JOHN MORLEY SPEAKS

TEMPORARY SUSPENSION OF HOME RULE WILL NOT INJURE IRELAND.

Parnellite Redmond Says That Rosebery's Doctrine Was an Insult to Ireland—Chamberlain Compares Labouchere to Diojenes — Calls Him a Defecting Radical - Harcourt Makes an Impressive Speech — President Peixoto Does Not Accept DaGama's Capitulation — They Will Bombard the Insurgent Forts and Ships.

LONDON, March 13.—In the House of Commons to-day, Mr. John Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland, stated, that there could be no injury to Ireland through a temporary suspension of the Home Rule Bill. If he had supposed that the reconstituted ministry would not be in accord with his views on the Irish question; he would not be a member of that ministry. (Cheers.) Home Rule, he said, had neither been delayed nor abandoned, but would take its place in the course of sequence as had been arranged, prior to Mr. Gladstone's retirement. As to the Irish party withdrawing its support from the Government, he was happy to say there was no signs of any such disastrous and mischievous event. There could be no mistake in the minds of anyone who had read the speech made in the House of Lords yesterday by Lord Rosebery that he meant to do all in his power to achieve Home Rule, besides reducing the House of Lords to its proper place, from the legislative organization it is now supposed to be in the minds of the English people.

Mr. John Redmond, Parnellite, said that never during his experience in Parliament had a more difficult and humiliating task fallen upon a Chief Secretary for Ireland than the present one which put him up to try the the strength of his own character as a genuine friend of Ireland to remove the impression created by the halting and ambiguous phrases of Lord Rosebery's speech. Whatever Mr. Morley might say, he declared Ireland would not trust Lord Rosebery. He, (Redmond), repudiated Lord Rosebery's doctrine that an English majority was necessary for the passage of Home Rule. The theory was insulting and humiliating to Ireland, who alone had the right to decide. If Lord Rosebery's doctrine was right, the Lords had the power to continue to throw out Home Rule or any other measure the House of Commons might pass. If that right belonged to the House of Lords, through privilege by birth, then he declared Great Britain would ring with the cry for its abolition.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain said the Unionists were satisfied with the adhesion of the Government to their old policy, as it gave a definite issue on which to meet them on all sides. Everybody, he thought ought to be satisfied except, perhaps, Mr. Labouchere, who was going about like Diogenes with his lantern, looking for an honest friend.

Mr. Labouchere retorted that he cared nothing about the sneers of defecting Radicals. His constitutents, he said, had given him their mandate and he intended to fulfil it by moving an amendment to the address that the power now enjoyed by persons not elected to Parliament through the usual franchise, yet were able to prevent the passage of bills, shall cease. (Cheers.)

Sir William Harcourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer, opposed the amendment in an impressive speech, taking the ground that a measure of such grave character ought to be taken only after the most serious deliberation.

Peixoto Does not Accept Da Gama's Capitulation.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Secretary Gresham received a long cipher dispatch from Minister Thompson this afternoon saying that President Peixoto had refused the terms of surrender by Admiral Da Gama and that the forts had opened fire on the insurgents with a determination to force them into unconditional surrender. The final revised translation of the dispatch was given as follows: "The forts loyal to the Government commenced firing on the insurgents to-day at noon. The insurgents have not returned the fire. The Government has refused the terms of capitulation offered by Da Gama and announces it will commence firing from the city batteries at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The city of Rio is practically deserted."

Secretary Gresham and his advisors were litterally astounded by the despatch. Although the despatches received last night from Minister Thompson suffered considerably in transmission, or else in putting them into cipher at Rio, enough was learned from those parts which were deciphered to justify the interpretation then placed on them, that DaGama had consented to become an exile and deliver up his vessels on the sole condition that the lives of his followers would be spared. It was not for an instant doubted that these terms would prove acceptable to Peixoto and that he would promptly grant the partial amnesty, which was considered so reasonable. Officials here to-day were congratulating each other that the troublesome disorder among the Brazilian coast was settled and that commerce would no longer be hampered. At the Cabinet meeting this morning, every one present expressed satisfaction that the end had been reached. One hour later a messenger from the State Department hurried over to the White House with the latest news, which upset all previous calculations. The Navy Department, which had been annoyed at the failure of Admiral Benham to confirm the pleasing news of the day before, had suggested the explanation that he was probably too far down the bay to learn what information was accessible to Minister Thompson in the city, but confidence was expressed that the necessity for maintaining the United States fleet in its present proportions was on the eve of disappearing, and the next despatch from the admiral would in all likelihood announce the cessation of hostilities and he would proceed down the coast to watch Mello. The officials were surprised late in the afternoon by receiving the following despatch from Admiral Benham, dated March 13: "Notice has been given by the government that the bombardment of the insurgents' ships and forts will commence at high noon, March 13th. The insurgent admiral, it is reported, has taken refuge on board the Portuguese man-of-war. On inquiry, I find he is not on board yet."

The Printers Protest.

OTTAWA, March 13.—A deputation of printers, representing the Typographical Unions of Montreal, Toronto, and Ottawa, waited on the tariff committee of the Dominion Government to-day, and urged the retention of the present duties on stereotype plates. The printers pointed out that there was an abundance of plate matter produced in Canada, which gave employment to a large number of printers, stereotypers and others, who would be thrown out of employment if the duty on American plates was removed. They also claimed that the moral tone of American plate matter was greatly below that of the Canadian and was calculated to injure the morals of the people, especially of the young. The committee promised to consider the matter.

WELLINGTON SOLID

FOR THE PRESENT PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT.

Mr. John Bryden Unanimously Nominated by a Large and Representative Meeting to Represent North Nanaimo District.

