NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Emperor of Austria has given orders that his son's name shall never again be spoken in his hearing.

Weary Reveler — Blesh me, p'liceman, this seat is very dampsh! Policeman—Yes, sir; it probably is moist—as you've sat in the drinking trough.

Two Scotch tramps, man and wife, make a good living off the baby. "We just gets 'im christened," exclaims the man, "in all the towns we passes, and then, you see, parson makes us all comfortable wi' summat to eat and money for beds. On days orful bad we has to do 'm twice."

An English gentleman was pigeon-shooting in his grounds the other day with an Irish friend. He shot a pigeon very high up, and it came down with a plump at their feet. "Faith, that was a waste of powder and shot," said the Irish friend. "Why?" "Because, in faith, the fall alone would have killed the poor baste without any of the shooting."—Chestnuts.

The Earle of Dunraven is trying a very sensible experiment in yacht building, which is calculated to enable the English yatchsman to make up his mind on the centre-board question. He is building a 60 ton yacht which is to sail either as a keel or centre-board boat. She is first to be tried against the Yarana as a keel-boat, and if not found as fast as the latter, her centre-board will be adjusted, and it will then be seen whether her speed is increased.—Ex.

In the Dumfries Sheriff Court recently a case from Sanquhar, arising out of a novel form of school punishment, was heard. David Hamilton, blacksmith, pleaded guilty to assaulting T. G. Salmon, schoolmaster, for having punished two children of his by causing the boy to put on the girl's pinafore and the girl the boy's jacket, and so exposing them to the ridicule of the school. The sheriff thought the punishment was both novel and improper, and having regard to the provocation, he imposed a fine of 10s.—Ex.

France, Austria, and Germany have adopted smokeless gunpowder for their armies, and are conducting experiments to get an explosive also as nearly noiseless as possible. A fair degree of success has been reached, and experts have no doubt that by the time the next European war begins, the smoke and noise of battle will have been done away with. It is alleged that the French will suffer most by this, as the men of that nation are least able to withstand the terrorizing effect of being mowed down by silent missiles from unseen enemies.

On the day after the death of the crown prince of Austria, a Vienna undertaker was ordered to have an oak coffin ready for use at the palace that same day. He asked for more time, but was told that it must be there before night. Enquiry developed the fact that it is a custom of the Hapsburgs always to have a coffin in the house. The oak coffin in which the body of the crown prince lay was one that had been made years before, after the death of one of his relations, and had waited for an occupant ever since. The new coffin is now waiting.

A young farm servant at Wilmington, U. S., came to an untimely end the other day. He was opening a chicken-coop, and was unfortunately shot by a spring gun which had been arranged by the proprietor for the benefit of possible marauding thieves. It may be well to indicate to Canadian farmers that it is illegal to set a "man trap" or a spring gun. No doubt it is vexing to lose chickens, but the man who fixes a piece of machinery to shoot thieves lays himself open, by our law, to a charge of manslaughter, should his contrivance prove effectual.—Mail.

One of the most shocking, as well as treacherous outrages ever perpetrated in the South Seas was that of the murder of the government agent, Mr. Armstrong, by the natives of Manoba, the details of which have just been received in this country. Mr. Armstrong was decoyed on shore, and then treacherously murdered. One of the chiefs feigning to be ill, Mr. Armstrong went on shore with a lotion to apply to the injury. He had only one native servant with him. They were attacked. The native escaped, but poor Mr. Armstrong was butchered to death by spears and tomahawks. His comrades in a small boat endeavored to recover the body, but were unsuccessful. It was afterwards ascertained that the fiendish natives chopped off the head and legs of the unfortunate agent, and carried them around to the various chiefs of the island. It is said that the outrage was committed in retaliation for the killing of some of the islanders by the crew of the "Young Dick," and that the head and legs of Mr. Armstrong were thrown to the chiefs who had lost men in the "Young Dick" affray. It was not stated what subsequently became of the head and legs of the government agent, but it was said that the body was thrown by the natives into the sea.—Ex.

EARTHQUAKES.

GUAYMAS, MEXICO, April 9.—The city was shaken by several shocks of earthquakes last night, which, though severe, caused no damage.

