Regulating the Tolls.

It will be remembered that there is in the charter of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company a clause which enables the government to control the tariff of traffic charges. When the net profits yield 10 per cent. on the money expended by the company in building the road, the government has power to revise the tolls and reduce them to a scale which would keep the profits below 10 per cent. It was contended by those who favored the syndicate bargain that in this clause there was ample security against extortion. The opponents of the bargain pointed out that there was no security at all, inasmuch as by watering stock, and by other ways well known to railway magnates, the construction account might be increased to a sum so vast that the profits would never reach 10 per cent. The beginning of the end is now appearing. The company's stock is selling at 60 cts. on the dollar, and the capital has been increased from $15,000,000 to $100,000,000. That is, the amount actually paid for stock is $60,000,000 while dividends will be drawn on $100,000,000. In this way the company will be able to manage their affairs so that their tolls may be exhorbitant without ever reaching that point where the government could make an adjustment. But this is not the only resource of the company by which they may evade government interference. A second company has lately been formed, called the construction company. The object of this company is to build the railway for the syndicate, and the purpose of it may be twofold, first, to take over the effects of the syndicate and, second, to increase the apparent cost of construction still further. The syndicate will not build any more road. They hand over the whole construction to the construction company at a certain figure. But the construction company do not build the road either. They sub-let it to contractors at lowest rates, and pocket the difference. It may, therefore, happen that the construction company will build the road and take a mortgage on it to secure themselves. When completed the road will belong, not to the syndicate, but to the construction company. If the government should at any time find it necessary to force the syndicate to fulfil the conditions of their agreement, there would be nothing left in their hands upon which to seize—everything would belong to the construction company. The Hamilton Spectator, a thick-and thin Conservative newspaper, seems to have become alarmed at the possibilities of this combination. It sees in the shuffling of cards that "the time for anxiety has come," and says:

It is generally understood that the members of the Syndicate have formed themselves into a Construction Company; that the same men, acting as a syndicate, contract with themselves as a construction company to build the road, or large portions of it, at a price enormously greater than the cost of the work, and that the Construction Company lets out the work to sub-contractors on the best terms available. It is earnestly to be hoped that the Government will not permit anything of the sort to be done; or, if there is no provision of law to prevent it, that the contracts with the actual builders of the line shall be taken as a basis for calculating "the capital actually expended in the construction of the railway." If that be not done, there is great danger the company will be permitted to charge tolls out of all proportion to the cost of the work. Let us suppose that, over and above the government grants, the road will cost $25,000,000. Now, if Messrs. Stephen, Angus, Hill & Co., acting as a syndicate, contract with Messrs. Hill, Angus, Stephen & Co., acting as a construction company, to build the road for $50,000,000 it will be seen that they will be entitled to double the profits contemplated under the law. That very thing was done in the case of the Union Pacific of the United States. The company formed itself into a Credit Mobilier; contracted with itself as a Credit Mobilier to build the road: the work which really cost about fifty millions was made to cost a hundred millions; and the members, after purchasing members of Congress and others to secure the necessary legislation, divided the rest among themselves as individuals. Such things cannot be permitted in Canada with safety.

We are afraid the Spectator's fears have been aroused too late. We are inclined to think the syndicate have too much power and influence to permit of the failure of their plans. They took the charter to make money, and money they are bound to make, no matter what the effect on the country may be.

VOLUME 23 NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., WEDNESDAY, MAY 23, 1883. NUMBER 41

Scientific Miscellany.

Mons. Parize has discovered that the crumbling of imperfectly baked bricks is caused by the growth in them of microscopic organisms, and not by exposure to the weather.

At a recent brilliant reception given by Mons. Louis Rau in Paris, each of the lady guests about to take part in a dance was presented with a bouquet, in the middle of which shone a miniature electric lamp fed by batteries devised by Mons. Trouve.

The President of the French Meteorological Bureau, Mons. Mangon, reports that 83 per cent. of the weather forecasts made by the Bureau have proven good. Of 207 tempest warnings sent to seaports, 100 have been fulfilled entirely, 65 partly, and 42 not at all.

On the government cinchona plantations in Jamaica the highest meteorological observatory in the British Empire has just been established. At this spot—4,900 feet above sea-level—the mean annual rainfall is 136 inches, and the mean annual temperature is 60 degrees Fahrenheit.

Dr. Clouston, an Edinburgh physician, says: "All acute mental diseases, like most nervous diseases, tend to thinness of body, and therefore all foods and all medicines and all treatments that fatten are good. To my assistants and nurses and patients I preach the gospel of fatness as the great antidote to the exhausting tendencies of the disease we have to treat, and it would be well if all people of nervous constitution would obey this gospel."

For several years Mr. J. E. Suitterlin of New York has given attention to the treatment of stammering, and with a simple and philosophic method he has been very successful in removing the trouble. His system does not rely upon medical aids, but comprises chiefly a careful drill of the vocal organs and such mental discipline as may seem desirable, the principal object of the latter being the diversion of the subject's attention from himself. Statistics collected by Mr. Suitterlin show that the habit of stamering is very seldom contracted at a later period in life than the tenth year.

The singular faculty possessed by some animals—such as cats, dogs and pigeons—of returning in a direct course to a point from which they have been taken, is a puzzle to naturalists. It has been referred to instinct, to intelligence or reasoning power, and to peculiar bodily functions. Wallace supposed smell to enable an animal to return over a course which it had traversed in a basket; Toussenel believes that birds have an idea of direction by recognizing the north as the cold quarter, the south as the warm, the east (in France) as the dry, and the west as the moist: and now Vignier suggests that the faculty depends upon a perception of magnetic currents.

Speaking at Milan of the great comet of 1882, Prof. Schiaparelli, the eminent Italian astronomer, remarked that such a body is very small in the cold of distant space—so small as to be invisible even in the most powerful telescopes. As it approaches the sun it gradually becomes heated, and its solid or fluid matter is largely converted into a gaseous state, causing it to swell enormously in size. It then develops a tail of very diffuse substance, the immense tail which stretched across the eastern sky during the mornings of last autumn having been estimated by one astronomer to contain only a few pounds of material. The cometary body reaches its greatest expansion when nearest the sun, and as it returns into distant space it again contracts into insignificance. No exact calculations have yet been made of the orbit of the great comet of 1882, but from observations in September, October and November it is assumed that its period is included between 800 and 900 years, that its aphelion is 175 times as far from the sun as the earth at its mean distance, and that its velocity is 23,000 times as great when nearest the sun as when farthest away.

The Bad Boy.

