeled over, but was speedily righted.

'The quick work and action of the captain,' states this eye-witness, 'was greatly praised by all on board.' So thick was the fog that it was impossible for the ship to proceed on her journey, and the vessel drifted about for two days.

Other ships were soon alongside her, and for forty-eight hours they had to keep their sirens continually sounding. When the fog cleared the Montcalm was able to proceed on her journey, but she was crippled and had to sail at a reduced speed."

The vessel will be repaired on the Clyde."
