VOLUME 23 NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 27, 1883. NUMBER 51

The British Columbian.

Wednesday Morning, June 27, 1883.

Our High Schools.

In referring to the high school in this city some time ago we expressed regret that the government had made no provision for taking it over and conducting it under their own auspices. We learn now that the policy of the government is to withdraw all grants to high schools in the province. Hitherto the high school at Victoria has been wholly supported at the public expense. Not only were the teachers paid out of the provincial treasury, but the school house was built by the government and all incidental expenses connected with its management were made a charge upon the provincial revenues. While this was being done at Victoria, the late government refused to contribute anything whatever towards a high school in this city. But as a high school here was considered of very great importance, it was established and has been maintained up to the present time through the liberality of private subscriptions. When the present government came into office it was hoped a more just and liberal policy would be adopted towards high school work. The management of the high school in this city intimated to the public school trustees that they were willing to hand over the concern to them to be conducted as a government school. The expectation of the management has, however, been disappointed, and the school must continue to go on as a private enterprise or not go on at all. The government have deliberately determined that no assistance shall be given out of the public revenues to any educational institution except the public schools. They maintain that it is the first duty of the state to provide a common school education for the people, and until that has been completely accomplished they are not justified in applying provincial funds to higher education. There are now, it is asserted, a number of settlements without schools because the public revenues will not admit of their establishment. The government consider that it would be unfair to these settlements to apply any portion of their taxes to the support of high schools, and leave them absolutely without any educational advantages whatever. It has been decided, therefore, that, as far as the revenues will permit, a free public school education will be provided for every section having the requisite number of children, and that, until the revenues materially increases, no grants for high school education will be made. In pursuance of this policy the grant to Victoria high school will be withdrawn after this year, and higher education everywhere throughout the province will be left to private enterprise. If this policy be adhered to, it will be at least fair to all sections of the country. Hitherto Victoria has enjoyed a free high school, but the same privilege has been refused to all other parts of the province. Under the new policy Victoria will be placed on precisely the same footing as other cities and towns where there is supposed to be material enough for the establishment of a high school. In this respect the policy of the government is fair and consistent. But we are of opinion that some provision should be made for high school education in this province. We are not in favor of free high schools, but where the expenses of education are so heavy we believe that a government grant of, say $1,000, should be made to the two or three districts where a sufficient number of advanced pupils could be found to justify the establishment of a high school. There should be fees imposed to cover other expenses, or where these are not sufficient the institution might require municipal aid. If the present high schools are closed there will not be left any institution in the province where a pupil who has completed the public school course may pursue his studies. We are of opinion that provision should be made for this class of students, which now amounts to a considerable number. The high schools, as in other provinces, should be able to prepare pupils for the ordinary university matriculation. This could be done at a cost of between $2000 and $3000 a year for the whole province. We hope the government may be induced to reconsider their decision in this matter, and prevent the great expense and risk of sending a large number of persons out of the country for an ordinary high school education.

A Battle of Snakes.

DEATH ENCOUNTER BETWEEN TWO SNAKES.

On a bare spot of this western wilderness, says the Seymour Cresset of Baylor county, Texas, lay coiled a great rattlesnake warming. Little dreamed he that a mortal enemy was on his trail. But the eye-witness we quote saw the king of coilers and of shadows, in his bight black garb, slowly approach. The assailant was small, not thicker than a thumb nor longer than a short yard stick. He glided along now raising his glittering head and darting fire from his eyes. Stealthily he moved on the trail toward the great rattlesnake. Between them was a small log, an old fallen tree; just beyond it lay the rattler. When the little warrior came to this log he raised nearly half his body from the ground, standing on his tail, as a fiery stallion rears before he strikes a powerful blow with his fore hoofs. When it beheld its spotted enemy it emitted a terrific hiss, and as a flash of lightning it sped to the side of the rattlesnake. Now came a contest between science and skill on one side and strength and deadly venom on the other. The little snake, with a skill and knowledge of its foe did not strike home at the first bound. The startled rattler coiled and sounded the alarm. The assailant spun round and round, with his fated little eyes darting baleful fire into the eyes of its opponent, and as it completed each circle sought a chance for a sure and deadly blow. But the other made the inner and shorter whirl with its head and neck to evade the same, and to strike a crushing blow itself, with its great fangs glittering, and all the while the terrific rattles played deadly music. Finally the rattler raised and struck, but his fangs were dodged by the expert assailant, and they bit the earth, while the scienced little reptile as quickly closed and struck his teeth into the back of the rattler's neck. And now the scene became terrific beyond description. The great snake turned and twisted with widely-distended mouth, emitting a horrid noise as the tumult of the rattling and death struggle increased. For a time the rattler kept his coils as closely together as possible to prevent the next crushing move of its antagonist, and in a vain effort to twist and shake off its little black enemy, amid short blows. But with a skill that surpasses human comprehension the assailant kept its little body clear of the poisonous fangs and kept its hold firmly. In despair the rattler raised his head as if summoning all his energies for a final effort, and in the twinkle of an eye, as a whip-lash twines around the tree, the king of snakes had coiled himself around the rattler and, tightening the grasp with a startling power, crushed the monster in a second. When the breathless head of the rattler had fallen to the earth the little victor slowly uncoiled himself, and, making sure that the victim was dead, unloosened its hold, and, having snuffed the air of victory, darted off to other fields of conquest.

A Boy of Iron.

HE APPLIES FOR AN APPRENTICESHIP.

A year or more ago, as the foreman of one of the iron works of this city was crossing the yard one day, he espied a little skip of a boy, seemingly not over eleven years old, seatted on a big fly-wheel and chewing the end of bitter reflection.

"Who are you?"

"I'm Jack."

"What are you doing here?"

"Resting."

"What do you want?"

"A job."

