Current Events and Opinions.

The truth is, that in the last forty years English industry, and the English industrial temper, if we may use the phrase, have so completely adapted themselves to the free trade regime that it would now be much more difficult to introduce even a small scrap of the protective system than it would be to introduce suddenly absolute free trade in this country after twenty-five years of very high tariff.—N. Y. Nation.

There can be no greater encouragement for tariff reformers than the suppressio veri policy adopted by the N. P. organs in this country. The barefaced manner in which they reproduce exaggerated statements of commercial distress which occasionally appear in English papers, and burke all per contra statements, is a clear confession of weakness—an instance of "no case, blackguard the opposite side." No sound cause suffers by the truth being told about it. It was only the other day that a prominent New York journal stated there was more distress in the United States than in England, and the Manchester Examiner—one of the most reliable dailies in England—of a recent date says: "Notwithstanding the protracted dullness of trade, pauperism appears to be absolutely on the decrease, probably because of the cheapness of the staple articles of food." It is not possible that the zealous journalists who so pertinaciously bolster up a bad cause are ignorant of the reverse of the medal. But it is a melancholy spectacle this—morality prostituted to party exigencies.—The Week.

Lord Ripon is on his way home from India, and Lord Dufferin reigns in his stead. The journey of the late Viceroy from Sinta to Calcutta was one long triumph, so far as the natives were concerned. They turned out in enormous numbers and literally almost buried him in flowers at several of the larger stations, while the Europeans, as a rule, stayed away. His viceroyalty has been a critical one, and may possibly be the beginning of great changes in the East. Ever since the Queen's proclamation, when India was taken over from the East India Company, the theory has prevailed that the country was to be ruled for the good of the people, who were to be trained and encouraged to take an active part in their own affairs, and treated in all respects as British subjects. As a rule, the viceroys from Lord Canning downwards have been loyal to the proclamation, the only marked exception being Lord Lytton, Lord Beaconsfield's nominee. Under him we had the invasion of Afghanistan, and the expedition to Cyprus, resulting in a dangerous development of the Jingo spirit both in the civil and military departments of government. Meantime the University of Calcutta and other places of education had been turning out hundreds of highly educated natives, while those who had been successful in entering the Civil Service in the early years of the Queen's reign were rising into high positions as judges or administrators. At this juncture Lord Ripon succeeded, and as every one who knew his character expected, set himself to carry out loyally the spirit of the Queen's proclamation. The Jingo spirit resented this after its usual manner, and for more than three years the English in India, with, of course, many notable exceptions, have been engaged in doing everything in their power to humiliate the Viceroy and thwart his policy. They have not had much success, though in the case of the Ilbert Bill they managed to frighten the Council, and to some extent to spoil the Act; but the social self-government policy is working far better than its authors anticipated, and the land law reform is too far advanced already to be in any danger of reversal. It will be interesting to watch Lord Dufferin's handling of these burning questions. It will be a new sensation to him to find himself in antagonism to the dominant section of the society round him; but his first utterance at Bombay, though to a certain extent ambiguous, would seem to indicate a resolution to carry out his predecessor's policy loyally. Possibly his unsurpassed tact may enable him to reconcile the English genteel mob in Calcutta and elsewhere to the inevitable. If so his appointment will prove a blessing to India and England; for now that the Queen's proclamation has been made a reality for four years there can be no falling back on the old lines without serious danger at once, and certain disaster in the future; and meantime it will be interesting to observe how the late Viceroy is received in high quarters at home. There have been rumors of differences between him and the government, and particularly that as to the raising of the age of Indian candidates in the examinations for the Ceivil Service, he has been overruled. We will hope for better things from the Gladstone government, though not from the Indian branch of the Privy Council; and the acceptance of an Indian gentleman, Mr. Samohim, as the liberal candidate for Greenwich, and the vigorous growth of the Indian Reform Association, are hopeful signs that the people at home are roused, and are on the right track.—Thos. Hughes, ex-M.P.

Provincial Legislature.

WEDNESDAY.

In the absence of Mr. Cunningham, who was indisposed, Mr. McTavish moved the address in reply to the speech from the throne. It was seconded by Mr. Raybold.

Mr. Galbraith stated that he was leader of the opposition. He proceeded to review the speech. His criticisms were extremely mild and friendly for an opposition leader.

Hon. Mr. Smithe said he was glad that the speech from the throne was received with favor by the present leader of the opposition. He was also pleased to see the honorable gentleman, who had been the leader of the opposition, again on the floor of the house (hear, hear) and he expressed regret that he was not able to take his accustomed place as leader of the gentlemen opposite. He was glad that the speech was satisfactory to the opposition. The present leader had admitted that a great deal had been accomplished and that the country was in a prosperous condition, and also that the government were to be congratulated on the satisfactory situation of things generally. With reference to the Chinese question, the honorable member for Kootenay had claimed credit for prophesying the disallowance of the acts passed by this government. Only one of the acts had been disallowed, and it did not follow that it was disallowed in consequence of being unconstitutional. The Dominion government had not stated that it was disallowed on such grounds. They had stated that any act that was not in the interest of the whole Dominion they had a perfect right to disallow. Still he thought we ought to be in a position to pass such acts as we thought necessary, and as long as they did not overstep constitutional rights the Dominion government had no right to disallow an act. The Dominion government had taken the ground that until the completion of the Canadian Pacific railway the Chinese should not be prohibited or restricted. He was quite satisfied with Kootenay district. They might look for extensive developments in the near future. He had had the pleasure of visiting a portion of that district, and he had seen enough to convince him they had a rich and important district in Kootenay. They had as rich a district in Cariboo, but that district had no railway to run through it, and had been hard pushed on account of lack of railway facilities. It had been necessary if prosperity was to continue quartz mining should be developed; but in consequence of a lack of cheap transportation for supplies to that point such industries had not been prosecuted. In Kootenay the Canadian Pacific railway passed through the centre of it, and no doubt would attract a large mining population. The mining population would be a consuming one. The merchants of Yale, Victoria and Kamloops would feel the benefit of it. There was then another industry that would be developed. There were forests of magnificent timber that he had never seen before in British Columbia, and as it was certain that the woodless plains east of the Rocky mountains would draw lumber supplies, they would see what progress might be made in lumbering in the Kootenay district.

Mr. Grant said that in nearly all cases the speech from the throne was disappointing. He did not think sufficient provision was made for the vigorous prosecution of the drydock. He was glad, however, that the government had taken steps to assert their authority at Metlakatla, and he believed good would come out of the commission. The Chinese commission he deemed a slur on the members at Ottawa and of this house and he did not wonder that prominent men stayed away from its sittings. He was pleased that the government had taken up the Alaska boundary matter and would push it. The increase of gold production was gratifying; but he felt slighted that the speech had not noticed Cassiar. He hoped the government would appeal that part of the decision of the supreme court of Canada relating to the wholesale liquor trade to a higher tribunal. The absence of reference to education in the speech was unfortunate. The time had arrived when the road tolls should be lifted from the main and Cassiar roads. Provision should be made for making proper surveys throughout the province.

