Daily British Columbian

Tuesday Evening, May 3, 1887.

We have all along questioned the likelihood of the United States ever putting into force the retaliation act which was passed with such a flourish of trumpets, with the object of "coercing" Canada into abandoning her just position on the fisheries question. President Cleveland, having been urged to put the act into operation, has written a letter, in which he declares that he hesitates to take an unfriendly step, in view of the vastness of the interests that would be affected if this terrible law were enforced. If any other American citizen besides the president really needs any inducement to "think twice" before carrying out his threat, he will find it in the figures which Sir Charles Tupper has published for his information. Speaking at a banquet given at Montreal in honor of the Hon. J. A. Chapleau, Sir Charles Tupper referred to President Cleveland's letter, and said that he had not exaggerated the "vastness" of the interests that would be affected by the enforcement of the act, and he went on to explain the real reason of the delicacy of the president in putting it into operation. During the past fifty years, as he pointed out, the Canadian provinces have purchased $1,400,000,000 worth of goods from the United States, while in the same period the United States have purchased from Canada $1,050,000,000 worth of produce, leaving a balance of trade in favor of the United States merchants of $350,000,000. If the retaliation bill is put into operation, the Canadians will seek markets in Great Britain, thus removing their custom from the United States merchants. At the same time, the value of merchandise bought and sold by Canada and sent through United States ports and over United States railways has been no less than $28,000,000 a year, and, as Sir Charles significantly points out, if the United States set their retaliatory act in operation, they will be diverting the whole of this freight trade, as well as their direct commerce with Canada, from their own ports and railways to the seaports and railways of which Canada has no lack. If the great republic still likes to perform the operation of "cutting off its nose to spite its face" in this way, Canada will hardly complain.—The Colonies and India.

The republic of Switzerland is the European country whose system of taxation most resembles our own. It is the only country where there is any considerable tax upon property. The countries in which the aristocracy is the more powerful generally raise most of their revenues by indirect taxes. In Switzerland the indirect taxes are of comparatively little importance. Commerce with the surrounding nations is practically free. In the assessment of local taxes the democratic cantons are not content with a property tax, but most of them assess at a higher rate the property of the rich man than the property of the poor. A good many years ago this principle was adopted by Basle, Zurich, and several of the smaller cantons, and a law has recently been passed in Vaud by which this canton also adopts the principle of progressive taxation. The Vaud law divides real estate property into three classes and personal property into seven classes. The lowest class in each division includes property under $5,000. The rate of taxation is 1 per 1,000. Estates that belong to the second class are taxed 1½ per 1,000, and those belonging to the highest class are taxed 4 per 1,000. There is also a retrogressive tax upon earnings, and in this each individual is allowed in returning his income to deduct $80 for each person dependent upon him. It is easy to see how different is the working of such a tax from the working of an indirect tax. An indirect tax upon sugar and salt, for instance, falls almost as heavily upon a man who has $300 as upon a man who has $30,000. According to the principle of the Swiss tax, the man who has $30,000 ought to pay more than 100 times as much as the man who has $300. By the Swiss principle, the man with an income of $300, who has a wife and two children dependent upon him, would pay no taxes at all, while a bachelor with the same income would pay upon $220. If, on the other hand, the revenue was raised by a tax upon sugar and salt, the man with a family would pay a great deal more than a bachelor. The social justice of the Swiss principle is recognised by almost all recent writers on taxation, and we notice that it is gaining more and more favor here in America. One of the results of the Swiss system is the remarkably equal distribution of property in the country.—Christian Union.

The Roll-Call of the Colonies.

The April number of Murray's Magazine contains a long Jubilee Ode by Mr. Lewis Morris, entitled "A Song of Empire," which her majesty has, we understand, already accepted, and which covers all the developments at home and abroad of her reign. The brief extract which we here subjoin is part of the passage in which Mr. Lewis Morris goes through the roll-call of the colonies:

See what a glorious throng they come,
Turned to their ancient home,
The children of our England! See
What vigorous company
Thou sendest, Greater England of the Southern Sea!
Thy stately cities, sown with domes and spires,
Chase the illumined night with festal fires
In honor of their Queen, whose happy reign
Began when, 'mid their central roar
The naked savage trod the pathless plain.
Thousands of miles, north, south, east, and west ta-day
Their countless herds and flocks unnumbered stray.
Theirs are the vast primæval forest depths profound;
Yet everywhere are found
The English laws, the English accents fair,
'Mid burning north or cooler southern air.
A world within themselves, and with them blent
Island with continent,
The green isles, jewels on the tropic blue,
Where flower and tree and bird are strange and new;
Or that which lies within a temperate air
As summer-England fair;
Or those, our Southern Britain that shall be
Set in the lonely sea.
Lands of deep fiord and snow-clad soaring hill,
Wherethrough the ocean currents ebb and fill,
And craters vast, wherefrom the prisoned force
Of the great earth-fires runs its dreadful course.
And vales of palm and fern, whence like a dream,
High in mid-heaven, the ghostly snow fields gleam.
And from her far and wintry north
The great Dominion issues forth,
Fit nurse of stalwart British hearts and strong;
From her black pine woods, deep in snow,
Her billowy prairies boundless as the sea,
Where on the sweet untroubled soil
Yearly the unnoticed, countless wild-flowers blow,
And by men's fruitful and compelling toil
Yearly the deep and bounteous harvests grow;
From the lone plains, wherethrough the icy wind
Sweeps from the north, leaving the pole behind;
In whose brief summer suns, so fierce they shine,
Flourish alike the apple and the vine;
From teeming ancient cities bright and fair.
Whether in summer heat or frosty winter air,
Stamped with the nameless charm and grace
Of a more joyous race,
Or on the rounding prairie nestling down
Homestead and frequent new-built town.
Even to those ultimate wilds where comes to be Another Westminster on the Pacific sea.

