VOLUME 26 NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., SATURDAY, AUGUST 16, 1884. NUMBER 12

The Chinese Commission.

Just now the Victoria papers are quarreling over the Chinese commission. Hon. Mr. Chapleau and Mr. Justice Gray, who constitute the commission, are prepared to receive any evidence which may be presented for or against the Chinese; but some of the newspapers contend that the commission is an insult to British Columbia, and should be properly sat upon. We believe every one is prepared to admit that the appointment of this commission is a mistake. It is an expensive undertaking for which there was no justification. But the commission is here, and to refuse to recognize it or furnish evidence upon the subject into which it has been commissioned to enquire seems to us not only unwise but extremely childish. Some years ago Mr. Edgar was sent to this province to offer certain propositions for the adjustment of disputes between the provincial and Dominion governments. The people of Victoria ignored both him and his mission, and treated him with the most marked disrespect. After waiting many years they were glad to accept an adjustment very much less satisfactory than that offered by Mr. Edgar. Don't let us repeat that folly. Let every person who has anything to say upon the Chinese question place it before the commissioners, and let the people of Canada know that the grievance we complain of is a real live grievance for which speedy redress should come. In opening the proceedings of the commission Hon. Mr. Chapleau made a statement which will be interesting to the people of British Columbia. He said: "British Columbia has repeatedly by her legislature, as well as by her representatives in parliament, solicited the executive and parliament of Canada to enact a law prohibiting the incoming of Chinese to British Columbia. Nothing was done in that direction until last session of parliament, when Sir John Macdonald, speaking in answer to a motion asking parliament to enact a law in the above sense, pledged his government to issue a commission to look into the whole subject during the present session, and to consider exhaustively its trade relations, its social relations, and all those moral considerations which it is alleged make Chinese immigration undesirable, with the view, as he stated, of putting the government and parliament in a better position to deal with the subject. He also stated that it would be a part of the duties of the commission to examine the evidence submitted in Australia, California and Washington, and to condense and collate it, and to submit it with its report to parliament, so that the parliament of Canada might have in an accessible shape all the information which the legislative bodies of the United States and Australia had, when they undertook the work of legislating on this question. This proposition of the government met with the unanimous consent of parliament. The commission has been named in fulfilment of that pledge. The scope of its functions is the same as the pledge of the premier. It has made researches in Washington, and is in possession of the evidence and papers submitted to congress. The chairman has visited San Francisco and has carefully examined the different points submitted to the commission, by the light of what is to be seen there, and has taken the evidence of those who should be well informed. The commission is now opened here for the purposes indicated in the Order-in-Council, which has been read, appointing it. The commissioners wish for the fullest information on all the matters submitted to them, viz.: (1.) The advisability of passing a law to prohibit the incoming of Chinese into British Columbia, or Canada. (2.) The advisability of restricting the number coming in, or of regulating it, and the best manner of effectually carrying out such object. (3.) The social and trade relations between the people of British Columbia, and Canada generally, with the Chinese, both now, and in view of the anticipated early completion of the Canadian Pacific railway, as well as the effective completion of the other public works, about to be undertaken. (4.) The moral considerations which arise out of the residence and contact of the white people with Chinese here and elsewhere. The commissioners have already, by letters, invited the Executive Council, the Mayor, and the members of the common council of this city, and other representative officials, to give them whatever information is within their control, on this important subject. We have only to add that it is the intention of the government to introduce legislation next session, and we venture to express the hope that all classes of persons, as well of those favorable to Chinese immigration, as those opposed to it, will place before the commission any facts or observations which will throw light upon the subjects with which the commission has to deal. We now invite all those who, by their representative character, have a right to speak in the name of the people of this province, or, in the name of its municipal council, to aid in this investigation. We also invite those who are connected with boards of trade, or who are engaged in large manufacturing, mining, or other industrial enterprises, to put their views and other facts within their knowledge before the commission. We also invite those who are engaged in the pursuit of agriculture, or stock raising, to give us such information as will enable us to judge of the question as it affects their interests; and finally, any information upon the moral questions from all sources will be received and considered by the commission. The commissioners propose to visit as many of the leading sections of the province as the limited time at their disposal will permit and will be happy to receive a visit from any persons wishing to speak with them on the subject. The commissioners wish especially for facts and invite all who feel disposed to put their views, or give any statistical information, on paper and to hand it into the secretary of the commission."

Don't be Mean, Boys.

Sometimes I wonder what a mean man thinks about when he goes to bed. When he turns out the light and lies down alone, he is then compelled to be honest with himself. Not a bright thought, not a generous impulse, not a word of blessing, not a grateful look comes back to him; not a penny dropped into the palm of poverty, nor the balm of a loving word dropped into an aching heart; no sunbeam of encouragement cast upon a struggling life; no strong right hand of fellowship reached out to help some fallen man to his feet—when none of these things come to him as the "God bless you" of the departed day, how he must try to roll away from himself and sleep on the other side of the bed—when the only victory he can think of is some mean victory, in which he has wronged a neighbor. No wonder he always sneers when he tries to smile. How pure and good all the rest of the world must look to him, and how careless and dreary must his own path appear. Why, even one isolated act of meanness is enough to scatter cracker crumbs in the bed of the average man, and what must be the feelings of a man whose whole life is given up to mean acts? When there is so much suffering and heartache and misery in the world, anyhow, why should anyone add a pound of wickedness or sadness to the general burden? Don't be mean, boys. Suffer injustice a thousand times rather than commit it once.—Burdette.

A Suggestion for Dentists.

Dentist—"Ah! good morning, Sir. You wish another tooth extracted, I suppose?"

Sufferer—"Yes. It is just as bad as the other one."

"Take a seat, sir."

"But you have forgotten to call your daughter."

"My daughter!"

"Yes; she played the piano in the adjoining room the last time you pulled one of my teeth, and that is why I came back to you instead of going to a near dentist. I thought it was a regular thing."

