BRITISH POLITICS.

THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE ON THE PRESENT SITUATION.

He Says That the Picture of Gladstone Would Never Be Effaced—Gladstone Has Left to His Successors a Legacy of Unsettled Questions—His Last Speech Had Imposed the Burden of a Quarrel With the House of Lords—Labouchere Lacks Confidence He Doubts Whether Rosebery Will Be Sufficiently Drastic.

LONDON, March 6.—The Duke of Devonshire, in the course of his speech at Yeovil this evening, referring to Mr. Gladstone's retirement, said that it was a source of great satisfaction, that in spite of his age and infirmity, Mr. Gladstone had not outstayed his parliamentary reputation. The image presented by Mr. Gladstone would never be impaired; his picture would never be effaced. He had passed from the scene in the plenitude of his strength and greatness, and neither for good nor for evil could his place be filled. He had left to his successors a legacy of unsettled questions One of these questions was Home Rule, which would hang as a millstone around the neck of his party for many years. In his last speech he had imposed a new burden upon his party, the quarrel with the House of Lords. The only real ground for the quarrel with the Lords was the rejection of the Home Rule Bill. The other grounds alleged were absurd, and the Earl of Rosebery would not take them. If the Government was inclined to hang up on Home Rule, continued the speaker, the Liberal-Unionists would be in no hurry to displace them. But the Liberal-Unionists would be uncompromising in their opposition to Home Rule, and especially if the Government attempted to pass a gerrymandering Registration Bill. Otherwise, they contemplated no factious opposition to Lord Rosebery, who there was no reason to believe, was indifferent to the interests, honor and greatness of England at home and abroad.

When the House of Commons reassembles, Mr. Labouchere will move an amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne, demanding the introduction of a bill for confirming legislation of the House of Commons, praying that, in the case of bills rejected by the House of Lords, Royal assent be given after the bills have been again passed by the House of Commons. John Redmond, leader of the Parnellites, will move an amendment to the address in favor of granting amnesty to the imprisoned dynamiters.

The Daily News says that Mr. Gladstone offered a peerage to Mr. Armitstead, whose guest he was at Biarritz, and that Mr. Armitstead declined the honor.

Henry Labouchere in Truth disavows confidence in the new Premierate, but says that nevertheless he is willing to support any sound measure proposed by the Government. He doubts whether Lord Rosebery is prepared for a sufficiently drastic treatment of the House of Lords. "If a satisfactory assurance does not appear in the Queen's speech," he says, "the Radicals must make a stand. The difficulty might be settled by allowing the Peers to seek election to the House of Commons."

Another Revolution.

LONDON, March 6.—Telegraph advices have been received from Panama that a revolutionary uprising has taken place in Costa Rica. It is understood that the rebels have not as yet met with any success.

According to Rosebery's Request.

LONDON, March 6.—Minister Windham cabled from Rio Janerio this evening that he had made arrangements, in accordance with Lord Rosebery's request, by which the British merchant ships would be enabled to take on the necessary ballast and leave the harbor.

The German Minister of War Supports William.

BERLIN, March 6. In the Reichstag to-day, there was an interesting debate on the Military Supply Bill. In the course of the discussion, General Bronsart von Schellendorff, minister of war, took occasion to defend General von Kirkchoff from the attacks of the Socialists. General von Schellendorff declared that if General von Kirkchoff had been tried by a jury instead of being tried by a military court whose proceedings were secret, he would have been acquitted. Although he had been found guilty and sentenced to imprisonment by the military court, the Emperor had exercised his right of clemency, and not only pardoned General von Kirkchoff, but had bestowed a decoration upon him. "The prerogatives and rights of the Prussian crown," he declared, "are not subject to discussion in the Reichstag, and I here protest against such interference. (Cheers.) Least of all he said, the Socialists should touch the Crown's prerogatives. The time might come when they would need the king's clemency. Herr Lansemann protested against the language used by General Von Schellendorf. If General Von Kirchoff was justified in the murderous attack he made on Herr Harisch, he said, every anarchist was justified in murderously attacking existing society, all legal remedies failing. Herr Bebel said that according to the war minister, the anarchists were justified in resorting to violence. General Von Schellendorff's advocacy of General Von Kirchoff's cause and defence of his action was what might be expected in a military state that was still semi-barbarous, but it had a strange sound in the legislative halls of an enlightened nation.

Rosebery Occupies the Official Residence

LONDON, March 6.—The offices occupied by Mr. Gladstone as Premier, were formally taken possession of by Lord Rosebery this afternoon. The new Premier was cordially greeted by the retiring Prime Minister, upon his arrival at the rooms in the official residence in Downing street.

He Calmly Viewed His Mother's Decapitation.

PARIS, March 6.—A despatch from Dahomey says that King Behanzin, on the evening of his surrender, summoned his widowed mother, and after telling her of his intention to submit to the French, said, he must first inform his father, and would therefore have her take him a message. Behanzin thereupon ordered that his mother be beheaded, and, smoking a pipe, calmly looked on, while the attendants decapitated her.

A Ten Years Treaty.

