The Last Spike Driven.

OPENING OF THE NORTHERN PACIFIC.

(Special to the Oregonian.)

BETWEEN GARRISON AND GOLD CREEK, NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY, Sept. 8.—It is eight miles from Helena to the point where the steep grade of the Rocky mountains begins, and twelve from there to the mouth of Coulter tunnel. As the tunnel is not completed, Mullan pass is crossed by running on curves a distance of about four miles. The grade is the same as at Bozeman. The sections were safely lifted over the heights, and the descent made to this point, where the ceremony of driving the last spike has just been concluded. The contrast between the rugged heights of the east side and the long, meadow-like slopes of the west side is very striking. The distance from this point to Helena is fifty-five miles. In making the descent of the Mullan pass, the car of the British minister became disabled, and the occupants had to be transferred to another car. Nobody was hurt or inconvenienced. The train arrived at this point a little behind time, but in good shape.

ARRIVAL OF THE PORTLAND TRAIN.

From Portland there came somewhat earlier a splendid train, bearing the prominent citizens of that section to participate in the ceremonies. There were hearty greetings between the American guests of the east and the west, and the occasion was regarded as a remarkable one, and as presaging a prosperous future. All were surprised at what they beheld. Instead of the wilderness of the Rocky mountains, they here beheld a magnificent pavilion, capable of seating more than 1000, over which floated the national colors of the American, German and British nations. In front, reaching to the road bed, was an extensive promenade, skirted by a platform, with comfortable seats. To the right was a band stand. On it were seated the Fifth United States Infantry band, and who were all the way from Fort Keogh. But even stronger than this evidence of civilization were the scores of vehicles and the hundreds of hardy mountaineers, gathered to welcome Henry Villard.

THE CEREMONIES OPENED.

As soon as the last of the guests arrived the ceremonies were opened by President Villard, who divided the attention of the enthusiastic multitude with General Grant, seated on the platform. Mr. Villard, after a word of preface, delivered his address, which was concluded amid tremendous applause. He then introduced the orator of the occasion, Hon. Wm. M. Evarts. The orator was very heartily applauded.

SIR JAMES HANNEN.

Sir James Hannen said the English visitors were filled with wonder and admiration by the sights of this magnificent country and its institutions. Henry Villard was a person about whom their warmest sympathies and gratitude would well cluster. "We have the happiness of seeing what manner of man he is. We have been able to see in him the qualities which he has evinced throughout his life, and we now shall carry back the recollection of having known the real man. It was a happy thought that the representatives of the countries that have contributed population to the American nation should be present on this most extraordinary occasion. It fills me with wonder and awe to see the prosperity which has advanced with such rapid strides, and which has at once reached the highest development of civilization.

THE GERMAN GUESTS.

The German minister, Von Ezendecker, was then presented, and expressed the hearty good wishes of his fellow-countrymen for this enterprise. "We are sorry to have lost Villard, but as he has come to a country which has always been closely allied to my own here he may remain." Dr. Kneiss, of the Berlin university, was then introduced and spoke at length in behalf of the German visitors, and expressed the hope that the Northern Pacific would be the new highway and the main line of all northern colonization of America and Europe. "May it be forever a monument in honor of that noble son of Germany. Henry Villard, you may be sure our mother country is proud of such a sun." Dr. Hoffman, the greatest microscopist of the day, said the construction of the Northern Pacific railroad was a modern miracle, and, unlike miracles, was performed in compliance with the laws of nature and not against them.

GENERAL GRANT.

There were loud cries for General Grant and as the general came forward the air was rent with cheers. He made a few remarks perfectly suited to the occasion and characteristic. He said he was reminded by the speeches to which he had listened of the fact that he had something to do with the great Northern Pacific enterprise. When Governor Stevens, thirty years ago, organized his surveying expedition, he was a lieutenant, acting as quartermaster and commissary on the Columbia, and he issued the supplies for the expedition. Was he not then entitled to have the credit which Mr. Billings had apportioned out to others? It was true that while Mr. Billings contributed of his own money he paid out Uncle Sam's also.

THE LAST SPIKE DRIVEN HOME.

The foreign guests were then given seats on the platform by the railroad, and a photograph was taken of them, Mr. Villard and family, and the most distinguished Americans. After that a horse, that had helped to build the road from its inception, was brought upon the platform. Then there was witnessed a most extraordinary spectacle: Three hundred men, with brawny arms, quickly laid the iron and drove the spikes on the uncompleted track, except the last spike. During the progress of the work, which was witnessed by the foreigners with amazement, the band played and the people shouted. When nearly completed a cannon salute was fired by the detachment of the Fifth Infantry present. The last spike was finally driven home by H. C. Davis, assistant general passenger agent of the road, who drove the first spike on the opening of the road, and this spike was the same one driven by him first. The end was reached as the sun was setting behind the mountains, and the enthusiasm of the people—variously estimated at from 3,000 to 5,000—was indescribable. The heights reverberated the mingled sounds of music, booming cannon and shouts of men. Thus was brought to a happy conclusion a very remarkable event in American history. The trains were then formed and the guests departed, the English and part of the Americans, including Geo. M. Pullman and Vice-President Harris, to the east. The rest went to Portland and Puget Sound.

LEADING DRUGGISTS on this continent testify to the large and constantly increasing sales of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, and report its beneficent effects upon their customers troubled with Liver Complaint, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Impurity of the Blood, and other physical infirmities, and as a female medicine, it has accomplished remarkable cures.

Scientific Miscellany.

Following the example of Paris, the municipality of Algiers has established a chomical laboratory for the analysis of food substances and the detection of adulteration.

The doctors disagree. The now famous fossil footprints found last year at Carson, Nevada, and supposed to have been made by prehistoric human giants, are regarded by Prof. O. C. Marsh as probable tracks of a large sloth. It is stated, however, that Dr. Harkness still insists that the impressions were left by a species of man, and that he finds his theory strengthened by fresh discoveries of tracks even more clearly defined than those first uncovered.

