IS SUPPLIED WITH MORMON GIRLS FROM GERMANY.

Herr Bebel Puts a Startling Question in the Reichstag — Young Females are Forcibly Baptized at Hamburg — Exported Into the Slavic Country — Three Lives are Sacrificed for One — Heroic Sister of Mercy — The Carnival at New Orleans — A Fatal Finish to the Festivities — Four Killed in a Fight.

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—The question of salaries paid to officials in the Home Office was debated in the Reichstag to-day, in connection with the vote of supply. Herr Bebel, the Socialist leader, took part in the debate and referred to the emigration Bill, alluding to the export to Russia of Mormon girls, chiefly Jewesses for immoral purposes. Herr Bebel declared that in order to enable procuresses to take these girls into Russia they were baptized by force at Hamburg. Dr. Von Boettcher, secretary of the Imperial Home Office, declared that he was ignorant of the facts stated by Herr Bebel. He thanked Herr Bebel for calling his attention to the matter and promised that the traffic in girls would, as far as possible, be stopped instantly.

Troops Withdrawn.

ROME, Feb. 6.—Three battalions of troops, which were sent to Sicily on the outbreak of the recent troubles there, have returned to their former garrisons.

Wounded in the Armpit.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—M. Papillaud, a writer on the staff of the Libre Parole, wounded Deputy Olivier Bascou in the armpit to-day. The cause of the duel was a certain article published by Papillaud in the Parole.

Another Infernal Machine.

PARIS, Feb. 6 —Another supposed infernal machine was found outside the Magasins du Printemps to-day. It was taken to the municipal laboratory for examination. The police believe it to be the work of some practical joker.

Aggressive Francais.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Advices from Sierra Leone says that the French have annexed the town of Half-Cavally adjoining the Liberian frontier, and that this action has incensed the Liberian authorities, who claim to have obtained ownership by conquest months ago.

A Brave Woman.

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—Official and private reports on the recent revolt of the natives of the Cameroons, call attention to the great heroism of Margaret Leue, a Sister of Mercy, who passed through the thick of the fighting, armed only with a revolver, and tended to the wounded in the midst of a hail of bullets.

A Confirmatory Statement.

LONDON, Feb 6.—In the House of Lords to-day the Marquis of Ripon, Secretary of State for the Colonies, stated that despatches had been received confirming the report of an engagement between a body of the British military police and a French force, in the Sofa country, in the interior of Sierra Leone, in which six of the French troops were killed. According to the despatches, the French were the aggressors, having attacked the British.

The Canny Scots are Scared.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—F. Levenson Bertie, of the Foreign Office, received to-day for Lord Roseberry, a deputation from the Clyde Association of owners of sailing ships. The deputation came to urge that British merchantmen in Rio Janeiro harbor be protected as efficiently as the American shipping has been. Mr. Bertie replied to their complaints at some length. The latest telegrams from Mr. Wyndham, the British minister in Rio, he said, stated that the foreign warships were now affording full protection to merchant shipping. That colliers were unloading at the piers and that the interruption of traffic at Rio had virtually ceased.

William II. Talks Cousinly.

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—Count Caprivi's Parliamentary dinner, which precludes the final struggle over the Russion commercial treaty, was held this evening at the Chancellor's palace. Emperor William was present and talked almost constantly with the guests. In conversing with several deputies, the Emperor advocated strongly the passing of the Russian commercial treaty and emphasized the fact that the rejection would have disagreeable consequences for Germany. Toward the close of the dinner Emperor William spoke concerning the Russian treaty in the Reichstag. He said: "The Reichstag was never before called upon to make a decision fraught with such important consequences. It is certain that the rejection of the treaty would be followed speedily by a tariff war and later by actual war. Let every deputy act at this time, so that none may be able to say afterwards, 'I did not know.' The favorable terms granted to us in the treaty, which was signed to-day, are entirely due to the personal intervention of his majesty the Czar, to his well known strong love of peace. The treaty bears every evidence throughout of that love which has been strong enough to overthrow the vigorous resistance of the manufacturing and commercial interests of Russia."

An Old Expressman Dies.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—Mr. James Hero., secretary of Wells, Fargo & Co., died at his home in this city to-day, after a short illness. The deceased had been in the employ of the company since 1862. He was 65 years old.

Norena the Mexican Sculptor Dead.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 6.—Minguel Norena, the famous Mexican sculptor, is dead, from typhus. He was the designer of the great statue of Cuaynhtemoc on the Pasco De La Reforma in this city and leaves many other monuments to his genius.

That Which Became Him Best.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 6.—Doctor Friedrick Meisterfeld, a notorious mal-practitioner, committed suicide this morning, by hanging himself in his cell at the eastern peitentiary, where he was serving a seven-year sentence for causing the death of a young married woman on January 8th, 1893.

A Case of Capital vs. Labor.

LEBANON, Ind. Feb. 6.—The trial of John D. Oakes for the murder of James B. Pitts, during a riot of strikers at the Big Four Railway shops in Indianopolis, last October, began here to-day. The prisoner is defended by the R. R. Company, in whose employ he was working as a special officer when the riot occurred, during which the shot was fired that killed Pitts. The case is a virtual fight between capital and labor and the most prominent lawyers of the state, including ex-Judge Elliott, of the Supreme Court, are conducting the case.

Husband vs. Wife.

CAICAGO, Feb. 6.—Andrew Foy, accused by his wife of conspiring with Daniel Coughlin and others to murder Dr. Cronin has been under police suspicion since May 1889, was the star witness for the defense at the Coughlin trial to-day. He flatly contradicted his wife's story regarding the secret conspiracy meetings alleged to have been held at his house, the reading of the "remove at all hazards," letter, and the meeting of Burke and Coughlin outside Foy's house, the night of May 6th. The prosecution did not change the tenor of his testimony.

Governor Waite Heard From Again.

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 6.—Governor Waite read a long address before the Wool Growers' Convention this morning, advancing his views upon the question of finance and tariff. He declared that the people should rise and wrest the country from the tyranny of Lombard and Wall streets for the restoration of the constitutional right to coin silver. He said he had no faith in a Congress controlled by trusts and monopolies. Resolutions were adopted asserting that wool is not a raw material and that to place wool on the free list to benefit the wool manufacturers of the east, the conduct of Congress in this matter, he claimed, is a fatal blow to the pastoral business in which thousands of citizens are interested.

