MINISTER THURSTON TO RETURN TO WASHINGTON.

Carter's Private Warning to His Nephew —Willis' Letter of November 16th— Correspondence Between Dole and Willis—The Government Considering Formal Organization—Honolulu Drug Stores Get Left — All Quiet Since the Warrimoo Left—The Government Dismounting Its Defences—Davis Writes to the Bulletin—Queen Lil. Abandons All Hope of Regaining Her Throne—She Will Sue the United States Government for Damages.

HONOLULU, Jan. 13.—[Special]—Minister Thurston returns to Washington per SS. Australia. He has been for two weeks in close conference with his Government. Mr. Thurston last evening expressed himself as having become much impressed since his arrival with the strength of evidence that, during November, Minister Willis did actually possess authority to use the naval forces in restoring the queen. While the publication of instructions sent to Willis by the cutter Corwin seems to settle the fact that after that time he had power to use force, it is still more certain that he caused it to be understood by all parties that he would use force.

Joseph O Carter, the queen's trusted adviser and confident, after the Corwin came, gave to his nephew, Charles L. Carter, private warning on the 16th of December, to beware as the naval forces were on the point of landing to restore the queen. Charles had his rifles ready to meet them. J. O. Carter unquestionably believed what he was saying. Much interest is expressed about Willis' long letter of November 16th, which the president withholds from Congress for reasons of state policy. It is generally believed to describe the queen's revelations of character in refusing clemency in terms so derogatory to her that its disclosure would impair the cordiality of subsequent relations with her.

A recent correspondence of Dole and Willis was given in substance in a United Press despatch of January 1st. That correspondence was continued by Willis demanding the meaning of the term "menacing attitude" or something equivalent, which Dole applied to his conduct. An answer was made by Dole, but its nature has no yet been learned. The government has renewed serious consideration of the often discussed question of formally organizing the government under a permanent constitutional form. It is quite possible that preliminary forms may be adopted at an early date. The Star yesterday advocated the establishment of an upper house, representing property interests and possessing special powers, with a lower house to be chosen with wider suffrage, all voters to read and write English. This would exclude most of the Asiatics. In the Honolulu Bulletin of the 5th, Davis scores Dole for "not touching upon the vital point," made by President Cleveland, who finds that "the provisional government was not established by the Hawaiian people, nor with their consent or acquiescence, nor has it since existed with their consent." Davis concludes, "that power (the United States), will never consent to regard the dictates of honor and the law of nations, as a lower earthly authority than the will of unnamed men to whom alone the provisional government appeal."

The Honolulu drug stores have a large stock of bandages on hand, which they prepared in expectation of the fight which Mr. Willis did not bring off.

The United Press correspondent at Honolulu, writing under date of January 5th, says: "Since our last news sent per ss. Warrimoo, on the first, all has been quiet. The government has removed all the sand bags from the veranda house of the executive building, whence sharpshooters were to pick off the attacking naval forces. Should Congress order the queen restored by force no resistance would be attempted. The sand bag defences on the ground are left against a possible royalist insurrection. The government has small fear of any such attempt, but remains on the alert. T. H. Davis, Kaiulanis' guardian, writes to the Bulletin of the 3rd with great solemnity of "the decision of the United States government, delivered through the lips of a Christian gentleman who declared that he spoke with a deep and solemn sense of the gravity of the situation and in the name and by the authority of the United States of America. The president's statement carries with it the stern condemnation of the men and women who have suffered themselves to be led, by whatever arguments, into an effort to subvert a nation."

On the annexation side there seem to prevail a profane disposition to see a farcical element in Willis' demand. Mr. Davies yesterday declared his entire confidence that Congress will be subservient to the president's will and will restore the queen by force. Mr. Davie's personal knowledge of Mr. Cleveland's views entitles his opinions to great weight, as experience here has fully proved.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—The last edition of one of the evening papers contains the following under the date of Honolulu, January 6th: "Ex Queen Liliuokalani has entirely abandoned all hope of ever regaining the throne of Hawaii, and is now perfecting arrangements for bringing suit against the United States for an immense sum of money. Such is the startling news learned here today shortly before the sailing of the steamer Australia."

This information comes from a source which makes it absolutely trustworthy and it is believed that before the next steamer sails from here for San Francisco the news will become more or less public property on the islands. The agents of the ex-queen now in the United States have informed her that American sentiment generally is against her restoration and in favor of the annexation of the islands and that all further efforts on her part to regain her lost position will be utterly useless. Acting on this information, and in view of the stubborn stand taken by the provisional government, Liliuokalani has concluded to abandon the struggle to restore former conditions and will seek pecuniary solace in a suit for heavy damages against the American government. Her action will be taken upon statements made in her favor by President Cleveland in his messages to Congress, by Secretary of State Gresham in his letter to President Cleveland, and by Commissioner Blount in the report of his investigations, and upon the further fact that in recognizing the justice of her cause and acknowledging that a wrong had been done her, the United States endeavored to induce the provisional government to surrender in her favor.

The claim for damages will also be made upon the ground that she was deposed solely by an armed force of the United States, acting under the advice and direction of Minister Stevens.

The Latest From Brazil.