Those were the questions and answers. The boy was pale and ragged, but in his steel blue eyes the foreman saw game. And, too, the idea of a waif like him setting out to battle the world touched a tender chord in the heart of the man who had boys of his own, and he set Jack at work in the yard.

No one thought the boy would stay a week and no one cared to ask where he came from or who he was. But he stuck. He was hard-working and faithful, and, as the weeks went by, he gained friends. One day he walked up to the foreman and said:

"I want to learn the trade."

"You! Ha! ha! ha! Why, Jack you are not big enough to hold a cold-chisel."

"I can whip any 'prentice boy in this shop!" was the earnest declaration.

"Just hear him! Why, any of the lot could turn you wrong side out! When you get big enough to whip the smallest one you come to me for a job."

At noon that day Jack walked up to the biggest apprentice boy in the shop and said:

"Come out doors."

"What do you want?"

"I am going to lick you."

"What for?"

"Because I want a chance to learn the trade."

The two went out, and, in sight of twenty witnesses, little Jack won a victory. At one o'clock he touched his cap to the foreman and said:

"I've licked your biggest 'prentice, and want to go to work!"

Ten minutes later he had become a machinist's apprentice, and if you go in there to-day, you will find him with greasy hands, oily face, and a head full of business ideas. Jack carries the keys to the drawers where the steam gauges, safety valves and other trimmings are kept, and he knows the use of every tool, the workings of every piece of machinery, and there is a constant call for Jack here and Jack there. Before he is twenty he will be a finished machinist, and before he is twenty-five he will be foreman of some great shop. He is quiet, earnest, respectful and observing. What he does is well done. What he is told he never forgets.—Cleveland Herald.

Last of the Ferry.

We regret very much that the efforts lately made to establish a steam ferry at this city have completely failed. Although enquiries were made in response to the advertisement, no tenders have been put in, and we presume the matter will now drop. It is very unfortunate that an enterprise of so much importance to the settlements beyond the river, as well as to this city, should be allowed to go by default. For some years the farmers have been crying out for a ferry. The circumstances were such as to justify complaint. But when an opportunity was presented to these municipalities to connect the two sides of the river, with one single exception they declined to take any action. We believe the provincial government and the council of this city have done everything that could be reasonably expected in this matter, and they cannot be charged with the responsibility of its failure. We believe firmly that a ferry properly established and conducted would pay almost from the first, and in a few years it would undoubtedly become a source of considerable profit. But no one seems disposed to take it up, and there the scheme comes to an end for the present. We presume any proposition from persons desiring to establish a ferry would receive favorable consideration at any time, and should not be surprised if such a proposition comes to light before the season is over.

The Queen's Abdication.

What would happen if Queen Victoria should abdicate? is a question which has been freely discussed during the past few weeks. Everybody supposes that Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, would succeed to the throne; but what then? The change of a king in England may be a very simple matter in itself. It involves the going out of one and the coming in of another. The outgoing sovereign takes with him his retinue of personal attendants to be pensioned off at the state's expense: the incoming sovereign brings into the imperial palace with him his own set—and it is here that those influences which may mould the character of the state more or less may be found. The king, like other men, will surely be very much influenced by the opinions and habits of those whom he chooses as associates. It is of great interest to the nation, therefore, to know who shall be the select companions and personal advisers of the next King of Great Britain. There was a time when the nation would have viewed with the utmost alarm a change which now may possibly be very near. The early life of Albert Edward was in many respects very far from perfection. The persons in whose companionship he took delight were by no means such as a christian nation would desire to see in the imperial palace. But we believe the prince has greatly reformed since he attained the status of a man, and it is an undoubted fact that his wife has exercised a very beneficial influence over him. In the event of his accession to the throne he may prove himself a most worthy successor to his most worthy mother. On the other hand he may not, and the nation will certainly suffer more or less through his failures. It is a fortunate circumstance that the sovereign of Great Britain is not an absolute monarch. The British constitution has been so arranged that kingly powers are more in name than in fact. The sovereign is merely an executive figurehead: the prime minister is really the ruler of the nation. Not even the patronage of the state falls to the sovereign. A few weeks ago Queen Victoria requested that her son, Prince Leopold, should be appointed governor-general of Canada. But the prime minister refused to make the appointment, and stated as one reason for his refusal that such patronage did not belong to the queen, and an appointment made on her recommendation might become a dangerous precedent. But if the sovereign of Great Britain has not much real power, he has a vast influence. The reign of Queen Victoria has been long and remarkable. Her influence has undoubtedly done much to shape the policy of the nation and has materially affected social life. We cannot hope for a more exemplary sovereign, or one whose pure life and large sympathies will do more to promote high moral sentiment. Let us hope that her reign may yet be continued, and that her successor may fulfil the highest expectations of the nation.

It is reported that the str. Yosemite will leave San Francisco for British Columbia on the 1st July.

Welcome showers of rain have been falling during the past few days, and will do much good to growing crops.

Mr. McMullen has purchased the steamer Lottie which will be used in connection with his railway contract.

The run of spring salmon in the Fraser is now over and preparations are being made for the July catch.

The San Francisco Bulletin estimates the Columbia river salmon pack of the past spring fully equal to that of last year.

The Hon. Mr. Justice Crease came down from the interior on Monday, and will preside at the county court to-day.

And so we are to have a base ball match on Dominion Day. The Tigers and the Aritas are preparing salve for the occasion.

Capt. Gardiner states that a new channel has been found at the sandheads, in which there is apparently a good depth of water.

Stein & Good's handsome advertising desk has been placed in the Colonial Hotel. A more extended notice will appear in our next issue.

The str. Rithet brought down 37 head of cattle from Hope last Monday morning, and the Irving brought 30 head which she landed at Brownville.

The run of spring salmon this season has not been up to the average. The sock-eyes may be expected shortly. Capt. Pittendrigh states definitely that they will be here on the 8th July.

The election of a public school trustee, to fill the place of Mr. Johnston, whose term has expired, will be held to-day in the council chamber, instead of the court house. Election at noon.