"It was a mere accident; but do you mean to say you would like to have her play again while I am operating?"

"Of course."

"Does her music ease the pain?"

"Yes. Nothing brings forgetfulness of a little affliction so much as a greater one."

A Bashful Boy.

Robert, a bashful young student of Cupid, recently summoned up courage enough to escort a young lady home. At the breakfast table next morning his father said:

"Well, my son, did you go home with any of the girls last night?"

"Yes," said Bob.

"Who was she?"

Robert hesitated, but finally blurted out:

"I thought it was Annie Warren, but when we got to the turn of the road she went into Ella Ham's house."

"But I should think you might have told by the sound of her voice," said his father.

"Neither of us said a word," said Bob, blushing and stammering.

The philologist of the Detroit Free Press enlightens the uninstructed readers of that journal as to the use of the much misapplied word "couple" in this wise:—"The root of the word is a Hebrew noun, meaning 'a fetter,' but we got it from the Latin copula, a joining, and it should never be used except in the sense of two joined together. A man and his wife are properly 'a couple;' so are two hounds when strapped together: but two eggs are not a couple; two pins are not a couple, nor are two days a 'couple of days.' Fowls, when alive and running about are not couples; but when killed, and tied in pairs for sale, they become couples.

An old German naturalist tells that the snail is never seen abroad except before a rain, when you will see it climbing the bark of trees and getting on the leaves. The tree-snail, as it is called, two days before a rain will climb up the stems of plants, and if the rain is going to be a long one, they then get on the sheltered side of a leaf; but, if a short rain, on the outside.

Baseball players command high prices now-a-days. Good pitchers bring all the way from $2,000 to $4,000, catchers are scarce at $3,000, in-fielders command as much, if not more, while very poor out-fielders will bring $2,000.

The Chinese Question.

The members of the Chinese commission will meet at the Court House in this city next Tuesday afternoon. It is to be hoped every one who possesses such facts as will throw light upon the subject for which the investigation is being carried on will come forward and present them to the commission. This is especially desirable in view of the fact that a section of the press and people of Victoria have endeavored to embarrass the investigation, even going so far as to denounce any person who furnishes evidence. Nothing could be more suicidal. Are we afraid that the representations made, on the strength of which this commission has been appointed, will be found unsustained by facts? If so, it may be wise for us to avoid the enquiry. But there is surely no ground for such misapprehension. The Chinese evil is too well known and too urgent in its call for redress to be afraid of investigation. On the first page of this paper we give a report of Hon. Mr. Chapleau's opening address at Victoria, from which the scope of the enquiry may be learned. In our next issue we shall have some thing more to say about the singular course pursued by a portion of the Victoria press on this question.

Land Frauds.

If common report is worthy of belief there has been a great deal of fraud practised in the acquirement of public lands. The law regulating the pre-emption of crown lands is very strict, but it is stated that this law is systematically evaded and violated by persons who would scarcely be suspected of fraud. Among the safeguards which the land act provides, first comes the declaration of the pre-emptor. In this declaration he must affirm: "That my application to record is not made in trust for, on behalf of, or in collusion with, any other person or persons, but honestly on my own behalf for settlement and occupation." It is provided that "if the applicant shall in such declaration make any statement, knowing the same to be false, he shall have no right at law or in equity to the land the record of which he may have obtained by the making of such declaration." Now, we are inclined to suspect that there are some holding certificates of record, and even crown grants, who could not honestly subscribe to such a declaration, and in every such instance the record is of no legal value whatever, and the person holding it may be dispossessed by process of law. After having obtained a certificate of record, the act requires a "continuous bona fide personal residence of the pre-emptor, his agent, or family," and it declares that "Indians or Chinamen shall not be considered agents." We are afraid this clause of the act has been evaded in many ways. There is a clause providing that the pre-emptor may absent himself for two months in each year without destroying his claim; and under certain circumstances the chief commissioner may permit an absence of four months. Before a certificate of improvements can issue it is necessary that the pre-emptor should make a declaration, supported by two witnesses, that he has made permanent improvements on his claim to the value of $2.50 per acre. It is commonly reported that in very many instances this provision has been shamefully evaded. The land laws altogether may be good enough, but the temptation to act dishonestly is so great with some men that it becomes stronger than the fear of committing perjury. We believe there should be an officer of the government appointed whose duty it would be to inspect personally all pre-emption claims so as to ascertain whether the improvements necessary to obtaining a certificate have actually been made. In the public interest it is necessary that no person should be able to secure public lands without at least performing the required improvements; and the facility with which declarations have been obtained shows clearly that there is need of some other safeguard. We have not too much land for the purpose of actual settlement: let it be preserved as much as possible for those who will become permanent settlers.

After the Vote.