Last night at 8 o'clock the Institute Hall at Wellington was crowded to the doors with supporters of the present Provincial Government, met together for the purpose of discussing the present political situation and to select a candidate in the interest of the present Government in the next contest. Mr. Sharpe, chairman of the executive committee, appointed a short time ago to take the matter in hand, occupied the chair.

Upon calling the meeting to order Mr. Sharp read the notice published and the object of the meeting and then declared it open for business.

Mr. John Matthews then moved a resolution of confidence in the present Government which was seconded by Mr. Thos. Haggart. Both mover and seconder spoke in favor of the motion and briefly reviewed the policy of the Government, showing why the country should continue to support the present ministers.

Mr. Wm. Badcock said the time had come when a change was necessary. He said it appeared that the present members considered they had done their duty when they had got the votes of the electors, and that nothing more was required of them until another election was declared. The electors had no right to go out of the district for a representative.

Captain Dillon spoke in favor of the resolution and endorsed the general policy of the Government.

Mr. E. M. N. Yarwood being present was then called upon. Mr. Yarwood said he had always been a supporter of the present ministry and their predecessors because he believed their policy in the past as contrasted with that of the Opposition was in the best interest of the province. Mr. Yarwood referred to the many acts introduced by the present Government with a view to the better development of the resources of the province notably the one providing for the department of agriculture and the subsequent arrangements for carrying out its provisions. He did not consider the district had received justice at the hands of the present members and belived a change in the representation was absolutely necessary.

Mr. Robt. Scott said he endorsed the policy of the present Government and desired to see a man sent from the district free to use his best judgment, one who will support the general policy of the Government but free to oppose those measures which he conscientiously felt were not for the benefit of the people. He considered the Government had given a very fair redistribution bill and that an equal division of the representation as between Island and Mainland had been strictly maintained.

Mr. W. J. Gallagher of THE TELEGRAM was then called upon. He briefly referred to the work being done by the present Government towards the better development of the country, and said that this district had not suffered so much from indifference or neglect on the part of the Government as it had done from neglect on the part of the members who were now supposed to represent at Victoria the views of the people here. As far as he was able to learn there was not a single instance on record where one of the present members visited their constituents for the purpose of finding out their needs. Not only this but when in Victoria they had taken little or no trouble to interview the members of the Government regarding the requirements of Nanaimo city and district and while the Government had expended a great deal of money for public works and improvements in this district, it might have been distributed to better advantage had the local members done their duty. Last year Nanaimo district contributed towards the Provincial revenue

About	$19,665 58
And the city	15,885 00
Making a total of	$35,550 58

While the Government expended in return for this $54,646.50. It would be seen from these figures that although the members of the Government had the interest of the whole province to keep in view they had not neglected this section of it. He hoped that in selecting a candidate to-night they would choose one who would go in prepared to support the policy of the Government on general lines at the same time reserving to himself the right to oppose any measures he believed not to be in the interest of the people.

Mr. John Thompson, upon taking the platform, said he took pleasure in nominating Mr. John Bryden. In making a nomination of this kind, Mr. Thompson said it was his duty to give some reasons for bringing forward a candidate. He had known Mr. Bryden for fourteen years, and knew him to be an honest man. He was closely identified with the largest interests in the place, interests upon the success of which the success of Wellington and the northern district generally depend for their very existence. His experience of Mr. Bryden led him to believe that he would represent the district faithfully and well, and that when his term of office expired the electors would not regret the choice they had made.

The nomination was seconded by Mr. James Hamilton, who briefly endorsed all that Mr. Thompson had said in favor of Mr. Bryden.

Mr. Bryden was received with great applause. He thanked the large audience for the honor conferred upon him. He wished, however, that the nomination had been given to some one else. He approved of the general policy of the Government but did not endorse all they proposed or did. He would never go to Victoria under a pledge to blindly support the policy of the Government. He would not exactly refuse to stand in the contest, but would advise them to try and find another man to represent them. He would have much preferred it if the choice had fallen on someone else, and after further consideration, if the meeting should decide on someone else he would promise to give him his hearty support.

Mr. M. E. Dickinson, of Nanoose, heartily endorsed Mr. Bryden's candidature. He said that one time they had had a road meeting up in his district and after a great deal of trouble had persuaded one of the local representatives to meet them but got no satisfaction from him. He believed Mr. Bryden would get the hearty support of all the settlers in his district.

Mr. John Belyea also a settler of Nanoose endorsed Mr. Dickinson's remarks in reference to Mr. Bryden. He was generally looked upon in the upper end of the district as the coming representative.

Mr. James Knight a farmer of Nanoose also endorsed Mr. Bryden and believed he would get almost the unanimous support of his district. Mr. Bryden again came forward in response to a general appeal from the audience and under strong pressure formally accepted the nomination. Mr. Bryden said he had reached that time of life where he he felt that he should rest from the turmoil of active life. It was over fifty years since he first began mining, forty of which he had been manager in various capacities, and over thirty-one of which he had spent in the district. He again thanked the meeting for the expressions of confidence they had shown him and said that if at any time later they should decide on another candidate he would gladly retire and give him all the support he could.

Before closing, Mr. Sharpe, the chairman of the district committee, said he desired to state a few reasons why he supported the policy of the Government, pointing out the many things inaugurated by the present Ministry to make known and develop the resources of the country. He also pointed out the great market here for agricultural products, and that by developing the rural districts much of the food supplies now imported could be produced here. The Premier, Mr. Davie, had brought in a labor bill, which, had it been made law, would have no doubt been a great factor in smoothing over disputes between capital and labor. Mr. Davie had, however, considered it better to postpone its enactment until the question had been finally decided in England and thus enable the Government of this Province to bring in the best measure possible.

The speaker also endorsed the attitude of the Government on the Chinese question and approved of a bill being brought in that would exclude all dangerous elements in mines.

Mr. Robert Scott again urged those present to do all possible to elect their candidate. He thought organization should be at once instituted.

