NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Emperor of Austria officially announces that he wants the anniversary of his accession to the throne to be commemorated only by acts of public charity. His first demand in this direction is a request that no addresses or deputations make him their victim. A discerning public in Austria and elsewhere will please take notice what constitutes real charity.

Education has been carried to such an extent in Germany that the government has felt itself forced to step in, and compel a lightening of the weight of school books carried by the children. German children now carry their books in a knapsack. The police are now ordered to stop children weighted too heavily, get their address, and bring their fathers to court to be fined for overloading.

Montreal has the honour of producing the most remarkable explanation yet suggested of the Whitechapel murder mystery, says an exchange. It is declared in cold print that the murders are not murders at all. The bodies found are merely "subjects." They have done duty in the dissecting room, and are distributed around Whitechapel simply because the medical schools find that this is the easiest way of getting rid of them. This should be cabled to the London police for their information. Perhaps the police do not know that bodies found twoor three minutes after the breathing has stopped may have been for days in a dissecting room.

The statistics which were recently published of the number of offences against law or discipline committed by British soldiers provoked many sapient comments from the Anglophobist section of the American press, all reflecting more or less upon the character of the rank and file of the British army. It appears from the latest report relative to the United States army that our neighbours make a less favourable showing than Great Britain The maximum enlisted strength of the United States army is 25,000 men, and during the past year there have been no fewer than 1,730 courts-martial and 20,447 trials before garrison and regimental courts for various offences. These figures give an exceedingly high average of infractions of discipline.

Says an exchange: Sir John Thompson and Sir A. P. Caron went to New York to learn how the Americans conduct campaigns. The morning after their arrival they were astonished to discover in the papers an announcement that their visit was in connection with the distribution of British gold to the amount of fifteen millions of dollars. It appears that they were supposed to have brought this money from England via Ottawa, with a view to expending it corruptly on our incorruptible neighbours. The ministers have learned the use of the foreign gold argument in a campaign. But they need not have gone outside of Canada for the information they have gleaned. Yankee gold is a prominent factor—on paper—in every election here.

The case of a father who took the law into his own hands and avenged an injury done to his young daughter has created considerable excitement in the London criminal courts. Grace Young, a pretty shop girl, was deceived by the brother of the proprietor of the shop where she was employed. Her father went to the betrayer and demanded that he should marry the girl. On the man's refusing, Young drew a revolver and fired two shots, wounding the seducer in the neck and the thigh. Being arrested, Young declared he had only intended to frighten the man, whose heartless selfishness was admitted by his counsel, when the case came to trial, and who admitted that he was the father of Grace Young's child, and that he had treated another girl in the same manner, but had married the latter. Young, under these circumstances, was bound over to keep the peace but released with a warning from the judge.

Out of Sorts.—Symptoms, Headache, loss of appetite, furred tongue, and general indisposition. These symptoms, if neglected, develop into acute disease. It is a trite saying that an "ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and a little attention at this point may save months of sickness and large doctor's bills. For this complaint take from one to three of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills on going to bed, and one or two for three nights in succession, and a cure will be effected.

Small Boy—Ma! ma! We've got to get away from here. It's dangerous. They're cannibals! I was just helping Billy tie the cat to the dog's tail at the gutter when Mr. Hawkins came to the kitchen door, and he called out, "Wife, get everything ready as quick as you can; we'll have that fat Mr. Johnson for dinner, and his wife and baby for supper."—Judge.

Whist players will be interested to know that all thirteen of the trumps were recently dealt in a hand, and that, too, under circumstances that quite forbid trickery. According to Pole, the recognized authority, the odds against such an occurance are as 157,750,000,000 to 1.

Miss Macdonald, sister of the premier, died at Kingston yesterday morning, after an illness extending over several weeks. Sir. John left for Kingston on Saturday, and was therefore in time to see her before her demise. The deceased lady has for many years lived with her late sister, Mrs. Williams, wife of Rev. Prof. Williams, of Queen's College. She was a devoted member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian congregation, of Kingston, and was a constant worker in connection with philanthropic and missionary schemes.

A DANGEROUS BRUTE.

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—A large black bear which a butcher at Parkdale was fattening up to kill at Christmas, broke its chain and escaped last night. While roaming the streets it attacked a young man named John Shaw, and before help came it almost killed him. He ate a large piece out of the thigh and calf of the leg and hugged him until he fainted with pain. His body was terribly lacerated. The police arrived and finally killed the bear, and Shaw was sent to the hospital.

Foster, who left here yesterday, presented the claims of the estate of Charles Butterfield against Mexico for war materials and ships of war to the amount of $20,000,000. In those opened were found money, postal notes and negotiable paper aggregating in value $484,157.50.

CHAMBERLAIN-ENDICOTT PARTICULARS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Quietly, simply, in the presence of British relations, personal friends, members of Washington official society and several hundred of the general public, Hon. Joseph Chamberlain and Miss Mary Endicott were married at 2 o'clock this afternoon in St. John's Episcopal church. The church was absolutely without floral or other decorations. No cards or formal invitations had been issued. There were no best men or bridesmaids, and the entire service was characterized by extreme simplicity. Such friends of the family as had been verbally invited took seats in the body of the church half an hour before the ceremony began, and the cabinet meeting ended early to permit the members to be present at the service. They came in most cases accompanied by their wives. The president and Mrs. Cleveland entered the church just before 2 o'clock and were escorted to seats in a pew in the first row. Mr. Chamberlain entered the church at 2 o'clock and waited at the chancel. His appearance was a signal to the organist, who immediately began to play the wedding march from Lohengrin, and the bride, leaning on her father's arm, attired in a pearl gray travelling dress, wearing a dark bonnet, passed up the right aisle, and joining the bridegroom, knelt beside the altar. Rev. Dr. Leonard, assisted by Rev. Mr. Franks, of Salem, Mass., performed the Episcopal wedding service. Both the bride and groom gave back the responses in an audible voice. Prayer was pronounced and Joseph Chamberlain and Mary Endicott were made man and wife. Again the organ pealed forth and to its strains the party slowly passed along the left aisle out of the church and into carriages and were driven immediately to the house of the bride's parents. Among the notables present besides President and Mrs. Cleveland were Mrs. Whitney, Mrs. Fairchild, Mrs. Dickenson, Misses Bayard, Miss. Vilas, Secretarys Bayard, Fairchild, Whitney and Vilas, Postmaster-General Dickinson, Justice Lamar, the Misses Hunt, Mrs. Samuel Ward, John Hay, Captain John F. Rodgers, Mrs. Riddle, Misses Macomb and General Greely. The reception was held in the residence of the secretary and the newly-married couple received the congratulations of the invited guests. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain drove to the Pennsylvania railway station, and it is supposed went to New York, although the destination is not known even to the bride's parents. They will return to Washington within a week as the guests of Secretary Endicott a few days. On the 25th they sail for Europe.

