NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Over 700 millions of passengers were carried on the railways of the united kingdom in 1887, and of these only 25 were killed, and the whole of this 25 in one accident, which was due to the gross carelessness of an engineer. Disregard of the comfort and safety of employees, however, still disgraces British railway management. Over 400 railway servants were killed during the year, and over 3,000 injured—many of the accidents being due to the fact that the men were worn out with overwork.

Some sarcastic comments are made in old country papers about a couple of marriages among noteworthy people which have recently occurred there. In one case a college professor of over 70 married a "sweet girl graduate" of barely 20. She was distinguished for ability in her college course, and one editor quotes her marriage as a case of "much learning and little sense." The other case is that of a dowager duchess, also over 70, who has become the blushing bride of a young gentleman of 24! People will talk when such things occur; but after all, if the people chiefly concerned are satisfied, it does not appear that the public have much right to concern themselves.

The "ground and lofty tumbling" and sky-scraping antics in matters matrimonial indulged in by our friends "back east" are amusing, if not edifying. One day we have a story of a young man who fails to be present at his own wedding, finding out at the last movement that he is not prepared to "brace up" to the new and untried experiences into which matrimony will usher him. Occasionally the victim will go through the ceremony, only to blow his brains (!) out the next hour from remorse. The late little diversion of the gay Lothario, the minister of customs, with the "fair, fat and forty" vidder of Napanee is still green in the memories of at least that respectable but ill-used lady, and her friends, even if the honorable minister is seeking lethe in a western jaunt. But, perhaps, the Halifax young lady "takes the bun" over all competitors. It is related of her that she made a mistake about the date of her marriage and was busily engaged in her household duties, while her intended bridegroom was waiting for her at the altar. An exchange deplores that such a lapse of memory on so important an occasion by one of the fair sex should be possible, and is hoping that it may turn out that the too ardent bridegroom made the mistake of the day—in short, was "too previous."

The subjoined paragraph from an Edinburgh paper is recommended to those who imagine that this continent has a monopoly of lurid political writing:—Mr. Buckle, the editor of the Times, is a privileged person. So long as he confines his insults and slanders to the Irish members of Parliament, he is permitted to indulge in every species of blackguardism with perfect impunity. But on Wednesday morning he was silly enough to step beyond this prudent limit, and in an article, as coarse as only he could write, he committed a breach of privilege of the House of Commons by attacking the Liberal Party, and charging them with blackguardism. Mr. Labouchere promptly brought him to book, and even his friend, Mr. Goschen, had to confess for once his champion had gone too far. But the Chancellor of the Exchequer at the same time made a pathetic appeal to Mr. Gladstone not to press the matter, and the Liberal leader, as magnanimous as ever, advised his side to pass it over. This is like Mr. Gladstone. It is simply one more illustration of the habitual impartiality of the man. In the old days of fulsome flattery, when the Times was daily licking his boots in order to gain a peerage for its proprietor, Mr. Gladstone quietly ignored the toadyism, and refused to throw away the honor; and now when the whole gang of literary lions and forgers are combined to resent with every scurrilous weapon this slight upon their master, the ex-Premier still treats them with goodnatured contempt, and refuses to crush the toad even when it has crawled beneath his heel.

O. E. Comstock, Caledonia, Minn., writes: I was suffering the most excruciating pains from inflammatory rheumatism. One application of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil afforded almost instant relief, and two bottles effected a permanent cure.

LAST NIGHT'S DESPATCHES.

THE SCIENTIFIC EXPEDITION.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—The Cossack expedition to Thibet, under the command of General Prjevalsky of the Russian army, is exciting a great deal of suspicion here as to the real motives actuating the czar in ordering it. Ostensibly the expedition is sent out for the purpose of exploration, but it is expected that its real object is that of checking certain English movements and preventing the inauguration of others, on the Thibetan and Bothan border. The exploration theory has been made plausible by giving the expedition a scientific character in its accompanying corps of engineers, geologists, etc., but the fact that the government has subscribed 54,000 roubles toward the expedition, as well as furnishing it with an escort bearing a much closer resemblance to an army of invasion than an ordinary body guard, strengthens the belief that offensive tactics are expected to be employed much more frequently than defensive ones.

THE FISHERIES MATTER.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Owing to the political recess here the United States' action in the fisheries matter continues to attract much attention in the press. The feeling of regret and surprise is universal at Mr. Cleveland's action, however great the political exigency in view of the coming election. Regarding the probable effect on Canada of a retaliation policy, soberer views now prevail than on the first receipt of the news. It is becoming understood that Canada is far less at the mercy of the States now than she was years ago, and is more able to hold her own than English journalists realized when first commenting on the news.

TO-DAY'S DESPATCHES.

WORSE THAN FIGHTING.

LIMA, Ohio, Aug. 28.—An extra freight on the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway ran into a train bearing soldiers en route for the Columbus encampment, 12 miles north from this city, this morning. A large number are reported killed and wounded. Physicians have been sent from here.

GLADSTONE SYMPATHIZES.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Gladstone has written to Mr. Sydney Halifax requesting him to express to the widow of Jno. Mandeville his sympathy for her, and to say he was deeply moved by the sufferings of her husband while in Tullamore jail.