The nomination was carried by every man rising to his feet.

Mr. Bryden then said: "Gentlemen since you have been good enough to nominate me I hope you will now work to secure my election." (prolonged applause.)

After a short discussion the following committees were appointed:

Mr Dillon then moved a vote of thanks to the chairman which was unanimously carried.

Mr John Bryden, the Government candidate for North Nanaimo district, is one of the oldest miners in the province. A native of Ayrshire, Scotland, he first began mining in his native country about 1843 since which time he has been actively engaged in the business in almost every capacity peculiar to coal mining. In 1862 3 he attended the Glasgow school of miners where he carried off first prizes both years. He has been employed as manager in various capacities about mines for over forty years of his long experience and is as much a miner to-day as when he wielded a pick with a pit lamp in his cap. A little over thirty-one years ago he came to British Columbia to enter the service of the New Vancouver Coal Company and continued with the latter for about eighteen years. He afterwards become connected with the Wellington mines and has been closely identified with their progress ever since. He is extremely popular amongst the miners who look upon him as a thoroughly honorable and just employer.

A White Wings Contest.

CANNES, March 13.—The first day of the Cannes regatta opened clear, with a light southeast breeze. The events of the regatta are the cups given by Gordon Bennett and Ogden Godet. The course is 30 miles. The competitors for the first cup are the Britannia, Valkyrie, First Floreal and Oretta.

Da Gama With the Portuguese.

LISBON, March 13.—Rio dispatches confirm the report that Da Gama has taken refuge on board the Portuguese corvette Mundello. The commander of that vessel has asked the Portugal government for instructions in regard to restoring the ships and forts to the government.

Michael Davitt on Home Rule.

LONDON, March 13.—In the lobby of the House of Commons, Michael Davitt said today: "It is useless to shut our eyes to tho fact that Rosebery's language creates virtually a new departure of the Liberal party on questions of Home Rule. The Unionist Lords must be convinced of the justice of Home Rule before it will be granted to Ireland. That is Rosebery's dectrine.

England the Predominating Member.

LONDON, March 13.—The reference to Home Rule made by Lord Rosebery last night in the House of Lords, which has occasioned so much comment, was as follows: "The noble lord (Lord Salisbury) has made one remark on the subject of Home Rule with which I confess myself in entire accord. He said that before Irish Home Rule could be conceded by the Imperial Parliament, England, as the predominant member of the partnership of the three kingdoms, must be convinced of its justice."

The Irish Groups Disturbed.

LONDON, March 13.—The Parnellite Wing of the Irish party has openly denounced Rosebery's statement about converting England to Home Rule and the McCarthyite section is also angry at the Premier's utterance. The Globe says that there is not one among the McCarthyites who does not see that the Premier practically dropped Home Rule. The Conservative papers this afternoon are all agreed Rosebery has virtually abandoned Home Rule.

Da Gama Will Leave the Country.

RIO JANERIO, March 13.—It is believed President Peixoto is disposed to deal leniently with Da Gama and the insurgents. The insurgents offer to turn over all the forts in the bay now in their hands and all warships which have been under their command, and to surrender the garrison of the forts and the crews of the vessels to the federal authorities on the condition that Da Gama and his forces be allowed to leave the country under Portuguese protection and that rebellious soldiers and sailors be spared their lives.

Yates' Cable.

It is probable that Lord Spencer and Mr. Bruce will be the ministers in attendance on the Queen during her stay in Florence. A special wire has been laid between the Martin Hotel and Mentone for the exclusive use of the Count and Countess Hohenembs as the Emperor and Empress are to be styled during their stay in the Riviera.

The Prince of Wales arrived at the Martin Hotel on Friday at noon at luncheon with the Emperor and Empress of Austria. After lunch he looked over a great portion of the hotel with which he expressed himself delighted. It was generally noticed he had grown very much thinner than he was last autumn, but he seemed remarkably well and in excellent spirits. He returned late in the afternoon to Cannes.

Villa Fabbricott, where Queen Victoria will make her home in Florence, was built between 1865 and 1867 under the direction of the well-known architect Michels, and stands on Moonlight Hill, to the left of the Balgona road. The present house occupies the site of the famous Villa Ayli Ancipressi, which belonged for five centuries to one of the most distinguished Florentine families. The sitting rooms are all large and superbly ornamented with frescoes. The interior of the house is most admirably arranged, either as a winter or summer residence, and the Queen cannot fail to be pleased with it.

The "Anecdotard," as might have been expected, has been busy in the smoking rooms and other centres of the latest intelligence with reference to Lord Roseberry. It is related that one day at Newmarket, while en route to the course, Lord Rosebery asked Harry Ulph, a leading bookmaker, what price he would lay against a certain horse for one of the big races. The ready bookmaker named a figure which as may be conceived was not one above the market odds. Lord Rosebery rode a few paces, then pulling up said confidentially, "Ulph," "Yes my Lord," replied the bookmaker ready for a deal. "I ought to tell you that such prices as satisfied Lord Dalmeny will not do for Rosebery."

Ulph who, most strange to say, is a Gladstonian of the deepest dye, on one occasion during the general election left the race meeting in order to vote for a Gladstonian candidate in a remote district. The journey involved the loss of a day's racing and as it happened, business from a bookmakers point of view was particularly good. As it turned out that expedition saved the election, for the Gladstonian won by one vote. The circumstance was a good deal talked about and a favorable opportunity occuring Lord Rosebery introduced Ulph to the Grand Old Man.

HAWAII.