Miss Mary Campbell, Elm, writes: "After taking four bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, I feel as if I were a new person. I had been troubled with Dyspepsia for a number of years, and tried many remedies, but of no avail, until I used this celebrated Dyspeptic Cure." For all impurities of the Blood, Sick Headache, Liver and Kidney Complaints, Costiveness, etc., it is the best medicine known.

Old Jenkins happened to meet his three young nieces and asked them to have a little refreshment. "Girls are just the same," said the old man as he stood at the cashier's desk and picked up $2.35 out of a $20 bill, "very little change!"—Life.

ENGLAND AT WASHINGTON.

LONDON, Nov 17.—It is stated to-day that as England's representation at Washington is second to none in importance, it ought to be made a position commanding the very best and most practical ability in the service of the foreign office. As it is not an embassy, however, those diplomats who have attained the rank of ambassador, would regard it as beneath their dignity to go to Washington. England has seven embassies, all in Europe. England's representative at Washington is an envoy and minister, the first of the second-class officials. Technically, the difference is this, that an ambassador is accredited directly to the chief of the state, and can demand an audience of the sovereign or president at any time, while an envoy has not that privilege. In practice there is little difference, except that the post at Washington is regarded as inferior to that at seven of the European capitals, and that the best men aim at an embassy which carries with it a higher salary and a higher pension.

AFFAIRS IN THE EAST.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The massing of Russian troops on the German and Austrian frontiers is causing an uneasy feeling in diplomatic circles. The strengthening of the Russian frontier forces is undoubtedly the result of the Slav agitation now going on in Bosnia, Herzegovina and the Balkan States, and is regarded by the Russian authorities as a necessary preparation in view of the insurrectionary feeling prevailing among the peoples of these small states, especially in Servia, where King Milan's divorce has so sharply divided the the Servians that an outbreak is possible at any moment. Austria has been quietly reinforcing her garrisons in Bosnia and Herzegovnia, and has made preparations to send a force into Servia in the event of a formidable outbreak there. Russia has notified the dual monarchy that if the Austrian troops entered Servia the Russian troops would immediately occupy Bulgaria, and that it was no idle treat is indicated by two more divisions being added to each of the frontier garrisons. The fact is leading statesmen now believe that the issue caused by the Rosso-Turkish war of 1877 was settled in such a manner as to make it exceedingly difficult to keep the peace. The appearance of Austria in Bosnia and Herzegovnia, which was then hailed by the central European powers as "glad tidings of great joy" is now admitted by the representatives of those powers to be by far the most serious obstacle in the way of a lasting peace. It is difficult to induce the Russians to refrain from occupying Bulgaria when they see Austria in Bosnia. Rightly or wrongly they regard an Austrian occupation of Bosnia and Herzegovnia as an encroachment upon the purly Slav world, to which they cannot and will not consent. The thought of Austria in Bosnia annoys the Russians almost as much as the thought of the Germans in Alsace annoys the French.

CHARGE AGAINST PRINCE BISMARCK.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The St. Petersburg Messenger makes a surprising charge against Prince Bismarck. It says that in 1863, he then being in the diplomatic service of Prussia, and pretending all the time to be acting for the czar, entered into a plot for the annexation of Russian Poland to Prussia. It is not as much the charge itself as the fact that the Russian censorship should allow it to be published in St. Petersburg journals that excited astonishment.

Daily British Columbian

Several of our cotemporaries have been discussing recently the duty of the "true journalist." The Vancouver World in an article last week sums up its ideas on the subject as follows: "Our conception of a true journalist is that he must set aside his personal opinions—be they political or religious convictions—sacrifice his own self as it were—for the purpose of serving the cause of his employers." The News, not without reason, holds up its hands in holy horror at the enunciation of these principles, and, speaking for itself, says: "Our conception of an honest and pure press is that they should so act in all matters that the great audience they have, their multitude of readers, will, when an opinion on any subject is expressed by a newspaper, be willing to accept it as a fair and accurate decision or view based upon a complete and intimate knowledge of the facts, and upon nothing else." The Victoria Times of Saturday last, taking the World to task for its views, declares that, "The duty of the true journalist is to expound the views and principles of the party with which he is identified, and in order to do that he must be in accord with the policy of the party." This, certainly, is rather a narrow and limited code for a "true journalist," when one considers the multifarious questions with which he has to deal besides politics, but, as a motto for a party organ, it is, doubtless, honest and comprehensive enough. If our cotemporary of the News sticks to his conception of the duty of an "honest and pure press," he is not likely to go far wrong. With regard to the expression of what our friend of the World conceives to be the beau ideal of a true journalist, we believe it requires a little analysis. Our cotemporary appears to assume, for the purpose of his argument at least, that the "true journalist" is not the proprietor—the responsible controller—of the paper in which his written words appear, but a hireling, who writes for his master. In that case we should overlook the journalist altogether, as a mere machine, and hold his master, who controls at once the journalist's pen and the policy of the paper, responsible for the utterances of the journal in question. We do not mean to say that all journalists (not proprietors) who write for hire are hirelings, in the offensive sense of the term, or mere machines; but we must say that such are little better, who adopt the principles laid down by our cotemporary of the World for journalists who are employees. If our cotemporary had said that the principles enounced by himself were quite commonly practised by journalists who wrote for hire, no one could object to the truth of the statement. But, however conventional our cotemporary's conception of a "true journalist" may be, we must dissent altogether from elevating such an expressed conception into an ideal. We do not know why the World, which, we understand, is edited by one of its proprietors, should have taken the trouble to elaborate principles which cannot apply in its own case. We give our cotemporary credit for being better than its professions.

