BRITISH COLUMBIAN.

VOLUME 23 NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 11, 1883. NUMBER 29

The British Columbian.

Wednesday Morning, April 11, 1883.

Two Important Matters.

There are two matters of great importance to this province which the electors expect the present government to adjust, if possible. One is the opening of the railway lands to settlement, and the other is getting rid of the graving dock as a provincial work. We have been given to understand that the railway lands would very soon be opened, but there has as yet been no official announcement of the fact. The great attention which British Columbia is now attracting in the east, and the large number of people who have already come in during the present season, are matters for congratulation. But it would be very unfortunate if, when men seek out agricultural locations and come to the land office for a title, they are informed that no title can be given, as the lands are reserved. We have a big country—big enough in area to furnish a farm to every person who will come here during the next hundred years—but our arable lands are by no means co-extensive with our boundaries. Indeed, in comparison with the vastness of our territory, our good land is somewhat circumscribed. It is of very great importance that the first immigrants of the season should experience no trouble in finding suitable lands, or in obtaining a satisfactory title. They are in many cases the pioneers—the spies—who have been delegated to spy out the land, and their report will bring or keep back thousands who are ready to come to this country as permanent settlers. We hope our local government will leave no stone unturned to accomplish the liberation of our railway lands. With respect to the dry-dock, we need scarcely repeat that all British Columbia, with the exception of a very small section of the island, is heartily anxious that this work should stop. It has been the cause of more broken promises and more mismanagement and more absolute waste of provincial funds, perhaps, than any other work in which this country ever engaged. It is long past time this prolific source of expenditure and political corruption had been abandoned. A majority of the present house, we believe, are pledged to secure a release of the province from the completion of the dry-dock, and the people are anxious to know what they are going to do about it. There are roads and other public works everywhere throughout the mainland for which public funds must be had if this province is to become a respectable field for immigration, and we want for these permanent improvements the money that is being squandered uselessly on the dry-dock. The Colonist, some time ago, announced that the Dominion government had consented to take over the dry-dock, but that does not yet appear to have been done. Released from this incubus, the province will be at liberty to devote its whole energies to the legitimate work of its own development.

The Channel Tunnel.

The first mile of the Channel Tunnel boring at Sangatte (France) being now nearly completed, the works have been inspected by a large party of distinguished visitors, amongst whom were M. Leon Say, the Chairman of the French Channel Tunnel Company; Baron Alphonse de Rothschild, of the Northern of France Railway; Baron Gustave de Rothschild, M. F. Raoul Duval, etc. Considerable time was spent in the heading, which was examined very minutely, especially that portion which has been but recently cut, and great satisfaction was expressed at the general results of the work, particularly with regard to the high average rate of advancement at which the boring is maintained. It is understood that on the completion of the first mile of heading the French Company will enter into a new contract with Col. Beaumont to continue the boring.

Whisky's Work.

From the Cheney Sentinel: "On Wednesday afternoon of last week W. W. Newlin was found in one of the rooms back of a saloon in Walla Walla, lying on the floor in an unconscious condition, and his frothy lips and other indications pointed unmistakably to poison. Physicians were at once summoned and the usual antidotes administered, but there was no indication of resuscitation. Newlin comes of a good family in the East. He came to this coast as Register of the U. S. Land Office at Vancouver, and was an intelligent and educated lawyer, who would have made his mark in the world but for the overmastering habit of indulging in strong drink. A year or so ago he went to Spokane Falls and opened an office. He was a candidate for Probate Judge before our last Republican convention. Last December he went to Walla Walla to give public readings, and has remained there ever since. Lately he has been occupying the position of night clerk in the St. Louis Hotel, and until Tuesday had not touched a drop of whisky for several weeks. On Tuesday night he drank freely, and on Wednesday morning, when, it is supposed, he procured a dose of poison and took it as a relief from the power the drink fiend had secured over him."

A Wonderful Wine Taster.

A correspondent of the Boston Herald recently visited the great wine vaults in London and tells of the old wine-grader's skill at tasting wine. He blindfolds himself and there is poured into a glass four different kinds of sherry. He takes a mouthful on his tongue and at once declares a mixture of four cheap bar-room sherries, two of which have been sweetened with brown sugar and called by the abominable title of brown sherry. He is right, and his next experiment is with port, which he correctly tests on each trial. But when a bottle of Cook's imperial champagne from St. Louis is opened he hesitates and declares it is a new one for him, but it is a good wine, with more brandy in it than it ought to have, and he thinks it is from some northern grown grape. He was entirely nonplussed over some apple whisky; but, when bottle after bottle of champagne of the standard brands was opened, he named every one with great accuracy, giving the year in each case—Pomery, '74, G. H. Mumm's '77, Veuve Cliquot '80, Heidsieck '78, King, and so on through the list without an error. In each case he simply brought a taste to his lips and spat it out again almost directly, and then inhaled a breath from some ammonia flavored water. I am told he has an income of nearly £3,000 a year from this branch of business alone, but that he is so inordinately vain of his faculty that he will neglect everything to show it off, and even buy the wine himself to do it with, if he can secure a crowd of admirers.