The Fire Chiefs Convention.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—Chief Lillis thanked the Mayor for the welcome they had received and for the spirit with which members of the convention had been greeted in San Francisco. He was satisfied that if every community would uphold the hands of its fire department officials, as San Francisco did, it would redound to the credit and usefulness of every department on the coast. Chief Deasy of Victoria, B. C., congratulated the convention on the fact that the body was beginning to grow. Every city represented at previous conventions was represented in the meeting in San Francisco with one exception. and to counteract this exception, new cities had sent delegates for the first time. Briet speeches were also made by other members of the convention including Chief Sullivan of this city and Kellogg of Seattle.

Lovely Law in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Sensational proceedings marked the Coughlin trial to-day. They began with the introduction of the jury, and of two men who were strongly suspected of having been members of the Cronin murder conspiracy. They were men whom Mr. and Mrs. Foy accused of being at her house, holding secret and whispered conversations before the murder. Thomas McKenna and Michael O'Connor are their names. They were called principally to disprove the confirmation of the statement that secret conferences were held at Foy's house, that Coughlin followed Burk, when the latter passed on the night of the murder and Foy and Coughlin met outside Mrs. Horton's house, in Lake View, on the night of May 12th, for the alleged purpose of painting the blood stained Carlson cottage. The witnesses swore harmoniously. Both are active members of Camp 20 and knew the other defendants well. Two other witness against Mrs. Foy were bitter and hateful in their expressions. One Ansdrough disgraced the defence by being intoxicated and making an unseemly exhibition. He stood up, shook his fist in the direction of the prosecutor and raved like a madman against Mrs. Foy. "I believe she is crazy anyway," he shouted. The court was content to keep the stimulated and vindictive witness within the bounds of decency. Another exciting episode was the violent altercation between Prosecutor Bottom and Attorney Donoghue just after the noon recess. The prosecutor accused Donoghue of virtually calling him and a newspaper man a liar. The judge jumped in without waiting to hear from both sides, fined Donoghue $50, then took it back, but the lawyer did not, and Bottom dared him to say it outside the courtroom.

Caught at Winnipeg.

FARMINGTON, Maine, Feb. 6.—Notice of the arrest of H. A. Hackett, in Winnipeg, Man., which was received here to-day, was read with interest. He is charged with abstracting $21,000 in bonds from the Portland Safety Vaults, belonging to the estate of the late Israel R. Bray of Freman.

The Republicans Win in Duluth.

DULUTH, Minn., Feb. 6.—Ray T. Lewis, Republican, was elected mayor of Duluth to-day by a majority of 2,880, in a total vote of about 10,000. The Republicans elected sixteen aldermen, which is a clean sweep. The fight was made a party one with the position of Mayor Baldwin on the tariff question, as an issue. The present city administration is Democratic.

Four Killed in a Fight.

WARM SPRINGS, Va., Feb. 6.—News has just been received here of a desperate fight on "Black Alleghany" mountain, near the West Virginia line, between several deputy United States marshals and a party of illicit distillers. Two of the marshals were killed outright, as were also two of the distillers, and one man was badly wounded.

Exhibition Skating.

COBURG, Ont., Feb. 6.—A large crowd witnessed the skating races here to-night. The races were all exhibitions, which accounts for the slow time made. The course was fifteen laps to the mile. Davidson retired after the first lap in the two mile race, his skates having worked loose. Following is the summary: Half-mile—Hulse of Toronto won; Davidson of St. Paul, 2nd. Time, 1 42.2-5. One mile—Johnson, of Minneapolis won; Davidson, 2nd. Time, 4.02. Two mile—Johnson won; Hulse 2nd. Time, 7.8.

New Orleans in Gala.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 6.—The climax of the carnival festivities was reached to-night, when fully 100,000 people thronged the streets. A goodly number were masked to witness the gorgeous pageant of the "Crew of Comus." The subject portrayed was one with which all are familar. Fairy stories of all nations collected under the title of "once upon a time." The cars were all gorgeously arranged and depicted. The grand balls of both Rex and Comus, the one at the Royal palace, and the other at the French opera house, were held to-night and their terminations in the early morning hours will be the end of this years carnival.

The Kaslo-Slocan District.

In considering and speaking of the interior parts of this Province, men are prone to sum up and commend or condemn them according to their ideas of certain places and townsites. A little reflection will show that this method is erroneous and altogether opposed to the unfailing law of environment. Men do not make towns, without some surrounding influence and natural advantages which have been developing in the neighborhood from times primæval. Before this country was discovered, known, or inhabited, even by its aboriginies, nature, through all the geological eras, was working and developing the mother earth of the Kaslo-Slocan district into a vast coffer of apparently inexhaustible mineral wealth.

On each side of the Kaslo and Carpenter Creeks there is a belt of ore; the wet ore or galena belt being on the south side, and the dry ore, or quartz, belt lying on the north side.

Messrs. Wilson and McDermott, who recently came over from the mainland, are now exhibiting in the office window of Mr. T Kitchin 60 samples of galena and quartz ores from the Kaslo-Slocan district. Most of the specimens are from the wet belt claims, which are already partially developed, and have an assay average of from $200 to $1,500 per ton in silver, with a lead percentage of 50 70.

The claims and mines being worked are the Washington, Slocan Star, Noble Fire Group, Reco, Blue Bird, Dardanelles, Surprise, Ruby Silver, Chambers, Wellington, Freddy Lee, Idaho, St. Johns, Vancouver Group, Mountain Chief, Northern Belle, Noonday, Robert Lee, Silverton Group, Two Belles, Monte Cristo, Almo, Cumberland, Lucky Jim, Roadley, Wonderful and several et ceteras. The foregoing represent the wet ore belt which is being the most extensively worked at the present time, but, the dry ore belt on the opposite side is expected by experts to yield still larger and more surprising results. In the Altrurists claim, the Dolly Varden ledge has a view between the walls of 12 feet in width, composed of free milling proposition quartz.