After some remarks by Mr. Duck, Hon. Mr. Robson said it was very gratifying for the government and its friends to hear such complimentary remarks from the opposition benches. He said the educational system was thoroughly organized and in good working order, and the amendments made in the school act were of great importance. The city trustees had been increased from three to six, and this had excited interest in school matters, and also the extension of the franchise to the women of the province had caused greater interest to be taken in school matters. One-third of the entire vote was cast by the women in the last school trustee election. That circumstance alone would speak more

Wednesday Morning, Jan. 21, 1885.

Provincial Finances.

Referring to the speech from the throne we observed that the finances of the province were in a very satisfactory condition. For some years the people of this country have been accustomed to expect to face deficits regularly every year, and it had become a matter of considerable anxiety. When there is an adverse balance for a succession of years the only way to meet the demand is by borrowing. But borrowed money must be paid sometime, and it carries interest right along. We are glad to find that the fiscal year ending 30th June last shows a very decided improvement. The ordinary revenue of the province for that year was $503,107, being about $77,000 in excess of the previous year. In addition to this large increase in ordinary revenue, the province received $384,512 from the Dominion government on account of dry dock, making the total receipts $887,619. On the 20th June, 1883, the province's liabilities exceeded its assets by $328,602: last June this was so far reversed that the assets were $1,997 in excess of the liabilities. It is very gratifying to find that, notwithstanding the large appropriations made for public works, the expenditures were met and the revenues went beyond the estimates. At the end of 1884 there was a cash surplus of $134,000, and the hon. minister of finance stated in the house that the revenue derived from provincial lands during the last half of 1884 amounted to $125,000! In the seven years previous to 1883 the revenue from lands only reached the sum of $188,747. These facts are most important, and show beyond question the great growth which is taking place in this province.

Railway Connection.

The publication of the official correspondence relating to the extension of the C. P. R. to Coal Harbor has produced somewhat of a sensation. There were quite a number, it seems, who clung to a belief that the matter had not yet reached a settlement, and that, perhaps, the negotiations might terminate otherwise than they have done. The correspondence leaves no room at all for doubt, and it is as well that all interested may at once face the facts as they are presented. There are a number of persons in this city who seem disposed to blame the government because it did not include railway connection with New Westminster in the conditions attached to the grant of land made to the syndicate. We confess that we should have been very much pleased if this had been done, even if it involved the gift of some additional property. But under the circumstances the government could not judiciously insert such a condition during the progress of negotiations. We have already pointed out how some persons freely charged the Coal Harbor "ring" with endeavoring to persuade the city to give fifty or seventy-five thousand dollars to bring the railway past Port Moody to Coal Harbor. This "ring," it was said, was composed of members of the government. Now, if the government had made it a condition that the railway was to touch this city, it could not go via Port Moody, and Port Moody property owners would have reason to complain that by the government's interference they were deprived of a railway. We should never have heard the end of the abuse the government would have received. Now that the whole matter has been made public, however, the objection to government interference does not exist. The people of this city have already manifested their desire for railway connection by some means, and the people of Port Moody must see by the correspondence that it has been fully decided to make the terminus at Coal Harbor or English Bay. There can no longer remain any valid reason why Port Moody should oppose railway connection between New Westminster and the C. P. R., or why the government should not interest itself actively in securing that connection. Indeed there are many valid reasons why it should. Many of those who have invested in Port Moody are also interested in New Westminster. If Port Moody investments are not likely to prove the bonanza that was expected, an advance in New Westminster estate would bring substantial compensation. But, in a far wider sense, we have a fair claim upon the government's consideration. Millions of acres of provincial lands have been given away to secure railways in the province. The railway belt, extending from Port Moody to the Rocky Mountains, the Peace River block of 3,500,000 acres, the large tract of coal lands given to the island railway syndicate, the 750,000 acres surrendered in Kootenay—all these gifts have been made for railway and steamboat connection. When the schemes embodied in these gifts have been completed we shall find that railway or steamboat communication has been procured to almost every city or village of any importance where such a thing was practicable in the province. Victoria, Esquimalt, Nanaimo, Granville, Port Moody, Yale, Spence's Bridge, Kamloops—all these will be connected by railway. The Kootenay country will also be opened up by railway and steamboat routes, and provisions are made to connect Kamloops by wagon road with Columbia river, through Eagle Pass. All these roads have been built, or are being built, by subsidies of provincial lands, and by the alienation of these lands the ratepayers of New Westminster are as much affected as the people in any other part of the province. But although the subsidized road comes within six or seven miles of this city, we have no railway connection, and no part of the benefit arising from the alienation of these lands comes directly to New Westminster. It happens, therefore, that after millions of acres of public lands have been given away for railway purposes, and almost every city and village in the province has been provided with or promised railway connection, New Westminster, the largest and most important city on the mainland, and the second largest in the province, is entirely without a railway, and must fall back upon its own energies and resources. It is asked for a bonus of $75,000 and right of way, which means probably $85,000 or $90,000. No other city in the province has been asked to give a railway bonus amounting to one farthing—the bonuses have been all given by the government. If it was considered in the interest of the province to subsidize the extension from Port Moody to Granville, it is also in the interest of the province to furnish railway connection at this city. The whole of the district of New Westminster west of Port Hammond and south of the Fraser looks to this city as its natural market. Here the people come to sell their produce and purchase their supplies and find conveyances by which they can reach other parts of the province. It would be very inconvenient for these people, after crossing the river, to drive to Granville or Port Moody in order to connect with the railway. There ought to be a railway connection here, and we submit that it is reasonable for us to expect that the government will use every legitimate means at its disposal to give us a railway. If it can do that by a further grant of land at Coal Harbor, it should make that grant. Then the cities of the mainland as well as those of the island would all be provided with railway connection, and would stand upon an equal footing with respect to trade advantages. We do not propose that the line should be diverted from Port Moody or anywhere else. Let the government offer the syndicate a certain quantity of land to connect with this city, and let the syndicate make what connection seems to it most suitable in the interest of trade.

WORDS FAIL.

"Words fail to express my gratitude," says Mr. SELBY CARTER, of Nashville, Tenn., "for the benefits derived from Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Having been afflicted all my life with Scrofula, my system seemed saturated with it. It came out in Blotches, Ulcers, and Mattery Sores, all over my body." Mr. Carter states that he was entirely cured by the use of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and since discontinuing its use, eight months ago, he has had no return of the scrofulous symptoms.

All baneful infections of the blood are promptly removed by this unequalled alterative.

With the new volume, beginning in December, HARPER'S MAGAZINE will conclude its thirty-fifth year. The oldest periodical of its type, it is yet, in each new volume, a new magazine, not simply because it presents fresh subjects and new pictures, but also, and chiefly, because it steadily advances in the method itself of magazine-making. In a word, the MAGAZINE becomes more and more the faithful mirror of current life and movement. Leading features in the attractive programme for 1885 are: new serial novels by Constance Fenimore Woolson and W. D. Howells, a new novel entitled "At the Red Grove"; descriptive illustrated papers by F. D. Millet, R. Swain Gifford, E. A. Abbey, H. Gibson, and others; Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer," illustrated by Abbey; important papers on Art, Science, etc.