Had Suffered Enough.

A gentleman was arraigned before an Arkansas justice on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. He had entered a store pretending to be a customer, but proved to be a thief.

"Your name is Jim Lickmore?" said the justice.

"Yes, sir."

"And you are charged with a crime that merits a long term in the Penitentiary?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you are guilty of the crime?"

"I am."

"And you ask for no mercy?"

"No, sir."

"You have had a great deal of trouble within the last two years?"

"Yes, sir, I have."

"You have often wished that you were dead?"

"I have, please your Honor."

"You wanted to steal money enough to take you away from Arkansas?"

"You are right, Judge."

"If a man stepped up and shot you just as you entered the store, you would have said, 'Thank you, sir?'"

"Yes, sir, I would. But, Judge, how did you find out so much about me?"

"Some time ago," said the Judge, with a solemn air, "I was divorced from my wife. Shotly afterward you married her. The result is conclusive. I discharge you. Here take this $50 bill. You have suffered enough."

Made Them Even.

"Arrested for carrying a pistol, was he?" asked a magistrate of an officer, referring to a gentleman who had just been arraigned. "Let's see the pistol." The weapon was produced and handed to the Judge, who examined it and asked:

"Where did you get it?"

"Bought it at a hardware store."

"What did it cost?"

"Fifteen dollars."

"Fine implement. How'll you swop?" and the Judge drew out a pistol and handed it to the prisoner.

"Take $10 to boot."

"All right. I'll fine you $10. That makes us even."

A little girl was walking on the street, the other day, when she saw a very bow-legged man with a short coat on. "Oh, ma!" she cried, "there's a man with a tunnel under him!"

The Hospital Appointments.

Some people are inclined to doubt the authority of the provincial government to appoint a medical officer to the Royal Columbian Hospital, and there are others who question the "judicion" of the the proceeding. We do not know on what authority the appointment has been made, but it may reasonably be presumed that the government knew what they were doing when they took this step. With respect to the propriety of their making the appointment we can speak without hesitation. The government contribute $4,250 a year towards the maintenance of the institution, while the public contributions are very small indeed. In view of recent developments the government must have felt that there was danger of the intstitution falling into disrepute, and they have not only a right but a duty to see that an establishment in which they have so large an interest is conducted in such a way as will accomplish its mission. The recent enquiry showed clearly that the employment of two medical officers conjointly did not work satisfactorily. Each physician had his patients, who eventually became partizans, and the sympathies of the steward were with one or other of the parties. Such a state of things militated against the interests of the hospital, and could not be but productive of harm. The medical officer is now an officer of the government, and as such he is free from the influence of local parties, and may reasonably be expected to see that the government's interests are protected.

A Wide Difference.

We do not know of any measure before the legislature which has given rise to so many conflicting opinions as the Kootenay bill. From day to day it is discussed in committee, and its friends and opponents seem little nearer the point of agreement than they were at the beginning. It is somewhat remarkable that some men whose opportunities for knowing the country have been the best are yet completely at variance with respect to this bill. Mr. Orr, who professes to be thoroughly acquainted with Kootenay, is a most stubborn opponent of the bill, while Mr. Galbraith, the member for Kootenay, is just as strong in its support. A public meeting was held at Victoria last Saturday night to discuss the scheme, and a resolution was passed disapproving of it. And yet Mr. Beaven, the senior member for Victoria, is one of its chief supporters! It is not remarkable that people should differ somewhat concerning such a measure. The fact is, Kootenay has a large area, and very little is really known by any of them about its actual wealth. It may turn out to be enormously rich or it may not. Those who oppose the bill assume that it is rich: those who support the bill deny that there is any tangible proof of its riches. Again, the effect on trade of the construction of the Columbia-Kootenay railway cannot with any degree of certainty be predicted. The North Pacific Railway comes near the southern boundary of the district, and the Canadian Pacific Railway is expected to pass through or near it further north. What channel trade will find most convenient when these ways have been completed depends upon so many conditions yet unknown that there is room for great diversity of opinion. At the Victoria meeting Mr. Allen asserted that the mines of Kootenay were worth $50,000,000. Others have said that the value of Kootenay mines is an unknown quantity, that no gold or silver has been found about Kootenay Lake, and that it may possibly never be prospected or developed at all unless by some such scheme as the one now proposed. In view of these statements it seems to us the government ought to have the country thoroughly prospected themselves, or give sufficient inducement to some one else to prospect it for them. These regions may be as valuable as Mr. Allen's imagination has painted them, but since the discovery of this country they have remained practically unknown. If the proposed company will accept a charter so framed as to secure the province against imposition, let the charter be granted: if they will not, let the government themselves undertake the development of Kootenay, and let us see what it contains. It is estimated that $60,000 would build the proposed wagon road. The government would find no difficulty in borrowing this sum, and in any event the expenditure would be well placed.