FATALLY CRUSHED.

KOKOMO, Ind., April 9—The Kokomo boiler works were burned early this monring. Three firemen were fatally crushed by a falling wall.

BISMARCK'S RUSE.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—It is reported that Bismarck through the German minister here, has intimated that if the United States would not send any ships of war to Samoa, or would order the recall of those already en route, the German government would not send any vessels of her fleet to Samoa, pending the result of the deliberations of the Berlin conference. The story is that the suggestion was diplomatically conveyed by Count Arcovalley to secretary Blaine, who replied that if a formal proposition, embodying the suggestion of the minister were made, he would advise its acceptance.

A HORSE DID IT.

SUSANVILLE, CAL., April 9—A horse kicked over a lantern in a barn adjoining the residence of I. Scott, yesterday. The barn, residence, 100 tons hay, twelve cows, wagons and agricultural implements were destroyed.

SIXTY BUILDINGS BURNED.

RALEIGH, N. C., April 9.—Sixty buildings at Smithfield, the County seat of Johnston county were levelled to the ground by fire last night. The loss is a hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

ALASKA'S GOVERNOR.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Secretary Noble and President Harrison had a long conference yesterday relative to the appointment of the Governor of Alaska. All papers relating to the different candidates were sent from the interior department to the white house, and it is expected that the appointment will be made in a few days.

FIVE KILLED.

LOS ANGELES, April 9.—The westbound Santa Fee train, due here this morning, is reported wrecked at Peach Springs, Arizona, and five persons killed.

A TIMBER INSPECTOR.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—C. M. Ogden has been appointed special timber agent of the land office by sec'y Noble. Mr. Ogden's duties will be in Washington Territory. He will leave for the coast next week.

A TERRIBLE DEATH.

PORT HURON, Mich., April 9.—This morning at 10 o'clock, two men, Jas. Clemms and Stephen Porter, met their death in a horrible manner. Clemms is a ship caulker and was sent to caulk one of the large vats of the Mineral Bath Co. A few minutes after he had entered the vat, Porter, not hearing him at work, went to investigate and found him asphyxiated with gas, and in attempting to rescue him was also overcome a few minutes later. Mr. Stephenson, the proprietor thinking something wrong also ascended a ladder to the top of the vat, and seeing both men lying insensible at the bottom was about to enter, but was instantly overcome by the gas. Fortunately he fell outside and escaped with but a few slight bruises. The engineer attracted by the noise procured assistance. A hole was cut in the tank near the bottom, and the men were taken out, but both died shortly after. They were married and leave families.

OUTRAGEOUS SENTENCE.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.—George Chase, a grizzled veteran of the Civil war, was sentenced to 5 years in state prison, this morning, for robbing a street car of a dollar and thirty cents.

CATHEDRAL BURNED.

MANSFIELD, April 9.—St. Peter's cathedral, one of the finest in the city, was burned this morning. Loss $40,000.

SHIPPING.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.—Arrived str. Welmington from Departure Bay: sailee ship Palestine for Tacoma.

POWDER WORKS EXPLODED.

PINOLE, Cal., April 8.—The nitro-glycerine house of the California powder works exploded to-day, at noon, killing John M. Swan and slightly injuring Charles Jessang. The damage to the works was very light. All the employees but Swan and Jessang were at lunch at the time.

MAKES A FULL CONFESSION.

WHEELING, Va., April 8.—Ellison Hatfield, one of the participants in the Hatfield—McCoy fiend, now in jail in Kentucky, has confessed the facts of the murder of the three McCoy Bros., A. Talbert, Farley and Randolph. The Hatfield's captured them and tied them to a tree and gave them time to say their prayers and then killed them. Then Wall Hatfield made all of the band swear to take the life of the first man who divulged the names of those who were with the party. Hatfield further said that he and Tom Wallace killed Jeff McCoy, and gave the particulars of the brutal murder of Alifera and Alven McCoy in 1888. The Hatfield gang surrounded the house, fired it, and shot the girl while she was trying to extinguish the flames.