Wednesday Morning, Jan. 21, 1885.

The Teaser will be due with a mail to morrow afternoon.

The str. Dunsmuir leaves for Nanaimo this morning, taking several head of cattle.

The str. Belle came up from the North Arm yesterday bringing a scow load of hay.

Evangelistic services are being continued in the Mary-st. Methodist church every night this week.

There is still a small quantity of ice floating up and down in the river, but not enough to impede navigation.

The str. Teaser arrived from Victoria at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, bringing quite a number of passengers.

The str. Dunsmuir arrived from Nanaimo on Monday with passengers, mails, and 30 tons coal for the C. P. N. Co.

The str. Princess Louise arrived from Victoria at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and went up to Port Hammond.

For some time the weather has been very fine, mild and enjoyable. Coasting on the streets has been resumed with considerable enthusiasm.

It is expected that the new steam fire engine will arrive here Friday morning by the str. Idaho. The small boys may prepare for wet jackets.

In another column will be found an announcement of the Hyack Fire Co. respecting the annual ball which is to take place on Friday of next week.

For coughs and colds, use Imperial Cough Syrup, sold only by D. S. Curtis & Co., wholesale and retail druggists, New Westminster, B. C. jny14tc

Snow has fallen to the depth of over a foot at this city. On the high land between the city and Burrard Inlet it is reported about 20 inches. Sleighing is first-class.

As selling off is the order of the day, James Ellard & Co. beg to inform the public that they will give 10 per cent. discount on all goods bought for cash. (de17tc)

Messrs. Trapp Bros. have invented a most ingenious machine for measuring and rolling cloth. It measures and records the yards with the utmost accuracy, and saves a great deal of labor.

We understand that the str. Teaser will carry a mail twice a week between this city and Victoria. She leaves Victoria at 3 o'clock Monday and Thursday mornings. This will be very convenient.

His worship Mayor Dickinson and Councillor Deane go to Victoria this morning as a deputation to urge the government to secure railway connection for the city. Councillor Hendry also goes down and may assist the deputation.

In the list of Hyack officers published on Saturday the intelligent compositor got somewhat mixed. The names of Wm. Howay, 2nd lieutenant, and Robt. Wintemute, 1st branchman, were omitted, and Benson, Scoullar, and Dickinson were made to appear as lieutenants instead of branchmen.

It is wise to provide against emergencies that are liable to arise in every family. A cold may be a dangerous thing, or not, depending upon the means at hand to combat it. In sudden attacks of cold, croup, asthma, etc., Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will prove the quickest and most effective cure, and your best friend.

CONCERT AT GRANVILLE.—The members of the Choral Union, of this city, are going to take advantage of the magnificent sleighing which at present exists, and will give a concert at Granville to-night. The programme, we believe, will be much the same as the one presented in this city last week, which gave so much satisfaction. The first part will consist of the cantata of the "Sleeping Beauty," and the second part will embrace a miscellaneous selection. Concert at 8 o'clock.

VOTERS LISTS.—From a government return just brought down it appears that from Sept. 1st, 1882, to Sept. 1st, 1884, there were 606 names added to the voters lists of the province. These additions were distributed as follows: Victoria city, 81; Victoria district, 29; Esquimalt dist., 15; Cowichan, 22; Nanaimo, 39; Comox, 1; New Westminster city, 79; New Westminster dist., 155; Yale dist., 156; Lillooet dist., 11; Cariboo, 0; Cassiar, 1; Kootenay, 11; total, 606. It must be evident to every person acquainted with the circumstances that there are many hundreds of citizens of the province whose names have not yet been placed on the voters lists.

ANOTHER STEAMSHIP LINE. — The Philadelphia Railway Record, the organ of the Northern Pacific Railway, says: "An important matter now coming up for consideration is the establishment of steam communication between Tacoma, the Pacific terminus of the Northern Pacific Railroad, and Yokohama, Japan. Tacoma is four to six days nearer Japan by steamer than San Francisco, and would have that advantage in competing for trade with the Orient. Silk, teas, and Japanese and Chinese goods are sold on arrival in port. The moment a steamer is telegraphed the consignees in the Atlantic cities can offer their invoices, and the earlier arrival will give the Tacoma shipper the command of the market. Another advantage is that China and Japan afford an open market for Washington Territory lumber, and already consume large quantities of it. This will give the steamers return cargoes, making profitable freights both ways. There are three different parties in the field contemplating the immediate establishment of steam lines, and an English gentleman, representing immense capital invested in such lines, has been in conference with the Northern Pacific managers the last few days."

DRIVE IT AWAY.—Drive away all poisonous humor from the blood before it develops in scrofula or some chronic form of disease. Burdock Blood Bitters will do it.

City Council.

The new council met on Monday, when the following gentlemen were present: Robt. Dickinson (mayor), B. W. Shiles, B. Douglas, J. A. Calbick, R. W. Deane, Jno. Hendry, H. Elliott, and J. E. Lord.

Before proceeding with business the mayor addressed the council, expressing his gratification because the new council was composed of men who held similar views to the old respecting public matters, and especially with regard to railway connection. He said steps were being taken to amend the act relating to the sale of squares which would enable the council to carry out that scheme. He read a copy of a letter addressed to Mr. Henry Beatty respecting the offer made by the city to Mr. Van Horne, expressing disappointment because no reply had been given and hoping that a satisfactory conclusion might be reached.

The following standing committees were struck:

Board of Works—Messrs. Elliott, Hendry and Calbick.

Finance Committee—Douglas, Lord and Deane.

Police—Shiles, Douglas and Hendry.

Lamps—Lord, Shiles and Douglas.

Fire—Elliott, Shiles and Calbick.

Health—Calbick, Lord and Shiles.

Mr. A. J. Alport was reappointed clerk, assessor and collector.

On motion of Mr. Lord, seconded by Mr. Elliott it was resolved "that the corporation of the city of New Westminster view with alarm the isolation of our city in the correspondence of the government with the Canadian Railway syndicate, and we must respectfully urge upon the government, in justice to our city, that New Westminster be included in the agreement with the syndicate, and be placed in connection with the rest of the cities and towns of the province, and that the corporation cannot admit that the public interests of this province are being fairly dealt with while the most important city (second to Victoria) is being thus neglected, and that we will endorse the action of the government in adding the necessary additional land for securing that end." The mayor was appointed a delegate to Victoria, with a member of the council to be chosen by himself, to press this matter on the government.

On motion the clerk was instructed to inform Capt. Grant that unless the steam ferry were kept running according to agreement action would be taken. Council adjourned till next Wednesday at 3 p. m.