News by Telegraph.

ST. LOUIS, April 2.—Officers of the government steamer Lilly, which arrived at Cairo yesterday from a trip down the Ohio distributing relief to sufferers of the late flood in that region, say $5,000,000 wouldn't cover the loss sustained by the flood between Louisville and Cairo.

WASHINGTON, April 2. — Admiral Ammen, U. S. N., and other Washington incorporators of the Nicaragua Canal Co, say that they have all the money they need, and that without waiting longer for Congress or anybody else they will go right on and build the canal. They say their advices from Panama are to the effect that very little has yet been done on the Panama canal work.

HALIFAX, April 3.—It is reported that Princess Louise is not to leave Bermuda until May, when she will come to Halifax in the flagship Northampton.

BUFFALO, April 3.--A petition presented by a large number of capitalists has been presented to the Council asking a grant to build a tunnel under the Niagara river, to receive 25 per cent. of the profits of the same when completed.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 3. — The Revolutionary party of Russia has issued a proclamation announcing preparations complete to meet the coronation of the Czar, and have every hope of success in fully carrying out their long devised plans. The proclamation contains a warning to all persons they shall, if valuing their personal safety, keep at a distance from the Czar during the ceremony of coronation. The pronunciamento concludes with the words: "We will strike once more for the freedom of Russia." The proclamation is printed in letters of red and bordered with stripes of the same color.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—A train of nine coaches of people left Denver this morning via the Union Pacific for the Pacific coast. They brought 250 tickets, and there were a large number of children. Emigration from Colorado to California, Oregon and Washington and Idaho is beginning to increase very rapidly, and will be immense this spring.

FRANKFORT, April 5.—The Gazette publishes a special from Moscow stating that a large mine has been discovered, connecting with the Kremlin, where the coronation of the czar is to take place. The telegram also states that a request has been wired to St. Petersburg for a hundred sappers to be sent to Moscow at once for the purpose of destroying the mine.

Mr. J. A. R. Homer has taken the agency for the str. Evangel.

After several days of rain the weather has cleared up. Everything is growing rapidly.

The str. Evangel arrived from Seattle yesterday afternoon with passengers and freight.

Judge Haynes is having two dwellings erected on the grounds attached to Inco Cottage.

The str. Reliance returned from Yale on Monday evening with a number of passengers.

Three new cottages on Lorne street are now nearly completed, and two of them are occupied.

Hon. Jos. Trutch was expected to sail from San Francisco for British Columbia last Tuesday.

There are a great many strangers in the city, and every steamer brings additions to the number.

Mr. Fred. Eickhoff is erecting a new store on Front st., immediately adjoining his present premises.

The str. Wm. Irving left for Yale on Monday forenoon, taking the passengers brought up by the Louise.

The str. Enterprise, Capt. Gardiner, arrived from Victoria yesterday afternoon at 5:45 with passengers, mails and freight.

The str. Princess Louise came up from Victoria Monday forenoon, with a large number of passengers and a full freight. She left on Monday night.

Mr. Levi has invented a very simple and ingenious arrangement to protect fish cans from grease and dirt during the process of filling. He has applied for a patent.

The secretary of the Agricultural Association has received a letter from the Provincial Secretary stating that the government would make a grant to the association if the money is not used for horse-racing.

The London Medical Press, in referring to a serious falling off in the revenue from intoxicating drinks, states that since October, 1880, 1,000,000 people in England have put on the blue ribbon, and 564,000 have signed the pledge.

Don't forget the conversazione in aid of the bell tower fund to-morrow evening in the Drill Shed. The ladies who have interested themselves in securing the erection of the tower deserve a liberal support from all patriotic citizens.

Mr. Wm. Harrison has disposed of his book and stationery business at Yale, and came down last Monday on his way to Cobourg, Ont., where his parents reside. The business in Yale has been purchased by Messrs. T. R. Pearson & Co., and will be managed by Mr. A. G. Johnston, who is now in possession.

By special request of the Blue Ribbon Club Col. Hawkins will lecture in the Skating Rink this evening—meeting to commence at half-past seven. The colonel will also address the juvenile temperance meeting in the same place at 4 p.m. Both these meetings will be open to the public and all are cordially invited.

FROM SAN FRANCISCO.—The steamship Victoria arrived here on Sunday morning from San Francisco, via the Sound. She brought about 200 tons of freight for this city, and left yesterday morning for Nanaimo.

THE BURGLARY.—Thomas O'Connor is the name of the man arrested on suspicion of having gone through Mr. Dickinson's safe. He has been remanded until next Saturday. He seems to be a suspicious character. The keys of the safe have been found and identified.

LOCAL BREVITIES.—Mayor Edmonds goes to Victoria this morning.....Water rising in the river.....Enterprise brought 46 passengers yesterday.....Several matters crowded out of this issue.....City subscribers whose papers are not delivered regularly will please report at this office.