For nearly a month back different versions of a story, to the effect that a wealthy young Englishman had wedded a Sioux Indian maiden in Dakota, have been passing current in the American press. The Chicago magazine, America, a most reputable publication, gives the following account of the somewhat unique affaire d'amour, which is circumstantial and fervid enough to suit the wildest romancer: "The affections of another American heiress have been won by a Briton, but this time the maiden is of copper hue, and her estates consist of wigwams and ponies. Henry Ashburton, the son of a wealthy manufacturer of Leeds, was recently visiting a Sioux agency with some friends. While preparing dinner in their tent the first day after their arrival, a daughter of one of the leading chiefs entered, approached the astonished young Briton, threw her arms around his neck, and repeatedly covered his neck with kisses. Though considerably surprised, the young man made no attempt to interfere with the girl's strange behavior — he seemed too well pleased with the performance; and when she ceased showering kisses he in turn caught her up in his arms with an affectionate hug and kiss. He seemed pleased by this show of love, and returned her passionate caresses. Soon after an interpreter dropped in, and he was informed of the remarkable proceedings. He told the travelers that that the girl had undoubtedly taken a liking to their companion, and, in accordance with the Sioux laws, he must be her brave should she demand him. The others remonstrated, but the young man was only too happy to abide by that law and make the pretty young squaw his bride at a moment's notice. The pleadings and expostulations of his companions had no effect upon him, and the marriage ceremony was performed according to the Indians' strange fashion. Probably the sufferings of this Pocahontas, when her pale-faced lord tires of her charms, will be no greater than those of the average American girl who throws away her life upon some vicious lordling, and awakes to find that coronets are but dross and affection cannot be bought."

It is positively refreshing, after wading through the sickening political cant of the American partisan press, which has been aggravated tenfold as the climax of the late presidential campaign approached, to read the ringing, truthful utterances of an honest and independent journalist, who sees his country's political by-play as others see it, and does not scruple to tear off the thin veneer and expose the selfishness and the farcical side of the great presidential hipprodrome. "Now that the presidential contest is over," says America, "and the struggle for the Irish vote is ended, the country will once more return to its normal state of activity, and men's minds will revert from the political strife to the every-day affairs of life. Business interests will once more assume a healthy guise, and politics being relegated to the professional politicians, men in private life will become engrossed in private ventures, assuming toward the affairs of the nation an air of supine indifference. Four years hence the two great parties will renew the struggle for supremacy; a real or imaginary issue will arise; two tickets will be placed in nomination by two bodies of professional politicians purporting to represent their respective parties, but in reality consisting of several hundred apostles of place and plunder, and two grandiloquent declarations of principles will be adopted, not intended to be fulfilled, but to catch votes. From Maine to Oregon men's passions will be aroused over the partisan struggle; a stagnation of business will ensue, and the great mass of the American people will be cojoled or coerced into voting for one candidate or the other, only to find that in the ensuing four years the promises of the victors are unfulfilled, and the evils of partisan misrule are as rife as ever. Such is American politics. Reformers there are, to be sure, but their efforts to ameliorate the present state of affairs are but puny essays drowned by demagogic corruption. If the reformer strive to correct abuses within his party he is ridiculed as an impractical theorist; if he withdraw from his party with the hope of administering a deserved defeat, he is denounced as a traitor by his friends and viewed with suspicion by his new allies. What is to be done? What is the first evil to be remedied? These are the questions which demaud a solution." After a clear and forcible chain of reasoning, at considerable length, and several illustrations well to the point, the writer in America concludes perfectly logically: "Not only should the president be ineligible for re election, but his term of office should be extended to six years in order that the country may be saved the turmoil and business stagnation accompanying frequent presidential elections. The arguments against such a measure are many, but its advantages outweigh them tenfold. Such a reform is not an idle demand of a sentimental theorist; it is prompted by experience, and is aimed at one of the greatest evils of the American political system. One hundred years ago, when our constitution was framed, our country was but a neocracy; shall we not profit by the trial of time and correct an abuse which experience has proved to be the gravest error of that constitution?" The dual reform which our American cotemporary urges in connection with presidential matters must strike every one at all conversant with the subject as a most admirable prescription for the crying ills which it is sought to abate. For the credit and welfare of our neighbor, the great republic, as well as for the peace and comfort of those nations (our own among the number) with whom she is necessarily brought into contact, we trust that the efforts of reformers—true patriots like America—may prevail over rampant demagogism and corruption.

Perfect Hair

Indicates a natural and healthy condition of the scalp, and of the glands through which nourishment is obtained. When, in consequence of age and disease, the hair becomes weak, thin, and gray, Ayer's Hair Vigor will strengthen it, restore its original color, promote its rapid and vigorous growth, and impart to it the lustre and freshness of youth.

I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a long time, and am convinced of its value. When I was 17 years of age my hair began to turn gray. I commenced using the Vigor, and was surprised at the good effects it produced. It not only restored the color to my hair, but so stimulated its growth, that I have now more hair than ever before.—J. W. Edwards, Coldwater, Miss.

Sold by all Druggists and Perfumers.

IF YOU ARE SUFFERING from debility and loss of appetite; if your stomach is out of order, or your mind confused; take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine will restore physical force and elasticity to the system, more surely and speedily than any tonic yet discovered.

For six months I suffered from liver and stomach troubles. My food did not nourish me, and I became weak and very much emaciated. I took six bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and was cured.—J. M. Palmer, Springfield, Mass. ††

FEEING THE DOMINIE.