"Well, you are the meanest boy I ever heard of," said the grocery man. "But what about your pa's dancing a clog-dance in the church Sunday. The minister's hired girl was in here after some codfish yesterday morning, and she said the minister said your pa had scandalized the church the worst way."

"Oh, he didn't dance in church. He was a little excited that's all. You see, pa chews tobacco, and it is pretty hard on him to sit all through the sermon without taking a chew, and he gets nervous. He always reaches around in his pistol pocket when they stand up to sing the last time, and feels in his tobacco-box and gets out a chew and puts it in his mouth when the minister pronounces the benediction, and then when they get out doors he is already to spit. He always does that. Well, my chum had a present on Christmas of a music-box, just about as big as pa's tobacco-box, and all you have to do is to touch a spring and it plays 'She's a daisy, she's a dumplin.' I borrowed it and put it in pa's pistol-pocket, where he keeps his tobacco-box, and when the choir got most through singing pa reached his hand in his pocket, where he keeps his tobacco-box, and began to fumble around for a chew. He touched the spring, and just as everybody bowed their heads to receive the benediction, and it was so still you could hear a gum-drop, the music-box began to play, and in the stillness it sounded as loud as a church organ. Well, I thought ma would sink. The minister heard it and he looked toward pa, and everybody looked at pa, too, and pa turned red, and the music-box kept up 'She's a Daisy,' and the minister looked mad and said 'amen,' and the people began to put on their coats, and the minister told the deacon to hunt up the scource of that worldly music, and they took pa into the room back of the pulpit and searched him, and ma says pa will have to be churched. They kept the music-box, and I have got to carry coal to get money enough to buy my chum a new music-box. Well I shall have to go and get the vaseline, or pa's leg will suffer. Good day."—Peeks Sun.

Dissatisfied Organs.

The organs of the late provincial government ought to know that their foolish attempt to make capital out of the dry-dock, island railway and railway lands settlement carries no weight with the people of this province. Every person knows that these matters must be arranged if the province is expected to be in a position to take advantage of the present large immigration. The federal authorities would not take over the dry-dock or guarantee the island railway unless the settlement of the land question was included. We could not hope to succeed as a province while the railway lands remained shut up, and to carry on the dry-dock meant financial embarrassment of a very serious kind. This embarrassment we have all experienced already. The country has been suffering very severely for public improvements, while the dock continued to swallow up our revenue. And the effects of the settlement are seen at once. In the estimates of this year we notice a very large increase in the appropriation for roads and bridges—an increase of over $100,000. That amount could not possibly have been available if the dry-dock had been retained as a provincial work, and yet it is far too small to meet the pressing wants of the country. So far as we have been able to discover public opinion on the mainland is almost unanimously in favor of the settlement. The organs may set themselves against public opinion—they may endeavor "to make water run up hill"—but the attempt will be as fruitless as it is foolish. We venture to assert that no settlement, however favorable to the province, would have been acceptable to these organs if it had been procured by the present government.

The "Grab" Report.

Our contemporary, the Victoria Standard, does not appear to take kindly to the report of the house committee on the so-called Port Simpson land grab. The committee found, as we stated last week, that there was no evidence of crookedness on the part of the government. The only fault that could be found was that public notice had not been given when the lands were thrown open. This omission, Hon. Mr. Smithe stated in his evidence, was simply a neglect on the part of his deputy, Mr. Gore. In his evidence, Mr. Gore says: "The true reason the order-in-council was not gazetted was that in the hurry of business it was overlooked." We accepted the committee's report as satisfactory, in the absence of any other evidence whatever. The Standard of Friday publishes the evidence taken before the committee, and professes to see in it proof of corruption, for it puts at the head, "A flagrant piece of jobbery on the part of the government." Now, we have read this evidence carefully, and we candidly do not find anything in it to justify such a statement. There may have been jobbery, but if there was the chief commissioner and his deputy must have wilfully misrepresented the facts, for their evidence does not show it. We prefer to believe that the statements of these gentlemen were honest, and that the conclusion of the committee was just. There has certainly been no evidence whatever of crookedness, although there were enough singular circumstances to justify an enquiry. Our conclusion that the investigation exonerated the government is the only possible conclusion that could be reached on the evidence. On the one hand we have the plain statements of two credible witnesses and the report of the committee: on the other hand we have the assertion of the Standard, unsupported by any evidence at all. Surely our contemporary knows that he has not made a case.

Port Moody.

The statements concerning the condition and progress of Port Moody have been as various and conflicting as the interests of those who have made them. As the terminus (whether permanent or temporary) of our great transcontinental rail way, Port Moody must occupy a position of considerable prominence in the public mind. It is not surprising that speculators should regard it with interest, and that property should be changing hands. The report which we publish in another column may be accepted implicitly as a report of facts. It is the result of personal observation and enquiry by a gentleman thoroughly competent and absolutely disinterested. In giving the number of buildings in and about Port Moody he assures us he has not omitted anything. It will be seen that from the end of the north road to the station, and over a mile beyond, there are at present just 29 buildings, including the railway buildings, shanties, and places in course of construction. Of these, 4 are hotels, 2 of which are yet unoccupied. There are 3 stores in operation, a shoe shop, a shingle factory, a bakery, and a boarding house. These buildings cover a distance of between two and three miles along the inlet. This is Port Moody as it actually exists. The situation has many advantages in scenery and surroundings. There is excellent water, and timber is both plentiful and good. At the present time there is not much work going on. The railway men have nearly all gone up the road towards Pitt River, and building operations are not brisk. The only new building we know of at present in contemplation is a $1500 hotel which is to be erected immediately. That will make 5 hotels for a place of less than 100 population. But we presume these hotels have in view future developments. When the track has been laid across Pitt River, we presume railway operations will be carried on chiefly from Port Moody. There the rails and other material will be laid down from the ships and transported by rail to their destination. A quantity of bridge timber was landed last week, and we understand that track-laying will be commenced within a few days. This will bring some more business to Port Moody, and give it more the appearance of a railway terminus. We publish these facts for public information. We have no interest whatever at Port Moody or elsewhere which would have a tendency to prejudice us in its favor or against it. Port Moody has been greatly misrepresented by persons who hoped to gain advantage by these misrepresentations. It has been lauded ad nauseam, and mercilessly criticised. Between two extremes the golden mean may generally be found.

The Island of New Guinea.