Mons. Faye has shown that the whirlwinds of dust observed by Prejevalsky in Central Asia, like those of Mexico, India and the Saraha, have the same origin and mechanical action as the tornadoes of the United States and all waterspouts. They are all alike spiral movements descending with upright axis and always traveling horizontally in a nearly straight line. The general belief that the dust on land and the water at sea ascend from the surface high into the air is due Mons. Faye tells us, to an optical illusion.

Attention has again been called—this time by Mons. J. Girard—to the supposed changes of level of the earth's surface reported from certain parts of Europe. Villages in the Jura which were hidden from each other no longer than forty years ago have gradually risen in sight, while in a village of Bohemia the inhabitants now see half of a distant church-spire of which only the top was visible thirty years ago. The apparent rising of these places must, it is thought, be a result of the warping of the solid crust of the earth. To detect further changes in the Bohemian locality a line of levels has been run.

Previous to 1870, according to a new work by Prof. Wittrock, the so-called "red-snow" was thought to be the only plant growing on ice and snow. Since that time, however, Nordenskjold and Berggren have discovered several ice and snow algæ in Greenland, one of them, Ancylonema Nordenskjoldii, being very abundant. Still later investigation has proven these plants to be more numerous yet, Dr. Kjellman finding at Spitzbergen not only "red snow," but "green snow"—which contained more than a dozen plant forms. The snow flora now includes thirty seven species, and the ice flora ten. These plants are almost entirely algæ of microscopical size and very low organization, growing sometimes singly and sometimes in colonies. They are generally of bright colors—red, purplish brown, and green being common. Under the dark mass of the plants the ice melts very rapidly, and Nordenskjold even suggests that the very abundant Ancylonema may have greatly hastened the disappearance of the ice deserts which once covered so large a part of Europe and America.

W. J. Guppy, druggist, of Newbury, writes:—"Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry is just the thing for Summer Sickness. I sold out my stock three times last summer. There was a good demand for it." Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is infallible for Dysentery, Colic, Sick Stomach and Bowel Complaint.

If you are broken down in constitution and wasting away by sickness, dissipation, too great nervous taxation, or suffer from any chronic disease, do not abandon hope until you have tried Burdock Blood Bitters. What it is doing daily towards restoring others, it might do for you.

The most miserable mortal in existence is probably the confirmed dyspeptic. Burdock Blood Bitters cure Dyspepsia and all diseases of the Stomach, Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Do not trust our word simply, but address the proprietors for proof.

Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry will never fail you when taken to cure Dysentery, Colic, Sick Stomach, or any form of Summer Complaint. Relief is almost instaneous; a few doses cure when other remedies fail.

The British Columbian.

Saturday Morning, Sept. 13, 1883.

As the time draws near, we hope farmers and others will not lose sight of the approaching agricultural exhibitions — at Chilliwhack on the 4th Oct., and in this city on the 10th, 11th and 12th. The interest manifested in the provincial exhibition in certain quarters is considerable, and promises well for its success. It is expected there will be a large attendance from Victoria and Nanaimo, and the mainland people should take care that they do not neglect the opportunity for showing themselves to advantage. Let every one do what he can, and the exhibition will surely be a complete success.

A gentleman (formerly a British Columbian) who has for some time been residing in San Francisco, writes to say that the fish hatcheries established on the Sacramento seem to have been quite successful. Shad, cat-fish, and some other kinds until lately almost unknown in these regions have become quite plentiful of late years in the bay and the sloughs of the Sacramento. Salmon are also plentiful in the river, whereas a few years ago they could scarcely be found at all. Our correspondent attributes this marked improvement to the hatcheries, and he expresses a hope that the experiment may be tried on the Fraser. We are of opinion that a hatchery ought to be established here and we hope the appropriation made for that purpose will soon be expended.

The Yale Sentinel is afraid the $340,000 dock money, which is to be spent on the mainland, may all be gobbled up by New Westminster. It thinks a fair share should go towards building roads in the interior. We think so too, and our cotemporary may at once dismiss his fears. It is a notorious fact that the district of New Westminster has not for many years received government appropriations at all proportionate to her population or to the amounts expended elsewhere. At the same time we are sure there is no disposition here to ask for more than our fair share of the dock money. The interior is entitled to its full share, and the Sentinel will find the report that "New Westminster is even more selfish than Victoria" to be wholly without foundation. New Westminster never had a selfish reputation: Victoria always had, whether she deserves it or not.

On the first page of this paper will be found an account of the opening of the Northern Pacific railway to Portland. The event is one in which British Columbia is much interested. The Northern Pacific terminus is much nearer us than the terminus of the other transcontinental railways, and by so much does it shorten the distance between us and the east. When regular trains begin to run to Tacoma and Seattle, and regular steam service has been established between these places and New Westminster, passengers and mails should go from here to Toronto in 7 days. Until the completion of the Canadian Pacific railway the Northern Pacific will be the most important railway for British Columbia. It cannot be predicted now with much exactness where the course of trade will run, but if business men are wise they will see that every possible encouragement is given to the establishment of a direct trade.

Rat Portage still furnishes material for much newspaper comment in the east. As a rule Reform papers support the claims of Ontario and defend her action, while the Conservative press takes an opposite view. This seems to indicate that the boundary matter, like almost every other great public question in Canada, is to be fought out as a political issue. It is worthy of notice that the press of Manitoba is by no means unanimous in *support of the Manitoba govern*ment's intervention. Indeed, the more influential newspapers of Winnipeg declare that the disputed territory does not in any case belong to Manitoba, and that the government ought to keep itself clear of the dispute. Manitoba is a poor province, politically. Its revenues are extremely small, and its treasury is nearly always empty. Ontario, on the contrary, is the most wealthy province in the Dominion, and is every year accumulating large surplusses, although she has no direct tax. As the revenues of Kewatin would not meet the expense of its government it is manifestly unwise for Manitoba to undertake the responsibility. But if the property falls to Ontario, she will get the timber, which is very valuable. If Manitoba takes possession, the timber will fall to the Dominion government. At present there is a double system of government, and the final result is not easy to predict.