Geo. Andrews, overseer of the Lowell Carpet Corporation, was for over twenty years, before his removal to Lowell, afflicted with salt rheum in its worst form. Its ulcerations actually covered more than half the surface of his body and limbs. He was entirely cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. See certificate in Ayer's Almanac for 1883.

strongly than anything else in favor of the extension of the franchise. The school system was growing in Victoria and the results had been very satisfactory. A high school was established in New Westminster city and the school had 35 pupils in attendance and satisfactory progress was being made. In Nanaimo city the reason that no high school had been established was no doubt on account of the requisite number of pupils not coming forward. With regard to road tolls, the honorable gentleman had expressed the opinion that road tolls should be removed, but the question was could they afford it? The government were prepared to enter into a proposition to take off part of the road tolls to Cariboo and Cassiar and they would also be glad if the revenue would allow it to remove all the road tolls. The miners in Cariboo and Cassiar had enough to contend with without being subject to heavy road tolls. With reference to the omission of the Ainsworth matter he would say that the full amount of the deposit necessary was made in the Bank of British Columbia and was paying 4 per cent. interest. His recollection was that the government regarded the settlement of the eastern boundary as of paramount importance and the immediate action of the government in the matter had proved that they were fully alive to its importance. The settlement of the Alaska boundary was also regarded as of very great importance and he was glad to be able to inform gentlemen opposite that papers had been made out that would place the matter in a very clear and comprehensive light. He would compliment hon. gentlemen opposite for the moderate way in which the speech had been treated and the compliment that had been tendered the government in the matter. With regard to the surplus on 30th June, 1884, it was $134,000. He was sure this would be met with satisfaction by all members of the house. They had received $115,000 more than estimated. He was sure the gentlemen opposite would admit this was a very gratifying showing.

Mr. Helgesen found fault generally with what the speech said and what it didn't say. He was followed by Mr. Wilson, Mr. Orr, and Mr. McLees, and the address was adopted, Mr. Helgesen only voting against it.

In reply to Mr. Galbraith, Mr. Drake explained the circumstances under which he withdrew from the cabinet, and asserted that there was no disagreement between him and his colleagues.

At the request of Mr. Galbraith the debate on the agreement between the government and the C. P. R. syndicate respecting Coal Harbor was adjourned for eight or ten days, and after passing a bill to allow the immediate appointment of a stipendiary magistrate at Eagle Pass, the house adjourned.

THURSDAY.

On motion of Mr. Duck, a committee was appointed to enquire into the condition of Victoria gaol.

Hon. Mr. Smith presented plans showing lands handed over to the railway syndicate at Coal Harbor. He said every one knew that under the terms of union the province was bound to give twenty miles of country on each side of the Canadian Pacific railway to the Dominion, and that in 1880 an act had been passed by the legislature conveying to the Dominion Government a forty mile belt of land, from English Bay to the Rocky mountains. From that date till some time last winter it had been held that the land forty miles in width from English Bay eastward was under control of Canada under the act. During the discussion on the railway resolutions in the Dominion Parliament, the Minister of Railways announced that, in so far as the government were concerned, the terminus of the road had been located at Port Moody. This announcement was followed by an application on behalf of the land west of that point which had been conveyed to Canada conditionally in 1880. Hon. gentlemen could see for themselves from the correspondence how guarded in his language Sir John Macdonald was when he referred to the matter in his letter of the 10th of April last. He (Mr. Smithe) thought there was a significance in that guarded language which it might be well to bear in mind. Sir John Macdonald had verbally told him that the provincial government were at liberty to deal with the lands west of Port Moody as they might deem expedient, and the Dominion Government were at the present time quite cognizant of the arrangement between the provincial government and the syndicate. It should not be forgotten, however, that it would only require that the Dominion should decide to extend the line to English Bay in order to secure all the land in the Burrard Inlet peninsula and twenty miles on each side thereof, in which event the large revenues from the sale of the lands now in the local government's hands to deal with would vanish away like thin air. The Dominion treasury would be enriched, while the province would be left out in the cold. The hon. gentleman recounted in detail the interviews and correspondence between Mr. Van Horne and himself, showing that the application came first from the syndicate, and that the government had simply seized the opportunity which offered, in the most unhoped for way, a chance of securing a large revenue to the province, while at the same time they were aiding the Canadian Pacific syndicate by a grant of land which they themselves would make valuable. There were over twenty thousand acres now in the hands of the province within the Burrard Inlet peninsula, 6,000 of that it was proposed to give to the company on the conditions specified in their correspondence, the remaining 14,000 would be for sale, and would realize such prices that the province would be made comparatively rich for years to come and be in a position to aid in the opening up and development of the resources of the country, as could be done in no other way and by no other means. We could secure the extension of the railway with all its attendant advantages for only the grant of an area of land not much more than one hundredth part of that which was conveyed to Canada without a murmur in 1880 for exactly the same consideration, and which we would not be compelled to give again in spite of ourselves, if the Dominion Government should choose to change its mind and locate the railway twenty miles further instead of leaving it to be done by the syndicate. The hon. gentlemau explained how much the Dominion Government would have to gain in a pecuniary sense if they should do this. He had no doubt but that it was nothing but the feeling—in the face of the $30,000,000 which was being asked from parliament at the time—that it would be well to say that the government were not incurring any expense for building a single mile of road more than the terms of union required, which induced the Minister of Railways to announce that Port Moody was the terminus, so far as the government were concerned. Any one could see that the Dominion Government had relinquished an opportunity to glean a rich harvest of revenue, and if by any change the arrangement entered into between the provincial government and the syndicate should fall through, there would be a mighty temptation to the Dominion to take the thing in hand and secure all the land; and he was most emphatically of opinion that Sir John's guarded language before referred to was simply to leave the door open for that course to be adopted, if necessary. As the resolution would come up in a few days, he would reserve any further remarks until that occasion.

Several Notices of Motion were given, among which were the following: Notice of an act to consolidate the Public School acts, by Hon Mr. Robson; an act to amend the jurors' act, and an act relating to innkeepers, by Hon. Mr. Davie; an act to consolidate the laws relating to coroners, by Hon. Mr. Robson.

Communications.

To All Who Love Our Country.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—With your permission I wish to call the attention of our people to such needed reforms or improvements as are necessary to carry our civil liberty, social purity and happiness, and material prosperity to the highest possible point attainable by a free and intelligent people. I have the happy privilege of dropping some of the items enumerated in my last list of needed reforms, such as extortionate interest charged by the government, equitable distribution of revenue for public improvements, compensation to jurors and crown witnesses, steam ferry, registry office in New Westminster, school trustees controlling the teacher, and encouragement of European immigration. I am thankful, and I have no doubt you are too, but we need more reform, and more we must have; and in all our plans for more we must remember that our government officers are our servants, and not our masters. Some of them, soon after election, are very apt to forget this important fact. I shall now repeat the remainder of my last list, and add other subjects of vital importance to a free and progressive people. I respectfully ask your earnest attention to each question, and in whatever you may judge me wrong blame my head, not my heart.

