NOTES AND COMMENTS.

It may appear strange, says an exchange, in a country of sixty millions of inhabitants, to hear of the discovery of a waterfall in Colorado said to rival in beauty the Falls of Niagara. There are, however, still vast tracts of land in the United States unexplored. Many of the States west of the Mississippi have only been properly surveyed in the immediate neighbourhood of railways and a few public highways.

Le Canada adopts a very significant tone in advocating the claim made for a French-Canadian Minister in the Ontario Cabinet. It says: "We would have our part of the civil honours, not for self-love, but for the conservation of our national dignity. We would have our part in the patronage and administrative employments, not for ambition, cupidity, or spirit of peculation, but because such should be divided in a fixed proportion. In refusing you violate our rights. Now, who violates the rights of others must expect reprisals. And do not forget we are 150,000."

A discussion in New Brunswick of the provincial law relating to marriage hasdisquieted some heads of families in that province. The law requires that the clergyman performing the marriage ceremony have the following qualifications: "First, he must be a British subject; second, he must be a minister or a teacher duly ordained; third, he must have charge of a congregation as their preacher, or be connected therewith." This law prevents ministers who are not British subjects, or who are not in actual charge of a congregation, from solemnizing matrimony, and it is claimed that marriages solemnized by such clergymen—and there have been many—are illegal. The Ontario law is not so narrow. Every clergyman resident in Ontario and properly ordained by his Church may legally solemnize marriage here.

The alleged immunity of the cigarmakers of Florida from the attacks of yellow fever has been, in a measure confirmed by the results of some scientific experiments made by Dr. Venienzo Tassinari, of the Hygienic Institute of the University of Pisa. He exposed a number of fever microbes to the fumes of tobacco in a special apparatus constructed for the purpose, and found that in every instance there was marked delay in the development of colonies as compared with that of organisms dealt with similarly, but without exposure to tobacco smoke. In a few cases the development was entirely prevented. Dr. Tassinari proposes to extend his researches more fully on a future occasion. The votaries of the weed will, of course, find in these experiments a plea for its use; but it may be suggested that tobacco, if potent to arrest the development of microbe colonies, may also be sufficiently noxious to arrest the development of the human individual.

The dispute of the English authorities in India with Thibet, observes an eastern paper, has brought into greater prominence the curious marriage customs of that country. For time immemorial polyandry has been an established institution in Thibet, polyandry being that form of polygamy where a wife has more than one husband. The peculiar feature of this custom in Thibet is that the wife generally marries several brothers, thus insuring peace and concord in the household, for the Thibetans are of an unimpassioned temperament and subornate all other interests to those of the family. The end which the system serves is that it restricts population in regions where emigration is difficult and means of subsistence scarce. A Moravian missionary once defended the practice as applied to Thibet on the ground that it did not appear to have an unfavorable effect upon the manners of the people. As for the surplus women they take Hamlet's unceremonious advice to Ophelia and get to a nunnery.

An exchange says: On an island within the tropics there was a grove of cocoa palms. A monkey climbed one of these trees, securing a tempting nut, and was contemplating a luxurious meal, as at the foot of the palm it had opened the hard shell and exposed the fragrant contents. But other monkeys beheld, were smitten with covetousness, and claimed an equal share in the hard-earned prize. With a gesture caught from mankind the threatened proprietor pointed to the tree above them, where nuts hung temptingly for any monkey who would take the trouble to secure them. But the trees were high, the nuts far from them, only to be reached by labor, and the nut that had been laboriously obtained and opened by their more active and industrious fellow was temptingly near. So they did not climb or toil; they simply formed themselves into an anti-poverty society, and seized the coveted nut. The civilization was rudimentary and their morality undeveloped.

A DEEP-DYED CRIMINAL.

LOS ANGELES, Cala., Nov. 14.—Anschlag, who will be hanged here next Friday for the murder of the Hitchcock couple last February, in his confession made a short time ago, mentioned a travelling companion who accompanied him from New York, but whom he lost sight of on the boat between Oakland and San Francisco. A HEAVY STRIKE.

BROOKLYN, Nov. 14.—A strike involving 700 men, employed on the Green Point and Lorimer street and North 2d horse car lines, was ordered this morning after a night session of the employees to consider grievances against the management of the lines. The men all went out this morning. They charge that Supt. Harris has discharged several conductors and drivers without sufficient cause, and ask for their reinstatement. Unless their demands are conceded there is a prospect of a general strike on all the street car lines in the city.

The bridal couple will take a short northern trip in this country and will leave for England about Dec. 5th. The presents of the bride are numerous and very costly, aggregating many thousands of dollars in value.

QUEBEC, Nov. 14.—The following is said to be the basis of settlement arrived at between the Quebec government and the city of Three Rivers, in connection with the latter's indebtedness, at the conference held on Wednesday last: The city is to pay $61,000, which includes the $18,000 originally received, out of the $150,000 debentures issued by the branch railway between Arthabaska and Doucet's Landing, and interest thereon since 1861.

THE PRUSSIAN ELECTION.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—In the Prussian election the final ballots make the standing of the parties, 133 conservatives, 64 free conservatives, 96 centralists, 87 national liberals, 29 members of the Freezning party, 13 Poles, 2 Danes, 2 Guelphs, 1 independent. Storecker, Richter, Rickert, Friedburg, Loss, Gneisto and Verchow were elected.

GLADSTONE AND THE WORKINGMEN.