The distribution of medals among the survivors of the recent campaign in Egypt, has been completed. The total number of medals issued is 44,000, and it required a ton and a half of silver to make them.

The ladies of the Roman Catholic church of this city announce that they will hold a bazaar in Webster's stone building on Dominion Day. Particulars will be seen by reference to an advertisement elsewhere.

Persons who have not already paid their provincial taxes would do well to read the collector's notice in another column. Taxes remaining unpaid after the 30th inst. will become delinquent, and an increased rate will then apply.

We understand that Mr. Trapp has received a number of commissions for his auction sale of real estate, etc., which will be held shortly in this city. Persons wishing to avail themselves of this sale should furnish particulars at once.

Whatcom has got a newspaper, and a very good one too. Its name is the Reveille, it is published by Messrs. Jenkins & Nicklin, and is just the sort of paper to promote the development of its community. The COLUMBIAN hopes it may meet with success.

The Duke of Cambridge has raised the question in England, whether ladies should be permitted to be present at public dinners, by declining to take the chair at the Caledonian Asylum dinner because ladies were to sit down with gentlemen at the banquet.

The Methodist Sabbath school picnic last Saturday was a very pleasant affair. The party went on a scow, towed by Mr. English's tug Westminster. They had lunch at Pit Lake, and after taking a trip over that charming piece of water, returned to this city before dark.

The str. Enterprise sometimes swoops down upon this city with a suddenness that takes one's breath away. Yesterday afternoon, while arranging material for an article on the mail service, she came right up to the wharf at 4:40, only 40 minutes behind time!

Beside each plate at a recent dinner in Paris was a telephone, which was connected with a distant salon, where a superb orchestra was playing. The guests were thus able, between the courses, to pass the time pleasantly in listening to good music instead of making obvious remarks about the weather.

Admiral and Mrs. Lyons, and Capt. Edwards, arrived in this city last Monday on the str. Rithet. They were much delighted with the trip up river and through the interior. Admiral Lyons and Capt. Edwards also expressed themselves much pleased with the appearance of Port Moody. Mr. French drove the party out to Port Moody in one of his coaches on Monday afternoon.

VANDALISM.—A correspondent asserts that a number of graves in the cemetery (both Masonic and others) have recently been desecrated, and that the vases in which flowers had been placed in memory of departed loved ones have been stolen and taken away. This is a most dastardly piece of vandalism, and it is to be hoped the wretches who are guilty of it may be caught and punished as they deserve.

ANOTHER SALE.—Mr. R. W. Deane last week purchased a number of lots, belonging to the Murray property at Port Moody, for $5,000 cash. We believe some other minor sales of Port Moody property have been made during the week, but the particulars have not reached us.

EXCURSION TO SEATTLE.—From an advertisement in another column it will be seen that the steamer Evangel gives an excursion from this city to Seattle on the 3d of July. The round trip costs only $7.50, and those who would like to take a look at a live city will find a most favorable opportunity.

STEAMERS.—The strs. Enterprise and Irving left for Victoria and Yale on Saturday morning. Str. Rithet arrived from Victoria on Saturday evening and went up to Yale. On Monday the str. Rithet arrived down from Yale and went to Victoria. The Irving arrived down from Yale Monday night. The str. Enterprise arrived from Victoria yesterday afternoon at 4:40.

THE WELLINGTON.—All authorities agree that Dunsmuir, Diggle & Co.'s new collier Wellington, which passed down on Thursday night, is the finest ship of her class afloat. She carries some 700 tons of water ballast, which is pumped out as the vessel is filled with coal. The ship is what is called a self-trimmer, saving by an ingenious arrangement of hatches the cost and labor of trimming her coal cargoes. The steering apparatus is worked by steam; the lightest touch of a child's hand would virtually change the course of the vessel. Supposing a cargo of coal to be on the wharf, the Wellington could be relieved of her water ballast and loaded in three-fourths of a day. The passage down on Thursday night, under Capt. Clemets' pilotage, was the quickest on record, and the vessel stood out to sea in the clear moonlight which caused the quiet waters to appear like a burnished mirror.—Colonist.

CITY COUNCIL.—The Council met on Monday night. Present, His Worship the Mayor and Couns. Dickinson, Ferris, Johnston, Elliott, Curtis, and Haslam. A communication was received from Joseph Wintemute requesting the council to have a piece of ground cleared for public recreations. Accounts were presented as follows: Fire Co., $8.37; Forest & Smith, $24; Knight, $12.50; Police Court, $20. The Mayor reported that persons who had been infringing the revenue by-law had promised to pay. Councillors Dickinson and Ferris were appointed a committee to schedule the fees for wharfage. Tenders were asked for improvements on Montreal street. The Mayor was requested to ask the Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works to have two plans prepared for agricultural hall and immigrant shed, to be submitted to the council, the building to be 80 by 50, one with upper story suitable for city hall, and the other without. It was announced that no tenders had been received for the steam ferry. Council adjourned until Monday, July 9th.

Collegiate and High School.

The closing examination in connection with this institution took place yesterday afternoon. The classes in History, Grammar, Latin, Greek, and Geometry were examined by the Principal, Mr. H. M. Stramberg, B.A., and those in French, Botany and Chemistry by the Vice-Principal, Rev. W. J. Dowler, B. A. The questions took a wide range, and, in some instances, were very difficult. The answers by the scholars were generally such as evinced close acquaintance with the subject under review. It is evident that the teachers have worked intelligently and faithfully during the year, and that the pupils have made satisfactory progress in learning. It should not be considered invidious if we say that the most advanced work done during the examination was Miss Major's readings and translations from the Greek version of the Gospel of St. John, which were fully equal to those of many an under-graduate in high-toned colleges. After a few remarks by the Rev. E. Robson, the Principal announced that the school would re-open in five or six weeks from the present date.

From Yale.