1. Equitable representation according to population, or separation from the island.
2. Restriction of Chinese immigration.
3. Personal solicitation of votes by a candidate to render his election null and void.
4. The imposition of a poll tax of $1 on every elector who ought to vote at a political election and does not. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." Every elector who neglects his political duties assumes the attitude of a public enemy.
5. No justice of the peace to be allowed to sit on a licensing board beyond his own municipality.
6. Justices of the peace to serve four years, to be appointed by the lieut.-governor after a qualification examination with respect to strict morals and intellectual ability by a board of three attorneys appointed by the same authority. There is nothing more calculated to bring the whole system of government into contempt than the appointment of unprincipled, immoral, ignorant men as justices of the peace.
7. Legal appeal costs to be paid by the justice of the peace who violates the spirit of the law.
8. No judge to be allowed to enter the jury room during the sitting of the jury except in the presence of the accused or his attorney.
9. Each political district to have its own school board elected every four years for the purpose of examining school books and maps and directing and regulating their introduction.
10. A central board of education, composed of the chairman of each district board and a president appointed by the lieutenant-governor. Such board to have the power to offer prices for the best books, adapted to public schools, combining matter, type, paper and binding, every 10 years.
11. The duties of reeve of the municipal councils to the specially defined so as prevent him from usurping the special duties of a councillor and thereby creating confusion, and often perpetrating injustice. This is a very important point, and requires immediate attention. Some men have cheek enough to try, by various means only known to corrupt politicians, to run the whole council.
12. Separation from the island in the event of the general government not placing us on a par in respect to commercial and postal facilities. Justice from the island, if the past is to be our guide, we cannot expect. Let the mainland play the man, and either be on an equality or stand alone with the mother country as her friend.
15. A general law annulling all municipal charters within whose bounds houses of ill-fame are tolerated.
14. A sabbath law. All saloons ought to be closed on the sabbath, and all shooting for sport prohibited under heavy penalty, and the justices of the peace held responsible for the enforcement of the law in their respective districts. No individual, corporation, community, village or city ever yet permanently prospered by disregarding the Sabbath. The first instance is not yet on record.
15. A weekly market on the most convenient day for buyer and seller to meet together, and the weekly publication of a price-current. Westminster may make herself many friends by furnishing these very important desiderata. But she may delay too long for her commercial good. The question she must decide soon, and the answer she gives will very materially influence her future. Will she bind the farming interest up with her own by making the royal city a central mart, or be indifferent about it?

Should THE COLUMBIAN permit, I design annually to call attention to such matters as impress my own mind and that of others, not in the way of dictation, but with a view to seek co-workers for the public good. I shall be glad to give my reasons on any of the above subjects through THE COLUMBIAN, if requested by any progressive worker. My farm labor prohibits my replying to mere idle curiosity. Toil is my daily duty in order to procure my daily bread.—Yours, etc.,

WM. KENT, M.D.

Emigration to British Columbia.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—Looking over Bradstreet's summary of the present condition of the working classes in the United States, I find that the industrial depression is more general and deep there than among ourselves, notwithstanding the working of the English land system and the demand for an immediate and drastic reform. Similar enquiries instituted in Germany and France lead to the same conclusion; yet all these countries have protection in a much more extreme form than would be the case in England if the proposals of "Fair Traders" were adopted. Taxing one part of the community for the benefit of another is not England's remedy—we are too thick on the ground—nevertheless emigration weakens us for the time being, as it is the young and vigorous who leave, or desire to leave our shores. Through the courtesy of your energetic emigration agent and private gentlemen I have received full information concerning the hitherto isolated province of British Columbia, its undeveloped resources and the various requirements of the colony in reference to which a great deal of ignorance exists here among certain classes who know no more of the country's existence than they do of Timbuctoo. When the railway is completed the geographical knowledge of British Columbia and its importance as the key of the Pacific will become more generally understood than is the case at the present time. I perceive that, like our flourishing Australian colonies, you require a large amount of manual labor—people who, generally speaking, have limited resources at home and who cannot or are afraid to exhaust the frugal savings of years to reach your country. With regard to domestic servants, you stand at considerable disadvantage at present, as the following advertisement which appears in the columns of our daily papers will prove: "Wanted, respectable young women as domestic servants to proceed to New South Wales; passage, including all necessaries will be granted by the agent-general in first-class steamers to approved applicant upon payment of £2 each. The colonial government provides free accommodation for the single women during 10 days after their arrival in Sydney." In the face of this competition I would urge upon capitalists and employers of labor in British Columbia not altogether to deprive married men in England of the advantage of the coming prosperity, but to give them a chance. The desire to better one's condition and the condition of one's family burns high in the human breast. There are married tradesmen here, such as builders, butchers, tailors, shoemakers, &c., who would no doubt be glad to come to the country if they were advertised for in the columns of the London Daily Telegraph. Children under 5 years of age are, I understand, carried free on the Pacific railroads, no matter what their weight may run to, which in my case would be a boon considering I have a child under 3 who weighs close on 70 pounds and who no doubt would take a prize at your baby shows if they exist. England, and London especially, is undoubtedly a pleasant place to live in, but its sights and pleasures are not for daily workers and toilers, but belong rather to the upper ten who have time and money at command and the people who have worked so much misery in the land by driving our small farmers and agricultural laborers (who are the bone and muscle of the country) into the cities to starve. Sooner or later the land question must be dealt with in England and Scotland as it has been already dealt with in Ireland. Verily the riches of the country seem unevenly divided. For a man who wishes to better his condition in life and the condition of his family I believe Canada and British Columbia will eventually offer as fine a field as is to be found in the wide world. In the latter country large mercantile firms will be established. Why, look at the facilities you enjoy in postal and telegraphic communication with England compared to Australia. A post card can be sent here for 2 cents, a letter 5 cents, telegrams 3 s. per word and only 2 s. per word in Canada, providing a word does not exceed 10 letters. Even this rate will be cheapened in the near future. Look at your exports again. They are rapidly increasing. Take an article as a sample, viz., cheese. In 1858 Canada exported cheese to the value of £300 only. In 1883 this amount had swollen to £1,300,000. The total exports during the season from Montreal alone amounted to 1,126,002 boxes. These figures show what you can do—they are merely an index of the future, when through communication is established. I see no reason why eggs cannot be imported from Canada to London. We pay the foreigner yearly millions and millions for eggs from France, Italy, and Austria, a large portion of which ought to fall to the Canadian farmer. I believe we are tending towards one grand united federation, with your Dominion and the Australias which will ultimately benefit the entire Anglo-Saxon community. As regards British Columbia we ought to be able to supply a large fishing population for the colony from our coast stations between Yarmouth and Stornoway. These British Islands are still the finest recruiting grounds in the world for supplying brain and muscle and will continue to be so till the end of time, owing to our healthy climate and the healthiness and robust character of our children and young women which nothing can alter and no other country can beat unless indeed we are swallowed up in time by the eternal march of the brick and mortar brigade. In conclusion I hope soon to have the honor of becoming a useful citizen of British Columbia, which, in my opinion, together with New Zealand is the nearest fac simile of our climate that can be found anywhere.