LONDON, Jan. 13—The ss. Clyde, from Pernambuco, arrived at Southampton to-day, with an officer and 39 sailors, who sailed from New York on President Peixoto's cruiser, Nictheroy, and left her at Pernambuco. One of the men said that the Government agents at Pernambuco offered them $100 a month each, and $500 bounty, if they would do service on the Nictheroy, but they refused, as they considered the vessel unfit for fighting. She had been loaded with gunpowder, dynamite and cotton wool, yet the natives had persisted in smoking aboard her. Several of the men had been placed in irons, but eventually 65 had succeeded in getting ashore. The Brazilian officers who had boarded the Nictheroy were ignorant of navigation.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—The steamer Catania has arrived from Brazil. She left Santos Dec. 9th, all quiet. During the sixteen days of the steamer's stay nothing of moment occurred. At Rio where the Catania was eight days, there were daily conflicts between the ships and shore. The captain says while returning to the ship from shore bullets whistled between the stroke oarsman and himself. A conflict between launches and shore usually began in the evening and there was almost an incessant rattle of machine guns.

Captain Lang, the commander of the British gunboat Sirius, was reported to be seriously ill and purposed returning to England. This would leave Captain Picking, of the Charlestown, acting senior officer of the foreign fleet before Rio, because the captain of the French cruiser, Magnon, who was actually entitled to the distinction, did not want to act in that capacity.

The Herald's correspondent in Rio also reports that on January 4th all the ministers of foreign powers having warships in the bay informed President Peixoto and General Saldanha that they would suspend all efforts at intervention between the contestants and that both sides might go ahead and bombard each other to their hearts' content. But the foreign warships did not move from their anchorages, and the rebel vessels still remained ensconsed behind them, safe from President Peixoto's gunners.

NEW YORK, Jan 13.—The report that the insurgents had taken Curityba in the Province of San Paulo, has been disproved. Rear Admiral Benham, of the United States cruiser San Francisco, who saw the Nictheroy while his vessel was coaling at Pernambuco, praises the operation of her dynamite guns. Rio Janeiro has remained to-day.

Cape Colony Affairs.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—It is believed negotiations have been proceeding between the United States Government and some London banks respecting support by a syndicate of banks when Secretary Carlisle issues the new bonds. These bonds, it is expected here, will amount to $50,000,000.

Sir. J. G. Sprigg, a Cabinet Minister in the Cape Colony, said in a speech in East London this evening, that the government of Cape Colony ought to be vested in the hands of the people, to whom the ministers should be answerable. The colony ought not to be governed virtually by ministers 6,000 miles distant, and ignorant of the country's needs. The minister referred to Pondoand where serious fighting is in progress, between Chief Patekele, and Chief Siglau, and is reported to have resulted disastrously to the latter. He said that the Cape government must interfere in the campaign with a view to improve the condition of the natives and stopping the cruelty of the raiders.

Hard Luck.

A Vancouver minister had a most trying experience recently. He wished to reach Victoria to preach on Sunday, and in the first place went to the ss. Premier, but being told she would not start for some time, went away for a little while, and on his return found she had gone. He then went to the Cutch, but missed it, owing to a train being in the way whilst walking the track. He then tackled the City of Nanaimo, and after having persuaded the captain for a consideration to call at the other wharf for his baggage, found when he got there that it had already left by the Premier. On arrival in Nanaimo, he left for Victoria per the train, but even here his luck was against him, as will be seen by another item dealing with the mischief wrought by the storm to the local railway service.

"A Social 'Swarry".

A pleasant evening was spent at Dr. Curry's rooms on Wednesday, the following ladies and gentlemen being present: Mrs. Richardson, Misses Sloggett and Smith and Messrs. Barker, Richardson, McGinnis, D. Sloggett, Waterhouse and Dr. McLeod. Tableturning was to have been one of the features of the evening, but unfortunately some of the invited guests were unable to come, so that the interesting event did not materialize. Nevertheless the evening was, as Dr. Curry's soirees usually are, a most pleasant one.

THE STROEBEL MURDER TRIAL.

What an Eastern Paper Says of Justice in British Columbia.

The Ottawa Free Press, a Liberal journal, under the heading "Justice in British Columbia," has this to say, and everybody will agree with it: Although the Provincial authorities of British Columbia have a very difficult duty to perform in administering justice throughout an immense area of territory, peopled by white miners and ranchers, Chinese (including Highbinders), Indians engaged in fishing, mining and lumbering, and other classes of persons not easily controlled, the security for life and property in that province seems to be greater than in older and more thickly settled portions of the Dominion. It is seldom that a murder goes unavenged in the country which Rev. Principal Grant has described as "a sea of mountains," and British Columbia is not only a good province for honest, industrious and law-abiding people to settle in, but has been made a good country for rascals to emigrate from. Crimes committed among the Chinese, which are said to be so difficult of detection in San Francisco, have been brought home to the guilty parties by Attorney-General Davie and his assistants in Victoria, though at times such tasks required great skill, labor and courage. Some of the most intricate and sensational of Canadian criminal trials have been held in British Columbia. Last week Albert Stroebel was convicted at Victoria of murdering John Marshall. The trial lasted twelve days, and the Crown adopted the unusual course of paying witnesses called for the defence. The case had to be tried twice. On the first occasion, in November, the trial took place at New Westminster, the chef lieu of the district in which the crime was committed, but the jury failed to agree. Then the Attorney-General applied for and obtained a change of venue, and had the prisoner tried at Victoria with the result before stated. The murder took place at Huntingdon, within a mile of the international boundary line at Sumas. Marshall was a farmer, who lived alone and was known to have some money in his house, Stroebel boarded at Sumas, on the American side of the line and seems to have had no particular occupation. Marshall was found lying in his own doorway murdered, his death being caused by revolver shots, the bullets having penetrated his head and neck. Marshall was an industrious, cheerful and hospitable man. To some boys who had visited his house shortly before the murder he had shown a lot of $20 gold pieces. The boys repeated the story to Stroebel, who was impecunious. Stroebel was in the vicinity of Marshall's place the evening of the murder, and the bullets found in the dead man's head fitted the revolver found on Stroebel when he was arrested. The evidence was purely circumstantial, and the prisoner went into the box to testify to his own defence. But, as was the case with Luckey, he gave such an improbable and contradictory account of his movements on the night when the murder was committed that he proved a valuable witness for the crown, and was convicted. He has since confessed that he killed Marshall, but pleads that he did so in self-defence—an entirely absurd pretence—and one that brands the statements made by Stroebel in the witness box as a string of perjuries. At the conclusion of the 12 days' trial, Judge Walkem sentenced Stroebel to death, stating, however, that he would give ample time for a review of the case by the Dominion executive. The trial of Stroebel was watched with interest in British Columbia and the neighboring states of the American Union, and Attorney General Davie is being warmly praised for the success which has attended his methods of enforcing law and order under what are regarded in other provinces as difficult conditions.