GIVEN UP HOPE.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 28.—The following resolution has been passed by the board of health: Resolved, inasmuch as the yellow fever has now become epidemic with no chances of stamping out the disease, and it being useless to attempt to isolate cases of yellow fever, that flags and sanitary guards be discontinued. The only hope of ending the epidemic is a frost.

THROUGH A BRIDGE.

TORONTO, Aug 28.—The bridge over the Credit river on the Canadian Pacific Railway fell this morning with an engine and two freight cars. The engineer and fireman saved themselves by swimming ashore.

HAIL STORM.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 28.—A terrific tempest and hail storm set in last night and rain is falling heavily in torrents. The hail stones fell as large as marbles.

SAFE IN PORT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—Advices from Alaska state that the prospecting schooner Adventure, Capt. Bangs, from Seattle, which has been reported lost with all hands has arrived safely at that port.

One of the victims of the powder explosion, at Berkeley, last Friday, died last night from injuries. This makes a total of six deaths by the disaster.

AN ANGERED MONARCH.

TANGIERS, Aug. 28.—The sultan of Morocco who is at war with his rebellious subjects has started to avenge the massacre of his cousin Prince Muley and two hundred horsemen, who were sent some time since to collect tribute from the rebels. The Sultan himself has gone in pursuit of the rebels and Morocco flows with blood. The outraged monarch has allowed his troops to sack and burn the rebel villages and commit whatever depredations they please. The Reveil du Maroc urges the powers to send ships to the coast towns to prevent the massacre of the Jews and Christians. Nothing it says, will stay the present atrocities but the intervention of some civilized power.

GREAT DAMAGE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—During the storm yesterday hail-stones as large as peanuts fell all over the town of Flatbush, driving people from the streets. Much injury was done to green houses, vegetables and fruit trees. Many windows were broken throughout the valley.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 28.—The state republican convention was called to order at noon. Rev. S. N. Leach, ex-chaplain state senate, prayed. The roll call in detail was omitted on motion. General Curtis and Morgan of the Glee club sang Harrison and Morton campaign songs. When they sang "Blaine is home again" there was a storm of applause. Then, on motion of Gen. Curtis, three rousing cheers were given for Harrison and Morton. Gen. Tracy, of Brooklyn was unanimously appointed temporary chairman. He read his address from manuscript and denounced free trade, described the wonderful growth of the country under protection, quoted numerous statistics as the bases of his statements and read official reports of the unfortunate condition of the country in low tariff times. At the conclusion of the speech assembly rules were adopted as rules of the convention.

SNATCHING A REST.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—President Cleveland has gone on a three days fishing trip in the vicinity of Clifton Forge, Blue Ridge mountains. The president has been confined closely to official duties for many months. He does not expect to be able to get any recreation except as he clears off his desk in advance of congress and takes a day or two at a time, piecemeal, as congress lingers and promises to stay until after the election.

SALMON IN ALASKA.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—The steamer Bertha has arrived from Kodiak, Alaska, after a passage of eight days. She reports that the canning factories there are working up to their full capacity and that the season will be an exceptionally good one. She brings a full cargo of salmon.

GIVEN TO THE FISHES.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 28.—The British ship Flintshire which arrived this morning from San Francisco with a cargo of wheat, reports she encountered a gale in which she had to jettison 20 tons of her cargo. Her boats were smashed and she was otherwise damaged.

WHEAT.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Wheat 93¾ for cash, 3½ Aug., 3 5-8 Sept., 3 Oct., 37-8 Dec.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 28.—Wheat dull, lower and weak.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Wheat 100¼ for cash, 100½ Aug. and Sept, 1¼ Oct., 2¼ Nov., 3 3-8 Dec.

ARRIVALS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—Arrived, ship Baring Brothers, Seattle; strs. Mexico, Victoria, Arago, Coos Bay.

STOCKING FACTORY BURNED.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 28.—Herman Klein & Co.'s stocking factory was totally burned this morning. Loss $75,000; insurance small.

NOT AT ALL DISMAYED.

OTTAWA, Aug. 28.—A semi-official communication says the members of the Dominion cabinet have reason to believe that President Cleveland will put the retaliation threat into effect within three months. The ministry express gratification at the unanimity of feeling expressed throughout Canada and the high spirit invoked, showing a healthy national sentiment in the face of foreign aggression.

ÆRONAUT KILLED.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Prof. Simmons, the veteran æronaut, was killed at Wilham last night. He had ascended in his balloon with the intention of going to Vienna. The balloon was burst by fouling a tree.

THE INVESTIGATION.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.—The investigation by the British naval court into the cause of the collision last Wednesday between the Oceanic and the City of Chester, was resumed this morning in the office of the British consul. Geo. E. Bigger, the Oceanic's second officer, testified that notwithstanding the blowing first of one whistle signalling the Chester to "starboard her helm," and a repetition and blowing of two whistles, the steamer came right on and struck. John Athias, quartermaster, who was steering the Oceanic at the time of the accident, that when the Oceanic signalled the Chester his orders were "hard a starboard," which he did immediately. It did not take five seconds to put the helm in position and it remained so all the time.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 28.—The official yellow fever report for yesterday says: "There were ten new cases, nine recoveries, and three deaths."

