THE PONTEFRACT RIOTS

THE STRIKING MINERS MIGHT HAVE BEEN DISPERSED

Without Being Fired Upon, According to the Report of a Grvernment Committee—Professor Tyndall's Death Caused by an Overdose of Chloral—A Congress of Agriculturists in London. The British Navy Inadequate to Protect the Food Supply in Time of War. Distress Caused by Foreign Competition—The Manchester Ship Canal Opened.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The Government committee which was appointed to investigate the action of the military called out to suppress the riotous coal miners at Lord Masham's Featherstone pit near Pontefract, reported to day. The members of the committee deplore the fact that no magistrate met the troops at the Pontefract station, when they left the train on August 7th. It was also a mistake they say, that the troops were so divided that no one body was strong enough to overawe the rioting strikers. If a force of adequate strength had been marched into Pontefract they think the necessity of firing upon the rioters would have been obviated, as the miners would not have dared to defy a superior force. The committee also urges that an inquiry be made to ascertain whether soldiers called out to quell riots may not be armed with weapons less dangerous than rifles. The committee was composed of Justice Bowen, Sir Albert Rollt, progressive Conservative M.P. for the Skipton division of Yorkshire; and Richard Haldane, Liberal M.P. for Huntingdonshire. It was appointed by the Government at the instance of the Radical and Labor members of Parliament who were incensed by what they considered the recklessness of the troops in causing bloodshed and death among the strikers.

An Overdose of Chloral.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—A despatch from Haslemere states that Prof. Tyndall's death was caused by an overdose of chloral.

Mrs. Tyndall testified at the inquest that after he had taken the chloral Professor Tyndall jumped out of bed and exclaimed: "Get a stomach pump!" Mrs. Tyndall caused Dr. Winstanley to be immediately summoned, and gave her husband a mustard emetic. He was also given coffee. He became unconscious. Dr. Winstanley did all he could for him, and later in the day he regained his senses and recognized and spoke to the doctors. The latter worked over him all day. Mrs. Tyndall gave her husband the chloral at 8:30 in the morning, and at 6:30 p.m. all was over. Dr. Winstanley testified that he had used an electric battery on Professor Tyndall, and had his lungs not been disabled he might have survived. Dr. Buzzard supported Dr. Winstanley's testimony. He said that Professor and Mrs. Tyndall were an affectionate and devoted couple, and he was satisfied that the death of the professor was purely accidental.

A Congress of Agriculturists.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—A congress opened in St. James' Hall to-day under the auspices of the National Agricultural Union. The Earl of Winchelsea presided. Among those present were: The Earl of Harrowby, the Earl of Denbigh, Lord North, Lord Radnor and sixty members of the House of Commons. The Earl of Winchelsea said that the resolution that would be submitted to the congress embodied a large number of suggestions that had been received from representative agriculturists all over the world since the last congress was held. The nation was becoming more and more dependent upon food brought from foreign countries. The consensus of public opinion was that the navy was inadequate to protect the food supply in the event of war. One cause of the distress was the fall in prices due to foreign competition. It was necessary for the producers to combine and ask, not for protection, but for fair play. The earl moved that all interested in land should support the union. This was unanimously adopted. Sir Richard Paget, M.P., moved the adoption of a resolution declaring that an excessive share of the public burdens were borne by farm lands compared with other sources of income. Sir Richard Paget's motion was carried.

A Stormy Time.

BERLIN, Dec. 7.—During the discussion on Boerse's taxation proposition in the Reichstag to day Herr Liebermann von Sonneberg, anti-semite, violently demanded that Boerse's tax be dealt with separately from the receipt tax. He attacked Herr Suger and the socialists generally for identifying themselves with Boerse. Suger replied by shouting "You had better take up your dishonored bills," Her Lieberman von Sonneberg retorted. "You are associated with usurers." Shouts arose everywhere in the house. President von Levetzow finally succeeded in restoring quiet.

Forsaken By His Warriors.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—General Dodds of the French forces in Dahomey has telegraphed to the minister of marine that King Behanzin, who fled after his defeat and the capture of his capital by the French troops, has been abandoned by his warriors. He is destitute and General Dodds says his capture is assured.

The Ship Canal Opened.

MANCHESTER, Dec. 7.—The directors of the Manchester ship canal formally opened the canal to-day. The public opening of the canal will take place on New Years' day with a procession of vessels.

News From Rio.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The Times despatches report an engagement between the government troops and the insurgents at Rio when the insurgents attempted a landing. A small number were killed on both sides.

Troops at Santa Luzia fired on Fort Villegaignon, and the fort replied, killing 20. A stray shot struck the naval training brig, three miles away.

On Tuesday another attempt to land was repulsed. The government has suspended two more news papers. The correspondent describes the escape of the warship Aquidaban and the transport Esperanza from the harbor. He says that both have gone to Destere to join the insurgent cruiser Republica and help her bring troops northward. "The Government fear," he continues, that Admiral Gonzales, now at Montevideo, will join the insurgents." On Friday morning a steamer reported passing the Aquidaban and Esperanza, thirty miles southward. They signalled, "all well." The officers of the foreign squadrons consider that the tactics of the Aquidaban were excellent and the execution splendid. The passing of the forts by the ships has created a strong feeling ashore in favor of the insurgents. Admiral Gama has assumed command of the insurgent fleet here. I have seen a draft copy of a manifesto saying that the victory of the insurgents is certain and calling upon the Brazilian nation to remedy by force of arms the mistake made in a moment of temporary madness in November, 1889. General Pego, a strong monarchist, commanding troops in the south of Sao Paulo, is reported to sympathize with the insurgents. The Government is unable to find crews for its new ships. The state of siege here has been prolonged until Christmas."

Proceedings in the Reichstag.

BERLIN, Dec. 7.—The party leaders in the Reichstag have decided that the discussion of the new wine and tobacco taxes shall be postponed until after Christmas. The minor commercial treaties will be read for a second time on December 12th, and for the third time on December 15th. The Reichstag will adjourn on December 16th for the Christmas holidays and will reassemble on January 9th. The bill for the additional taxation of bourse transactions has been referred to a committee of twenty eight, who undoubtedly will adopt it as framed by the Government.

Wichert's new play, "In His Own Right," which the Emperor saw at a special private performance yesterday, was produced publicly for the first time at Barnay's theatre this evening. The Emperor was greatly pleased with both performances of the play, and has decorated Wichert with the Red Eagle.

Wants it Withdrawn.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—A despatch to the Times from Cape Town says: Major Goold-Adams reports that King Lobengula has written asking that the request for his surrender by Major Forbes be withdrawn in order that he may come and discuss the position of affairs. Major Goold-Adams, however, has received reports from native sources which lead him to mistrust the good intentions of Lobengula.

Four of 'em Made all the Trouble.

ROME, Dec. 7.—It transpired this evening that the four disaffected members of the Sanardilli cabinet are the minister of marine, minister of foreign affairs, minister of war and minister of the treasury. All four withdrew from the cabinet and immediately afterward the premier renounced the king's mandate to form a ministry.