At Last.

We have much pleasure in announcing that this city is to have a public pleasure ground. The government have consented to let the chaingang go to work on St. George's square as soon as Market square has been completed. In the first place Mary street will be opened out full width and graded. Then St. George's square is to be stumped and graded, and we suppose it will also be fenced. We are sure all citizens will receive this announcement with great satisfaction, and that the generous offer of the government will be duly appreciated. The want of a public pleasure ground in this city has been seriously felt for over 20 years, and there has been no determination manifested during that time by the local authorities to supply the want. It will be necessary for the city to finish the work performed by the chaingang. After having been stumped and levelled, the square will need to be fenced and ornamented. Shade trees should be planted either this fall or next spring. Trees do not grow up in a day, and the square will never become a popular summer resort until it has been provided with foliage and shade. We suppose a portion of the square will be laid out for baseball and cricket grounds, and inducements will then be held out to young men to engage in these manly sports which develop health and muscle. It appears to us a mistake to employ the chaingang upon works remote from the city, as has frequently been done. In this country the weather is sometimes very uncertain, and the men, after being marched out to their work two or three miles, have to be marched back again to avoid the risk of a wetting. Where the work lies near the prison they may often be taken out for several hours a day even during the rainy season. By this means a large amount of work may be had out of the chaingang which otherwise would not be available. We think the council should also take steps to dispose of some of the other squares. Government garden is not suitable for a public pleasure ground, and it would be valuable for other purposes. Let the city council take proceedings which will enable them to divide this reserve, and some others, up into lots and sell them. While they remain in their present condition they produce no revenue and are useless for any purpose. But they ought to bring good prices, and in the hands of private persons they would at once become subject to taxation and bring a considerable revenue into the city treasury. It seems to be doubted by some people whether we have power to sell these reserves. If we have not, let us get it by an act of the legislature, or otherwise. The difficulties in the way are not likely to disappear by the lapse of time, and it is better to face them now and make a profit out of the transfer than to hold useless property from which we shall never derive any revenue whatever. We hope some enterprising member of the city council will give this matter his earnest consideration.

METHODIST CHURCH—Rev. E. Robson, pastor. Service to-morrow at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday School and Bible Class at 2:30. Subject of evening discourse "Salvation outside the visible Church." Seats free; strangers cordially invited.

RAILWAY PROGRESS.—The track is now laid from Port Moody to the Coquitlam, about 4½ miles, and the timber for Coquitlam bridge is being carried over as rapidly as possible. It will be six or eight weeks before the bridge can be finished. The Pitt River bridge is nearly finished, and will be ready to receive the locomotive in about 10 days. The steam shovel continues at work filling in Katsey meadows.

SHIPPING ITEMS.—Strs. Yosemite and Irving left for Victoria and Yale Wednesday morning. Str. Slope arrived from Victoria Wednesday night and proceeded to Yale. Str. Otter came from Howe Sound on Thursday and left for Victoria yesterday afternoon. Str. Slope arrived from Yale at 12:30 yesterday and went to Victoria. Str. Yosemite arrived from Victoria at 4:30 yesterday afternoon, and str. Irving arrived at 6:40 from Yale.

BLUE RIBBON.—The Blue Ribbon meeting on Wednesday night was well attended and very interesting. The programme consisted of a song by Miss Mildred Major, two songs by Miss Ada Sweet, a trio by Mrs. Major, Mr. Dr. Beck and Mr. Pearson, a chorus by some of the Blue Ribbon boys, readings by Mrs. E. Johnston and Mr. Price, and a recitation by Mr. Lewis. The refreshment tables were patronized. Five new names were added to the role.

JUDICIAL PARTY.—Mr. A. J. McColl took a party out to Port Moody on Thursday consisting of Judge Gray, Mr. W. N. Bole and Mr. J. C. Hughes. After "doing" the terminus, Judge Gray and Mr. Hughes went out the track to the Coquitlam river, on a hand car kindly placed at their disposal by Mr. Hill. The judge was delighted with the trip. The party returned to the city at 6 o'clock and Judge Gray entertained the other gentlemen at dinner at the Colonial Hotel.

INQUEST.—Yesterday afternoon Dr. McLood made affidavit that he believed the late Mrs. Mitchell came to her death through malpractice. In consequence of this affidavit Coroner Trew held an inquest on the body. After the jury had been sworn in a post mortem examination was ordered, and the inquest adjourned till 10 o'clock next Monday. The coroner appointed Dr. Bently and the jury nominated Dr. Thos. R. McInnes to make the post mortem. Dr. Masters, of Granville, is the physician who attended Mrs. Mitchell.

DOMINION LAND OFFICE.—The Dominion government have appointed an immigration agent at Victoria. This is quite proper if it is intended to have an agent on the mainland as well. If there is to be only one agent, however, he should reside at this city. The Dominion government own no lands on Vancouver Island, and it certainly seems absurd for the immigration agent to be located nearly 100 miles away from the lands he represents. The land office will undoubtedly be in this city. It would never do to have that on the island; and it seems to us the land office and immigration office should be together, if these departments are to be administered with economy and efficiency.

W. C. T. U.—A meeting was held in this city yesterday afternoon to organize a branch of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Mrs. McNaughten occupied the chair, and Miss White acted as secretary. After the objects of the association had been explained the constitution was adopted and the following ladies were elected officers: Mrs. Jas. Cunningham, president; Mrs. Senator McInnes, Mrs. D. Robson and Miss E. Williams, vice-presidents; Miss White, recording secretary; Miss Nellie Jamieson, corresponding secretary; Miss McDougall, superintendent of literature; Mrs. E. Robson, supt. of the press; Mrs. C. McNaughten, treasurer. Quite a number of members were enrolled, and a committee was appointed to present a protest against the granting of any more licenses.