DISASTROUS SMASH-UP.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 28.—This morning the electric motor, with one passenger car attached, descending Mt. Oliver on the St. Clair road, became uncontrollable and dashed down the grade with great speed. At a sharp curve it left the track, tumbling over and over. The engineer and conductor jumped and were seriously injured; four passengers were seriously injured, and two fatally. The motor was smashed to pieces and the car badly wrecked.

Personal.

F. Fooks has returned from a trip to Illecillewaet.

W. H. Redmond went over to Vancouver this afternoon.

M. M. English, the well-known canner, is at the Colonial.

Mayor and Mrs. Dickinson returned from Vancouver yesterday.

Mrs. H. Abbott and a number of Vancouver ladies were in the city this afternoon on a shopping visit.

J. G. Moylan, Inspector of Dominion penitentiaries, left for Ottawa on the Atlantic Express this afternoon.

T. J. Hogben, late of the Royal Irish Constabulary, who it will be remembered saved several lives last spring, has returned to the city.

Alderman Shiles cut his foot with an axe last week and is confined to the house. We are glad to know the accident is not of a very serious nature.

Mr. Sheehan, of Oscoda, Mich., writes, "I have used Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil on for different diseases, and found it to be just as you recommended. It has done justice to me every time, and it is the best Oil for horses I ever used." Observe that the name "Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil" is on the front of the wrapper, as there are imitations of it.

Daily British Columbian

Tuesday Evening, Aug. 28, 1888.

Our American cousins are evidently making rapid strides towards the establishment of a monarchy. In many ways they are aping the customs of the effete despotisms of Europe; they foster in their midst tyrannical olgarchies, pay absurd deference to foreigners with titles, and in fact do all they can to show that they value what they affect to despise. The latest development in this direction is the publication in a current periodical of a paper entitled "The Ladies of the American Court." By the ladies of the court are meant the wives and daughters of the government officials at Washington. The Houston (Texas) Post, a journal which has not yet abandoned the theory that all men are born equal, terms the article an exhibition of disgusting snobbery. It says:—"Nothing can be more silly than such assumptions. When a free republic was founded in America, the express idea was to do away with hereditary sovereignty and with court vices and flatteries. To call the wives of the president and his cabinet 'court ladies' is disgusting to every sensible American. If there is any royalty among American women, it is those who are royal by gifts of mind and goodness of heart; by scholarly accomplishments and by social grace and sweetness, and not by temporary political accidents or incidents."

Keely of "motor" fame is going to get left in the race, after all said and done, if he don't look sharp. American newspapers have referred lately to a new invention by one William Timmis, which, if successful, will revolutionize motive power. The inventor is an unpretentious English mechanic, residing in Pittsburg, Pa., who says he has invented a machine by which untold motive power can be stored or used without the expenditure of fuel. The story goes that he has been engaged for years in perfecting the invention, and is now negotiating with the governments of England, Russia and the United States for the sale of the right to use his discovery, which, if, after examination, it proves to be what he asserts, will revolutionize the motive power of the world. He says he is able with his contrivance to create a pressure of 20,000 pounds per square inch—more than sufficient to propel the largest ocean steamer afloat or to move eighty laden freight cars in one train. The machine seems to be simply an air compressor of the simplest sort It consists of one small cylinder (six horse power), with a balance weight of seventy-five pounds, which runs the entire apparatus; another small cylinder, five inches diameter, with seven inches stroke, compresses the air into the tank from which the power is utilized. Under the piston plate the inventor has placed two layers of bars containing eleven different minerals, the magnetic influence of which is the secret of the inventor. The advantages he claims are durability, economy and simplicity. Experts have examined the machine and pronounce it a success. In submitting his design to the governments named, Mr. Timmis asserts that the pneumatic generator can not only be applied to war vessels as a motor, but can be used as a defense against hostile attacks by means of air chambers behind the armor plating.

Death, it is said, loves a shining mark. Literally, of course, there is no truth in the saw; but every man's time comes once. Sudden deaths perhaps strike more terror into poor humanity than any other approach of the grim destroyer. Such was the fate of Sir John Rose, a former finance minister of Canada, who fell dead the other day while hunting at Caithness in the north of Scotland, as he was about to shoot at a stag. Sir John Rose, Bart., G. C.M.G., M.A., was born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, in 1821. He emigrated to Canada in 1836, and rose by his own efforts to positions of rank and wealth, and was for years identified with the public history of Canada. On the outbreak of the rebellion in 1837 he took an active part as a volunteer in its suppression. In his chosen profession, the law, he attained distinction, and became solicitor-general for Lower Canada in 1857, and in the same year was elected to parliament to represent the city of Montreal, which constituency he continued to represent for ten years. He subsequently represented other constituencies and held various honorable and responsible trusts. He became finance minister and a member of the queen's privy council for Canada in 1867. In 1869, when only 48 years old, he retired from public life and removed to England, where he became a partner in the London banking firm of Morton, Rose & Co., and for some years was recognized as Canada's unofficial representative in England. He was created a K. C. M. G. in 1870, and in recognition of his services in connection with the Treaty of Washington was afterwards made a baronet. He held many positions of trust and emolument in England, among which was prominent connection with the management of the Hudson's Bay Company, and the Bank of British Columbia. He was ever a devoted friend of Canada, large hearted and liberal, and in his rather untimely taking away, at the age of 68, will be missed and mourned on both sides of the Atlantic.