BERLIN, March 6.—The committee in the Reichstag in charge of the German-Russian Treaty, to-day rejected the amendment offered by the Conservatives, limiting to one year the time when either party to the convention shall be entitled to give one years' notice of its abrogation. The amendment was rejected by a vote of 15 to 10. The committee then adopted a number of articles including fixing the term of duration of the treaty at ten years, as originally proposed.

The committee will probably conclude its sittings in consideration of the treaty to-morrow. Count Herbert Bismarck, in the regular session of the Reichstag demanded of Count Von Doenhoff, Conservative, an explanation of the Tageblatt's statement alleged to have been made on his (Doenhoff's) authority, that Prince Bismarck had declared that the rejection of the treaty would inevitably be followed by a Russo-German war. Count Von Doenhoff admitted that he did not speak with the authority of Prince Bismarck, but that he had based his statement merely upon hearsay. He had learned, he said, that Herr Krupp had heard Dr. Schweninger say that he had heard Prince Bismarck make a statement to the effect that the rejection of the Russo German treaty would be followed by a Russo German war.

Commercial Cable Co.'s Directors.

NEW YORK, March 6.—At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Commercial Cable Co., held here to day, the following officers were re-elected: John W. Mackay, president; George G. Ward, A. B. Chandler, Chas. R. Hosmer, vice-presidents; E C. Platt, treasurer; J. O. Stevens, secretary.

Rockefeller Doesn't Want the World.

NEW YORK, March 6.—S. C. T. Dodd, general solicitor of the Standard Oil Co., said to-day that there was no truth in the story that an agreement for a division of the world's territory had been reached by the Standard Oil Co. and the Noebels, who are supposed to control the Russian oil fields. There was nothing of the sort in prospect, for it would be an impossibility.

Preparing for Michigan Day.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6.—The arrangements for the special observance of Michigan Day on Monday March 12th at the Exposition are progressing satisfactorily to all concerned and there is every reason to believe that this, the second State day at the Exposition, will be a memorable one. The Michigan Committee has asked H. McGarvie, manager for Col. Boone, to act as grand marshal of a parade of the concessionaires at 11 o'clock on the morning of that day.

New York After Chicago.

NEW YORK, March 6.—William Morris Hayes has a plan for the celebration of the beginning of the twentieth century of the Christian era, by an exposition to be held in this city during the year 1900. Mr. Hayes has in course of preparation a detailed plan embodying all the important features of the proposed celebration, which he will soon lay before the representative men of the city with a view to the organization of a committee to arrange the preliminary details.

Davies' Hawaiian Literature.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6.—The brig I. O. N. Suelo arrived from Kahalui to-day. She reports no change in the situation in the Hawaiian Islands. The Commercial Advertiser, of February 17th, publishes a caustic review of letters of T. H. Davies, guardian of Princess Kaiulani, which have been collected and printed in pamphlet form, and entitled, "Davies' Duty is to Fight." "Literary Performance of the Queen's ex-Champion Exposed." "He Finds the Bible was not for Beheading" The critic, by way of introduction declares: The literature appearing in these letters will hereafter constitute the Davies period of Hawaiian literature. Its immediate object is to hurl the Provisional Government locomotive off the track of events and replace it with the somewhat battered and effete engine styled Monarchy, which was suddenly sidetracked.

Important Torpedo Tests.

NEWPORT, R.I., March 6.—A sixth trial was made to-day in the submarine pressure tests now in progress at the torpedo station, and human life would not have been endangered if it had been subjected to the test. The distance between the mine of 100 pounds of guncotton and the shell containing animal life, was 100 feet. The explosion was perfect, a vast volume of water being lifted, and when the experimenters returned to the vicinity of the explosion, the water was black with mud. The pressure exerted upon the shell, in accordance with the figuring by General Abbott's formula, was 347 pounds, the strength of the shell being finally reckoned to be 81 pounds per square inch. The shell was not damaged, neither was the life within. A second trial will be made at 74 feet. It is the opinion that firings can be made much closer, on the theory that the pressure of an explosion is more in a vertical line, also that, perhaps, the shell may not collapse until the distance between the mine and shell is greater between the mine and the surface of the water, which is 15 feet. If this be correct, the utility of submarine warfare is much greater than generally supposed.

THE VICTORIA OPIUM RING

Is Making a Purse to Influence the Opium Tariff.

VICTORIA, March 6.—[Special]—It is reported here that a big purse is being raised in Victoria by opium cookers for a crusade at Washington to have the high tariff on prepared opium retained. The same smugglers succeeded when the McKinley Bill was passed in getting a $12 rate through. This rate is practically prohibitory of the importation and was intended to be an aid to the Customs who cover large boundaries with small facilities. If the cookers are successful they will make more money. The reduction to the Wilson tariff of $6 will cause the direct importation of the drug from China.

Gave Birth to a Quintette.

KITTANING, Ont., March 6.—Five children were born to the wife of Roseberger, a farmer near here yesterday. Three girls and two boys.

Protecting Big Game.