An Important Post.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Lord Cromore, Her Majesty's representative in Cairo, is said to have been selected for the St. Petersburg embassy, left vacant by the death of Sir. Robert Morier. He will probably accept the appointment.

Introduced to Rosebery.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Mr. Bayard, the American minister this afternoon at the foreign office was introduced to Lord Rosebery by J. Roosevelt, the new first secretary of the American embassy.

The Cortes to be Dissolved.

LISBON, Dec. 7.—At a council of state held this afternoon, with the King presiding, it was decided to dissolve the Cortes. January 14 was chosen as the date of the elections.

Probably a Practical Joke.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—The police are using their best efforts to find the author of a mysterious circular, which has been distributed about the city. The circular is a formidable document in its tone, and calls for 10,000 men to meet on the lake front at daybreak, December 12th, fully armed. The chief of police, while believing the circular to be the work of a crank, will have a number of officers ready at daybreak on the 12th, to see what is going on.

A Considerable Reduction.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The estimates of the appropriations committee of funds needed for the support of the government during the next fiscal year aggregate $496,304,789, which is a net reduction of $9,554,545 from the estimates submitted for the present fiscal year. This does not include any estimate for sugar bounty. The statement places the receipts (estimated) for the next fiscal year at $454,427,748, so that there will be a deficiency in the govern ment revenues, if the full estimates are allowed, of $41,879,041.

Thurston Has No News.

WASHIMGTON, Dec. 7.—Minister Thurston, the representative in Washington of the provisional government of Hawaii, saw Secretary Gresham at the state department this morning. Mr. Thurston' answers to press representatives indicated that he had learned nothing new regarding the Hawaiian matter. He thinks the next news from Honolulu will come through the mail steamer due at Auckland to-day, which left Honolulu on November 25th.

A Prairie Tragedy.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 7.—A Lethbridge, Alberta, special to the Free Press says:—Last evening Tom Purcell, an old-time whiskey trader, came to town and surrendered himself to the police, stating that he had shot and killed Dave Akers of Fort Whoopup, his friend for forty years. Deceased was known and respected in the western country from Alberta to Arizona. This is the tragical ending of an old score between them regarding a cattle deal. Tom claims he did it in self defence, Akers having attacked him with a riding whip.

A Man Sincerely Mourned.

ST. JOHN's Nfld., Dec. 7.—Bishop Power was buried this morning. Solemn services were conducted at the Roman Catholic cathedral. Dr. Brennan, assistant bishop, and thirty priests were present. Governor O'Brien and Rev. Dr. Jones, the Anglican bishop, were present at the cathedral and were amongst the chief mourners. The procession was a mile long and the largest ever witnessed here, over three thousand persons being in line. All business was suspended.

Poppydink May Return to Journalism.

MONTREAL, Dec. 7.—A rumor is in circulation here that ex-Lieutenant-Governor Royal, of the Northwest Territories, will return to active journalism in Montreal, and also be found in active politics shortly. Mr. Royal was formerly connected with Le Nouveau Monde.

The C. P. R. traffic returns for the week ending November 30 were $563,000; for the same week last year, $601,000.

Will Be Extended.

OTTAWA, Dec. 7.—W. B. Dawson, son of Sir J. W. Dawson, has been appointed officer in charge of tidal observations. Hitherto the work has been confined to the Atlantic Coast, but it is proposed to extend it to the Pacific Coast.

Lieutenant-Governor Mackintosh was presented with a farewell address to-night by the citizens of Ottawa.

An Imposing Attendance.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Dec. 7.—The funeral of Lieutenant-Governor Boyd, was the largest procession of the kind ever seen in this city, including the various national societies, members of the Provincial Government and judges of the supreme and minor courts. It is estimated that twenty thousand people followed the remains to the cemetery.

An Appeal for Mercy.

OTTAWA, Dec. 7.—Counsel for Lucky, the condemned murderer, whose execution is fixed for Dec. 14th at Brockville, intends to come to Ottawa this week and make argument before the Minister of Justice, advancing reasons why the sentence should not be carried out. Mr. Lavall of Smith's Falls is Lucky's counsel.

Hon. Rudolph Laflamme Dead.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 7.—Hon. Rudolph Laflamme, minister of justice for the Dominion Government under the late Hon. Alex. Mackenzie died at his residence in this city this afternoon.

Grant the Only Candidate.

OTTAWA, Dec. 7.—At the nomination today Sir Jas. Grant was the only candidate nominated and was declared elected by acclamation.

A Bank Cashier in Trouble.

TACOMA, Wash., Dec. 7.—Thos. Beales, cashier of the Island County Bank at Coupeville surrendered to the authorities here today. He had heard that he was wanted on a charge of embezzlement and gave himself up to chief of police Dais. Sheriff Nunen, of Island county, arrived at 7 o'clock and will take the prisoner over for trial. Beales is said to have squandered $11,000 of the bank's money in the last three months. He bought up a lot of bank stock in his own name, using it is claimed, depositors' money for that purpose. The should be over $30,000 in the bank in money and securities but there is only $7,000 in cash and some worthless notes said to represent the amount due. The bank is a state institution, with a capital stock of $25,000, of which $15,000 is paid up. The deposits aggregate $57,000. Beales admits being on a spree for the past five weeks, but says he spent his own money and is not guilty of embezzlement. He says he only spent about $1,000 altogether, and claims to have relatives and sufficient property to make the loss good.

They Want Grover to Talk.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The resolution offered by Mr. Hoar (Republican, Mass.,) on Tuesday, requesting the President of the United States to furnish the Senate with copies of all instructions in relation to Hawaii, given to ministers or naval officers of the United States since March 4th, 1891, was taken up in the Senate to-day, discussed for four hours, and agreed to without a division. The debate was opened by Mr. Hoar and participated in by Senator Mills (Democrat, Texas,) Vilas (Democrat, Wis.) Hill (Democrat, New York,) Sherman, (Republican, Ohio,) Gray, (Democrat, Del.) and Call, (Democrat, Florida.) There was little or no opposition made to the adoption of the resolution, although Senators Vilas and Gray could see no urgency for it in view of the President's statement in his message that additional advices from Hawaii were expected in a few days and that he then would promptly supply all information to Congress.

A Fast Boat.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Dec. 7.—Under the most favorable conditions to-day, the new cruiser Marblehead developed an average speed of 18.94 knots over a 72-mile course on the sound; 36 against, and 36 with the tide; and will bring her builders a bonus of $175,000. The contract speed was 17 knots. This is without tidal computations, which are made by the official board on reports from the observing vessels, but it is not expected that such computations will vary much from the speed here given. The official report will not be made known until to-morrow.

Distress in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 7.—Distress among the unemployed is so great that every night 600 find lodgings on cold floors in the corridors of the city hall. These are only a few of the great number who have no place to sleep. Five hundred sleep in chairs in Palace Garden Mission, and from 1,000 to 1,500 find lodgings on stone floors in the cells in the police station. Last night it was announced that eight churches would be thrown open to furnish lodgings for those who have no other. The men will be given a cup of tea and rolls in the morning. This action is forced upon the church people by the fact that for the last month the unemployed and unsheltered thousands have been crowding around the engine rooms of buildings and other places where there was heat and shelter, begging for a place where they might be protected from the cold. Harry Munroe, superintendent of the Pacific Garden Mission, brought these facts to the attention of the churches with the result above stated.