We do not know what course the city council intends to pursue, now that the by-law has been carried enabling it to sell the public squares. It may not be out of place, however, to suggest that it would be advisable to sell a sufficient number of lots to obtain the sum of say $50,000. This sum should be placed in the bank in readiness so that it would be available whenever wanted for railway purposes. There are a number of people anxious to possess themselves of city lots as soon as the sale takes place, and we believe the present would be as good a time as any to place a portion of this property on the market. It is altogether probable some of those who purchase intend to improve their property, and such improvements will add to the beauty and value of the city. If houses are to be built, this is the time to build them. We are of opinion that Victoria Garden should be sold first. But it might be well to reserve a few lots here and there in this reserve, for future contingencies. These reserved lots would be increased in value by the improvement of adjoining lots, and might be sold afterwards as money may be required for whatever objects it is thought best to apply the result of these sales. Since the visit of Mr. Van Horne there seems to be no doubt that the C. P. R. will be extended down to Coal Harbor or English Bay, and it is altogether probable the route selected will be via Burnaby Lake. That is the route plainly indicated by Mr. Van Horne on the maps. It is useless, therefore, for us to consider any longer by what means we may secure the construction of the New Westminster & Port Moody Railway. That road will have to be abandoned because it would be utterly useless. If we are to be connected with the C. P. R. by a branch line (or a spur, as Mr. Van Horne calls it), the length of that line will probably not exceed three miles, and the route is such that the cost of making a road bed would probably not exceed $5,000 per mile. Mr. Van Horne was of opinion that there would be no difficulty about constructing this spur, and if by any means the syndicate failed to construct it, the work could be undertaken by the city itself at a very moderate outlay. Mr. Van Horne mentioned, among other things, that the company was anxious to locate its machine shops at some point where there is an abundant supply of fresh water. Now, this city has an exhaustless supply of that very thing, and possibly the company might be induced to locate some of its works here. If we could secure for this city the workshops of the C. P. R. it would pay us to give a bonus of $250,000, or even more. Perhaps it might be worth while for the city council to approach the syndicate on this question. While the sale by-law was before the people, several gentlemen had a great many suggestions to make. Now that the by-law is passed, we hope these gentlemen will give the council the benefit of their opinions. We believe it is the purpose of the council, as well as the citizens, that the proceeds of the sale shall be expended in such a way as to bring the greatest possible advantage to the city, and it will now be quite in order to discuss whatever schemes may be put forward with that object in view. If the $50,000 mentioned in the by-law for railway purposes is not needed, it may be devoted to some other object, with the consent of the citizens. It must be clearly understood, however, that no part of the proceeds of this sale is to be expended for ordinary city purposes. It should be wholly applied to permanent improvements such as are beyond the reach of the ordinary revenue, and we should endeavor to invest a part of it at least in reproductive works. Among these may be mentioned a new city hall. The city should have a hall and offices of its own, and in this way not only would rent be saved but a considerable income might be obtained. The same observation will apply to water works. The proceeds of these squares, if the sales are properly managed, will amount to a considerable sum, and it ought to be the earnest wish of every one to make it go as far as possible.

The yield of wheat in Minnesota this year is estimated at 40,000,000 bushels, corn from 20,000,000 to 24,000,000, barley 7,000,000, oats 35,000,000.

Several persons in this city are suffering from typhoid or malarial fever. This is the result of bad drainage and the total absence of a sewerage system.

If building operations go on with as much vigor as is now manifested, the city will soon be cleared of stones. Everywhere men are gathering up the boulders for foundations.

The trial of the petition against Hon. G. W. Ross, M.P.P., for West Middlesex, before Justices Galt and Ferguson, resulted in the petition being dismissed with costs.

Rev. Mr. Fraser, the new Presbyterian minister for Victoria, was expected to leave Collingwood, Ont., last Wednesday, via Duluth. He may be looked for at Victoria about Friday next.

Speaking about the men employed on the C. P. R. the Calgary Herald says: The men are very much dissatisfied with the poll tax of $3 per head imposed by the British Columbian government.

Capt. Pittendrigh reports that the whole pack of salmon on the Fraser River this season will probably be between 35,000 and 40,000 cases. There were only 6 canneries operating, including Spratt's Ark.

The members of the rifle company who went down from this city are doing very good shooting at the provincial match. Sergt. Scoullar won the United Service prize, and several others have made excellent scores.

The Whatcom Reveille says: Chinese miners in British Columbia are said to be getting rich on their gold findings. The grains found are as large as barley corns. Perhaps, if this luck continues, fewer of the Johnies will be smuggled by night across Puget Sound into Washington Territory.

The following programme was presented at the Blue Ribbon meeting on Wednesday night: 2 choruses by the choir; solo by Mrs. Lund; piano solo by Miss DeBeck; recitation by Mr. Henry Cunningham; readings by Miss Williams, Miss M. The marriage of Mr. Chas. Warwick, government agent at this city, and Miss Mary Anne Johnston, daughter of Councillor Johnston, took place on Wednesday evening in presence of a select company. The bride received a large number of handsome presents, and the young people have the best wishes of a host of friends. THE COLUMBIAN offers very sincere congratulations.

The Reeve of Maple Ridge informs us that the council has given out contracts for all the road work in that municipality. The work has been put out on terms which are considered very satisfactory, and the people are pleased both with the amount of money obtained from the government and the manner in which the roads have been located. This is very welcome intelligence.

DENTISTRY.—Dr. Cheadle returned to the city yesterday, and may be found at his office, over D. S. Curtis & Co.'s drug store.

WON THE BUGLE.—A telegram received from Victoria last night states that the New Westminster team won the bugle match yesterday by 49 points. The score was 422 against 373.

CHEAP EXCURSION.—The C.P.N.Co. announces an excursion from this city to Victoria and return for the very modest sum of $1. The excursion will take place next Tuesday, on the fine steamer Yosemite, and will afford an excellent opportunity to those who wish to visit the capital.

POLICE COURT. — There were 2 drunks before the police court on Wednesday morning, but they were discharged in consideration of the festivities which had taken place on the previous day. On Thursday one drunk came up, and yesterday Indian Charley got $25 or one month for having liquor in his possession.

Joseph Rusan writes: "I was induced to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for a lameness which troubled me for three or four years, and found it the best article I ever tried. It has been a great blessing to me." Beware of similarly named articles; they are imitations of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil.

WINNIPEG TO BE ABANDONED.—A St. Vincent, Minnesota, dispatch says: "The Canadian Pacific Railway Co. is about to abandon Winnipeg and make Selkirk the centre of its business. This determination is said to have been brought about by the opposition of Winnipeg merchants, who had their freight shipped from St. Vincent by boat."

MORE SLIDES.—On Thursday night another land slide occurred at Maple Ridge, a short distance west of the big slide. About an acre of ground slid down, covering the railway track for a considerable distance. Yesterday a large gang of men were at work, clearing away the earth, and a number of men were brought up from Port Moody to assist. It was hoped the track would be clear for the train last night.