The European situation is becoming somewhat interesting. It is said to be the unexpected that always happens. After the fraternal greetings, the embracings, the protestations of eternal friendship, between the Emperor William and the Czar, it was surely the last thing that might have been expected that bad blood would have arisen so soon between the Teuton and the Muscovite. But such is the case. The Russian press has been allowed to raise the question of Denmark's claims in Schleswig-Holstein, German territory, and the young emperor, so lately the honored and gushing guest of the Czar, fires up instantly and retorts in red-hot speeches bidding defiance to all who would attack Germany's right to any territory which it now holds. While his blood was up the young German "war lord" made another disclosure of his warlike character and took a fling at his traditional foe, the French, giving them to understand, in the most unmistakable terms, that if they "wanted some too!" all they had to do was to knock a chip off the imperial shoulder—in other words to show the slightest inclination of attempting to regain their lost province of Alsace-Lorraine. With a commendable self-repression the French press and people have restrained the expressions natural to an impulsive and chivalric race on having defiance thus hurled in their teeth by the warlike head of a traditionally hostile power. The experience of the last two years, on their own word, has taught them the wisdom of meeting the calculated menaces of their enemies with coolness. They know their policy at present is to play a waiting game and show no inclination to be drawn into a quarrel. Most of the Paris papers content themselves with publishing the Emperor's Frankfort speech with little or no comment. The National says: "Our duty is to answer this violent language by coolness, but we may remind this young prince that a countryman of our own once said: 'Not an ounce of our sod nor one stone of our fortress shall we surrender.' As it happens his hope and trust was disappointed." The Intransigant, usually so intemperate, only says: "This clearly means that conciliation is out of the question. Now more than ever we must watch and get ready." Meanwhile young William is "raising Cain," figuratively, in the "fader land." Generals Von Capriva and Von Moltke, in command of the navy and army respectively, have been retired from the service, for being "too slow," it is whispered, for the mercurial young soldier-emperor, and their places filled by younger men. The young kaiser, too, is testing the patience and the metal of his troops in one way and another. The other day, after reviewing some of his troops he remarked: "My lads, if you did no better than this in real war, you would all by now be sausage meat." A few days afterward he surprised the Potsdam hussars and chasseurs by having an alarm sounded at four o'clock in the morning. All the soldiers who showed the slightest remissness were severely reprimanded and several officers were placed under arrest. If the navy and army are not placed upon a chain-lightning war footing it will evidently not be the fault of the latest of the Hohenzollerns. Now that the star of Boulanger, the French agitator and wire-manipulator, is again in the ascendant, it is just possible that the "war dogs" of Europe, who are straining so at the leash, may be allowed the diversion of getting into each other's wool for a season.

Have you tried Holloway's Corn Cure? It has no equal for removing these troublesome excrescences, as many have testified who have tried it.

Scrofula

Is one of the most fatal scourges which afflict mankind. It is often inherited, but may be the result of improper vaccination, mercurial poison, uncleanliness, and various other causes. Chronic Sores, Ulcers, Abscesses, Cancerous Humors, and, in some cases, Emaciation and Consumption, result from a scrofulous condition of the blood. This disease can be cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

I inherited a scrofulous condition of the blood, which caused a derangement of my whole system. After taking less than four bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla I am and, for the past year, have not found it necessary to use any medicine whatever. I am now in better health, and stronger, than ever before.—O. A. Willard, 218 Tremont st., Boston, Mass.

I was troubled with Scrofulous Sores for five years; but, after using a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the sores healed, and I have now good health.—Elizabeth Warnock, 54 Appleton street, Lowell, Mass.

Some months ago I was troubled with Scrofulous Sores on my leg. The limb was badly swollen and inflamed, and the sores discharged large quantities of offensive matter. Every remedy failed until I used Ayer's Sarsaparilla. By taking three bottles of this medicine the sores have been healed, and my health is restored. I am grateful for the good it has done me.—Mrs. Ann O'Brian, 158 Sullivan st., New York. ††

THE WEST SHORE

PORTLAND, OREGON.

The West Shore is the only illustrated magazine published on the Pacific coast, and aside from its excellent literary features, its object is to convey information, by both pen and pencil, of the great resources of this region, and the progress of their development.

Special illustrated articles appear in each issue; also, several pages of notes of the progress being made in every section. Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Alaska, Utah, California, British Columbia, and the Pacific Northwest in general, are being illustrated. The subscription price is only $2.50. It is not only the cheapest illustrated magazine in the United States, but contains articles and engravings of great interest to every resident of this region, which can not be found in any other publication.

Subscribers for 1888 receive a large supplement every month. The first one is a beautiful oleograph of the "Entrance to the Columbia River," printed in nine colors, and each of the others represents some feature of our sublime scenery. The supplements are alone worth more than the price of the magazine. Try it for 1888, and after reading, send it to your friends elsewhere. You will find it both entertaining and instructive.

FUN IN PHOTOGRAPHY.

SUNDAY AT A GALLERY IN THE BOWERY, NEW YORK.

Taking a Squalling Infant and Flattering His Mother—A Young Orator in the "Tongs"—The Cross-Eyed Subject—Author and Camera—A "B'hoy" and his "Gal"—Jack Ashore.

(Copyrighted, 1888.)