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 7.—Gladstone received a presentation in behalf of Birmingham workmen, who offered to support a practicable scheme to remove the pecuniary difficulty of becoming a member of parliament consistent with absolute independence and equality between representatives of workingmen of the house and other members.

SUICIDE IN JAIL.

MARQUETTE, Mich., Nov. 7.—Yesterday Pat Daly attempted suicide in jail by cutting his throat with a small penknife. He was disarmed, and the doctors thought his wounds not serious. He was taken to the home of a friend, where he died to-day. It was then discovered that at the same time he hacked his throat, he stabbed himself twenty-two times directly over the heart, the knife entering his breast the full length of the blade. Cause, delirium tremens.

THE UMBRIA COLLISION.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—An hour before the collision the Umbria had narrowly escaped another collision. The French line steamer La Normandie, which was also bound out, was running about parallel with the Umbria, and the two steamers could hear one another's whistle at intervals. Suddenly the La Normandie's whistle sounded nearer, and in a few seconds the vessel came in sight, just before the Umbria's bow. There were cries of alarm, but the pilots on both steamers gave the proper turn to their wheels, and the vessels swung away and in a moment were out of sight of one another again. Ex-Mayor Thatcher of Albany, says that the shock when the Umbria struck the Iqeria did not seem at all severe in face of the terrible damage done to the latter. The discipline on the Umbria was perfect. The officers and men seemed to know exactly what to do, and their coolness insured confidence among the passengers. The crew of the Iberia seemed terribly afraid that they would be abandoned. Their frantic cries were plainly heard on the Umbria. The members of the Iberia's crew who have been interviewed declare that the steamer's whistle was regularly blown and that the Umbria was running at a high speed. William E. Geddes, the London agent of the Vogeler Company of Baltimore, who is an experienced traveller, says that the Umbria was running fully 17 knots an hour, and he had felt surprised that she should be run at such a speed. He says the shock of the collision was hardly felt on board the Umbria. Wm. Brown, another passenger, corroborates Mr. Geddes and says some of the passengers knew nothing of the collision until some time afterwards.

Dyspepsia and Indigestion is caused by the want of action in the biliary ducts, loss of vitality in the stomach to secret the gastric juices, without which digestion cannot go on; also being the principal cause of headache. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills taken before going to bed, for a while, never fail to give relief and effect a cure. Mr. W. F. Ashdown, Ashdown, Ont., writes: "Parmelee's Pills are taking the lead against ten other makes which I have in stock."

Communications.

Numerous Questions.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—Sir, I would like to know if there is any truth in the rumor that our gifted finance minister, Alderman Herring, is a candidate for the Mayor's chair, and also aspiring to represent the royal city in the legislative assembly on his way to the Dominion parliament, to end up with the senatorship. If so, political honors must indeed be a drug in the market. This information will greatly oblige

PUTTING IT STRONG.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—In the commons last night, in a debate on the estimates for the superior court of judiciature, Jennings (conservative) moved to reduce the appropriation by a considerable sum. Lord Randolph Churchill approved and proposed the reduction. He said the money that was squandered on court officials was a public scandal and a national disgrace, amounting to malversation of public money on a large scale. The new department of justice, recently added to the machinery, consists of nothing but lawyers. It was absolute brigandage on the tax-payers. Attorney-General Webster deprecated Churchill's excessive criticism. The motion was rejected.

A POSSIBLE CLUE AT LAST.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The hopes of the police of catching the Whitechapel murderer, which had almost died out, were raised to-day to a point of buoyance in consequence of the testimony at the Kelly inquest of George Hutchinson, a groom, who had known the victim for some years, and who saw her with a male companion shortly before 2 o'clock on the morning of the murder. Hutchinson testified that he saw a well-dressed man with a Jewish cast of countenance accost the woman on the street at the hour mentioned on Friday morning, and the circumstance of his acquaintance with her induced him to follow the pair as they walked together. He looked straight into the man's face as he turned to accompany the woman and followed them to Miller Court out of mere curiosity. He had no thought of the previous murders, and certainly no suspicion that the man contemplated any violence, since his conspicuous manifestations of affection for his companion as they walked along formed a large part of the incentive to keep them in sight. After the couple entered the house Hutchinson heard sounds of merriment in the girl's room and remained at the entrance to the court for fully three-quarters of an hour. About 3 o'clock the sounds ceased and he walked into the court, but finding that the light in the room had been extinguished, he went home. During the hour occupied in standing at the entrance to or promenading the court he did not see a policeman. There is every reason to believe Hutchinson's statement, and the police place great reliance upon his description of the man, believing that it will enable them to run him down. The witness who testified yesterday to having seen the woman enter a house with a man with a blotched face, was evidently mistaken as to the night, as his description of her companion is totally unlike that of Hutchinson in every particular. The bulk of the evidence taken fixes the time of the murder at between 3:30 and 4 o'clock, a. m. It transpired to-day that in addition to the facial mutilation of the murdered woman, the uterus was wholly and skillfully removed and laid in a corner of the bed.

One of the most desirable plots of land at Bar Harbor is owned by an Irish woman, who lives on it in a small hut. She has had offers of $150,000 for the land, but refuses to sell.

Visitor (to convict)—I suppose you find your life here very tiresome, my friend? Convict—Oh, no, sir. I have been a burglar for a good many years, and have worked hard and conscientiously at the business, and as I'm only up for three years, I feel that the rest is doing me good.