ENLARGING.—A few days ago we mentioned that an addition was being built to the Dominion Sawmill Co.'s wharf. We learn that arrangements have been made to erect a factory on the west side of the mill. The building will be 35x120 feet, 2 stories high, and it will be fitted up for planing and the manufacture of sash, doors, etc. The machinery has already been ordered. A new shingle machine has just been put into the mill and is nearly ready for operation. It has capacity for 20,000 shingles per day. We are glad to see these extensive additions and improvements going on. There is nothing more certain to benefit this city than the establishment of manufactories. The Dominion Sawmill and the Royal City Planing Mills give permanent employment to a very large number of men and put a great deal of money in circulation in this district.

COUNTY COURT.—Court opened last Wednesday morning, Mr. Justice Gray presiding. There were 16 cases, but none were defended except the case of McInnes v. King. This was a case in which Dr. L. R. McInnes sought to recover $20 from Mr. King for professional services Mr. Bole appeared for the plf. and Mr. McColl for the dft. The claim was resisted on the ground that the services were worthless. A good deal of evidence was given which caused much merriment in court. The defendant stated that Dr. McInnes had given him a dose which would have proved fatal if Dr. Sivewright had not administered an emetic. Dr. McInnes said the dose he gave was perfectly harmless. The dft. also swore that the doctor ordered a considerable quantity of brandy for him and drank a great deal of it himself. The case went to a special jury which gave a verdict for plf. After county court there was a short session of the supreme court, but no business of public interest was done. Mr. McColl obtained letters of administration for Mr. Jenns, deputy registrar, for the estate of the late Mr. Betts. The court adjourned abut 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Off the Track.

ENGINEER KILLED AT PORT HAMMOND.

A serious railway accident occurred near Port Hammond yesterday morning which resulted in the death of Oliver Heath, engineer in charge of the locomotive. The locomotive was backing up, drawing a train after it. When passing over a small bridge near Port Hammond the tender, which was ahead, went off the track, taking the engine with it. The fireman jumped and called to Heath that she was off the track and he had better jump. It is not known whether Heath tried to jump or not, but he is supposed to have been caught between the engine and tender as they fell over the bridge. He was found badly crushed, and died in 55 minutes. He was conscious to the last, and asked the fireman to write to his family and tell them he had been killed. He came from Suffolk, England, and it is said his wife and family are probably on their way to join him in this country. Heath was about 50 years of age, and is described as a steady and industrious man. The remains were brought to this city yesterday for interment. The locomotive and tender are said to have been badly damaged. Only one car left the track. The cause of the accident is not known.

Job printing of all kinds neatly done at the COLUMBIAN office. Prices will be found lower than at any other office in the province.—Adv.

Opium Dens.

BREAK ON THE MAPLE RIDGE CHINAMEN.

On Thursday morning Constable Sharpe and dective Paine, brought 4 Maple Ridge Chinamen up before W. D. Ferris, Esq., J. P. Che Guy was charged with selling Chinamen brandy and opium, and pleaded not guilty. Mr. Thos. Paine, swore that he bought a bottle of brandy from prisoner on the 11th, and paid 6 bits for it. Frank Sinclair and Frank Reid were with him at the time, and corroborated his evidence. They also bought some opium for 2 bits. Guy denied the whole business, and said he had a witness, but the witness was not here. He was fined $100 for the brandy and $100 for the opium, together with the license fee which was stated to be $350. In default, 6mos in gaol. Ah Fum, Ah Gon and Ah Gum were charged, on the same evidence, with having sold opium at Port Haney. They admitted the charge and were fined $50, each and the amount of license, $250, making in all $300 each, or 3mos. in gaol. The cases occupied about an hour, and the aggregate fines amounted to the handsome sume of $1450. Warrants were issued for seizure of the chattles of the prisoners. We are informed that this illicit opium and brandy traffic is carried on largely not only along the line of railway but in this city.

Railway Progress Above.

While we hear of the rapid progress of the railway line along the lower contract, between Emory and Port Moody, and the opinion expressed that the "iron horse" that toots at Port Moody Christmas morning will do the same thing at Yale in the evening; we also learn that work is proceeding favorably between this place and Lytton. The Salmon river bridge, 35 miles above Yale, was completed last week, and Friday the rails were laid across it, so that now the train goes 7 miles past Salmon river. The bridge is one of the principal ones upon the contract: one span 200 feet, and two of 83 feet each; the approaches upon either end are 20 feet; the height is 125 feet, and we learn from Mr. Wm. Jameson, the builder of this difficult structure, that it contains 240,000 feet of lumber, board measurement. The track is now laid nearly up to Mr. H. F. Keefer's contract, and he has a force of men pushing forward the job in hand—expecting soon to pass along word, "Come on with your rails." The track will be laid before long as far as the 50 mile tunnel, which is now in competent hands and will be finished in a workmanlike manner. There will, however, remain a good deal of sloping and balasting; but as the steam shovel neither tires easy nor goes on a "spree," and is, withal, an expert at digging into the sides of mountains and scattering broadcast along the track whatever is necessary for a "finished job," we suppose it will soon be announced that the 50 miles from Yale up is ready for inspection.—Sentinel.

From Spallumcheen.

A correspondent writing from Spallumcheen reports land-seekers arriving, and it is believed a large population will soon be found in that district. It is understood the government purpose laying out "Lambley's Landing," near the head of Shuswap Lake, as a town plot, and as soon as a proper survey is made lots will be offered for sale. There cannot be a doubt respecting the rapid growth of the place named. The extensive district is becoming fully settled, and a shipping point is required. The steamers can land their passengers and freight, and receive the produce to go to market. It is believed that the greater part of the best land in Spallumcheen will soon be taken up; and Okanagan, also, is attracting settlers. It only requires an earnest movement toward constructing the proposed canal to set Okanagan, especially, a "booming." No doubt next season will be one of prosperity for the whole inland country. The Eagle Pass wagon road work is doing its part and the going ahead with the Canal would be hailed by the people everywhere with joy. This question should be kept prominently to the front. Our representatives should renew their efforts to induce the local government to urge the Dominion authorities to take the necessary steps to build the canal and thus benefit the whole province.—Sentinel.