When the dry ores are worked and fluxed with the wet ores in a smelter locally situated then the prosperity of the Kaslo-Slocan district will be doubly assured. At present there are representatives and buyers from the smelters from all over the States competing for the shipment of ores. These gentlemen do not come into the country to exploit British Columbia, but enter it on purely speculative and business principles, knowing that their purchases and contracts will yield them good returns. This fact alone, is worth all the writing up which can possibly be done by the most descriptive pens.

As to the feeling of our islanders in respect to the Mainland, they should not be too insular and pronounce everything bad because it is Mainland and not of Island production. Our seacoast and ports will remain of comparatively small value and size unless the interior of the Province is developed. This development is rich in promise in the Kaslo-Slocan country. Which may be the leading town there is perhaps, a difficult matter to pronounce and prophesy upon, but this we know, that it must be where the natural geographical and geological features of the country decide the topography of the town. At the present time Kaslo seems to have the superiority in situation, and if she holds her own with rival and competing townsites, will undoubtedly become a city of vast import to this Province and a leading one in its commerce.

When in Victoria, Mr. Wilson gave a lecture on the Kaslo-Slocan district which he will deliver here at an early date. We shall be able to give particulars to-morrow of when and where it will take place. Mr. Wilson will then fill in the details which it is impossible to convey in this brief account

A LONDON LETTER.

Yates, the society news factor of London cables to the New York Tribune of yesterday:

The Princess of Wales and her daughters left Sandringham on Saturday, after a residence of more than three months, and proceeded to Osborne on a visit to the Queen, accompanied by the Prince. The Princess has not seen the Queen for nearly six months, as Her Royal Highness returned from Denmark in the autumn direct from Sandringham, and the influenza prevented the usual visit to Windsor Castle in December. Her Royal Highness is now quite restored to health and she will probably pay a brief visit to the Duke and Duchess of Fife at Sussex Square, Brighton, when she leaves Osborne. The Queen has begged the Princess of Wales to postpone her departure for the Mediterranean until after the two drawing rooms, which are to be held at Buckingham Palace on Tuesday, February 27th and Tuesday, March 6th. The presence of the Princess at these functions, invitations to which are limited to 200, are the best proof of the falsity of the reports which have been so recklessly circulated about her resolution to retire from society.

A Royal Racer.

The Prince of Wales racing yacht Britannia completed her outfit last week, and yesterday the yacht left Cowes for Gibraltar, on her way to Marseilles. The Prince of Wales will not leave for the Reviera until the second week in March, and will hold two levees before his departure. He will return to London about April 9th for ten days before proceeding to Coburg.

A Cousinly Invitation.

The Emperor and Empress of Russia have invited the Prince and Princess of Wales and the Princesses Victoria and Maud to go to St. Petersburg for the wedding of the Grand Duchess Xenia and the Grand Duke Duke Nicolovitch, which ceremony will take place about Whit Monday. The Duke and Duchess of Connaught are to go to Germany in April for a short time and will be at Cobourg for the marriage of the Grand Duke of Hesse and the Princesf Victoria Melita.

Bismarck's Doctor.

The reconciliation of Prince Bismarck to the Emperor seems to have pleased everybody, except, perhaps, Dr. Schweninger, who was compelled to reach the Emperor's palace in a hackney coach, and when there was cooly requested to dine with some subordinate functionary. The medico was furious, for in other days he always had a court carriage and a place at the table. A tactical error has been committed, for Schweninger's influence with the ex-chancellor is unbounded and seems likely to increase as time goes on.

The Tiara Tired Her.

Mr. Goschen, who is accompanying his daughter to Wiesbaden, halted for two days at Brussels as the guest of Sir Francis and Lady Plunkett, and was able at the first court ball on Wednesday evening, to satisfy King Leopold's legitimate curiosity as to the sensational reports of Mr. Gladstone's impending resignation. The great gathering at the palace was one of the largest and most distinguished ever remembered, but the Queen, who wore her priceless five row tiara of the most costly jewels in Europe, seemed depressed and retired early.

The G. O. M.'s Mantle.

In consequence of the rumored resignation of Mr. Gladstone there has been a revival of all the old speculation as to what will happen when that resignation actually takes place. It is a good opportunity for reviewing the prospect if the phrase be advisable. There are men marked out for the first right to the reversion of the leadership, Sir William Harcourt by priority of service, and Lord Rosebery by superiority of ability and popularity. Both are indispensible to the party, but both are impossible, for Sir William will not serve under Lord Rosebery, and Lord Rosebery will not serve under Sir William. Who is then to have it? Only one other name has been suggested, that of Mr. Asquith's, but he is too young and too inexperienced and too much envied. Shrewd students of politics hold that a good humored man of importance, such as Mr. Campbell-Bannerman, has the best chance of the succession to the leadership of the Liberals, should they by any chance come back victorious from the polls.

Military Men's Life Insurance.

When the military and naval officers are ordered into active service, the extra premium demanded by the insurance offices is a great consideration. As an instance of the sum demanded, General Henry Brackenbury had to pay £21 for every one hundred pounds insured for at the outbreak of the Ashante war. Gen. Wolsley had to pay £25 for every one hundred. These war rates were not then based on any known statistics, but elaborate calculations have since been gone into as regards the risks of officers from a life insurance point of view, the committee have adopted a set of premium rates within easy reach of officers for insurance in case of war. A war policy, covering risks of climate and warfare, an officer aged 30 would pay only 8s. and 8d. for £100, more than a civilian in London.

CHRIST AND THE SOUL.

When thou turn'st away from ill,
Christ is this side of thy hill.

When thou turnest toward good,
Christ is walking in thy wood.

When thy heart says, "Father, pardon!"
Then the Lord is in thy garden.

When stern duty wakes to watch,
Then his hand is on the latch.

But when Hope thy song doth rouse,
Then the Lord is in the house.

When to love is all thy wit,
Christ doth at thy table sit.

When God's will is thy heart's pole,
Then is Christ thy very soul.
—George Macdonald in London Spectator.

The Poison of the Cobra.