It is not the writer's purpose in these sketches to tell of the Bowery concert dives, dime museums, freaks, or of its other time-worn curiosities, so fully and over-freely depicted in the newspapers, nor to relate his experiences with the pickpockets, confidence men, bunco steerers or painted females to be found on the famous thoroughfare on the "day of rest." These have all, long since, become back numbers of Bowery history, and should be relegated to the wormy, chestnutty and well-deserved grave of oblivion. The writer, proposing to take a new departure, determined to show up the "photograph galleries" which line the Bowery from Grantham square to Cooper street, and upon Sunday last, attired in his usual winter habiliments of straw hat, ear muffs, sand paper lined duster, with mustard in his shoes and a red pepper in his buttonhole to keep him warm, and accompanied by a friend who wore a shawl to cover the evidences of old age in the bosom of his trousers, he started out to do this phase of Bowery Sunday life.

For unbridled presumption and colossal cheek the average Bowery photographer can be said to "take the cake." He can go further than this. He is not satisfied with the cake, but has a yearning for the whole bakery and any stale pie that may be lying around loose.

The first sign that struck the writer in [illegible] was this:

Tin Types, 15 for a Quarter.
Pictures or Money Refunded.

After having ascended two flights of stairs that groaned with the lumbago, rheumatism and gout, the scribe and his friend arrived at the gallery door and entered. A lady of certain age, and wearing a bunion on her nose and a hair corkscrew in front of each ear, stood behind a showcase which contained graveyard and rogues' gallery pictures, interspersed by finer ones bought at high-toned galleries, the names of whose proprietors had been plastered over with the name of the proprietor of the house she represented.

She handed to the newcomers greasy looking tickets which looked as if they had done duty in a Chatham street restaurant, before that thoroughfare got tired and changed its name to Park row. These tickets represented four "imperials" for $1, which was the limit of the game played in that establishment. Then the two sat down to await their return and to be watched by the other waiters.

A man in the rear room was aiming a camera at a woman with a baby on her lap. The baby evidently imagined that the camera was a cannon, and that the man who was hiding behind it was either going to blow his head off or was going to jump out and say "Boo!" for he screamed until the spectators could see away down his throat to where his breastpin was fastened. Every time the man had things fixed, and the woman was looking her sweetest and had her hands, that resembled Cincinnati twin hams, spread over the baby's stomach, and the baby had pulled his upper lip back over his forehead to the starting place, and the cap had been taken from the bull's-eye of the machine, the baby would suddenly remember that he hadn't had his dinner, or would spring the trap of his safety pin, or would be startled by the gape of the awful collywobble, for he would begin to pucker, and then, as his lip went back over his forehead he would howl in fourteen languages, and the baby would disappear and naught could be seen but a big red hole in a mammoth [illegible] like Cincinnati ham, the whole illuminated for the cause of the latest disturbance.

After half a dozen trials the man caught the baby's mouth in partial repose and caught the picture. When finished it was pretty hard to tell which was the baby and which was the mother, or where the hams left off and where the howl began, but the undertaker prevailed upon the mother to believe that it was a perfect likeness of her infant, and, after having charged her an extra half dollar for additional trouble, she departed, apparently satisfied, but leaving a streak of dowl behind her which reached down to the sand and had to be wiped off.

"Next!" remarked the face spoiler, and a slovenly dressed woman with a small boy entered the studio.

"Johnny's going to speak a piece at a school exhibition and he thought we'd like to have him take it, [illegible] he's going to take it to-day," said she.

"We want to have him took just as he'll look when he's a-saying, 'Rome, Romings, countrymens, lend me your ears.' He's practiced for it an' we want it took nice, even if it costs a little extry."

"Yes'm," remarked the photographer.

"You'll take extry pains, now won't you?"

"Oh, yes'm!" (talking to his one) "I'll take extra pains. Put on a double extra lens. It'll only be half a dollar extra, but will please you anyhow. We only use that lens when we take the Murray Hill children and on Sunday, none of them will be here and it's a wreck anyway. But you mustn't mention it to any of their parents."

"Not for the world," said the woman, trying to look tony and gushing with pride.

He took out the lens, went into the "dark room," brought the same clear back and executed it in the instrument.

The loving mamma placed Johnny in the position of bestowing the taste of his friends, Romans and countrymen. No body in the congregation could imagine why Johnny wanted to strike so many people for ears, for Johnny had a surplus of ears in his own treasury. He wasn't much taller than a fire hydrant, and he wore a little seersucker coat and trousers that had evidently gone up to admire the brass buttons on his coat and which gave the impression that somebody had been pulling his legs to ascertain if he was in.

His mother placed one foot before the other and bent his right knee. Then she placed her hands alongside of his mouth and screwed it up into an ejaculatory shape. She bent the left arm with the [illegible] his head, and then placed his fist hand, opened, beside its mouth.

She stood off and admired him, and then said that all was ready and that he must stand "perfectly quiet."

The operator had just screwed Johnny's head up into the clamps when he dropped his pose, and howling with pain turned around and ejaculated:

"Y'aint goin' to put my head into no ice tonns, even if I am goin' ter be an Italian senator."

His mother took him into a corner and shook the cruelty more by the laying on of hands, and when he returned he looked much refreshed and had his picture taken all right. It looked very much like him, only there were those in the audience who were mean enough to insinuate that it looked like a coal scuttle on legs, so wide was [illegible]'s expression and so short were his legs.