OTTAWA, March 5.—The Minister of the Interior will introduce a bill at the next session of Parliament designed to protect the fur bearing and game animals in the unorganized districts of the Northwest. The non-treaty Indians are now in the habit of slaughtering such animals as the wood buffalo and moose out of season.

Mail Clerks on Ocean Liners.

NEW YORK, March 6.—With the arrival at New York on Saturday last of the steamship Saale, a new plan of handling foreign registered mail destined for Boston, Baltimore, Chicago, Philakelphia, Cleveland, St. Louis, San Francisco and Washington was inaugurated, one which will likely prove of decided advantage to business men in the cities named. Shortly after the delivery of the mail bags at the postoffice building in this city, the registered mail brought by the Saale, and which had been made up in separate pouches for each of these eight large cities by the sea postal clerks working on board the steamship, was on its way to its destination. This method of preparing registered mail saved about twelve hours of time usually lost by re-entry and re-billing in the New York postoffice, and permitted deliveries to be made in some of the cities on the same day, where, under the old system, no deliveries would have been made until the following day. The new plan is the outcome of the determination to establish sea postoffices on each of the steamers running in the North American and North German Lloyd lines. The system will be put into operation upon all the steamers of three lines as soon as possible.

President Cleveland's Hunting Trip.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Capt. Evans, of the Light House Board, who was in charge of the President's party in his recent trip to North Carolina, stated that from a sportsman's view, the trip was eminently successful, and almost the very day after reaching the North Carolina Coast, the entire party enjoyed excellent shooting. The trip down the river, Capt. Evans said, was entirely without incident. A blizzard which had been threatening Sunday, overtook the Violet below Fort Washington, and when Quantico was reached it was deemed prudent to anchor for the night as the storm was so thick that the pilot could not see a ship's length ahead of him. The second night was spent at Portsmouth, Va.; the third night at Long Point, N. C.; the fourth night at Croat Sound, N. C.; the fifth and sixth nights at Hatteras; the seventh on the return trip at Roanoke Marshes; the eighth night at Long Point; the ninth (last night) the vessel ran all night. While lying at Hatteras the president and party took a steam launch and visited the neighboring inlets and lighthouses in the vicinity. He met a number of the people inhabiting that section and shook hands with them. He was treated with the utmost respect and consideration by all. Mr. Cleveland buckled down to work a few minutes after he reached the White House. In ten minutes after he sat down at his desk, he and private secretary Thurber had disposed of a pile of routine business. Soon after three o'clock Secretary Carlisle called on the President and the two had a talk over Treasury matters. By the President's direction, the wagon-load of game was distributed at the houses of all the cabinet officers, Private Secretary Thurber and Captain Evans.

American Yacht Running the Blockade.

NEW YORK, March 6.—The American yacht Natalie, which took on board a lot of cannon, arms and ammunition at Savannah for the revolutionists of Hayti, is still at Fortune Island. The Alvena brought the news a week ago that the Natalie was lying there, while a Haytian warship was outside watching for her to come out. The steamer Andirondack, which arrived to-day, confirms the information, and gives details. Captain D. E. Taylor of Brooklyn was a passenger on board the Andirondack. He said he saw the Natalie and two warships. The Andirondack, he said, put into the north side of Fortune Island. On the south side of the narrow slip of land lay the Natalie not far from shore, at anchor in the small harbor. About 100 yards from her lay the Haytian gunboat Dessalines, keeping close watch over the Natalie. On the north side of the island was another Haytian war vessel, a large one, which Captain Taylor thought was the Touissant l' Ouverture. It was here to watch the Natalie and capture her it she ventured out on the high seas, or to take part in the fight should she engage the Dessalines. The latter is not a large vessel. The Adirondack was in the harbor not above half an hour, but during that time Captain Selina, commander of the Natalie came aboard. During a conversation Captain Taylor said that he thought the Natalie could make her escape through the shoals, where the warships could not follow, and thus get out to sea. "Perhaps she does not want to escape," said Selina. No flag could be seen on the Natalie, but it was said that she flew the United States flag. She is now in British waters, and therefore safe. Whether the Haytian vessels would fire on her while flying the American flag is not known.

She Slayed With Poisons Being Sick of Love.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 6.—Laura Fay, a young woman taken to the police station last night, tells this story. About four years ago, she says she lived with her parents at Oil City, Pa., and became engaged to a man named Chase. Her younger sister aged 17, was also in love with Chase and endeavored to break off the betrothal. Finally her love turned to hate, and one night she gave him a dose of poison, from which he died. His death has been attributed to natural causes. Miss Fay came to Buffalo from Oil City.

The Highest Authority in America.

Printers Ink, the highest newspaper authority in America, speaks thus of THE DAILY TELEGRAM:

"Did you ever hear of a place called Nanaimo? It is on the Island of Vancouver and 75 miles from Victoria. If you live in what you consider an enterprising city and believe that your local daily paper is first-class, write to the publisher of THE DAILY TELEGRAM, Nanaimo, British Columbia, and ask for a sample copy of his paper, and when you obtain it compare it with your home production. Go down and talk with the publisher about it afterwards, and ask him why it is that he can't print as good a paper, or obtain as good a local patronage, or have his paper as free from dead-head or objectionable advertisements? A useful lesson may be learned from Nanaimo."