Communications.

Vancouver Municipal Works

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—The editor of the Vancouver Daily News-Advertiser having refused me the publication of this letter on account of it not meeting with his views, permit me to use a small space in your widely-circulated paper.

It appears to me that the topic of discussion among the Vancouver aldermen at present is one not of the most important to the welfare of the city. I do not purpose criticising the course they have pursued in the city's interests. For a time what occupied their attention were the Chinese, next came the health and sewerage of the city, then in discussing the Coquitlam and Capilano water schemes, and now they will be applied to for $5000 towards improving recreation grounds; the latter will be a matter for their next consideration.

When our city was swept by fire last June and numbers of our citizens with their families left destitute, the great cry of the aldermen was—"We must have a fire engine"; they have that which they desired so much and with it a good corps of volunteers. Now that they have a good engine and fire company why do they not see that it is thoroughly equipped? From what I am informed the fire company have repeatedly applied to the council for an appropriation for necessaries, but it was not forthcoming.

Every citizen of common sense knows that we must first of all guard against the fiery element, and then let the matters of the most importance to the city follow in their wake, for should our young and thriving city share the fate it did on the memorable 13th of June, 1886, we would not heed the Chinese overrunning the city, care for the Coquitlam and Capilano water schemes, the sewerage system, or either recreation grounds.

With every courtesy and respect to our city fathers, allow me to make a few suggestions (now that the hot summer days will soon be upon us).

What we want is to have a better and more efficient fire brigade, more tanks, a span of good draft horses and a man at a salary to care for and train them (so that they would know their duty), the approach into the bay at the foot of Carrol street put in good condition and a large pit sunk at the end of the approach, so that it will always be full of water in case of fire and that the tide would happen to be out at the time.

Lastly, the fire company to practice and the apparatus to be inspected thoroughly at least once a week. To get the horses is of the first importance, as every one is aware that when the volunteers have to haul the engine and hose-carts any distance, by the time they get to the scene of action they are exhausted, whereas with horses they arrive on time and are fresh for work immediately, and being able to get to a fire five minutes earlier and the men in good condition is surely worth consideration, even at the additional expense to the city. Every business man in Vancouver is also aware that if the city has a good fire brigade, and that if every possible precaution is taken against fire, insurance companies will more readily take risks with more confidence and at a lower rate than if we had a poor service, as at present insurance companies are charging extortionate premiums and then will only accept half of one's risk; this, consequently, is a great drawback to a city because people will not invest and build when they can secure no insurance.

(Without dictation) what the citizens and ratepayers want to do is to urge the council to appropriate funds for the fire company as much as is necessary in order to further the above; then let the water works schemes and sewerage of the city come next. As for the expenditure at present of the city's monies for recreation grounds, let that for a while "repose in pace." Hoping that I have not encroached upon your valuable columns, I am, &c., faithfully,

EDWARD GOLD.

A Possible Bonanza.