The bite of the terrible cobra of India is looked upon as meaning certain death. It is not surprising that experiments to determine the nature of this awful poison should attract wide attention when they are made in a scientific manner entitling their results to be accepted with confidence. Such experiments have recently been conducted by Mr. A. A. Kanthack. The venom was obtained by pressing the heads of living cobras, by which nerve trying operation the deadly fluid was squeezed out of the fangs.

The fluid dries very quickly and leaves a yellow substance resembling gum arabic or the dried albumen of egg, which is easily pulverized. The activity of the poison is destroyed by prolonged boiling, a concentrated solution of it withstanding the effects of boiling for an hour or two before entirely losing its poisonous action. A weak solution could be rendered innocuous by being boiled from 20 minutes to half an hour.

But of course this can give no comfort to any victim of a cobra bite, since the venom, once injected into his blood, could by no possibility be subjected to such a process of boiling.

Ammonia and chlorine water also proved capable of destroying the poison if applied to it for a considerable time in strong solutions, and carbolic acid considerably delayed its poisonous action.

Some hope had been raised that doses of strychnia might prove a means of cure, but the experiments showed that there was no foundation for this hope. So far, then, a cure for the bite of the cobra remains to be discovered.—Youth's Companion.

THE HISTORIAN.

The story of King Arthur and his round table is a myth, although what purports to be the round table is still to be seen in a south England town.

General Cambronne did not say "The guard dies, but does not surrender." The words were the invention of a Paris journalist and attributed to him.

Queen Eleanor did not suck the poison from her husband's wound, as she did not accompany him on the expedition during which this incident is alleged to have taken place.

Cromwell and Hampden did not attempt to sail to America just before the outbreak of the English revolution. A number of their friends did, but they had no thought of going.

The French soldiers in Constantinople in 1204 did not, as stated by Voltaire, dance in St. Sophia with the women of the city. When Voltaire was asked where he read the statement, he said: "Nowhere. I invented it."

The siege of Troy was mostly a myth. According to Homer's own figures, if there ever was such a man as Homer, Helen must have been at least 60 years of age when she first met Paris, and even in the heroic period of the world women of that age were a trifle passe.

George III was not the cruel tyrant he is represented by the Declaration of Independence, but was a mild mannered, pleasant old gentlemen who loved children and was fond of asking country people where they were going and what they were going to do when they got there.

Louis XVI did not behave with overwhelming dignity at his execution. On the contrary, he screamed for help, struggled with the executioners and begged for mercy. Nor did the attendant priest say "Son of St. Louis, ascend to heaven." The expression was used for him by a Paris evening paper.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE DESIGNER.

The colors of the fashionable world are repeated in the newest imported glass. These are mauve and green.

Candlesticks in white ware, in the form of fluted columns, are intended for special decoration, according to the colors of the room in which they are to be placed.

Banjos, mandolins, guitars, fiddles and tambourines in white ware for china decoration are in such profusion as to indicate a busy winter among the china painters.

A new glass is called aquarelle, because it has decorations in broad water color effects. The body of the glass is flesh tinted and appears in vases and flower bowls.

There is a good deal of modern design and subjects in decorative china. Some of the handsomest plates for the table have each as a design a modern woman in Paris clothes.—Jewelers' Circular.

Palettes of famous painters form an interesting collection in the possession of M. Beuginet of Paris. His collection numbers over 100 specimens, chief among which are the palettes used by Corot, Troyon, Delacroix, Benjamin Constans, Bonnat, Rosa Bonheur, Detaille, Puvis do Chavannes and other artists of celebrity.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The greatest courage is to bear persecution, not to answer when you are reviled, and when a wrong has been done to forgive.—"The Newcomes."

Keeping the Congregation Awake.

Lapenius, chaplain to the Danish court (1692), noticing that a large part of the congregation fell asleep during the sermon, suddenly stopped, and pulling from his pocket a shuttlecock commenced to play with it. This strange device, we are assured, had the effect desired.—Temple Bar.

American pioneers were God fearing and Bible loving. They staked out town lots in 22 Bethels, 10 Jordans, 9 Jerichos 14 Bethlehems, 22 Goshens, 21 Shilons 11 Carmels, 18 Tabors and Mount Tabors, 22 Zions and Mount Zions, 26 Edens, 30 Lebanons, 26 Hebrews and 36 Sharons.

A Liverpool policeman, who, as he thought, swallowed a sixpence 13 years ago, recently had a severe pain in his throat. A fit of coughing came on, and the long lost coin, half of its original thickness, was released from his throat.

There is an unknown quantity of silver in the bay of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil—a silver mine, in fact, of, comparatively speaking, unlimited dimensions, and every ship that drops anchor there cuts into the bed of ore.—Exchange.

At Redditch, England, 20,000 people make more than 100,000,000 needles a year, and they are made and exported so cheaply that England has no rival and practically monopolizes the trade.

AGAIN FIRING ON THE BRITISH.

The French in West Africa have again, it appears, been firing on the British. The latter returned the fire, killing six of the attacking force. It is not reported how many, if any, of the British were killed. Several of the French, it is stated, were captured. The British force attacked consisted of military police. It is not stated whether Mr. Gladstone's Government is doing anything, or proposes to do anything, in the matter. These repeated attacks on the British in West Africa by the French cannot be accidental. It must be the result of design on the part, no doubt, of youthful and not over wise officers among the French, who want to bring on a war between the two nations. If the condition of the French navy and coast defences is anything like what Mr. Lockroy described it to be the other day in the French Chamber of Deputies, a war by sea with a first class naval power like England is the last thing that Frenchmen ought to wish for. At any rate it would be only prudent for the French to make sure about the condition of their navy before they provoke a war with England. The French, before the last war with Germany, similarly imagined that their army was invincible, and that a march to Berlin would be for it a mere military promenade. They discovered when too late their error, that their army was in reality weak, and its administration rotten. Swift defeat and national humiliation followed. The lesson then taught to the French seems already to be forgotten. They should beware of committing a similar blunder in the case of England, by wantonly forcing a war upon her, at the very moment that they have been told in the French Chamber of Deputies by a member of a commission appointed to investigate their naval affairs, that the French navy is bad and its administration rotten. We trust, no matter what the real condition of the French navy may be, that the British Government will not tamely submit to this second insult at the hands of the French troops in West-Africa, but will at all risks insist on explanation of the outrage, an apology, and ample reparation. The policy of the new radicalism, which Mr. Gladstone favors, and such men as Labouchere profess and support, the chief features of which are disintegration at home and disrepute abroad, is having its natural fruit. If Gladstone obtains a majority however small at the general election which is approaching, and if he is granted a few more years of life and power, he and the new radicals will infallibly ruin England and destroy her empire. Great Britain needs a patriotic government which will place British interests first and those of England's enemies and rivals second—by a long interval. It is to be feared that Great Britain will never possess a government of this sort, so long as Gladstone and the Radicals are maintained in power.