THAT "TOCSIN OF THE SOUL, THE DINNER BELL," as Byron calls it, suggests no pleasing reflections to the dyspeptic, bilious sufferer. He partakes, of course, but the subsequent torment is egregiously out of proportion to the quantity of food he eats, which lies undigested, a weight like lead in his unhappy stomach. There is a remedy, however, and its name is Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. No case is entirely hopeless.

THE KING SALMON. -On Thursday night Mr. Anderson took the largest salmon, we believe, that has ever been caught in Fraser River. It measured 4 ft. 5 inches in length, 2 ft. 7½ ins. round the body, and weighed 78 lbs. This fish is locally known as the Chinook salmon, and is technically known as "Salmo Quinnatt" or "Oncorrynchus Chouica" (Halbaum) It weighs more by 1½ lbs. than any other salmon taken in these waters of which we have any record. It was purchased by Capt. Pittendrigh, who intends to have it skinned and stuffed and sent to Ottawa for exhibition.

James Cullen, Pool's Island, N. F., writes: "I have been watching the progress of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil since its introduction to this place, and with much pleasure state that my anticipations of its success have been fully realized, it having cured me of bronchitis and soreness of nose; while not a few of my 'rheumatic neighbors' (one old lady in particular) pronounce it to be the best article of its kind ever brought before the public. Your medicine does not require any longer a sponsor, but if you wish me to act as such, I shall be only too happy to have my name connected with your prosperous child."

SURGICAL OPERATION.—About two years ago Capt. Henry Moore met with an accident through which he received a slight wound on the left arm, just above the elbow. This wound has never been successfully healed, although a great many applications have been tried. On Wednesday an examination was made by Drs. McLeod & McSwain, and it was found that extensive suppuration of the bone had taken place. It was found necessary to remove a considerable portion of the bone, and it is hoped the arm may be saved. The operation was successfully performed, and although necessarily tedious, the patient bore it with great courage, and is doing as well as could be expected.

AUSTRALIAN CONFEDERACY.—A confederation of the various Australian colonies seems likely to issue from the recent pourparlers betwixt their executives and the imperial government on the proposal to annex New Guinea and the Australian protest against the deportation of French convicts. Lord Derby pointed out that any scheme of co-operation between the home government and the governments of Australasia requires that the colonial governments should form an administrative unit—should in fact represent a Dominion. The suggestion has been eagerly accepted. Both the Victoria houses of legislature have cast their votes for confederation; Queensland and Tasmania followed suit; and well-informed authorities declare there will be no difficulty about the other colonies. This has brought within view a realization of a pet idea of many colonial statesmen—the idea of forming a Dominion of the Australasian colonies.—The Week.

From Sumas.

(Correspondence of the Columbian.)

Farmers have just finished their hay harvest, with a few exceptions, and in quality and quantity it is first-class. All crops are splendid, with the exception of the mosquito crop, which was not worth gathering. Messrs. D. McGillivray and H. Southard have purchased a thrashing machine of the Climax make with which they thrashed 1500 bushels in less than a day. Mr. Burr has sold three Osborne self binders in the Chilliwhack and Sumas settlement, one to Mrs. Evans, one to Wm. Chadsey, and one to A. S. Vedder. With one of these machines one man and three horses can do as much work as twelve men could do by hand. Every farmer who raises much grain should invest in one. The Coquilitza cheese factory, owned by Mr. A. C. Wells, is turning out a large quantity of first-class cheese which meets with a ready sale. It is an established fact that we can make a splendid article of cheese and butter in these settlements. Mr. Geo W. Chadsey has been appointed to collect the provincial revenue tax in this part of the district. There have been a large number of people looking for homes here lately, and several have located.

Gathering of the Clans.

The unfavorable character of the weather last Tuesday, and the late hour at which the sports began, made it impossible for us to obtain anything like a full report for Wednesday morning Notwithstanding the disagreeable nature of the circumstances, most of the events were fairly contested, and in some instances the competition was both close and exciting. The following is a list of the prizes:

Putting the heavy stone, 1st Murray, 32:2; 2nd Munn, 32 feet. Putting light stone, 1st Munn, 41:2; 2nd Murray, 40:8. Tossing the caber, 1st Ross. Pole vaulting, 1st Alex. McLean, 10 ft.; 2nd Morrison, 8 ft. Running long jump, 1st Simpson, 17:3; 2nd Mitchell, 16:5. Running high jump, 1st Ross, 6 ft.; 2nd Stoddard, 5:10. Hop step and jump, 1st Miller, 40:1: 2nd Simpson, 39:8. Standing high jump, Morey and Simpson tie, 4:7. Hurdle race, 1st Simpson; 2nd Costelle. Wheelbarrow race, 1st Alex. McLean; 2nd Costelle. Sack race, 1st Alex. McLean; 2nd Costelle. Heavy hammer (22 lbs.), 1st Ross; 2nd Mc Kenzie. Light hammer (17 lbs.), 1st Munn; 2nd McKenzie. Boys' race, 1st Wm. McLennan; 2nd Wm. Johnston. Quoits, 1st McMyn; 2nd Senator McInnes. Standing long jump, 1st Simpson; 2nd Costelle. Old man's race, 1st Geo. Black; 2nd Murray. Highland fling, 1st Murray; 2nd Scott. Ladies' highland reel, 1st Miss Murchison; 2nd Miss Towle. Sword dance, 1st Murray; 2nd Scott; 3rd L. F. Bonson.

Mr. J. R. Johnston could not compete, as he was one of the judges, but he threw the heavy stone 36 ft., and the light stone 55 ft. We understand that Mr. Johnston has an excellent record as an athlete, having competed on several occasions with the world's champion, Donald Dennie. Some of the contests advertised had to be withdrawn on account of the weather. The ball in the evening was attended by about 200 persons, and is pronounced a complete success, the arrangements having been made with judgment and carried out with efficiency. Mr. Carmichael was present in kilts and tartan and entertained the company with the inspiring strains of the bagpipes. The proceedings during the day were enlivened also by the Royal City Band, which supplied music for the ball. Dancing was kept up till about 4 o'clock Wednesday morning. The first Scotch gathering in New Westminster may be pronounced as much of a success as could reasonably be expected under such adverse circumstances. If the weather had been fine, its success would have been complete.