Two Chinamen, Ah Yuen and Ah Chuh, were burned to death in their shanty near the iron bridge tunnel last week. Mr. Dawdney went up and held an inquest, but nobody could be found who could explain the cause of the fire.—Four Indians broke into Mr. McIntyre's store, Lytton, on the 6th inst. and stole goods to the value of $110, two bottles of whisky, and $10 cash. They were arrested, pleaded guilty, and committed for trial.—The funeral of the late Alexander Tingley was largely attended last Friday. The remains were placed in a metallic coffin (with the intention of removing them to the home of his parents, East, hereafter), and an outside shell provided, which presented a neat floral offering, cross and wreaths. The Rev. Mr. Hall, of Sumas, officiated at the house and grave, and Sunday morning preached an eloquent and feeling sermon for the occasion to a highly respectable congregation. He referred to the examplary character of the deceased and had good reason to believe he had gone to his reward, where cares and trouble cease.

(By Telegraph to the Columbian.)

YALE, Sept. 14.—Yesterday at noon, at the gravel pit near camp 23, where the steam shovel is at work, the bank fell in and instantly crushed to death a young man named Jno. Haley, lately from Winnipeg. The remains were brought to town and will be buried to-day.

Mr. Henry Marshall, Reeve of Dunn, writes: "Some time ago I got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery from Mr. Harrison, and I consider it the very best medicine extant for Dyspepsia." This medicine is making marvellous cures in Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, etc., in purifying the blood and restoring manhood to full vigor.

Jabesh Snow, Cunning Cove, N. S., writes: "I was completely prostrated with the asthma, but hearing of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, I procured a bottle, and it done me so much good that I got another, and before it was used, I was well. My son was cured of a bad cold by the use of half a bottle. It goes like wild-fire, and makes cures wherever it is used."

OKANAGON, Sept. 7.—Bishop and Mrs. Sillitoe reached here on the 30th ult. on their return from Osoyoos. The following afternoon the Bishop visited the public school, and complimented the pupils on their training and intelligence above the average. In the evening he held service in the school room which was well attended, and the offertory in aid of the mission fund bespoke the liberality of those present. The Church service, at all times impressive, was rendered more absorbing by the christening of a white infant, which occurrence here calls to mind the adage respecting angels' visits.—If the purchase of unsurveyed Gov. lands bespeaks the prosperity of the country, our valley has reason to congratulate itself. Mr. T. Wood, of Winfield, heads the list with over 2300 acres, and Postill Bros., Lequinne, and Greenhow have also bought large ranges; many others have invested in smaller amounts for ranches, and applications are continually pouring in. Mr. Beddoe, an Englishman, lately bought a timber limit of very superior white pine, on the head waters of the Spallumcheen river. To clear the river of jam piles to Belvedere Landing, where he proposes erecting extensive mills, he estimates at $30,000.—Kootenay seems to attract the attention of many throughout the province; for some weeks past from one to three parties have gone through en route to that El dorado of British Columbia.—Harvesting is over and threshing has commenced. No longer is heard the loud voice and cracking whip of the horse-power driver, but in their stead the shrill whistle of Messrs. Tronson & Brewer's engine announces the enterprise of our ranchers. When threshing is finished they will attach a portable saw-mill and cut lumber.—An item lately appeared in the COLUMBIAN boasting of the length of grass grown in the lower country. Here a stalk of native rye grass, cut some inches above the sod, measured 10 ft. 11 ins. This is no swamp production but grows on dry ground, its average length is about 7 ft.—No rain, not even to settle the dust, has yet fallen. The weather is most delightful; but the presence of smoke which shrouds the mountains detracts from the beauty of our grand landscapes.

From Dog Creek.

[Correspondence of the Sentinel.]

DOG CREEK, Aug., 19.—There has been an extensive forest fire around this vicinity, as well as in the distant neighborhood. It originated from some cowboys camp which caught fire and burned all their clothing, blankets, cooking utensils, etc. A neighbor was obliged to fight the fire-fiend for two days and a night in order to save his location. It got, however, headway enough to spread to a wheat field, but the golden grain was in its youth, so the hungry fire did no great harm. A settler on the Chilcoatin river, known as Sam Withrow, had some of his cattle burned to death. There is still sixty head of his cattle and a number of hogs missing, and he has grave doubts as to their being alive. I learn that the fire is raging all througout the country, and at times the atmosphere is so densely filled with smoke that it is impossible to see half a mile distant. The Lillooet Indians have discovered a claim paying 12½ cts to the pan, near the old site of Parsonville, which, doubtless, is familiar to a majority of your readers; it is situated opposite Lillooet and was the leading town in the golden days of '58. No doubt Parsonville will bloom again—with green leaves and roses. The claim is located about a half a mile from the river, and the Indians are obliged to pack the dirt on ponnies to wash it. There are three Chinamen mining opposite Canoe Creek, and averaging from $4 to $5 per day to the hand; the pay-dirt is fifteen feet below the surface. Eugene English is supposed to have been drowned while attempting to swim the Chilcoating river on horseback. There have been rumors floating about that his horse was found in the vicinity of Big Bar with a bullet-hole through its head, and that the missing man's body was seen floating down the river. Time may tell the cause of his mysterious disappearance. He was a good and energetic young man and highly respected by all who knew him. He was from Oregon, and about 28 years of age. His brother has the heart-felt sympathy of the people throughout this community. An Indian tried to comit suicide, here, by shooting himself in the head; whisky was the cause of it; there is still some doubt as to his recovery.