Those old questions concerning paying the minister for such special services as confirmations, baptisms, weddings and funeral services are again up for agitation and discussion.

People are to be found who think not only that a minister ought to work for almost nothing and find himself, but that he ought to include all these special services in the work he does for his regular salary.

It is hard on the ordinary minister. As to the few ministers who receive princely salaries, their fees are large in proportion. People who expect special services of them generally do the fair thing as to compensation.

Such special services as ought to be performed in church when the congregation is assembled are usually considered part of a minister's regular duty.

Should a minister be called to a private house to baptize a baby there is an evident propriety in making him a present of some kind in return for his kindness and as a compensation for his trouble. It may be in cash, or it may be some acceptable article for table use or for household decoration.

People who give books to ministers generally make the mistake of selecting some book which the minister does not want. Some good people who recently gave their pastor a copy of the Bible did not stop to think that he already had in his library about fifteen copies in various styles and languages.

In wedding fees it may safely be said that the man who gives none is a mean fellow, not worthy to have a good wife. He who pays only a dollar or two is not much better, unless his abject poverty is the cause of the smallness of the fee.

Why a minister should be expected to attend and conduct a funeral without charge is hard to guess. It is quite as hard work, both for mind and body, as to preach a sermon.

More attacks of clerical bronchitis and pneumonia have been suffered by going to funerals than from any other cause. The person who stands bareheaded on the cold ground or damp boards beside an open grave is apt to be reading his own death warrant while he pronounces the words of the funeral service.

In a word, the minister ought to be as squarely dealt with as any other man of any profession or calling who renders services of any kind.—New York Press.

IGNORANCE OF SANITARY LAWS.

The Work of the Engineer as Supplementary to That of the Architect.

In his census reports Dr. Billings estimates that in the United States 100,000 deaths occur over year from strictly preventable diseases alone.

This is unquestionably a very moderate estimate, and, if there are reckoned also 12 cases of serious illness for every death, we see what a great amount of suffering results from ignorance of sanitary principles.

But how is this ignorance manifested? Are not our architects competent to deal with the problem of household sanitation?

It will be said, perhaps, that it is the province of the architect to direct the entire work of house building and to arrange every detail of the fittings.

But it should be considered that the science of sanitation is broad and comprehensive. Years of study and of experience in sanitary work are necessary for a proper understanding of the subject.

It is perhaps unfortunate that there is so little in the severe and unpleasant details of this work to commend it to those whose tastes have led them to the study of the more attractive principles of artistic construction and the science of æsthetics.

An architect should have the soul of an artist, but there are few men whose nature is so broad as to combine truly artistic tastes with a love for the details of difficult mechanical work, involving the necessity for undertaking comprehensive and scientific research.

It is the province of the engineer to engage in an occupation of this kind. His natural inclinations and his rigid training in scientific pursuits fit him especially for the direction of matters relating to drainage and sewage disposal. —The Popular Science Monthly.

A GOOD DETECTIVE STORY.

The Exceptional Cleverness of an Officer Illustrated.

A lady and a gentleman were traveling together on an English railway. They were perfect strangers to each other.

Suddenly the gentleman said:

"Madam, I will trouble you to look out of the window for a few minutes; I am going to make some changes in my wearing apparel."

"Certainly, sir," she replied, with politeness, rising and turning her back upon him. In a short time he said:

"Now, madam, my change is completed, and you may resume your seat."

When the lady turned she beheld her male companion transformed into a dashing lady with a heavy veil over her face.

"Now, sir, or madam, whichever you like," said the lady, "I must trouble you to look out of the window, for I also have some changes to make in my apparel."

"Certainly, madam," and the gentleman in lady's attire immediately complied.

"Now, sir, you may resume your seat."

To his great surprise, on resuming his seat, the gentleman in female attire found his lady companion transformed into a man. He then laughed and said:

"'It appears that we are both anxious to avoid recognition. What have you done? I have robbed a bank."

"And I," said the whilom lady, as he dexterously fettered his wrists with a pair of handcuffs, "am Detective Jones of Scotland Yard, and in female apparel have shadowed you. Now," drawing a revolver, "keep still."

And he did.

LECTURING THE SLATTERN.

Some Hints for Women Who Love to Be Admired.

A woman may be handsome or remarkably attractive in various ways, but if she is not personally neat she cannot hope to win admiration.

Fine clothes will not conceal the slattern. A young woman with her hair always in disorder and her clothes hanging about her as if suspended by a prop, is always repulsive. Slattern is written on her person from the crown of her head to the soles of her feet, and if she wins a husband he will in all probability turn out either to be an idle fool or a drunken ruffian.

The bringing up of daughters to be able to work, act, and talk like honest, sensible young women, is the especial task of all mothers, and in the industrial ranks there is imposed also the prime obligations of learning how to respect household work for its own sake, and the comfort and happiness it will bring in the future.

TOURISTS IN RUSSIA.

The Discouraging Experiences Which They Are Sure To Have.

The tourist, and especially the American tourist of the cheapest kind, has at last penetrated into Russia, and for the comfort of these travelers certain arrangements have been made.

In some hotels at St. Petersburg and in one at Moscow the porter speaks English, and some of the waiters comprehend more or less. French and German are more widely understood and spoken, but it is useless to disguise the fact that the language of Russia is Russian, and without, at least, a little Russian the tourist must have a guide attached to his person.

St. Petersburg and Moscow are both vast towns; the distances from point to point are enormous; the squares are so broad that one can hardly think of walking across them; the streets measure miles in length and furlongs in width.

The consequence is that in Russia nobody walks; even the kitchen-maid who goes to market to buy a cabbage or a water-melon rides in a swift droshka. Now, these droshkas are subject to no fixed tariff; in real Oriental fashion you must bargain each time you hire one. How can you bargain without knowing something of the language?

In the museums, the churches, the public monuments and the shops, this same difficulty of language stands very much in the way of the tourist's comfort.

