OUTLOOK IN COMOX NEVER BETTER

That the riding of Comox will remain in the Conservative column after the forthcoming election, and the majority, this time will be even larger than last, is the declaration of Mr. Michael Manson, Conservative candidate who has represented the constituency since 1909. Mr. Manson arrived in Victoria, yesterday says the Colonist of July 11th.

"The electors of Comox," Mr. Manson stated, "have no desire to repudiate a government which has, throughout its administration, placed in the forefront of its policy the development of the natural resources of British Columbia, and give their support to a party which is without any definite policy and the whole stock-in-trade of which has been its ability to heap slander upon its political opponents, misrepresent the Government's policies and seek, by innuendo and half-truths, to mislead the people on the vital issues of the day.

"In Comox, the outlook for the Conservative party has never been better. I am confident that at the coming elections the Government will be supported in the most whole-hearted manner. I have just been in Vancouver and there the situation is equally favorably for the Conservative candidate. The disclosures made during the investigation at the last session of the Legislature in to wholesale "plugging" done in the interests of the Liberal candidate at the recent by-election has aroused public opinion. The better element among the Liberals make no secret of their disgust and their determination to show their disapproval of such malpractices."

Discussing conditions in his riding, Mr. Manson stated that the legislation passed at the last session of the House, especially in respect to the assistance to the loggers in the shape of not enforcing the customary tax at once, but instead, permitting the operations of logging to proceed to a point where the logger's returns are in sight before enforcing him to meet the Government's charges, has had a most satisfactory effect on the operations of the loggers and much work is being done. Then, too, the Government's measure in aid of the shipbuilding industry will mean much for the lumber industry in Comox. The great trouble has been lack of bottoms in which to export lumber to the markets of the world. But since the Government's shipping policy was put into concrete legislation, the results are excellent. In Vancouver, three keels of vessels to be engaged in the lumber trade have been laid, and in Victoria work will shortly start upon more vessels. These evidences of coming shipping facilities have brought great encouragement to the lumber interests in Comox. Another government measure which has greatly assisted the loggers of that section is the permission for the continued export of logs in the unmanufactured state.

The longshoreman's strike at United States' Pacific Coast ports has had some effect on the logging industry on this side in that it has tied up the export lumber business of the mills in Washington, to some extent. A strike in the Washington shingle mills has also interfered somewhat with the shingle business in British Columbia, but, generally speaking, there is a feeling of confidence among the lumbermen which is indicative of the improved conditions at present compared with those in the Comox district, recognize the successful efforts the Government has made and is making to improve the situation.

ORANGEMEN CELEBRATE THE 12TH

The members of the Mt. Horeb Lodge L. O. L. No 1676 assembled in the lodge room last Sunday evening and marched to Divine Service at Grace Methodist Church. Rev. Bro. H. Wilson was the preacher and he based his remarks from the text, "What mean Ye by these stones" which was greatly appreciated by the members. On Wednesday July 12th the lodge celebrated the Battle of the Boyne. Instead of the annual customary procession an entertainment and social evening was spent. The meeting was called to order by W. M. Bro J. Taylor. Speeches were delivered of an inspiring nature. While the Orange association do not oppose any religous belief whatever, we strongly oppose special concession to any particular church. "Equal rights to all and special priveleges to none Our God, Our King, and Our Country," is what the Order stands for. The loyalty of the Order is seen in the fact that over 40,000 members in Canada have answered their Country's call.

Songs and recitations were given by members and friends which were highly appreciated. Refreshments suitable to the season were served in abundance The committee Bros. Robertson, W. Dunn and Loggie worked hard and did their work well to make the evening enjoyable. The singing of the National anthem brought the enjoyable evening to a close and the 226th anniversary will not soon be forgotten in Cumberland.

CUBS GO CAMPING.

The Cubs returned home last Saturday after having spent a most enjoyable week camping at Royston. They had a great time and everyone looked brown and well. The following account of the camp was written by Cub Howard Carey, age 11:

"We left Cumberland on Monday morning on the train in charge of Cubmaster Mr. Bischlager, and our camping outfits were taken to camp by Joe Willard. As soon as we got to camp we made our beds out of boughs broken off the trees.

We then got our dinner and it tasted good we were all so hungry; we then walked around our camp and was then ready for another meal. At nine o'clock came prayers, and then to bed, camp beds are not as nice the first night as the ones at home because we could not sleep, was up at three in the morning.