A SMART TRICK.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 8.—On Saturday afternoon a young man entered the office of Architect Larer of the city hall, and requested the plans of one of the wings from a clerk named Weston, stating that Mayor Pond had sent for them. Weston turned the plans over to him and later disappeared. It was learned this morning that the mayor had not asked for the plans and that the stranger was an impostor. If the plans are not recovered new ones will be necessary, thus entailing an expense upon the city and delaying work about six months.

OTTAWA NOTES.

OTTAWA, April 8.—Colonel Prior will interview the Government next week as to whether the Minister of Militia ever applied to the Imperial authorities for the report of Colonel O'Brien on the proposed fortifications at Esquimalt.

This was private members' day in the House of Commons, and business was rushed accordingly. Sir John Macdonald in reply to Mr. Charlton, said that it was not the intention of the Government during the present session, to introduce a Bill to incorporate the Orange order.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Debt Consolidation Bill as amended was passed.

Mr. Cook's Bill respecting the Railway Act and inspection of boilers got the six months' hoist.

Three divorce bills, including the Act for the relief of Mr. W. H. Middleton, were read the second time and adjourned to a select committee.

The debate on Senator Wark's motion prohibiting an unjust discrimination against England in the tariff was debated in the Senate to day. Senator Abbott moved an amendment to the effect that it would not be in the interest of the country to establish entire reciprocity of trade upon any consideration.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, April 8.—In the house of commons this evening, Mr. James P. B. Robertson, Q.C., the lord advocate of Scotland, introduced the Scotch local bill. The measure creates county councils to be elected by householders. Burghs, having less than 7,000 inhabitants, are to be marked into counties under one government, but towns of a population greater than 7,000 are to self-governed. The powers of the county councils include the right to pass private bills, a power hitherto invested in parliament alone. This is probably a step toward home rule.

City Council.

The council met last night at 8 o'clock for the transaction of business. Present Aldermen Curtis, Ewen, Calbick, Scoullar, Reid, McPhaden and Cunningham.

His worship Mayor Hendry in the chair.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From D. Chisholm, M.P., Ottawa, stating the government has not yet granted the Southern Railway subsidy; also stating it would be a week before he could be definitely informed on the subject. Received and filed.

From the residents of Columbia and Front streets asking that the council take immediate steps to water these streets according to section 114 of the municipalities act. Received.

Ald. Curtis gave notice that at the next meeting of the council he would introduce a street watering by-law.

From G. W. Grant asking the established grade of sidewalk on Queen's avenue between John and Douglas streets; also asking permission to lay building material on Queen's avenue. Referred to the board of works with power to act.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were recommended for payment: Z. S. Hall, $18-25; W. T. Cooksley, $140; A. J. Smith, $15; Jas. Cunningham, $12; Jas. M. Wise, $3; Royal City Planing Mills, $129.99.

REPORTS.

The fire and light committee reported the following tenders had been received for the erection of the new fire hall on Royal avenue: R. B. Bell, $497; W. D. Purdy, $545; Wm. Turnbull, $515. Mr. Bell's contract was recommended to be accepted.

That the Gas Co's bill for the month of March be paid less 5 per cent.

The committee also reported that the following tenders had been received for the building of the Begbie street fire slip: G. W. Gilley & Co., $190; D. McDonald, $175; and recommended that Mr. McDonald's tender be accepted. Report adopted.

The finance committee reported that the final arrangements with Messrs. Young & Terhune, concerning the North Arm steamboat service, had been completed, and that the steamer Fairy Queen was now making daily trips. Report adopted.

The report of the park committee was laid over.

The report of the committee on the new civic offices was adopted and referred to the board of works to call for tenders for the completion of the work. The architect's estimate of the cost of the work is $1,430.

The council went into committee of the whole on the water works by-law, Ald. Calbick in the chair, and passed it clause by clause.

The committee rose and reported the by-law complete with amendments. Report adopted.

On motion the by-law was ordered to be published in THE COLUMBIAN.

Ald. Curtis pointed out that under the present act a licensing board could not be formed this year, the date (Feb. 1st.) on which the lieut. governor was to appoint two members of of the board having passed.

On motion the clerk was instructed to request the lieut. governor to make the necessary appointment of commissioners.