(Correspondence of the Columbian.)

The accident at Camp 37 has now been figured down to 4 men badly hurt and several others slightly bruised. The committee appointed to manage the Fourth of July celebration have succeeded in making arrangements with the C. P. N. Co., and also with the railway, for an excursion from Victoria to Yale on the str. Rithet, and from Yale to Boston Bar on the cars, at reduced rates. Between $200 and $300 have already been collected for prizes, &c., and it is expected the amount will yet reach $400. Rev. Mr. Henlaw preached in St. John's Hall last Sunday morning and evening, to large congregations. He leaves to-day (Monday) for his home in Nicola. The str. Irving left here early this morning to take on freight at Emory, and the mail will go down by wagon at the usual hour.

From Moodyville.

(Correspondence of the Columbian.)

Perhaps your readers in the city and elsewhere would be interested in hearing that the Blue Ribbon club of Moodyville is steadily growing in membership and influence. There are now 86 names on the roll, and there are prospects of others being added. People who have been in the habit of drinking, even in moderation, need only take the pledge to assure themselves how beneficial are the effects of total abstinence. The meetings are well attended, and the entertainment committee have been earnest in their efforts to make these gatherings as attractive and pleasant as possible. There is to be a Blue Ribbon social at the Mechanics' Institute next Thursday evening (June 28) when an interesting programme will be presented, consisting of comic and sentimental songs, instrumental music, tableaux, recitations, minstrel performances, etc. Arrangements have been made for a dance after the entertainment. The admission will be 50 cts.; children, 25 cts. The proceeds are to go towards painting the school house.

A PLEASANT ACKNOWLEDGMENT—"Had sour stomach and miserable appetite for months, and grew thin every day. I used Burdock Blood Bitters with the most marvellous results; feel splendid."
MRS. JOSEPH JOHNSON,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

From Whatcom.

The enterprising people of this rising city have raised over $600 for the 4th of July celebration. The following items are from the Reveille: A recent discovery at the head of the Cowlitz river reveals and establishes the fact that Washington Territory can now boast of the grandest waterfall in the known world—the height being 1,500 feet. These falls are 1,300 feet higher than the famous Niagara Falls. The Nooksack Indians assert positively that waterfalls higher than the tallest fir, pine, or cedar tree, are to be found on the extreme head waters of the Nooksack river in this county. As that section of the county has never yet been explored by the white man there is no good reason for doubting the statement. From the comparison given by the Indians these falls must be at least 475 feet in height, which would lay over the famous Snoqualmie Falls, of King County, by at least 200 feet. Semiahmoo, in this county, the particular point that marks the extreme northwestern corner of the United States, is just now enjoying a boom, and promises, in the near future, to develop into a city of great commercial importance. It is supported by a large area of agricultural lands, and new settlers are going in by the score. At the present time the town and county are placed at a disadvantage in consequence of inadequate transportation facilities. A good wagon road, via the enterprising town of Ferndale, from Whatcom to Semiahmoo, should be established this season. A boat plying from this place to Semiahmoo three times week, is also very much needed.

PROSPECTING FOR GOLD MINES.

FORT WRANGEL, June 18.—Business is very quiet in town. Several small companies have been formed for the purpose of salting salmon, and are all ready for business as soon as the fish appear. At Harrisburg business is quite lively. One of the largest shipments of gold dust ever made from this place goes by this month's steamer. Quite a number of miners return by this steamer much dissatisfied with the country. The majority are men who never left the town to look for anything. Numbers more are coming ashore from the steamer Gertrude. These are the men who give the important information of the worthlessness of the country, pretending to know the resources of which they are in utter ignorance—too lazy to prospect for themselves, they try to keep other people away from the country. New mines are constantly being discovered. The U. S. S. Adams took five miners from Juneau to Yackut with six months' provisions. This is a country that miners have wanted to prospect for years, on account of some very rich specimens Indians have brought from there; but owing to the Indians none have dared to penetrate the country. The return of this party is looked forward to with great interest, as rich discoveries are anticipated. Lieut. Schwatka and party left Chilcat on June 7th on his prospecting and exploring trip to the Yukon country. Indians who went as far as the lakes with him report his arrival safely there, at which point he intends embarking in boats or canoes, and reach the Yukon in this way. He expects to spend some three months this year in the country. The canneries at Pyramia harbor are doing but little business as yet. The fish are just commencing to run. They expect them in full force during this month at Sitka.

The Grand Lodge.

According to announcement the Grand Lodge of British Columbia, A. F. & A. M., met in this city last Saturday. The business of the lodge was completed on Saturday night. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: C. C. Baker, M. P., M.W.G.M.; R. B. Kelly, V.W.S.D.; R. Beaven, M. P. P., V.W.J.D.; R. Millan, V.W.G.S.; M. W. Waitt, V. W.G.T.; Rev. R. H. Smith, V.W. G.C.; W. Tricky, V.W.G.T. On Sunday the lodge attended service in the Methodist church where they were addressed by the Grand Chaplain, a report of which will be found in another column. After church the lodge assembled and passed the following resolution:

To the Reverend, the Pastor, and the Trustees of the Methodist Church, New Westminster:

REV. SIR AND GENTLEMEN:—In accordance with a resolution of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of the Ancient, Free and accepted Masons of British Columbia I am commanded to tender to you the thanks of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge for your kindness in enabling them to attend Divine service in your sacred edifice on St. John's Day, The Most Worshipful Grand Lodge desires to be permitted to express to the ladies and gentlemen of the church choir the pleasure they experienced through their able assistance on the occasion.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,
J. C. HUGHES,
V. W. Acting Grand Sec.

The lodge was then closed until next meeting. There were about twenty brethren present from Victoria and Nanaimo, and some from Burrard Inlet. Nearly all left on Monday for their respective homes.

The Masons at Church.

SERMON BY THE GRAND CHAPLAIN.