Battleships of the Future.

The battleship of the future will, like all human contrivances, be of gradual growth, resulting from the adaptation to her use of improvements and discoveries in many branches of science. Under the crucial test of war it may be found that many mistakes have been made. If I should venture to point out any of these, it would be the multiplicity of devices which every branch of physical science has contributed to overcrowd our ships. Not that they do not admirably serve their purpose, but I fear that we, as sailors, are growing to rely upon them, and will be lost when the rude shock of battle breaks our electric wires and disarranges the delicate machinery upon which we now depend in a thousand or more ways.

In the main, however, I venture to think that the battle ship of to-day has a sound reason for all her principal features, and the type will persist. The stability will continue to be carefully protected by vertical armor. Many of the accidents, both in battle and in times of peace, to which great ships are liable, will be diminished by the adoption of liquid fuel. The main batteries will be mounted in turrets furnishing complete protection to the guns, and, as far as possible, to the machinery for their manipulation and for the supply of ammunition. The secondary battery will be protected in proportion to its importance, while every gun position, with its crew, will be protected against machine and rapid gun fire. The time will never come when we shall cease to demand higher requirements in the battle ship. Fortunately, all requirements are interchangeable.

Armor may be substituted for guns, or fuel, so that the saving in one direction may at once be utilized in another. The advent of hard surfaced armor will demand that the calibre of the main battery be maintained; for until projectiles of greater strength can be produced the only way to overcome Harvey armor is to crush it with an overwhelming blow. In addition to this, it will undoubtedly be found that all armor under the constantly varying angles of impact in battle will furnish greater protection than is considered possible when judged by the result of normal impact on the proving ground. For this reason, again, the larger calibre of the gun must be maintained, and this, in its turn, determines the great size of the battleship of the future, subject to the restrictions which have been indicated.—W. T. Simpson, Captain, United States Navy, in the American Review.

THE DOMINION CAPITAL.

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—The general opinion prevalent in political circles here is that Parliament will not be summoned for the despatch of business until the 8th of March.

The Hon. W. Laurier had a conference with leading Liberals here to-day at the Reform club, making arrangements for the next general election. There is an impression among the Liberals that the dissolution will take place after the next session.

The arbitration of the Dominion and Provincial accounts of Ontario and Quebec now meeting here, was adjourned to-day for six months.

THE PRAIRIE CAPITAL.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 11,—A terrible snow storm raged here for several hours last night. The day was very mild, but about 8 o'clock in the evening a gale set in from the west and the streets were soon deserted. This morning two deaths were reported from the storm in the Winnipeg district. Robert Miles, a respectable farmer of the Headingly district was found near the church at that place frozen to death, evidently having lost his way. James McChorister, a character well known to the city police, was found dead on the banks of the Red river with a bottle of whiskey beside him. He had been drunk and laid down to sleep. There was no damage from the wind in the city, but at Lethbridge, Alberta, the wind wrecked the skating rink and overturned several empty flat cars. The weather was quite clear to-day.

Several outside municipalities are asking for an extension of the Winnipeg Electric Street Railway Company's system to thickly settled portions, at present without railway communication.

An exceptionally large gold brick reached Rat Portage this week from the Sultana mine, its value exceeding $1,500.

The total clearings of the Winnipeg Clearing House for the week ending January 10th, were $1,115,806, the balances $170,659.

Fire again visited Regina, the Northwest capital, this morning. The principal losers are: W. Pettingill, druggist, who lost everything; A. McCarthy, whose large stock of gents' furnishings was thrown out on the street and the building saved; W. C. Kelly, building saved, stock slightly damaged by removal. These three losers were burned out last November in the Broad street fire.

WINNIPEG. Jan. 13.—A Boissevain despatch says that a farmer by the name of William Robinson, who lives some distance from Whitewater, went out to do his chores during the storm on Wednesday night, taking a girl 8 years of age with him. When returning to the house he got lost in the storm and wandered around for some time. When he was found he was six miles from home, the child being frozen stiff in his arms.

Mr. J. H. DAVIDSON, M. P. P. for Beautiful Plains, has been selected as the leader for the Opposition in the Manitoba Legislature.

Mr. D. Rutherford, of Stonewall, died suddenly yesterday.

The Manitoba contingent of curlers for the St. Paul bonspiel, start for the south on Sunday. Two or three rinks go from the Thistles, possibly four from the Granites, and one from the Assiniboines. Three rinks are going from Morden.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, Jan. 12.—At the assizes Robert Spencer was convicted of breaking into the house of Elizabeth Gordon and stealing $300. He was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary.

Andrew Mercer, a son of the late Andrew A. Mercer, whose estate, valued at $500,009, was confiscated by the Ontario Government on the grounds of young Mercer's naturalization, is under arrest charged with receiving stolen goods.