Anxious wife—John, you promised me last winter you would turn over a new leaf and join the church this year. When do you mean to do it? Husband (in the midst of wholesale fruit business)—Great Scott, Maria! Don't you know better than to spring that promise on me in the midst of the apple-picking season.

A countryman brought his girl in town for the circus, and she, being bright and pretty, attracted the admiration of maidenless young men, which respectful notice naturally pleased her. Her escort stood it as long as he could. "I say, Mariar," he said, turning to the girl, "don't you think it's about time to get a little hoss-ier?"

Daily British Columbian

Wednesday Evening, Nov. 14, 1888.

We are glad to observe that our efforts to stir the citizens up to taking action well beforehand in the matter of selecting next year's mayor and aldermen have not been altogether lost. Steps have already been taken, as our readers were informed yesterday, to bring forward a suitable man for mayor. It is understood that Mr. Dickinson declines to stand for this office for the ensuing year, and, as already stated, a numerously signed requisition has been presented to Mr. John Hendry, president of the R. C. P. Mills Co. Without disparaging our present mayor, or anyone else, we cannot think of anyone at present who would make so able, energetic, and acceptable a mayor as Mr. Hendry. We hope the ratepayers will follow up their hand and bring out the best men obtainable for aldermen. Next year will be an important and eventful one for the royal city, and we shall need our very best and most business-like men at the helm.

The great railway meeting is over, and the royal city is on top again. Foes without and foes without have not been able to prevail against the "d——d little burgh" or to cause her citizens to stultify themselves and betray their own best interests. It was doubtless the intention of the few instigators of the meetnig last night to obtain a public expression cursing the railway scheme, the city council, and all in any way connected with bringing the whole matter to its present satisfactory status. The emphatic way in which the desired malediction was turned into a hearty and practically unanimous blessing by the large, intelligent, and enthusiastic body of citizens present shows plainly that the people of the royal city have not set their hearts and hands to this matter of the Southern Railway in any such feckless and stupid spirit as to be turned aside by a small coterie of either designing or muddled malcontents—a combination, probably, of both. Some of the discontented ones have probably been honest in their opposition, but we believe they will come to acknowledge very soon that their misguided efforts to embarrass the Southern Railway and the city council were happily frustrated in the true interests of the city. It seems almost incomprehensible, under all the circumstances, and at this stage of the proceedings, that a number of our citizens, most of whom voted for the railway by-laws a few months ago, and most of whom, according to their own words, are heartily in favor of the Southern Railway, should hesitate about placing the debentures in trust in the hands of a committee of trustees containing some of our most responsible and trustworthy citizens, who at the same time are well known and successful business men and have large interests at stake in the city. An examination of the names of those who have consented to act as the city's trustees in this important matter, and who, by resolution of the city council on Monday, Nov. 5, were duly appointed and constituted trustees for the purpose hereinbefore mentioned, should satisfy the most captious and suspicious that the city's interests in the premises are amply safe-guarded. Following are the names, published over a week ago, of the citizens who form the railway debentures trust: Mayor Dickinson, president; Mr. Jas. Cunningham, vice-president; and Messrs. J. Hendry, A. Ewen, B. Douglas, H. Elliott, D. S. Curtis, A. M. Herring and T. Ovens. The thing could not be more secure, it is fair to presume, if every individual ratepaper were on the trust and lay awake six nights out of seven under a sense of the responsibility involved. This matter of the Westminster Southern Railway is, and always has been, pre-eminently, a citizen's affair, and it augurs well, both for the success of the railway itself, and for future city enterprises, that the citizens of the royal city, almost as one man, have once more registered their emphatic determination to carry the scheme through in spite of all obstacles. The resolution passed last night, practically unanimously, commending the action of the city council with respect to railway matters, does honor to the city as well as to the council, and proves that the ratepayers are satisfied that their wishes have been substantially carried out, and that they are not ungrateful to those who have endeavored to interpret their desires and serve the best interests of the city. Elsewhere will be found an extended and very interesting report of the public meeting last night.

All have not bowed the knee to the Baal of party among our southern neighbors, although the great bulk of the indications during the presidential campaign just closed would lead an observer to suppose that the great political Molech had an all but universal sway. It is refreshing to find a newspaper, while heartily supporting one of the great parties, kicking over the traces and repudiating one of that party's candidates, on the ground of moral and general unfitness, and at the same time urging upon the electors the duty of returning his opponent, because he was a worthy man and well fitted for the position. The paper in question is the Tacoma Ledger, Republican in politics, and the position sought by the opposing candidates was that of prosecuting attorney for a Washington Territory county, which, like judgeships, &c., is an elective office among our neighbors. Speaking of the Republican (its own party) candidate, the Ledger says: "The election of Fremont Campbell would be a calamity to the Republican party, as he is a disgrace to the respectable men who are his associates on the ticket. Neither the party nor the county can afford to have Campbell elected to the office of prosecuting attorney in face of his disgraceful record, as presented in the Ledger. * * * In the light of all that has been revealed the Ledger cannot conscientiously, and will not vote for such a man. It will blot his name from the ticket, and will advise all honest men to do likewise. In its stead will be written the name of Joseph S. Bronston (the Democratic candidate), a young man who has been closely scrutinized, and whose record has been thoroughly examined. Upon Mr. Bronston's escutcheon not one spot has been found. He comes of a good family, is thoroughly honest, is well educated for his profession, and tries to do what is right. Above all, he is the enemy of criminals and cannot be bought. * * * Every man should be loyal to his party, and vote for every man on his party's ticket so long as he can do so without violating the dictates of his conscience. But let it be remembered that loyalty to conscience, truth, virtue, justice and the best impulses of the human heart is far greater than the loyalty to any party. The day has gone by when political bosses can whip the voters into line and make them vote for unworthy men, simply because they happen to slip past the sentinels and get on the ticket in the confusion of a convention. That custom prevailed in the days of political slavery, but has long since passed into oblivion. The people have grown too intelligent to tolerate it, in this enlightened age." Referring to a scheme between the wire-pullers and tricksters of both parties, by which each party should betray one of its own candidates into the hands of the other for base political purposes, the Ledger says: "Democrats, vote your straight ticket. Republicans, vote your straight ticket, substituting Bronston, the honest and able Democrat, for Campbell, the friend of Morgan, (a noted Tacoma gambler and scoundrel). Thus knock out the professional politicians, schemers and rascals on both sides." The future of the great republic would be brighter if there were more of such expressions in the American press.