On several occasions we have called attention to various new avenues in which individual effort might be profitably directed in this country. The San Francisco Chronicle of a late date comes to us with a suggestion which, possibly, may have in it the elements of a bonanza. Some of our readers are aware that the fleece of the Angora goat is quite valuable, and that this thrifty animal is one of the hardiest and most easily provided for in the whole range of useful creatures. Our San Francisco cotemporary points to the suitableness of the rugged, mountainous region of California, now unoccupied by any industry, for the propagation of the goat. Considering the value of the fleece, it says, it is surprising that enterprising men have not tried the experiment of its production in a region so well adapted to the purpose. The animal would doubtless become a mischievous pest on cultivated lowlands, where there would be many young trees and ornamental plants within its reach. It would probably not pay to rear the goat in districts where it would be necessary to construct barriers to confine it within narrow limits, but little or no expense would be involved in the mountain sections, where it would be free to roam about at will. It feeds and flourishes on herbs that sheep and other animals reject, is far more nimble and hardy, and far less liable to disease than sheep. There is probably no other useful animal so easily supported as the goat, and if a flock of them were sent adrift in the mountains they would soon multiply without number. They are far more capable of taking care of themselves than either deer or antelope; and while their flesh might never become an article much sought for in the market, their skins and fleeces would always command fair prices. The wool of the Angora goat is manufactured into the most costly fabrics. It is stated that the total annual product does not exceed eight millions of pounds, and that there are only about a dozen manufacturers of mohair in the world. The staple used by these factories is chiefly obtained in Asia Minor, although small quantities are raised in various portions of Europe and in the United States. American manufacturers have produced, and introduced into the commerce of the world, more than fifty different varieties of mohair goods, including watered camelets, which possess a beauty and brilliancy of surface unapproached by fabrics made of lustre wool, and almost rivalling silks. Decorative laces, braidings, coat trimmings, light and durable cloths of elegant texture, and light, lustrous, rich articles of dress for ladies, possessing unrivalled glossiness and softness, strength and durability, are manufactured from the fleece of the Angora goat. The French manufacture from mohair a kind of lace which is cheaper and far more durable than the costly fabrics of Valenciennes and Chantilly. Ten years ago a correspondent, writing from Washington to the Cincinnati Commercial, gave some highly interesting statistics and valuable information in regard to mohair and its manufacture. He said: "Utrecht velvets have for some years been made in France, and more recently in England, for hangings, furniture, trimmings, linings of carriages, tassels, etc. Ten pounds of this hair thus manufactured have been known to bring, at retail, $500; while the best shawls made in France and the east from mohair warp, using the fur for the weft or filling, sells at enormous prices—from $505 to $2,500. The skins of the young goats are frequently dressed for furs, colored or not, and used as trimmings for the costliest ladies' dresses, cloaks, muffs, tippets, etc. A single skin thus dressed has been known to sell for from $25 to $100." The raw material is so costly from the fact that the product of Asia Minor is monopolized by foreign manufacturers, that but little progress has been in the manufacture of fabrics from mohair in this country. Expert workmen, commanding high wages, and special machinery are required, and these considerations, added to the extortionate price of the foreign staple, have kept the manufacture of mohair at home in the background. One manufacturing firm in Lawrence, Mass., paid as high as $3 per lb. for a small quantity of the raw material, but the price was so outrageously high that they were compelled to stop their machinery. The Chronicle thinks that if goat culture were established in California the foreign material would soon be driven out and the industry would speedily pass into American hands. In British Columbia we have mountains enough to furnish pasture for all the goats in the universe, and our climate is such as to encourage the hope that this new field of endeavor might be made most profitable to us. It would be worth while for some of our enterprising people to examine the subject carefully with a view to ascertaining whether this valuable animal might not be profitably raised in this country. In this, as in everything else, it is important to begin with the best material. There are goats and goats. The best qualities of mohair are obtained from thoroughbred animals only, and the best material always commands the highest price. Those who are using large quantities of the Angora goat fleece declare that the demand is large and constant, and there is no fear of overstocking the market at least for many, many years.

WHY WE HAVE VERTIGO.

A Dangerous and Sudden Disease to Which We Are All Liable.

Vertigo is from a Latin word that means to turn. It denotes an ailment characterized by a sudden feeling of dizziness and at times by actual falling. Sometimes surrounding objects seem to the person attacked to whirl round, or the floor or ground to rise up.

The fact that vertigo is often one of the earlier symptoms of apoplexy frequently fills the person with terror lest that deadly disease may be impending. But in the majority of cases it has no such significance, not even as indicating a tendency.

To most persons, standing or walking seems a very simple thing. On the contrary, it is a very complicated one, and requires the concurrent action of different nervous centres. A disturbance of their harmonious co-operation at once throws us off our balance, producing the sensations above indicated.

One form of vertigo—a very persistent form—is due to irritation of certain nerves within the inmost chamber of the ear, the so-called labyrinth. This was what Dean Swift suffered from so long, and, to the physicians of his day, so unaccountably. One of its symptoms is temporary deafness. This distinguishes it from all other forms.

Another form connects itself mainly with the eye. Of this kind is the feeling of giddiness, which some people have when, being on a train at rest, another train slowly passing deceives them into the idea that it is their own train which has begun to move. The giddiness occurs at the moment when the false and true sensations become confused together.

In the case of the near-sighted, the internal muscles of the eye often being unduly strained in their effort to converge the eye sufficiently for the sight of near objects, suddenly give way, when the eyeballs turn out and the letters run into each other. This is accompanied by a feeling of giddiness, eyeache, headache and sometimes nausea.

A third form connects itself with some slight disorder of the stomach, and occurs most often when the stomach is empty. There is a sudden swimming in the head, objects seem to revolve, and the person totters and perhaps falls.

The fourth form is purely of nervous origin, and is due to nervous exhaustion. It may be caused by intellectual overstrain, long-continued anxiety, physical excesses, or the immoderate use of tobacco, alcohol, or tea. Elevated positions may bring on an attack. It rarely results in actual falling, but oftener in the feeling of being about to fall. —[Youth's Companion.

Marriage in the United States.

In no civilized land is wedlock considered so lightly, or so rashly perpetrated, as it is in this. We are so very free here that our freedom is apt to be excessive, to run into license. We are still enjoying the advantages as well as paying some of the penalties of a new country.

In old countries marriage, except among the peasant class and the very poor and ignorant in cities, is looked upon with befitting gravity. Among the rich, the distinguished and the titled it is likely to be arranged; to be viewed from other points than inclination and sentiment.