The people of the United States are giving themselves a great deal of unnecessary trouble over the Hawaiian question. The Canadian people are entitled to a say in it, as well as their American cousins. As Hawaii is the half-way house between our half-brothers of the antipodes and ourselves, Great Britain and Canada cannot allow the islands to pass under a flag in which they would recognize an antagonist. We hope that the Dominion Government will see to this, have the matter properly represented to the Imperial Government, and that the Governments of Australia will help. It is of essential importance to the success and usefulness of the projected British Pacific cable, and the fast mail route to Australia, that Hawaii should remain neutral. Situated as the islands are, forming the half-way house between the vast empire in the southern heimsphere and the grand heritage of the hardy sons of Britain who occupy the northern and better half of North America, it is idle nonsense of President Dole and his filibustering associates to talk of annexation to the United States. We care not under what form the Government may be administered. 'Tis the same to us, a monarchy or a republic, but Hawaii must be neutral. We ask only for an equal show in common with others We are willing that the same rights should be accorded to all who come that we claim for ourselves, but the people of Canada will not allow themselves to be placed in a position to ask as a favor what they now claim as a right.

GLADSTONE'S POLICY TO BE CARRIED OUT.

The political pot is still boiling in Great Britain, and its chief cook will reguire to exercise as much skill as Mr. Gladstone himself, if he is to prevent it from boiling over. Lord Rosebery is an able and resolute politican, but it remains to be seen if he possesses the skill of the old parliamentary hand. The task before him is one of extraordinary complexity and difficulty. "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown," says Shakespeare, but if the poet lived in our day he would apply the words rather to the Prime Minister of England than to the actual wearer of its crown. It was quite true in the days of Henry VII., who was his own prime minister, and would be equaly true if written of the Czar of Russia in our day; but Queen Victoria is more fortunate. She can sleep at her ease if her health is good, and leave Lord Rosebery or somebody else, who acts as premier, to do the thinking for her. Lord Rosebery's greatest trouble is with his own followers. It will nearly pass the wit of man to satisfy them all, and unless he can contrive to do so, to some extent at least, one faction or another of them will be sure to mutiny, and by joining with the opposition, if only for a day, defeat the Government and compel an appeal to the country in a general election. This will have to be brought on any way this year, if only to decide the questions at issue between the Commons and the Lords.

The speech from the throne, which was read on Monday was, as expected, very short—one of the shortest on record. It referred mostly to the unfinished business of the Gladstonian programme. Bills for registration reforms, Scotch and Welsh disestablishment, for the equalization of rates in London, and the establishment of local government in Scotland on the same basis as in England, were promised. Nothing is said of Ireland, except that the state of things there has improved, and agrarian crime been reduced to the lowest point reached for the last fifteen years. It is added that a measure will be submitted with a view to a reasonable settlement of the question deeply affecting the well-being of Ireland. This is very vague, and may be construed to mean nearly anything that suits. It can hardly refer to the Home Rule question, as it does not seem likely that the Government will introduce another Home Rule bill in this parliament. We suppose that it refers to the evicted tenants' question. Lord Rosebery's speech in the House of Lords did not throw much additional light on his policy. He asked the indulgence of the Peers, as he had been forced into the position he occupied by a sudden call to replace Mr. Gladstone. It appears, however, that there is to be no change of measures, that the new administration is to continue the policy of Mr. Gladstone's Government respecting the group of Irish questions—is, in fact, bound to do so by every tie of honor. It appears that this enunciation of his policy was made by Lord Rosebery at a meeting of the Liberal leaders on Monday. As a proof of the Government's sincerity regarding Ireland, the Premier pointed to the fact that Mr. Morley had decided to remain in the Irish office. Lord Rosebery further stated that the Government was in entire agreement with Mr. Gladstone's last declarations respecting the House of Lords.

All this is evidently intended to placate the Radicals. It will at any rate satisfy moderate Liberals, and will probably disarm Radical hostility in the meantime, till the leaders of the party see what course the Government actually takes. In the House of Commons Sir William Vernon Harcourt elicted cheers by announcing that the first measure to be introduced by the Government, under the new Premier, was the registration bill. Secretary Asquith gave notice of the introduction of a bill to disestablish the Welsh Church, Mr. Shaw-Lefevre of one equalizing the London rates, and Mr. Mundella announced that a bill would be introduced providing for the arbitration of labor disputes. Sir William Vernon Harcourt also gave notice of the Government's intention to submit a bill granting local control over the liquor traffic. Sir William regretted that Home Rule was not put in the fore front. He said that the sooner the question was decided the better, that Ireland ought to know if the bill is to be passed and that the Government ought not to put Home Rule into the Queen's speech, year after year, unless they mean to carry it. The address in reply to the speech was approved by the House of Commons.

These assurances are evidently intended to quiet the Irish Home Rulers, who are becoming suspicious and uneasy. Mr. Timothy Harrington, M. P., protested against the laying aside of Home Rule, which Mr. Gladstone was to pursue without cessation. Postponement, he declared, meant abandonment. The anti-Parnellites were holding a caucus while the Queen's speech was being read, and it is not yet known on this side the ocean what course they will take; but they must be very unreasonable, as well as impatient, if they are not satisfied with the Government's assurance that they mean to carry out Mr. Gladstone's policy in respect to Home Rule and everything else. The political turmoil in Great Britain can only be quieted by a general election, and the sooner it is brought on the better

THE ANTI-PARNELLITE leaders of the Irish Home Rulers are said to have already obtained sufficient information to convince them that the Government's course will not be satisfactory to them. This means that no section of the Irish Home Rulers have any confidence in Lord Rosebery's Government, the Pernellites having already repudiated it.

THE German-Russian treaty has passed its second roading in the German reichstag by a majority of 50 votes. There is no doubt that the treaty will be finally ratified by the reichstag by a good majority—probably more than 50. The friends of peace between Germany and its mighty neighbor on its northeastern boundary will rejoice. The treaty is not a guarantee of peace, but it will tend in that direction by promoting good will between the two Governments, if not between the two nations.