Rushing it Ahead.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—The beautiful weather with which San Francisco has been blessed during the past week has been improved to the utmost advantage by builders at the exposition grounds in Golden Gate Park. Only a few more days and the roof and trusses of the manufactures and liberal arts building will be in place and the work of completing that building will be a matter of a very short time. The fine arts building is almost complete and the roof of the horticultural building will be in place by Sunday. The Colorado gold mining structure is practically finished. Heidelberg Castle is pressing forward rapidly and The Vienna Prater is growing apace. The erection of the electric tower will not be begun before Monday.

Hanged in Haste.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—A Herald special from Birmingham says: A young negro, named West, was hanged by a mob in Berlin, a small station not far from Salina, Alabama, last night. Reuben Smith, a young white clerk in the store of Jack Stubbs, in Berlin, was murdered in his bed in the rear of the store last night, and the place ransacked and robbed. As soon as the crime was discovered dogs were put on the track and West was caught. He was examined by the magistrate and ordered to prison. Evidence was strong against him, it is said. On his way to the prison a body of Smith's friends seized West and, taking him to a tree, hanged him and riddled the body with bullets.

A Reduction Made.

PORT TOWNSEND, Dec. 7.—Notice has been received here from San Francisco that the wages of coast seamen have been materially reduced by the Ship Owners' Association. The scale is as follows: Coal vessels, $25 per month; lumber vessels, $30 per month; and steamers and steam schooners, $40 per month and 30 cents per hour for overtime, or $40 per month and no overtime. Some vessels have secured crews for less wages. The bark Harvester brought up a crew for $20 per month and $15 a month while loading. The ship J. B. Thomas is coming up the coast, bound to Tacoma to load wheat for Cork, with a crew shipped for the voyage at $15 a month.

Correcting Errors.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The Democratic ways and means committee is in session today correcting errors in the tariff schedule. The corridors surrounding the committee rooms are filled with representatives of eastern manufacturing interests, particularly flax, drugs, silk, cotton thread and starch. A practically solid bill will be reported to the House on Wednesday next. The general debate begins on the following Monday. There is also a tacit agreement in the House that the new tariff will become operative on July 1st.

For Opium Smuggling.

PORTLAND, Dec. 7.—The United States grand jury returned true bills against William Dunbar, N. Blum, E. P. Thompson and three Chinamen, Ching Chong Quie, Said Bach and Chuck Kee for alleged opium smuggling. These indictments are in addition to the former one and also in addition to those returned yesterday which were brought for illegal landing of Chinese. The cases against those indicted for the latter offense will be called to morrow.

The Lehigh Valley Strike.

ESTON, Pa., Dec. 7.—There is some feeling among the Lehigh Valley strikers this morning. They realize that they cannot all go back at once. A passenger train ran into a freight last night in Glendon yards, wrecking three cars. The engine of the passenger train was damaged and the engineer badly injured. Superintendent Donnelly said today the loss occasioned was exaggerated and will not exceed $6,000. Several crews were sent for this morning.

A Big Report.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—It is said that when the President sends in all the correspondence in the Hawaiian relations, extending as it does over a period of a dozen years, it will be the bulkiest document ever submitted to Congress. It will include the reports, correspondence and affidavits incidental to Blount's special report, which it is said will cover 522 pages alone.

The New Tariff.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The Democratic finance committee of the Senate held a conference to-day in reference to the tariff and after fifteen minutes' conference it was decided that a comparative statement be prepared showing the difference between the present law and the new tariff. It is believed not without the range of possibilities that the entire principle of free raw material may be abandoned or modified materially.

The Rumor Correct.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Mrs. Charles Coughlan said to-day that the rumor that she intended to sue for divorce from her husband was correct. She denied that she had called upon Miss Beveridge or her mother at the Colonnade Hotel. She added that she merely went to the hotel to see Mr. Coughlan, who was suffering from peritonitis. She saw him and no one else.

Pendergast on Trial.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Judge Brente's court room was filled to-day, the second day of Pendergast's trial. Before recess was taken four jurors were sworn.

CURIOUS CULLINGS.

A billygoat broke into the city hall of Argentina, Kan., and ate up the municipal records.

The Feejee islanders believe that if a man dies unmarried his soul is doomed to wander about through the endless ages of eternity in an intermediate region between paradise and hades.

The power to wag the ear is common among the West Indian half breeds and the Maya and other derivatives of Mexico and Central America, and many whites have the power who hardly realize the fact.

Both Hindoo and Mussulman women wear glass bangles, and in the northwest provinces they are regarded as sacred objects. If a glass bangle be accidentally broken, its pieces must be gathered together and kissed three times.

A San Antonio (Tex.) merchant put out a sign: "What are we here for—to loaf? No, to sell! Come in, and if there's anything you want we'll sell it to you, even if it's the shirt on our back or our grandfather's clock. We mean business."

RAILWAY RUMBLES.

The first railroad, three miles long, was opened in 1826 at Quincy, Mass.

The Pennsylvania system now requires 68 pages in The Official Guide for its time tables.

A company has been formed to introduce the sliding railway system exhibited at Chicago into this country.

An era of economy has reached the Jersey Central, and as a result its paintshops at Elizabethport have been closed.

The Illinois Central improvements in Chicago necessitated the raising of 10 tracks for a distance of three miles an average of 10 feet above the ground level.

Engineer Hogan of the New York Central, who is one of the men who made a reputation by running the Empire State express in the fastest time on record, has been promoted to be traveling engineer of the western division of the road.

SCIENTIFIC SCRAPS.

One of the lost arts is the manufacture of malleable glass.

One of the most wonderful discoveries in science that has been made within the last year or two is the fact that a beam of light produces sound.

The carbon of the food, mixed with the oxygen of the air, furnishes fuel for the body, which evolves the heat in exactly the same way that a fire or candle does.

The learned Dr. McKatterell, in his article on the rapidity of thought, says that it requires one thirtieth of a second for the mind to distinguish between red and blue.

Jupiter's satellite is double—in other words, what has heretofore been taken for a single moon is indeed two moons—a large and a small one—the lesser slowly revolving around the greater.

PEN, CHISEL AND BRUSH.

Phidon of Argos, 748 B. C., is believed to have been the first sculptor to employ metals in statuary.

Apelles is said by Pliny to have invented the use of canvas in painting. He also employed oaken tablets.

The author of "Alice In Wonderland," Lewis Carroll, has two hobbies—children and amateur photography.

Jules Verne is 66 years old and has written 66 books. The novelist leads a quiet, retired life at Amiens and is a member of the municipal council of that city.

It is only a few years since George Meredith permitted himself to be photographed for the first time, and now he has allowed his friend, the artist Watts, to paint his portrait.

Perhaps the best work ever done by John Tenniel, the caricaturist whom the queen has knighted, was the fantastic illustration of "Alice In Wonderland." Mr. Tenniel is now 73 years old.