On motion the board of works was empowered to repair the road leading from the Westminster pottery.

Ald. Curtis thought it absolutely necessary that a legal advisor for the city be appointed.

It was agreed to discuss the question at the next meeting.

Ald. Calbick called attention to the dangerous "jumping off" place on the sidewalk opposite Dr. Fagan's residence. Referred to the board of works.

A committee of three was appointed to consider the best means of distributing the folders.

Ald. Curtis gave notice that at the next meeting of the council he would introduce a by-law to fix the time and place, and appoint returning officers for taking the vote on the water works by-law.

Ald. Curtis gave notice that he would introduce a by-law to define the city wards.

Ald. Scoullar gave notice that he would ask for an appropriation for the fire company of $200.

Ald. Ewen gave notice that he would ask for an appropriation of $1,500 for placing the new civic offices in repair.

The council then adjourned.

AN ANCIENT DAME.

The Duchess of Cambridge, Her Peculiar Tastes, Life and Wonderful Memory.

Australia Sends a Fighter and Sculler to try for the World's Championship.

Mr. Finnean, M. P., Appeals from His Sentence, under the Crimes Act, without Avail.

MR. YATE'S CABLE.

LONDON, April 9.—The demise of the venerable Duchess of Cambridge, within three months of completing her ninety second year, and just ten days after congratulating her son on the morning of his seventieth birthday, severs the last remaining link which connects the court of George the Third with his grandfather. Although the duchess was able to receive representatives of four generations of her relatives, who brought their presents as usual on the 25th of last July, it was only too evident her strength was failing fast. In the following month she took to her bed from which she never again rose. There was no pain or suffering at the last, and although she was unable to listen longer to the martial music she loved so well, a piano was wheeled into her bedroom that she might enjoy the singing and playing of Signor Foote. Her memory retained its full vigor and almost to the end she could recollect events of George the third and Queen Charlotte, or such remote events as her standing on the terrace at Rumpenheim and seeing Napoleon riding away after his defeat at Leipsic. The Duchess, in spite of her kindness of heart, was a woman of iron will and indomitable energy. She entertained decided opinions on certain subjects, and never failed to express them. In her, George the fourth always found a courageous champion, for she never forgot his kindness to her brother-in-law, whose miniature surrounded by diamonds, was one of her most prized treasurers. No one ever bore intense suffering with greater fortitude. In pre-Palmerston days she was an admirable hostess, and could tell many diverting stories of the great artists of that period who frequented the salons of Cambridge House. Her strength undoubtedly helped her to recover from the severe attacks of illness which would have proved fatal to ordinary mortals. It is asserted that the queen was once summoned to see her in extremis but found her aunt taking her drive in defiance of the commands of her physician.

THE FAMOUS "THISTLE."

The syndicate owning the celebrated "Thistle" have sold her and she will at once be fitted out for the racing season.

WANTS TO RESIGN.

LONDON, April 9.—The St. James Gazette says that the Marquis of Londonderry, lord lieutenant of Ireland, has intimated to the government that he desires to resign office owing to the pressing nature of private affairs and the condition of Lady Londonderry.

A BANKRUPT MARQUIS.

LONDON, April 9.—Lord Francis Cecile, marquis of Exter, has been declared bankrupt with debts of £21,000.

SENTENCE CONFIRMED.

DUBLIN, April 9.—The sentence of 4 months' imprisonment, under the crimes act, pronounced upon Mr. Finnean, member of Parliament for County Limerick and against which he appealed, has been confirmed. Sentences of six and five months imprisonment imposed upon Mr. Sheehy M. P., for offence under the crimes act, have been reduced to a term of five months.

THE SCULLING CHAMPIONSHIP.

LONDON, April 9.—Searle, champion oarsman of Australia, is coming to England next month when he will challenge Teemer and O'Connor to row on the Thames for £500 a side and the championship of the world.

CEDED TO RUSSIA.

LONDON, April 9.—Report comes from St. Petersburg that Persia has ceded the districts of Khelat and Kerderi to Russia.

AUSTRALIA WILL TRY.