Last Sunday morning the Grand Lodge of A. F. and A. M. attended Divine service in the Methodist church in this city and listened to a sermon delivered by Rev. R. H. Smith, Grand Chaplain to the lodge. The Masons appeared in appropriate regalia, and occupied seats in the middle of the church. All the other seats were occupied, and several chairs had to be placed in the aisles to accommodate the large congregation. The Grand Chaplain took for his text part of the 25th verse of the 4th chapter of Ephesians: "For we are members one of another." He began by saying that it always gave him great pleasure to be associated with the Masonic fraternity, and especially under the circumstances by which he was at present surrounded. It had been his privilege on several occasions to address them as chaplain, drawing lessons useful in practical life from some of the most significant symbols of the order. On this occasion he proposed to speak of the spirit of love which should animate both them and all the brotherhood of man. We found this spirit of love all through the old and new testament, and he believed it was also to be found in the teachings of Masonry as well as Christianity. With regard to the process we have not much to do. We see the tree standing forth in all its beauty. Clustered with fragrant blossoms in spring, and loaded with luscious fruit in autumn—we have the practical fact. Man's tendency is to act in unison, just as in the processes of nature we find the spring, then the tiny rivulet, then the grand river and the lake, all uniting to swell the vast expanse of ocean. So in the human race we have the individual, the family, the county, the state, and all go to make up the nation. "It is not good for man to be alone" is a Divine declaration the truth of which we have proved by individual experience. The old tree standing alone must bear itself the brunt of the wind and the rain and the lightning's flash until it is scarred, riven, leafless, blasted. Our religious privileges and our civil liberty are not the result of our own endeavors. They have been purchased for us on cruel battle-fields reeking with blood. There is no such thing as individual independence in the world. We are linked together by a common chain, and every one of us influences the action of another. The old Roman orator once said, "I am a man, and whatever concerns the happiness of man cannot be a matter of indifference to me." This grand principle was elaborated and perfected in the gospel of Jesus Christ. We find this mutual dependence running through all human concerns. The capitalist's money lies at the bottom of the enterprise which is conducted by a manager, under whom there are foremen whose duty it is to look after the workmen. The workmen could not make the enterprise successful without capital, nor could the capital succeed without laborers. We subsist on the product of many hands. "She hath done what she could" is the highest commendation that can come to any human being. A man is encompassed by the angry waves which rush upon him with mad destruction. What do we do? Our sympathy goes out at once to the brother in distress, and we hasten to the rescue. We are all more or less the creatures of circumstance, and none of us are too insignificant to give sympathy to the unfortunate. "Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep" is a truly Christian sentiment, and it is the sentiment which animates the heart of every true Mason. We all need to cultivate a spirit of charity, to bear each other's burdens. It may sometimes seem difficult for us to put up with the peculiarities and imperfections of our associates, but we must learn to bear with these infirmities. Goethe says, "I have found no fault in others that I have not committed myself." A man only needs to grow old to know the need and power of charity. Not only should we cultivate a spirit of charity, but we should learn also the grace of forgiveness. Jesus said, "Whosesoever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them; and whosesoever sins ye retain, they are retained." Did our Saviour mean by that that the power of remitting sins was lodged in any particular set of men? Certainly not. It means that in society there is power to forgive and the exercise or suppression of that power may make or mar the destiny of our fellow men. A child goes out and commits a fault. With tears in its eyes and sorrow in its heart it rushes to its mother, confesses its fault and is kissed into smiles and contentment. There have been cases where the stern, unrelenting father and the careless, unsympathetic mother have driven to despair and destruction the bright, warm-hearted boy whom they might have forgiven and saved. We should meet the fallen, erring ones at least half way. The story of the prodigal son illustrates the charity and forgiveness which are characteristic of the loving Father whom we should endeavor to imitate. The son went to his father with confession on his lips and penitence in his heart, and the father ran to meet him and embraced him, and forgave all. In union there is strength, and it is strength that we need to carry us successfully through the difficulties which beset our pathway. A man puts his shoulder to a great log, but it will not budge. He calls others to his assistance, and by their united strength the task is accomplished with ease. We are all depending upon each other. The baby in the cradle brings to its support and defence the strong arm of the father, the fulness of a mother's loving heart, and the ministrations of a whole family. Let us take care how we perform our duties and see that the charity of the gospel is not crowded out by cold selfishness. A sledge is speeding over the frozen Lapland snow, and in it are snugly stowed the father and his children. But hark! From the distance comes the death-note of hungry wolves. They have found the trail. The reindeers are urged to their utmost speed; but that howl of famishing fiends grows louder and louder as they gain on the flying steeds. Now they almost touch the sledge, and the Laplander knows that a sudden spring will bring them upon him. He takes his youngest child and flings it out among the vicious brutes. In an instant it is devoured and the bloodthirsty pack are again at his heels. The next child goes, and the next, and the next. The man saves himself by the lives of his children. We shudder and ask what kind of a man can that be. Let us ask what kind of a man is he who builds up his fortune at the expense of his brothers, who makes money out of wrecked homes, broken hearts, tears and blood! "In my Father's house are many mansions." Here we find men divided by nationalities, creeds and castes, but in that new world all classes will associate together as brothers. There will be no distinction of race, or color, or blood in our father's house, but all denominations will be found together worshipping one common God. In this world we shun some men, because we have not charity, and say, Are they not sinners? But in that world of light and glory we may behold these despised persons pure and spotless, occupying places near the throne. "He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her." An act of compulsion can't make union. It must be brought about by an internal attitude of sentiment. When the Spirit of God takes possession of men it makes them united in sentiment and in purpose; just as when the Holy Ghost descended upon the praying band at Jerusalem on the day of "Pentecost, when Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites, and the dwellers in Mesopotamia, and in Judea, and Cappadocia," with one accord dwelt together and had all things common. In the signs of the times we may see the breaking of that light which shall so fill the world that the brotherhood of mankind will be accomplished and recognized. This was the aim of Masonry. Grasping the spirit of unity and manhood, disfigured though our ideas may be in consequence of human imperfections, yet tending ever to the grand charity of human brotherhood. Let us pursue the purpose of our brotherhood, until the whole family of mankind are built together in one temple of which God shall be the eternal head.