Such being the case in the capitals, what must be the state of affairs in minor towns? How delightful is the situation of the tourist who starts on a seventy-hour railway journey, in the course of which he may have to change trains four or five times, drive across towns from one station to another, explain to porters, ask information from station-masters or train-conductors, who understand nothing but the language of Gogol and Pouchkine!

Remember, too, that the tourist who arrives unprepared in the country cannot read even the names of the stations, which are inscribed in Slavonic letters only. In the hotels the bill of fare is unintelligible, and communication with the waiter can only take place through pantomime.

On the other hand it must be stated that in a first-class carriage on a Russian railroad you never fail to find some passenger who speaks French, and the educated Russians never seem to tire of showing kindness and courtesy to foreigners, and piloting them through traveling difficulties.

LADY HAMILTON.

The Mistress of Lord Nelson in Connection with the History of Advertising.

Lady Hamilton, whose name is preserved to posterity in association with that of Lord Nelson, is also curiously connected with the history of advertising.

In 1779, one Dr. Graham, a graduate of the University of Edinburgh and a man of elegant person, manners and address, after a charlatanish career in America, Scotland and England, opened in London a gorgeously furnished and decorated "Temple of Health," for the promotion of longevity, beauty, intellect and morals by means of electricity, magnetism, ozone and music.

His advertisements, in points of rhetorical construction and mastery of the art of playing upon human credulity, curiosity, and love of the mysterious and the forbidden, have rarely been equalled and probably have never been surpassed.

What his advertisements lacked in drawing power, the fame of his lectures within the Temple supplied. But the real "magnetism" within this crystal palace of humbug was to be found in the extraordinary charm and beauty of "Vestina, the Rosy Goddess of Health," who as "Priestess of the Temple" and seated on the "Celestial Throne," recited a lecture composed by the Doctor on the "means of preserving health, beauty and personal loveliness, and serene mental brilliancy, even to the extremest old age," serving likewise to "exhibit, in her own person, a proof of the all-blessing effects of virtue, temperance, regularity, simplicity and moderation."

This matchless divinity, whose "warm lecture" was to be had in print for half a crown, was Emma Hart, originally a nursemaid, afterwards successively a lady's maid; painters' model; courtesan; priestess of the temple, as already narrated; wife of the British ambassador at Naples and imperious mistress of the great Admiral.

For some years the Doctor and the fair but frail Emma grew in fame and fortune and impudence, and then they parted; he to sink to ultimate obscurity and penury and she to reach in time the "bad eminence" which for many generations yet to come her memory is destined to occupy. —Printers' Ink.

CENTRAL AMERICAN BANANA TREE.

A young Salvadorian, with the dark eyes and inky hair of his country, talked to a reporter the other day about the Central American banana tree.

The tree is two and a half to three feet in circumference at its base. Its tapering, fibrous stem, without a branch, is from ten to fifteen feet in height. The fibres, separated by a thin pith, are as long as the body of the tree.

These fibres are used in Salvador just as they are taken from the tree as shoe-strings and cords for all purposes. The natives use them largely for bridle reins and lariats. The raw material costs only transportation to the ropewalks.

Each banana tree bears in the twelve months of its existence only one bunch of fruit, but from two to ten trees spring from the roots of the one that has fallen. In Salvador the bunch of bananas is worth fifteen cents, and the dead tree nothing.

A cordage factory or paper mill or coffee sack maker, were not the dead trees numberless, would give for each tree ten times the value of the fruit it has produced.

Split, dried and packed, the bodies of the banana trees might be shipped profitably to the United States. There is no reason why some enterprising American should not take them in hand.

A Bride's Triple Resolution.

On the eve of my marriage I made three mental vows.

They were—never to aggravate him, never to have a secret from him, nor by any selfish or thoughtless act of mine so lead him one step toward bankruptcy.

Fifteen years afterward I told him of these vows, and although I have been a widow for ten years, I should blot this paper with my tears if I attempted to put in writing the love and tenderness of his reply.

They Were the Wrong Size.

"Those stockings are all wool, I presume," she said, as she requested the clerk to wrap her up a half dozen pairs.

"Oh, yes, miss," he answered in thoughtlessness, "they're all wool and a yard wide."

"Sir!" she exclaimed indignantly, and before he fully realized what he had said, she whisked out of the store.—Washington Critic.

Madam—"Yes, your Honor; I asked him if he would ever cease to love me, and he was so slow in answering that I hit him with a mop. I'm only a woman your Honor, (tears) and a woman's life without love is a mere blight."—Life.

A Creaking Hinge

Is dry and turns hard, until oil is applied, after which it moves easily. When the joints, or hinges, of the body are stiffened and inflamed by Rheumatism, they cannot be moved without causing the most excruciating pains. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by its action on the blood, relieves this condition, and restores the joints to good working order.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla has effected, in our city, many most remarkable cures, in cases which baffled the efforts of the most experienced physicians. Were it necessary, I could give the names of many individuals who have been cured by taking this medicine. In my case it has worked wonders, relieving me of after being troubled with it for years. In this, and all other diseases arising from impure blood, there is no remedy with which I am acquainted, that affords such relief as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.—R. H. Lawrence, M. D., Baltimore, Md.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla cured me of Gout and Rheumatism, when nothing else would. It has eradicated every trace of disease from my system.—R. H. Short, Manager Hotel Belmont, Lowell, Mass.

I was, during many months, a sufferer from chronic Rheumatism. The disease afflicted me grievously, in spite of all the remedies I could find, until I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took several bottles of this preparation, and was speedily restored to health.—J. Fream, Independence, Va. ††

THE ATTENTION OF THE PUBLIC is hereby directed to the "Provincial Health (small-pox) By-Laws, 1888," issued by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, under authority of the "Health Ordinance, 1869."

Having been appointed Provincial Health Officer for Districts lying south of Fraser River, I hereby give notice that the provisions of said By-Laws will be strictly enforced, and all persons are required to govern themselves accordingly.

Provincial Health Officer.