In England these are not disregarded, but they are not permitted to have undue weight, being always subordinated to more practical agencies.

In France, Spain, Italy, in most of the European states, young men and women have, as everybody knows, very little if any liberty of choice. They are united not because they wish to be, but because their parents and other kindred will have it so.

Affection and sympathy are generally ignored; these if thought desirable, will come, it is asserted by the marriagers, after the union, when they have become adjusted to one another; they should not be expected before. Not the happiness of the young couple, but some political advantage, some great fortune, some valuable alliance is to be secured.

The Latin races carry their peculiar notions to an extreme that seems monstrous to us. They appear to sell their women in the open market, and style the market matrimony.

Our connubial customs on the other hand—the social freedom of our girls, the recklessness with which we marry, disdaining every kind of prudence in the name of love—are past their comprehension. They demand solid guarantees for the future of matrimony; we demand nothing but the will, or fancy, or whim of a boy and girl—accepting it as a permanent and sacred passion.

We are shocked at their way; they are amazed at ours.—[N. Y. Star.

Her Potential Teeth.

The attraction that lies in a beautiful woman's open mouth, says the Boston Record, hasn't been sung by the poets a great deal, but it is a momentous fact just the same.

There is a lovely girl, whose home is at one of our watering places, who almost always goes about with her mouth, in which there are two exquisite rows of pearly teeth, open, and who, oddly enough, generally has an admiring circle of men and youths about her.

Her elder sister who doesn't hold her mouth open, told the other day how the thing goes:

"At the party last night," said she, "Bessie was sitting with her mouth closed, for a wonder, and there wasn't anybody with her—for a wonder, too.

"Presently she opened her mouth a little, and a young man left me and went over to her. Then she opened her mouth a little wider, and another young man went over where she was. By-and-by she opened her mouth a little more, so that both rows of her teeth showed, and she kept laughing about something, and the men kept gathering around her.

"Dear me! I thought her jaws would break, but it's perfectly natural for her to keep her mouth open that way. And the young men fairly swarmed around her all the evening."

Origin of Slavery in America.

The employment of negro slaves was begun through motives of humanity.

Seeing how cruelly the Spaniards worked the poor natives in the silver mines, not long after the discovery of America, a priest named Las Casas, out of pure benevolence, recommended the employment of negroes because they were stronger than the Indians.

If he could have foreseen what his advice would lead to he would probably have kept it to himself.

A Sad Mistake.

"Do you think, Mr. Featherly," said Mrs. Hendricks, "that Miss Hobson is a very beautiful girl?"

"She is not half as pretty as your daughter, Mrs. Hendricks."

"I am afraid you are a sad flatterer, Mr. Featherly," laughed Mrs. Hendricks, touching him lightly with her fan. "I am told that my daughter looks very much like me."

"Well, even admitting that," said Featherly, gallantly, "I still think she is prettier than Miss Hobson."—[N. Y. Times.

GETTING EVEN WITH HIM.

The Parson's Bad Hair-Cutting Very Aptly Rebuked—An Improved Crop.

Away down in Maine, in a region where the usages remain as primitive as they are anywhere in the United States, there is an aged parson who performs not only the ordinary clerical duties, preaching to the people of the district and marrying and burying them, but also turns an honest penny by cutting their hair on occasion.

The old parson isn't exactly an artist in this line, and is distressingly absent-minded, but there is no barber anywhere in the neighborhood, and nobody there cares much about a Parker House cut, anyway.

One day 'Lije Jones, an old codger and jack at all trades of the neighborhood, came to the parson to get his hair cut, and the parson, who was evidently meditating too deeply his next Sunday's sermon to note what he was doing, cut the hair in most phenomenally ragged and irregular style.

In some places he had shorn the hair down to the scalp, and in others left it almost untouched, so that when he had finished his absent-minded task his subject's head had a weird and unkempt look that was wonderful to behold.

"What shall I pay ye, parson?" he asked.

"O, come and mow the hazel brush out back of the house to-morrow," said the parson.

When 'Lije got home his wife exclaimed:

"Mercy on me! what you been a-doing?"

"Gittin' my hair cut," said 'Lije.

"Laws a me, if the parson didn't do a purty job this time," said she, "then there ain't no truth in revelation!"

Next day the parson had a funeral to attend to, and when he got home he found the man whose hair he had cut the day before just leaving the place.

He had mowed the hazel bush so that in one spot the tops had just been mowed off, in another it was cut half way down, in another mowed to the ground, and in another torn up by the roots. It was the sorriest-looking field that anybody ever saw.

"Why, I declare!" said the parson. "What have you been doing?"

"Mowin' the hazel," said 'Lije.

"Mowin' it? You've been manglin' it," said the parson.

'Lije simply took off his hat, and presented his chaotic crown to the parson's gaze.

"Well, well," said he; "did I do that? Well, come into the house, and I'll cut it for you."

The parson did the best work that he could this time, considering the havoc he had made the day before, and when he had finished 'Lije Jones took up his bush scythe again and—went home.—[Boston Record.