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 3.—H. E. Pennypacker, agent of the Fidelity Mutual Aid association of Philadelphia, and Augustus Richey, a well-known and wealthy citizen of Carlisle, Pa., were arrested today on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the Association. Prisoners with the connivance of a physician of Carlisle procured an insurance in the company for $50,000 on a young man named Whortley, who was in bad health. Whortley was induced to transfer his interest in the policy to Richey, who has since paid the assessments. Whortley says he has been offered a large sum to go away and allow Richey and Pennypacker procure a corpse which would be represented as Whortley's, the conspirators thus being able to obtain the amount of the insurance. Whortley refused, and fearing bodily injury notified the company of the conspiracy. It is said Richey has been successful in similar practices.

TORONTO, Jan. 6.—The verdict of $500 awarded to Kniver against Phœnix Lodge of Odd Fellows at Oshawa, for injuries received during initiation, was confirmed to-day by the High Court.

TORONTO, Jan. 11.—There was a sensation in the East King street Methodist church to-night. The pastor, the Rev. Kennedy Creighton, chose for his first lesson Paul's conversion on his way to Damascus, and had just finished reading the words, "and he fell to the earth," when he was struck with paralysis and dropped unconscious in the pulpit. There is but little hope of his recovery. He celebrated his golden wedding but a few days since.

OTTAWA, Ont. Jan. 13.—Canada is by no means exempt from the depression in trade which appears to be gathering in all parts of the world. For months past the official returns published by the Dominion government, showing the condition of banks acting under the Dominion charters, have indicated a steady increase in over-due debts held by the several banks. A further evidence of the depressed state of trade is furnished in the returns of business failures in the Dominion and Newfoundland during the year just closed. While, as compared with 1883, the number of failures was not quite as large, there was a startling increase in the amount of liabilities. In 1883 there were 1,384 failures.

OTTAWA, Jan. 15—The decision of the Supreme court declaring the Dominion license act, otherwise known as the McCarthy Act, unconstitutional and therefore null and void, has created great surprise among government supporters. There is great satisfaction throughout the province of Ontario at the result, which will be shared in by the other provinces, as all were interested in opposing the centralizing policy of the Ottawa government. The inspectors are returning the fees collected for licenses. The attempt of Sir John to deprive the legislatures of the licensing power, will prove immensely expensive, as the whole army of officials will have to be paid out of the Dominion exchequer. News has been received that Doyle, of Ottawa, of the Canadian Nile expedition, was drowned. This makes eight members of the expedition lost.

HALIFAX, Jan. 15.—At a meeting of those interested in fisheries, held at Barrington this afternoon, a resolution was passed requesting the Dominion government to take immediate steps to secure a reciprocity treaty between the States and Canada on terms immediately advantageous, and in the event of the proposition not being entertained by the Washington government, that the revenues of Canada be pledged, and the assistance of England asked to protect our resident fishermen within the three mile limit, and prevent any infringment of these privileges by fishermen sailing under the American flag.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—A. B. Campbell, claiming to be a nephew of Sir Alexander Campbell, Canadian minister of justice, is being held in secret custody here by J. E. Stuart, Canadian government special agent, on a charge of robbing the Dominion mails to a heavy amount. The prisoner, who is aged 26, and recently resigned a responsible position in the Canadian mail service, was arrested Wednesday in the Open Board of Trade, and has since been locked up in a private room. For a long time the disappearance of large sums puzzled Canadian officials and secret service detectives seemed unavailing. The fact of Campbell gambling and speculating here on a large scale was the first shadow of a clue. It is charged also that Campbell, by chemical process, effaced marks of cancellation from great numbers of old bank notes which had been entrusted to the mails, and since his arrival in Chicago has obtained their original value in American currency. When arrested he had $1,800 on his person. Extradition papers are expected to-morrow.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The Berlin correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette says that Germany has rejected the proposal regarding Egyptian finances recently submitted to the powers by England, and accepted the counter proposal submitted by France.

KORTI, Jan. 15.—Gen. Stewart's forces reached Howajatt wells on Saturday 10th and obtained a supply of water and resumed the march to Gakdul. A detachment of the Essex regiment will remain at the garrison at Howajatt where a fort and hospital has been erected. The few natives in the vicinity of Howajatt appear friendly. Col. Burnable with convoy of grain, joined Gen. Stewart at Gakdul on the 13th inst., and will accompany the expedition to Metamneh.

LONDON, Jan. 15. — The Standard's correspondents send the following dispatch from Howajatt: "Difficult desert march. An immense column starts at 2 a.m. and the march continues the whole day. We are going to Gakdul via Wada Halfa wells, when we hope to find sufficient water for men and camels. A small party left at Howajatt was fired into one night, but otherwise we have not been molested. Small parties of Arabs wearing the Mahdi's uniform are roaming over the desert. Some sell us sheep and assert there are only a few rebels at Metamneh. It is very trying for the camels, who are 60 hours without water. The men are allowed only two pints daily of water in a condition resembling pea soup. Soldiers freely offer a dollar for a tumblerful.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The announcement that the British representative at the Berlin conference has been instructed to accept the French proposal regarding freedom of trade in the Congo country, causes great excitement in mercantile circles. France proposes that the freedom of the Congo shall be limited to a period of twenty years. African traders here say the object is to attract capital to that country during the next twenty years, and at the end of that time, after the country has been developed and made valuable by the enterprise of the merchants of all nations, it is to be closed to all except King Leopold's International Association, or to France, which is looked upon as the future legatee of that association. The proposition is denounced as a trap. Hot agitation in favor of the withdrawal of English consent is in progress, under leadership of local chambers of commerce. Memorials from these bodies, urging consideration of the subject, are pouring into the foreign office from all sections of England.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Great excitement was caused yesterday by the unusual occurrence of a council at the war office on Sunday, greatly increased to-day by the government deciding to resist any attempt on the part of Turkey to occupy any portion of Egypt, or to land troops in that country. Considerable bustle and excitement at the war office to-day. Orders have been sent to Chatham, Portsmouth and Woolwich, which caused much activity at those great naval stations. Another battalion of troops at Malta has been ordered to embark at once on the steamship Poonah for Alexandria. Other troops are under orders to be in readiness to move at a moment's notice. Indications all point to stirring events in Egypt. There is no doubt that the ministry is determined not to allow Turkey to interfere in Egyptian affairs by placing an armed force in any part of Egypt.

YESTERDAY'S DESPATCHES

(Special to the Columbian.)

LONDON, Jan. 19. — Gladstone will come to London to-morrow to attend a cabinet council. It is expected he will remain in London a few days. Another council was held at the war office to-day on the Egyptian question. Orders were sent to the transport at Suez to convey troops to Suakem.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Sir Chas. Dilke, president government board, attended a soiree at the chamber of commerce at Bradford last evening. In his address he referred to negotiations in progress for commercial treaties with Spain and Mexico, and welcomed these fresh outlets for British trade. He said he was no apostle of protection.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—Advices from Tonquin report the arrival of more reinforcements of French troops. A general forward movement of the invading force is expected to begin about the end of the present month.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—St. James' Gazette hears that England will solve the Egyptian troubles by assuming for a certain period the entire administration of lower and middle Egypt together with all financial responsibilities, giving to the Sultan upper and equatorial Egypt with any port or ports on the Red sea. The mission of Hassan Fehme Pacha, Turkish minister of justice, is believed to be connected with a scheme for the partition of Egypt.