A DYNAMITE petard was exploded on Friday near a church in Fuenberreballo, in the district of Segovia in Spain. The sexton of the church and the mayor of the village were killed. The old proverb, about the nearer the church the further from God, seems to have been true in this case. If the mayor had kept away from the church he might have been alive still. The sexton, poor man, we suppose had to be around. It is not known who placed the bomb; but no doubt the Anarchists will get the credit of it.

IT is announced from Washington that that there is a hitch in the negotiations between Great Britain and the United States on the subject of the enforcement of the decision of the Paris tribunal relative to the protection of seals in Behring Sea. Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador at Washington, is understood to contend that the regulations suggested by the Paris tribunal are unduly severe, in prescribing the length of the close season and the extent of the prohibited zone. It is further stated that there is no immediate prospect of an agreement being reached on the subject of the construction of the regulations. Sir Julian Pauncefote urges that a strict enforcement of the arbitrators' regulations will seriously injure the Canadian sealers' interests, but so far no concessions requested by England have been granted. It looks at present that the Americans will be left by Great Britain to do the policing of Behring sea themselves, in order to protect the seal herds, if it is to be done at all. It is but just that the Americans should pay for it, as they and not the British would profit by it.

The Highest Authority in America.

"Did you ever hear of a place called Nanaimo? It is on the Island of Vancouver and 75 miles from Victoria. If you live in what you consider an enterprising city and believe that your local daily paper is first-class, write to the publisher of THE DAILY TELEGRAM, Nanaimo, British Columbia, and ask for a sample copy of his paper, and when you obtain it compare it with your home production. Go down and talk with the publisher about it afterwards, and ask him why it is that he can't print as good a paper, or obtain as good a local patronage, or have his paper as free from dead-head or objectionable advertisements? A useful lesson may be learned from Nanaimo."

VICTORIA, March 13. — [Special]—The mystery surrounding the fate of the schooner, Mary Brown, which sailed from Alaska for this port upwards of three months ago, and which was the object of the search made by the United States Revenue Cutter Wolcott, quite recently, has at last been solved. It is all but certain that the unfortunate vessel, in trying to make the inner passage round Graham Island, was caught in one of the storms, so frequent in that locality, and all hands perished. Direct information, strongly confirmatory of this theory and establishing conclusively the loss of the Mary Brown was received this morning in private letters from the Skeena, one to Mr. George M. Denny, giving particulars which render it impossible to doubt the accurracy of the news. The reference to the Mary Brown in this communication reads: Some canoes came in from Kitkatla the other day, and and reported a schooner on the rocks at the upper end of Banks Island. They say that the name on the flag is Brown; They could only see that much, the rest of the bow being torn away. The vessel has a large hole in her bow, and her masts are both gone. The boats that are hanging at the davits are badly broken and the vessel has evidently been there some time. The Indians picked up three rifles, three watches, a lot of .45-90 cartridges, shot, powder, gum boots, and some money, but there were no signs of any one having been around at all. It is believed that everyone belonging to the craft perished before she went on. Banks Island is just below the mouth of the Skeena, and separating Hecate Strait from the principal channel."

The debate on the Nakusp and Slocan Railway guarantee was resumed by Beaven in the House this afternoon, on motion for second reading of the bill. He emphasized a contention that in the absence of an order in council, authorizing initiatory proceedings, the guarantee had been illegally made and was in excess of the power given by the railway aid act. He argued that the guarantee should have been simply given on the cost of construction, said to be $17,500 per mile, in place of $25,000, and that even the smaller sum is more than the construction should have cost. At six o'clock, Beaven again moved the adjournment of the debate.

THE WELLINGTON OUTRAGE.

An Interview with Mr. Sharpe, the Intended Victim.

The people of Wellington are naturally and justly indignant at the outrage perpetrated at the residence of Mr. Alex. Sharpe yesterday morning. About 3:30 on Tuesday morning the whole district was awakened by a loud report, which many at first supposed was an explosion in the mines. The real source, however, was soon discovered, and the indignant inhabitants rallied round the intended victim in loyal style, offering their truest sympathies and heartily wishing they could only get hold of the villainous creature who placed the bomb where it exploded. Had the perpetrator been discovered at that juncture there is little doubt but that he would have suffered lynch law. The bomb was found to be a piece of 1½ in. steam piping with one end fitted for a cap which had been plugged with a wood stopper. The piece of piping is supposed to have been originally about 2 feet in length. In the middle of the pipe, giant powder had been placed with nails, bits of iron etc. and at the ends fine coal dust was rammed down tight with a fuse attached to one end.

In an interview which a representative of THE TELEGRAM had with Mr. Sharpe, he said he had no reason to suspect anyone in the employ of the company or within the district of Wellington. He was not aware of any man living having a grudge against him which would warrant any injury much less trying to kill him and his family in such a dastardly manner. Mr. Sharpe felt convinced that there is no one employed in the mines who would have done such a deed. He is totally at a loss to conceive or conjecture who the miscreant or instigator of the diabolical crime can be. He doesn't even remember any employe having been discharged from the mines who would be likely to be the perpetrator.

On Sunday night Mrs. Sharpe's brother and his wife visited them and was prevailed upon to stay the night, Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe relinquishing their own bed-room for the occasion and sleeping at the back of the house. On Monday night Mrs. Sharpe said it was scarcely worth while changing the bed-clothes, so they again occupied a room at the back. Had this not happened so, it is probable that they would at least have been injured if not killed. It is evident that the perpetrator knew of the position of their bedroom and placed the bomb where he thought it would have the most deadly effect.

Up to the present there is no clue to the dynamiter, but the local authorities are following the matter up, and the company of Robert Dunsmuir & Sons has decided to offer a reward of $500. It is generally thought in the district that the Government should supplement this with at least $1,000 to insure the safety of the residents and the capture of the miscreant, who is worse than any murderer.