A sickly girl with skin-curtain pantalettes and corkscrew eyes, came next. She looked straight across the bridge of her nose with both eyes. Her mamma was angry with the operator because he depicted her cross-eyed, and he afterward colored them straight, put three gilt rings on her fingers, and a gilt watch chain around her neck, and charged her a dollar extra.

The writer and his friend after a while had their likenesses taken, telling the photographer that they were going to a masquerade. The picture very much resembled a pump and an ash barrel wrapped up to keep them warm, but time was getting precious and they had to away. They, therefore, away'ed, carrying with them a leaden quarter and a plugged half dollar in change as souvenirs of the festivities.

These places are, for the most part, frequented by strangers in town and by the poorer classes of people of the east side. They are, too, frequented by the genus "Bowery b'hoy and his gal," who desire to present their pictures to each other or to their friends for publication in the domestic "forty-rag album," as this photograph album is termed in the Bowery dialect.

In one of the galleries was met a couple of this kind. "Mose" was togged out in his Sunday best, as was "Lize."

"Dey wanned deir mugs tuk an' dey didn't want enny cuff about it—yunnerstan'? Dey didn't care how much it cost so's it wus got up in good shape—d'yer see? Dere wus no flies on dem—grab! An' if dere wus enny funny biz dey'd butcher de box. Ketch on?"

That is the way in which the young couple put it, more forcibly than elegantly, to the "rumrod," as he called the photographer. Mose had on a back away coat. The most of it had been cut away by his natural predisposition for coal boxes and street wagons instead of a bed of nights. He looked as if he had been poured into his trousers while hot, and his shoes were turned up at the toes, and if he had been lying down he might have been mistaken for a dilapidated toboggan on strike. He was chewing tobacco at the rate of forty knots a minute, and he hit the stove door twice out of three times. "Lize" was gaudily dressed, and wore all the colors of the rainbow. She exhibited her profession by her conversation and manners, and she had evidently supplied the money "fur der picnic," as she termed it.

They were given first chance by the others in waiting and, standing before the camera, they struck attitudes, and smiled so sweetly upon each other that the camera was almost cracked. When the alleged pictures had been taken they insisted upon the photographer literally smothering them with painted jewelry.

"Now youse hollerin'," said "Mose," as he pocketed the pictures. "Dem looks like Count Gowanus an' de Queen Victory, an' don't yer furgit bit. Bon sworre!" And they went out looking as happy as two Egyptian mummies who had just been discovered.

An old Irish woman was the next victim. She wanted her "pleter taken fur her sisther in Oireland, an' plaze put a gud silk dress an me an' doiment earrings in me ears, so't they'll be thinkin' Oi'm in fluenzy sarcumstances." The bill was filled, and the old woman went away delighted, with a picture as much resembling Mr. Crowley up at Central Park as a human being.

In some of these places ready-made pictures are kept on draught. The writer and the artist saw the trick played on a sailor, who was too full for utterance. The operator fixed him in the chair, went through the motions of taking a picture, and then handed him sixteen tintypes in one sheet, which the loaded sailor looked at blear eyed, remarked that he "didn' spect such a big un" and paid a dollar, as the operator told him that he would only charge him half price, as he had mistaken the order. The sheet contained sixteen half-inch pictures of a head of a nondescript.

"Aren't you afraid that he'll sober up and come back and break up the business?" asked the writer.

"He's too drunk to find the place again, and he'll be on board of ship or in the station house before night. The business wouldn't be hurt if he did come back. He'd be the one that'd be broken up. He'll mash that picture all to pieces before morning."

There are a few respectable and legitimately conducted photograph galleries on the Bowery, but they are as few and far between as the legendary angels' visits, and a search warrant is necessary to apprehend them. Many of them are dens of infamy and worse, where the unwary are entrapped and led to the first steps in the downward road to ultimate poverty and Potter's Field.

The writer and his companion, having satisfied their desires, went home with the data for this sketch. At Canal street they overtook a policeman who had been arrested by the sailor above referred to. The sailor had arrested the poor policeman merely because the latter had refused to praise his photograph, which he had been showing to everybody on the street. They both slept in the station house that night, the policeman up stairs in a nice warm bed, and the sailor down stairs where he got full of station house feathers, alias whitewash.

So much for a Sunday in the Bowery photograph traps.

ABOUT PEARLS.

Their Purity and Beauty—Where They Are Found and Their Value.

Never have pearls been more popular or commanded such high prices as during the past ten years. At present nothing is considered in better taste than the pearl, on account of its purity and subdued beauty.

This unusual demand has had the effect of greatly stimulating the search for them, especially on the west coast of Australia, at Thursday Island, the Society Archipelago, in Ceylon and the Persian Gulf and also along the coast of Lower California. The demand includes pearls of all colors, except the inferior yellow.

The fine black pearls from Lower California have been in great request, single ones bringing as much as $3,000. With these black pearls are found many beautiful gray and grayish brown pearls.

The different fisheries of the world produce fully $2,000,000 worth annually, of which [illegible] Lower California alone produces probably one-sixth. Kentucky, Tennessee and Texas have given us over $10,000 worth of pearls per annum; their remarkable fresh water pearls, especially the pink ones, which are unrivaled for delicacy of tint.