Nine More Anarchists Arrested.

PARIS, March 6.—Nine more anarchists have been arrested to-day. Among them is a man named Francois, who it is alleged, was implicated with Ravochol in the explosion in the cafe of M. Very.

MR. COTTON'S TRICK.

The News-Advertiser of Vancouver in its issue of Saturday last published a dispatch from Victoria, doubtless written by its managing editor himself, who usually acts as reporter for the paper at the Provincial capital when attending the sittings of the Legislature there, in which is set forth in a much-displayed heading the original theory that the second reading of the Redistribution Bill was forced through by a shameful trick, the delinquents being of course the Government. The alleged trick, it says, "apparently misled the members on the other side of the House, as the Government allowed the division bell to ring, and thus the debate ended." It is not stated what the trick was, but we suppose it must have consisted in the Government neglecting to send round an usher with a sharp pointed stick to rouse Mr. Cotton and the other somnolent members of the Opposition to the fact that the bell for the division was about to ring, and that they had better get up and speak if they intended ever to do so. But Mr. Cotton had nothing to say after all the bluster in his paper for months past about redistribution, and the wickedness of the Government in deferring the bill from last session till the true results of the census were ascertained. And now, when the Government has succeeded in passing the second reading of the bill by a vote of more than two to one, the self-appointed leader of the Independent Oppositionists turns round and whines that the second reading was carried by a trick, when he cannot even say what the trick was. A poorer spectacle never was witnessed in any legislative chamber than that presented by the Opposition in the debate on the second reading of the Redistribution Bill. They could neither accept the Bill with grace, nor oppose it with even decent ability. Most of them, like Mr. Cotton, took refuge in silence, and most of them doubtless will now complain that they had no opportunity to speak, because the Government had by a trick forced on the division. It should be be understood by the public at large that a trick under the circumstances was not possible, that before the division bell is rung the Speaker in a loud voice must ask the members three times are they ready, and if when he does so any member who has not yet spoken on the subject of the division has a right to rise, and must be heard if he has anything to say. Such being the case, if any Opposition member wished to speak and did not do so it was his own fault. To talk under such circumstances of the Bill being forced through by a trick is simply an impudent attempt to deceive and delude the the people.

DEATH OF GENERAL EARLY.

The death of General Early is announced. His decease took place at Lynchburg, Virginia, in the presence of his family and kindred, at 10:30 on the night of the 2nd instant. General Early was one of the ablest of General Lee's lieutenants, and is about the last to go of the distinguished soldiers who fought for the South in the great war of sesession. Jubal Anderson Early was born in Franklin county, Virginia, November 3rd, 1816. He was therefore nearly 78 years old at the time of his death. On the 15th of last month General Early met with a severe accident when coming out of the Lynchburg post-office. His floot slipped on a coat of ice when descending the steps from the door, and he plunged headlong, striking several steps in the fall, and landing on the pavement several feet below. The shock of this accident at his advanced age no doubt hastened his end. He was a graduate of the United States military academy in 1837, and was appointed a lieutenant of artillery and assigned to duty at Fort Munroe, Virginia. He served in the Florida war, and resigned from the army in 1838. He began the pactice of the law in Virginia, and in 1841 was elected to the Legislature. In 1842 he was elected commonwealth attorney. On the outbreak of the Mexican war he resigned that office to accept the position of major in a regiment of Virginia volunteers. He served with distinction in the Mexican war, and after the battle of Monterey was appointed military governor of that city by General Taylor. After the conclusion of the Mexican war he was re-elected Commonwealth Attorney of Virginia and held the position until 1852. Early was on active advocate of secession, and on the outbreak of the rebellion entered the Confederate service with the rank of Colonel. He commanded a brigade at Bull Run, and was severely wounded at Williamsburg in 1862. He commanded a division under Lee at the battle of Gettysburg. He earnestly advised his chief to make a flank attack on the Federal left, offering himself to lead it. But unfortunately for the Confederate cause Lee would not listen to his advice, but preferred to make a direct attack in front on the position held by Hancock on Cemetery Ridge, and sustained a bloody repulse. This battle was the turning point of the war. Lee adopted the same tactics which Napoleon had used at Waterloo, and like him sustained defeat, not at first so disastrous to the defeated army. But in its ultimate result the defeat of Gettysburg was ruinous to the Confederate cause. The Confederates never recovered from the repulse of Gettysburg, and thereafter fortune ceased to smile upon their efforts. Had Lee followed Early's advice and made his chief attack on the left flank of the Federal army at Gettysburg, seizing the hill known as Round Top, which at the outset of the battle was not occupied in force by the Federals, and planted thereon a strong battery of artillery, he could have enfiladed with its fire Meade's position from end to end, and there is very little doubt would have been able to force Meade to a disastrous retreat on Washington—perhaps have totally routed him. Early was subsequently defeated with great loss by General Sheridan at Obequan, Fisher's Hill, and Cedar Creek, where owing to Sheridan's absence he very nearly defeated his army, but Sheridan by his celebrated twenty-mile ride from Winchester arrived in time upon the field to save the battle and defeat Early. This was Sheridan's most celebrated achievement. Early was defeated also by Custer at Waynesboro, and his army nearly distroyed. He was then relieved of his command by Lee, on the ground that his influence and therefore his usefulness was gone. After the close of the war Early made a tour in Europe, and shortly after his return accepted in conjunction with Beauregard the management of the Louisiana State Lottery. But the management of the comcern by these generals was only nominal, and intended as an advertisement by those who really controlled it. It is to be regretted that soldiers so distinguished should have lent their names to such a business. Early was called by the Confederate soldiers "Lee's bad old man," from his profuse and picturesque profanity. He was supposed by the soldiers to be always swearing, except when asleep, just as General Jackson was supposed by them to be always praying. But in spite of his bad habit of using much profane language, a habit which he no doubt acquired in youth, he was a brave, skilful, and experienced soldier, and leaves behind him no survivor on either side, of the war of secession, who was his equal. He was, we believe, the last of the great men whom that struggle produced, to join the majority. Peace to his ashes, and many the turf lie light on the soldier's grave.