A Strange Coincidence.

Although we do not wish to create public prejudice against any political organization, it seems, however, a strange coincidence that the recent dynamite outrage at Wellington occurred but a few hours after the formation in that section of a branch of a certain political organization with well known leanings to anarchy and Sunday meetings.

More About the Mary Brown.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13.—The schooner Mary Brown is reported wrecked in a Victoria dispatch to-day, on Sand Point, Oct. 3rd. 1893. Since that date no authentic news has been received about her. Of the men who sailed in her the names of only three can be ascertained. One was Jas. L. O'Brien, a member of the Lynde and Hough Co., another Captain Gaffney, of Lake County, and the third was Captain M. Brown, owner of the vessel. It was originally the intention of the party to come to San Francisco on the Czarina, but Capt. Schmeltz insisted on the men going with him on a cruise among the islands. They refused and the Czarina left without them. The weather was unfavorable and in a few days the schooner was back. In the meantime O'Brien and Gaffney had made arrangements with Capt. Brown, of the "Mary Brown," and decided to stick by their bargain. Both men sent letters and their effects to their families in San Francisco by the Czarina and then took passage on the Mary Brown. The letters and effects arrived, but the two named and others found watery graves. When O'Brien went to Sand Point as agent for Lynde & Hughin '86, the place was almost a wilderness with a rickety warehouse on the shore. When he left it, there were wharves and an ample store, comfortable buildings and prosperous businesses. He was well known in San Francisco; his father and mother live here and his sister is teacher in one of the public schools. Captain Gaffney was a young man and had been nearly all his life in the employment of Lynde & Hough.

He was to have succeeded O'Brien as manager of the Sand Point store. His home was Lake county, where he leaves a wife and three children. Mrs. Gaffney and Mrs. Hazelton, O'Brien's sister, were the ladies who induced the government to send the cutter Wolcott to search for the missing schooner.

Minister Thurston Will Marry.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13.—It is stated to-day that Hawaiian Minister Thurston, whose intended marriage to Miss Harriet W. Potter, of St. Joseph, Mich., was announced in Chicago yesterday, will sail from this port for Honolulu after the wedding instead of resuming his residence at Washington. It is further stated that Minister Thurston's marriage will probably in effect mark the termination of his diplomatic career in this country, but this cannot be confirmed.

PROVINCIAL COMMENTARY.

"'A Man of no Importance' is being produced in a New York theatre. It is understood that Mr. Cotton holds all rights to the title.'"

"There was a rumor current last week that Speaker Higgins would be summoned for keeping a disorderly House and Winnie Brown for being an inmate of the same."

"An American writer sneeringly remarks that we have practically no profound thinkers as regards questions of political economy in Canada. Of a verity this writer must have been denied the glorious privilege of reading Mr. Thos. Keith's recent brochure as to the future possibilities of the 'manufacture of Chinese pig-tails.'"

The case of David Douglas, arrested last week on a capias, is exciting a good deal of comment and sympathy. The plaintiff in the matter is the Lang Tanning Co., of Berlin, Ont., whose claim with costs amounts to $942.85. The Lang Co. will, however, agree to his release on the payment of half the claim with costs, which would amount to $570. It appears that until this claim is satisfied Douglas will have to remain under arrest. Friends of the unfortunate young man are moving in the matter and they will probably secure his release almost immediately.—Columbian.

It is devoutly hoped that the alterations and improvements at the post office will include a different hanging of the front doors. The genius which placed them as they are has been long consigned, mentally, to other spheres.

It would have delighted the hearts of the temperance folk to have seen the Union Co.'s beer spilling yesterday. The team took fright at something immediately south of the Wilson House and bolted away without doing much damage.

The Salvation Army set up a counter attraction to "McFee of Dublin" last night. Ten assumptive virgins, clad in white, preceded the band parade. Whether they represented the wise or the foolish ones is difficult to say.

Our "steemed" contemporary is evidently not aware that there is no legal library in in this office, nor any pretensions to being "solicitors." The advisory comment made on the management of the Nanaimo Poultry Society was graciously gratis, and the feeble retort is assurance that it was not made in vain.

Spelling Bee at St. Albans.

Among many valuable prizes to be given at the St. Alban's spelling bee to-night, are, an Album presented by Mr. Langton, a reading lamp by Captain Honeyman, a book by Messrs Pimbury & Co., water color paintings and a bronze medal. The success of the last bee was so great the scheme has been enlarged, making two divisions of spellers. During the evening, selections of instrumental music will be played. The conditions laid down for competitors are as follows:

Admission 10 cents. No further entrance fee for competitors. Mr. W. Hunter will select and give the words. Two referees will be selected from the audience. There will be two divisions for competitors; school teachers may only compete in the last division. Prizes will be given in each division. Commencement will be made in words of one syllable, proceeding to two, and polysyllables; proper names will not be given; technical, scientific and foreign words will not be given, except they are anglicized or fairly well known. Competitors may ask the meaning of their words. Any standard spelling will be accepted; but objections or protests must be made at the time or they cannot be considered.

Royal Templars of Temperance.

[Communicated.]

The Royal Templars spent a very pleasant time at their rooms last evening. A good list of practical business was done and one more fine young man made a member of our council. An informal social farewell was tendered Bro. Rev. Dr. Good. Refreshments were provided by the ladies. In the departure of Dr. Good we lose a useful, energetic and estimable member of our council, and we wish him God speed wherever he goes. The most important feature of the meeting was the adoption of the following resolution, viz:

"Whereas negotiations are in progress between the Dominion Government and France for the admission of light wines into Canada for a long term of years at a fixed rate of duty and inasmuch as such a treaty, if enacted, could not be abrogated, only by the lapse of time, thus preventing the enactment of a prohibitory law. Therefore be it resolved that this council enters its earnest and solemn protest against such a treaty being entered into by our Dominion Parliament. Also that a copy of this resolution under seal of this council, be presented for endorsement to all temperance bodies churches and societies and thereupon forwarded to the M, P. for this locality. Also that all councils of R. T. of T. in B. C. be urged to take similar immediate action.