Probably very few of our readers are aware of the fact that the Australian colony of Queensland has formally annexed the vast island of New Guinea. Seeing that the act was accomplished some weeks ago, and formally made known to the British Government on the 16th of last month, it is strange that we should have hitherto heard so little about it. The annexation of an island which is the third largest in the world, is reported to abound in natural wealth, and which has besides been long coveted by several nations, is surely an event that ought not to be ignored. It is true that the British government has not yet assumed the responsibility of confirming the bold act of the Colonial authorities, yet it has not refused to sanction the step—a fact which holds a very favorable significance for the aspirations of the enterprising Queenslanders. Papua, or New Guinea, lies within a few hours' steam of the northern shores of Australia. It is 1300 miles long and 360 broad. Its aborigines, the Papuans, had, and probably still have a taste for cannibalism, but are otherwise a not unamiable or unintelligent race. The island is said to be rich in gold, copper and other metals; in ebony, sandal-wood, mahogany and other valuable timbers; in tortoise shell, pearl shell and pearls; in ambergris, beche-de-mer, spices and medicinal barks. Of its geography very little is known, since Europeans have penetrated a very small distance inland, yet in right of this trifling amount of exploration, nearly every nation in Europe can prefer as good a claim to its annexation as Great Britain. It is probable that should trouble with the natives be the only obstacle in the way of the Queenslanders, the mother country will let the colony finish what it has begun, at its own risk and expense. But since Queensland has no army or navy, Great Britain would of course have to assume the responsibility, or altogether relinquish the scheme should a foreign power step in. As matters stand at present, it looks as if Queensland will reap without difficulty or opposition from any quarter, whatever benefit there may be in her new departure.—S. F. Newsletter.

Dr. H. Cook, F. R. G. S., considers the dust-storms of northwestern India to be due to an excess of atmospheric electricity. He believes the furnace-like blast of the simoon— which is accompanied by a sulphurous odor—to be a very concentrated form of ozone, generated in the atmosphere by some intensely-marked electrical condition.

[From the Globe, May 1st, 1883.]
THE ANNUAL REPORT OF THE Directors of the Confederation Life Insurance Company is a more than usually interesting document of the kind. It shows 1,513 new policies for 1882, assuring $2,510,387. The total number of policies is now 6,357, assuring $9,909,246. Notwithstanding the large sum paid out in cash profits to policy-holders, the financial statement shows a handsome increase in the cash assets. There were during the year 34 deaths, involving the sum of $51,656. The results of the quinquennial allotment of profits have given unalloyed satisfaction to the policy-holders, and the valuation of the Company's liabilities has been done independently by Mr. Carpmael, their regular actuary; by Mr. Cherriman, Dominion Inspector of Insurance; and by Mr. Homans, a New York actuary. The net valuations by these three authorities are $730,230, $727,297, and $700,252 respectively—an exhibit well calculated to show the foundationless nature of the attacks made upon the Company.

A detachment of British troops has been sent to Port Said in consequence of the riots there.

It is estimated that there are 300,000 French Canadians at present in the United States.

Mr. Lundbom has nearly completed the foundation of his two new stores on Columbia street.

The subscription list of the COLUMBIAN continues to grow. Everybody is pleased with the enlarged paper.

Queen Victoria, if the royal family of England should lose their titles by a republican overflow, would be plain Mrs. Wettin.

The loss by worn silver coin withdrawn from circulation in Great Britain during the past year amounted to not less than £35,000.

The Rev. E. Robson will preach in the Public School House at Ladner's Landing on Sunday next (27th) at 6:30 p.m. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Mr. J. W. Harvey, manager of Jas. Ellard & Co.'s establishment, leaves for England on the 1st prox. He expects to be absent about three or four months.

The largest vessels in the English Navy cost a million and a quarter dollars to build, and nearly a thousand dollars a day to keep them at sea afterward.

We hope the people of British Columbia, and of this city and district especially, will not forget that the agricultural exhibition is to be held here next fall.

The war begun by the Young Men's Catholic Society of the Transfiguration Church at New York caused the closing by the police of the opium joints in that neighborhood.

Don't miss the Princess Louise for Nanaimo to-morrow morning. The steamer will call both at Ladner's Landing and at English's cannery on the delta for excursionists.

Mr. Gladstone was defeated on the Affirmation Bill by 292 to 289. The London News, commenting upon the defeat, says, "The forces of bigotry and intolerance triumphed."

The Beaconsfield administration paid off $90,800,000 of the national debt of Great Britain. The Glabstone administration has paid off $102,500,000, and hopes this year to pay off $40,000,000 more.

Since April 8th, 2,300 years of blue ribbon and nearly 7,000 pledge-cards have been used in the temperance revival at Lowell, Mass., and 700 more yards of ribbon, with additional cards, have been ordered.

Railway workers on the lower section are being concentrated at Harrison river. There is a large force there now preparing the road for track-laying. As soon as possible the track will be extended from Emory to Harrison.

THE BRITISH COLUMBIAN, in its last issue, has spread a wider sail, and comes out in an enlarged and improved form, necessitated by increase of business. Our contemporary is to be congratulated on his apparent success.—Colonist.

Mr. Hayward completed his contract on the government buildings in this city yesterday. The rooms upstairs are not yet finished, nor have the internal fixtures been put in the lower storey. We understand that these things will be undertaken shortly.

THE BRITISH COLUMBIAN comes to hand to day enlarged and improved. This is another proof that New Westminister is prosperous. The Sentinel congratulates the COLUMBIAN and trusts this last mark of enterprise will be fully appreciated.—Yale Sentinel.

A private letter from Cariboo of date May 12th, states that a miner is at work on the Beedy extension of the Burns Mountain quartz lead making wages by breaking the rock with a sledge, and that he has thousands of tons of similar rock in sight.—Colonist.

Mr. Peabody's bequest to London was about $2,000,000. The property of the trust is now valued at over $4,000,000. It has been honestly and efficiently administered. The tenants number 15,000, in 3,500 separate buildings of 8,000 rooms exclusive of laundries, etc.

Almost every steamer brings people who intend to become permanent residents of this province. Quite a number of these are taking up land along the Fraser river, and others are finding steady employment among the farmers. Our resident population is increasing surely, if slowly.

The str. Enterprise leaves for Victoria at 3 o'clock to-morrow morning. See adv.

The Blue Ribbon Club will hold an open meeting at the Skating Rink to-night at 8 o'clock.

The magnificent bridge between Brooklyn and New York is to be opened to-morrow.

The chaingang have been for some time engaged in clearing off the public school grounds. They are doing a much-needed work.

An interesting feature of agriculture in California is olive-growing. It is thought that the State can easily raise a crop as large as that of Italy, which, it is said, sells yearly for $50,000,000. A ranch-owner at Santa Barbara has made $22,000 an acre from the cultivation of this delectable fruit.