Contradiction.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—Permit me to say to those who have read articles in the editorial columns of the Mainland Guardian (!) of 23rd and 30th May, entitled, "Should be Investigated" and "Very Proper," that on the occasion referred to I did not once mention the "City Council" or "City Fathers," nor did I say that it, or they, "patronized" any person or place, good, bad, or indifferent; nor did I mention any "certain house in this city," save and except the post office and steamboat office, and I found no fault with either of these. The editorial statements of the Guardian in the articles referred to are false—grossly, maliciously, libelously false in reference to what was said on the occasion and also regarding a majority of my congregation (numbering about 150 persons) having furnished him with his information. These insulting references to myself and the Methodist congregation of this city would have been treated by me with that silent contempt with which previous and similar effusions emanating from the same source were treated had it not been for the singularly unbusinesslike manner in which the City Council has handled the matter.

What I did say and what I now write I am ready to repeat and stand by when occasion arises.

Yours, &c., E. ROBSON.

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

MILWAUKEE, June 20.—Something of a sensation has been caused by the public utterance here of Rev. Father Magill, a prominent Catholic priest, in regard to the relations between the Irish and the Pope, and affairs in Ireland. At a meeting of the young men's society, held yesterday, Father Magill spoke of the recent papal circular to the Irish bishops, and stated that criticisms were directed against a poor translation of the document, and that the original did not condemn the Parnell testimonial or the custom of collecting in the churches of Ireland. He also stated that if the Pope should condemn just and lawful agitation for Irish rights, the Catholic doctrine would require the people to oppose him.

NEW YORK, June 21.—World: The latest and most successful attempt to open a gambling hell at Long Branch is now fairly under way. It is Phil Daly's enterprise, and is the first deliberate attempt made in this country to imitate the luxurious boarding-houses of Baden and other spas, and to entice American women to imitate the practices of the continental fashionables.

HELENA (Montana), June 21.—The Butte coach with eight passengers—five men and three women—was stopped by two road agents 28 miles from Helena, yesterday. The passengers were searched, but only about $25 were taken. One of the women had $7,000. John B. Reed, city editor of the Butte Inter-Mountaineer, was a passenger. He gave up only a dollar and a half, but had $600 hidden in an inside pocket, which was not discovered. The robbers took the treasure box from the coach. A valuable watch was taken from one of the passengers, but returned.

SALT LAKE, June 21.—Early this morning a fire broke out in Clawson's wagon depot and communicated to the old council house and Savage's art gallery, which were entirely consumed. Shortly after the fire broke out a terrible explosion occurred, similar to the great explosion on Arsenal hill several years ago. Buildings throughout the city were shaken, and near the scene of the fire the wreck was complete. Plate glass windows, sashes and doors were blown in, and the sidewalk covered with glass. The loss from the breakage of plate glass on Main street alone is over $20,000. Several men were injured by broken glass, but so far as known no one seriously. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

PARIS, June 21.—At the Cabinet Council to-day it was positively stated that the Queen of Madagascar had been dead six months and that the military party had concealed the fact.

LONDON, June 21.—Lord Randolph Churchill in a written communication to Gladstone states that he would hand over to the latter a historical memorandum proving the Khedive's complicity in the massacre at Alexandria, if the Prime Minister would promise a full inquiry. Gladstone replied that in any step the government might take the position of the Khedive as ruler of Egypt would be duly regarded. Churchill in his second communication states that he will forward Gladstone an indictment of the Khedive on a charge of being the real author of the massacres, and that he (Lord Randolph) will be prepared to co-operate to the utmost extent of his resources to bring up such witnesses as may be necessary to prove the truth of the statements in this particular.

PARIS, June 22.—The Figaro says the Chinese Ambassador declares his belief that a friendly settlement of the difficulties between France and China will be made.

LEADVILLE, June 22.—Yesterday two feet of copper colored talc containing fine gold was struck in Nillie's mine on Prentor bay hill that assays $45,000 to the ton.

OTTAWA, June 23.—The government has decided to make no further grants to the colonization of railway companies in the Northwest for the present, and until the present chartered railways are completed there can be no further sale of lands. If, however, it is found necessary in the interest of the country to make a further grant the price will be raised 50 cents per acre. This conclusion is arrived at owing to the rapid increase of immigration into the Northwest.

LONDON, June 24.—The passenger vessels Purunui and Waitara, of the New Zealand shipping company, were in collision off Portland Friday night. The Waitara sank in two minutes. Twenty-five persons were drowned. The Hurunni immediately launched boats and rescued 16 persons struggling in the water. Among them was a lady saloon passenger, to whom a sailor, also saved, had given his life belt. Two other saloon passengers were also saved. All the second class and steerage passengers were lost.

Stock West of the Rockies.

Some important movements have recently taken place on the ranches in the far west. The Cochrane company have bought out the Anglo-Canadian company, and are now moving all their cattle from the Calgary district to this ranch, which is situated between the Old Man and Kootenay rivers, about 100 miles south of Calgary. This step is ascribed to the loss of stock, estimated at $100,000, last winter through the severity of the weather. It is further stated that an English company have purchased from T. C. Powis, of Benton, an entire herd of 5,000 head for $225,000. These are just now being "rounded up" preparatory to being driven over to the Canadian side, between the Porcupine and the north fork of the Old Man river. Another company, representing $7,000,000 capital, has purchased Higgins & McLean's herd for $56,700, and these are also shortly to be brought over. R. Ford is about bringing over from the Sun river, Montana, 1,200 head to the ranch on the Belly river.