The painter Kanensky was once a favorite of the Czar Alexander II. He came to the United States some years ago, took up his residence in Kansas, married a girl of Swiss parentage and is now thoroughly Americanized.

Signorina Ada Negra, the new Italian poet, is only 21 years old and has supported herself and an invalid mother by arduous and ill paid teaching in the national schools. She has just been awarded a pension of 1,800 francs a year.

Answered.

His house in a cyclone floating house,
And then, at last, he knew.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1893.

Reports come from Detroit of a movement upon foot there for the relief of thousands of miners and their families who are in danger of starvation, being thrown out of work by the closing of the mines. Their position is no more dangerous or critical than that of many farmers in the Western States. In eastern Oregon and eastern Washington the farmers recently circulated a petition to the wholesale merchants and bankers of the Pacific coast asking them to refrain from pushing collections against the retail merchants. In the petition it is alleged that they, the farmers, could not sell at ruling prices for wheat without absolute ruin. The unfavorable conditions which affect the agricultural classes in some parts of Canada, notably the Northwest, where wheat is the staple product, are not local or confined to our borders.—Ottawa Citizen.

British Columbia, and this city and district in particular, seem to be particularly favored. From all parts of the United States reports similar to the above are of almost daily occurrence. While the World's Fair was on California sent an appeal to its commissioners from over thirty thousand unemployed, asking that a special benefit day be set aside for them. While tales of suffering and want such as this are being sent out from across the border our people, though perhaps a little pressed at times are always able to secure a comfortable living.

The requisition circulated during the past few days asking Ald. Ed. Quennell to allow his name to be placed in nomination for the mayoralty is being received with general favor. The probabilities now are that the genial alderman will not have any opposition for the position. From his long experience in municipal matters he is eminently qualified to fill the position. It will now remain for the ratepayers to select a good board of aldermen to look after the affairs of the city for the ensuing year.

As yet no attention seems to have been given to the election of school trustees for 1894. At the end of the present term there will be four vacancies on the board and as the position of school trustee is perhaps the most important office in the gift of the electors, it behooves parents to see that suitable men are brought out and elected.

A Dishonest Customs Inspector.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Thomas F. Donohoe, a customs inspector, has been suspended by Collector Kilbreth pending the arrival of the necessary documents from Washington which will lose the inspector his place. Donohoe's dismissal is the result of an investigation completed by the collector yesterday, in which it was found that he had extorted money from Miss Annie R. Monckton, who came here some weeks ago from England. Donohue was on duty at the Cunard Line Dock when she landed, and demanded $100 from her before he would pass her luggage. She protested strenuously, insisting that there was nothing upon which a duty should be paid in her trunks. The inspector told her that trouble would be caused her if she did not pay over the amount, so she gave him all she had in U. S. money, $87. Miss Monckton was compelled to leave immediately for Tacoma, Washington, but her brother, who came over on a later steamer, was located by the collector and her address learned, and she sent an affidavit to him, which arrived yesterday, containg the allegations as stated above. Donohoe, it is stated, returned her the money, and she left, with a little extra for the trouble incurred. Collector Kilbreth says that Donohoe would be prosecuted if the young lady was here to appear against him.

Trouble Over Phonographs.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 7.—The trouble at present existing between the Edison United Phonograph Co., the Edison Phonograph Works and the North American Phonograph Co., was fully aired in the Chancery Chambers this morning. The Edison United Phonograph Company is the owner of the sole right to sell phonographs in foreign countries, and claims that the other companies are shipping and selling phonographs in Europe and Australia. The Edison United Phonograph Company found that phonographs were being sent to Europe and sold there by the other companies, and a temporary injunction was secured against them. The same day that this injunction was secured it was learned that fifty phonographs were on board of a steamer in New York, ready to be shipped to Europe. Counsel went to Thomas Edison and asked that he order the phonographs to be kept in this country, but Mr. Edison said that he did not know of any phonographs to be sent out of the country, and he refused to interfere. The vice-chancellor granted the plaintiffs an order giving them the privilege of taking testimony in the case.

Justifiable Homicide.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—Justifiable homicide was the verdict returned to-day by the coroner's jury in the case of Fred D. Cheslar, a saloon keeper, who was shot and killed on Sunday by Charles Carlson, in his saloon. Mrs. Cheslar's mother testified that Cheslar had threatened to kill Carlson because he believed he had been intimate with his wife. Cheslar went to Carlson's saloon and tried to break in, pistol in hand, but was shot before he could use the weapon. Carlson used to be a seaman and once worked for the dead man.

A Highbinder Murder.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—Fong Sing Suey, a well known Chinese doctor was found dead in his room to-day having been frightfully stabbed, it is supposed by highbinders, who robbed the place of everything of value. The dead man, who was 45 years of age, was reported to be well off, and leaves a wife and child in China. No clue to the assassins.

The New Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The new tariff bill, from present appearances, will be reported to the House on the 16th instant. The object of the Democrats is to press the consideration of the measure as rapidly as possible. The general debate will begin on December 18th. This will give five days for consideration before the holiday recess.

Grover Will Give Details.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—From the fact that department clerks have been set to work making copies of all Hawaiian documents not already in type, it is inferred that the President has given instructions to comply with the Hoar resolution adopted by the Senate yesterday. Indeed, an authoritative statement to that effect is made.

Good for the Drug Stores.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Every physician in the city of any considerable practice has at least a score of patients sufiering from la grippe. It has unquestionably become an epidemic. The consequence is not so many serious cases, but an immense sale of drugs, anti-pyrine, anti-febrine, quinine, hot Scotch and other remedies. Mustard baths and hot baths are also very much in vogue.

Applied for Work.

JERSEY CITY, Dec. 7.—The striking employees of the Lehigh Valley railroad applied for work this morning. About one-quarter of the men were given places. The names and addresses of the others were taken. Activity in freight goods is resumed and passenger trains are running on schedule.

THE CRONIN MURDER.

Daniel Coughlin on Trial for Complicity. Scanlan's Dramatic Address.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—The trial of Daniel Coughlin, for complicity in the murder of Dr. Cronin is going forward rapidly. Much progress was recorded to-day. Kickham Scanlan finished his opening address for the state, and Daniel Donohue occupied the afternoon in setting forth the defence. He concluded late this afternoon, and Judge Wing, also for the defence, will begin his argument at the opening of court in the morning.

Mrs. Coughlin, wife of "Big Dan," clad in black and wearing a thin veil, was in court this morning when her husband's case began. On either side of her sat a number of ladies, all anxious to get a look at the pair. Mr. Coughlin, however, had his back to the crowd and was intent upon the words and actions of the lawyers. At the beginning of Attorney Scanlan's address, he referred to J. B. Simons, the man who bought the furniture from the Carlson cottage, when he was interrupted by Judge Wing, who objected to the use of the man's name. After much discussion and reference to parallel cases, Judge Tuthill ruled against the state. Continuing, Mr. Scanlan told of the mysterious, dishonest, and dark manner in which defendant and his brother conspirators conducted themselves just prior to the murder of the doctor. He told of Martin Burke renting the cottage from old man Carlson; of how Burke never occupied the cottage, but always promptly paid his rent.