Mr. John Magwood, Victoria Road, writes: "Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure is a splendid medicine. My customers say they never used anything so effectual. Good results immediately follow its use. I know its value from personal experience, having been troubled for 9 or 10 years with Dyspepsia, and since using it digestion goes on without that depressing feeling so well known to dyspeptics. I have no hesitation in recommending it in any case of Indigestion, Constipation, Heartburn, or troubles arising from a disordered stomach."

Communications.

Our Public Schools.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—It may be worth while to draw public attention to an attempt now being made to drag our school system into the political arena. In a rambling and disjointed communication which appeared in the Guardian of Wednesday last there is evidence of a desire to insinuate—not, perhaps, that there is—but that there might be, something rotten in the system; that its machinery may be used by a designing politician to further his own ends. "Censor" is quite right when he says that children should be trained to think for themselves, but he makes it perfectly evident that he was not so trained, or that he is not honest enough to use his training. Every thinking, practical man knows that "Censor's" argument might be used against any system of human devising that you choose to name. It is simply the old lament over the impossibility of eliminating selfishness and its attendant evils from the administration of public affairs; and it is not, therefore, an honest argument against any particular system, except it can be shown—and "Censor" has not attempted to show—that the machinery of the system attacked offers peculiar opportunities to the corruptionist.

The truth of the matter seems to be that "Censor" and his friends hate the school system, and would fain abolish it, in order that education might become again a luxury for the rich, and that the bulk of the people might return to that state of ignorance in which they were before the advent of common schools—that state of ignorance which afforded so many opportunities to charlatans and demagogues, and the passing away of which they so deeply lament.

If "Censor" has any reasonable, practical suggestions to advance for the amendment of our public school system, he can be sure of an attentive audience; but if he meditates simply a destructive onslaught upon that system, he will meet with little sympathy outside the office to which he is attached. There are hundreds of British Columbians who would hardly cross the street to decide the fate of a political battle between the "ins" and "outs"—who are utterly sick of this toothless mumbling about imaginary corruption—this dotard twaddle about "Honest John," and the rest of it; but who are ready, if need be, to use tongue or pen or hand in the defence of our common schools, and of that liberty and enlightenment, in the advancement and perpetuation of which they play such an important part. PARENT.

Some Pointed Questions.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—Will you kindly allow me to ask our city councillors a few questions through the medium of your paper, as they affect a number living in this city beside myself:

1. Can a city councillor legally retain his seat after supplying the council with goods or furnishing them with either material or labor, considering the oath he takes when being sworn into office?

2. Is there any other city in this province, or in any of the provinces, situated the same as this city is with regard to its police magistrate, viz: being able to come down from the bench any time he chooses, put a J. P. in the place that he is paid to occupy, conduct the defence against the corporation whose servant he is, and, if his client's money holds out, carry it to a higher court, and in the majority of these appeals obtaining the reversal of the J. P.'s decision, who out of kindness occupied his seat to allow him to make money as counsel; and, stranger still, putting the council to trouble and expense, when he is paid by them to occupy the position as police magistrate? How long is this state of affairs to last?

3. Our city councillors have another officer who they claim is a good one, Police Constable Wiggins. Can they tell me why our police magistrate and J. P.s refuse to uphold him in his actions? I refer to the case in the police court on Aug. 12th. It was clearly proved in court that the defendant had been guilty of the most abusive language; yet the case was dismissed. I should like to know for what reasons?

4. For what reason was Mr. W. B. Wilson allowed to escape without a fine when those who were brought up for the same offense, both before his case and after, have in every instance been fined; and no case brought in court was as bad as this one, for he publicly defied both the council and constable?

5. About six weeks ago the council passed a resolution, ordering the board of works to have Daggett's tank cleaned out and put into repair. Nothing has been done up to the present time. Can the council justify the inaction of the board of works in this matter?

OBSERVER.

An Outside Opinion.

G. F. Giles writes from this city to the Lindsay (Ont.) Post a letter from which we make the following extract. After describing the trip from Victoria to the gulf, he says: "Quartering across the gulf can be seen the Sand Heads light house at the mouth of the Fraser. Soon the blue waters change to a whitish hue and a muddy line of water is seen in the distance, for the waters of the Fraser spread far into the gulf. We soon enter the shifting channel of the Sand Heads, and for five miles we hear the cry of the lead starting at by the deep, 5 or 30 feet, decreasing to ¼ less 2, or 10 feet 6 inches. Soon we are in the swift muddy channel of the Fraser, passing its rich dyked delta lands, its white canneries and rows of fishing boats. Some of the canneries have large numbers of Indians camped close to them, as they do most of the netting. Now we stop at a cannery. The wharf is covered with long-tailed Chinamen, who do the fish-canning work. As we pass up on the river the skiffs of the salmon fisheries drift by—at one end a 200-yard gill net and a five gallon empty can at the other as a buoy. All the way up we pass wooded islands for some fifteen miles, when as we round the point of one of the largest the royal city of New Westminster is in sight a mile distant, sloping up gently from the river. On the wharf we find as everywhere else in this country plenty of Chinamen and Indians. Far too many of them both for the good of the country. We have now come to the end of our journey for the present, and as I fear I have not proved very interesting I will close for the present, saying for the benefit of my Lindsay friends I would not advise any mechanics, clerks or laborers to come to British Columbia at present, no matter what you hear, as I know there are carpenters and all other building mechanics, machinists and clerks that can get nothing to do either in Victoria or here unless they go to work on the railroad. Fares are cheap from Portland, (Oregon), Seattle, Tacoma and other places, and every boat brings men who want employment. It was different a year ago. Then the demand for labor was greater than the supply; now it is just the other way. I think farm laborers who understand their work could make money. There is plenty of land to clear and the men in this country who own it will not clear it or work it. I know of a gang of Chinamen who are clearing land eight miles from here and getting $50 an acre for it, and I am sure one good Canadian would do more work than three of them. They also get all the cordwood off it and although you can cut all you want within a mile of town for nothing it is worth $4 a cord here, and pine and fir at that. Vegetables and fruit will grow almost any size here, but the demand in this instance is greater than the supply. Hardly any one raises vegetables. Most of them are brought from San Francisco or Oregon. It appears to be too small a business for landholders here, though prices are very high. So are poultry, eggs, butter and all farm produce. Fruit is cheap and trees are loaded with cherries, plums, and all other small fruit except peaches, which do not grow here.