THE THIN CANNOT GAIN IN WEIGHT if they are troubled with dyspepsia, because the food is not converted into the due proportion of nourishing blood which alone can furnish the elements of flesh. But there is no reason, when this wearing, attenuating disease is conquered by Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, why there should not be an appreciable gain in weight, which indeed is usually the case. It is a peerless remedy also for Constipation, Liver Complaint, Kidney troubles, and roots out all impurities from the blood.

Constipation

Is a universal and most troublesome disorder. It causes Headache, Mental Depression, impairs the Sight and Hearing, destroys the Appetite, and, when long continued, causes Enlargement of the Liver, Inflammation of the Bowels, and Piles. Constipation is speedily cured by Ayer's Pills.

For a number of months I was troubled with Costiveness, in consequence of which I suffered from Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, and a disordered liver. My eyes also troubled me. I was compelled to wear a shade over them, and, at times, was unable to bear exposure to the light. I was entirely three boxes of Ayer's Pills. I have no hesitation in pronouncing this medicine to be the best cathartic ever made.—James Eccles, Poland, Ohio.

I suffered from Constipation, and, consequently, from Headache, Indigestion, and Piles, for years. Ayer's Pills, which I took at the suggestion of a friend, have given me effectual relief. I commenced taking this remedy two months ago, and am now free from Constipation, the removal of which has caused my other troubles to disappear, and greatly improved my general health.—W. Keeler, Amherst, Mass.

I suffered from Constipation, which assumed such an obstinate form that I feared a stoppage of the bowels. Two boxes of Ayer's Pills cured me, completely.—D. Burke, Saco, Me. ††

"SHOUTIN'."

There's lots an' lots o' people (if you'll just believe my song)
What says we shoutin' Methodists has got the business wrong;
Well, they're welcome to their 'pinions, but of one thing I'm secure;
If they ever git religion, they will shout a hundred sure!

I was once into a love-feast, an' talk of shoutin'—why,
It almost shook the windows in the everlastin' sky!
An' the Presbyterian people—they were happy—not a few—
An' the Baptist brother come along and joined the shoutin' too.!

I tell you, folks, religion is a curious kind o' thing;
It gives a man a heart to pray—a powerful voice to sing!
An' if you've only got it—though there ain't no shoutin' heard—
The people's bound to know it if you never say a word.

In this little church at Smithville, that is dear to one and all,
Where the footsteps of the Master in the mystic silence fall
As He walks among the people—in this little church, if we Only had some old-time shoutin', how much better it would be!

The Baptists and the Methodists—we're all a-goin' heme;
An' no matter how we travel, by our different creeds enticed,
We'll all get home together if we're only one in Christ!

The paths we tread are sometimes rough, and flowerless is the sod;
The world is not a friend of grace to help us on to God!"
But the lights of Canaan shinin' o'er the river's crystal tide,
Seem to woo us to the city that is on the other side!

Then let us sing together, for we're bound to git there soon;
"On the Other Side of Jordan" (will some brother raise the tune?)
"Where the tree of life is bloomin'," sheddin' blossoms o'er the foam,
"There is rest for all the weary;" an' we're goin', goin' home.

—P. L. Stanton in Smithville News.

AS OTHER WORLDS SEE US.

A Description for Scientific and Imaginative Folks.

Throughout the long night of 354 hours, the side of the moon toward us is lighted by a magnificent reflector of the sun's rays. Always remaining in one fixed spot in the heavens, while sun and stars go by in regular cycles of 29½ terrestrial days, the earth—as the moon may see it—passes through the phases from first quarter to full and to last quarter, shining at the lunar midnight with a light fourteen times stronger than that of our full moon.

To our satellite, gravitating around us at a distance of 240,000 miles, the earth then appears four times as broad and thirteen times as great in area as the moon appears to us. As daylight spreads over this part of the moon, the earth dwindles away to a thin crescent and finally disappears at the moment of new earth.

Passing to its sister planets, we find the earth has lost its imposing appearance. To Mercury, 87,000,000 miles from the sun, the earth is an external planet, having the light of a first magnitude star, and analogous with Jupiter as seen by us; to Venus, 66,000,000 miles from the sun, our globe exceeds the stars in brilliancy, and has a perceptible diameter, with the moon plainly visible near the disk. To Mars, 145,000,000 miles from the sun, the aspect of the earth is very like that exhibited to us by the beautiful planet Venus; but to the giant Jupiter, 495,000,000 from the sun, our world is only a feeble star, always keeping within 12° of the sun. To Saturn the earth is separated from the sun by 6°, to Uranus by 3°, and to Neptune by but 2°.