A SAD CASE.—A report comes from Victoria to the effect that the dwelling house of Mr. A. R. House in that city was burnt on Sunday morning, and that Mrs. Howse perished in the flames. Mr. Howse has for some time been residing in this city, and he is overwhelmed with grief at the sad intelligence.

A FINE ORGAN.—Among the freight which came up by the Princess Louise on Monday was a fine new organ for the use of the Choral Union. This instrument was imported by Messrs. T. R. Pearson & Co. from the manufacturers in Ontario. We presume it will be used at the society's next concert, on Monday night.

PERSONAL.—Mr. M. Hagan, of the Sentinel, arrived in this city on Monday night by str. Reliance. Mr. Hagan started in at Hope on the railway track and walked nearly all the way to Maple Ridge. The tramp was full of incident as well as instruction, and we suppose a detailed account of it will appear in the Sentinel. Mr. Hagan leaves for home by steamer this morning.

SEEDS Just received, a large stock. 12 assorted Papers for $1.—A. M. HERRING, Druggist, N.W.

SHIPPING RECEIPTS.—The attention of merchants is directed to a notice issued by the C. P. N. Co.; which will be found in another column. What the company aim at is a uniform system of shipping receipt, and in order to secure this they have prepared a form of book which may be had on application at T. R. Pearson & Co.'s.

THE RESOURCES.—The second number of the "Resources of British Columbia" has been issued. This monthly seems to preserve the excellent features which characterized its first issue. The April number contains the portraits of the members of the British Columbia government, and a great deal of valuable information. In its general appearance it is a credit to the province.

POLICE UNIFORM.—It has been suggested that the provincial police should be furnished with a suitable uniform, and we believe the suggestion is a good one. Our police force has a great deal to do among Indians and Chinamen, and nothing impresses these people more than a uniform. They recognize it at once as a mark of authority which very few of them will hesitate to obey. The matter is worthy of the government's serious consideration.

THE YOUNG LADIES' SOCIAL.—We received the other day a long account of the young ladies' social held at Langley on the 22nd March. We are always glad to publish anything of this kind if it reaches the office in a reasonable time, but really this is rather late. Besides, a notice of the social appeared in the COLUMBIAN two days after the social was held which, although brief, must be accepted, at this late date, by our esteemed correspondent, as sufficient.

THE LAST RITES.—On Monday the remains of the late J. W. Howison were conveyed to their resting place in the cemetery. The funeral was a very large one, and included the mayor and surviving members of the corporation (of which Mr. Howison was a member), and the members of the New Westminster Lodge of Oddfellows. Rev. E. Robson read the burial service of the Methodist church, and Mr. R. Thomas read that of the Oddfellows. The casket was enclosed in a tin case, hermetically sealed, as it is the intention of the widow to have it removed at some future time and taken to his native place in Quebec.

WOULDN'T RESPOND.—Dr. McInnes, who had been summoned to attend the magistrates' court last Saturday to give evidence in the Bailey murder case, did not respond when called upon. A constable was sent to fetch him, but the doctor sent back word that he had given all the evidence he considered necessary in the case, and refused to come. As the court was then waiting for his evidence, the magistrates issued a bench warrant for the doctor. He was promptly arrested by an officer of the law and brought into court where he received a severe reprimand from the bench. The The doctor excused himself on the plea that he had no material evidence to give. The bench replied that it was his duty to obey the summons, and the business of the court to determine whether the evidence was material or not.

The Age of Dynamite.

Important Discoveries in England.

Despatches from Great Britain are very alarming and prove conclusively that the fiendish plots of the Fenian organization have been more extensive and perfect than was generally supposed. Last Thursday the police made a raid on a suspected establishment in Birmingham and found a nitro-glycerine manufactery in full blast, and a considerable quantity of explosive material ready for use. The concern had been conducted very secretly, precautions having been taken by ingenious contrivance to carry off and destroy the vapors arising from the manufactory. There were several persons arrested, and important documents found. Quantities of dynamite and other explosive materials have also been found in London. A large number of arrests have been made, and it is believed documents and facts enough have been secured to bring about very important results. A man named Norman, arrested in Fleet street, had in his possession a number of rubber bags containing 150 lbs. of some explosive liquid. It is believed the establishment at Birmingham and those in London were connected with each other. It is believed that there are other similar establishments in various parts of the country, and that all are under direction of O'Donovan Rossa and his Fenian associates in the United States. These discoveries have produced much excitement in the British capital and throughout the whole empire, and the greatest precautions are everywhere being taken to guard against surprise and disaster.

City Council.