The Globe's Ottawa correspondent says that a statement comes from members of the Cabinet that Parliament may not be called till March.

It has been decided to call the Ontario Legislature to meet for the despatch of business on Wednesday, February 14th.

Mrs. Eliza Platt, widow of Samuel Platt, formerly a Toronto member of Parliament, died as her residence, Jarvis street, yesterday. She leaves an estate valued at $300,000.

THE BROAD DOMINION.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Jan. 13.—A supposed earthquake this morning was caused by the explosion of a portable sawmill engine on the farm of John Johnson, about 3½ miles west of this city. The extent of the damage has not been ascertained.

MILTON, Ont. Jan. 13.—News has reached here that an old woman, named Mrs. Ford, of Nelson township, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed her shanty a few nights ago. Foul play is suspected.

ELORA, Ont., Jan. 13.—Henry Dobberthein, a farmer near Dorking, has eloped with his wife's sister, who is aged seventeen years. Dobberthein leaves a wife and three small children in destitute circumstances.

MONTREAL, Jan. 13.—Mr. A. F. Gault, the Canadian "cotton king," has presented £100,000 to the Montreal Theological College to be devoted to training clergymen for the Church of England in England.

BRANTFORD, Jan. 13.—The Hon. Mr. Patterson, Minister of Militia, was banqueted by the officers of the Dufferin Rifles last night. The affair passed off brilliantly.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Jan. 13.—Breen defeated Laidlaw last night in a five mile skating race; time 16.19½. The course is about 50 feet short of 5 miles.

JOLIETTE, Jan. 13.—The jury in the Hooper case, who are all farmers, having entered a strong protest against the court sitting at night, it has been decided to dispense with night sessions hereafter.

Says the Vancouver News-Advertiser: "Much as the odious threepenny bit—the equivalent of six cents here—troubles the minds of ministers of religion and church officers in the "old country" does the present invasion of depreciated Japanese and Straits Settlements silver grieve the hearts of clerics and church officers in our own city. They are rather meanly being "dumped" wholesale into church offertories, the net proceeds of which are consequently just now much lower than the nominal ones. The saloons and the barber shops having rejected the coins it is playing it "low down," to use the western vernacular, to tender the money to the churches, whose treasuries are by no means full at this present."

The Strasburg Clock.

For the third time the municipality of Strasburg, Germany, decided in 1836 that a new astronomical clock should be placed in the framework of the old one. A Strasburg watchmaker by the name of Schwilgue was entrusted with the undertaking, and within four years he finished the mechanism which stands to-day to the wonder and amusement of natives and visitors. Not only does this clock keep the time from day to day, but it runs from year to year without the intervention of any clockmaker. Besides this its face contains a disc indicating all the variable holidays of the year, Easter and so on. It regulates itself in the leap years. It gives the phases of the moon, the eclipses, the equinoxes, and the revolutions of all the planets of the solar system. The fineness of the structure can be understood when it is known that of the seven golden balls of different sizes representing the planets, the nearest to the sun, Mercury, takes 28 days to make the circuit of its orbit, while Saturn only can complete its course in 1747 days, or nearly three years. The entire mechanism, its maker calculated, would run until the year 9999, if the brass and other metal of which it is built do not wear out in the meantime. This wonderful contrivance is unfortunately in a dark place, where those who constantly wish to view it well are scarcely able to do so. Its site is a wing which can be entered either through the cathedral proper or a portal, which directly leads thither from out doors.

The time of greatest interest is at noon each day, though there are little performances at each quarter hour. At noon is the time the cock crows, and that is what everybody wants to hear. The interest never seems to wane. For an hour before 12 o'clock day after day, a crowd gathers in this corner waiting for the exhibition. This early arrival is partly in order to get a good place and partly because the clock keeps solar time, which is now half an hour behind ordinary Strasburg time. Here are tourists, soldiers, nuns, bridal couples, peasant women with baskets, boys with bundles, who have run in from the street to have another look at the thing. Now it is only a half hour until the performance; will the room hold any more?

The beadles, like the street car conductors, are sure there is plenty of room "up front," or rather, in this case, behind. They wave the wands of their majesty and back the people surge. Still more are coming. The natives, who never seem to tire of the sight and who know better about the variance in the times, are now dropping in—mothers and babies, business men from around the corner, and everybody else. There is no space to sneeze. Now there are only five minutes until the rooster crows. Maybe he will not crow to-day. Everybody is looking at the clock. In the very centre of the big monument to the clockmaker's ingenuity is a gallery.

Here stands Father Time representing Death. He has about him on a revolving plane four figures—Childhood, a boy; Youth, a young hunter; Manhood, a fully armed knight; Old Age, a gray-haired man clothed in the skin of a beast. Childhood had struck the first quarter of an hour, Youth the second, Manhood the third, and Old Age the other hours of the day; but now at noon it is Death's own chance. The four figures come out to view before him, while with a grim hammer of bone, he sounds with twelve strokes the death of another day.

A little figure down near the face of the clock now has his turn, and with a little shake, reverses his hour glass. Above all this is another gallery. It begins to squeak. The machinery is in motion. In the middle is a figure of Christ, and around him are to pass the twelve apostles. Out they come one by one. Each stops an instant before the Saviour, turns face, bows, and receives the blessing from his outstretched hand. But the rooster, where is he? There he still is high up on the pedestal, beside a stained glass window. Now he clucks. Now his old metal-plated throat swells. He flaps his wings and crows. Another minute. Again he flaps his wings and crows. And a third time. Was there ever such a rooster as this? He is all over. The beadles drive the people out, shut up the cathedral and go to dinner.