The attorney then impressively carried the jury with him over the whole story of the great conspiracy. He spoke of iceman O'Sullivan's talk with old man Carlson and how at first the iceman denied any knowledge of the tenants of the cottage but afterwards acknowledged that he knew of them and that "he was allright." Mr. Scanlan then told of Dan Coughlin's frequent telephoning, from the east Chicago avenue station to O'Sullivan in Lake View and of his frequent visits. "Now we come to Daniel Coughlin's actual appearance, and work in direct connection with the murder," said the attorney. "On the night of May 4th, 1889, a man appeared at Pat Dinan's livery stable and asked for a horse and buggy. He at first objected to a white horse, and also wanted a carriage with side blinds. Both requests were refused by the livery stable proprietor, and finally the man, whose hat was pulled down over his eyes, took the rig and drove north, though he stated that he desired to go to his aunt's house on South Halstead street. The man who rented the rig was sent there by Dan Coughlin, for he himself says so. He told the chief of police that he did. Shortly after the rig was rented Dr. Cronin received an urgent call to go to P. O'Sullivan's ice house to attend a man who had been run over by an ice wagon. The defence may attempt to prove that the murder did not take place in the Carlson cottage, but I point you to the direction in which the doctor was driven, and the testimony of old Mrs. Horton, who saw the white horse and buggy driven to the door of the cottage and a man carrying a box-like case, such as physicians have, step out and into the cottage. The description of this man tallies exactly with that of Dr. Cronin. Then she heard the noise of the overturned furniture, the fall of something, and cries of 'Oh, my God! Oh, Jesus!' The cowardly brutes had done their work."

Coughlin here moved uneasily in his chair. He picked up a paper and tried to read it, but put it down. Mr. Scanlan grew dramatic and forceful and proceeded, his every word being taken in by the accused. "Half an hour later, gentleman of the jury, another buggy was driven up to the cottage. William Meorts will say that the man who drove this second buggy was Daniel Coughlin. Daniel Coughlin had a key and opened the door and went in, and the preparations were made to hide the body. The butchered remains of Doctor Cronin were then placed in a trunk, placed in the buggy that Coughlin drove, and late at night the bloody handed gang of assassins set out to conceal the victim of their infamous crime. With impassioned utterance, the prosecutor traced the wanderings of the murderers. "Hours after the killing they were seen away out on the north shore drive. They were seen in other parts of the city, but were frightened off by the officers, but finally, toward morning, they reached a lonely spot in Lake View, and there, in a catch basin in one of the sewers, the body was thrust. Hard by a big trunk was found saturated with blood, and then that same Sunday afternoon Cronin's disappearance was reported to the police. But that morning Mr. Conklin, in whose house Dr. Cronin lived, went out to O'Sullivan's to see what kept the doctor from home. He spoke about the accident to the ice man's employee, but no accident had taken place. Then the police went upon the track of the assassin. Coughlin was detailed to the work. The public mind became excited. A most damnable crime had been committed. The white horse incident was reported to the police and Dinan, the liveryman, learning of it, visited the Chicago avenue station to tell what he knew of it. He met Coughlin. 'You look agitated,' observed Coughlin. 'Don't you think I ought to be?' inquired Dinan; 'that white horse and buggy was driven by a man you got the rig for. I am going to tell all about it.' 'What was Coughlin's reply?" asked Mr. Scanlan. "He told Dinan to keep his mouth shut, saying that he and Dr. Cronin had been enemies for four years." Mr. Scanlan told of the finding of the body eighteen days later and touched again on the murder in the cottage, saying he understood the defence was going to question the assertion that Doctor Cronin was killed there. In conclusion, he said: "Is Martin Burke dead? Is P. O'Sullivan dead? and where is Dan Coughlin to-day? He sits here in this court room, scarcely whipped by justice, while his tools, who died in prison, are in their graves. Gentlemen, this in brief is a partial statement of what the state expects to prove at this trial. The jury's privilege is almost akin to that of the divinity. They may send Daniel Coughlin to the gallows or turn him free to walk the streets like any other man."

At the conclusion of Mr. Scanlan's address, a recess was taken until 2 o'clock, when Daniel Donohue began his argument for the defence. In the course of his address he said: "This case has once been tried. What a farce, what a mockery in the name of justice and law was that trial. What gigantic and malicious efforts were made to strangle five innocent citizens to death. When we look back on that trial all the indignation of our souls and all the sadness of our hearts sit in council together."

Mr. Bottome objected to any reference by counsel to the other trial and the court ruled that during this trial the previous hearing should not be in any way considered either in speech or otherwise.

Counsel then resumed: "What is the charge inth is case? Plainly it is that Daniel Coughlin, John F. Beggs, John Kunze, Martin Burke, P. O'Sullivan and others conspired to kill and murder Dr. Cronin. Mr. Scanlan, in his opening speech, mentioned Kunze's name once. John F. Begg's name was not uttered once. Beggs was acquitted on the former trial. Where did the conspiracy begin? I do not know, and I cannot tell from the proof. Was Cronin killed in Cook county? I do not know, and I cannot tell from the proof. Was Cronin killed in the Carlson cottage? I do not know, and I cannot tell from the proof. Such is my state of mind, and such will be the state of your minds when you shall have heard all the evidence, and such being the fact, it will be your duty on your oaths and your privileges as men to restore Daniel Coughlin to the blessed air of liberty and to the happiness that beams from the faces of his wife and children."

Mr. Donohue reviewed the case, giving the meaning of reasonable doubt and all the other points which arise in most murder cases. Mr. Donohue severely criticised the speech of Mr. Scanlan, which he characterized as "a bundle of opinions," and whom he frequently referred to as "a man of suspicion." Mr. Donohue concluded his speech just before court adjourned for the day. Judge Wing will speak for the defence tomorrow morning.

An Interesting Paper.

At the meeting of the Y.M.C.A. debating club last night, Mr. H. Aitken presiding, a paper was read on letter press printing by Mr. A. C. Campbell, of THE TELEGRAM. Mr. Campbell made the subject of his essay very interesting, giving graphic descriptions of the different styles of letter used from the earliest times of the art preservative up to the most recent and improved types, finishing with a description of the Mergenthaler linotype typesetting machine and its uses. Messrs. Anderson, E. W. Freure, Dodd, Schisler, Stewart and Thos. Keith, M.P.P., spoke on the merits of the paper. The debating club will ask Mr. Campbell, who was given a hearty vote of thanks, to allow his paper to go to the press, and will also ask Mr. Bell, of THE TELEGRAM, for a sequel paper on printing presses, as suggested by Mr. Campbell. The subjects of the next four meetings will be: "Is Christianity practicable?" "A Chinese view of the Christian religion," by Mr. Schisler; "Resolved that our legislators should be paid;" and a paper on "Currency," by Mr. J. Dodd. Every member is expected to take part in the debate at each meeting at which he is present.

PROVINCIAL NEWS.

Hydraulic mines of the Lillooet district are finishing up their work for the season, in many instances with splendid results.

Kate McCarthy, mistress of a fast house in New Westminster, widely known as the Courthouse, it is said, has fallen heiress to $100,000 by the death of an aunt in England.