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24—Lord Chief Justice Coleridge, of England, arrived here by the steamship Celtic this afternoon. He was received by a committee of the New York State Bar Association, by whose invitation his visit to America is made. This association has arranged to pay all the expenses of the distinguished jurist from the time he left his home until he returns to it. After a rest of a day or two in this city Lord Coleridge will make an extended tour, probably going as far west as the Mississippi, and concluding the trip by a visit to Canada. Banquets will be given him by judges and members of the Bar in the Provinces of Quebec, Ontario, and New Brunswick. Offers of similar honours have been made by the lawyers and judiciary of Rochester, Buffalo, and Philadelphia. Governor Butler, of Massachusetts, has written a letter inviting Lord Coleridge to be the guest of the Commonwealth of Boston for a few days. On arrival here Lord Coleridge's baggage was passed without examination, and orders have been issued to pass the baggage unexamined if he should go to Canada and recross the border. The formal reception of Lord Coleridge will take place at the Academy of Music on October 11. Chief Judge Roger, of the Court of Appeals, will deliver an address of welcome on behalf of the New York State Bar Association, and Lord Coleridge will respond with the principal discourse he will make while in America. Addresses are to be delivered by the most prominent lawyers in the State, and the reception will end with a grand ball.

OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—The Governor-General, Princess Louise, Prince George, and Earl Carnarvon arrived this afternoon, and were received by the mayor and a few prominent citizens, it being understood that the party desired to be quietly received. The party were driven to the Redan rifle range, where they were entertained at luncheon, at which several cabinet members were present.

TORONTO, Sept. 8. — Hanlan has cabled to England that he will row Laycock, the Australian, on the Thames course, for $500 a side. Hanlan gives an exhibition at the Cincinnati regetta, and will then go to St. Louis and give an exhibition.

HALIFAX, Sept. 8.—Wallace Ross having accepted the challenge of Albert Hamon, the latter's backer has arranged at once for a contest.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 8.—Reports from all parts of Russia state that the cattle plague continues with unabated fury. Over 1,000,000 cattle have fallen victims to the plague in the past four years in European Russia alone.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—Standard's Hongkong special: The absence of the British fleet from Chinese waters excites the deepest indignation among English residents there and at all other Chinese ports, as the relations between Europeans and the natives throughout China have altogether changed since the opening of the French policy of aggression in Tonquin. Recent reports of reverses to French arms have naturally damaged the prestige of all foreigners in China. The News prints an interview with Marquis Tseng in Paris. The marquis declared that the movements of Chinese troops have been misrepresented, and that only necessary precautions have been taken to secure the frontier. Many Chinese, he said, had joined the black flag, but China had no soldiers with the latter. China was unable to renounce her suzerainty over Annam, but did not wish to make it more pronounced than hitherto. The marquis was unable to say whether China would recognize the Hue treaty, as he was ignorant of the terms thereto, and of the persons who signed it.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Advices from Coando, West Africa, dated August 15th, state that Henry A. Stanley, after penetrating far into the interior, has returned to Stanley Pool. It is believed Stanley intends to traverse the country covered in his former journey along the coast.

KHARTOUM, Sept. 9.—Hicks Pasha, with 5000 troups, started from this place to-day, along the left bank of the White Nile, on a campaign against the "false prophet." The latter is reported resolute and decisive fighting is expected at the end of the month. The rebels have crossed the road from Berlee to Suakim.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 9.—It is officially announced that the passage of the Strait of Sunda is now clear, the only physical change being between Keiakotoo and Sebockae. The lighthouse at Vlakepock will be relighted within a week. Advices from Telekbelong, Sumatra, say the Dutch residents' houses, fortress and prison are still standing, but everything else was destroyed by the eruption. No further details have been received from the coast districts, where the destruction appears to have been general. Relief has been sent to several points.

PARIS, Sept. 12.—The National says that should negotiation between France and China not take a favorable turn, the French cabinet will call an extraordinary session of the chamber of deputies. It is understood that Challemel Lacour foreign minister, is in favor of according large concessions to China in the interest of peace. The minister of marine, however, conceives it a matter of duty and honor to resist the encroachment of China in Tonquin.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The spread of the cattle disease in every portion of England causes the greatest uneasiness. In some sections only American beef is now obtainable. Reports from Scotland state that the disease has not yet appeared there.

Slap The Boy.

On a railroad train, just behind a plainly dressed motherly looking woman, accompanied by a noisy boy, sat two fashionably dressed ladies. The boy was given to asking all kinds of questions, and occasionally he would whine like a cub bear and twist himself around and fret.

"If I had hold of him for a minute I'd blister him till he couldn't stand up," said one of the ladies.

"Here, then," replied the motherly old lady, "you may take hold of him, if you want to slap, slap him. I haven't the hart to do it.

"Excuse me," faltered the annoyed lady. "I did not think you could hear my remarks."

"Oh, no harm done, for I know that he is enough to annoy anyone, and it may seem strange to you that I do not slap him but I can't. Once I had a little boy that I slaped. Every time he would ask foolish questions or whine, I'd slap him. Every body said that I was a model mother, and I was so flattered by these remarks that I was even more strict than ever with him. One night, just after I had put him to bed, company came, and while we were talking the little fellow awoke and began to cry. I told him to hush, and when I found that he did not intend to obey me I went to the bed and spanked him. 'That's what I call discipline,' one of the company remarked, 'and I assure you that in after years you will not forget the strict measures which you have adopted.'

"The next morning my boy was too sick to get up and in a few days in bed. At night I sent for a physician, but before morning he was dead. I don't think I was ever so miserable a woman in the world. I took his little boots, the boots where a few days before I had whiped him for getting muddy, and I put them in my bureau. I could not bear to live in the same house where both my husband and little boy had died, and I moved away. One evening while walking along a lonely street I saw a little boy—a very small boy—standing among tall weeds. I asked him where he lived and he plucked a blossom and held it out to me. I asked him where was his mother and father, and with curious intelligence he replied that some big men took them away in boxes. I knew then that he was a waif, and I took him home with me. In the night he cried, and I got up and sat by the fire with him and rocked him. He was very delicate, but he was a light that shone on my withered soul. This is the child, and he's wearing the little boots that I put in the bureau. You may slay him, but I can't,"—Arkansas Traveler.