The time of the greatest interest comes but once a year, in the night from the 31st of December to New Year's day. Then an immense crowd always assembles to watch the revolutions of the machinery as it regulates itself ready for the coming year.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 14, 1894.

REFORM OF THE TARIFF.

There is much talk at present of reform of the tariff, and much discontent is expressed at the heavy taxation which it is popularly believed to impose. Taxation is always considered an evil, and people naturally become impatient of it. In the present instance there will doubtless be a very substantial reduction made in the tariff, probably this session. Some farmers at Moosomin in the Northwest were lately looking into the matter, and their demand was that the tariff be cut down so that the duty shall not exceed 12½ per cent. on all prime necessaries for the household and the farm. These Moosomin farmers forget the lesson taught by the condition of things all over Canada before the policy of moderate protection was adopted in 1879. The average duty paid on dutiable goods entered for consumption in Canada during the fiscal year ending the 30th of June 1892 was only 17.56 per cent. The trade and navigation returns prove this. The total imports for the fiscal year mentioned aggregated $116,978,943 and he duties collected amounted to $20,550,581. From these figures any arithmetician can deduct for himself the rate of duty imposed. Now the Government imposes a comparatively high tariff rate of duty on luxuries, and admits the necessaries of life free or nearly so. If a man wants to drink wine, spirits, and ale himself, and to buy silks, embroideries, carriages, jewellery and musical instruments for his wife and daughters he must pay a heavy duty on them under the existing tariff, so also he has to pay smartly for velvets, costly broadcloths, moleskins and the like, high priced linens and cottons, such as laces, lawns, curtains, etc., also for perfumes and costly toilet articles, pirocelain and expensive table ware, and articles of a like sort which only wealthy people can afford to purchase; on dutiable articlee which the poor use the rate of impost is only about 14 per cent. The Government propose to revise the tariff next session, and doubtless there will be further reductions. In the meantime they have been making careful enquiry into the whole subject. No one can deny that this is the proper way in which to proceed in regard to the matter. As to the general question of free trade versus protection, we have no hesitation in saying that a policy of moderate protection ought to be maintained in Canada. Previous to the introduction of the national policy we had a 17½ per cent. tariff in operation, and the revenue it yielded was not sufficient for the wants of the Government. Every year there was a big deficit, in spite of all the Government could do, and Canada's credit was declining. Free trade or a 12½ per cent. tariff would mean the ruin of the revenue and direct taxation. It would mean more than this; it would mean the ruin of our manufactures, the closing of our factories, and the throwing of thousands of workmen idle upon the streets. Canada has now a great sum invested in manufactures, and this we cannot afford to sacrifice, as sacrificed it would surely be if free trade or a 12½ per cent. tariff were adopted. About the lowest tariff that we can afford to have is one that will average about 25 per cent. on all classes of dutiable goods. It is probable that when the proposed revision of the tariff is made the average rate on dutiable goods imported for consumption will not exceed this figure.

ZORILLA, the Republican leader in Spain, has issued a manifesto, in which he predicts the early triumph of the Republicans in the peninsula. M. Zorilla says that the establishment of a republic in Spain would be followed by a revival of trade, by an improvement in the condition of the working classes, by the regulation of the finances, by the establishment of an efficient army and navy, and by the protection of the interests of the church. Senor Zorilla may be an honest Republican, but he must be a very sanguine man, as well as very short-sighted, to expect that any good to Spain can come of a republic. The Spaniards in various parts of the world have tried republicanism, and always with unsatisfactory results. The race does not seem fitted for that mode of government. Civil war has prevailed in nearly every Spanish state in South America during the past year, and is still proceeding in some of them. It was much the same in Spain on those occasions when the Spanish Republicans managed to get the upper hand. Pronunciamentos by prominent military men, followed in due course by civil war, were the order of the day. A monarchical form of government, especially if the king is a strong man, seems better adapted to the temper and habits of the Spaniards, and under such a form of government they always enjoy more material prosperity than under a republic. Monarchy in Spain has generally been bad enough, and corruption and abuses have abounded, but civil war is worse than either. The Anglo-Saxon race is the only race in the world, with the somewhat doubtful exception of the Swiss, which appears to possess self-control enough to administer republican institutions successfully. It is satisfactory to note that Mr. Zorilla, in his appeal to all other interests, manfully repudiates the murderous anarchists, as enemies of social order. The anarchists seem to be like Ishmael and his descendants, their hand is against every man, and as a consequence, the hand of every man is against them.

A SAN FRANCISCO despatch states that owing to the difficulty experienced by the British and American Governments in coming to a satisfactory agreement regarding the policing of Behring Sea, that sea will probably remain open after May 1st. Indeed it seems useless for the British Government to be at expense in helping the Americans to patrol Behring Sea, for the benefit chiefly of the company that has leased the Pribyloff Islands. As the Paris award practically gave all the profit to be derived from the seal herds to the Americans, the latter ought not to grudge the expense of protecting them.

THE POPE has addressed a letter to a French bishop in which he exhorts the Roman Catholics of that country to remain faithful to the republic. The cause of the Bourbons in France seems to be at a very low ebb at present, when even the church refuses to lend them any succor. However, the Pope's exhortation will not really make much difference. Female suffrage has not yet been established in France, and as the ladies are the only true servants of the church there, the men will go on voting pretty much as they please, without troubling themselves much regarding the Pope's advice. It was really the disasters which Napoleon III. brought on France in his war with Germany which killed monarchy in the former country. The Pope's exhortation to the members of his church to remain faithful to the republic have had very little to do with it. The letter of His Holiness is, however, worthy of note as a sign of the times in which we live. Everywhere democracy seems advancing, and the opposite system declining.