MELBOURNE, AUST., April 9.—Frank D. Slavin champion heavy weight pugilist of Australia, has decided to go to the U. S. to meet Peter Jackson, Kilrain and Sullivan, for the championship of the world.

THE DUCHESS OF CAMBRIDGE.

LONDON, April 8.—It is announced that in consequence of the death of the Duchess of Cambridge, the drawing room which was to have been held on Friday, April 12th, and the other court receptions which were contemplated, have been indefinitely postponed. Although the duchess was latterly shown extraordinary attention by the various members of the royal family, the Prince of Wales was the only one of her relatives present at the time of her death. In spite of her large pecuniary resources the old lady lived for years in damp apartments in St. James' Palace. She was very fond of show, but was entirely without taste, as the tawdry furnishing of her rooms attest.

LETTER FROM STANLEY.

LONDON, 8.—The letter received a few days ago by the royal geographical society from Henry M. Stanley was read at a meeting of the society this evening. The explorer substantially repeats what he wrote to his friend in Edinburgh, but supplies valuable geographical information in addition. Recounting the difficulties attending his march he says that the natives on several occasions dug ditches, in which they placed sharp stakes covered with leaves, to impede his progress. Many of his men suffered from sore feet for days after treading upon the upturned points, and some of them were permanently disabled. The natives also, for extorting supplies of food, etc., pretended that were suffering from famine. The friendly natives were chary of giving information to Stanley's party, but those who were made prisoners told all they knew. Stanley believes that the lake that he discovered in 1876 belongs to the Congo chain and is tributary to that river.

Daily British Columbian

Tuesday Evening, April 6, 1880.

It was only the other day that the despatches contained accounts of terrific snow storms in several of the eastern states. Here, we have been enjoying spring-time since the beginning of February (strictly speaking though we have had no winter during the past so called winter season at all), and now, the first week in April, we are luxuriating in veritable June weather. The scene is a most enchanting one as appealing to the various senses, and can be better imagined than described, except by the "spring poet," and that gifted but hifalutin' member of our staff broke his neck last week while engaged in the foolhardy and impossible feat of attempting to make his "bucking" Pegasus clear an iambic pentameter hurdle. That is why we cannot even tackle the weather and the landscape in blank verse, but are obliged to mutilate both in cold and unfeeling prose. These considerations, together with the melancholy fate of our "spring poet," have caused us up to date to refrain from letting our thousands of readers know how thoroughly and heartily we endorse the weather, etc. But it is almost too beautiful to last just now (which all will admit) and we must say something, or—"bust." Having in view the fate of our "poet," we have come to the conclusion not to aim too high, but to begin with about a five-foot strip of the horizon and work down, sort of gradually. The horizon, then, all the way round, is decidedly azure—the regulation "Italian" tint. The mountains are a deep blue—not the color of "blue pills" or "blue devils," but a cheerful, sunny ultramarine. The trees and the underbrush, just below the above-mentioned strip of "Italian"-tinted horizon, are leaving fast. At the present writing a good many have left, and, if the Ross-McLaren Mills get started this year, we expect that large numbers will leave again before next spring. The river is quite a satisfactory feature of the landscape, and the unexceptionable weather improves its looks, but we cannot help thinking that the noble stream would look much better with the Southern Railway bridge spanning it just opposite the Crescent, or the Southern Railway ferry-boat in place of that homely K. de K. But coming down to terra firma, where we feel safe at last, terra firma is "verdure clad," as our poet would have put it, as far as the eye can reach. The lowing kine complete the picture beautifully here, as they revel in the succulent juciness of the corporation grass pastures or gambol on and fertilize the corporation sidewalks. We had intended to say a lot (which would have been strictly true) about the flower gardens being in full bloom, the fruit trees resplendent in their delicate veil of aromatic blossoms, the swallows a-swallowing, etc., etc. But we don't want to get poetic, and will wind up with that beautiful couplet—

"While every prospect pleases,
And only man is vile."