"Immersed in a luminous fascicle of solar rays," says M. J. Leotard, "our globe is entirely invisible to these planets of the system to which it belongs. The earth is unknown to those worlds, which are relatively near and are connected, like it, with the destinies of the sun; and the existence upon it of the intelligent race which believes itself to be alone in the universe is unsuspected. To these planets neighboring our own we do not exist.

"Seen from the nearest of the stars, the enormous sun that illuminates us is itself no more than a little point, no more than a minute star, wandering in the infinite labyrinths of the worlds."

HOUDIN'S INGENUITY.

When he had retired from business, he amused himself by introducing various curious inventions into his place and the ground attached to it.

The garden gate was situated some four hundred yards from the house. A visitor had only to raise a diminutive brass knocker, and let it fall upon the forehead of a fantastic face—making but a faint sound—when a large bell was set in motion in the villa. At the same time the gate swung open automatically, the plate, bearing the name "Robert Houdin," disappeared, and another took its place, on which was engraved the word, "Entrez."

When the postman delivered the letters he had brought, he was instructed to drop them through a slit in the gate into the receptacle provided for the purpose. The box, directly this was done, started of its own accord on its journey to the front door of the house by means of a miniature elevated railway.

Houdin invented, too, an ingenious contrivance by which, while lying in bed, he could feed his horse in a stable fifty yards from the villa; for, on touching a small button, there was put in motion an apparatus that caused the exact portion of oats required for the animal's meal to fall into the manger from the granary above.

By another curious piece of mechanism a little bench that stood beside a ravine in a remote part of the grounds, was so constructed that immediately any person sat down upon it the machine automatically traversed a narrow bridge that spanned the gorge, and, having deposited its occupant on the other side, the bench returned to its original position.

Some Lively Wit.

An enviable quickness of repartee was shown by a French actor when the head of a goose was thrown on the stage. Advancing to the footlights, he said:

"Gentlemen, if any one among you has lost his head, I shall be glad to restore it at the conclusion of the piece."

Deservedly severe, also, was the reply of Descartes to a nobleman, who, seeing that he enjoyed the pleasure of the table, remarked:

"Why not?" asked Descartes. "Do you really imagine that Providence intended the good things of this earth only for foolish and ignorant?"

In the grand orchestra of life everybody is anxious to play first fiddle. Nay, almost everybody does play it; for although the first fiddle absolute may take precedence o all the rest, yet every second fiddle is first fiddle to somebody.

As "fleas have smaller fleas to bite 'em, and so on ad infinitum," so every man who tickles a superior has an inferior to tickle him.

If it were not for this pleasant arrangement we should have no social harmony, and it is only when this system of relations is disturbed that we experience discords and crashes.—New York Ledger.

THE INDIANS AND SNAKES.

A correspondent of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, writing from Mandeau, Dak., says, the Indian who does not hate a snake is a rarity.

This part of the country, before it was pretty well settled with Caucasians, was liberally furnished with reptiles, and today, during the summer time, they are to be met with in sufficient abundance, though it is seldom that the poisonous varieties trouble one with their presence.

The Indians have various theories as to the reason for the existence of the snakes that offend their sight. The theories all tend in one direction, however; that they are sent as a punishment to those who have offended the Great Spirit.

Up the Missouri River, a distance of forty miles, is a warm spring, back in the bluffs, which flows all the year, winter and summer. The water is agreeable to drink, in fact, it is excellent, and is a great deal softer than that which awaits the thirsty traveler in that region.

The fact that it is warm serves as an attraction to reptiles, who, in the fall of the year hie themselves thither to spend the winter.

Of course the chance traveler cannot see them when the thermometer is below zero, curled up in their hibernating condition, but as they can be seen in the fall or spring, going in behind the waters and coming out therefrom, there is no doubt in the minds of white or red men as to their business there.

The Indians call it the "snake house," and they all avoid it as though it was the entrance to the infernal regions. They regard the water as being tainted, and it matters not how thirsty they may be they never taste it. They look upon the spring as a storehouse belonging to the Great Spirit, in which he keeps the reptiles that are grown for the purpose of terrifying and chastening his erring children.

An aged Indian was laying down to me with considerable eloquence a short time ago the theories which he and his tribe believed as to the snakes, and I asked him why, if he regarded the reptile as being a dispensation from the Great Spirit, they were not around the whole year in this locality attending to business.

"Does not the red man need trials and chastenings as much in the winter time as in the summer?" I asked.

"Then why did he not make a snake that would be able to stand the winter, so that he might be on hand to punish you then for your winter misdoings?"

"Ugh!" said the Indian. "Great Spirit two kinds snakes. Give spotted ones rest half year. Frost and snow winter snake enough. Great Spirit leave to frost and snow job punishing wicked during winter time. They take care."

There is something in all this. The red man has but a slim chance to enjoy himself during the winter season. He has no furnace—warmed residence, and the torture that he undergoes when the thermometer is down low must be a great deal worse than the presence of a good many snakes. He regards it as such, and thinks he is entitled to the luxury of a few peccadilloes, seeing that he has to pay for them so dearly.