BY-LAWS ISSUED BY HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR-IN COUNCIL,

HIS HONOUR THE LIEUTENANT-Governor of British Columbia, by and with the advice of the Executive Council of British Columbia, acting under and by virtue of the provisions of the "Health Ordinance, 1869," enacts as follows:—

1. Whenever small-pox is present in any locality without the boundaries of any municipality, the Provincial Health Officer nearest to such locality shall at once cause the patient to be removed to an isolated hospital, tent or other suitable place, or cause such person to be otherwise sufficiently isolated, and shall see that he is properly cared for, and shall take proper measures for the disinfection, or, if necessary, the destruction of all clothing which may have been exposed to the contagion, and for the disinfection and purification of every conveyance, rail-car, steamboat, railway, vessel, carriage, or other vehicle which may have been exposed to the contagion.

2. Such Health Officer shall have, in his discretion, full power to place in another building or tent all persons who may have been exposed to the contagion, and shall cause them to be supplied with all necessaries until the period of incubation of the disease shall have elapsed, and no such person shall go, or be permitted to go, abroad, until he or she has given satisfactory proof of successful vaccination within the preceding seven years, or shall have obtained a medical certificate of insusceptibility to the vaccine disease, nor until the clothing or effects worn or carried by or with him or her have been properly disinfected, if the same have been exposed to contagion.

3. To assist the Health Officer, he shall have full power to employ persons to be nurses, sanitary policemen, and otherwise to aid in the prevention of the spread of the disease, and may himself give and enforce such reasonable directions for the same purpose as to him may seem expedient, and the nearest Government Agent shall see that all articles and necessaries required by the Health Officer are furnished.

4. It shall be the duty of every medical practitioner who shall attend upon, or give medical or surgical advice, to or about any person suffering from small-pox, to give notice forthwith after he shall have commenced so to attend or give such advice, to the nearest Provincial Health Officer. When a householder knows that a person within the house occupied by him is taken sick of small-pox, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the nearest Provincial Health Officer.

5. The Provincial Health Officer before mentioned is and includes any person appointed Health Officer under the "Health Ordinance, 1869," by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

6. The foregoing provisions shall have no effect within the limits of any Municipality, save as hereinafter mentioned.

7. In case the Council of any Municipality, whenever small-pox is present, or likely to occur therein, shall fail to make or carry out proper provisions to prevent the invasion or spread of small-pox within the Municipality, and complaint thereof shall be made to the Lieutenant-Governor by the Council of any adjacent Municipality, it shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, acting upon such complaint or in his discretion upon other information, to order that these regulations shall, until otherwise ordered, apply to and be in force within the Municipality in which such neglect occurs, and thereupon any Provincial Health Officer shall have, within and in respect of such Municipality all the authority with which he is clothed in respect of localities without Municipalities, and in such case all disbursements and expenses paid by the Province, in the carrying out within such Municipality of the foregoing regulations, shall be paid by such Municipality.

8. These regulations may be cited as the "Provincial Health (small-pox) By-Laws, 1888."

Sabbath last the dust was flying on the streets in a blinding storm. During the night it rained, Monday night it froze, and it has continued freezing every night since.—Kamloops Sentinel.

At is rumored another daily paper will shortly be established in Vancouver. The World welcomes it in advance and does not seem at all annoyed with the prospect of increased competition.

Canon Cooper, of Kamloops, has been granted six months leave of absence from his parish, and has appointed Rev. Henry Irwin as his locum tenens, with the bishop's authority and sanction.

A man named Colt was brought over from Vancouver to-day to spend two months in the provincial gaol. Colt is a notorious vagrant, bears a very unsavory character and is better fitted to be in the chain-gang than to be running at large.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla acts directly and promptly, purifying and enriching the blood, improving the appetite, strengthening the nerves, and invigorating the system. It is, in the truest sense, an alterative medicine. Every invalid should give it a trial.

On Saturday evening, in the case of Hen Cook and Ah You, charged with the murder of an Indian girl, the jury, after an absence of three hours, brought in a verdict of manslaughter against both prisoners, with a recomendation to mercy to Ah You.

Some of the jury on the Johnny and Munday case, for larceny, have taken offence at the remarks of THE COLUMBIAN on the verdict rendered by them. All things considered, our notice of the affair was much more lenient than the facts of the case demand.

The fish market is better supplied with fish than for nearly a year past as will be seen by the following list: Black cod, red cod, rock cod, halibut, herrings, salmon, sturgeon, flounders, smelts, salmon trout, and crabs. Game is also very plentiful, especially wild ducks, geese and grouse.

About nine o'clock this morning a man named Alex. McLean, in the employ of Ackerman Bros., severely sprained his back and was carried home. Medical assistance was procured and everything possible was done for the injured man, but it will be several weeks before he is able to work again.

Jones who is being tried to-day for the murder of Edward Durant, appears to take the matter very coolly and does not seem to realize the serious position he stands in. During the cross-examination of witnesses when Mr. Bole's remarks called forth laughter Jones joined in the merriment and seemed to enjoy it.

The entertainments and sale of work in aid of the Bell Tower fund on Thursday and Friday will be something unusually good. "Fairy Voices" by the children will be a delightful performance, and the Gipsy choruses, by 35 voices, ought to be a rare musical treat. The ladies will serve tea and cake both afternoons from 4 to 6 o'clock.

A woman was arrested on Saturday afternoon, on Columbia street, in a state of beastly intoxication, and conveyed to the lockup. When the constable put her under arrest she opened a tirade of abuse on him, and was free in the use of language such as few men, however profane, would care to use. She was admitted to bail yesterday but failed to appear at the police court this morning.

The Football Cup.

A most interesting ceremony took place in the Greyhound Hotel yesterday evening. This was the christening of the football cup presented by Mr. Cole. The members of the Vancouver football club gathered there in large numbers, and the cup being filled with the "sparkling" was formally named the "Greyhound Cup" by Miss Parker and Miss Hutchison, and the members present pledged themselves to do their level best to keep the cup in Vancouver for the ensuing year.—News-Advertiser.