Council met on Monday night. Present, His Worship the Mayor, and Councillors Dickinson, Curtis, Ferris, Johnston, and Elliott. The Mayor reported the death of Councillor Howison. On motion the Mayor was requested to convey to the widow of the late Councillor Howison the following letter as an expression of condolence from the Council:

To MRS. J. W. HOWISON: MADAM.—The Mayor and Council of the City of New Westminster desire to express to you their kindest sympathy and deepest condolence in this your hour of great affliction through the loss of your beloved husband and our much-esteemed friend, and to remind you that although gone from us on earth, and lost from our councils here, there yet remains the happy consolation that his life was marked by uprightness and honesty which endeared him to all who knew him and which will engrave his memory on the hearts of his and your many friends. Therefore, with the earnest hope that you may calmly and with fortitude overcome your great bereavement, and look forward to a bright future, we remain, yours sincerely,

H. V. EDMONDS, Mayor,
On behalf of self and Council.

In respect to the memory of the deceased Councillor the Council adjourned until this evening. The Returning Officer was directed to hold an election on Saturday next, to fill the vacancy in St. George's Ward.

Death From Exposure.

SING LEE'S HEARTLESS CONDUCT.

A few days ago a Chinaman named Ah Loon came down from Yale sick. He was suffering continually from internal pains, and some of his limbs had become swelled and stiff. He went to Sing Lee's restaurant, on Front street, and as he had no money to pay for either board or medical attendance, the Chinese boarders at Sing Lee's subscribed enough to provide for his necessary wants. Sing Lee, however, came to the conclusion that Ah Loon was going to die, and he didn't wish to bother himself with a corpse and a funeral. On Friday last he hired an express wagon, put Ah Loon into it, and had him conveyed into the bush about a mile and a half back of the city. There Ah Loon was laid out beside a log, a piece of canvas having been erected over him for a tent. On the evening of Friday, and through the whole night, it was cold, and rain fell almost continually. Ah Loon had scarcely anything to cover him. His feet were bare; he had no fire; and he was left alone all night without food or attention. The facts soon became known, and some of the more humane of the Chinamen sent out on Saturday morning to ascertain how the sick man was progressing. He was found very low. A Chinese doctor was consulted and prescribed a powder; but when it reached Ah Loon he was too far gone to swallow it. He died at noon on Saturday. Sing Lee was arrested on Saturday morning and taken before the police court. After hearing statements from those acquainted with the circumstances the court decided to commit him to gaol until it was seen whether Ah Loon would survive. As soon as the death became known Mr. C. Todd, superintendent of police, held an inquest on the body, at which Dr. Trew gave it as his opinion that the man died from natural causes, accelerated by exposure. The doctor said that no person in delicate health would have survived the exposure which Ah Loon suffered. The jury found that the death of Ah Loon was accelerated by exposure at the hands of Sing Lee, and they found that Sing Lee did felonously and unlawfully kill and slay Ah Loon. Sing Lee will, therefore, be detained in custody until the next assize when he will be called upon to face the consequences of his inhuman act.

The Bailey Murder.

The Three Prisoners Committed.

The Bailey murder case came up again last Saturday, before a bench of magistrates composed of W. D. Ferris, Esq., and Geo. C. Webster, Esq. The three prisoners charged with the murder were in the dock. Mr. McColl appeared for the crown, assisted by the government agent and the superintendent of police; Mr. Bole appeared for the prisoners. The evidence taken covered much ground already gone over at the coroner's inquest and published in these columns; we shall, therefore, give only the new facts brought to light. The witnesses examined on Saturday were Messrs. Ross, Cottor, Ewen, Herring, Hughes, Walker, three Indians, and Dr. McInnes. From the evidence given it appears that Bailey left Pitt River about 9 o'clock on Thursday morning, the 15th ult., for this city, with a lot of fish in his canoe which he intended to sell. Before leaving Mr. McLean, of Pitt River, had asked him to bring up two kegs of beer, and Bailey had a $20 bank note in his pocket. He came to this city, sold his fish; for which Mr. H. Herring paid him $12—eight silver dollars and eight half dollars. He was seen by several persons in town that day, and appears to have left for home some time in the evening. Among others who saw him on the fatal Thursday was an Indian woman named Jennie who saw him walking up front st. in the afternoon in company with Peter and Jim, two of the prisoners. Bailey never reached his home. Mr. Ross, who was fishing that night near the upper end of Douglas Island, stated that about 11 o'clock he heard the report of a gun down the river, but could not say on which side. About an hour and a half afterwards he heard a canoe passing up the river, but could not tell who were in it. An Indian named Jim, who lives in the upper part of the city, testified that about 10 o'clock on Thursday he saw Robertson, one of the prisoners, at his canoe which was on the edge of the river. Robertson wanted to borrow the canoe to go home. Jim refused at first, but afterwards lent him the canoe. He returned it the following Monday. Billy, an Indian who lives at Katsey, found a hat lying near the Pitt River railway bridge about the time of Bailey's disappearance. He took it home and kept it until it was taken away from him by Mr. Ross and Constable Walker. About the same time another Katsey Indian named Johnny found a canoe in Pitt River, between Capt. Pittendrigh's farm and Shannon's logging camp. The canoe was at the water's edge, bottom up, and had the appearance of having drifted to that place. The canoe and hat were afterwards identified as belonging to Bailey. Robertson, Peter and Jim were arrested on suspicion. When Constable Walker arrested Jim near Katsey, he found him fishing. He said he had a warrant for him. Jim gave a sort of laugh, but said nothing. He got into the constable's canoe, and they started down the river. Ross, who accompanied the constable, said "We will have to go to the ranch to get the hat." Jim them said, "Why don't you take the man that's got the hat as well as me?" They went ashore and Ross went up for the hat. When he had gone, Jim said to the constable, "Have any of those half-breeds from above been down?" The constable said, "What half-breeds?" but Jim made no reply. Although he had not been told by the constable why he was arrested, he seemed to understand that it had something to do with Bailey. After the three Indians had been for some time in gaol, Robertson made a confession. It was made in presence of Messrs. J. C. Hughes, C. Todd and Wm. Moresby, in the gaol. We do not know what is contained in that confession, as the authorities refused to have it read in court, and it has not been made public, but Robertson is supposed to have told all about the murder. In consequence of the information contained in that confession, Messrs. Hughes and Moresby, accompanied by the prisoner Robertson and some others, went up to near the mouth of Pitt River and dragged for the body of Bailey, and found it. Mr. Hughes testified that the place where the body was found corresponded with the place indicated by Robertson in his confession as nearly as 99 men out of 100 would describe a place. The body, on examination was found with a bullet hole through the chest, and a wound on the head which the doctor said must have rendered Bailey insensible. The rest has already been published. The magistrates committed the three prisoners to stand their trial at the next assize, which sits on the 2nd May. It is to be hoped the whole mystery of this foul murder may be fully cleared up, and all those connected with it receive their just reward. It is proper to remark that the police and Mr. Hughes deserve much praise for the manner in which they worked up the case.