But the nineteenth century Indian is of the opinion that he has fallen on good days. He sees reptiles that are small in size, whose duty it is to keep him in order; but the reptilian punishments that his fathers had to undergo were, to his mind far more terrible than any he has to submit to now.

He takes me to the probable abode of a huge reptile that wormed for himself a house out of solid rock in this vicinity—a hole possessing in its windings a snake-like character eighty feet long, ending in a cul de sac about ten feet square.

This peculiar underground passage, into which an Indian took me on my hands and knees a short time ago, is the reputed abode of a monster of the snake tribe, who used to wander around in this region, intent on keeping in order the wicked Indians with an eternal commission from the Great Spirit to do what he deemed necessary in the good work.

Last Hour of a Spy.

He was a full-bearded young man, grown old within a single day—the northern armies had quartered themselves near his old home where he knew every inch of ground; Southern soldiers, his comrades, dared him to be where; he volunteered in the dead of night to cross; at sunrise the enemy's position was traced on paper—hastily but truly; while attempting to reach his camp, he was caught by an Union neighbor. "For the sake of Helen, your dear sister, whom I loved, let me go home,—it will cost my life—let me go! Arthur, let me go!" "No, for the sake of the Union you must be judged, you must die, as Helen died; you left her, but you'll not leave me ....." He was grown old in a day—after death was pronounced on him. As long as he was in harmony with her, his happiness seemed endless; he went with the South, she did not; they quarrelled, she died. He began to fight bravely, he courted death, but death avoided him. He pondered how he could rise in his own esteem; others besides him were brave; so he became a spy. The prison walls seemed to be elastic—they bulged out until they burst; he was once more a free man; to Helen's grave would be his first walk. But suddenly he started up; there was still the solitary prison; he was dreaming while awake! Nine o'clock! Ah! I hear them come, to escort me out,—but I don't want to die! "Oh, you come early! Take the balls from your guns: shoot, and I'll fall, and run off after you are gone. Do not fire on me ....." "No, we shall not shoot you; our guns are not loaded; no ball will hit you, do not fear ....." A spark of hope illumined his face; he resolved in his heart that honor and goodness would rule him henceforth alone .... virtue and piety should be his highest gifts .... a public benefactor would he become .... They halted suddenly: "Your last prayer you may say now" .... In ten minutes he hung suspended from a tree near by.

The Rise of the Umbrella Business.

The magnitude of the umbrella business may pretty fairly be estimated. Allowing an umbrella to every ten people, and placing the population of Indianapolis at 100,000, there are 10,000 umbrellas within the cincture of the Belt Railroad. Of course they are changed about and traded in mysterious ways, but offenses of this kind do not fall within the provisions of the penal code. The city's umbrellas are worth, if they be valued at the average of one dollar each, the sum of $10,000. The valuation may be rather large, but a few cents added to the intrinsic worth will serve to count for the mental disturbance of owners in guarding their property. Taking it for granted that every umbrella of the possible 10,000 has to be repaired during the year, and guessing at the cost of the work for each one to be six cents (a very low estimate by the way), some idea of the financial returns of the repairer will be gained.

The Death Roll of The Civil War.

Official statistics show that of the 3,000,000 men enlisted, there were killed in battle, 44,238; died of wounds, 49,205; died of disease, 186,216; died of unknown causes, 24,184; total 303,843. This includes only those whose death while in the army had been actually proven. To this number should be added, first, 20,000 men who are known to have died while in the hands of the enemy as prisoners of war, and many others in the same manner whose deaths are unrecorded.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has prevented the usual course of Boils, which have pained and distressed me every season for several years.—G. Scales, Plainville, Mich.

Having been appointed Provincial Health Officer for Districts lying south of Fraser River, I hereby give notice that the provisions of said By-Laws will be strictly enforced, and all persons are required to govern themselves accordingly.

BY-LAWS ISSUED BY HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR IN COUNCIL,

HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT-Governor of British Columbia, by and with the advice of the Executive Council of British Columbia, acting under and by virtue of the provisions of the "Health Ordinance, 1869," enacts as follows:—

1. Whenever small-pox is present in any locality without the boundaries of any Municipality, the Provincial Health Officer nearest to such locality shall at once cause the patient to be removed to an isolated hospital, tent or other suitable place, or cause such person to be otherwise sufficiently isolated, and shall see that he is properly cared for, and shall take proper measures for the disinfection, or, if necessary, the destruction of all clothing which may have been exposed to the contagion, and for the disinfection and purification of every conveyance, rail-car, steamboat, railway, vessel, carriage, or other vehicle which may have been exposed to the contagion.

2. Such Health Officer shall have, in his discretion, full power to place in another building or tent all persons who may have been exposed to the contagion, and shall cause them to be supplied with all necessaries until the period of incubation of the disease shall have elapsed, and no such person shall go, or be permitted to go, abroad, until he or she has given satisfactory proof of successful vaccination within the preceding seven years, or shall have obtained a medical certificate of insusceptibility to the vaccine disease, nor until the clothing or effects worn or carried by or with him or her have been properly disinfected, if the same have been exposed to contagion.

3. FALL ASSIZES.

Mr. Justice McCreight Presiding.

His lordship entered the court at 11 o'clock and was received with the usual honors.

The roll of petit jurors was called and five failed to answer to their names.