Mr. J. N. Muir.

Mr. J. N. Muir has written a letter to this paper. Mr. J. N. Muir does not suppose that it will be published. Mr. J. N. Muir was quite right in that supposition. Mr. J. N. Muir has constituted himself indicter general of the Government. Mr. J. N. Muir has also appointed himself press censor of all the papers that do not agree with him. Mr. J. N. Muir is an ex-school teacher. Mr. J. N. Muir is pleased at nothing, but surely, Mr. J. N. Muir should be pleased with this frequent repetition of his name. Mr. J. N. Muir might write himself down in the same class with Dogberry. Mr. J. N. Muir, THE TELEGRAM bids you an eternal farewell.

NEWS NOTES FROM KASLO.

THE PROCESS OF RECOVERY FROM THE FIRE---SILVER PROSPECTS BRIGHT---THE KASLO & SLOCAN READY FOR GRADING.

(Special to The Colonist.)

KASLO, March 10.—The citizens of Kaslo are just now beginning to settle down to every day occupation after the excitement of the fire. It is not probable that much building will be done on the burnt area until the weather breaks for the Spring. Most of the business men burned out have secured temporary quarters on A avenue or Fourth street, and are making out very fairly, considering all things. Buchanan's saw mill has been working away energetically during the week, getting out material for the expected building boom a month or six weeks hence.

Already there are signs that the price of silver will improve—not only the dispatches from Europe and India regarding the changed feeling in Great Britain's Eastern Empire. The re-opening of the Indian mints to coinage of silver would stiffen up the market wonderfully, and the trend of events appears to be in that direction.

Considerable quantities of ore continue to come in daily.

Engineer McMillan, of the Kaslo & Slocan railway, returned from the Coast yesterday, and to-morrow will take out a large gang to resume work on bridge construction between here and Bear Lake. The right of way is now pretty nearly cleared from Kaslo to Sandon creek. All the contracts are through with but one, and this will be completed within a fortnight Everything is in readiness for grading when the snow goes off.

THOMAS KITCHIN

CHINA PAINTING.

A Short Lesson Illustrated With a Simple Working Design.

One of the banes of the beginner in china painting is that the painting may become full of little specks, although there is apparently no dust in the room. The hard glaze of the china absorbs none of the paint, and each particle coarser than the others draws them to it. If fired in this way, your work is spoiled. Learn to work smoothly with the least possible medium after your paints are prepared, and they will not "crawl." When they do, dry your piece in the oven, then with the needle remove the specks and carefully fill up the white spot with the point of your brush very lightly and matching the color perfectly.

If your colors remain dull and are liable to rub off, it must be that on each occasion the china was underfired, and the colors were not fused into the glaze. If tube colors are too thick, a little lavender oil, which partakes of the nature of spirits, is as good as anything for thinning. Turpentine also answers the purpose, but has the disadvantage of drying up too quickly through rapid evaporation.

Art Amateur, to which the foregoing practical advice is due, furnishes the dainty working design here given. A pale tint of either ivory yellow, chinese yellow, yellow brown or yellow green can be used for the background. When dry, the spaces for the flowers can be removed. For tinting the flowers use violets of gold, carmine and purple, with bleu riche and occasional touches of bleu fouie, mixing yellow and black, according to the depth of tint desired. As all violet tones appear redder after than before the fire, make necessary provision for the change by adding blue. When two firings are proposed, this addition is reserved for the second firing. Pure tints of red and of blue touched in separately produce the most vivid of purples. Dull secondary tints are obtained by mixing violet of iron with blue, but care should be taken not to mix this red with the oxides of gold. The inner and outer edges of this design can either be filled in with fluxed gold or a mere line of gold can be used to separate the ground tint from a deeper shade of the same.

THE PROPER CAPER.

Novel French skirts are shaped with many gores, then gathered front and back, but left with a plain smooth gore at the sides.

The statement that very many openwork and embroidered white silk stockings were included in Princess May's trousseau will doubtless do much toward giving this fashion a fillip.

There is a sudden revival of all the rich and pale shades of brown, from auburn, chestnut, vandyke, etc., through the many handsome half tones, to beige, fawn and pale amber brown.

A summer coat for wear on cool days or evenings is made of black English serge, open, and turned back in front with either white or colored bengaline silk revers. The coat is tight fitting in the back.

Belted round waists, single breasted or in double directoire fashion, with plastron and revers or yoke and girdle, are in the height of fashion, being this season almost as greatly favored by tailors as by the dressmakers.

Embroidered French muslins, with delicate flower borders, are made into youthful looking empire dresses, hooked behind, the dainty borders forming a yoke and edging the round, full empire skirt either in bands or little frills.

Many of the plainer English serge and hopsacking gowns made by the best of tailors are simply finished by two or three rows of stitching and rely upon the fancy silk shirt waist for the only touch of decoration and brightness about the dress.

White dresses show touches of deep color here and there, and airy textiles are often used as a transparency to throw a creamy film over rose pink, corn yellow and willow green, with now and then a somber note provided by a toilet of black gauze, net or lace.—New York Evening Post.

Points About Needles.

The great sail needle, which has to be pushed with a steel palm, would puzzle most people: so, too, the broommaker's needle, which must also be pushed with a steel palm. The curious knitting machine needle, with us latchet; the arrasene and crewel needles, and the needle for shirring machines; the weaver's pin for picking up broken threads, with an open eye in the hook. The needle, as we see it today, is the evolved product of centuries of invention. In its primitive form it was made of bone, ivory or wood. The making of Spanish needles was introduced into England during the neign of Queen Elizabeth. Point by point the manufacture has improved.—L. G. Vance in Ladies' Home Journal.