Corns cause intolerable pain. Holloway's Corn Cure removes the trouble.

Newspaper Notes.

CULLED AND CLIPPED FROM EXCHANGES.

Among some notes about the Canadian Pacific Railroad, the Calgary Herald says: Besides the numerous small streams which have to be bridged, the following bridges are now either being prepared or are in course of construction: The first one we come to is at the second crossing of the Kicking Horse river, five miles west of Summit. It is a one-span Howe truss bridge, 155 feet long, and 80 feet above the river bed, and resting on a rock foundation. Then comes the tunnel, 135 feet long, eight miles from Summit. Boulder Creek, five miles further west, has a pile trussle 210 feet long and 33 feet high. Otter Tail Creek, sixteen miles from Summit, is spanned by a bridge 610 feet long, of which 500 feet is trussle work, while the remainder is Howe truss, 112 feet in height. The third crossing of the Kicking Horse, which is nineteen and a half miles distant, has a pile trussle, 200 feet long and 20 feet high. Porcupine Creek, about two and a half miles further on, has a Queen truss, 30 feet long, and a 45-foot trussle. The fourth crossing of the Kicking Horse is thirty-one miles from Summit, has a through bridge—Howe truss—of two spans, each 55 feet long and 25 feet high. The fifth crossing, four miles further west, has a Howe truss with two spans, 155 and 154 feet respectively, with 60 feet of trussle at either end, and is 45 feet high.

The announcement made by Superintendent Van Horne of the Canadian Pacific Railway to the city council of New Westminster is of the greatest importance, not only to that section of the province but to this portion as well. It shows very clearly that the syndicate mean business on an immense scale in the near future, at whatever point they may select near Coal Harbor for the terminus of the Canadian Pacific Railway. A line of steamships to China and Japan, it will be seen, is a part of the programme of the syndicate, and, taking the statement as a whole, it makes a highly encouraging outlook for the future of this province, and particularly the coast section of it. While there is a good prospect of lively times at Burrard Inlet the people of this city should not be idle, but watchful of their own interests and not only be satisfied with a railway from Esquimalt to Nanaimo, but use their influence to have a proper ferry connection established as soon as the Canadian Pacific Railway is completed between the terminus on the mainland and some point on this Island. If that is accomplished we will receive our share of prosperity and it will make this city and its surroundings what nature intended they should be, the Queen city of the West and the terminus of the great highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and hence the starting point for China, Japan and Australia.—Victoria Standard.

Mr. Charles Crocker, vice-president of the Central Pacific railway, arrived here yesterday morning from Victoria, and is a guest at the Holton. His visit has no business significance, he having come to save two days' time by taking the steamer for San Francisco to-morrow night. His visit to Victoria was for the purpose of permanently organizing a company to build the Island railway from Esquimalt harbor to Nanaimo, a distance of seventy miles. This was done, and the following gentlemen elected directors: Robert Dunsmuir, Charles Crocker, Charles F. Crocker, John Bryden, and George Dunsmuir. The officers are as follows: President, Robert Dunsmuir; vice-President, Charles F. Crocker; Secretary, Mr. Pooley. To an Oregonian reporter who called, Mr. Crocker said that work would begin as soon as the plans had been approved by the Dominion Government's agent. Twenty miles had been permanently located. Under the act creating the road, it becomes the property of the company whenever it is finished. They have until June 15, 1887, in which to complete the work, but it will probably be finished within eighteen months from this time, it being to the interest of the company to complete it as early as possible, without unnecessary waste in pushing construction. The cost will be about £3,000,000. Mr. Crocker added laughingly: "It will be the only line that we will really own. Every other road is claimed by the people as belonging to them, and we are operating it for them." Answering an inquiry relative to the future of the Central Pacific's Oregon extension, Mr. Crocker said he did not want to build another mile of railroad in California until the people manifested some desire to have more railroads. Their extension to a connection with the Oregon and California near the State line would likely be built some time, but not in the immediate future.—Portland Oregonian.