[From the Globe, May 1st, 1883.]

THE ANNUAL REPORT OF THE Directors of the Confederation Life Insurance Company is a more than usually interesting document of the kind. It shows 1,513 new policies for 1882, assuring $2,510,387. The total number of policies is now 6,357, assuring $9,909,246. Notwithstanding the large sum paid out in cash profits to policy-holders, the financial statement shows a handsome increase in the cash assets. There were during the year 34 deaths, involving the sum of $51,656. The results of the quinquennial allotment of profits have given unalloyed satisfaction to the policy-holders, and the valuation of the Company's liabilities has been done independently by Mr. Carpmael, their regular actuary; by Mr. Cherriman, Dominion Inspector of Insurance; and by Mr. Homans, a New York actuary. The net valuations by these three authorities are $739,230, $727,297, and $700,252 respectively—an exhibit well calculated to show the foundationless nature of the attacks made upon the Company.

Poetry.

[For the Columbian.]

The Wreath.

A wreath of flowers I'll twine,
Twine it of blossoms fair;
She who's dear love is mine
Will wear it in her hair.
Twine, twine, twine, twine:
Lilies white and ivy green,
Roses red and eglantine,
With pleasant heartsease here between.

The roses are for love,
The ivy is for faith,
The bay-leaves with them wove
Say change comes but with death.
Twine, twine, twine, twine:
Geraniums here and heliotrope,
And hawthorne buds I'll interline,
To whisper to her "sweet is hope."

False, and the dream is past,
Love, thou hast fled away;
It is true love cannot last,
Night follows every day.
Fade, fade, fade, fade;
The flowerets fair are withered now,
To die were the blossoms made,
To be broken every vow.

Bill and the Widow.

"Wife," said Ed. Wilbur, one morning, wouldn't it be a good joke to get bachelor Bill Smiley to take Widow Watson to the show next week?"

"You can't do it, Ed; he won't ask her, he's so awfully shy. Why, he came by here the other morning when I was hanging out some clothes, and looked over the fence and spoke; but when I shook out a nightgown he blushed like a girl and went away."

"I think I can manage it," said Ed, "but I'll have to lie just a little."

So saying Ed. started, and while he is crossing the field we will take a glance at Bill Smiley. He was rather a good-looking fellow, though his hair and whiskers showed some gray. He wore a set of artificial teeth. Every one said he was a good soul, and so he was. He had as good a hundred-acre farm as any in Norwich, with a new house and everything comfortable; and if he wanted a wife, many a girl would have jumped at the chance. But Bill was so bashful—always was; and when Susan Berrybottle, whom he was so sweet on, though he never said "boo" to her, got married to old Watson, he just drew in his head, like a mud-turtle into its shell, and there was no getting him out again. But here comes Ed. Wilbur.

"Good morning, Mr. Smiley."

"Good morning, Mr. Wilbur; what's the news over your way?"

"Oh, nothing particular that I know of," said Ed, "only the show that everybody is talking about, and everybody and his girl are going to. I was over to old Sackrider's last night, and I see his son Gus has got a new buggy, and was scrubbing up his harness, and he's got that white-faced colt of his as slick as a seal. I understand he thinks of taking the Widow Watson to the show. Susan is a nice little woman, and deserves a better man than that young pup of a fellow, though I would not blame her much, either, if she takes him, for she must be dreadful lonesome; and then she has to let her farm out on shares, and it isn't half worked, and no one else seems to have the spunk to speak up to her. I tell you, if I were a single man I'd show a trick or two."

So saying, Ed borrowed some bags and started around the corner of the barn, where he had left Bill swooping, and put his ear to a knot-hole and listened, knowing that Bill had a habit of talking to himself when anything worried him.

"Confound that young Sackrider?" said Bill. "What business has he there, I'd like to know? Got a new buggy, has he? Well, so have I, and a new harness, too; and his horse can't get in sight of mine, and I declare I've half a mind to—yes, I'll go this very night and ask her to go to the show with me. I'll show Ed Wilbur that I ain't such a calf as he thinks I am, and if I did let old Watson get the start of me in the first place."

Ed could scarcely help laughing outright, but he hastily hitched the bags on his shoulder, and, with a low chuckle at his success, started for home to tell the news to Nellie; and about 5 o'clock that evening they saw Bill go by with his horse and buggy on his way to the widow's.

He jogged along quietly until, at a distance of about a mile from her house, he came to a bridge over a creek, and it so happened that, just as he reached the middle of the bridge, he gave a tremendous sneeze and blew his teeth out of his mouth and clear over the dashboard, and, striking on the planks, they rolled over the side of the bridge and dropped into four feet of water.

Words cannot do justice to the rage of poor Bill, or paint the expression of his face as he sat there, completely dumbfounded at this startling piece of ill-luck. After a while he stepped out of his buggy, and, getting down on his hands and knees, looked into the water.

"Yes, there they were at the bottom," with a crowd of little fishes rubbing their noses against them, and Bill wished t o goodness his nose was as close for one second. Well, he must try and get them somehow. He had no notion of spoiling his good clothes by wading in with them on, and besides, if he did that, he could not go to the widow's that night; so he took a glance up and down the road to see that no one was in sight, and then quickly undressed himself, laying his clothes in the buggy to keep them clean. Then he ran around to the bank and waded in the almost ice-cold water, but his teeth did not chatter in his head—he only wished they could.

Quietly he waded along, so as not to stir up the mud, and when he reached the right spot he dived under the water and came up with his teeth in his hand and replaced them in his mouth. But hark! what noise is that? A wagon and a little dog barking with all his might, and his horse is starting.

"Whoa! whoa! Stop, you brute, stop!" But stop he would not, but went off at a spanking pace, with the unfortunate Bill after him, and the little dog yelping after Bill.

Bill was certainly in capital running costume, but, though he strained every nerve, he could not touch the buggy or reach the lines that were dragging on the ground.