The following grand jury was then called and sworn: Marshall Sinclair (foreman), A. J. Bovill, Christopher Brown, William Chadsey, L. Guichon, David Murchison, Peter Peebles, J. F. Ryder, J. W. Sexsmith, John Trembath, Russell Smithers, Joseph Trethewey, and Samuel Trethewey.

His lordship in his charge to the grand jury said although the docket showed three murders out of a total of seven cases it must be remembered that the "Speedy Trials Act" was now in force and a number of cases had been tried under this act, which, taken from the docket, gave it a more serious aspect. His lordship then reviewed the different cases, advising the grand jury to bring in a true bill in each instance. The following is the docket:—

Regina vs. Donahue; two indictments for forgery.

Regina vs. Johnny and Munday, Indians. Two indictments for larceny.

Regina vs. Kane, for highway robbery.

The court re-assembled at 1:15 p.m. when the grand jury returned with a true bill against Johnnie, an Indian, for maliciously wounding, and a true bill against Frank Donohue, for forgery.

The case of the Queen vs. Johnnie was then called. Mr. Drake, Q.C., appeared for the crown and Mr. Bole, Q.C., for the defendant.

The prisoner pleaded guilty. Judgment deferred.

The case of Frank Donohue, charged with forgery, was then called. Mr. Drake, Q.C., for the crown. Messrs. Atkinson and Townley for the defendant.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty.

THE COUNCIL SUPPORTED.

Citizens Meet to Condemn the Action of the Council in Appointing the Debentures Trust.

But the Council is Warmly Supported and Only One or Two Weak Voices Says Nay.

In response to the call of the mayor, who had been requested to call a meeting to discuss railway matters, about 250 ratepayers assembled in Hyack Hall last night. Although some sharp sparring occurred during the evening good humor prevailed, and when the meeting closed everyone appeared to be in the best of humor.

Mayor Dickinson opened the proceedings by stating he had called the meeting at the request of a number of citizens, but he did not know what was intended to be done. He then called on the meeting to elect a chairman.

Mayor Dickinson was elected to the chair and Col. McGregor chosen to act as secretary. His worship then called upon those who signed the requisition to explain their object.

Mr. J. E. Lord said he had a resolution to put to the meeting, but would like to say a few words first. The meeting was called to take action against the council, not against the railway company. A number of citizens felt the council had taken an unwarranted and illegal action in placing the debentures in the hands of a number of citizens without taking from them bonds or securities of any kind. Mr. Lord then proceeded to give a history of the railway since its conception and concluded by reading the resolution passed by the council appointing a trust to hold the debentures, winding up with the remark "Aint that a grab." (Great laughter.)

Mr. J. C. Armstrong seconded the resolution, which read as follows:—

WHEREAS, We the ratepayers believe the municipal council has acted illegally in passing a resolution placing the debentures for $150,000, voted under the Steam Ferry Bonus By-law and Foundry and Workshops Bonus By-law, taking the debentures out of the hands of the city's representatives, and placing them in the hands of trustees, a number of these trustees being members of the railroad company, and without bonds or any other security;

THEREFORE, We ask the council to reconsider and rescind the resolution and leave the debentures as before under bonus by-laws, and money to be paid as so provided under said bonus by-laws.

When Mr. Lord had read the resolution he said: "That's what we're here for, to get the council to undo the work they have done!" (Laughter).

Mr. Jaques—"Read it again, Mr. Lord!" (Cheers).

Mr. J. C. Armstrong, in response to calls, said he had nothing to say except that the council had no right to deputize others to do their duties. The whole thing was illegal and against the wish of the people. If the council were not competent to do their duty let them resign, and the people would elect competent men. He concluded by saying an injunction would be put on the council restraining them from making over the debentures to the trust.

Mr. Lundbom was called on but refused to speak, as he had not signed the requisition and knew nothing about it.

Mr. Herring said he wished to explain why he had voted against the resolution. It was because he did not like the way it was got up. He had taken the best legal advice in Victoria and found the action of the council to be illegal.

Mr. Peter Grant asked how the bonus was paid to the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Mayor Dickinson—"It was paid in trust into the bank of B.C."

Mr. Grant—"Then it was out of the council's hands."

Mayor Dickinson—"Yes, Mr." Abbott refused to do a stroke of work until the money was out of the city's hands, so it was paid into the Bank of B. C. in trust for the company. (Applause).

Mr. Lord commenced a lot of statements so palpably incorrect that the mayor was obliged to characterize the whole as untrue.

His worship gave a short resume of the railway negotiations and concluded as follows: "Notwithstanding what has been said I believe Mr. Herring has opposed this resolution in order to gain public favor as I believe he is looking for high civic honors. He thinks he has struck oil, but, if I know the feeling of the people correctly, he will find himself snowed in. Here is Mr. Armstrong wishing to build the road with one hand and trying to pull it down with the other. He is uncertain what to do, and tickles the C. P.R. while pretending to want the Southern to be built. The men who are endeavoring to keep back the Southern railway are the men who have ever been opposed to the city's progress and advancement. (Great applause).

Mr. Thos. Cunningham said he wanted to introduce a resolution, but wished to hear Mr. Bole speak first.