AMERICAN POLITICS.

The Republican party in the United States are very much elated over the result of the recent election of two congressmen to represent the Fourteenth and Fifteenth districts of New York city. Both these districts were heretofore Democratic strongholds. Col. John R. Fellows, a Tammany Democrat, was elected to Congress in 1892 from the Fourteenth district in New York by a majority of 8,825 over the Republican candidate. Mr. A. P. Fitch, another Tammany Democrat was elected for the Fifteenth district adjoining at the same time by a majority over the Republican candidate of 11,869. Fellows and Fitch resigned their seats in the House of Representatives on being elected in November last to the offices of District Attorney and Controller respectively, and special elections were ordered to fill the seats thus left vacant. The result of the special elections which took place a few days ago was that the Republicans carried the Fourteenth district, and in the Fifteenth reduced the Democratic majority from 11,860 when Fitch was elected to 4,687 at the late election. The Democrats have lost the seat for the Fourteenth district, and have only succeeded in retaining that for the Fifteenth district by a majority reduced more than one half.

This result the Republicans and protectionists argue, with much appearance of justice, proves that the tariff policy of the Cleveland administration is not popular with the people of the United States. It is probable that the reform of the tariff, which the Republicans blame for the existing depression in business in the United States, is not popular with the working class there, who are told every day of their lives that it is the disturbing policy of the Democrats in respect of the tariff which has caused the shutting down of hundreds of factories all over the United States, and has filled the streets of the towns and cities with thousands of idle and almost starving workmen. These feeling the pinch of the hard times and even of want in many cases readily believe it when they are told, as the Republicans do not forget to do, that the fault of it all rests with the tariff reform policy of the Democrats. The workmen are being constantly told that so long as the policy of high protection, with which the McKinley tariff is identified, was maintained, the country was prosperous and workmen had plenty of work at high wages. Look around and see how it is, say the Republicans and their organs of the press, now that the Democrats with their low tariff policy have got possession of power. The workmen all possessing votes under the American system, and cursing in their hearts the policy which seems to have deprived them of work and wages, naturally listen to the arguments of the Republicans and vote accordingly.

This was the cause of the defeat of the Democrats in the Fourteenth district of New York city at the recent election, and of the great reduction of their majority in the Fifteenth district. The present is the transition period between the policies of high and low protection, when the benefits of the former system have been interrupted and those of the latter have not yet begun to operate. It is probable that the Democrats would be defeated in all the large cities and towns if the elections could be brought on now; but it may be very different a year hence, when the depression in business now felt so keenly has to some extent passed away, and the rural districts have begun to feel the benefit of a low tariff This is the main hope of the Democrats, that their tariff policy will prove its value before the next presidential election comes on, and that by that time general prosperity will have returned. If not, if the business depression, scarcity of work, and low wages still continue when the next presidential election comes on, nothing can be more certain than that the Democrats will sustain a disastrous defeat.

SPEAKING of the passage of the Wilson tariff by the House of Representatives of the American Congress, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, a strong Republican organ, says:

"The House has passed the Wilson tariff bill in its most extreme and odious form. Coal iron, lumber, wool and raw materials generally, with sugars of all kinds, are to be put upon the free list, the sugar bounty is to be abolished July 1, 1894, and the reciprocity clauses of the McKinley Act, under which reciprocity treaties were negotiated with various countries, are to be specifically eliminated from the law; an income tax is to be provided for, and a general scheme of ad valorem duties substituted for specific taxes."

It is to be hoped that the Grits are pleased when they see a statement such as this published in a leading organ of their American allies of the Republican party.

THE AGRARIAN party in Germany, that is, the party who profess to have especially the interests of the farmers at heart, are much opposed to the acceptance by the German Government of the Russian tariff convention. A treaty to give effect to it is before the German richstag and it is confidently expected that it will pass. The president of the Agarian League went recently to Fredrichrue to urge Bismarck to make a public utterance against the proposed treaty, and met with a refusal. The Prince will not speak against it and has also refused to make the newspapers which he controls attack the treaty. The reconciliation of Bismarck with the emperior is therefore already bearing fruit. The Prince is less disposed than he was to oppose the emperor's policy. The treaty will permit the entrance of Russian wheat into Germany duty free or nearly so, hence the opposition to it by the Agarian party, who counted on Bismarck's support and indeed boasted of it. But the reconciliation with the emperor has changed all that, if he had any real intention of supporting the Agrarians, and it is not certain that he had. Indeed Bismarck's policy was always one of friendship to Russia, and it would not be consistent on his part to oppose a treaty which has for its chief object to open up a great market for Russian produce. It hence appears that Bismarck's reconciliation with the emperor will tend to the preservation of peace between Germany and Russia, and consequently to the preservation of peace in Europe, which is not likely to be broken as long as Germany and Russia remain good friends. This is in fact the chief importance which the recent reconciliation had for foreign nations. It is tending to a good understanding between Germany and Russia, and consequently to the preservation of peace between them.

Coal Mines Regulation Act of 1890 to be Amended This Session.

VICTORIA, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—In the Legislature this afternoon Adams, Cariboo's new member, was heard from for the first time, his resolution asking for a reduction of duties on certain things necessary to miners and agriculturalists being received with favor, and unanimously adopted.

In reply to a question, Premier Davie said the Government did not propose to appoint a timber inspector, vice Duncan MacRae, deceased.