Ten millions of Canadian money are being sunk in that section of British Columbia which extends from Port Moody to Savona's Ferry at the western end of Kamloops Lake, a distance of 212½ miles. Onderdonk has pushed on the work with extraordinary energy, and even though he should present a bill for extras and remeasurements, after the manner of all government contractors, he will still be entitled to praise for the vigor with which he has prosecuted a task of appalling magnitude. The contract is divided into five sections, four of which were awarded to Onderdonk in the winter of 1879, and the fifth, from Port Moody to Emory, in the spring of 1882. Seven thousand men have been toiling among the rocks and gorges ever since, and at least eighteen months more must elapse before the road can be handed over to the syndicate as finished. It is difficult for those whose knowledge of railroad building has been limited to lines in Eastern Canada, or to the prairie divisions of the Canadian Pacific, to form an idea of the stupendous amount of labor involved in Onderdonk's work. Thus, between Emory and Boston Bar, a distance of 29 miles, the average cost of construction exceeds $80,000 per mile, the road-bed for twenty miles having been hewn out of solid granite and carried through no less than thirteen tunnels and over eight large and fourteen small bridges. Between Boston Bar and Yale the line follows the Fraser through a vast canyon flanked by cliffs thousands of feet high. The bridge and trestle work is enormously heavy, there being no less than 500 structures, not counting tunnels, between Port Moody and Kamloops. The money spent on the tunnels alone would have built 85 miles of branch lines in Southern Manitoba. The road when completed will certainly be a perfect one in its way. The cuttings are 22 feet wide and the embankment 17 feet; the tunnels are 22 feet wide by 21 in height; and the bridges are the heaviest Howse truss. The track will be laid with 60-pound steel rails. The country will have something to show for the expenditure of its money, but what practical benefit will it be to Canada? The mongrel white, Indian and Chinese population of British Columbia is not worth the half of ten millions, not to speak of the fifteen or twenty millions more that will be sunk in carrying the road through the Rocky mountains, twice across the Columbia and then over the Selkirk range, from the mouth of Kicking Horse Pass to Kamloops. The construction of the road from the prairies to the sea is an engineering feat almost without a parallel on this continent, and that is the best and most that can be said of it. From a political point of view, it may have been necessary; but regarding it purely as a business transaction it is the wildest and the maddest and the most ruinous freak 5,000,000 of sane people ever indulged it.—Winnipeg Sun.

D. J. ROBSON,
NEW WESTMINSTER,

Our Story.

A REMARKABLE STORY.

She put her mother to bed in the meantime, and did all the little things for her which were a part of Mrs. John's system. She brushed her hair, still so pretty; she tied nicely, as if it were an article of full dress, the strings of her nightcap; she put all her little things by her on the table by her bedside—her Bible and prayer-book, the novel she had been reading on the journey, a biscuit in case she should wake up feeling faint in the night. There was quite an array of small matters. And then Hester kissed her mother and bid her go to sleep. "You will not be long of coming to bed, dear?" Mrs. John said; and the girl promised. But she went away, carrying her candle into one wainscoted room after another, asking herself if she liked them. She had been used to big white rooms in France. She saw gleams of her own face and reflections of her light in the deep brown of these walls, with a pleasant little thrill of alarm. It was all very strange, she had never seen anything like it before; but what was the reason why papa left? What had he done? What had been done to him? One of the down-stairs rooms opened upon a pretty veranda, into which she was just about stepping, notwithstanding her dread that the wind would blow her candle out, when suddenly she was met by a large and stately figure which made the heart jump in Hester's breast. Miss Catherine had come out, as she did so often at night, with a white shawl thrown over her cap. The road was so quiet—and if it had been ever so noisy Catherine Vernon could surely dress as she pleased, and go as she pleased, from one place to another in Redborough and its neighborhood. She saw coming out upon her in the light of a candle a pair of brown eyes, large and wide open, full of eager curiosity, with a tall girl behind them somewhat high-shouldered, with clustering curly, short hair. Catherine Vernon was not without prejudices, and she did not like Mrs. John, nor did she expect (or perhaps intend) to like her daughter. There was something in the girl's face which disarmed her suspicion; but she was not a person to give in, and give up her foregone conclusion, on any such trifling occasion as that.

* * * * * *

Catherine Vernon had come to see with her own eyes that her guests or tenants had arrived, and that they were comfortable. They were relations, which justified the want of ceremony; but, perhaps, if they had not been poor, and she had not been their benefactor, she would scarcely, in so very easy a way, with a shawl over her cap, and at an hour not adapted for visits, have made the first call upon them. She would have been more indignant than any one at such a suggestion; but human motives are very subtile, and, no doubt, though she was not in the least aware of it, this was true. To be sure, there were circumstances in which such a visit would have seemed, of all things, the most kind, but not, perhaps, with persons so little in sympathy as Catherine Vernon and Mrs. John. She knew she had been substantially kind. It is so much easier to be substantially kind than to show that tender regard for other people's feelings which is the only thing which ever calls for true gratitude; and perhaps Catherine had not altogether escaped the deteriorating influences of too much prosperity. In her solitude she had become a great observer of men—and women; and was disposed to find much amusement in this observation. Miss Vernon was half aware that other motives than those of pure benevolence affected her mind as she went that evening to the Vernonry. Curiosity was in it. She could not but wonder how Mrs. John was feeling, what she thought of all those changes. She was glad that her cousin's widow had come home, where she could be looked after, and where it would be seen that nothing happened to her; but she had wondered above measure when her offer of shelter and a home had been accepted, not knowing, of course, anything about that very active factor in Mrs. John's affairs who was known to the people in Redborough only as "the little girl." Catherine Vernon thought that she herself, in Mrs. John's position, would have starved or worked her fingers to the bone rather than have come back in such a humiliated condition to the neighborhood where she had held so different a place. She was rather glad to feel herself justified in her contempt of her cousin's wife by this failure in her of all "proper pride;" and she allowed curiosity and a sense of superiority, and her low estimate of Mrs. John's capacity of feeling, to carry the day over her natural sense of courtesy. What so natural, she said to herself, as that she should run out and see whether they had arrived, and if they were comfortable, and establish friendly, easy relations at once, without waiting for formalities? Qui s'excuse s'accuse. Miss Vernon certainly knew, at the bottom of her heart, that sorrow and downfall merited a more respectful accost; but then Mrs. John had none of those delicacies of feeling, or it was not in nature that she would have come at all. And nothing could be more substantially kind than Catherine knew she had been. She had engaged an excellent servant for them—a woman who had been in her own house, and who was a capital cook, and capable of taking a kind of charge as housekeeper, if Mrs. John still remained incapable, as of old: and, no doubt, Miss Vernon thought, there would be a foreign bonne of some sort or other to take care of "the little girl." Her own maid accompanied her to the gate, then went round to the humbler entrance while Miss Vernon walked through the garden to the pretty veranda, newly put up (but in excellent taste and keeping, everybody said), which was intended to form a sort of conservatory in a sunny corner, and give the inhabitants a little more elegance and modern prettiness than the other houses afforded. She had done this on purpose for Mrs. John, who had got used, no doubt, to foreign ways, sitting out of doors, and indulgences of that kind. Could anything have been more kind? And yet, at the bottom of her heart, Miss Vernon was aware that if she had resisted her impulse to come and spy upon the poor traveler this first night, and investigate her feelings, and how she was supporting the change, and all the recollections to be called forth by her return, she would have been far more really kind. She felt this, yet she came. What is there in the human bosom more strong than the desire to see how the gladiators die? Poor Mrs. John was no gladiator, but she was upon the point of that sword of suffering which some writhe and struggle upon, and some allow themselves to be wounded by in silence. Miss Vernon was very anxious to know how she was bearing it. The daylight, which had come to an end altogether in the dark wainscoted rooms inside, was still lingering without. Behind the trees there was a golden clearness upon the horizon, against which every branch stood out. The stars were only half visible in the faint blue. The walk had been delightful. It was the time she preferred to be abroad, her mind undisturbed by those cares which pursue less peaceful people, yielding itself up entirely to the spell of universal tranquility and repose.