Winnipeg has now but two daily papers, all the city can stand apparently, as the Call which was absorbed by the Free Press a few months ago had been kept going, according to all accounts, by the dismal process of "sinking money in the business." The Call, although having the advantage of being a government organ, could not stand the "money sinking" performance indefinitely and sank out of sight. It has been reported and reiterated lately on several occasions, however, that the Manitoba local government had decided to establish a daily newspaper at Winnipeg, or in other words, a government organ. The Winnipeg Commercial, a weekly paper of high standing, has a good deal to say on the subject, from which we make the following few extracts: "To give a definition of our own, we would say that the journalistic organ is an institution devoted mainly to the spreading abroad of false impressions. The organ dare not give a truthful version of anything concerning its masters. Even the most trivial matters of ordinary news are twisted and turned to suit the views of the party in whose interest the organ labors. Nothing from the organ can be relied upon. Where there is political trickery, boodling and corruption to be defended or hidden, there the organ has its most genial work. It belittles and belies its opponents when they are right, and supports and defends its masters when they are wrong. To the organ black is white, or white is black, as the case may be, and the organ will prove it so. With this character for the organ, which cannot be denied, we ask: What does the Manitoba government want with an organ? These remarks about the organ are intended to apply to the straight, direct, one and only party machine. There are many journals, in Manitoba and elsewhere, which maintain their personal independence, while on the main issue of the day lending a general support to a political party in times of election or political excitement. Such journals cannot be classed as organs. An honest support to a political party on principle cannot be condemned, and is not condemned in this article. The straight organ is a source of degradation to honest journalism. * * * As a commercial enterprise, the merchants of Winnipeg do not want another daily paper. Such papers are supported mainly by their local advertising patronge and a third paper would only prove an unnecessary tax upon the local merchants, without any corresponding gain. They would be obliged to advertise in three papers to reach the same number of people that they can now reach through the two papers at present established here. The establishment of a third paper would simply divide the field a little more, while the aggregate circulation would remain the same, thus increasing the cost of reaching the people, through the medium of advertising."

On the refusal of the Dominion authorities to disallow the Jesuits' Estates Act, the Evangelical Alliance memoralized her majesty the queen, setting forth that the federal government had failed to do its duty, and asking the queen to interfere on behalf of the Protestants of Canada. This was an unwarrantable and rather foolish action, and the reply of Lord Knutsford, secretary of state for the colonies, in regard to the memorial, was just about what might have been looked for. Lord Knutsford said the matter rested entirely with the Canadian government, to whom the memorial would be forwarded. An eastern cotemporary has the following sensible remarks on the subject: "It has been clear all along that whatever the upshot of the Jesuit affair may be, it must be settled among ourselves, that is, if it is settled without being carried to the privy council and treated like any other intricate point of law. Canada enjoys self-government, and the British parliament has no desire to interfere in our affairs. It is better that our people should occasionally make mistakes while enjoying the right of self-government than that their legislation should be subjected to overhauling at the hands of the British authorities. The Jesuit affair is one which concerns Canada alone, and as Canada has a parliament of her own to deal with it there is no reason why officials on the other side of the ocean should interfere in the matter one way or the other. They could not do so without arousing the hostility of a large section of our people, and if they pleased the Protestant element to-day by disallowing the Jesuit Act, they might displease it to-morrow, when some other question arose. Let us settle our own difficulties in our own way, and not be, as Mr. Blake once put it, subjects of the queen's subjects. Enjoying responsible government, there is no reason for carrying our difficulties to another country when we have the power to settle them ourselves." The above is sound reasoning from a constitutional and political standpoint, irrespective altogether of the morality or immorality of the objectionable measure, or the desirability of having it quashed. The British privy council comes in very good for settling knotty points of constitutional law between the federal and provincial authorities, and, so far, has invariably upheld provincial rights in such contests, so that the Evangelical Alliance was on the wrong side of the fence to expect redress from that quarter, even if the subject had been a proper one for imperial interference. No, we have considerable parliamentary machinery, and let us settle as many of our difficulties as possible on this side of the "big drink."

NOSES MADE TO ORDER.

Warranted to Hold Their Color and to Wear Forever.

The Art of Making Artificial Ears, Fingers, Teeth and Soft Palates Discussed by One of Its Most Expert and Experienced Exponents.