Mr. Keith's question, re Coal Mines Regulation Act of 1890, was answered by Premier Davie, who said the act at present was not workable, but would be made so this session. It cannot be made part of a law that the Chinese shall not be employed, but it can be said that none be employed whose ignorance or incapacity renders their employment a source of danger to others.

Fresh Light on the French Firing.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—It is virtually certain that the encounter between the British and French military police, reported in a despatch from Sierra Leone yesterday, occurred in the Samu country, about forty miles north of Freetown, where the French and British frontiers touch. As there is no expedition in that locality, it is probable that that the two bodies that came into collision were native police and not Europeans.

The Duke of Devonshire Speaks.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—The Radical papers devote considerable space this morning to a speech made by the Duke of Devonshire in the House of Lords last evening in opposition to an amendment to the Parish Councils Bill which Lord Salisbury had strongly advocated. These papers dilate upon what they call the Union Liberalist revolt and desertion. This exaggeration of the incident may possibly awaken the Tory opposition to the bill, but it is noteworthy that Lord Salisbury half opposed the amendments advocated by the Duke of Richmond and other Tories.

N. I. C. Ball.

The Military Ball last night, though not one of the largest gatherings of the season, had an assemblage comprising the elite of the city, who with the gallant militia men made up about forty couples which amply filled the room. The music was provided by Herm's orchestra and was particularly pleasing in the selections given. The dresses did ample justice to the nature of the festival and were very pretty and varied both in color and design The following list of dresses will give some idea of the combined effect. A very pretty costume of red nun's veiling with puffed sleeves and flounced skirts; a light pink China silk trimmed with lace and with natural ivy on the neck and throat; cream silk trimmed with corded silk and Valenciennes lace and ostrich tips in the hair; black silk with puffed heliotrope sleeves and black corsage trimmed with beads; cream satin with trimmings of Oriental lace; pale lilac nun's veiling gathered at the shoulders and trimmed with lace; dove grey silk with sleeves of shrimp pink; salmon colored pongee trimmed with fish-net lace; cream satin with sleeves of cream tulle; cardinal China silk with new and fashionable small flounces; black satin de Lyon trimmed with gold lace; cream nun's veiling trimmed with bows and rows of ribbon of a little deeper shade, natural flowers being worn in the hair; cream nun's veiling with pleated ruchings; red China silk with handsome draperies of fish-net; salmon pink nun's veiling with puffed sleeves; beautifully flowered challis costume; cream satin with three-quarter V. sleeves trimmed with swan's down and natural flowers. The costumes of the gentlemen, varied as they were from the military dresses to the ordinary civilian evening dress, harmonized well with the ladies' pretty costumes and made the scene one to be remembered by all those that witnessed or took part in it. The decorations of the hall were particularly appropriate and tasteful, the walls being decorated with flags interspersed mirrors and a star of bayonets surrounding the royal motto inclosed in which the corps monogram N. I. C., occupied the centre of the further wall whilst the central pillar was artistically draped with flags with a base of circling bayonets.

The supper, which was arranged under the superintendence of Mrs. Cooper, was both excellent in quality and quantity and was done justice to by all. The dance throughout was thoroughly enjoyed, and the Infantry Company are to be congratulated on the success of their efforts.

A Fatal Finish to Festivity.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 6.—In an outlying district of the city at six o'clock this evening, the Mardi Gras sport of a party of merry makers in costume, was brought to a tragic ending by the killing of one man and the wounding of four others. At the corner of independence and Morates streets, a masked party in costume encountered several young men and a row ensued. Leone Copping, a young man of 19 years, dressed to personate a monkey, shot and killed Phillip Boe, probably fatally injured Mike Boe, mortally wounded his brother William Copping and slightly wounded Valentine Cramer. Leone Copping was arrested and charged with murder.

Gold at Our Gates.

Mr. W. E. Lynn, C.E., showed some specimens of ore and rock, from the ledge that he has recently located, which were criticised and examined by a number of old miners and experts yesterday afternoon, the general opinion being that something particularly good has been struck. The ledge, from which the samples shown were taken, has, it is understood, nine feet in width, and there are 90 feet of the ledge in sight. The exterior casing contains silver and arsenic, and is contained in a rock of variegated colors, and considered to be an excellent specimen of workable rock. The ledge containing the gold is of white quartz containing free gold in considerable quantities, the specimens shown having the precious metal easily discernable to the naked eye. It is understood that the claim is to be developed very shortly and great hopes are entertained as to the results of the further working of so promising a looking claim. The distance of the claim is inside two and a half miles from town, and Mr. Lynn and his colleagues are confident of the ultimate result of the working of the ledge being highly successful, and numbers of experienced miners who have seen the samples of rock also believe in this as being a lucky strike. It is believed that capital has already been offered to develop Nanaimo's closest and richest gold discovery. Liquid assays of the gold-bearing quartz, and also of the exterior casing, have been made, all of which have been highly satisfactory; even when put to the delicate test of paper soaked in the solution gained in analyzing the component parts of the rock brought in. Further assays on a larger scale are to be carried out as soon as possible. A large quantity of the rock has been brought in, it being understood that it required five men to carry the numerous pieces of auriferous ore and casing brought to town for examination.

SPEEDY TRIALS ACT.

Before His Honor Eli Harrison.

The case of Daniel Hicks, accused of stealing $50 from one Cook, at the Somerset Hotel, came up for hearing yesterday. A number of witnesses were examined.

It seems that Cook had a bill in his hand with the intention of betting the same on any kind of a wrestling match, when the accused entered the hotel. They immediately began an argument, which resulted in Cook offering to treat all hands. They proceeded to the bar and while there, in some unaccountable way, Cook lost his bill, and accused the first man he saw of stealing it. The man accused happened to be Hicks. Cook had him arrested. The evidence of Constable Stevenson, John A. Thompson and others proved beyond a doubt that Hicks was a hard working honest man. This, coupled with other evidence, resulted in the honorable discharge of the accused. There is no doubt that Mr. Hicks was unjustly arrested. Mr. F. McB. Young defended Mr. Hicks and Mr. J. H. Simpson appeared for the prosecution.

Erratum.