In a recent lecture before the Royal Institution, of London, Sir William Thomson presented four lines of argument by which physicists have been enabled to estimate the size of molecules—the invisible particles which are supposed to constitute all matter. Stated roughly, it is shown by this reasoning—with a high degree of probability—that, in ordinary liquids, transparent solids or seemingly opaque solids, average distance between the centres of contiguous molecules is less than one two-millionth of an inch and greater than one four-hundred-millionth part of an inch. If a globe of water or glass six and one-third inches in diameter were magnified to the size of the earth, the size of each constituent molecule being increased in the same proportion, then the magnified mass would be more coarse-grained than a heap of small shot, but probably less coarse-grained than a heap of six-and-a-third inch globes.

Herr Wieler, experimenting at Tubinger, has discovered that the growth of plants is more rapid under diminished atmospheric pressure—all other external conditions being the same—than at normal pressure. On the other hand, increasing the pressure lessens the rate of growth, the minimum being reached at two or two and one-half atmospheres.

Our Story.

NELLIE'S MEMORIES.

High noon in the grand old library. All the morning I have been sitting in the bay-window that looks over the park, writing home letters and endeavoring to atone for long lapses of neglect by eloquent descriptions of the beauty by which I am surrounded. Every now and then I lay down my pen and lean back among the cushions, lulled by the slumbrous sense of stillness pervading the whole place; or gazing idly out, trace the leafy shadows lying athwart the warm patches of light, or listen to the soft swaying and soughing of the trees just ruffled by a passing breeze.

Herwald has come in half an hour ago to sit opposite me and write business letters, leaving Dudley to knock the balls about in the adjoining billiard-room by himself, of which occupation he is apparently weary, as he has just entered noiselessly, and is scanning the book-shelves previous to making his selection. Herwald's eyes have a misty far away look, as he sits resting his head against the carved back of his chair, and toying idly with his pen, and I recognize the drooping curve of the mouth as certain indication of perplexity or care.

Yes, it is the same old face, there is nothing changed or new about it, save the somewhat grand carriage of the head, and perhaps a little willful curl of the upper lip; and looking at it now, old memories surge upon me; and distinct among them all, that spring morning in the room even now called Herwald's, when we were all making sorrowful preparations for the departure of the boy who was as one of us. I could see him sitting in the old window-seat following my mother with wistful eyes, as she folded up his things with her own dainty hands, and laid them in his trunk: never offering to help her in his strange absent mood; and how Louie and I at the last could not buckle the straps of his portmanteau for our tears, and how the fingers that came to our aid were cold and trembling, too.

I remembered also the impatient look of the proud father, when the good-byes were being said in the hall over and over again; but I think even he was touched, when Herwald threw his arms round my mother, saying, "Good-bye, mother, good-bye; I have never known another;" and it was Dudley, Dudley quiet and thoughtful even in those days, that led him so gently away, saying, "Your father waits, dear Herwald; you know you are to come to us again; don't fret, man; never fear, we'll see you back soon."

But he did not, and perhaps it was some dim presentiment of this long seven years' parting that filled the lad's eyes with tears and choked his voice. At this moment I became aware that my dreamy observation of him was being repaid with full interest.

"Well, Nellie, 'do my simple features content you?' as Shakespeare has it, or is my face as a sheet of hieroglyphics to be carefully unriddled by bent brows and mysterious eyes?"

"I beg your pardon," I said laughingly, "I did not mean to stare, but your look recalled old scenes to me; you are marvelously little changed."

"Just as I was thinking the contrary of you."

"Of me?" I exclaimed, turning scarlet; "you surely have not been analyzing me all this time, when I imagined you lost in the mazes of business?"

"My analysis, though thorough, was brief; will that content you? You know physiognomy was always my weakness; and I have an odd trick even now of studying my neighbor's face as index to his character; and don't think me conceited, I have never found myself wrong; if ever a man has a pet weakness or hobby, I am sure to find it out in the first half-hour."

"You are punishing me sadly for my inconsiderate stare."

"Nonsense, Nellie, your eyes were looking through, not at me; besides, these liberties are accorded to old friends."

"But, Herwald, how am I changed?"

"I thought you were not at the first minute of meeting, but I see you are."

"Well, go on, don't be mysterious."

"Well, you've changed your hair for one thing; you used to have it in a flood of curls just tied in a blue ribbon, and not that mass of glossy plaits."

"True, I forgot that, but I have long worn it so."

"Then I miss the old placidity of expression, and in its place I read a certain wistfulness and unrest. I never thought to see it on your face, Nellie; and, lastly, you have that look which mothers have, the anxious loving expression of one who has many cares and many responsibilities: nay, I could have summed up the whole in one brief sentence—I left the girl, I find the woman. Have I spoken too plainly?" for his earnestness had made the tears spring to my eyes.

"No, but I never guessed you had such penetration; how could you see all this?"

"He is a perfect Argus," muttered a distant voice.

"Hallos, are you there, old Seneca, listening to my rhodomontades? I thought Nellie and myself sole tenants of the library."

"I was tired of making fine strokes for only myself to admire, Don Quixote."

"Oh dear, oh dear, the old name! how strangely it sounds. Well, as you are here, come and see if this letter will settle my business."

"You still write with your left hand, old fellow," was Dudley's remark as he seated himself comfortably on the arm of Herwald's chair.

"It looks like it, I own; oh, how my poor father used to abuse what he called my excessively ungentlemanly hand."

"The whole style of the epistle seems abusive; what's it all about?"

"Oh, didn't I tell you?" laughed Herwald; "I've spoiled the point. Why, it is a certain bullying tenant of ours, who was especially odious to my father; times out of number he tried to eject him, and never got hold of a proper handle for the purpose. But now the lease is up, and the fellow has been whining and cringing to me to have it renewed! a civil no he won't take; do you think this will do?"

"Well, rather; it is hot and strong enough in all conscience."