The passengers from the West coast by the steamer Maude, Wednesday, report having seen smoke issuing from the volcano a short distance from Dungeness. Work on the Golden Eagle claim at Alberni is advancing rapidly.

It is said that Ald. Marshall Sinclair's candidature for the New Westminster mayoralty marks an initial forward movement of the Prohibition party in this Province. His platform is stated to be that of an avowed prohibitionist.

Says the Westminster Columbian: "La grippe has laid a heavy hand on this office. Of the writing staff, the city editor alone has not been placed hors de combat, while in the composing room even the 'devil' went down before its fierce attack."

A new government wharf is being built at Burgoyne Bay, a new church at Fulford Harbor, and several new dwelling houses at Ganges Harbor, Salt Spring Island. There will be 30,000 feet of lumber used in the construction of the church alone.

Rumor has it that the Maclaren-Ross mills, above Westminster, on the Fraser, have changed hands within a few weeks. A syndicate of English and American capitalists is said to be negotiating for the purchase of the mills and a large section of the company's timber limits.

Okanagan commonage on the Mainland has been declared open for pre-emption, by the commissioner of crown lands. There was no Cherokee strip rush. On the contrary, prospectors did not seem to want the land that has been not inappropriately called the garden of British Columbia.

It is reported by American press agencies that an enterprising business man has established a floating bank on Kootenay lake. It is in a steamer which journeys from place to place along the lake, thus enabling its owner to supply the inhabitants of the lake villages with banking facilities.

LOCAL NEWS.

The Bounding Sphere.

The following teams will represent the Hornets and Victoria at the Rugby football match to-morrow on the Swamp: Hornets—John Kelly, full back; Adam Thompson, C. Bambford, Webster and John Dixon, three-quarter backs; Joseph Neen and H. Hilton, half backs; M. Duffie, C. Chestnut, W. Edmunds, G. Lister, W. Woodburn, R. Thompson, C. H. Barker and J. Wilson, forwards; reserves, E. B. Drummond and W. Miller. Victoria—Pettigrew, back; J. F. Foulkes, H. B. Haines and A. D. Crease, three-quarter backs; F. Smith and C. W. Ward, half backs; H. F. M. Jones, (captain) Lindley Crease, W. H. Langley, I. Fraser, E. A. C. Gibson, F. Wollaston, Q. H. Warden, D. Sullivan and Scott, forwards.

The ball will be kicked off at 2:30 p.m. sharp. Some of the players have been thoroughly fixing up the Swamp in preparation for the match. There is some talk of shifting the goal posts to a different position so as to only use the driest portions of the field for playing on.

The Hornets have won every match this season, having beaten both the Westminster and Vancouver teams. They are confident of their success to-morrow, and if beaten will make their opponents work hard for their victory.

It is not yet decided where the Mainland-Island match will be played. It is thought that Nanaimo should have the preference this year, and a strong desire is expressed to have it take place here on or about New Year.

A Valuable Publication.

The Cyclopedic Review of Current History, published quarterly by Garretson, Cox & Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., is just to hand. It is a comprehensive and careful review of historical and political events in every quarter of the world during the three months immediately preceding its publication. Besides reviewing historical and political questions, it also presents in a concise form a biographical resume of public men who have brought themselves recently into prominence, and of the latest developments in art, science and literature. Its pages are well illustrated with portraits of public characters The affairs of the British Empire and of Canada particularly occupy a not inconsiderable space. The magazine is a most valuable aid to those who wish to keep abreast of the times, and to gain a correct understanding of the affairs of foreign nations in relation to our own.

Barlow Bros.' Minstrels.

The Opera House last evening was well filled with an audience which, from the prelude to the last novelty of the Kennard Bros., was interested and amused. No minstrel company has visited this city which, in the carrying out of its programme, deserved better of the public. Some of the performers would draw a house on their own merits, notably Scofield in his olio of novelties, and the great Scott in his marvellous act of "the frog's pastime." Jim and Billy Barlow are too well known to call for more than passing mention, they are the inimitable. The make-up of the troup represented minstreley, acrobatic performances and sleight of hand which had never been put before a Nanaimo audience before.

Nanaimo Seamen Are All Right.

Mr. Jones, secretary of the Coast Seamen's Union, was interviewed last night in reference to a reduction of wages made by the Ship Owners' Association, details of which from Port Townsend appear among the TELEGRAM'S telegraphic news.

Mr. Jones said that the lower scale mentioned in the despatch was old news, and that, though seamen's wages would probably remain low in San Francisco till the whalers left in the spring, yet he had not the slightest doubt that the old standard would be resumed in the spring on the coast. The bark Harvester is sailing as a deep-water ship, which accounts for the crew being paid only $20 a month, and the crew of the ship J. B. Thomas, it is expected, will leave at Tacoma. No men are being shipped from either Nanaimo or San Pedro at less than $35 a month by the union, and this will probably be raised to $40 in the spring.

The Poultry Exhibition.

The following officers have been appointed for the poultry show by the executive committee:—Judge, Theo. Hewes, Trenton, Missouri, U.S.; secretary, F. W. Teague; superintendent, P. P. Wallis; assistant superintendent, E. Hodgson; doorkeepers, A. Lindsay and A. Hart; judge's clerk, T. Horne.

Entries close on Tuesday night, and many may have to be declined on account of want of space. Additions to the special prize list have been made by the Union Brewing Company, Geo. Williams, Esq., of the Bank of British Columbia, and the Free Press. A complimentary allusion to the enterprise of the Nanaimo Poultry Breeders' Society is made by the Fanciers' Review, of San Jose, Cal.

As will be seen from the advertising columns, I have decided to devote the whole of my attention, in future, to the undertaking business, and to sell out the whole of my large and varied stock of furniture, &c. There was nothing imaginable to be coupled with these eyes but a brave honesty, tempered with the commanding qualities of intellect. He could not find any trace of the coquette in those eyes—they might belong to a gamester.

"Ah," thought he, "presently we shall see these yellow eyes gleaming upon green cloth."

He passed in review the red hair—unmistakably, indisputably red, but lovely hair—a wavy mass of it thrown boldly off the forehead, broad and low, and lightly confined by a golden fillet; the long, finely-chiselled nose, gently satirical; the large mouth, with its firm yet flexible lips, disclosing with every word a row of beautiful teeth; the ruddy complexion, genuine as the glow on a camellia. It was provoking that he could not detect a single sinister indication to accord with his conviction that, to use a homely phrase, "she was no better than she should be." And then, as she discoursed, to the rippling accompaniment, of melodies that flowed from beneath her hands, nervous and well shaped—a model for a sculptor—of an infinite variety of subjects, hovering like a bee, from flower to flower, and extracting sweets from all, he began to charge himself with lack of generosity, with unmanliness, in seeking with such cruel persistence for a rift in the lute that sounded so purely, for poison in the draught that appeared so fragrant and joy-giving.

She had almost converted him from his antagonism, almost won him to believe in her defiance of himself, when he happened to cast his eyes towards her other guests in the corner of the room.