PROVINCIAL LEGISLATURE.

FIRST SESSION OF THE FOURTH PARLIAMENT.

THURSDAY.

Mr. Orr moved the second reading of the Sumas dyking act amendment, and remarked that he had received many communications in opposition to it.—Mr. T. Davie said he believed it would inflict great injustice on the settlers of Sumas. He said the settlers had been deceived by the old dyke, and now it was proposed to make the dyke good, which could not be done. He now asked the house in the face of the protest of a majority of settlers of the district to amend the act. The late chief commissioner accepted the dyke when it was in an imperfect state. The honorable gentleman then read a protest from the people of the mission against the passage of the bill now before the house. —Mr. Pooley defended the bill and showed that some of the settlers had tried to escape the payment of their just dues to a gentleman who had spent $65,000 on the dyke. The plans were altered by the chief commissioner, and on that fact some of those settlers now seek to escape from an honest liability. The opposers are afraid that the dyke will be made good and they will have to pay the money. The mission people got up the opposition to the scheme last year.—Mr. Helgesen said he thought the interests of the contractors were as worthy of consideration as those of the settlers, and they were not to blame for the flood which occurred last year.—Mr. Armstrong said the contractor had not carried out the conditions of the contract and the work was of poor description. The settlers were willing to pay, but wished first to derive some benefit from the work.—After some further discussion the debate was adjourned.

FRIDAY.

Mr. Orr moved for correspondence relating to the sale for taxes to Jas. Morrison of certain lots in New Westminster district, and that a committee be appointed to enquire into Mr. Morrison's claim. Mr. Orr explained that Mr. Morrison bought these lands apparently in good faith, and got a deed from the government. But the original owners had entered action for recovery of the land and the court decided against Mr. Morrison. He had paid, for land and law costs, about $600.—Motion carried.

Considerable discussion took place on a private bill to extend Yates st., Victoria, and some other matters were disposed of.

The Kootenay bill was taken up, and a clause inserted compelling the company to have the lands surveyed within a certain definite time. Mr. Allen wanted a clause which would prevent Chinese from acquiring an interest or obtaining employment in connection with the scheme. This motion gave rise to a good deal of diversity, and the discussion was finally adjourned after some hon. gentlemen had indulged in a wordy skirmish.

In the evening session the Victoria official map question was discussed, after which the Sumas dyking act was taken up. Several members asked that the time test be extended beyond one year, and several telegrams were read from settlers asking that four years be allowed to test the dyke. No definite decision was reached.

The Kootenay bill was taken up again and the proposal to debar Chinese from any participation in the concern was discussed at considerable length. It was the general opinion that the legislature could not very well prevent the employment of Chinamen.

Enthusiastic Professor of Physics, discussing the organic and inorganic kingdoms: "Now, if I should shut my eyes—so—and drop my head—so—and should not move, you would say I was a clod! But I move, I leap, I run; then what do you call me?" Voice from the rear: "A clod-hopper?" Class is dismissed.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. Our Story.

THE MINISTER'S SON.

CHAPTER XXXII.

TRUTH WINS.