A Smuggler's Last Trip.

Inspector Samuel Bass, of the U.S. customs located at Blaine near the British Columbia boundary, was at Port Townsend on Thursday, and reports that on the night of Oct. 23rd, during a gale of wind, an empty Whitehall boat drifted ashore at Blaine, containing 60 pounds of opium in one-half pound cans, and two flasks of whisky, but no occupant. It appeared that some smuggler had started out from the British possessions with the opium and whiskey, but had gotten drunk, and in the storm had fallen overboard and drowned. No clue to the identity of the smuggler was obtained.—Colonist.

An Unfaithful Wife.

A few days ago a well-known young man living in Seattle, on returning home from work, discovered that his wife had disappeared. Circumstances pointed to an elopement, and the insulted husband followed to Victoria, where his anxious search was rewarded. He found the truant wife, who had disgraced his name, in a house of ill-fame, and at last persuaded her to go home with him. She did not appear at all alarmed or conscience-stricken on the appearance of her husband, and received him as though nothing had happened. The couple returned to their home in Seattle by this morning's steamer.—Colonist.

Coffee House for the Sailors.

Mr. Moody, the evangelist, after holding a few meetings at Port Townsend, said, in response to a committee which desired him to prolong his labors there, that if the committee would raise a sufficient amount of money to erect a palace coffee house he (Moody) would return after he filled his appointments in Seattle and Tacoma, and give three days to laboring in this cause. The committee accepted the proposition and have already raised nearly $300 for this purpose. The object is to erect a building where sailors and anyone who desires may procure a cup of coffee and cake, and also a place where they may spend their idle moments.—Call.

A Monster Snow Plough.

A snow plough arrived in Winnipeg last Saturday from the east, which is supposed to be the best contrivance yet invented for removing the snow from the railway track. It is to be used in the mountain section in this province. The snow plough proper is the length of a box car, or probably a trifle longer, and at the front end a metal plate in which large knives are fastened, and when the plough is in use this plate revolves and the knives throw the snow from the track, completely clearing it. This plough, it is said, is capable of hurling the snow to a distance of five hundred feet. With its use it is believed the track can be kept clear very effectually.—World.

Simpson Taken Back.

Fred E. Simpson, a clerk of the Northern Pacific Express Company, disappeared from Tacoma last Tuesday taking with him $13,000 in greenbacks. He arrived in Victoria on Wednesday night and registered at the Clarence hotel as John R. Johnson, Los Angeles, California. Simpson remained in the hotel all day and left for the mainland on Thursday morning and took the Atlantic Express at Vancouver on Thursday after purchasing a ticket from Vancouver to St. Paul. Detectives arrived in Victoria on Wednesday night and telegrams were sent along the line giving a description of the thief. Conductor Barnhart of the C. P. R., received a telegram at Spencer's Bridge with a description of a man in the sleeper with a ticket for St. Paul. A guard was placed over him and telegrams were sent to Kamloops for a constable to meet the train. A few minutes before the arrival of the express train on Friday morning, Nightwatchman Thos. Armstrong received a message from Conductor Barnhart to meet the train and arrest a passenger charged with the embezzlement of a large amount of money. Acting on the message, Mr. Armstrong was on hand, and his man being pointed out by the conductor he took him into custody and marched him over to the provincial gaol. In a grip sack carried by the prisoner was found a revolver and about $12,118, while on his person was found wealth sufficient to bring the pile up to $13,000. Mr. Sullivan, of Fields' detective agency, Portland, Oregon, and Mr. A. C. Hamilton, representing the N. P. Express Co., reached Kamloops Saturday morning, and after conferring with the prisoner he consented to accompany them to Portland, where he will undergo trial. Simpson arrived at Vancouver yesterday on the Pacific Express and was immediately placed on board the American tug Katey, which was in waiting, and conveyed to Port Townsend.

As an indication that men of means are looking favorably toward Porcupine Creek as a field for investment, the sale of an interest in the Discovery claim is proof. A. Cameron, a gentleman who has had charge of the construction of government roads in the country south of Golden, is the purchaser, and Tom Horn the seller. The consideration was $500, and the interest one-fourth of 1,000 feet.—Donald Truth.

In the Billiard-room.—"What kind of a player is young Snobley?" "Very poor. He was in here last night." "Didn't he score any at all?" "I wasn't near enough to see how the game was going." "Then how do you know he is a poor player?" "I was near enough to see that he chalked his cue every five minutes."

There is truth in the remark that a bag, if empty, hangs loosely by its string, but the more there is put in it the closer is the mouth drawn and the harder it is to get anything out. So, often, as men have more means to give, it is more difficult to obtain money from them.—Florence.

FALL ASSIZES.

Mr. Bole, Q. C. and Mr. McColl for defense, and Mr. Drake, Q. C., for prosecution.

The empanneling of the jury was then proceeded with and after a great many challenges a suitable twelve was selected with Mr. W. J. Brewer as foreman.