Ralph Kestrel, sitting astride a chair, with his elbows on the back, was smoking a cigarette. His face was turned towards Chester, who saw upon the young man's handsome, dissolute features an expression of almost satanic cunning. Over Kestrel's shoulder, like the arch-enemy himself, lowered the villainous countenance of Dennis Donovan, with a look of such ferocity and determination that Chester shuddered.

At once his suspicions of Muriel O'Connor surged back.

What were the words of La Bruyere?

"If men wished to be held in esteem, they must associate with those who are estimable."

If Muriel O'Connor and Laura Kingdon were honourable women, why did he encounter such men as these under the same roof? They could not touch pitch without being defiled, and that these men were pitch was beyond a doubt.

Then he thought of the spectacle of Laura eagerly grasping at the bundle of letters—love-letters—her love-letters, of course; and the impulsive thanksgiving of the kiss she had bestowed upon Ralph Kestrel's hand. There had been a piteousness in that scene, as he understood it.

Could it be that these girls were in the power of two knaves—innocently in their power—and needed a deliverer? All the chivalry of Cecil Chester's manhood rose in arms at this idea. The repressive training to which he had been subjected had but held in abeyance the romantic impulses of his youth. His imagination kindled at the thought of beauty in distress, as it might have done fifteen years before. The house became an enchanted castle, Dennis Donovan an ogre, Ralph Kestrel a magician, and himself the champion knight whose spurs were to be won in a valorous contention with supernatural powers.

Muriel assisted his reverie with one of Balfe's entrancing strains, and presently, glancing up and perceiving that he was in cloudland, she commenced to sing the words of the melody in a rich low voice that vibrated with unsuspected passion.

She sang and he listened. The song swelled into fuller, freer tones, like the heavenward flight of a swift bird, drawing at last to its close as such a bird circles gently downward to its nest in the waving corn.

The spell was broken by Kestrel.

"Brava, dear girl, brava!" he exclaimed, approaching the piano. "Never heard you sing that better."

And Donovan followed with:

"There's just one song you sing better, darlint, and sure we'll have it now for the sake of good luck. Miss Muriel, just give us, plaze, 'The Wearing of the Green.'"

Chester looked at Muriel keenly, expecting to see some confirmation of his latest view concerning her. She would show loathing and fear of the evil-looking Donovan, of course; she would shudder at the approach of this cigarette-smoking, blear-eyed puppet; she would sing the patriotic song as bidden.

But his calculations were all upset.

Muriel O'Connor rose from the piano, and in tones as dulcet as those she had recently blended with the music—with a face bright and smiling as the moon that rose over the trees—no sign of repulsion, no semblance of fear, laughingly declined to sing "The Wearing of the Green."

At this juncture Lord Willmore entered by the window alone, very pale, his manner cold and constrained. He crossed the drawing-room at once to where Muriel O'Connor stood, and courteously but firmly took his leave, and passed out into the hall without taking any notice of the others.

Chester saw that something had happened to greatly change his friend's feelings towards that house, and shrewdly connected it with Laura Kingdon. He hastily excused himself to Muriel, who, greatly to his discomfiture, showed no disposition to detain him, and followed Willmore into the hall.

The friends did not speak until they were in a hansom-cab, speeding towards clubland; then Chester inquired gently:

"What's up, old fellow?"

And the other replied:

"Don't ask me, Cecil. You were perfectly right. We'll never enter that house again!"

It is always satisfactory to be told that your foresight has been accurate, your judgment correct; but now Cecil Chester was not quite content with that satisfaction. He said nothing, but—inconsistent man that he was—he made up his mind to return to the house at the corner before many days.

CHAPTER VII.

TROUBLED WATERS.

Dennis Donovan, with an obsequiousness that was coldly received, had insisted upon accompanying Chester and Willmore to the outer gate, and walking with them some hundred yards to a cab-rank. Thus left alone with Kestrel, Muriel turned upon him like a tigress:

"What is there between you and Laura Kingdon?"

Kestrel had availed himself of the temporary distraction caused by the leave-taking to attack a decanter of brandy, and the suddenness of this question made his surreptitious gulp go the wrong way, causing him a violent choking fit.

Muriel took him by the shoulder in a strong grasp, and shook him back into possession of his powers of speech, and at the same time considerably clarified his reasoning powers.

"'Tween me and Laura Kingdon?" he hiccoughed. "Don't know what you mean."

"I saw you give her some letters. What has passed between you?"

Kestrel was not in a condition to reason clearly, but his drunkenness induced a capacity for excessive cunning. He flattered himself that nobody could get the better of him when he was drunk. The less said about Dorothy Dundas the better, he now told himself. Muriel had such a way of cross-questioning a fellow. Better put it upon Laura, since Muriel was inclined to misconstrue what she had seen.

It was a good joke to compromise the Diana-like Laura, and make mischief between her and her friend. It would serve her out for meddling between him and her sister.

"My precious girl," said he, endeavouring to take Muriel's hand, "don't be cross. Silly little fool! tried to make love to me—wrote silly letters—made an ass of herself. I threatened to tell you; said I was going to give letters to you. Devil of a stew! Cried her eyes out. Begged me not to ruin her. Give her back letters—bundle o' nonsense. I couldn't stand tears, so gave 'em back. There you have it."

"Swear to me you do not love her—that you never have loved her!"

Muriel's eyes blazed, and the harsh ring of her voice told of a raging jealousy.

So seldom had Kestrel an opportunity of swearing to the truth that he responded with such alacrity and in such solemn terms as carried conviction. Muriel's distrust of him was appeased, but her anger against Laura Kingdon burst through all restraint:

"How dare she! how dare she! how dare she!" she exclaimed, crossing the room as if she would go and seek the traitress in the garden; "she has fed at my table, slept under my roof, gone with me everywhere, been in all things as my second self, and—she knows that I love you!"

Ralph Kestrel caught her by the arm as she was rushing out, and, drawing her to his embrace, stemmed the tide of her passion. Not out of any consideration for Laura—they might come to blows, for all he cared, and he could have stood by and laughed at the humiliation of both—but because he wanted to utilise the precious moments at his disposal before the return of Dennis Donovan.

"My own dearest Muriel," he cried, "I know it too. No one knows it so well as I do. And I'm true to you, Muriel; true as the stars above us. Come away from that window, dear. Minx not worth making a fuss about—not now, at any rate. Come along over here, and sit down. I've something to say to you."

How amazing and how pitiful is the infatuation of a noble-minded woman for a worthless man!

The gracious Muriel O'Connor seemed under a spell at the touch of the maudlin rake. Her anger melted away like a tropical storm, and soft tears filled her eyes as they gazed with tenderness upon the flushed face of her worthless lover.

Had Cecil Chester seen her at that moment he would assuredly have blotted her image from his heart for ever. His refined sensibility could not have endured a spectacle which would have seemed to him to indicate utter debasement.

But in truth there is no shame where there is no vile or guilty thought; and a love that exalts its object into worthiness is an enchantment, not degradation. Let us not blame Muriel O'Connor that her warm heart kindled under the magic of sympathy, and that her imagination created from such poor material an idol fit to be adored. He had not always appeared before her in the lamentable aspect of a drunken man. At his best he was but a contemptible, soulless fellow, and no generous act or noble thought ever sprang from him; few women could admire his character, or, knowing, could respect him; but many, refusing their minds' testimony, yielded to that weird influence which makes one human creature the slave of another.