At breakfast Cubmaster Mr. Bischlager sat on Jimmie Haliday's loaf and Mr. Bischlager said, "It was well pumped up." I think it was because we all got fat on Mr. Haliday's bread.

We had lots of nice games of football thanks for the ball lent by Patrol leader Merrifield. We also played Royston boys baseball and we were beaten four to one, but look out Royston next time. We had lots of fun swimming and catching bulheads from under the rocks.

We went on a visit to Toney beach and Mrs. Hood gave us a fine tea:

The Cubmaster gave a prize for the neatest partol in camp, the French Patrol won.

At last the happy week came to an end, with orders to pack our kits for home, but the cubs all say, "Our cubmaster is the best yet." And we all hope he will be with us to camp another year.

FROM THE FIRING LINE

The following is a letter from Albert F. Grant, chauffer to Mr. J. R. Lockard previous to joining Overseas Forces and addressed to his former employer:—

Somewhere in Belguim,
June 23rd. 16

Dear Sir.—As I have a few moments to spare I thought I would scratch a few short lines to say "Hello; and let you know I am perfectly well and happy. I have just finished a meal of bully beef and biscuits which takes the place of roast turkey and is enjoyed fully as much when you are real hungry. Mr. Lockard, please excuse this awful scribbling, and also this writing paper as I am sitting in a "dug out" and using a sand bag for a desk and this paper which I am using I found in the dug out, so you see (this is real Active Service Conditions). I dropped you a card about a week ago telling you that I had met Eddie Jackson, and that he was a Sergt. in the Engineering Corps to which we were attached helping to rebuild trenches and so forth. Well this time Mr. Lockard, I am very sorry to relate that I am writing to tell you that I saw Eddie get killed yesterday. We were all in the trench together and Fritz began shelling us, of course we took cover as best we could, and a shell broke about ten feet from us and a piece of flying shell hit Eddie in the neck and he died in a few minutes. I felt very very badly on account of knowing him so well, but I suppose that is one of the fortunes of war, and you never know when your time is coming. He is being buried today, but I am not able to be present at his burial, as I do not belong to his corps and there is as little as possible fuss made over those things here, as they are so common. I watched a most interesting fight in the air yesterday just above our heads. There were two enemy planes and two of ours. One of our planes was brought down I am sorry to say, but the Germans both beat it. It is an awful sight to watch a plane falling from a height of 14000 ft. I have seen three fall at different times. Well Mr. Lockard, I can't think of any more of interest to you so I guess I will ring off trusting you and all the family are enjoying the very best of good health. Remember me kindly to Mrs. Lockard. Edith and little Dick.

Best Regards,

ALBERT.

WOLF CUBS:—It would be unfair to make any attempt to mark them, as the questions were properly beyond their present status. It is sufficient to say that they appeared to know all what they should know; and a great deal more besides. They made an excellent attempt to give right answers to questions on the flag, and their efforts to master the Knots did them infinite credit; in fact I should judge that many of the Cubs would make a better showing than some of the Scouts on the Knot Tests, and on my next visit I shall be inclined to have a Knot Competition between Cubs and Scouts.

The Bear Patrol did very well, and I am very well pleased with the work of both the Leader and his Scouts. The Hound Patrol also did well, but the result was the work of the only one Scout under Leader Brown. The other Patrols did fairly well, but must do better next time, and their leaders must not give so many wrong decisions. 85% marks should be obtained in this very simple examination. The Leader of the Kangaroos gave no wrong decisions but he was not backed up by his Scouts. I once again heartily congratulate the whole troop on their very practical application of the 2nd Scout Promise; and also on having a Patrol Clubroom system; and on havihg by their example and work won for themselves official recognition by their city. I hope that they will still further advance in the respect of all with whom they come in contact. I hope to visit them more often in the future.

RAISE FUNDS TO UPHOLD OPEN SHOP

San Francisco, July 12.—With $350,000 subscribed for its "open shop" fight, the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce was preparing today to take further definite action toward breaking the longshoreman's strike and moving the great quantities of freight that congest the wharves. The Chamber of Commerce estimates that $2,500,000 worth of shipments were held up in June and 40,000 tons of merchandise is still tied up on the docks, according to the Harbor Commision.