The Christian Name.

The term "Christian name" is used in England and America only. "Baptismal name" is used in other countries. The terms seems to have been used first after the reformation, when Biblical names were used as a reaction against the use of the saints' names in the calendar. It is evident that all Biblical names are not Christian, but the reaction went so far as to consider everything in the Bible as Christian and everything not in the Bible as pagan or certainly nonchristian.—New York Evening Sun.

A Monster Sundial.

A large promontory in the Ægean sea, known as Hayon Horoo, extends 3,000 feet above the level of the water. As the sun swings around the shadow of this mountain touches one by one a circle of islands separated by regular intervals, which act as hour marks. It is the largest sundial in the world.—St. Louis Republic.

OLD WINTERS ON THE FARM.

I've jest about decides
It'd keep a town boy hoppin
Fer to work all winter choppin,
Fer a old fireplace, like I did.
Laws! Them old times was contrairy—
Blame backbone o' winter, 'peared like
Wouldn't break, and I was skeeredlike
Clean on into Feb'uary.
Nothin ever made me madder
Than fer pap to stomp in, layin
On a extra forestick, sayin,
"Groun'hog's out and seed his shadder."
—James Whitcomb Riley.

Waste That Is Now Valuable.

A generation ago there was hardly a mill of any kind that was not troubled with a heap of rubbish or waste material that it did not know what to do with. Silk manufacturers saw the rise of this heap with annoyance, and they took it as a favor if any one would cart it away and use it as a fertilizer. An English inventor guessed at the possibilities in this pile of refuse and set about inventing machinery to utilize it. Today, as a result of his foresight and genius, 5,000 persons are employed in making the finest silk plushes, ribbons and velvets from the refuse piles of silk mills, and the inventor has grown rich.

The cottonseed oil industry is a better known illustration of economizing waste, but the dimensions to which the industry has grown are not so generally known. The annual product in oil, cake, lint and hulls from cotton seed, which a generation ago was allowed to rot, is $27,000,000, and it could be made greater if there was a market for the product.—Philadelphia Press.

A Book Brought Down From Heaven.

According to Mohammedan belief, the first copy of the Koran, or Alkoran, their sacred book, was brought down from the highest to the lowest heaven by Gabriel on the mysterious night of Al Khade in the month of Ramadan. This wonderful book, written in heaven and bound in satin, jewels and gold, was communicated to Mohammed at different times during a period of 23 years. This was done, according to Mohammedan belief, either by Gabriel in human shape or by God himself. When Gabriel acted as translator and communicator, he did so "with a great sound of music and bells." God appeared either "veiled or unveiled during Mohammed's waking hours or during dreams at night."—St. Louis Republic.

Why Not?

Apropos of Marion Crawford's remark about our mustached butlers, that they amused him after the shorn ones of England, why won't somebody say that our butlers—our American butlers—wear mustaches, and we, when abroad, find it amusing to see the English butlers smooth shaven, and wonder why their masters do not insist that their mouths be covered. Will the time ever come when we will dare to be Americans?

There are great lessons to be learned from the older nations of the world, great models to be studied and wisdom to be got from the experience which is the accretion of centuries, concerning which the taste of one cultivated community is as good as that of any other.—New York Times.

Appreciative.

A housekeeper who has been employing a colored washerwoman for several months was surprised to see her appear last week in a hat trimmed heavily with crape.

"Why, Julia," she asked, "is any of your family dead?"

"No, no," was the reply, "but one of my best customers gave me this hat, and I didn't want her to think I don't 'preciate nothin."—New York Times.

Caution Needed.

A tourist had visited a small historic town. He was shown the massive wall that surrounded it and the immense town gates.

"You need to be very careful," he said gravely to the official who was his escort.

"Why so?"

The Engine Room.

It is as great a mistake to paint an engine room floor as it is to whitewash the ceiling. It has been said that the moisture from steam will cause whitewash to flake off, and where it falls on the working parts of machinery it will act as will so much emery. As to painting of floors, it had been my practice for a number of years to have the floor of my engine room given a coat of paint twice yearly. The place would look sleek and bright for a few weeks, and then begin to show uneven wear. Parts of machinery moved on the floor would leave their tracks, and the use of soda for washing the boards would cause shading not at all artistic. Planed tongue and grooved lumber without paint may be washed once a week with potash or lye water and will soon bleach out, always present a good appearance.—Power.

Baked Peaches.

Wipe the peaches so as to take away the surface and pack them in a small stone jar. Fill about two-thirds full and nearly cover the fruit with water. Scatter sugar over them and bake in a slow oven from one to three hours, according to the condition of the fruit.

PULPIT AND PEW.

The Southern Presbyterian church, with less than 200,000 members, has 130 missionaries in the field.

San Francisco has a population of 300,000 and church sittings for 55,000, and these are not all occupied.

The Rev. Dr Edward B Palmer of Boston has attended every commencement celebration of Barstow college since he graduated from that institution in 1856.

Bishop Walker of the Episcopal diocese of North Dakota is a giant in stature, and many stories are told of his muscular Christianity. He is one of the eloquent speakers of the church.

We have just finished pricing that immense stock of embroidery which we received the other day, and we assure you that the prices are one-third cheaper than anything offered before. Have you seen that big window full of lace we are displaying just now? You might count the number of pieces and then consider we have as many more inside.

Rosebery's Prophecy.

The story is repeated that when Lord Rosebery was a boy at the great Eton public school he bet that he would marry the heiress of the year, become Prime Minister of England and win the Derby before he died. The first two conditions have now been fulfilled, and with his horse Ladas, which is entered for the Derby, he will undoubtedly add the third clause to his bet next June.