The finding of two bushels of these in the Turner group of mounds in the Little Miami Valley, Ohio, by Professor F. W. Putnam, gives us a faint idea of how plentiful they were before the arrival of the Europeans. But within the last five years many of the fancy colored pearls have received their variety of color not from nature, but by artificial means.—North American Review.

Constipation

IS a universal and most troublesome disorder. It causes Headache, Mental Depression, Impairs the Sight and Hearing, destroys the Appetite, and, when long continued, causes Enlargement of the Liver, Inflammation of the Bowels, and Piles. Constipation is speedily cured by Ayer's Pills.

For a number of months I was troubled with Costiveness, in consequence of which I suffered from Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, and a disordered liver. My eyes also troubled me. I was compelled to wear a shade over them, and, at times, was unable to bear exposure to the light. I was entirely three boxes of Ayer's Pills. I have no hesitation in pronouncing this medicine to be the best cathartic ever made.—James Eccles, Roland, Ohio.

I suffered from Constipation, and, consequently, from Headache, Indigestion, and Piles, for years. Ayer's Pills, which I took at the suggestion of a friend, have given me effectual relief. I commenced taking this remedy two months ago, and am now free from Constipation, the removal of which has caused my other troubles to disappear, and greatly improved my general health.—W. Keeler, Amherst, Mass.

I suffered from Constipation, which assumed such an obstinate form that I feared a stoppage of the bowels. Two boxes of Ayer's Pills cured me, completely.—D. Burke, Saco, Me. ††

I have doctored for the last three years with leading physicians, and have taken many medicines which were recommended to me without relief, but after taking eight of Parmelee's Pills I was quite relieved, and now I feel as free from the disease as before I was troubled."

The Channel Improvements.

The specifications for the improvements to be made at the mouth of the Fraser this year includes some 40 mattrasses similar to those sunk last year. This number is just double that of last year, when 20 were laid down. The mattresses have performed all that was expected of them, and stood the strain of high water and vast quantities of floating driftwood without suffering damage. They are now filled and securely banked with silt and are dry at low tide. With the addition of 40 mattrasses, some dredging at the sandheads and the other improvements contemplated the channel will soon be made accessible to all classes of vessels.

Removing Snags.

The snagboat Samson left for the North Arm this morning and will be engaged for some days in removing snags from the river which interfere with the nets of fishermen and have caused them considerable losses from time to time. As these snags are all below the surface of the water it is hard to locate them, but Capt. Grant has a very easy and practical method of discovering their whereabouts. An old net is cast in the usual way and allowed to drift down stream till it catches a snag. The boat Samson is then put to work and the snag removed, after which the same operation is repeated until the channel is clear. After this work is finished the Samson will be docked for repairs.

Fire at Port Moody.

On Sunday the roof of the pumping house at Port Moody took fire and in a few minutes the entire building was in danger of being destroyed, along with the engine and other machinery in it. A number of men were soon on the spot and worked hard to keep the flames from spreading, but it is doubtful if their efforts would have been successful except for the assistance given by Mr. Elson and his son, who were armed with hand force pumps, and finally succeeded in getting the fire under control. It is fortunate the building and machinery were saved, as Port Moody is one of the most important water stations on the line, and the company's works in Vancouver depend on it for the necessary supply.

Police Court.

(Before T. C. Atkinson, P. M., and W. N. Bole, J. P.

Joseph Kennear, proprietor of the Union Hotel, charged with supplying an Indian named Joe Stewart with an intoxicant, pleaded guilty, but said that he was told that Stewart was a half-breed.

Mr. Bole remarked that a drunken half-breed was no improvement on a drunken Indian, and he considered that the law was at fault in discriminating against them. However, if Kinnear was under the impression that Stewart was a half-breed, coupled with the fact that the police gave the hotel a good character, and further stated that he believed Kinnear might have been mislead into thinking that Stewart was a half-breed owing to the fact that he speaks English remarkably well, and generally acts more like a half-breed than an Indian, it would be hard to impose a heavy penalty on a man who appeared to have broken the law by inadvertence.

Case remanded till Thursday.

Joe was in the employ of Mr. Jas. Cunningham for several years and gave the utmost satisfaction. He was a regular member of the Catholic Church (not the Methodist Church as stated yesterday), and paid close attention to his duties.

Fred. Clarke, a half-breed, was charged by a number of people with indecently exposing his person on Columbia street at various times. The prisoner through his council pleaded not guilty to each charge. On application of the prosecution, the case was remanded until Friday next, with the condition that if not then ready to proceed, a further adjournment will be made till Monday, 3rd September.

First-Class Depot Buildings.

Large Brick Depot Building on Lytton Square and Passenger House and Hotel at Brownsville.

The president of the Westminster-Southern Railway, Mr. Douglas, has received plans for the terminal depot buildings to be erected on Lytton Square, and also for the passenger house and hotel to be erected at Brownsville, on the south side of the river. The Westminster depot, to be erected on Lytton square, is to be of brick, and measures on the ground plan 105 feet long by 35 feet wide, is two stories high with a mansard roof; height of walls 32 feet; from plinth to ridge is 50 feet, and to top of central tower on Columbia street 72 feet. On the ground floor are the usual offices, baggage, and waiting rooms, with other conveniences. On the first floor are 16 distinct apartments for the various offices connected with such an establishment, besides main stairway landing and passages. The attic is eight feet high in the clear. An eight-feet wide verandah, with projecting roof, extends on the water front and on the east side of the building, the whole is to be built of brick, and from the general design would appear to be a first-class modern railway depot.

