THE WINNIPEG REVOLUTIONARY STRIKE

(From the Winnipeg Citizen, June 9.)

For nearly a month, all eyes in Canada have been turned upon Winnipeg. For nearly a month the citizens of Winnipeg have been fighting wholeheartedly and with a very generous measure of success, against a determined attempt to establish Bolshevism and the rule of the Soviet here and then to expand it all over this Dominion.

In their fight, the citizens of Winnipeg have contended against great odds. When through the machinations of a number of confessed Bolshevists in the Winnipeg Labor Temple, between twenty and thirty thousand were betrayed into striking, the issue went right to the heart of the great body of middle-class citizens whom the strike leaders sought to deprive of the very necessaries of life, of food and water, and of light, police protection and fire protection.

It aroused them to organization and to action, and it sounded a note of warning throughout Canada as to what might be expected all over the Dominion if this effort to fasten Bolshevism upon Winnipeg were not decisively defeated. From the moment that the general tie-up took place over a dispute between some metal workers and their employers, the general strike was recognized as an attempt at revolution—and the citizens proceeded to combat it as such.

The revolution in Winnipeg was the outcome of a Bolshevist movement started at Calgary last March and directed by the I.W.W. organization in the United States. That convention elected a "Red Five" executive for Canada. One of these is Victor Midgley, of Vancouver, a notorious agitator, whose expulsion from Vancouver was demanded by returned soldiers last August when he and others led a one-day general strike in that city in memoriam to a military slacker and defaulter who was shot while resisting arrest.

The second is W. A. Pritchard, of Vancouver, who participated in the same unpatriotic escapade. The third is Joseph Knight, of Edmonton, one of the most notorious of Western agitators of the mining districts and a man who demands the release from internment of men who were actively working in Canada for the German government during the war.

The fourth is Joseph Naylor, a Bolshevist by his own frank admission, who is out to overturn the present system of government. And the fifth is R. J. Johns, one of the worst Red agitators in Cnaada, a Winnipeg man who in 1917 at a public meeting of the Trades and Labor Council urged a general strike against conscription and national registration.

Johns is one of the prime organizers of the Winnipeg strike and he also went to Toronto and was largely instrumetal in bringing about the abortive general strike there. Another local leader is Mrs. Helen Armstrong who, according to her own word, has spent some years of her life in an insane asylum. Her husband, George Armstrong, another notorious "Red," is one of the local leaders, who drew upon himself the wrath of returned men both over the conscription issue and latterly, when returned soldiers went on a rampage against a Bolshevist meeting which sent greetings to the Soviet government of Russia, and the Spartacans in Germany.

F. J. Dixon, a soap-box orator who is a member of the Legislature, had to flee for his life and was battered by returned soldiers when he addressed a meeting in the Market Square in 1917, counselling everybody to burn their registration cards and to resist conscription. He is another of the leaders of the local revolt. Still another is John Queen, a Socialist alderman, who participated in the same meetings and was one of objects of the returned soldiers' ire.

Andrew Scoble and R. B Russell, two more of the prime agitators in this defiance of constituted authority, were active participants in the Red convention at Calgary which passed resolutions for the release of German agents, others for the establishment of Soviet government and proletarian dictatorship, and still further resolutions favoring minority dictatorship of labor by manipulated votes such as that which brought about the general strike here.

A further leader is R. E. Bray, who poses as a returned fighter, but who never saw the firing lines, and who told Premier Norris in cold-blood on June 2, that he was a Bolshevist and out for the establishment of Soviet government in Winnipeg. The historical survey of facts and the editorial expressions thereon, published below, clearly present the viewpoint of the great middle-class of Winnipeg, the innocent victims of the revolution:

The "middle class," attacked by the extremists among the strike leadership ,in this country consists of the overwhelming majority of our people, the farmers, the greater part of the city dwellers, the prosperous mechanics, the shopkeepers, the clerks, the professional classes and others.

The Chicago Tribune, under the above heading, urrges that this great class be organized to stamp out Bolshevism. in so urging, the Chicago Tribune is advocating the spread of the "Citizens' Committee" idea, as it is in Winnipeg, throughout the United States. The advice is good for the whole of Canada. The Chicago Tribune says:

"America has a fair share of fanatics and inflamed theorists and of ignorant aliens who have no roots in American life. The latter are our punishment for our lack of foresight and civic intelligence. Together they are capable of grave disturbances at this time.

"The strike in Canada is worthy of serious thought and more—of serious action in this country. In a most unexpected place what seems to be an attempt at industrial revolution took place, and its effects have spread wider than could have been believed. The ostensible issues are a forty-four week and the recognition of collective bargaining. But the real issue, at least in Winnipeg, if reports are accurate, is recognition not of collective bargaining, but of a Soviet control of industries.

"That is, Winnipeg unions, having formed a central body composed of representatives of all the local employees, demand that it shall be recognized by all the employers and by the community. This far transcends collective bargaining and runs counter to the legitimate trade union into locals and internationals. From this to a Soviet form of government is but a step.