After a while his plug hat bounced off the seat and the hind wheel went over it, making it as flat as a pancake. Bill snatched it up as he ran, and, jamming his fist into it, stuck it, all crumpled and dusty, on his head. And now he saw the widow's house on the hill, and what, oh! what will he do? Then his coat fell out; he slipped it on, and then, making a desperate spurt, he clutched the back of the seat and scrambled in. Pulling the buffalo robe over his legs, he stuffed the other things beneath.

Now the horse happened to be one that he got of Squire Moore, who got it from the widow, and the horse took it into his head to stop at her gate, which Bill had no power to prevent, as he had not possession of the reins; besides, he was too busy buttoning his coat to the chin to think of doing much else.

The widow heard the rattle of wheels and looked out, and seeing that it was Smiley, and that he did not offer to get out, she went to the gate to see what he wanted, and there she stood chatting, with her white arms on top of the gate, and her face right towards him, while the cold chills ran down his shirtless back clear to his bare feet beneath the buffalo robe, and the water from his hair and the dust from his hat combined to make some nice little streams of mud that came trickling down his nose She asked him to come in. No, he was in a hurry, he said. He looked down the road behind him and saw a white-faced horse coming, and at once surmised that it was that of Gus Sackrider. He resolved to do or die, and hurriedly told his errand. The widow would be delighted to go; of course she would. But would he not come in? No, he was in a hurry, he said; he had to go to Mr. Green's residence.

"Oh," said the widow, "you're going to Green's, are you? Why, I was just going there myself. Wait a moment while I get my bonnet and shawl and I'll ride with you."

"Thunder and lightning!" said Bill to himself, "what a scrape!" Just then a light wagon, drawn by the white-faced horse, driven by a boy, came along and stopped beside him.

The boy held up a pair of boots in one hand and a pair of socks in the other, and just as the widow reached the gate again he said:

"Here's your boots and socks, Mr. Smiley, that you left on the bridge when you went swimming."

"You're mistaken; they're not mine," said Bill.

"Why, ain't you the man that had the race after the horse?" said the boy.

"No, sir, I am not. You had better go on about your business."

Bill sighed at the loss of his good Sunday boots, and, turning to the widow, said:

"Just pick up the lines, will you, please?"

The widow complied; then he pulled one corner of the robe cautiously down and she got in.

"What a lovely evening!" said she, "and so warm; I don't think we need the robe over us, do we?"

"Oh, my," said Bill, earnestly, "you will find it chilly riding. I wouldn't have you catch cold for the world."

She contented herself with sticking one of her little feet out, with a long silk necktie over the end of it.

"What is that, Mr Smiley? a necktie?"

"Yes," said he; "I bought it the other day, and must have left it in the buggy."

"But," said she, "it was so careless." And, stooping down, she made a motion to stuff it between them.

Bill felt her hand going down, and, making a dive after it, clutched it in his and held it hard and fast.

They went on in this way quite a distance, he holding her soft little hand in his, until, as they were going down a small hill, one of the traces became unhitched and they had to stop.

"What is the matter, Mr. Smiley?" said the widow, with a start that nearly jerked the robe off his knees.

"Oh, my! One of the traces is off," he said.

"Well, why don't you get out and put in on?"

"I can't," said Bill. "I've got—that is, I haven't got—oh, dear, I'm sick!"

"Why, Willie," said she, tenderly, "what is the matter? Do tell me." She thought he was going to faint, so she got out her smelling bottle with her left hand and, pulling the stopper out with her teeth, put it to his nose.

Bill was just taking in a breath for a mighty sigh, and the pungent odor made him throw back his head so far that he lost his balance and fell out of the low-backed buggy. The little woman gave a scream as his bare feet flew past her head, and, covering her face with her hands, gave way to tears or smiles—it is hard to tell just which.

Bill was right side up in a moment, and was leaning over the back of the seat humbly apologizing and explaining when Ed Wilbur, with his wife and baby, drove up behind him and stopped.

Poor Bill felt that he would rather be shot than have Ed Wilbur catch him in such a scrape; but there was no help for it now, so he called Ed to him and whispered in his ear the whole story.

Ed was like to burst with suppressed laughter, but he beckoned to his wife to draw up, and, after saying something to her, removed the widow from Bill's buggy to his own, and the two women went on, leaving the men.

Bill lost no time in arranging his toilet as well as he could, and then, after long persuasion, Ed got him to go home with him; and hunting up slippers and socks, and getting him washed and combed, had him quite presentable when the ladies arrived.

I need not tell how the story was all wormed out of bashful Bill, and how they all laughed as they sat around the tea-table that night; but will conclude by saying that they went to the show together, and Bill has no fear of Gus Sackrider now.

What Brought Him.

I was sitting one Sunday morning with a newspaper in one hand, feeling really miserable. My wife and oldest boy had gone to church. I heard the other children talking, and the question fell upon my ear, "Horace, when you are a man, which will you do—go to church like mamma does, or stay at home always and read the newspaper?"

"I," said Horace, eight years old, with great emphasis on the I, "shall do neither. I shall not go to church, and I shall not sit about at home. I *shall have a big horse; and Jamie Lin*coln and I will go a riding, and go right away and have lots of fun."

The child's words set me thinking. I saw my own boy in company with others of the loosest and most unprincipled of men and, perhaps, women, spending his time in a way which would break his mother's heart; I thought of my white-haired old father and my placid, amiable mother, both gone; saw them quietly walking side by side to church in the old country town, and us children following. I could not sit another five minutes. Up I rose, and, putting on my hat and coat, went to the church, and slipped into a pew in the rear, and heard the sermon, or tried to hear it, for that boy's speech had taken possession of my soul, and had filled it. My wife was astonished to see me waiting for her at the church door. "I thought I would come and meet you," was all I said.—Congregationalist.

This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as Carcharodon Rondeletii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it.