In view of the withdrawal of all compromise or mediation offers by the Waterfront Employers' Association, there was little likelihood that the day would bring any hope of settlement, though Henry M. White of Seattle, acting as federal mediator, is endeavoring to get the opposing factions together.

As yet organized labor has made no move to meet the declaration of the Chamber of Commerce or to combat the efforts of its law and order committee. The Portland Chamber of Commerce, at a meeting last night followed the suit of the San Francisco body in organizing for an "open shop" campaign. It also endorsed the present scale of wages being paid to non-union stevedores.

Acts of violence occurred yesterday or last night in nearly all of the larger ports where the longshoremen are on strike. The most serious was reported at Seattle, where a negro strike-breaker was beaten into unconsciousness by a gang of strike sympathizers who boarded the street car in which he was riding. The number of special police paid by the Seattle employers for strike duty was increased to 250.

Deaf and Dumb Picketing.

Judge Tallman, Superior Court Judge of King County, makes union labor votes, when, in a decision handed down the 16 inst., in a case wherein plaintiff prayed for a restraining order against a defendant, members of organized labor, who are picketing his place of business because he employed a man who did not belong to the union. The plaintiff made it very plain to the court that such picketing was destroying his business, reducing his receipts, and that he felt, under the liberty of the American Government as guaranteed each individual by its Constitution, he wanted protection, but the court could not disrupt at this time the possibility of a few votes for the fall election, and proceeded to give said plaintiff no protection, allowing organized labor the right to destroy a merchant's business, one who pays taxes and rents to do business in a country where the Constitution guarantees the lawful protection in conducting a merchantile business.

Judge Tallman, as Superior Court Judge, has in this decision permitted himself to be a co-partner with a class who, when operating as a court has permitted, become a priviliged class; and every man and woman within this court's district should know exactly what he has become a partner to. Judge Tallman said that in his judgement there was no law preventing quiet, speechless picketing if it is void of any force or violence.

"These defendants may put not to exceed two pickets in front of each of this defendent's stores." said the Judge, "if they wish to. These pickets may have a badge or scarf with words like these, or to this effect: 'This place is unfair to organized labor.' They may put them on if they wish to, but nothing more; no such words as 'Don't go in this man's store,' or anything of that kind."

It appears that the court is willing to destroy a man's business, provided it can be done without violence, and the court no doubt is honest in his decision, but even honesty, wrongfully applied, has no place in this country, it having been a system of organized labor, or the mob division of organized labor, to apply the boycott privileges exercised by them against a court when coming before the people for re-election, if that court has failed to give them the advantage of decisions wherein organized labor is involved. This itself is the one and only excuse that the courts of this country use as an excuse for such unjust decisions from the bench.

It is a question that the general public does not seem to be greatly concerned about, but when a free country, as the American Government boasts of, becomes so saturated with injustice handed out to a legitimate and lawabiding merchant as has been done this plaintiff in question, by a Judge of the Superior Court, it is certainly time that the general public was investigating to see why and where a court contracts a diceased mind, that a judge will publicly permit a minority, chronicled as organized labor, to, under his own instructions, do a thing that is positively prohibited by the laws and the Constitution of our country.

The plaintiff explained to the court in this case that he had lost in receipts more than twenty-five per cent of his business, through the unlawful picketing by the Unions, and yet the court stipulates a condition whereby the said Union may make that loss greater in percentage than defendent has already experienced; through the good will of the court and the encouragement that the unions get from the court, it is no doubt that this man's receipts will soon drop to fifty per cent. Now, under these conditions, it is plain that the court has united and become a partner to a crime that has for its purpose and its accomplishment the destruction of a lawful and legal business. What would be the result of one of the same court's decisions if said defendants in this case were to use violence and break windows and destroy property of this merchant? He has plainly stated that they would be punished as criminals, yet can there be any difference between the destruction of a man's property or taking it by violence? That question is very plain. There cannot be. Yet the court is blinded to the extent that he can see that it is lawful to destroy a man's business one way, and unlawful to destroy it another way, and the whole regime, boiled down to one thought, is the pure and simple fact that the court is afraid to exercise the powers granted to him, when an election whereby he is a candidate to succeed himself, is approaching over the horizon.—Pacific Coast Mechanic.