Mr. Bole said he had been included in the requisition as worthy to be present at the meeting and now he was wanted to speak. In common practice it was not customary for the prisoner (for so he took himself to be) to make the first statement, but if any charge was brought against him he would endeavor to answer it. Anyone of the opinion that his advice was not correct could have it argued out before the courts. He did not propose to be played battledore and shuttlecock with by a few cranks. Continuing, Mr. Bole said: "Now, gentlemen, I don't want you to think I mean all who signed the requisition are cranks, but a number of them are and I defy them to fill any other bill. (Laughter). Since my arrival in Westminster, 12 years ago, Mr. Lord has been first and foremost in all attempts to keep back the city's advancement. He has always been ready with the cry, 'Jeremiah, Jeremiah, woe is me' (great applause). Now, as regards the debentures, I defy any man, who is not a liar or a fool, to say it was not thoroughly understood every cent of the money was to go for railroad and ferry boat construction."

Mr. Grimmer—"No."

Mr. Bole—"Very well, but I repeat, the money was intended to be spent in the manner said. If injunctions are wanted it is easy to go to Victoria where some enemy to Westminster can be found ready to undertake anything against it. As to Mr. Lord, I have no hard feelings against him as he is only an antediluvian mossback and being such deserves sympathy. But the game of Mr. Lord and his friends are too easily seen through. They are playing into the hands of the C.P.R. I am sorry to hear Mr. Armstrong's change of front is co-incident with his return from Vancouver."

Mr. Thos. Cunningham — "The ground has been so well covered by Mr. Bole—"

Mr. Lord—"With abuse."

Mr. C—"I think he has given you what you deserved. (Much laughter). From the first Mr. Lord has been prominent in opposing the Southern Railway."

Mr. Lord—"Show me one word."

Mr. C—"Why you came to me and asked me to oppose it. (Great laughter, and cries of 'Coffins'), and I also heard you advising people against it in front of your own door. (Renewed applause). At the meeting in August I believed the promoters of the railway to be consistent and I believe it now. (Applause). I prefer the trustees to the bank. (Great applause). I would like the secretary to read my resolution.

Moved by Thos. Cunningham, seconded by J. G. Jacques. Resolved, that this meeting heartily endorses the action of the New Westminster municipal council in relation to Southern Railway affairs and considers that said council is deserving of credit for the able and careful manner in which it has conducted this important enterprise.

Mr. Jaques—"I have much pleasure in seconding the resolution." (Applause.)

Mr. Armstrong—"There is no use drawing the C. P. R. across peoples' noses like a red herring. Everyone wants the railway but if the money is gone and no railway what are we going to do. Mr. Sheafe came over here with his Yankee whang to carry away the British bonds, but he didn't get them. It seems rather strange to see Mr. Bole acting as city solicitor and solicitor for the railway company."

Mr. Bole—"I dont see why Mr. Armstrong should bear out the only text in the Scriptures he knows, but I might tell him I have no branch line to build."

Senator McInnes said it seemed from the language used that the speakers must have been attending Mr. Moody's meetings, but he was sorry to see the Scriptures put to such base use. He had attended many public meetings but had never heard men occupying the positions the speakers did using such language as was made use of by Mr. Bole and others. The senator then read several clauses relating to the issuance of the debentures and contended the trust was in complete opposition to the agreement passed by the people. The people had no confidence in the company; the money was voted for workshops and a ferry steamer and not for railway constructions. The senator thought that if the road was built to the boundary and the money expended the work would stop there and he was of the opinion the Westminster portion of the road should be left to the last. He then went on to explain the railroad fight in Manitoba and make a strong attack on the railway policy of the Dominion government. In conclusion the senator said: "You are mortgaging the city for 50 years. With respect to the trust selected I think it most extraordinary. If the council had not the ability to carry out the agreement why did they not resign gracefully and let the people elect men who had the ability to do their duty properly. If the Northern Pacific could have got the road I would not have objected and would have been willing to bonus it to the extent of $250,000."

Mr. Bole said he had heard the worthy senator was loaded for bear (Mr. Bole) and intended to make things lively for him. "But," said Mr. Bole, "I had no idea Senator McInnes would turn on the Dominion government and abuse it after having received the honor of senatorship from its hand. It seems to me like the cur that bit the hand which fed it.

Mr. D. S. Sinclair said he could go on for hours and tell where railroads had bamboozled towns, and he believed in his heart that the Southern would never be built.

Senator McInnes said he had made no attack on Mr. Bole, but the latter with his native Irish wit and like a third class pettifogging lawyer had turned the remarks by ridicule. The senator continued at some length and wound up by saying: "Don't be carried away by glib tongued lawyers and American railroad schemers."

Mr. Bole—"Or by exploded politicians." (Laughter.)

Dr. Kent wanted the railroad built on righteous principles. He went into a lot of figures attempting to show that the $150,000 voted to the railway would amount, with interest, at the end of 50 years to more than the present value of all the real estate in the city. The figures were so absurdly inaccurate and ridiculous that the meeting grew tired and forced Dr. Kent by cheers, cries and stamping to discontinue his speech.

Mayor Dickinson said Dr. Kent's figures were all astray and he thought from the doctor's present actions he would soon become as obnoxious to the people of Westminster as he was to the people of the Delta. The mayor then proceeded in a very clear manner to explain the exact cost of the debentures to the city and in a few words showed the absurdity of Dr. Kent's figures.

As no one seemed inclined to continue the discussion, Mayor Dickinson put the resolution, in amendment to Mr. Lord's, expressing every confidence in the mayor and council and supporting the council's action in appointing the debenture trust. The amendment was carried almost unanimously, only one or two "nays" being heard in response to the mayor's call for votes against it.

The meeting then adjourned.