The post was delivered early at Inverallan on Sunday by a private messenger, and included a copy of Chit-chat, which was published on Saturday afternoon. It was Miss Forbes who took it in. Sir Duncan disliked its tone; and his daughter did not care about it; but Aunt Alicia, though she admitted the vulgarity of certain of its articles, found it an excellent gazette of fashionable news, and was not averse to the columns which were headed "This Week's Chat." Under this title were included notices of marriages to be, and marriages which the Chit-chat said were to be; gossip from the clubs; and little paragraphs full of dashes and initials, in which an expectant public was tantalized with mysterious allusions to the next edifying scandal.

In the number delivered on this particular Sunday a heading in large type caught Miss Alicia's eye as she sat in a low, sloping chair, with her feet on a soft footstool, and a table at her elbow, on which lay a scent-bottle, a few books adapted for the day, and her letters. She was not going to church, for she did not feel well, and she intended to read a sermon when the others left, but in the mean time she must just take a glance at her favorite paper. As she read the paragraph with the large letters she sat forward in her chair, and when she had ended she jumped up, every bracelet and chain about her tinkling, and ran to the door, calling her brother.

"What is the matter?" he exclaimed, hurrying toward her from the dining-room, where he was reading his letters.

"My dear Duncan! do come and look at Chit-chat—the most disgraceful paragraph—oh, you should bring an action for libel—it's dreadful, dreadful!" cried she, excitedly.

Sir Duncan strode into the drawing-room and took up the paper. This was what he read there:

"ELOPEMENT AND SINGULAR REVELATIONS.

"Light has at last penetrated the darkness that enveloped Mrs. Jenkins in her flight from Piershill. A hint given by an anonymous writer occasioned a careful search, and an envelope was found among her property bearing the post-mark of Tillybodle. The writing was identified as that of a newly-made officer, whose exploits have attracted some attention; probably he did not expect this last one to be known. He has eloped with Mrs. Jenkins to London, where search is being made for her. The most singular part of the story is that "Z," the anonymous writer, is believed on excellent authority to be a lady, from childhood an intimate friend of both the officer and his family, and well known in the neighborhood of Tillybodle by her position and her personal merits."

"What do you think of your pet paper now, Alicia?" asked her brother.

"It is horrible! What will you do?"

"Do! Nothing. No name or initial is given. I could not have a man up for writing that paragraph; and if I could I would rather submit to a libel than tarnish my name by going into court with such a foe. But," he added, somewhat sternly, "perhaps you will see now that I have grounds for saying that that paper ought never to be seen on a lady's table."

"I'll have nothing more to do with it; I'll stop it at once," said Miss Forbes, quite humbly.

"That we will see about. It will not do to show you are hurt, or they'll put you in next," replied Sir Duncan, grimly. "This will be a fresh blow to the Bennetts, though, if they see it copied into any other paper. Of course they don't subscribe to that thing."

When Hardwicke arrived after church the expression of his face was confident and keen. He talked gayly to the ladies during lunch, passing over, with merely a word or two of sympathy, the topic of Ronald's troubles; but when he accompanied Sir Duncan to the library his demeanor changed.

"I saw that atrocious paper on your table. Some one has sent it to us," he said. "I am confirmed by it in the guess I made yesterday."

"Are you? My dear fellow, what is it?"

"That 'Z' is Badger himself. I know he has dealings with Chit-chat, for I've seen him leaving the office. It isn't likely that Jenkins would have stopped in Stirling to insert that abominable paragraph, even if he knew enough of Bennett's friendships; he'd have missed the train to Edinburgh. Then some one in Stirling did it, or how was it printed on Saturday morning—tell me that?" said Hardwicke, triumphantly.

"Upon my honor, I hardly thought the man could have been so shabby; but I believe you are right. Now, what is to be done?"

A long consultation ensued, the result of which need not be told in detail, since its execution failed.

Sir Duncan, indeed, went to his friend the lawyer on the following day, arriving in Edinburgh at an hour that astonished the office, and made it appear that his business was of a very pressing nature. The lawyer, after due discussion, drove off to Piershill, but was forced to return with the disappointing information that he had found the bird flown. Mr. Jenkins had gone to London on Sunday morning. Nothing, therefore, could be done in that quarter, and Sir Duncan went home to Inverallan, with, however, the express understanding that the affair was to be pushed according to the plan that he and Hardwicke had agreed on, the moment the riding-master should return.

Letters were awaiting Sir Duncan, for he had left long before the post-hour, and among them was one from Ronald, written after receiving his and his parent's epistles. It was but a note that he sent, but it was as manly as it was brief. He acknowledged at once that he had aided Mrs. Jenkins in making her escape, but declined to give any details. "I would answer your questions fully, but for two reasons: first, I am sworn to secrecy, as is obviously necessary; and secondly, if, as is likely, Jenkins endeavors to bring any case against me, I can best serve my friends by leaving them in total ignorance of the matter. This I will say—on my word of honor, I have done nothing that I am ashamed of, or that I would not do again; and I can but ask my best and wisest friends to trust me."