Animal Food

A fashionable lady has a pet parrot of which she is very fond. A few days ago her husband was monkeying with the parrot, when he suddenly cried out in anguish and danced round the room holding his finger in his mouth.

"Good gracious! What's the matter, Charles?" said the lady.

"That parrot," ejaculated the suffering man.

"I hope you haven't hurt the dear bird."

"No, but the dear bird has bitten a piece out of my finger."

"Great goodness! I hope it didn't bite it clean out."

"Yes, it did."

"I wish you would be more careful, Charles. The man I bought that bird from told me not to let it taste meat under any circumstances."

The Challenge Accepted

An Irishman in France had been challenged to a duel.

"Sure," he cried, "we'll fight with shillelaghs."

"That won't do," cried his second; "as the challenged party you have the right to choose the weapons, but chivalry demands that you should decide upon a weapon with which Frenchmen are familiar."

"Is that so?" said the generous Irishman; "then we'll fight it out with guillotines."

The Most Useful Book

"You have quite a number of books, I see," remarked the visitor, glancing round the room. "Which do you think is the most helpful to you?"

"Webster's Dictionary, without a doubt," was the prompt response of Mrs. Brown.

"You don't really mean it!" exclaimed the visitor. "May I ask in what particular way?"

"Certainly. The baby sits on it at table, and it saves the price of a high chair."

Hope

Visitor—You look very much like your mother, only her hair is golden and yours is dark brown.

Mary Jane—Yes'm, but hers was just like mine till last year, so probly mine will change, too, when I grow up.

A Trick of the Trade

"Stop!" thundered the client at the barber, who was cutting his hair. Then, he continued, in somewhat milder tones:

"Why do you insist upon telling me these horrible, blood-curdling stories of ghosts and robbers while you are cutting my hair?"

"I'm very sorry, sir," replied the barber, "but, you see, when I tell stories like that to my clients, their hair stands on end, and it makes it ever so much easier to cut."

A Good Story

It happened at a school where the children were hopelessly involved in miscellaneous subjects, such as grammar, physiology, etc.:

Teacher: "What are the principal parts of the body?"

Sharp Pupil: "The body consists of three principal parts—the head, the chest, and the bowels, of which there are five: a, e, i, o, u, and sometimes w and y."

The latter, doubtless, the appendix.

The Leading Man.

Will Not Worry

Wife: "To be frank with you, if you were to die I should certainly marry again."

Husband: "I've no objection. I'm not going to worry about the troubles of a fellow whom I shall never know."

One Calf—Thirteen Children

A certain Welsh lawyer is the proud father of thirteen children. On one occasion he took his whole family out to a country fair. After strolling over the grounds he decided to take them into a side show, which had a seven-legged calf on exhibition. Approaching the ticket-collector he asked for tickets for himself, wife and thirteen children.

"Are all these your children?" asked the man, surveying the crowd.

"Yes," replied the solicitor.

"Well, wait a minute," said the showman, "and I'll bring the calf out to see them."

Adventures of Johnny Mouse

Not What She Meant

Mr. Titus was travelling in Italy and one morning was quite surprised to meet some people from his native town.

"Why, Mrs. Clarke!" he cried. "How do you do? You are the last person I expected to see in Italy."

"If it isn't Mr. Titus!" exclaimed the lady, in surprise. "Yes, we are spending the winter here. You must call on us often. You know just how it is—persons we never think much of at home seem like dear friends when we meet them in a strange country."

Enough Said

An Irish priest preaching to his congregation inquired of them:

"What is it that makes ye bate your wives?—Whisky. And what is it makes ye shoot at your landlords?—Whisky."

Then, screaming with excitement, he cried: "And what is it makes you miss them?—Whisky!"

"Oh, boys," he concluded, "what more can I say to convince you of the evils of drink?"—Birmingham Gazette.

Following Example

While playing with a pair of shears little Laura severed one of the prettiest of her golden curls.

"My dear child, why did you do that?" asked Aunt Mary, who came to call soon afterward.

"I wanted 'em so I could take 'em off and hang 'em on the bureau," explained the little girl, "just like mamma does."

Parting With Money

Howard: "A fool and his money are soon parted."

Mrs. Howard (clapping her hands): "Oh, John! How much are you going to give me?"

Didn't Lose

Millie: "So you loved and lost, did you?"

Willie: "Oh, no, indeed! She returned all my presents."