THE HOUSE of Commons has adjourned till February 12, after passing the third reading of the Parish Councils' bill. Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Salisbury cabinet, intimated that it was the jaded state of the House only which caused the opposition to refrain from debating the third reading, and he predicted that the bill would be closely scrutinized by the Lords before allowing it to become law. It is not likely, however, that the bill will be thrown out by the Lords, as the Conservative party in the Commons made a compromise with the Government regarding it, the terms of which will no doubt be respected by the Lords. Moreover to reject the bill or to alter it much by amendments would be a very improper proceeding, which the Lords will hardly venture on at present. It is claimed for this bill that it will revolutionize the rural government of Great Britain and place it entirely in the hands of the democracy, as represented by the farm laborers. It is expected by some that they will use their power to oppress and plunder the landlords and to tax the middle class unfairly. The bill is another long step towards placing the government of Great Britain in the hands of the masses. It remains to be seen what use they will make of it.

THE News-Advertiser of Vancouver seems considerably disappointed at the result of the municipal elections in that city. Its candidate for the office of mayor, Alderman Collins, has been defeated, and Alderman Anderson elected by a good majority. Here is how the News-Advertiser of Thursday accounts for the defeat of its favorite candidate: "Although Alderman Collins failed to be elected yesterday as mayor of Vancouver he made a good run, Alderman Anderson defeating him by 81 votes. There is no doubt that Alderman Towler was right when he said on Wednesday that Alderman Anderson's supperters were pleased to see him in the field, as he was likely to draw away some votes from Alderman Collins. An examination of the vote cast leaves little room to doubt that this was the case and that had Alderman Towler not been in the field, Alderman Collins would have been elected by a good majority. However, the matter is decided now and it is useless to spend time or words in discussing what might have been the result under other circumstances than those which prevailed. It is a matter for regret that the city will not cotinue to have the benefit of Mr. Collins' services. He has been a painstaking and assiduous member of the council and it is to be hoped that at some future time he will again be found interested in civic affairs"

Alderman Towler has evidently much to answer for. It is, however, whispered that one main cause of Alderman Collins' defeat was the disastrous patronage of the News-Advertiser. It is a remarkable fact that for several years past the candidate for the position of mayor of Vancouver who has had the misfortune to be championed by the News-Advertiser has invariably been defeated. If Alderman Collins should decide to run for the office at some future time, he will do well to request his friend, the managing editor, to oppose him stoutly in favor of some other candidate. He would then have a good chance of success.

PROVINCIAL NEWS.

Instructions have been received by Lieutenant Port, of No. 4 company, British Columbia Brigade Garrison Artillery at New Westminster, to turn all the old accoutrements into stores at Victoria and make requisition for a new outfit in everthing except uniforms. Lieutenant Port at onee obeyed these instructions, which came from Lieutenant-Colonel Prior.

The commutation of the sentences of Peter and Jack, the Indian murderers, is generally condemned in Westminster, and many people have expressed their indignation in no measured terms. Men of experience who know the Indians well, and officers of the law, declare that this intervention in behalf of the murderers is a most serious mistake, which time will undoubtedly prove.

A change has been made in one of the most prominent legal firms in Vancouver city and Westminster, that of Messrs. Corbould, McColl, Wilson & Campbell. From this time the business of the firm will be divided. The Westminster business will be carried on by Mr. Corbould, M. P., and Messrs. A. J. and J. W. McColl, under the style of Messrs. Corbould and McColl, while the business in Vancouver will be conducted by Mr. C. Wilson and Mr. John Campbell, with Mr. Buell, who has been for some time in the office, under the firm name of Wilson, Campbell and Buell.

The steamer Signal, a Portland telegram says, which came over from British Columbia a week ago with 40 Chinese, has sailed, taking back ten of them, some of whom have still a chance to get in. The collector at Astoria landed fourteen, of the remaining twenty habeas corpus was granted to fifteen, and ten of these were landed by the court. The case of one who claimed to be a restaurant keeper is still under consideration. The law makes no provision for that business. The judge was at first inclined to land him but finally took the matter under advisement, as it was a matter of importance and he did not want a wrong precedent established. More Chinese are coming.

The following letter in reference to the commutation of the death sentence on the Indians, Peter and Jack, the murderers of Albert Pittendrigh at New Westminster, appears in the Columbian of Thursday: "Editor Columbian — Sir: Yesterday the Sheriff was notified, from Ottawa, by the Department of Justice that the Indians Peter and Jack, the murderers of the late A. E. Pittendrigh, were to have their death sentence commuted to life imprisonment. It would be extremely interesting to know just how they came to such a decision. Surely, it was not from the evidence on which the jury found the Indians guilty. Either Peter and Jack ought to be hanged or else set free. they are either guilty or not guilty of murder. The question of manslaughter is not admissable; and why the Department of Justice (?) should take upon itself the farce of commuting their sentence to life imprisonment is hard to comprehend. If capital punishment is the law of the land, let us have it impartially administered. The administration of criminal justice at Ottawa, as far as it relates to punishing Indians in this Province, will soon be a by-word, and cannot help but tend to increase crime, and especially murder.—"AN EYE FOR AN EYE."

Servants in Singapore.

I have heard marvellous stories of the number of servants required in the east and had to take a humble place in my home that was to be. I wondered how I would act in the presence of two "boys," a cook, a water carrier, a coachman, a table boy, a gardener, a washman, a lamp man, a tailor and a maid. Later I wondered how we ever kept house with only a cook and a maid servant; and while stretched out in an ample easy chair on the veranda of my palm thatched bungalow, in absolute repose of mind and body, soothed with a cup of tea which Ah Minga had administered to me, comforted with grass slippers that he had placed on my feet, I calmly pitied the friends I had left behind in America.