In our account of the City Council meeting of Monday night, we reported Ald. Cocking as saying, in reference to the request for lights, that each light cost $144 per annum, and, that as the Commercial street bridge would require repairing this year, it was advisable to proceed with caution. This should have been reported under Ald. Nightingale's name.

thought, "if he proves capable and honest I will help him to make his own way into a good business. But should I find him unworthy I am bound by no promise and can easily drop him and let him pass from my thoughts."

But Edward was soon too valuable to be discarded, and added to natural endowments his life was a peculiarly sweet exemplification of Christian faith and practice. His father was simply a moral man, making no pretense to any religious motive for being, as he truly was, an example of sterling honesty and unflinching integrity. His own conscience bore witness that he never oppressed the poor; that the widow and fatherless could bring no charges against him, even in thought, for fraud or extortion.

When Mr. Stanly gave Edward a chance to work, he considered all indebtedness for kindness received from his parents as fully canceled. He liked the young man, and after some months' acquaintance came as near loving him as was prudent in a business man. He would be well pleased to see him successful, but if he proved so while in his employ it was, after giving him the situation, simply a business operation, and every upward step henceforth must be paid for in care and profitable labor.

Step by step he slowly increased his salary and his labors also. When after four years of faithful toil Edward Newton had made himself so necessary to the interests of his employer that it became but selfish policy to offer him a partnership in the establishment, Mr. Stanly was at heart really rejoiced that his cousin's son had proved so worthy and had so faithfully earned the promotion.

When received into this partnership, Mr. Newton's next step was to secure a home for himself. The idea of his marriage was distasteful to Mr. Stanly. "Still," said he, "my rule has always been to leave each man to act and judge for himself and then abide the consequences."

In his heart he whispered: "Foolish boy, when he was doing so well too! He will lose all he has gained now. Had I known of this marriage, I should have waited awhile before receiving him as a partner. But I shall watch more closely than ever, and if I detect one false move I must drop him. Shall be really sorry to do it, though. I must be growing childish. Edward has crept nearer my heart than I thought any one could," and the old merchant's face showed a tenderer feeling than it had worn since childhood.

But when Mr. Newton wedded Lucy Dale and presented her to Mr. Stanly her gentle, womanly manners quite won the hard old man's heart, and not many years passed before he urged them to take up their abode with him, that he might at last realize some of the true joys of home. A few years under Lucy's pure influence added to her husband's truly Christian but unobtrusive teaching, by God's blessing, softened the worldly heart, and when, "like a shock of corn fully ripe," Mr. Stanly was gathered to his fathers his large possessions, after some affectionate legacies, were divided among judicious charities and promised long to be blessings to many.

Mr. Stanly left no near kindred, and the elegant dwelling and grounds, where he had passed a lonely life till his young friends brought joy and sunshine into it, he bequeathed to Mrs. Newton, "a thank offering for the love she had shown him and the good she had done him." This was the magnificent place so poorly described at the commencement of this story remodeled and improved by its present owner's correct taste until the stern grandeur of the original building had grown into its now harmonious proportions.

Let the reader become better acquainted with Mr. Newton's household before we intrude upon them when assembled in the pleasant study.

Lillian, the eldest, her mother's summer child, was born when the birds and roses of June filled the air with melody and fragrance. Tall and graceful at 24, she has her mother's figure, but with more quiet and repose of manner. Her dark golden brown hair is twined in heavy braids around her head, requiring no other ornament than the single rosebud George has just placed there.

The twins—Rose and Ralph—next younger than George, are always the first to attract attention on entering a room when the family are together. A more lovely tableau could hardly be found. Imagine a bright, petite figure, with eyes that would be black were they not ever too full of hope and joy, the perfection of a woman's head adorned with woman's crowning glory—a magnificent mantle of hair, the color of which, whether let down, as was Ralph's teasing custom, to ripple in beautiful waves to her tiny feet, or bound in careless grace about her head, was made by any changing light or position equally uncertain as her eyes.

So far this may carry an outline for fancy to fill, but farther we may not venture. The most consummate artist could but faintly convey the charm, the sweetness of Rose Newton's face. Her character was fresh and original. She inherited from her father a singular command of choice and appropriate language and from both parents a well balanced mind that cultivation had richly stored, but the sprightly humor, the brilliant and choice wit, the playful repartee, belonged to herself alone, or if shared by any her twin brother, Ralph, might claim a partnership. At 15, in form and features, the brother and sister were singularly alike, but now, when nearly 20, Ralph's figure had developed into more manly beauty and towered high above his sister.

In mental endowments Rose had tried to keep near him in her studies, and while he surpassed her in strength and vigor of expression she far outshone him in brilliancy.

Alfred, the youngest, a lad of 15, was quite sedate—not as much given to the boisterous amusements of boyhood as for his health's sake his parents could have wished, yet always ready to leave books or his pleasant dreamings to oblige or gratify another.

In person he had eyes of more striking beauty than those already introduced, but there were strange glances at times, recalling often some of the peculiar traits of all. Lillian's serene repose, George's outspoken, decided tones, Ralph's impetuousity when aroused, as well as Rose's glad, merry laugh, were all manifest or mingled in his various moods. But there were a thoughtful seriousness, a deep fount of tenderest love and entire unselfishness, that were peculiar to himself and made him, the youngest, the especial darling of all. In each heart he was cherished as the one whose talents would some day be the glory of their name. When they first spoke of the change in prospect, they had cheerfully accepted the consequent labor and self denial before them, but in each heart was the settled purpose that Alfred's opportunities for developing all the powers with which he seemed endowed should not be in any respect curtailed.

Eustace Dunbar had for years been one of the household. He was the son of a dear friend of Mr. Newton's, and at his father's death had been committed to his kind care. Guardian of the son and executor of his father's estate, Mr. Newton had made his home a happy one for the young orphan when at an early age he was sent to him from India.

Eustace had been as tenderly nurtured and educated as his guardian's own sons and his small property so wisely invested that now at the age of 27 he was well established in a prosperous business. His love for Lillian had sprung up from the beginning and a few months before she went abroad, on the eve of his own departure for India. Their betrothal was fully recognized. The arrangements for their marriage in the course of a few months were in progress when this misfortune came upon her father.