A German has just invented a safe which, in addition to the customary walls and doors of steel, has an attachment that, on being touched immediately flares an electric light on the scene, and at the same time uncovers a prepared plate, on which the burglar's photograph is taken while an alarm is sounded.

A lot of wild cattle were being driven up Columbia street last Friday. When opposite the residence of Mr. English, one of them rushed up the front steps, went into the back yard where a number of children were playing, tossed the baby carriage over the fence, knocked the baby over, and scattered things about generally. There should be something done to prevent such occurrences.

CHANGE OF TIME.—The excursion steamer Princess Louise will leave for Nanaimo at 6 o'clock to-morrow morning, instead of 7. Family tickets may be had to-day for $5.

INSURANCE.—Attention is called to the Confederation Life Assurance advertisement which appears in another column. The exhibit is certainly a most satisfactory one. The benefits of life insurance are too well known in these days to require argument in their support.

THE END.—Our story, "The Minister's Son," which has been running now for several months in the COLUMBIAN, will be completed in next issue. We shall shortly begin the publication of another serial which we believe will be found to possess even more interest than any that have appeared in these columns.

THE LAST RITES.—The funeral of the late Dr. Sivewright took place last Saturday. The service was conducted by Rev. R. Jamieson, and the remains were conveyed to their last resting place in Sapperton cemetery. The attendance was very large. There were more representative citizens present, we believe, than have ever before been seen at a funeral in this city.

PERSONAL.—Dr. Bentley, of Victoria, came up last Saturday night, and we believe he has fully determined to take up his residence and practice in this city. He returned to Victoria on Monday to adjust his business and may be expected back on Friday or Saturday. Dr. Bentley has taken the office on Mackenzie street formerly occupied by the late lamented Dr. Sivewright.

NEW SAIL BOAT.—The Wintemute brothers of this city are building a very fine sail boat for their own use as a pleasure craft. It will be twenty-four feet long by six feet breadth of beam, and will carry a large area of sail. The model was designed by Mr. John Wintemute, and has many good points. We have a magnificent sheet of water, suitable for yachting purposes, and it is a wonder to us why more of this sort of craft are not in use here.

AT LAST.—After a long siege, the measles seem to have surrendered. Through nearly the whole winter they have been going from house to house, having no respect whatever for age or social condition. The last victim we have heard of is Capt. Pittendrigh, and it is stated that in his case there were not left measles enough to go around. If the gallant captain has succeeded in squelching the nuisance, he is a public benefactor. We are glad to say that he is completely convalescent.

THE EXCURSIONS.—To-morrow will be the anniversary of the Queen's Birthday, and for the people of this district Nanaimo will be the chief point of interest. The excursion from Burrard Inlet leaves Hastings this afternoon, which will give excursionists a full day at Nanaimo. The excursion from this city leaves Irving's wharf at 6 o'clock to-morrow morning. Excursionists are requested to be on board at a quarter before 6. As the committee could not agree with the Excelsior band, a string band has been engaged to accompany the excursion. For particulars, see advertisements.

POLICE COURT. — Ernest Kelly, charged with supplying liquor to Indians, was convicted before the police magistrate, and as it appeared from the evidence that he acted with great violence, bursting into the Indian woman's house, he got 6 mos. hard labor. A man named Painter was charged with supplying liquor to Indians. As this was his first appearance before the court he was ordered to pay $54 or take 2 mos. Sally Cunningham, a well-known character in police annals, pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy. Sentence deferred till this morning; meantime Sally was let out on her own recognizance.

SHIPPING ITEMS. — Str. Princess Louise left for Victoria Saturday morning, and str. Irving for Yale. Str. Enterprise arrived from Victoria Saturday night at 10 o'clock, connecting with str. Reliance for Yale. Str. Otter arrived from Fort Simpson at 7:30 Monday night, str. Rithet from Cat's Landing at 7:45, str. Reliance from Yale at 9:30, and str. Irving from Yale at 10:30. Strs. Otter and Enterprise left for Victoria yesterday morning, and str. Rithet for Port Moody in the afternoon. Str. Princess Louise arrived from Victoria yesterday afternoon at 6:15.

Changing the Terminus.

It is reported that instructions have been received at Port Moody to stop all work on the railway between Port Moody and Pitt river, the supposed object being to divert the line of railway from Port Moody to Coal Harbor and English Bay. This will afford easier connection by means of ferry with the island railway and Victoria than if the line should terminate at Port Moody.—Colonist.

From the North.

The str. Otter, Capt. Myers, arrived from Port Simpson on Monday evening, via Nanaimo. She brought 6 white passengers and 14 Indians, and from Nanaimo she brought 60 tons of coal for the C. P. N. Co. She left Simpson on Wednesday. At Port Errington the cannery men had commenced fishing, but the run was light. There was a general strike among the Indians, at the northern cannories, for higher wages, and very little work was going on. The Otter brought down 3 Indian prisoners from Naas river, charged with burglary. She met the steamship Sardonyx on Sunday, a short distance above Nanaimo, bound north.

From Yale.

(Correspondence of the Columbian.)

Since Thursday, owing to the cool weather, the river has been falling rapidly. On Friday Mr. Cowan engaged from the B. C. Ex. Co. a span of horses and light express wagon to go to Emory. Both horses and wagon went over the bank into the river, and the driver and Mr. Cowan barely escaped by jumping as the wagon went over. The team was valued at $800. The C. P. R. hands were not paid until the latter part of the week, and last Sunday in Yale showed the result. John Barleycorn was bleeding at every pore, and the police force had their hands full. An extensive programme has been issued for the Queen's Birthday celebration. It is expected that there will be a big day in Yale.

From Chilliwhack.

Crops are looking exceedingly well, and there are prospects of a large fruit harvest. The floods of last year left a considerable deposit of fine clay on the land, which has greatly enriched it, and everything is growing luxuriantly. Mr. A. C. Wells has just completed a cheese factory which is now ready for operation. The building is 20 by 30 feet. The same gentlemen has erected a new barn 30 by 60 feet. It is expected that a new agricultural hall will be put up this summer, and there are also a number of other buildings in contemplation. The Blue Ribbon club will hold a picnic on Mr. Ashwell's farm on the Queen's Birthday, and there is likely to be a large gathering. Mrs. Harrison will provide the refreshments. She has already received orders for 200 dinners.

About Port Moody.

Present Condition of the Terminus City.

[Reported for the Columbian.]