THEN AND NOW.

I was young in those days, oh, my darling!
With tiny fair heads at my knee;
We were young in the sweet summer weather,
On warm, golden sands by the sea;
Yet there, in the sweet, solemn twilight,
A dream came to me.

The small heads on pillows were lying,
And bright eyes were dark in eclipse;
The gay crimson poppies of dreamland
Were pressed to the innocent lips,
And you, on the wet sands, were watching
Dim phantoms of ships.

I thought, as they passed like a vision,
And slowly sailed out in the night,
How swiftly the years would glide onward
And bear the wee ones from our sight,
And leave us but grave men and women,
To struggle and fight.

I heard the soft words of the lovers—
The old words that ever are new;
The dear home was dreary and empty,
Save, darling, for me and for you.
But I crept to your heart in my weeping,
So tried and so true.

I am old in these days, oh, my darling!
Too old for the world and its ways;
I sit all alone in the twilight,
And watch the oak logs as they blaze.
"She's growing so old, the dear mother!"
The sweet daughter says.

My darling, the home nest is empty;
I watched every bird as it flew;
The whole world is empty and dreary,
Bereft of the one love so true.
I weep with no strong heart to lean on,
And long, dear, for you.
—[Boston Transcript.

Farmers Can Raise Their Own Trout.

It is much easier, says Seth Green, to stock a stream than to raise fish in ponds, because the young fish will take care of themselves much better than anyone can take care of them, and if they are protected from danger until they are about forty-five days old—which is about the time the fish culturist takes charge of them—until they are ready to feed, they are then tolerably able to look out for themselves.

In stocking a stream with trout, the young fish should be taken to its headwaters, or put into the springs and little rivulets which empty into it. As they grow larger, they will gradually settle down stream, and run up again to the head-waters in the fall and winter to spawn.

When putting fish into a stream, do not put them suddenly into water much warmer than that of the vessel in which they have been transported. They will not be so likely to be injured by putting them in water a few degrees colder; but try to avoid all sudden changes, and gradually raise or lower the temperature of the water in which you bring them, until it is even with that of the stream in which they are to be placed.

Perhaps, in no branch of fish culture, are the results more immediate, or more apparent, than in restocking streams.—[American Agriculturist.

Twin Blessings.

A gentleman who was present at Nelson Court recently related the following to us:

The efficient sheriff was wanted in court, but could not be found, although diligent search was made for him.

After a time, however, he put in his appearance, and leaning over the bar, whispered something to one of the legal fraternity, whereupon that gentleman arose and informed the court that the sheriff had just been presented with twins by his wife, and moved that his Honor make an appropriation for them.

The Judge turned to the clerk, and instructed him to enter an appropriation of ten dollars each for them.—[Lynchburg Virginian.

His Old Self Again.

Dumley: "Way, Robinson, I'm glad to see you out again. You don't look the same man you did two months ago."

Robinson: "Oh, I'm all right again. By the way, Dumley, have you got a couple of dollars about you?"

Dumley (handing him the money): "As I said, Robinson, you don't look the same man, but by peanut, you are the same man."—[Life.

WHAT PHYSICIANS SAY ABOUT THE

STARR KIDNEY PAD.

"Treatment by Absorption has for some time been recognized by Medical Men to be the most simple and effectual means of conveying to Diseased Organs, "Curatives," but in cases of Kidney Disease and Complaints attendant thereon, successful treatment was practically impossible until the introduction of the Starr Kidney Pad. It costs less than a single prescription and is immeasurably more decisive and effective than any quantity of internal Medicinal dosing. Worn immediately over the seat of Disease, its curative properties become absorbed by the diseased and enfeebled Organs, continuously and directly, as required to insure in return their healthy action and original vigour. It is comfortable to the patient and pleasant in its effects, and cures when nothing else can. The Starr Kidney Pad accomplishes positive, decisive results. A more valuable discovery as a true remedy for Kidney Diseases was never made.—Medical Gazette

The Starr Kidney Pad, manufactured in Toronto, is a permanent sure cure for diseases, disorders and ailments of the Kidneys, Bladder and urinary secretive system, or attendant complaints, causing pain in the small of the back, sides, etc., producing urinary disorders, such as too frequent, scanty, difficult, painful or copious micturition, inability of retention and sedimentary urine, dropsical symptoms, etc., denoting the presence in the system of diseases common to the urinary secretive organs—known as gravel, catarrh of the bladder and passages, Bright's disease, diabetes, dropsy, piles, nervous debility, etc. Send for pamphlet to LANGLEY & CO., Wholesale Agents, Victoria. Retailed by A. M. HERRING and D. S. CURTIS & CO., New Westminster; T. McNEELEY, Ladner's Landing; H. McDOWELL & CO., HASTINGS SAW MILL; CO., THE VANCOUVER DRUG CO., Vancouver; W. E. TESTIMONIAL!

Vancouver, 23rd June, 1886.

MR. G. ROBERTSON,
Vancouver;

Representing Goldie & McCulloch, Galt, Ont.