THE Government at Ottawa has entered into a contract with Mr. James Huddart for the conveyance of mails by a swift steam service between England and Canada. The period is for ten years, with option of renewal at the expiration of that time. Mr. Huddart is leaving for England to form a company with sufficient capital to provide for the building of four first-class steamships, capable of steaming twenty miles an hour at sea. The ships are to be fitted with the latest refrigerating appliances for the carriage of chilled beef and other meats, poultry, fruits, etc. The amount of the annual subsidy is to be $750,000. It is of course to be approved by Parliament. The Canadian termini of the line are to be Quebec in summer, and Halifax in winter. The English terminus is not yet determined. It is Mr. Huddart's intention to unite the present Australian service with the new Atlantic one, forming a complete line under British control from England to the antipodes, via the Canadian Pacific railway. Mr. Huddart on his arrival in England is immediately to place an order for a third steamship for the Australian service. It is expected that the Australian colonies will subsidize the new line.

Bottom Again.

The Bottom of the evening sheet last evening reproduced from the Victoria Times a garbled and erroneous extract in reference to a private case now on between Mr. W. J. Gallagher and Mr. J. W. Horne, and which concerns no one outside of the parties directly concerned. Personalities and private affairs seem to be the staff of the very existence of the long-eared individual in question. However, if he wants to open a campaign of this character he is welcome to do so, but it would be well for him to first look into his own clothes press and examine well its contents. If he is not then satisfied, he can easily be furnished with further information. A few walking monuments might be brought to his notice. The discretion of publishing or commenting upon a case, in justice, should be left to the trial judge.

Yate's Paragraphs.

Edmund Yates, the society news factor of London cabled the following paragraphs yesterday to the New York Tribune.

The Queen has offered Mr. Gladstone an earldom for himself or a similar title for his wife, but he declined any such honor, desiring in the matter, as he informed Her Majesty, to follow the example of his political master, Sir Robert, Peel, who refused similar distinction in 1846, and they were again declined by Lady Peel in 1850 after her husband's death.

A well-known member of the House of Commons says: I entertained 23 Radical members at dinner a few nights ago when they one and all pledged themselves to join the Opposition in a vote of want of confidence if any peer was made Prime Minister, and then having turned out the Government they would consolidate the Radical party quite independently of the present organization.

Mr. Gladstone's resignation has fluttered every political dovecot, but among the anti-Parnellite M.P.'s its effect has been little short of consternation. If the Grand Old Man be an apostle of Home Rule, John Morley is its prophet, and to lose both at one stroke is a grievous blow to them. The idea that Herbert Gladstone should succeed Morley in the Irish office sufficiently indicated the demoralization the event has produced. Fancy the Home Rule bill passed by the Commons with Sir Wm. Harcourt as leader of the House and Herbert Gladstone as Chief Secretary of Ireland. The proposition is a frantic effort to retain a hold thus indirectly upon the veteran champion of their discredited cause.

The Queen was asked to purchase the necklace, earrings and brooch in the Eglington collection of Jewels which had belonged to Mary Queen of Scots, but Her Majesty declined, as Queen Mary is not one of her favorites.

What a comfort that the long controversy as to who wrote the "letters of Junius" is satisfactorily settled. Here is yet another book on the subject, the author of which is a grandson of Sir Philip Francis. He claims to prove conclusively that Francis was "Junius."

It would almost seem as if the much desired days when the Prime Minister owned a favorite for the Derby and the leader of the Opposition bred the prize ox were returning at the present moment. The owner of the favorite for the Derby is the Prime Minister of England, and if all goes well is likely to be returned the winner.

Mr. Yarrow is to be congratulated upon his most recent achievement. He has constructed a vessel capable of steaming 28 knots an hour, which is considerably in excess of the speed attained by the fastest transit between London and Hastings or Portsmouth. The highest speed hitherto attained is 27 knots.