The plans for the "passenger house and hotel" to be erected at Brownsville form three sides of a parallelogram. The main building, running north and south, is, on the plan, 134 ft. 6 ins. long by 27 feet wide; two stories and a mansard, with a center tower over the front (eastern) entrance, 68 feet high; from base to top of finial, and two end mansard towers, 54 feet high. The south wing, which is one story with a mansard roof, is 62 feet deep by 38 feet wide, and is intended for a dining room. The north wing, facing the river, is 65 feet deep by 23 feet wide, two stories, and is intended for kitchen, with all the necessary adjuncts, on the ground floor. Between the two wings and in rear of the main building is a covered and enclosed passage way between the kitchen and dining room, containing pantries, &c. The upper floors are designed for the accommodation of the officers. An open court-yard, 56x50 feet, facing the west, enclosed on three sides, is to contain a large water cistern for the use of the building, which is to be built of wood, with a rustic finish outside. This, though not as substantial looking as the brick depot on Lytton square, will have a rather superior artistic appearance and will form a first-class passenger house and hotel combined.

Mining News.

Mr. F. Fooks has returned from Illecillewaet and brings the latest news from that district. The Illecillewaet Silver Mining Co. have their tunnel 80 feet into the mountain and expect to strike the main lead in about 15 or 20 feet more. Several large and a number of small veins have been struck up to date, but the object of the tunnel is to strike to the main lead which is expected to prove very rich.

The promoters of the Vancouver smelting works have paid a visit to the district for the purpose of inspecting the ores and obtaining information as to the possible supply. They announced that the smelter would not purchase ores until next spring as there was no room to store it in Vancouver. This was serious and unexpected news to many miners who had large gangs of men at work getting out ore, and had the effect of causing most of the mines to close down as few of the companies were wealthy enough to continue the output and leave the stock in hand unsold. As it does not pay to ship ores to the States most of the mines will be closed until next season.

The Lanark mine is sinking another drift to strike the ledge 200 feet lower down than the present slope. The object of this is to enable them to work a double outfit when running is resumed.

Corbett and Kennedy have 2,000 tons of ore mined and ready for treatment, but have reduced their staff of men and stopped operations owing to the want of a convenient market. They have eight men employed running test shafts into the lead.

At Toad mountain things are flat owing to the want of a smelter to ship ores to.

Some valuable silver finds have been made lately on Fish Creek, from 13 to 20 miles southeast of Illecillewaet. Many prospectors are crowding in and good results are looked for. Those who have already made discoveries and staked claims are cutting a trail from Illecillewaet to the creek for the purpose of getting in supplies. Specimens brought out and descriptions of leads discovered indicate that Fish Creek will become famous before long.

If a smelter were in operation in the province the Illecillewaet mines alone could supply it with thousands of tons of ore every month.

From the clerk of the municipality of Surrey, enclosing resolution regarding the surrender of the ferry charter. On motion the resolution was adopted and the mayor given power to conclude the arrangements.

From the attorney-general, as follows:—

VICTORIA, B. C. Aug. 23, 1888.

To ROBERT DICKINSON, Esq., Mayor of New Westminster:

Sir, Your communication, addressed to the Hon. the Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works, dated August 16th, 1888, relative to the extension of the limits of the New Westminster Municipality to the south side of the Fraser River so as to include a certain portion the Municipality of Surrey, has been referred to this department.

I beg to state that on the occasion of the previous application, Mr. Bole, Q.C., on behalf of the New Westminster Corporation, attended the members of the Executive and ably supported the application; and, after Mr. Bole had retired, the Executive concluded the application must be refused on the ground that there was no power in the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council to authorize the contracting of the limits of the Surrey Municipality except for police purposes, an objection that was pointed out to Mr. Bole during the discussion and to which I believe there is no answer.

I verbally communicated the refusal to Mr. Bole on the following morning.

It is only right to say that the Executive felt regret at their inability to accede to the application, a regret which was shared in by every minister, every one of whom during the discussion with Mr. Bole, expressed their thorough willingness and desire to grant the application if it were within the power of the government.

We wish indeed that your renewed application could be acceded to, but the objection remains as stated above, and I have respectfully to inform you that the application cannot be granted.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
ALEX. E. B. DAVIE,
Attorney-General.

From W. Norman Bole, asking for grade of sidewalk on Agnes street and Mary street. Granted.

On motion, a summons was ordered to be taken out against McBroom.

Ald. Herring reported that Mr. Peele would not accept the amount tendered by the city for his services as returning officer.

On motion, it was decided that Capt. Peele be paid $15 for his services.

On motion, it was decided to notify Mr. Edmonds that the water lots he applied for were required for railroad purposes.

Mr. Wintemute's offer regarding the bridge over Clarkson street was laid over until the end of the year.

Ald. Elliott said he had been informed numerous prisoners were kept in the lockup day after day without a magistrate to try them. He thought the matter should be looked into.

On motion, the police committee was ordered to make a thorough investigation of the affair, and other matters connected with the police court.

On motion, the board of works were instructed to prepare plans and specifications for a bridge leading to the property in rear of the Baptist church.

The council then adjourned.