SIR.—We the undersigned having witnessed the terrible fire which wiped out of existence the young city of Vancouver, on the 13th inst., have, after the fire, examined the safes sold by you, some of which were put to the most severe test, having been surrounded by large quantities of lard and bacon, and we are pleased to testify to the remarkable manner in which every Safe sold by you preserved its contents, not only books and papers, but also thousands of dollars in paper money were taken out in perfect condition. We can, therefore, with the greatest confidence, recommend them as thoroughly fire proof:

THE BRITISH COLUMBIAN Printing Company

(LIMITED.)

ON THE 10TH OF JANUARY, 1887, the COLUMBIAN Newspaper and Printing Concern was purchased by a joint stock company composed of citizens of New Westminster, to be known as the "British Columbian Printing Co., Limited." The concern has been for nearly a year owned and controlled by the British Columbia Stationery and Printing Company, of New Westminster, Victoria and Vancouver. The object of the new company is to continue the publication of the BRITISH COLUMBIAN newspaper and carry on a general printing and publishing concern, controlled entirely by those whose individual interest it will be to promote the development, especially of the Mainland. There will be no slackening of the energy hitherto displayed in the management of the establishment, and its patrons may rely upon receiving full value for their money. The COLUMBIAN will continue to be entirely independent in both Dominion and provincial politics, and will devote itself to the advancement of such schemes a may be considered in the public interest. The concern is now entirely separate from any other business, the book and stationery establishment in this city having been taken over by Mr. T. R. Pearson, who will continue to carry it on in his own name and for his own benefit. It is desirable that a daily newspaper should be maintained in this city, and the new company asks for public patronage on the ground that it is engaged in an enterprise calculated to promote the public welfare. It asks that the COLUMBIAN be judged on its own merits and supported only so long as its policy is enconsistt with its professions. In consequence of this business change all accounts due the concern must be settled without delay so that the books of the former company may be adjusted and closed. A HOME COMPANY.

This Association merits the confidence the Public is reposing in it from the following FACTS:—

The Security offered to policy holders is unsurpassed by any Company doing business in Canada.

It has no schemes of insurance, but the well-established lines, hence the policy holders cannot be misled as to their contracts.

Its statements to the public can be readily understood, its cash statement showing every item of income and how expended.

Its position is ascertained annually from a detailed valuation in which every item of liability is included.

Its progress has been unexampled in the history of insurance in Canada.

Its policies are indisputable after three years, and non-forfeitable after two years' existence.

Its profits are distributed upon an equitable basis. The profits to one class of policy holders are not lessened to give larger profits to any other class, which method affords superior advantages over the uniform bonus plan of distribution.

Liberal Conditions as to Residence and Travel.

Teddie Wade.

Deep lie the waters in the vale,
The Serpentine is out;
And not a yard, but you might sail
And tack and turn about.

The cypress swamp is dark and still,
Save blue-jays' screech so harsh;
A lonely crane, all legs and bill,
Stands dreaming in the marsh.

Above the floods the willows bend,
As though by sorrow swayed,
Reminded of the mournful end
Of little Teddie Wade.

His parents' eldest born was he,
A bright and clever boy,
Just getting old enough to be
His father's hope and joy.

One day he sent him to Holenroyd,
To honor Buck and Bright,
And never feared, nor felt annoyed,
To see him not at night.

To stay till morn he might be pressed,
As he would often do,
A well-known and a well-loved guest;
The oxen knew him too.

The morning came, but never more
Came Teddie home again,
Until there entered by the door,
A melancholy train.

They found him 'neath the swollen tide,
Laid in the river bed,
They left him by his own bedside,
All that was mortal—dead.

In Christ Church yard, to mother earth,
He sleeps upon the breast
Of Mother Church, by Second Birth,
With all the saints at rest.

And when the floods come o'er the land,
And Winter 'gins to fade,
While standing sadly on the strand,
We think of Teddie Wade.

The supply of labor in Victoria is said to be very much in excess of the demand. Many scores of laboring men are reported to be walking around the streets, idle.

Nearly 50 passengers came down on the Reliance, which arrived this afternoon from Yale and way ports. The steamer brought down a large cargo of produce also.

There are now 3,372 Young Men's Christian Associations in the world, 1,071 of which are in America, with 140,930 members and annual current expenses of $785,000.

Among the ladies presented at the Ottawa vice-regal reception last week, were Mrs. Senator McInnes, Mrs. J. A. Mara, and Miss Chisholm. The affair is represented as "gorgeous."

Weather continues wet and disagreeable, and farming operations as well as other out-door work is greatly hindered. The season has been remarkably backward and unpleasant.

The str. Spallumcheen left Kamloops on Wednesday last for Spallumcheen and way ports, loaded with fruit trees and general merchandise. The str. Lady Dufferin left on Friday for the same destination with a mixed cargo.

A cablegram to the Globe says the issue of the Atlantic & Northwest Railway bonds, previously referred to, was a complete success. Nearly three million pounds were applied for, being far in excess of the whole issue, in a few hours. The lists were closed at once. Stock now fetches one per cent. premium.