In every well ordered Indian bungalow, seven to nine servants are an absolute necessity while three others are usually added from time to time, declares the writer in Kate Field's Washington. The five elements, if I may so style them, are the "boy" or boys, the cook and his helpers, the horseman, the water carrier, the gardener and the maid. The adjuncts are the barber, the washman, the tailor and the watchman. In a mild way you are at the mercy of these servants. Their duties are fixed by caste, one never entrenching on the work of another. You must have all or none. Still that is no hardship. Only newcomers ever think of trying to economize on servant bills. The record of the thermometer is too appalling and you speedily become the dependent of their attentions.

The Chinese "boy"—he is always the "boy" until he dies—is the presiding genius of the house. He it is who brings your tea and fruit to the bedside at 6 a. m., and lays out your evening suit ready for dinner, puts your studs in your clean shirt, brings your slippers, mixes your whiskey and soda, knows where each article of your wardrobe is kept, and, in fact, thinks of a hundred and one little comforts you would never have known of had he not discovered them. He is your valet de chambre, your butler, your steward and your general agent, your interpreter and your directory. He controls the other servants with a rod of iron, but bows to the earth before the Mem or the master. For his ten Mexican dollars a month he takes all the burdens from your shoulders and stands between you and the rude outside polyglot world. He is a hero worshipper, and if you are a Tuan Besar—great man—he will double his attentions and spread your fame far and wide among his brother major domos.

HINDSIGHT AND FORESIGHT

Both are valuable to us. The past for what it has taught us, and the future for what it has in store. Modern methods that smack of primitive honesty. No retrogression, but a steady, onward march in the van of the column. The experience of to-day turned into a source of profit to-morrow. A continual evolution in keeping up with the times. Forecasting the future. Feeling the popular pulse. These are some of the things that have brought us in good luck, and made our Groceries, Provisions, Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes and Dry Goods so popular

Any rooster can crow, but it takes money to do it in this space. Why should we spend it in spreading false reports. We don't! We want you to try our goods, such as Fine New Currants, Raisins, Peels, Nuts, Cakes, Figs Dried Fruits, etc., etc., for Xmas trade. We know the result will be beneficial to us both. Try us.

A Successful Entertainment.

The entertainment provided at the Y. M. C. A. last night was given to a crowded house, the programme being exceptionally good. Though everything was well rendered, the performances of Mrs. Leighton, Misses Burns, Pollock and Hague and Messrs. Tudhope and Rev. Maitland were especially appreciated. Mr. McKinnon was chairman and the whole proceedings were greatly enjoyed.

Had a "Jag" on.

Considerable excitement was caused last night by the finding of a man lying outside the Bank of British Columbia in a pool of blood with one of his pockets turned inside out. On investigation it turned out that the man was drunk and had fallen on his face, being stunned, and cut about the head. He had not been rolled, having turned his pocket out himself, as he had all his belongings, including watch and chain, on him. The fall he experienced resulted in sobering him up and he managed to get home safely, being escorted by two gentlemen who found him.

LOCAL NEWS.

ON THE RAILWAY.

Traffic Disorganized—Uncomfortable Experiences of Passengers—The Track Damaged.

The heavy rains of Friday occasioned considerable damage along the line of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway. A bad washout took place near Koksilah. Ties were washed away, and a large tree fell across a trestle bridge lengthwise, smashing several of the stringers and shaking the structure badly. Many inquiries were made yesterday at the depot as to the whereabouts of the train from Victoria but no definite information could be obtained, the wires being down near Chemainus.

The trips of the two trains yesterday were most eventful, passengers on both having experiences that fortunately but seldom happen. The south bound train, after leaving Nanaimo yesterday morning, encountered a violent storm which lasted about an hour and sent timber down in all directions, which train hands and passengers all turned out to clear off when on the track. On reaching Oyster Bay crossing, the embankments by trestles Nos. 103 and 107 were found to have been partially washed away, but precautions having been taken by the bridgemen, after some fallen timber had been cleared away, the train proceeded

The greatest difficulty was experienced at Koksilah, by the up train, which encountered fallen timber to some extent, here found that the Koksilah river, which runs along the side of the track for a considerabte distance, had over-flowed its banks, there having been at one time as much as two feet of water on the track, though it sank again. On coming towards Nanaimo, it was found that the trestle at Chemainus river was broken. Under the superintendence of Superintendent Hunter and bridge manager Smith the train men and passengers together rigged up a temporary bridge and eventually arrived at Nanaimo at about 6 o'clock last night.

Both engineers on the two trains used the utmost caution, as was indeed necessary. The brakeman of a freight train had a narrow escape. He was riding a velocipede to flag the advancing up passenger, and in a cutting suddenly met it, and only just had time to dismount. As it was, the engine struck the velocipede as he lifted it off the track though it was not damaged.

A Happy Gathering.

A most enjoyable dime whist party took place at the residence of Mr. J. H. Simpson, Wallace street, last Thursday evening. With the exception of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Simpson the guests were all young unmarried people. The ladies present were Misses Hart, Stannard, Roe, Reynard, King, Kitchen, Glaholm, Watkins, Cooper, Good, Caldwell, C. Cooper, A. Glaholm; whilst the gentlemen were Messrs. Barlow, Barker, Tagart, Yarwood, Fowler, Field, J. Good, V. Good, C. Charlton, F. Charlton, H. M. Stewart, Bate, C. Vanhouten, Stewart, Cooper, Peto, A. Potts, Waterhouse, Lamont, A. G. King and D. Curry. Whist was the order of the evening untill about midnight, when dancing took its place. The first prizes for lady and gentleman were won by Miss King and F. Charlton respectively, whilst the booby prizes fell to the lot of Miss A. Glaholm and Mr. Field. The evening throughout was greatly enjoyed and after the supper, which was a most sumptuous repast, dancing was kept up until 3 o'clock on Friday morning.