"The discovery of xylonite has marked an era of improvement in the art of making false noses," said a noted Chicago doctor, who supplies unfortunate people with artificial proboscides when accident or the ravages of disease have removed that very prominent feature, to a Mail reporter.

"Before that time," he continued, "we had to make noses out of rubber and paint them to the right color. Rubber is not a flesh color, and when the paint began to scale off the effect was not at all good. A rummy nose was a beauty beside one that needed a new coat of paint. But xylonite can be made to take color very easily, and we get it in all shades of pink, to correspond with the tint of the face. It is light and very hard. It is almost impossible to break it. See here," and he took a blank of the material and dashed on the floor with all his might. It was not in the least affected.

"For a nose," said the repairer of facial damages, "we find out which way the flesh and blood nose naturally curved. There isn't a man living, I suppose, whose nose was exactly in the middle of his face. We find out from his friends what his proper appearance was, and then we make a wax model as near like life as we can. A plaster cast is made of the model, and then the blank xylonite is heated so as to soften it and pressed into the mold by an Archimidean screw. That forces it into the proper place. It is then polished up and attached either to springs on a sponge cut button-shape so it will crowd into the cavity and hold on with enough force to keep it from falling out. If the flesh shall have become sunken around the nose so much as to cause the eyes to have a staring look, spectacles are worn to offset it. Of course, you understand that this is not a practicable nose, as the stage carpenter would say. It is for looks only. Methuselah couldn't have worn out such a nose. It will last forever, and that's as long as any one would want it," and the old doctor chuckled at his joke. "A body wants to be careful how he goes into a rough-and-tumble fight with one of them on his face, for he might get his nose knocked off. He ought to holler: 'Here, you just wait a spell till I put my nose in my pocket.'"

"Do you ever make artificial outer ears?"

"Never had a call for one yet. They could be made all right, but to insert one would be to destroy the hearing, which would be too dear a price to pay for the whistle.

"Fingers and hands, though, are often made. They are the hardest things to get right. They are made of the same material—xylonite. The joints of the wrist and fingers are made in what mechanics call the universal joint. You often see people on the street who always wear a glove on one hand. That is their artificial hand. The well-made hand can close up the fingers so that articles can be held almost as securely as with the natural hand. Usually only one articulation is made in the fingers, as it is very tedious to put in the two joints. Artificial feet I have never made for patients, although they would be much easier than artificial hands.

"Here is something which might interest you," said the physician, handing the reporter a red flap of soft rubber spatulated at one end like a beaver's tail and bearing small rivets at the other.

"What's that?"

"That's an artificial soft palate. You know some people are so unfortunate as to be born with a cleft in the roof of the mouth, which interferes sadly with their speech. All sounds which depend upon the breath being excluded from the nose, like 'n' and 'm,' they are unable to pronounce. These sounds are called nasal, because they go through the nose. Look in the glass with your mouth wide open and you will see a little tongue dangling away back at the roof of the mouth. This is the uvula, which is absent in the cases of those who have cleft palates. It helps in swallowing as well as in speech. Now, this artificial uvula is not the natural shape, as you see, but is thinned out and spread out like a fan at one end. That is so that it may rest against the muscles which would naturally move the palate. The other end of the piece is riveted to a plate which is kept in the roof of the mouth either by suction or by springs.

"A queer thing about these cases of cleft palate is that the perception of the proper sounds of letters dies out as the man grows older. A child, in whose mouth an artificial palate is attached, soon learns to talk as naturally as people whose palates are normal. But those who have passed middle life before they have one put in have, it is said, to learn a language like French, where the great prevalence of nasal sounds compel them to notice their importance. Only in that way do they learn to speak English properly. Talking about plates reminds me," concluded the doctor, "of the old-fashioned style of teeth. Before the material of which artificial teeth are made was invented sets used to be carved out of what was called hippopotamus ivory. When I was a young man—I can remember when there were only a dozen houses here—when I was a young man I used to get front teeth for artificial plates from the old Indian burying-ground. The teeth were very sound, and I have known them to be in use for over thirty years without showing signs of decay."

PANTHERS AT LARGE.

Exciting Scene in One of the Famous Parks of Madras.