But when Miss Vernon, opening the glass door of the veranda, suddenly came in sight of a figure which was quite unexpected, which she could not identify or recognize, she was, for the moment, too much startled to speak. A tall girl of fourteen, in that large development which so many girls attain at that early age—to be "fined down" into slim grace and delicacy afterward—with rather high shoulders, increased by the simple form of her dress; hair of a chestnut color, cut short, and clustering in natural rings and twists—not curled, in the ordinary sense of the word; a complexion in which white predominated, the creamy whiteness of a sanguine temperament, but with little of the rose; and two large, eager, brown eyes, full of curiosity, full of life, evidently interrogating everything, coming out, even upon the twilight and the tears of departing day, with her lighted candle and all-questioning eyes. There was so much warmth of life and movement about Hester that it was difficult not to feel a certain interest in her; and there was something wonderfully characteristic in her attitude, arrested, as she stepped out, like an explorer, with her candle in her hand.

"I don't know you," said Catherine Vernon, who, from her general popularity and the worship administered to her all round, had, perhaps without knowing it, acquired the familiar ease of expression which belongs to kind and well-intentioned despots. The tone of her voice, Hester thought, who was accustomed to that distinction, was as if she had said "tu." And it depends a great deal upon circumstances whether it is affection or insult to tutoyer a stranger. "I don't know you," she said, coming in without any invitation, and closing the glass door behind her. "I suppose you must have come with Mrs. John Vernon. It is not possible," she cried, a moment after, "that you are "the little girl?" "I am all the girl there is. I am Hester; but I don't know you either," the girl said, determined not to show any poltroonery or to veil her pretensions for any one. "Are you Cousin Catherine?" she added, after a moment, with a quick-drawn breath.

"Yes, I am Cousin Catherine. I came to see how you have got through your journey, and how your mother is. I suppose she is your mother? It is quite astonishing to me to see you look almost like a grown-up young woman, you, whom I have always thought of as a little girl."

"I am fourteen," said Hester. "I never was very little since I can remember;" and they stood and looked at each other under the glass roof, which still let in some light among the flowers, their two faces lit up by the flame of the candle. Hester stood in front of the door which led into the house, and, indeed, had something the aspect of a guardian of the house preventing the visitor from going in. There was a sort of resemblance to each other in their faces and somewhat largely developed figures; but this, which ought to have been a comfortable and soothing thought, did not occur to either. And it cannot be denied that the first encounter was hostile on both sides.

"I should like to see your mother; to welcome her—home."

"She has gone to bed. She was—tired," Hester said; and then, with an effort, "I do not think it is quite happy for her, just the first night, coming back to the place she used to live in. I made her go to bed."

"You take good care of her," said Miss Vernon; "that is right. She always wanted taking care of." Then, with a smile, she added, "Am I not to go in? I came to see if you were comfortable and had everything you want."

"Mother will be much obliged," said Hester, stiffly. She did not know any better. She was not accustomed to visitors, and was altogether at a loss what to do—not to speak of the instinct of opposition which sprang up in her mind to this first new actor in the new life which lay vaguely existing and unknown before her feet. It seemed to her, she could scarcely tell how, that here was an enemy, some one to be held at arm's length. As for Catherine Vernon, she was more completely taken aback by this encounter than by anything which had happened for years. Few people opposed her or met her with suspicion, much less hostility; and the aspect of this girl standing in the doorway, defending it, as it were, preventing her from entering, was half comic, half exasperating. Keeping her out of her own house! It was one of the drawbacks of her easy beneficence, the défauts de ses qualités, that she felt a little too distinctly that it was her own house, which, seeing she had given it to Mrs. John, was an ungenerosity in the midst of her generosity. But she was human, like the rest of us. She began to laugh, bewildered, half angry, yet highly tickled with the position, while Hester stood in front of her, regarding her curiously with those big eyes. "I must rest here, if I am not to go in," she said. "I hope you won't object to that; for it is as much as I can do to walk from the Grange here."

Hester felt as if her lips were sealed. She could not say anything; indeed, she did not know what she ought to say. A vague sense that she was behaving badly made her uncomfortable; but she was not going to submit, to yield to the first comer, to let anybody enter who chose. Was she not the guardian of her mother, and of her quiet and repose? She shifted her position a little as Miss Vernon sat down on one of the creaking basket chairs, but did not even put her candle out of her hand, or relax in her defensive attitude. When her visitor laughed again, Hester felt a flush of hot anger, like a flame, going over her. To be ludicrous is the last thing a girl can bear: but even for that she would not give in.

"You are a capital guardian," Catherine said, "but I assure you I am not an enemy. I shall have to call my maid Jennings, who has gone to the kitchen to see Betsey, before I go home, for I am not fond of walking alone. You must try and learn that we are all friends here. I suppose your mother has told you a great deal about the Vernons—and me?"