The Queen proposes to leave Windsor for Florence next Tuesday afternoon. She intends to reside at Florence for nearly five weeks, then she will proceed to Cobourg for a stay of about nine days, returning from that place direct to England. Her Majesty is expected to arrive at Windsor Castle from the continent on April 28.

Some time ago a fine portrait of Charles II came in the market and the Queen was urgently requested to buy it for the Royal collection of Windsor Castle. Her Majesty refused and then an elaborate memorandum was sent to the police in which the reasons for not buying the picture were enumerated. Ultimately the Queen decided to purchase the work and thus endorsed the memorandum: "I consent but with great reluctance for I don't like Charles II."

Mr. R. C. Stevens, city passenger and ticket agent of the Great Northern Railway for Seattle, arrived in the city yesterday and appointed Mr. Marcus Wolfe local agent of the company for Nanaimo and district, the position having been resigned by Mr. W. K. Leighton. Mr. Wolfe will no doubt prove a satisfactory representative.

Advertising Swindler in Victoria.

Some smart advertising swindler has recently made Victoria his headquarters. An advertisement appeared in the Montreal papers to the effect that a Christian family was wanted to take care of a natural child. A liberal monthly allowance was promised and a fortune at the age of majority, when in the case of death it might revert to the foster parents. After correspondence had opened up $5 was required as a guarantee.

Mr. H. T. Ceperley who has been recently appointed general agent for the Province, of the Phœnix Fire Insurance Company, arrived in the city on Monday and yesterday transferred the management of the local agency to Mr. Marcus Wolfe. Entrance Island Fog Alarm.

Mr. Gaudin, of the Dominion Marine and Fisheries Department, accompanied by Mr. Kelly, architect of this city, who is inspector of the work, paid a visit to the fog alarm which is being built on Entrance Island, yesterday, going out in the steamer Esperanza. They are well satisfied with the work done and the satisfactory progress made. There is about six inches of water in the fresh water tank, and if the weather is at all rainy, they expect enough to supply the boiler during the summer. The alarm, it is expected, will be ready for service by the end of this week.

The Mermaid Case.

In the Supreme Court of British Columbia (in chambers), Mr. Justice Crease presiding, an application was made yesterday by the official liquidator of the Northern Shipping Company for the removal of the steamship Mermaid from Nanaimo to Vancouver. Mr. John Campbell of Vancouver appeared for the official liquidator, and F. McBain Young for the creditors. It was shown that the company had no assets to pay the claims, and the only way the matter could be settled was to sell the steamship and pay the claims from the amount realized. It was ordered that the steamship be taken to Vancouver and sold as soon as possible. The claims for repairs, wages and services rendered to be the first charge on the proceeds of the sale. By this arrangement the claimants will eventually be paid in full.

KASLO!!
KOOTENAY LAKE, B.C.
IS COMING TO THE FRONT WITH A BOUND

It is the center of the Silver-Lead Mining Industry of the famous Slocan Region, which is now sending $75,000 worth of Ore to Kaslo per week for shipment to the American smelters.

Mining men from all parts of the world say that it is the richest silver district known. The progress of development work in the mines verifies this statement.

Thousands of men will be employed in these mines. The natural base of supplies is Kaslo, which is admirably adapted for the purpose, being a beautiful townsite, situated on a bay possessing excellent shipping advantages.

The right of way for the Kaslo-Slocan Railway has been cleared, and the bridge foundations have been put in place, so that the work of grading and track-laying may proceed at the earliest possible moment after the snow disappears.

The growth of Kaslo last year was very considerable. It is now an incorporated town, having a population of 2,000 people. That this population will be doubled before the end of the present year is unquestioned.

Kaslo offers to investors a most promising field. The opening up of the mines tributary to it must build up Kaslo. The development of these mines is now in progress. Many others will be worked as soon as easily accessible. An investment in a Kaslo lot will pay you handsomely.

The space below is reserved for the latest news from the Kaslo-Slocan District.

LATEST, FEBRUARY 26th, 1894:

KASLO, B. C., Feb. 26.—Nearly all of Front street, Kaslo, between 3rd and 4th, was destroyed by fire on Saturday night. Thirty buildings were burned, including all the hotels except the Leland and Slocan. Green Bros.' buildings, J. B. Wilson's store and other parts of the town escaped.

Loss estimated at $100,000, with small insurance. The only fire protection is a small hand engine, with a volunteer brigade, the water having to be taken from the bay. The Customs Offices, Byers' Hardware Store, and all the principal business establishments of the town were located on this street, and succumbed to the devouring flames.

The best thing that could happen. Seattle and Vancouver over again. A good fire

PHOTOGRAPHY IN COLORS.

Nature's Living Tints Faithfully Reproduced by the Camera.

Photography in colors is a dream that has inflamed many besides the mere amateur and the enthusiast. Like several other delusions that will never die, it has been reported a fait accompli over and over again; yet the world still waits for colored photographs and waits in vain, if what it expects are correctly tinted reproductions, taken direct from nature. The best that is said to have ever been done in this respect, and it is very wonderful, is the so called "composite heliochromy" of Mr. Frederic Ives of Philadelphia.