A horseback ride in early morning over the North road is at once a means of health and pleasure. The new robes of springtime enchant the eye, bursting buds and fresh-blown flowers delight the sense of smell, while rustling leaves and birds of song supply the needed music. The first building descried is Johnston's hotel, situate on the western side of the road, say three chains from the water's edge. It is a building similar to the Holbrook House in this city, all spink spank new, without tenant or christening as yet. Nearer the shore, the proprietor, pioneer settler at this landing, lives in an unpretentious cabin and keeps a boat livery, which is just the thing for those who seek to develop muscle by a "spin" upon the "vasty deep." The opposite side of the road is occupied by Mr. Steele's store, where a selection of goods is offered at reasonable prices to all comers, and Bonson's Hotel, the first licensed house in the region. The edifice is sufficiently commodious, has received a fresh coat of paint, and has stables attached, to the shelter of which I committed my horse, and, chartering one of Johnston's boats, bent the willing oar for a cruise around the shores of what is expected to become some day a harbor all astir with foreign shipping.

The only settler between the north road and the wharf is Mr. John Shannon, who with his family occupies a two-storey house situated amid a moderate clearing on the rising bank. Near by there was, a year ago, erected a spruce brewery, but the proprietor found that he had under-rated the taste of his expected customers, and the establishment has literally "gone down." The C. P. R. terminus wharf is situated about one and a quarter miles from Bonson's, and is a work of some magnitude, being 1,400 feet long. The marine worms are its most dangerous enemies, and have made sad havoc of some of the piles. Upon the wharf stands a large freight shed, the roof of which, I am told, proved but a partial protection from rain. Behind the wharf is a neat station house, used at present as a dwelling by the resident engineer, Mr. Hill, while on the higher bank is situate a rude building used as a boarding-house for the men employed at the wharf, and on Sundays as a chapel in which religious services are held. Mr. Nelson and his family have charge of this establishment and give the interior an air of tidiness which is in contrast with the rough exterior. Operations at the wharf seem to consist in landing stores and material for the contractors and removing the steel rails lately delivered from the Duke of Abercorn. These are being transferred to the Fraser river by the str. Rithet. Capt. Cushon's steam "donkey," with a crew of some dozen longshoremen, stands ready to deliver with despatch any future cargoes which may arrive. One mile east of the wharf and along the line of railway is springing up what promises to be a centre of business. It is located upon the land claims of Messrs. Clark and Murray, on low, level ground, with shallow water frontage. The pioneer building here is the Caledonia House, run by Messrs. Scott & Kelly. Immediately adjacent are the stores of Mr. Grant and Mrs. Eckstein, in which customers will find well selected stocks of merchandise. Across Queen street is White's shoe shop and also a Chinese bakery and laundry. Seven private residences, of limited size, three of them occupied by families, two "ark" scows, in one of which Capt. Clark is about to domicile his family for the summer, a goodish store, not yet occupied, an unfinished lock-up, to be presided over by Mr. Constable Sharpe, and a stable, belonging to the railway contractors, fills up the bill. A few cables farther to the east is a picturesque promontory known as Rocky Point, where Mr. Murray has erected a fine, substantial building for a hotel. If well finished rooms, with wide halls, broad stairways, and ample balconies from which can be seen everything that transpires within the "Port," and all separated conveniently from the railway and the town, and fanned by the cooling breeze from briny wavelets rising, are the requisites for a desirable summer retreat, then Rocky Point is the spot. At the head of the bay Messrs. A. and H. Cameron are wrestling with tree, root and knoll, for which they are substituting a garden, the soil giving promise of great fertility. Close by stands the new building of Mr. Allen Noon and family who have succeeded better than most people in bringing to their wild-wood home many of those souvenirs of artistic refinement which go far to keep up the connection of the past with the present and altered life. It is just possible that the woolen mill of the future, for which a government bonus is offered, may be located here as Mr. Noon informs me that the water power is available and he is in correspondence with a friend in good old Yorkshire in reference to taking hold of the matter. About three-fourths of a mile from the water, up the old "skid road," Mr. James Cattle has located and is evolving a garden farm from the wilderness. Nearly the same distance, but to the south, is Mr. S. S. Lehman's claim, and it is expected that he and his large family will be a valuable addition to the community. On the north shore is a promising "family compact," of which Mr. George Buchart is the centre, ably supported on either side by his sons Bruce, who has a good wife but no house as yet, and Norval, who has a good house but no wife. These three claims are beautifully situated, bathed in sunshine cooled by the sea breeze and affording perfect view of wharf, railway and "the city." The soil is good and the owners are putting things in shape most earnestly. The only remaining institution is Mr. J. B. Tiffin's shingle mill, say half a mile west of Buchart's. From the finest quality of cedar found in the adjoining forest, the enterprising proprietor, assisted by some half dozen men, is turning out most excellent shingles for which he finds a ready sale in Victoria as well as in the immediate locality. The mill has a capacity of 15,000 per diem, which will be increased to 20,000 when the new Laffel wheel is introduced. The head of water is 50 feet.

A vigorous pull to the point of starting, a sumptuous supper at Bonson's and the impatient horse receives his weary rider and heads for the royal city.

The Excursion Band.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—In reply to the remarks contained in your last issue relative to the engagement of the Excelsior Band for the Queen's Birthday excursion, the committee beg to state that until a late date they were led by members of the Band to suppose that the Excelsior Band would accompany the excursion for the same sum as last year, namely, $50, with such further donations as the funds would allow; but when the committee desired a definite understanding they were met by a raise of one hundred per cent., to which demand they did not feel justified in acceding. Arrangements have been made for suitable music to accompany the excursion.

W. MORESBY, Sec.

Municipality of Surrey.

Brief Outline of its Extent and Resources

In our last issue we promised to give some particulars respecting this important municipality. The following sketch is taken from the British Columbia Directory, published by Mr. R. T. Williams, of Victoria. Persons desiring further information should read the advertisement of the municipality which appears in another column, and address the intelligence officer:

Lying between the corporations of Langley, Fraser River, and Delta, extending from Fraser River to the International boundary Line of 49 deg., North lat., contains within its limits the important and growing settlements known as Hall's Prairie, Clover Valley and Mud Bay, consisting of about one hundred and twenty square miles, has many good roads, and two navigable rivers, namely, the Serpentine and Nicomekl, which discharge into Mud Bay. Vessels of a large size can ascend the Nicomekl for about ten miles from its mouth. The Serpentine though somewhat narrow, has sufficient depth of water to allow vessels drawing about six feet to ascend a distance of eight miles. At present, however, bridges span both these rivers and stop the navigation for any distance up stream. It is to be hoped that before long these structures will be provided with a draw each, so as not to interfere with the free navigation of both streams, the value of which can hardly be overestimated to settlers along their banks.