Jasper Grenville was from a wealthy southern family. Sent north to be educated, he entered the same college with George the year that Dunbar graduated. His manners were very attractive and his character unblemished. Through George he became intimate with Mr. Newton's family and soon learned to love Rose with all the enthusiasm of his southern nature, and she fully reciprocated the affection. Their marriage was not to take place for two years, and then he hoped to bear her to his native home, whose beauties he never wearied of portraying to her in glowing colors.

CHAPTER VI.

Eustace was with the family at the evening meal, so important to the Newtons, and met the revelation which Lillian conveyed to him as a true hearted son should do. While at tea Grenville was announced. Rose excused herself, preferring to see her lover alone before joining the family in the library. Some time elapsed before they appeared, and then Jasper expressed his sympathy with a sincerity and earnestness that could leave no doubt of the real interest he felt in the joys or sorrows of the family.

Yet George, with his perception sharpened by previous knowledge, discerned a restless nervousness that betokened some deeper source of uneasiness than the subject now before them, and from Rose's mood he thought she herself had detected something unnatural in his manners.

When all were seated after supper, Mr. Newton entered at once upon the subject under considerations and briefly narrated the substance of that which has already been told.,

"And now, my dear ones, we are in no danger of interruption this evening, and here no separate interests need prevent each from expressing his or her opinion with perfect freedom. Dunbar and Grenville, you have cast in your lot with us so far as to make it very proper and desirable for your views to be heard with the others. But, my dear friends, remember you are not bound to cling to fallen fortunes."

"Surely," interrupted Eustace, "my Lilly has lost no grace for which I have loved her these many years by your diminished wealth, has she? Ah, she is only the more precious, and if I could only make it apparent that it might be best to hasten our marriage I could rejoice in your trials if I had not learned to love the parents almost as much as the promised bride."

"Although I cannot boast a love of many years, as can Dunbar," said Grenville, with unusual hesitation, "I think it will defy any of fortune's vicissitudes. I had heard some intimation of these troubles before I came and hastened hither

BOOK PRINTING — We do not pretend to do work for the bare wholesale price of the stock. Although we buy stock direct from the mills we expect to get fair prices for all work turned out, and as we employ only the best workmen we guarantee our customers entire satisfaction in all cases. We are at all time prepared to give estimates for all kinds of Book Printing and other work. DAILY TELEGRAM, corner of Commercial and Church streets.

"ODDS AND ENDS."

A Short Story, by Sloan & Scott.

During the month of February we are always busy taking stock, and naturally come across a large number of Odds and Ends. Now you know yourself—or at least most people know—that it DOES NOT PAY to carry goods over from one season to another. You see, those goods that lay on the shelves from year to year, until some of them are almost old enough to vote, are eating themselves up in interest, and interest is one of those things that increase at a most alarming rate, especially if you are not watching it pretty close.

Now, this is what we are going to do. Commencing Thursday, February 1st, we shall institute an immense Remnant and Oddment Sale, and shall surprise everybody by the insinuating manner in which we shall throw stuff out over our counters and tables. You can't but admit that we have given you some big surprises, one way and another, in the past year. But THIS TIME we shall cause the most incredulous to exclaim, "Well, I don't see how they can do it."

Remember, this Sale is only for February, and as there are only 24 working days in that month, you will require to get around about every day while it lasts, so as to reap the full benefit.

The general opinion of the ore brought down from Kaslo recently, and now on exhibition, is that if there is plenty of it Kaslo ought to boom.

Messrs. Spear, Foster and May are organizing the concert for next Monday in connection with the opening of the new Presbyterian church.

The Salvation Army new barrack will be opened on Monday next, and not on Saturday as already reported. The new hall has, it is stated, a rating capacity for 500 people.

A public meeting was held at Duncan's yesterday, the object being to have improvements made on the banks of the rivers at Chemainus, Koksilah and Cowichan, to prevent their overflow in the rainy season.

WATCHES that have been spoilt by inexperienced watchmakers, corrected by me. I clean your watch, or insert new mainsprings for $1.50. My work cannot be excelled. All watches sent by mail promptly attended to. E. MERMON, JEWELLER, WELLINGTON. 6-1 6m

The translation of "Dieu et mon droit," the royal mottoe emblazoned at one end of the room at the military ball last night, as given by one of the infantry is "God on my right hand." The N.I.C., also contained in the legends, does not, as variously supposed, stand for "nick," but for the "Nanaimo Infantry Corps."

Prof. Cozens, graduate American Institute of Phrenology, New York, will lecture in the Y. M. C. A. Hall every evening this week except Wednesday. A good cabinet of pictures and skulls will illustrate the lectures. To know everything you wish get an examination at the Wilson House, room 5. Mr. Cozens is a professional character reader, and will do you good. 6-2 2t

An amusing sight can be seen by anyone interested in the study of animals by being in the rear of the Windsor House when the pet bear is being fed. He is fed out of a bucket, and the two canines of the hotel are usually present at the time when Bruin is about to receive his meal, and are interested spectators of the performance. The youngest and giddiest dog, when some particular choice morsel appears, generally makes a rush for it, and is usually treated with stolid contempt by the bear. Occasionally Bruin relapses into ill temper and knocks things about generally, including the dog and bucket, when the elder dog invariably gets his fine work in, by selecting the choice morsels. The whole usually finishes up with the dogs getting licked, and sent away in disgrace by the proprietor.

The tests which are put to Dr. Onequi, the Life Reader, who claims to tell names and dates, seem to make quite a commotion. Many a Bible which is covered with dust is brushed off and opened to find the correct date of the birth of a brother or sister, or the dates of the death of a mother or father. In no case is he found to be wrong, telling the dates with the greatest ease; and it is all done by a science. He tells when you will marry, when you will succeed in business, and—in fact, he is a wonder.

As to the Fate of the Estelle.

As yet there are no really definite news as to the whereabouts of the steamer Estelle. Rumor simply has it that she has exploded in the neighborhood of Campbell river. Indians report having seen pieces of wreckage and a life-preserver with the Estelles' name on it. Indian rumor is no more—in fact, less to be trusted, than the rumor of white men. Till we hear some news of more certainty, it is best to consider the Estelle sound and safe.