In this process three pictures are taken simultaneously on one plate, through colored screens of special construction, by means of which each image is made to represent one of the three fundamental color sensations produced on the eye. These three images are superimposed one on another by a triple optical lantern, or in an instrument of highly ingenious construction called the "heliochromoscope," of Mr. Ives' own invention, by means of which the original object is shown not only in apparent relief, as in the familiar stereoscope, but also in the exact colors and shades of nature.

These pictures, speaking vulgarly, are not colored photographs. The three actual images on each plate are black and white as usual, with a difference merely as regards the distribution of light and shade in each; it is only when they are combined and when the proper conditions are restored that the illusory effects of color are given.

The heliochromoscope is a small square box with an eyepiece, somewhat resembling a camera. In exhibiting specimens, after turning the instrument toward the light, Mr. Ives slipped in front of it what appeared to be an ordinary photographic negative with three pictures on it arranged in trefoil. This, however, he asserted, was not a negative, but a simple positive taken on glass instead of paper. The images were not colored, but merely differed from one another in regard to the arrangement of light and shade.

On putting one's eye to the eyepiece there appeared in full relief an absolutely perfect representation of a dish of fruit; glossy red apples, mottled yellow bananas, and a luscious bunch of green grapes covered with a tempting bloom that made one's mouth water more than all the efforts of Dutch genre painters could ever do. Several similar objects followed; then came photographs of colored pictures, of oil paintings, of Swiss scenery, in all the living colors of nature.

Baking Bricks by Electricity.

A western inventor has designed an ingenious method for baking bricks by electricity, which is described in The Industrial World as follows:

"The machine is a simple contrivance, consisting of a table covered with iron brick molds, to which the electric current is applied. The table is 14 by 8 feet and holds 1,000 molds, which are joined together like a lot of "pigeon holes." Each mold is the size of a brick which has been pressed but not baked, and each has a loose cover so fitted as to follow the brick as it shrinks. The bricks are taken from the presses and placed in the molds, the covers adjusted and the current turned on. The iron sides of the mold form the "resistance," and thus the bricks are virtually inclosed by walls of fire.

"When the bricks have shrunk to the right size, the sinking covers of the molds break connection and thus automatically turn off the current when the baking is done, and the bricks are dumped. It is claimed that only three hours and a half are required to bake bricks by this process, and that they are harder and better than those produced by the present process."

Collecting Canceled Stamps.

What is apparently more useless than canceled postage stamps? And yet there is a store on Michigan avenue where they seem to be in demand. One of the windows is entirely heaped up with present day United States stamps, mostly of the 2 cent denomination. There must be thousands of them, and the observer can only wonder what in the world can be their value. They cannot possess any particular interest to the stamp collector, for they are neither rare nor valuable. To the ordinary person the canceled 2 cent postage stamp seems a worthless thing indeed. Prices paid for such stamps, however, are 10 cents per 1,000, $1 per 10,000, and $12 per 100,000. Many an industrious lad will probably be moved by this offer (as the appearance of the window indeed testifies), and yet the immense labor of collecting 100,000 stamps can be appreciated.

Yet during the Centennial stamps were bought in the same manner, and those who purchased them are today reaping a handsome profit, for the Centennial postage stamp has increased wonderfully in value in a canceled condition during the last few years. As time goes on stamps increase greatly in value, especially stamps issued for one year only on a special occasion like the Centennial or fair. To show how valuable a stamp may become, the writer of this may mention the fact that eight years ago he purchased a first issue English envelope stamp in London for $7.50, and it was at that time worth a great deal more in this country. Now it has probably increased still more.—Detroit Free Press.

ETIQUETTE

THE WELL BRED GUEST.

Hints For a Pleasant Visit—The Complimentary Utterances at Parting.

And now to the guest a word in season, says Good Housekeeping. To be the charming and welcome visitor, be punctual at meals; of affairs of an unpleasant character happening in the household take no heed. To interfere with or order the servants is very bad form. Above all, correct not other people's children. Mothers invariably resent this, and one taking this liberty is considered a very interfering person. At the family bedtime express a willingness to retire. Never monopolize the conversation at table. There is a valuable addition to every home and its inmates in the ready listener, who is sought for and appreciated.

In England a visitor is allowed the morning to himself. He can drive, walk, ramble in the woods, study in his own room and do whatever his predilection dictates, recollecting that the dinner and evening belong to his host and hostess.

Do not make a false start in going, either from a brief call or a long sojourn. In the former case simply rise, say such few parting words as are necessary—and go. Do not keep others waiting while you rattle on, or think of other things which might be said. When the time fixed for the end of a visit has arrived, act upon the same principle.

The hostess will doubtless say, "I wish you could remain with us longer," and in doing so will indirectly testify to the pleasure which the visit has afforded. But this kindly utterance should not be taken as a request to the guest to break up her own plans in order to tarry longer. Likewise when the latter responds: "Thank you. The time really seems very short, as it has been so happily spent," she has made a return of courtesy in kind which will be much more pleasantly recalled in after days than a too literal compliance with the complimentary utterance of the hostess. It is always desirable in parting from our friends, whether for an hour or for an eternity, to leave with them agreeable impressions and recollections.