Hall's Prairie is situated about three miles inland, on Campbell River, which empties into Semiahmoo Bay, about one mile from the Boundary Line. A fairly passable road connects it with salt-water, and also another road leads to and from the Hope wagon road. Hall's Prairie, a rich tract of prairie land, is high and dry, and not subject to overflow. The suaface of the land as of the surrounding bush country, is rolling, which allows drainage as easily and inexpensively as such work can be done anywhere. This prairie was bought up many years ago, and is held at the present time, principally by non-residents. The timber land in this settlement is, however, of a very superior quality, and is owned and settled on. The clearing not being of a hard character, the settlers have made good progress and in almost every quarter section may be found a number of acres cleared and improvements of all kinds well under way. The soil of this section is adapted for the production of all kinds of grain and root crops; notably potatoes. Wm. Brown raised off a few acres the enormous quantity of sixty tons, being a yield of about ten tons to the acre. Up to the present time the settlers have confined themselves principally to root crops, but the day is not far distant when, with its flour and saw mills, a necessity in all new countries, Hall's Prairie will help to supply British Columbia with home grown and home manufactured flour and feed. It is but fair to say of this settlement that before long it will rank among the most productive and important in this section of the Mainland.

Clover Valley is one of the most thickly settled sections of Surrey. It takes its name from the great quantity of clover found growing wild throughout this section. The land, though timbered, is easily cleared, being light cotton wood and alder with here and there a bunch of willow bushes. The alder and cotton wood are nearly all dead, which makes the clearing of the land light work, compared with the clearing up of the green timber, the stumps come out easily, and when the clearing is done the field is smooth and clean enough to run a reaper over. The soil is clayey loam and produces wheat of a very fine quality; also, oats and barley. Vegetables and root crops of all kinds do well and are easily cultivated. There are also prairie or grass lands which lie at the head of the Mud Bay, which furnish the settlers in this section with pasture for their stock in the summer. The grass when cut makes very good winter feed for cattle. Being able to cut what wild hay they need enables settlers to cultivate the land they clear up, which is a very great advantage in commencing a new farm in a timber country. The Nicomekl river passes along the south side of this settlement, and is destined to carry at an early day the trade of this section. It also furnishes the settlement with whatever quantity of salmon or trout they may desire. There are also large numbers of deer or bear; the last named species proving themselves troublesome neighbors by their bad habits of making their breakfast or supper, as the case may be, off any stray pig that comes within their reach. Bruin will soon be compelled to retreat to a place in keeping with his habits, as every year his shelter is becoming less, owing to the progress made in clearing up and cultivating the land. It is expected that a school will be built here this summer, which must add very materially to the prosperity and advancement of this important and beautiful section.

Bud May is a small sheet of water at the eastern extremity of Boundary Bay. Into it discharge the rivers Nicomekl and Serpentine, on which two rivers is situated the settlement commonly known as the Mud Bay settlement. The agricultural land here is subject to tidal overflow. It is easily dyked, however, and when reclaimed is without exception the most productive and richest land in the country. There are about ten thousand acres in the valley, which varies from two to two and a half miles in width. The land, however, is not of a very uniform quality. Along the banks of the river it is excellent, easily drained, and having a fall of about two feet, allowing ample chance to thoroughly drain the soil, but in towards the centre where there is no natural drainage the land is peat, and, in many places, cranberry bog. This can be subdued and made available for agriculture by a thorough system of drainage, but at the present time, and while there is much uncultivated land of a better quality, it will not pay to spend time and capital in reclaiming these bogs. The soil along the bay and banks of the rivers is of the most productive character, as high as one hundred bushels of oats having been harvested off a single acre of dyked land. Vegetables of all kinds do well and grow to an enormous size, and as there are no summer freshets, and the highest overflow from extreme high tides in winter not exceeding eighteen inches, it will be readily understood that the reclaiming of these lands is but light work. Added to this the facilities for shipping produce afforded by the two rivers and it will be easily understood by all that this will be one of the most productive and important sections on the Lower Mainland.

Game of all kinds abounds throughout and affords excellent sport for the huntsman during the fall and winter months. Mud Bay itself is renowned for its oysters and shell fish of all kinds. A company from New Westminster have obtained a lease of the oyster beds here and intend cultivating them. The Bay is also the great seining ground for the Fraser River fisheries in the fall. Many thousand cohoes (salmon) are taken here every fall and shipped to the Fraser River canneries, some of which draw no inconsiderable amount of their supply of fall fish from Mud Bay. A postoffice has been established at the residence of Wm. Woodward, of Mud Bay last winter, and the Local Government propose to place a steam ferry on Fraser River between Brownville and New Westminster, thus connecting Surrey with its principal source of supply and market. There are, also, two extensive fisheries in operation within the limits of the corporation. Surrey was incorporated as a Municipality in 1880, all taxes collected by the Council are laid out in improvements of roads, bridges, etc., throughout the Municipality. In common with its neighbors, Langley and Delta, Surrey is advancing rapidly and in the near future must become a prosperous and wealthy district.

ST. LOUIS, May 20.—Another tornado has made terrible destruction of property, accompanied by much loss of life, in various parts of the state.

LONDON, May 21.—The Daily News confirms the report of the appointment of the Marquis of Lansdowne to the governor-generalship of Canada. In the Commons this afternoon Porter, attorney-general for Ireland, in reply to a question of Harrington, member for West Meath, denied that Patrick Delaney, one of the Phœnix Park murderers, had pleaded guilty because of the previous agreement that his life would be spared if he would give evidence to criminate Timothy Kelly. Trevelyan, Chief Secretary for Ireland, stated that the government intended to abolish the office of special resident magistrate in Ireland.

DUBLIN, May 21.—A memorial monument to Burke, assassinated in Phœnix Park, was placed in position in Glasnevin cemetery. The police guard it. The magistrates erected the monument.

MADRID, May 21.—The Marquis of Orovie, leader of the Conservative party in the senate, is dead.

PARIS, May 21.—Reactionary utterances of the Count du Chamboid tend to give credibility to the rumor that he intends to make the son of Don Carlos heir to his claims as King of France, to the exclusion of the Orleanist princes.

MOSCOW, May 21.—The Emperor and Empress have given a reception to special foreign embassies here to attend coronation. The weather was fine, and the city presents a brilliant and picturesque scene. Many delegates have arrived from Asia.