Ralph Kestrel, soft and subtle, gay of manner, elegant of bearing, handsome, and witty, had a fascination which all women admitted and most found it difficult to withstand. Brought to the house at the corner originally by Donovan (who had introduced him for purposes of his own), he had straightway marked Muriel as a prey for his avarice. An underling in a Government office, he found his salary quite insufficient for his support as a man of fashion, and was seek-

Made a Difference.

Manager of Railroad—And you want $10,000 damages for the breaking of a man's leg? Your figures are pretty steep, aren't they? Why, we had a man last week who asked only $5,000 for a broken leg.

IT WILL LAST TILL THE NEW YEAR DAWNS

We refer to our 20 per cent. reduction sale, which is the town talk just at present. Everything we promised in the way of reductionsit has been proven we have done. Misrepresentation may draw trade to-day, but it hurts the trade of the future. The most careful and judicious buyers in the district have informed us that when they require a first-class article, at a low price, their experience has been that it saves a great deal of time and worry by coming direct to us. We make a specialty of Fine Goods, and have imported material into Nanaimo which it was heretofore impossible to procure outside of the large Cities. This means a bigger outlay, and necessitates our carrying a stock of between $35,000 and $40,000, but we have to do it to get the assortment.

We have received another shipment of goods from Scotland to-day This lot of cases contains Flannels, Black and Navy Serges, Meltons, and a large variety of Black Figured Dress Goods. We have also received a half dozen of White Blankets, as a trial order. These goods are really something choice, and as there is only a few pair we expect them to sell very quickly.

While you are figuring what you will have for your father, mother, sister, brother, or someone else's brother, for Christmas, we would suggest your calling and taking a look through our Immense Stock, when you will readily find something to suit you.

STREET GOSSIP.

Little Items of Interest to Every Reader of the Telegram.

Mud, and lots of it, is the leading feature of Nanaimo business streets at the present time.

There was no police court yesterday morning, not even a solitary d. and d. having been gathered in.

W. T. Heddle & Co. are adding a warehouse to their store at the corner of Albert and Wilson streets.

Football enthusiasts are looking forward to the match on Saturday between the Hornets and the Victoria team.

Cattle guards are being built on the Esquimalt & Nanaimo railroad, about a mile and a half from the depot.

The advent of the Barlow Bros. Minstrels in their street parade yesterday caused a mild sensation on the business streets.

The fog yesterday was thick enough in the harbor to cause incoming vessels to go slow and keep a brighter lookout than usual.

The lime light exhibition given by the Salvation Army in the M. E. colored church on Wednesday evening, was a conspicuous success

The brethren of Ashlar and Doric lodges, A. F. & A. M., will escort the body of the late Dr. W. J. Young to the railway station this morning.

Even should local skaters make preparation for a rink, it is possible that they may wait a little time for ice, according to local weather prophets.

Lagrippe is fully en evidence in the city, and unless the weather changes, there is every prospect of a general epidemic. No very severe cases have so far been reported.

The roof of the new Salvation Army barracks is nearly completed. Local Salvationists are jubilant over the prospect of soon having an independent meeting place of their own. It is a notable fact that the Army does its best and most effective work among the mining population.

The ladies' committee formed to assist the fire department has ordered from the Buckeye Foundry, Cincinnati, a thousand-pound alarm bell for the new fire hall. The bell will be placed on the tower and a belfry built over it. The firemen are cleaning up and preparing the hall for the ball and supper which will mark its opening.

At an unfrequented street corner yesterday a party of precocious youngsters, who should have been at school, were noticed filling the air with cigarette smoke, in spite of the law prohibiting the sale of tobacco to those of tender years. It would be interesting to know where they procured the weed, as local tobacconists are presumably cognizant of the law and its provisions.

The Wilson House is one of the best appointed hotels in the province. The dining room is again under the management of the proprietor, Mr. Walter Wilson.

Building Sale.

An extensive sale is being held in order to make room for extensive alterations in the store at the Stanley House and to clear out all the winter stock previous to Mr. Stvenson's departure to the eastern markets where he intends purchasing a new stock of goods for the spring. As a special inducement to the public the prices are particularly low, there being $20,000 worth of assorted Staple and Fancy Dry Goods which have been just cleared from Glasgow, but were too late for the fall trade. These goods will be sold at their exact cost bought direct from the manufacturers.

For first class board and attendance try the Wilson House.

Vice-Pres. Seabrook of R. P. Rithet & Co.'s house, says that the purchase by that firm of the steam tug Mogul has not been completed as stated, and it is doubtful if it will be. "We are not anxious to purchase steamboats," he said, "but of course if, we are offered a good thing we will not refuse it."

Capt. Jameson, of the schooner Spokane, has reported at Port Gamble that on Friday last when off Cape Flattery coming in, he passed a large hulk floating bottom up. He could not make out any name, and could not tell whether she was coppered or painted, there were so many barnacles on her. The bearings were: Cape Flattery, fifteen miles west, and Cape Beale, north, three-quarters west.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—Arrived, steamer Columbia, Portland; Al-ki, Departure Bay; ship Sparta, Seattle.

It is reported in Port Townsend that the Pacific Coast Steamship Company will largely increase its service between San Francisco, Puget Sound and British Columbia. The steamer Queen is to run as an additional ship to accommodate the extra passenger traffic expected as the result of the Midwinter Fair. The round trip fare to San Francisco is expected to be $25, including meals and berth. The Canadian Pacific railroad has guaranteed to keep one steamer busy carrying its Eastern passengers to California points.

It is given out that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has placed an order with Denny & Bros., of Dumbartonshire, Scotland, for a steamer to be placed on the run between Vancouver and Victoria. She is to be a side wheeler, and to have a capacity of 18 knots an hour.

The Moran Brothers, wreckers of Seattle, have abandoned the attempt to raise the wrecked collier San Pedro, which lies on Brotchie Ledge, on account of bad weather. They may make another attempt in the spring. The San Pedro has been on the ledge for over two years now. She cost $450,000, is worth $200,000 now delivered in dry dock, and $200,000 has been spent in trying to get her there.

Steamer Chaco will be offered at public auction on Saturday afternoon.

The Windsor House cuisine is excellent, and so are its other appointments.

The New Dry Goods Store just opened in the Johnston Block by
W. H. S. PERKINS

W. H. PERKINS (late of Spencer & Perkins) has much pleasure in announcing that he has purchased the stock and good will of the old and well established business so well and favorably known as "RICHARDSON'S," and has opened in the corner store in the "Johnston Block," which he intends in the Spring to make the Leading Dry Goods Store in the City.

As the season is now too far advanced to import a stock of NEW FALL GOODS, he intends to run off the "Richardson" Stock, which he bought at a very low price—as well as ten cases of Staple Goods, just received, AT LESS THAN WHOLESALE PRICES, which the price at which he bought them will enable him to do, and still leave a living profit.