A Hint For Young Visitors.

A person visiting a house should never confine his or her attention to any one particular member of the family; kindness, attention, courtesy should be extended to all, and care should be taken by any young person who is the friend of younger members of the family that deference be paid particularly to the host and hostess.

Considerable Mutuality.

Mrs. Lakeside—You are Mr. Porkchop's second wife, are you not?

Mrs. Porkchop—Yes, he was married once before.

"That's unpleasant. Whenever you have a little row, he can bring up his first wife and brag about her goodness."

"He never tried it but once, and then I told him about what nice men my three other husbands were."—Texas Siftings.

An Illustration.

"There," said Miss Frances E. Willard, closing her fist and presenting it as an object lesson to her interested audience, "is union—and that"—suddenly letting every separate finger fly limply apart, "is diversity. Which is the stronger?"

The Little Bird and the Split Pea.

Hindoo children are entertained in the nursery by a story which is very similar to the old Saxon tale of "The Woman Who Found the Silver Penny."

"Once upon a time," says the black nurse to the black baby far away in the jungles, "a little bird on its way through the woods picked up a big pea, and took it to the mill to be split. As it happened, one-half of the pea stuck in the mill handle, and the miller could not get it out and gave up the attempt for a bad job."

Now come the adventures of the little bird in his wonderful perseverance to recover the lost portion of the pea.

First he went to a carpenter and asked him to cut the mill handle, but the carpenter resented the idea of cutting a mill handle for the sake of half a pea.

Then he went to the king and begged him to chide the carpenter, but his majesty refused to blame an honest workman for so trivial a matter.

Nothing daunted, the little bird went to the queen and bade her speak to the king, but the queen declined to speak to the king about such a trifle as half a pea.

So the little bird went to the snake and bade the reptile bite the queen, but the snake refused the temptation of even so dainty a morsel for the recovery of half a pea.

The little bird flew to the stick and requested the stick to beat the snake, but the stick did not consider the action justifiable for the sake of half a pea.

Then the little bird begged the fire to burn the stick, but the fire declined to be so cruel for the sake of a pea, much more for the half one.

The sea was next appealed to and asked to quench the fire, but with the same result, and the elephant was asked to drink up the sea, and the bhaunr, a tangled creeping plant, was asked to snare the elephant, and the mouse was asked to gnaw the bhaunr, but they all declined, because half a pea was not worth the trouble.

But when the little bird asks the cat to eat the mouse, pussy thought less of the half pea than of the rare meal in prospect, and at once decided to comply with the little bird's request. In an instant the mouse, to escape the threatened doom, ran to gnaw the bhaunr, and the creeping plant agreed to snare the elephant, and so on through all the creatures, and even to the king and queen and carpenter, until at last the little bird recovered his piece of pea and went on his way rejoicing.

Now this Hindoo nursery tale has two morals. The first is that great perservance always succeeds in the long run. The second is that sometimes the object sought is not worth the very extraordinary efforts that are put forth to attain it.

So valuable are her jewels that Mrs. Potter Palmer never attends a ball or party of any kind to which she wears them without a private detective to form part of her escort.

Mrs. Bartholomew, wife of the chief justice, has been appointed by Governor Shortridge as corresponding secretary for North Dakota of the National Society of Charities and Corrections.

"The Province."

We expended five cents yesterday and bought the province The Province typographical, not geographical. Till Henry Irving arose on the histrionic horizon and grappled dramatically with the Bard of Avon's plays, their production was generally considered to spell ruin for the producer. A similar doom has been the inevitable fate of many enterprises mottoed with quotations from Shakespear. One cannot but admire the hardihood of the proprietors and publishers of The Province who have so heavily weighted their production with a text from Antony and Cleopatra, "A province I will give thee." We are not erudite enough to know in what relation this stands to the context, but if the extract alone is lived up to, it will be within our province to plentifully praise The Province for its providence. Before saying God speed to the new Provincial paper, we would advise the "Men and things" paragraphist to see that his paragraphs are continent, or that they follow in sequence.

"McFee, of Dublin."

At the Opera House Tuesday, March 13th, John T. Kelly, the clever Irish comedian, will present his new comedy "McFee, of Dublin," and all lovers of comedy should see this performance. The play was written by Charles T. Vincent and Mr. Kelly, and it differs from other comedies of the present day in that it does not depend solely upon specialties, songs and dances, for its success. It has a very clever story running throughout and the interest is maintained to the end. The new piece has met with great success in other cities, and Mr. Kelly is credited with having made the biggest kind of a hit in the title role. Mr. Kelly's abilities are well known to our theatre goers, who remember with pleasure his engagement here last season. His performances are always spirited and full of vim, and the fun never flags for an instant. The company supporting Mr. Kelly this season is the best he ever had, including Aimee Angeles, Adelaide Randall, Harry Kelly and others. Reserved seats now on sale at Pimbury & Co.'s.