High Class Organs.

From the Toronto Globe.

Perhaps the most artistic building on the exhibition ground is the pavilion of the Dominion Organ and Piano Company of Bowmanville. It is moreover one of the most interesting to lovers of good music as being the location of a magnificent collection of instruments. The erection of this building, which cost about $1,000, became necessary to meet the requirements of the company, which had been cramped for room in the Main Building, where it is impossible to judge the merits of high-class instruments. The enterprise displayed by the Company in providing suitable quarters on the grounds for their business has been rewarded. The large number of visitors who call, inspect, and purchase proves beyond question that the public approve the provision made for their convenience and comfort. Here a crowd may be seen listening to test performances on first-class instruments made by leading city and country musicians.

Right well do the Company deserve the success which they have achieved. The present prosperous concern had, like all great institutions, its day of small things. It had its origin in Bowmanville about fifteen years ago, the stock being at that time largely held by parties unacquainted with the business. About ten years go John Wesley, the present secretary and treasurer; George Piggott, the manager of the manufacturing department; and W. S. Russell, superintendent of the tuning department, bought out the shareholders and assumed control. Since that date the business has been booming. A further stimulus was given to the concern by the admission of a Detroit millionaire as a partner. Pianomaking was added to the organ-manufacturing, and the establishment was increased, until it now occupies a leading position among Canadian undertakings. It turns out about 200 organs and 50 pianos per month. These are produced by 250 hands, who receive in wages about $15,000 per month. The whole civilized world is the firm's market, and they have branches in London and Manchester, England; Hamburg, Germany; Adelaide and Sydney, Australia; Auckland, New Zealand; and St. Petersburg, Russia.

The instruments on exhibition in the pavilion are fair examples of the Company's workmanship. An upright piano of burr walnut is a splendid instrument. Of square pianos there are two kinds, a square and a square grand. The former is intended for standing against the side wall of a room, and is convenient for comparatively small apartments. The square grand is finished on all sides, presents a hands me appearance, and is suited for occupying a prominent position in drawing or music room. These two instruments are of rosewood, with a superfine polish, secured by hand rubbing with oil for hours. The touch is quick and easy, the tone brilliant and powerful. In musical quality and appearance they are equal to the best American pianos.

The organs made by the Company are known almost everywhere. They are manufactured in all styles, and at all prices, ranging from $50 to $1,000. Many sample organs are shown in the pavilion. The largest organ which the Company will exhibit, a double-bank pedal, is at present at the Dominion Exhibition, Montreal, but is expected here at the end of the week. It is arranged to be blown by Turk's water motor, which has been placed in position to await the arrival of the big instrument. The organs run through all grades, from the thousand dollar instrument down to the parlor favorite. The cases show wonderful variety. Many of these are of rare beauty and skilful workmanship. The case which secured for the Company a prize at the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia is still much admired, and is largely manufactured. Cases for parlor organs are chaste in design and artistic in execution. The musicians who tested the organs affirmed that for sweetness of tone and elasticity of touch they are model instruments; while visitors can themselves judge as to the beauty and style of the cases.

[T. R. Pearson & Co., New Westminster, are sole agents for these fine Organs in British Columbia. Persons proposing to purchase should not fail to communicate with them. Sample organs on view. Prices quite as low as those of Ontario. Address, T. R. Pearson & Co., New Westminster, B. C.] *no26tc

Our Story.

A REMARKABLE STORY.

Was he in love? The appearances which had made the lookers-on say so were not altogether to be attributed to this, Hester knew. His paleness, his excitement, and his absence of mind, had all been from another cause. The discovery had startled her much, and given her an uneasy sense that she might at other times have referred to some cause connected with herself, manifestations of feelings which had nothing to do with her, which belonged to an entirely different order of sentiments—a thought which made her blush red with shame, since there is nothing that hurts a girl's pride so much as the suggestion that she has been vain, and imagined, like the fool-women, a man to love her who, perhaps, has never thought of her at all. But the question altogether was one which was too profound for Hester. She could not tell what to make of it. Among the heads of the young party at the Merridews she was aware that no doubt was entertained on this matter. Edward was allotted to her by a sort of unspoken right, and in Ellen's gibes and in Harry's gloom she read alike the same distinct understanding. Ellen, in her chatter, notwithstanding the warning to her cousin in the beginning, accepted it entirely as a matter of course; and in a hundred things that Edward had said, as well as in his looks, which were still more eloquent, there had been strong confirmation of the general belief. But yet—Hester could not make up her mind that it was beyond doubt. She watched him, not with anxiety so much as with a great curiosity. If it was not so, would she be deeply disappointed? she asked herself, without being able to answer that question. And as to her own sentiments, they were quite as perplexing. She was half ashamed to feel that they depended upon his. Was this a confession of feminine inferiority? she sometimes wondered, with a hot blush—the position here being very perplexing indeed, and profoundly difficult *to elucidate; for it neither consist*ed with the girl's dignity to give her love unsought, nor thus to wait as if ready to deliver up her affections to the first bidder.

Such a matter of thought, involving *the greatest interests of life, is curious*ly mixed up with its most frivolous events. They met in the midst of the dancing with a constant crash and accompaniment of dance music, amid chatterings and laughter, and all the inane nothings of a ball-room, and yet in the midst of this, were to consider and decide the most important question of their lives. It was only thus, except by concerted meetings which would have solved the question, that they could meet at all, and the grotesque incongruity of such surroundings with the matter in the foreground sometimes affected Hester with a sort of moral sickness and disgust. The scene seemed to throw a certain unworthiness, levity, unelevated aspect, upon the question altogether; as if this thing which was to affect two lives was no more than an engagement for a dance.

And though it is a strange thing to say, it is doubtful whether Edward was much more decided in his sentiments than Hester was. In such a case the man, at least, generally knows what he wants; but, partly because Edward's mind was in a high state of excitement upon other subjects, he, too, was for a moment entirely uncertain as to what his wishes were. He knew with sufficient distinctness that he could not tolerate the idea of her appropriation by any one else, and it was his intention that some time or other Hester should be his, and no one else's, which gave a foundation to his thoughts which was wanting to hers. But, further than this, he, too, was in a chaos similar to that of Hester. Sometimes there was in his mind the strongest impulse to tell her that he loved her, and to settle the matter by an engagement, which must, however, he felt, be a secret one, giving satisfaction to themselves but to no one else. And here it may be remarked that whereas Hester was apt to be seized with sudden fits of shame at the idea that, perhaps, after all her thoughts on the subject, he was not thinking of her at all, Edward, on the other hand, felt no such alarm, and never thought it even presumptuous on his part to assume the certainty of her love for him, which, as the reader knows, was a certainty to which she had not herself attained. He believed with simplicity that when, if ever, nay, certainly, it was to happen, some time, he declared himself, Hester would respond at once. He acknowledged to himself that it was possible that, in pique, or impatience, or weariness, if he did not keep a vigilant watch over the situation, it might happen that Hester would accept some one else. Her mother might drive her to it, or the impossibility of going on longer might drive her to it: but he had so much confidence in the simplicity of her nature that he did not believe that the complications that held him in on every side could affect her, and was sure that in heart the question was solved in the most primitive way.