Frank Bruneau, sworn, said: I live about 5 miles below St. Mary's Mission; I know the prisoner, he lives about a third of a mile from me and his land adjoins mine; I saw the prisoner, Jones, the day before the shooting occurred; I went to his house with Durant; Jones, his klootchman, Durant and I went down to Langley in a boat together and stayed there half an hour; we then returned to Jones' house, which was reached about 4 o'clock Saturday morning, and stayed there three hours; Jones insisted that we should all have breakfast with him; there was no quarrel of any kind up till this time between Durant and Jones; Durant and I returned to the house about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and we found Jones in the kitchen; he was alone; we sat down and the three of us had a drink together and were quite friendly; we lighted our pipes and talked for a while till finally our conversation turned on klootchmen; I don't know what Jones said first but Durant answered: "Jones you have a grudge against me about Agnes, but I declare to God I never had anything to do with her." Jones answered: "You are a lying son of a bitch." Both men then rose and Durant slapped Jones on the face several times; Durant then left the room and Jones went into the bedroom saying: "I'll kill the son of a b——h" and commenced to load the gun; I saw my cattle passing the back door and went out and had only been out a half a minute when I heard a gun shot; I went into the house by the back door and saw Jones standing with the gun in his hands and said to him: "Jones, what have you done?" and he answered: "I've killed the bastard." The gun was similar to the one produced; Durant was lying at the water's edge and called to me: "Help me Frank for God's sake, for I am dying." I ran up the railway track and met Cadotte and Preston and asked them to come down, as Jones had shot Eddie; we went down to Jamieson's first and told him what had happened and we went to the house together; Jamieson stayed talking with Jones while I went down to see how Eddie was; before we got to the house I called to Jones to know if he was still on the shoot, and he answered: "No, I have done all I want to for the present." I found Durant lying on his belly close to the water; Preston then arrived with the rope and we tied Jones up, hands and legs; Preston and I went down and brought up Durant to the steps, then into the house; the deceased's leg was nearly off; we tied his leg with a handkerchief; Preston went away for more neighbors and shortly a few came in and we laid Eddie on the bed; Jones objected to us putting Durant in his bed; I have heard Jones at different times make threats against the deceased; he said Durant was too intimate with his klootch and if he (Jones) could only kill Durant, he would be ready to die; I think it must be two years since Agnes left Jones; I have been in Jones' house several times a week; I heard him make threats against Durant two or three months before this occurred; Durant was working for me at the time of the shooting; he had been working in the neighborhood for three years; we put Jones and Durant into a boat and brought them to Westminster.

Cross-examined by Mr. Bole: I have known Jones for 5 years and Durant for 3 years; Jones frequently used vile language; Jones often called a man a son of a b--h but did not apply it frequently; Jones is not a boasting man; I would not call him a blowhard; he is fond of spinning yarns; when telling what he has done or what he intends to do Jones is in the habit of using strong language; I visited Jones' place with Durant on Friday; we had no business at the time; there was no whisky in the house; we did not ask for any; we remained about 2 hours before starting for Langley: I don't know who proposed to go to Langley; Durant did not propose we should go to Langley and get some whisky; I do not know who proposed it; we call it 8 miles from Jones' house to Langley; Durant and I pulled the boat down and we all assisted to pull it back; I bought two gallons of whisky and we each had two or three drinks before we left; it was between 4 and 5 o'clock in the morning when we got home; we had about a dozen drinks on the road home; I felt all right and was not drunk; we did not drink again till between half past 6 or 7 o'clock; you know what a common drink is as well as I do; we divided the whisky, one-third of which went to Jones, and then went home; I had four or five drinks during the day; Durant was not a heavy drinker; we dug potatoes all day; I told Eddie we would have to go down to Warnock for a boat; Jones was very jealous of Sophie; she had only one eye and so had Sarah Gariepy; I have seen Sarah at Jones' house within the last 12 months but the day or date I cannot remember; Jones never was jealous of me regarding Sarah; Durant proposed we should go down to Jones' and have a drink; Jones brought out the bottle and passed it round and we all took a drop; the bottle was then put on the table; we drank out of the bottle; Jones and Durant talked about Klocchmen for a few seconds; the conversation was very short; I swear Jones and Eddie did not have a rough and tumble fight after Eddie slapped his face; the fight could not have taken place without me seeing it; as soon as he was slapped Jones went into the room and commenced loading the gun; I was sober at the time; I swear I did not go into Mr. McColl's office and tell him I was afraid of being prosecuted for perjury; Shirley did the talking; Mr. McColl told me not to say anything about the case to him as he was acting with Mr. Bole for Jones; I did not tell Mr. McColl I had told an untruth when I said I was out of the house when the shot was fired; there was no particular thing I wanted to correct in my former statement before the coroner's jury; neither Shirley or myself said anything to Mr. McColl about the evidence given before the magistrate; I did not ask what punishment I would get if I made a mistake in the evidence; since the inquest I have talked to several people concerning the case; Eddie's voice was quite strong and when taking him into the boat he complained of the pain that moving him occasioned; we did not give Eddie any whisky on the way down.

Cross-examined by Mr. Drake: I went into Mr. Shirley's shop and said my memory was poor and what would be the result if I made a mistake; "Well," said he, "rather than be called a liar by Bole I would advise you to go and see Mr. McColl; we went up together and explained our errand; Mr. McColl replied that he was in with Mr. Bole in the case and that it would be all right; Jones frequently showed his jealousy of Sophie and would never go anywhere without taking her along.

To a juryman: Sophie was in the bedroom when the shooting occurred; deceased went out of the house before I did; after the shooting I found Jones on the verandah at the front door; when I went out to see to my cattle the prisoner had the gun in his hand; I do not think the deceased heard Jones say he was going to get the gun; I did not leave the house through fear.

Charles Preston: I live one mile from Jones' house; I remember Oct. 6th; I saw Durant and Bruneau go into Jones place, and a few minutes afterwards I heard a gunshot; some minutes afterwards I saw Bruneau coming towards me and when he came up he told me Jones had shot Eddie. We went to Jamieson's and I said we would have to arrest Jones; while waiting for a rope Bruneau and Jamieson walked ahead of me; when I got to the house Jones was standing on the steps and when I took hold of him he asked leave to get his pipe; I told him that when we had him tied we would let him go; I held him while Jamieson tied him; when I took hold of Jones he tried to get his hand into his pocket to get his knife; I had previously taken the knife from his hip pocket but he did not know it; the knife produced is the knife I took from Jones; the gun produced I saw in the house; I did not see Durant till Jones was tied, he was then lying on the bank, partly in the water.

Cross-examined by Mr. McColl: I have lived in British Columbia four years and have known Jones all that time; Durant lived with me a few months; I have always been on good terms with Jones; once we had a little difficulty about a pair of oars; we never had a quarrel about a klootchman; I heard Jones complained to others about me; I never heard there was any ill-feeling between Jones and Durant.

By a juror—Durant's body was partly concealed by a boat which lay between him and the house; the body was partly in the water; Jones was standing on the platform facing the river when I got to the house.