"God bless the boy!" ejaculated Sir Duncan as he read the note. "There, Alicia and Muriel, read that, and tell me if you'd take that fellow's word or —Captain Badger's?"

"Dear, dear," said Miss Forbes, wiping her eyes, "what a good note! You are quite right, dear brother; he is a very worthy young gentleman."

Muriel said nothing; but as she handed back the note to her father he thought he saw a softer expression about her mouth than it had worn for the last two or three days.

To his parents Ronald wrote in much the same strain; and while Mrs. Bennett openly exulted ever his letter, the minister admitted that his fears were considerably lessened.

No one, however, was more indignantly certain that Ronald would vindicate himself than Jamie Paterson, to whose ears the tidings had come on that Monday morning as they did to the whole village. One of the daily papers copied the notice in Chit-chat; and therefore, in a few minutes after the arrival of the post, the place was astir.

Every one had known that something was wrong—old Nancy's face alone betrayed that—but no rumor of the truth had as yet been spread; so that it burst upon the landlords of the two public-houses, the principal grocer and butcher, and the two or three others who indulged in daily papers, like a thunder-clap.

Very soon the owner of the Rob Roy was seen crossing the street, paper in hand, to the grocer's shop; the butcher went over to the draper's; and finally the telegraph-clerk ran into Jamie Paterson's with the news. In a fury of indignation the old man put on his coat and hurried away to read the offending notice in the bar of the Rob Roy, and there and then denied it with all the emphasis of his sturdy lungs.

"It's a coufoonded leo! And gin I kenn't the man that wrote it, I'd gar him feel the weight o' my airm, though I'm auld. My certie, anger wad gie me back what years hae ta'en awa'! I'd yoke a' the lads in the place on him, and pit him in the pond to cool his leein' tongue — that's what I'd dae!" cried he; and there was a murmur of assent and applause, for Ronald was popular in his native place, and no one credited the tale; or at least, it any one doubted, he or she would not have dared to say so.

"Phew!" said Jamie, wiping his forehead as he went back to his work, "that's the maist shamefu' thing I've heard this mony a day. The fule! It's little he kens o' Ronald Bennett, or he wad hae keepit aff that subjec'. He'd no' look at ony woman, though she was the vera queen o' beauty hersel'. Na, na; auld Jamie kens better nor that; he ken whaur the bit lav'rock hings in the lift; and a sair heart the laddie'll hae when he reads yon paper."

While Ronald's affairs were thus the main topic that occupied the thoughts of his friends he himself had passed a sufficiently anxious week. The daily persual of the Scotch paper which he had ordered kept him instructed as to the progress of affairs at Piershill, and had given him sufficient warning of impending discovery even before he had received the sorrowful letters from home, which assured him that Jenkins would soon invade his retreat. All these things did not tend to render him more fit for the examination he was to undergo, but he was quietly determined that no complication of Ellen's or her husband's causing should interfere with his success; and he braced himself for his task, and resolutely banished the one thought which shook him—"What will Muriel say or think?"

Strong in the approbation of his conscience, he had no fear of Mr. Jenkins, and he felt confident of his own power to right himself both at the manse and with Sir Duncan; but when he remembered Muriel's grave face, and the constraint of her manner toward him, his heart sank, and he wished that he had never seen poor Ellen again.

At Sandhurst he had met his former cabin companion, Harris—who had so charitably taken charge of him in his first visit to London, had chosen his tailor for him, and had piloted him to the levee—and after a day or two he resolved on admitting him into his confidence.

Harris had already asked him what ailed him, and had commented on his increased gravity and love of solitude; so that it was easy for him to respond fully to his questions.

"I'm in a confounded mess, and if it wouldn't bore you I'd like to consult you."

"Bore me, my dear fellow! Why should it bore me? Come along and have a smoke; I'm twice as clear-headed when I've a pipe in my mouth."

Over a pipe, therefor, Ronald poured forth his tale, and found that Harris had seen Jenkins.

"A brute he is, too," said he. "Capital fellow at his work—no fault to find with him there; but I'm devilish sorry for his wife."

"So am I," replied Ronald, and continued his story. When it was ended Harris looked at him and knocked the ashes out of his pipe in silence.

"Look here, Bennett: I'm not given to making professions, but you're a good fellow, and if you want anybody to see you through this or anything else, I'm your man."

"Thank you, Harris, I'm awfully obliged to you," said Ronald, "and I wish you'd give me your advice."

EARS FOR THE MILLION!

Foo Choo's Balsam of Shark's Oil

Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.

This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as CARCHARODON RONDELETH. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtue as a restorative of hearing was discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese people. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1.00 per bottle.

Hear What the Deaf Say.

It has performed a miracle in my case.
I have no unearthly noises in my head and hear much better.
I have been greatly benefitted.
My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.

"Its virtues are UNQUESTIONABLE and its CURATIVE CHARACTER ABSOLUTE, AS THE WRITER CAN PERSONALLY TESTIFY, BOTH FROM EXPERIENCE AND OBSERVATION.