"All right, give it here and let me seal it up. There."

"Hallos, Quixote, what is this scented billet-doux? it looks awfully suspicious; I bet you anything it is from the unmentionable she."

"Don't chaff, there's a good fellow, I want to write the direction properly;" but Dudley was in one of his provoking moods.

"It is no good looking so demure and shame-faced, Herwald; it is not likely you have lived so long in the land of the Lancashire witches without having some penchant or other."

"I assure you," answered Herwald seriously, and a little sadly, "there is no 'unmentionable she' in the case for me, or ever will be, that I know of. True, the Lancashire witches are handsome and sprightly enough; but I am fastidious—fastidious and I think a little cold. I shall shock you dreadfully; I don't much care for girls."

"Come, Nellie," cried Dudley, rising with a serio-comic air, "let us leave this house, this abode of a monster, a Frankenstein; you hear, he does not care for you."

"I did not say women, I said girls. Confound your chaff, Dudley."

"Oh dear, oh dear," murmured Dudley exhaustedly, "how these blase men of the world talk, with their women and their girls."

"I tell you, girls, the ordinary run of them, are slow, vapid, mere frivolous butterflies, pretty enough of course, but not what I want to find in a woman. It is an odd idea," he continued with a bashful glow on his face, "but I sometimes wonder if Hurst Hall will ever have a mistress. Of course it will be very lonely living here all by myself, but I don't think I shall ever find exactly what I want."

"Hear the young autocrat. What are the graces of mind and body your Quixotic lordship requires, then?"

"Oh, something mignonne, petite, spirituelle. Je ne sais quoi—oh, I can't tell. Sometimes the fair lady of my fancy is one thing one day, and one thing another, and never two days alike."

"Is she ever drawn from life, may I ask?" A wicked little smile lurked in the corner of Herwald's mouth.

"You are fishing in too shallow water, Dudley." Then with a sudden bright change, "Yes, I can tell you, I can show you the exact portrait of the fair ideal. I lighted on the very thing one day in a volume of anonymous poems, and it seized my fancy wonderfully;" and crossing the library with the springy step so natural to him, he searched for the book, and came back, his finger on the open page.

"Well, go on, is the lad bewitched? what are you looking at? have you not found the 'petite mignonne,' and what do you call it, in there?"

"Yes, but she is not petite," cried Herwald, looking rather foolish; "she must be tall, listen—

"My lady walks in stately grace."

"Of course she is, you never saw a little person walk in stately grace; she may be some fair-haired giantess. Go on."

"My lady walks in stately grace,"

"All right, you said that before; I hate repetitions."

Herwald replied by a right-hander that sent Dudley out of his place, and forced a strangled bark from the red cushion on the table.

"Be quiet, Sprite, be quiet, my little wee lady," cried Herwald, laying the animal to his cheek, "don't excite itself, or it will have the bronchitis; no, no kisses," as the little red tongue wandered lovingly over his face; "I love not such evidences of affection—thank you, no," as I picked up the book he had dropped and pressed it on him; "we'll leave the fair ideal where she is."

"I'll be good," cried Dudley, from the depths of an easy-chair; "go on, Quixote."

And Herwald magnanimously completed the stanzas.

"My lady walks in stately grace;
The sunbeams toying with her hair
Have left their golden glories there,
Tinting its brown with color fair
To frame her winsome face.
Upon her clear and steadfast brow
One little vein it course does show
Like brooklet on a plain of snow,
While dusky lashes darkly fringe
The wonders of her deep blue eyes,
Which lake-like mirror back the skies;
Yet ever in their depth there lies
Still thought with sadness tinged."

"Don't stop, finish it."

"Oh, the rest is a mere love idyll; but I will read it."

"My lady hath a beauteous face!
Last night the sun went burning down,
The heavens were in a crimson frown,
And skirted redly round the town.
Oh, 'twas an hour of grace!
I stole beneath the beechen shade,
Whose overhanging branches made
A bow'ry depth and still arcade
For fawns and dryads meet;
The mosses held their laps of dew,
And rang the merry hare-bells blue,
As she came stealing on to view,
With wealth of dainty feet.

"My lady comes! she comes, my love!
Her silken trail of garments sweep
Across the grasses in their sleep,
Which shake their silvered heads and weep
At her light tread above;
And wondrous things with curious eyes
Come stealing forth in slow surprise,
Luminous things of earth and skies,
And coil themselves around;
A zephyr wandering th ough the air
Stirs the coy masses of her hair,
And leaves a tiny rose-leaf there
That flutters to the ground.

"Through the dim aisles she moves,
my saint,
Erect with girlhood's head sublime,
Praying a prayer against all time,
With folded hands and face divine,
That makes my spirit faint;
My heart pants like a frighted deer,
My soul is wrapped about with fear,
Because my lady draweth near,
Then, as she breathes my name,
I fall and kiss her twinkling feet,
I call her mine, my own, my sweet!
And dare to whisper Margaret,
With lips that are aflame!"

"Yes, very pretty, and the idea is debonnaire and winsome enough; but Herwald, my poor lad, such stateliness would eclipse thy puny inches."

"Peace, thou son of Anak!"

"I would advise you, also, to take care before you plunge into the wonders of her deep blue eyes; she may prove but a golden-haired Lorelie after all."

"True, O king, live forever; but, Nellie, may I ask what that little smile is?"

I was smilling to myself in a curious mood, but would not have enlightened him for the world; so he turned baffled to his tormentor.

(To be Continued.)

Mr. Wm. Boyd Hill, Cobourg, writes: "Having used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for some years, I have much pleasure in testifying to its efficacy in relieving pains in the back and shoulders. I have also used it in cases of croup in children, and have found it to be all that you claim it to be."

There is no preparation before the people to-day that commands their confidence more, or meets with a better sale than does Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry—the infallible remedy for all forms of Summer Complaint.

The political contest being over, the popular vote of the people is now cast in favor of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry—that matchless remedy for Cholera Morbus and all Summer Complaints.