GAS COMPANY.—The first annual meeting of the Westminster Gas company was held yesterday. All the old directors were re-elected for the ensuing year. The capital stock of the company was increased from $65,000 to $75,000.

REDUCTION IN RATES.—The C.P.R. have decided to grant reduced rates to delegates, both clerical and laymen, to the general assembly of the Presbyterian church to be held in June next at Winnipeg. The fare from this city, for the round trip, is quoted at $40.

C. P. R. ITEMS.—Owing to the C. P. R. extension not yet being finished to Vancouver, the new train service between this city and that city has not begun. It is expected, however, that by the 10th inst. everything will be ready to begin the morning train to the Inlet and return.

ACCIDENT.—Theodore Brown, late first officer of the bark John Worster, fell from the trestlework at Departure Bay, on Wednesday night, and was killed. His body was found on Thursday morning. He was about 40 years of age, and a German by birth. As the cause of death was apparent, there was no inquest.

NO EMPTY HOUSES.—Vacant houses are very difficult to discover at present in Westminster. Mr. J. G. Blake, of the C. P. R. telegraph service, who has lately decided to remove to this city, is as yet unable to obtain a dwelling house. Conductor Trodden, of the C. P. R., who will be stationed hereafter in Westminster instead of Moody, has experienced a similar difficulty.

MEDICAL COUNCIL.—The medical council met in Victoria on Saturday, and the following gentlemen were elected officers for the ensuing year: Dr. Trew, president; Dr. Davie, vice-president; Dr. Hannington, treasurer; Dr. Milne, registrar and secretary. The council adjourned, to meet again on Tuesday, the 7th day of June next, for general business and the examination of candidates.

A NEAT ROOM.—The new quarters of the city clerk and council in the Hyack Hall presented a very neat and creditable appearance last evening. A partition has been put across the center of the Hyack Hall, thus dividing the hall into two separate rooms. The second of these rooms forms the council chamber. One of the small anterooms in the rear is the clerk's office. The wainscotting and partitions have been painted. A raised platform has been made for the mayor's desk. Altogether the councillors are to be congratulated on having secured such cosy quarters for their deliberations.

ELECTRIC LIGHT FOR WESTMINSTER.—At last night's meeting of the council a communication was read from J. C. Armstrong on behalf of the electric light company, asking permission to place poles on the streets for electric light purposes. Some of the councillors objected on the ground that they knew nothing of the intentions of the electric light company. Coun. Jaques explained that a company had been formed in this city for the purpose of supplying electric light. Already the machinery and dynamo had been obtained and the company now asked permission to place the poles. The company claim that they can supply electric light cheaper than light by gas or coal oil.

A QUEER ACCIDENT.—A curious accident occurred at the Big Slide of the Fraser river a few days ago. As some men were lowering a ton of sulphuric acid and other goods in an iron tank down the almost perpendicular Jacob's ladder to the Foster mine the rope parted. The load rushed down the incline with fearful rapidity towards the mill buildings. The workmen in the mill ran to places of safety, momentarily expecting that the terrible contents of the tank would scatter destruction far and wide, and perhaps involve the whole establishment in a common ruin. Fortunately, the tank rolled off the ladder, and striking a boulder, was broken before the building was reached. The acid gushed out, destroying the goods, but doing no other damage.

THE YUKON EXPEDITION.—Dr. G. M. Dawson, assistant director of the Geological Survey of Canada, accompanied by William Ogilvy, D. L. S., M. McConnell, and Alex. McEvoy, have arrived on the coast. The following is the programme of their surveying and exploring operations in the Yukon country: Dr. Dawson and assistant will proceed to Fort Wrangel and up the Stickeen river to Dease river, and down the Dease to the Liard river. They will then proceed to the junction of the Pelly with the Lewis branch of the Yukon. A route survey will be taken along the way and the most important points fixed astronomically. The doctor will also be able to obtain accurate geological data of the whole route to be traversed by the expedition. Mr. Ogilvy will go in by Chilcoot Inlet and Perrier Pass, and remain during the winter somewhere on the Yukon. In the spring they will proceed to Perrier Pass, making surveys all the way. McConnell will proceed to the junction of the Dease and Driard rivers and follow the latter to its junction with the McKenzie at Fort Simpson. Mr. McConnell will make a geological and geographical survey of the country he traverses. In the fall it is probable he will go south by the McKenzie to either Edmonton or Carleton. The results that it is hoped will be achieved by the expedition will be highly important to this province and to the Dominion, for it will determine the character of what is thought to be a country rich in mineral and other resources, but which is at present almost a terra incognita. The expedition could not be in better hands, and whatever results are attained will be the best possible that can be secured.

Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is shown by its good effects in destroying worms. Many have tried it with best results.

ALAS! HE'S GONE.—A well known musical professor, who came to this city about eighteen months or so ago, and whose penchant was the musical tuition of the upper ten at $5 or so per lesson, has gone where the woodbine twineth, having left these parts last Thursday. The janitor of the theatre grieves for his departure for sundry back accounts due, and a dentist is also reported in an agitated mind for a bill that he cannot now very well collect. The teacher was a maccaroni eater, with curly black hair, short of stature, but withal a lion during his stay here. There is great mourning amongst certain of the elite just now, but time heals old sores. The professor is supposed to have taken $7,500 in good Victoria money with him.—Victoria Times.