Two Dogs and a Cow.

The following from "Rod Random," Winnipeg, appears in the September number of Sports Afield:

"A remarkable case of bovine and canine affection has existed in Winnipeg for some time. A litter of Irish setter puppies was raised in a barn in the next stall to that occupied by a cow. When the pups were big enough two of them, much to the alarm of Mr. A., the owner, persisted in paying frequent visits to their big neighbor. The cow, however, was by no means inclined to be hostile, and before long Mr. A. discovered that she received the visits of their pupships with pleasure. She always took good care not to step on or lie down upon them, and when about to make a move would look very carefully around the stall. When lying down the pups would play hide and seek around her, and she joined in the fun by poking them with her nose. Mr. A. became very much interested in the case and when he let the cow out to pasture in the spring he also turned the whole litter loose to run about the premises. The "twa dogs" sought out their big friend and the mutual attraction grew to such a degree that they followed her constantly. When she would lie down in the field the dogs took up their position beside her and dozed while she dozed.

"At last, however, one of the pups began to tire of this way of spending its time and became less attentive, before long leaving its brother in entire possession of its bovine friend's affections. These were now lavished on the remaining setter in an amazing degree, and the cow would never let it out of her sight. When another dog attacked her friend she would give chase. The attacking party, astonished at such reinforcements, would generally withdraw, no doubt wondering at the great advance made in the science of modern warfare. Nor did she confine her attacks to the vagrant canine. The mischievous small boy who delights in pestering dogs of all sorts and sizes, providing always that the said dogs will run away, came in for a share of the cow's displeasure, and many times have I seen her in full chase after a refractory youngster, while her setter friend, now as brave as a lion, having unlimited confidence in the pommeling qualities of her bovine majesty, leading the way, all the while executing a sort of war dance, like an Indian chief marshalling his forces on to sure victory. Such a scene would undoubtedly strike terror into the heart of the victim, as it did into mine one morning when I wanted to prove the statements made to me by various friends about this strange attachment.

"How I got over that high fence I will never be able to tell. For a time, at all events, I did not share the dog's affections for the cow, but she seemed most solicitous to form a closer acquaintance with me.

"The cow has been sold, and for some time the dog missed and visibly mourned its friend, but soon took up with the horse and transferred its affections to it, where they now rest. The oddness of it is that the other dog which formerly had such an affection for the cow, is now at one with its brother on the merits of the horse and the three are seldom separated."

In the Kent Hopyards.

The working day in the Kent hopyard begins with full daylight. By six o'clock the barns let loose their inmates, and a procession of their pickers wends its way through the meadows and orchards towards the field of labor. There is plenty of water for them if they like to wash; but they are quite content with their evening ablutions, and for the most part step from under the sackcloth blankets provided by the farmer, stretch themselves, grumble a little at they scarcely know what, and set off. The women encumber themselves with pots, kettles, provisions, and babies. After an hour or two of picking, fires are lit among the stripped vine-stalks and a score of simple breakfasts are prepared.

The pay they get is not magnificent. It averages twopence a bushel of cleanly-picked hops, and the person who can pick twelve bushels in the day is reckoned a skilful and practised hand. Women make better hop pickers than men. They strip a cluster of the cones in the time it takes the inexperienced man to detach three or four cones only. They talk and sing, too, all the while, in a manner that is highly irritating to certain of the men.

There are all sorts and conditions in the hop garden, so that, on the one hand you may hear girls chanting improper music hall catches, you have only to listen with the other ear to be charmed by the hymns of Moody and Sankey and the Salvation Army. The men, as I have hinted, work more silently and with a certain moroseness. It is with them that the customary strike initiates in the middle of the picking, the hops are too small or the pay is too little—the pretext is readily found. During the strike the farmer and his family may well be anxious, but the difficulty soon arranges itself and the men set to again with a few hearty oaths as a relief to their feelings.

Among the local agricultural hands in the hop garden one often hears very forcible accounts of the ferocity of the pickers. "They'd as soon stick a knife into you as look at you," is a remark that was offered to me from several of them. Yet if they are left to themselves and their own ways, in so far as these do not affect the well-being of their neighbors and the property of the farmer, they seem sufficiently inoffensive.—National Review.

IT'S RATHER HARD . . .

∴ It is hard to see goods go at such prices and expected profits cut down below zero. The peculiarities of the season are not pleasant doses to take, but take them we must—so the knife is used, and prices are cut down fine.

∴ "Money talks," but it is reticent a good deal of the time just now. Still, if you deal with us the bargains talk and keep money along in the general conversation.

∴ We wish every lady in the district to know about our Bargain Counter. It's a dandy. Why, madame, there's goods on these same counters, that come in for every day use, at prices which we cannot again duplicate—goods that we feel it a "crying shame" to sacrifice Still we have to do it, and our customers are the gainers.

∴ We have just sorted up in D. & A. Corsets all sizes now in stock.

Another clean sheet at the police court yesterday.

It has been suggested that if a little more courtesy was extended towards the performers at the Y.M.C.A. by the youths in the rear of the hall, no harm would be done. As it is, a constant whispering takes place amongst some of the younger members of the audience who also go out during performances.