This was, and generally is, the great difference between the man and woman in such a controversy; until he had spoken, it was a shame to her that she should ask herself did he intend to speak. But Edward felt no shame. If ever the idea occurred that he might be mistaken in supposing she loved him; such a discovery would have made him furious. He would have aimed all sorts of names, such as coquette and jilt, at her; but he had no fear of any such mistake. He felt sure that he had her in his power, and, when he did declare himself, would be received with enthusiasm; and he always meant to declare himself some time, to reward her long suspense, and to make her the happiest of women. In words, this power is generally allotted to the lady as it was in the days of chivalry. But the nineteenth century has modified many things, and if ever (out of America) *it was really the woman who oc*cupied the commanding position, it is no longer so in the apprehension of the world. Only, in this particular case, as has been seen, Emma was wrong. It is possible enough that, in the curi*ous position of affairs between them,* she would have followed his lead, whatever it might be; but even this was by no means certain, and, as a matter of fact, though her curiosity about him drew her mind after him, she had not even gone so far as he had, nor come to any ultimate certainty on the case at all.

Emma Ashton, who, by means of propinquity—that quick knitted—had become Hester's frequent companion, had very difficult ideas on a similar subject. There was no sort of indefiniteness in her views. She was perfectly clear as to what she was to do in a given case, and the case in question occupied, probably, almost as great a share in her thoughts as the different, yet similar question which agitated the mind of Hester. It was, indeed, to outward view, though with so many and subtle differences, a very similar question. Emma's wonder was whether Reginald Merridew would "speak" before she went away. She had no doubt that all the requisite sentiments were existing, and she had satisfied herself that when he did "speak" there was no reason why she should not reply favorably. The family was quite respectable, it might almost be said also that it was quite well off, but there were rumors that Algernon was to be "made an eldest son" of, which were somewhat disquieting. The suggestion was one which made Emma indignant, notwithstanding the gratitude she owed Algernon and his wife for giving her "her chance" in Redborough.

"When there is an estate I suppose it is all right," Emma said; "anyhow, it can't be helped when that's the case, and there must be an eldest son. But when your property is in money, it does seem such a great mistake to make a difference between your children. Don't you think so? Oh, but I do; they are just one as good as another, and why should one be rich and another poor? If old Mr. Merridew does anything of this sort I am sure I shall always think it is very unfair."

"I suppose Mr. Merridew has a right to do as he pleases," said Hester; "and as it does not matter to us—"

"You speak a great deal too fast," said Emma, offended. "Say it it does not matter to you; but it may to me a great deal, and therefore I take a great interest in it. Do you think parents have a right to do what they please? If they make us come into the world, whether we wish it or not, of course they are bound to do their best for us. I am the youngest myself, and I hope I know my place, but then there was no money at all among us. Papa spent it all himself; so certainly there was share and share alike, for there was nothing. When that's the case, no*body can have a word to say.* But the Merridews have a good deal, and every one ought to have his just share. Not but what I like Algernon Merridew very much. He is always very kind. He is always very agreeable, and I think it very nice both of Ellen and him that they should have been so kind to me and given me my chance, though you say we're no relations. I am sure I always thought we were relations, for my part."

"Did you think Reginald was your relation, too?"

"Well, not, perhaps, quite so far as that—a connection, I should have said; but it does not matter much now," Emma said, with a little simper of satisfaction. "What a good thing Roland found out about grandpapa and grandmamma, Hester, and how fortunate that they should have asked me! If everything goes right, I shall feel that I owe the happiness of my life to it. When a girl goes out upon a visit, she never knows what may happen before she gets home—or even, she may never need to go home at all. I don't know it I shall, I am sure. To talk about anything taking place from Roland's house would be absurd. Why, we don't even know the clergyman! and nobody cares a bit about us. If there was the least meaning in home it should be from Elinor's, you know—for everybody knows us there."

"What do you mean by 'anything taking place?'—and from—from what?" Hester asked, who never paid too much attention to Emma's monologues, and had altogether lost the thread of her discourse now.

"Oh," cried Emma, clasping Hester's arm close, "how you do make one blush! Of course you know what I mean. If he speaks before I go away—and I am sure I hope he will, for it would be such a nuisance to have him following you up to Kilburn!—I don't suppose there would be any occasion for waiting long. Why should people wait when they are well off enough, and nothing to be gained by it? When the man has not got settled in a proper situation, or when there is not enough to live upon, then, of course, they must put it off. But in such a case as ours—I mean this, you know—it might as well be here as anywhere," Emma said, reflectively. "Cousin Catherine has always been very kind to me; and rather than let grandpapa and grandmamma be disturbed at their age, I shouldn't wonder if she would give the breakfast—especially considering the double connection, and that it is such a very good thing to get me settled. You needn't laugh, Hester. It is not a thing to laugh at. Unless I had settled, what should I have done? You are an only daughter. You don't know what it is to be the youngest and have no proper home."

These words mollified Hester, who had been in lofty opposition—half disgusted, half indignant. She was brought down by this appeal to her sympathy. "But you are happy with your brother?" she said.

"Oh, yes—happy enough; Roland is very kind. And though it's a small house, it is tolerably nice, and two maids with nothing particular to do. But it is very dull you know, and I don't know many people. And you must always take into consideration that at any moment Roland might marry, and then where should I be? Why, he admires you very much. He might, just as likely as not, next time he comes, make you an offer, and then where should I be?"

"You think, I suppose," said Hester, loftily, "that when a man makes an offer, as you say, that is all about it; there is no opposition to be looked for on the girl's side?"

"Well, you know," said Emma, "I call you one of the high-flown ones. There are always some like that. But in an ordinary way what do girls want but their chance? And when they've got it, what folly to refuse—at least, in my position, Hester. If I don't get settled, what have I to look forward to? Roland will marry sooner or later. He's an awful flirt, and though he ad*mires you very much, I shouldn't* advise you to have anything to do with him unless you just marry him out and out. I should think he'd make a good husband. But don't be engaged to him, Hester; mind my words. Be married to him in three weeks, or have nothing to say to him—that is my advice. Oh, you need not be huffy. I am sure I don't want you or anyone to marry him, at least, till I am settled. But if I don't settle now, he is sure, of course, to marry some time; and then where shall I be? That is what makes me wish that if—he, you know, is going to speak, he would do it, and not shilly-shally. It is astonishing how men shilly-shally. I think they take a pleasure in it. They would know better if they had to wait as we have, and wonder, and feel that we can't make any arrangements or settle anything till we know what's coming. If I have to go away and he never says anything, I don't know what I shall do."