THE MISSION—Last night many of those benefited by the mission gave public expression to their gratitude, and Mrs. Hampson-Hemus addressed them very earnestly and to each she gave a small book of Christian counsel and advice. To-night, in the Skating Rink, the last public meeting in connection with the mission will be held, when Mrs. Hampson-Hemus will deliver a gospel temperance address. We hope many who have not yet heard this gifted and most remarkable woman will be present to-night. The mission of Mr. and Mrs. Hampson-Hemus has been the means of accomplishing a great deal of good. Through the influence of these meetings many persons have been led to enter upon a new life, and there is no reason to doubt the permanent character of the change. The addresses have been full of simplicity and earnestness, and they have been characterized by a remarkable apprehension of the bible teaching and of personal responsibility. The evangelists themselves have won the hearts of all with whom they have come in contact, and they are undoubtedly earnest and unselfish, and wonderfully successful laborers in the cause which lies so near their hearts. They seem to be utterly free from sectarian prejudices, and anxious only that people should forsake evil and embrace the good. It is the wish of many true hearts that the way may be opened for the return of these people to this city at some future time, and that their consecrated labors everywhere may produce an abundant harvest.

Mr. W. R. Lazier, Bailiff, &c., Belleville, writes; "I find Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil the best medicine I have ever used in my stable. I have used it for bruises, scratches, wind puffs and cuts, and every case it gave the best satisfaction. We used it as a household remedy for colds, burns, &c., and it is a perfect panacea. It will remove warts by paring them down and applying it occasionally."

DISEASE GATHERS STRENGTH as it advances. Annihilate its birth. When the bowels become sluggish, digestion feeble or the liver torpid, they should be aroused and stimulated with Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, a medicine foremost in usefulness among alteratives. It should not be abandoned if an immediate cure is not effected, but be use as it deserves, systematically and with persistence. It will then prove that it is thorough.

City Council.

The council met last night for the first time in their new chamber in Hyack Hall. There were were present Councillors Bonson, Reid, Jaques, Curtis, Shiles and Elliot.

Coun. Curtis reported that his worship the mayor was indisposed and would be unable to be present. Coun. Elliot was then called to the chair.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following communications were read: From H. B. Roycraft, superintendent of gaols, enclosing a complaint made by Constable Bloomfield, of Victoria, against A. Jackson, keeper of the lock-up at this city, to the effect that said Jackson had allowed a Chinese woman while under arrest to escape from the lock-up; from R. Gibson, mayor of Nanaimo, extending to the council and citizens of Westminster an invitation to be present at Nanaimo on the Queen's Birthday; from J. C. Armstrong, asking permission in behalf of an electric light company erect poles on the streets for electric light purposes; leave granted; from secretary of building society, asking permission to use Hyack Hall as a place of meeting for that society; leave granted; from Hugh Nelson, acknowledging receipt of by-laws; from Mrs. W. B. Harvey, asking permission to place lumber on Columbia st. for building purposes; leave granted; from W. C. Ward, enclosing itemized account of Drake, Jackson & Co.; bill ordered paid.

BILLS AND ACCOUNTS

The following accounts were read and ordered paid: B. C. Gazette, $22; Reid G Currie, $1.50; P. A. Collins, drayage, $6.50; Francis Forrest, work for corporation, $75.50; J. McRae, do., $26.50; Norman Martin, do., $46; A. Jackson, for keep of prisoners at lock-up, $14.

IMPERIAL DEFENCES.

A letter was read from Hon. Henry Holbrook, of London, Eng., informing the council that he had placed before the Canadian delegates to the colonial conference the need of fortifying Westminster. He had received promises from these delegates that the matter would be very carefully considered at the conference.

REPORTS.

Coun. Jaques reported, on behalf of the board of works, that he had examined Cunningham st. and did not think there was any immediate necessity for grading that street.

BY-LAWS.

The water pipes by-law was reconsidered and the seal of the corporation attached. The dog tax by-law was laid over until next meeting. The real estate by-law was read a first and second time.

TAXES.

Coun. Curtis asked how the payment of the delinquent taxes was progressing. The clerk answered that many of them were now paid. Coun. Shiles favored some course being adopted to collect road taxes. Coun. Curtis agreed.

The communication of Mr. Roycraft was then taken up. Coun. Shiles complained that he was ignorant of the matter. The clerk explained the circumstances of the matter, which have already appeared in the COLUMBIAN. The matter was finally referred to the police committee.

Council then adjourned.

Mr. Alex. Robinson, of Exeter, in writing about on of the most popular articles, and one that has done more good to the afflicted than any other medicine has during the short time it has been in existence, says; "I have used four bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, and have been cured of Dyspepsia that troubled me for ten years. Part of that I had it very bad, and was at considerable expense trying to get relief; but this excellent remedy was the first and only relief I received.