DETROIT (Mich.), May 21.—The worst storm, mingled with snow and rain, that ever struck Michigan, has been raging this afternoon and evening, accompanied by light winds. Trees in blossom present a sorrowful appearance. The effect of the storm upon fruit cannot be estimated. Thus far no disasters are reported from Lake Huron.

The New Liquor Law.

OTTAWA, April 21.—The Sub-Committee on Liquor Legislation met Saturday morning, Dalton McCarthy in the chair. Professor Foster appeared and asked to be examined in answer to the memorial of the Licensed Vitualers' Association and the points raised by Mr. Hodge, its representative. He was questioned at some length opposing the proposition made to permit the taverns, saloons and shops to sell liquor until 9 p. m. He favored accepting a suggestion of Hodge's that certain hours be specified on Sundays for the sale of liquor to guests at hotels, in place of the present mode. The committee agreed to change the recommendation as to the basis of population on which licenses are to be issued in municipalities, and adopt that of the Ontario law of one tavern license for every 250 persons of the thousand, and one for every additional 400. Applications for new houses in cities, towns and villages must be accompanied by a petition from one-fourth of the rate-payers in the polling subdivision. Petitions against granting such licenses may be presented, and when one-half of the rate-payers so petition the license cannot be issued. The recommendation as to shop licenses will be that one be allowed for every 400 population up to 1,200, and after that one for every 1,000. The committee propose that in rural districts the number to be issued shall be left in the hands of the Commission. They will also recommend the appointment of inspectors and sub-inspectors to see to the enforcement of the law. It was stated that an addition to the bill will be made legalizing the present Provincial law until the Act now being drafted comes into force on the 1st of January next, the time proposed when it will take effect.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

THE LAST HOME-COMING.

A day or two after his arrival Sir Duncan and his daughter came to call. It seemed to the latter that in this way the inevitable meeting would be more easily got over, and that she might second without remark the invitation which her father intended to give. Ronald thought her depressed and silent; but though he spoke to her but little, he paused for an instant before he replied to Sir Duncan's request that he would come and stay at Inverallan.

Muriel observed the pause and filled it. "We hope you will be able to come," she said, in a lower tone than was usual with her.

"Certainly; it will give me great pleasure—that is, if you will let me defer my visit till I have been to Edinburgh. I want to see the best surgeon at once, so as to determine my plans for the future."

"And what will you do if you have to leave the service?"

"I do not know. My mother will not let me speak of emigration unless she accompanies me, and I should require to be very sure of my prospects before I could allow that."

"Indeed! I'm going to put a spoke in that wheel, too," said Miss Hardwicke. "If you don't take care you'll have two old ladies coming to look after you—I can't be left to myself again."

"If you will wait till I've got an American farm in good order for you, you will be welcome," said Ronald, smiling, and it appeared to Muriel, as she listened, that he spoke with a light heart. Surely, if there ever had been any truth in the idea at which Laura Harris had so plainly hinted, if he ever had entertained any feeling beyond friendship for herself, it must have died out ere now. What else, indeed, could she expect, when she had treated him with such marked coldness and mistrust—and that, too, at a time when all his friends were praising him? She had set herself apart from him, and now he had ceased to regard her.

Thinking these things, she felt herself humbled in her own eyes, and waited patiently for the verdict of the surgeon, and the consequent decision as to Ronald's plans.

He was not left in doubt as to his future. He would recover to a certain extent the use of his arm; but he would be wise if he left the service, and underwent no farther exposure to those vicissitudes of climate in which the British soldier is expected to do his work.

He accepted the decision quietly, though, when it came to the point, it was not easy to quit the profession and the regiment which had been his home for so many years.

"What will you do with that old uniform, Ronald? It's no use, is it?" asked his mother one day, when she found him laying away together his soldier's clothes.

"I shall keep it, mother," he answered, with an odd laugh. "You may think it sentimental, but I couldn't throw away that coat, stained as it is. As long as I live my heart will warm to the old tartan and the sound of the pipes. It's hard lines that I sha'n't be in the dear old corps when it comes home, though I'll see it land, if I'm anywhere in Britain."

"There's a deal of romance in the laddie," said Miss Hardwick, to whom Mrs. Bennett repeated this speech—"a deal of romance. But mark my words: he's leaving the army at the right time; if he stayed in it the romance would burn as dull as the fire Jean lit with damp kindling this morning."

"Why so?" said Mrs. Bennett.

"Why so? Why, because Ronald's a lad of spirit, and he'll not go daundering about with a cigar in his mouth, and clothes on his back that make him look like a tailor's advertisement. It puts me past my patience to see the young officers toddling down the town together of an afternoon. Don't you tell me Ronald would be content to do the like!" replied Miss Anne, energetically; and Mrs. Bennett did not contradict her, but nodded her head sagely, and said, "Quite true, my dear—quite true."

CHAPTER XL.

TIME BRINGS EVERYTHING TO HIM WHO CAN WAIT.

Ronald's promised visit to Inverallan was brief, and seemingly uneventful. He must hurry away, he said, and begin his inquiries respecting farms in America, for he could not endure to be idle longer than was necessary.

Very soon his plans began to take definite shape, and once and again he came over from Stirling to consult Sir Duncan, who listened and advised, and regretted his decision.

"I think it's a great pity you should go away, Ronald; you had much better marry and stay at home," said he; but Ronald made no reply.

A second time he had made the suggestion, when over their claret they were discussing the merits of American land companies.

"You'll have to find a wife out there, since you cannot make up your mind to settle at home," said Sir Duncan.

This time Ronald looked him in the face. "You have said that before, Sir Duncan, and as I am to leave soon I may as well answer it. I shall never marry, for I can love but one woman in the world, and she would think my love an insult if I were to utter it."

"Are you sure of that?" said Sir Duncan, slowly, and answering his companion's startled look, he continued, "My dear boy, I think I have known it since my daughter and I read a note of yours, written before her marriage."

"No doubt you have, Sir Duncan."

"Then I can only say that, if you choose to speak, you have my permission, so far as that is needed, and, I may add, my good wishes.

"Are you in earnest? is it possible, Sir Duncan?" stammered Ronald.

"Certainly I am in earnest. No woman should consider herself otherwise than honored by such a faithful affection as yours; and I think a wo*man might well trust you.*"

"Ah, that is just what Mrs. Leslie does not do."

"I am not so sure. At least, you can ask an explana*tion of her mistrust*, if you choose."

"If I choose! Good heavens, Sir Duncan, say if I dared! Why, it seems madness!" cried Ronald, springing up and turning away from his old friend. He leaned against the mantel-piece behind him in a whirl of conflicting hopes and fears.

"I will risk my fate," he said presently, "since you do not think it unpardonable presumption; but I must choose a moment when I am cooler," he added, smiling.

"You need not go home till late tomorrow," replied Sir Duncan, "and now we will join the ladies."

Ronald made his opportunity somewhat skillfully on the following afternoon; for, though he had hardly a spark of hope, he did not wish to undergo one needless hour of suspense.

"It is a long time since I have been in the picture-gallery, Mrs. Leslie; I have a fancy to see your favorite old Jacobite again," said he.

"Let us go and look at him, then," replied Muriel, and unsuspectingly led the way to the low ottoman which was placed opposite to the picture of which she was so proud.

"Do you remember telling me here that you liked soldiers? You were a very little girl then."

"Yes, I remember, and how you said you wished to be one."

"Naturally, since you always liked the profession. Your word was law to me always," said Ronald, quickly, and Muriel colored as she glanced up at him. "Mrs. Leslie, will you do me a favor?"

"If I can. What is it?" she asked, almost timidly.

"Will you tell me what it was I said or did that made you think I had not acted truthfully? I heard of your impression from Sir Duncan, though I did not need any one to tell me that your friendship for me was lessened."

"Dou you remember driving with me to the plantations? I asked you about your friends."

"I remember it only too well. I was so happy that day, till we were getting out of the carriage, when your manner changed all at once. What had I done?"

"You said you did not even know where any of your friends were—and I knew Mrs. Jenkins was in Edinburgh, and that you had seen her," replied Muriel, very low.

There was a moment's silence, and Ronald laughed a short, bitter laugh of scorn at the thought that he had even for a moment fancied he could win this woman. Why, she had not even troubled herself to understand what he had told her of himself! How beautiful she looked just now, sitting there! for she had suddenly sunk on to the ottoman. How beautiful, and how utterly out of his reach! He would at least speak to her honestly for once—would tell her the whole truth—and then free himself from chains he had worn too long.

"So it was poor little Ellen who unconsciously caused me so much pain! Perhaps I was a fool to feel it as deeply as I did. You never guessed how your changed voice and cold looks stung me. You have never cared to understand what has been the main influence in my whole life. Why should you, indeed? But I will speak now before I leave you, Mrs. Leslie, and you must listen—just this once. I answered your question quite truthfully. Had I not told you I had no friends among the sergeants' daughters and wives? Friends! Did you think I could drop quite easily from your society and your friendship to theirs? For you were my friend once—when we were happy children—and I loved you then, and have loved you always! Once I fancied it would be enough for me to live near you—to help you, to be near at hand if you needed me—and I sought no greater reward than your kindness and your good-will; but that dream is over. You mistrusted me and doubted me, and when I went away I knew that the life I had spent here could never be resumed. Now that I have returned I know more. I know that I am not strong enough to remain so near you and yet so far away. You are too beautiful—too dear. But I have courage enough to leave you forever, and make a home for my mother elsewhere; and all the more so that I have dared this once to say what is in my heart. You are the only woman I ever loved, and I have loved you beyond everything in this world. Now can you pardon me enough to bid me goodbye?"

He waited for a reply, but none came. Muriel's face was hidden in her hands, and he saw that she was trembling.

"Not one word of farewell? Then I must go unforgiven. Good-bye, Mrs. Leslie."

He spoke slowly and sadly, now that the passion of his words had passed, and slowly he turned away and moved a step or two toward the door.

"Ronald!"

It was the faintest whisper; but he heard it, and as he paused and looked at her the fleeting glimpse he caught of her face ere she hid it again brought him back to her side.

"Yes. What have you to say to me?" he asked, in an eager whisper.

"Don't—go—away from me!"

"Muriel!" He had not uttered the sweet old name for years, and now it came tremblingly, as he knelt beside her, and, very gently touching the slender wrists, tried to d.aw her hands away from her face.

Suddenly the hands yielded themselves up to him, and tearful, happy eyes looked into his.

"Forgive me, Ronald. I will tell you about it all some day. I was very wrong, but—"

What the "but" was remained un*said, as Ronald drew her to him and* knew that at last he had won his crown. In the first tumult of this sudden change he found but few words; but by-and-by he rose, and still holding her hands bade her look up and answer him once fully.

"Let me hear you say you are content. Say that you are sure you care—that you are sure you are not afraid to trust me?"

"Quite sure, Ronald."

"Oh, Muriel! my Muriel! This is beyond my dreams! My queen, what a beautiful thing our life shall be!"

"I am very glad, my dear," said Sir Duncan, when his daughter sought him in the library. "There's little enough love of a noble kind in the world, and such affection as Ronald's deserves to be rewarded. I'm growing old, too, and I can leave you contentedly in his care. Well, well, I'll say no more of that, for he must not see tears in your eyes to-day. By-the-bye, Muriel, perhaps I had better tell Aunt Alicia?"

"Poor Aunt Alicia! Yes, I think you had," replied Muriel, smiling; and Sir Duncan went to find his sister at once, and threw her into a state of indiscribable confusion.

"But, good gracious, my dear brother, the man is of no family whatever!" cried she, "Why, he has been a private soldier! Oh, I told you this would happen! Muriel to marry the minister's son! It is terrible! To be sure, Mrs. Bennett was a Macgregor of Glen Monach; but dear, dear, what is that?"

"Her people have farmed the Glen for five generations; that is almost a pedigree, isn't it?" put in Sir Duncan, demurely.

ROYAL COLUMBIAN

HOSPITAL

NEW WESTMINSTER.

DIRECTORS FOR 1883-84.

ANNUAL REPORT

The Directors of the Royal Columbian Hospital have to report that during the years 1882-83 there has been a large increase over previous years of patients admitted to the institution. This, with the delapidated state of the building, necessitated an increased expenditure. You will notice in the Treasurer's report that over $500 has been expended on repairs, over $100 on furniture, and $92.43 on clothing, making a total of about $700, which had to be deducted from over receipts, which can not be counted in the actual expenses of the institution. A large number of patients have been admitted, sent from the Railway works about Yale, and no contributions have been received from the Dominion Government or the railway contractors towards the support of this large and increasing class of patients.

In conclusion, we have to reiterate the complaint so frequently made by our official predecessors as to the necessity of establishing a "Home for Incurables," and renovating if not entirely reconstructing the Hospital building. The necessity of an increased grant is a self-evident proposition, if the Hospital is to take its proper place among the charitable institutions of British Columbia.

Annexed are the Treasurer's and Surgeon's reports.

SURGEON'S REPORT.