Two panthers recently escaped from confinement, and were for a short time at large in the People's Park, Madras. Mr. Ellis, superintendent of the park, found one of them up a large acacia tree, crouching on a thick branch. He went (says the Madras Mail) within thirty yards of the tree, took aim and fired, hitting the animal just above the left shoulder. The shot proved fatal, and down dropped the animal dead. Seeing that the animal had been killed, and not knowing that a second panther was at large, the people who had taken refuge on the trees jumped down, and all crowded round the dead panther and belabored it with their clubs and sticks. Mr. Ellis then reloaded his rifle and went into the inclosure, directing the park sergeant to follow him. Mr. Ellis saw the second panther outside the cage; so he called out to the people to beware, and they immediately rushed about outside the inclosure, shouting. Mr. Ellis then ran after the panther, which, instead of going into the cage, rushed away. Finding that it was making its way towards the bridge leading to the island where the monkeys are kept, and where a number of people had taken refuge in the trees, Mr. Ellis made his way thither across the kangaroo enclosure in a direction opposite to that in which the panther was running. He got within forty yards of the beast and halted. He then fired. The panther was wounded, though not mortally, and, growling with rage, rushed straight at Mr. Ellis and knocked him down. It then went away again towards the rhinoceros pond, ran round the cage, and again made for Mr. Ellis, who had regained his feet, but was not prepared for the attack. The panther seized him by the right foot and bit him severely on the ankle. After calling loudly for help, Mr. Ellis struck the panther with the butt end of his rifle, stunning it. The wounded animal lay against the wall of one of the cages groaning with pain, when a mahout pinned him against the wall with his spear, and the sergeant dispatched him with a bullet.

At a Boston wedding, the other day, the officiating minister sneezed four times while performing the ceremony, and all the old women present presaged dreadful things in store for the bride and groom. The minister did not countenance any of these superstitions, however; he knew why he sneezed; he felt the big draft that was in the bridegroom's pocket.

A MARVELOUS BLIZZARD.

It Built a Roof of Ice and Shut Wanderers In from the Storm.

"I was driving a bunch of cattle from Yankton to Deadwood," said the blizzard expert of the New Orleans Times-Democrat, "when we saw signs of trouble one afternoon and made for timber. We were lucky enough to strike a grove of cottonwoods before night, and soon had the stock in the center of the grove. In the couple of hours left before dark we fell to with our axes and chopped down all the trees we could, leaving them lie where they fell and throwing the small branches to the cattle.

"We built a roaring fire, but the wind rose so high two of us had to stand by and watch the blaze all the time, while the other six whacked away at the cottonwoods for dear life. Every tree would be blown down by the wind before it was cut more than half way through, and we had trouble in getting the timber to fall in a circle around us and the stock, which was our object. But by nine o'clock we were pretty well hemmed in, and the snow, which fell so fast it blinded you ten feet away from the fire, quickly gathered on the limbs and dry leaves of our bulwark and built a big, white wall around us, which grew at last thick enough to shut out the gale entirely.

"There were two big cottonwoods, regular granddaddies, in the middle of the corral. The snow gathered so thick on them that they soon covered us like a real roof, and there we were roofed in and walled in, with our forty head of cattle, as secure as if there wasn't a blizzard in the whole of Dakota. And we didn't have to wait long either, for before morning the storm had turned into a regular blizzard, the famous one of 1870 that froze so many frontiersmen and so much stock to death.

"Before we rolled into our blankets by the fire it was eleven o'clock, and the wind, which had blown at first from the East, shifted around to the Northwest and began to roar like a thousand stamp mills. Each time it shifted it banked our barricade deeper and higher with snow, and by midnight we couldn't see over it. The cattle huddled together under the tree right next to us. They chewed away at the cottonwood as contented as you please. Their warm breath made a distinct cloud that seemed to hang around in the two big trees over the corral as if it were too solid to be blown away. At this time the wind seemed to have been absolutely walled out from us; we could hear it high overhead, but we didn't feel so much as an eddy. I must confess that it gave me some alarm to see the white barricades all around us growing to be as tall as the tree-tops apparently.

"How long we slept I never knew. Most blizzards last three days and are worse on the second. When we woke up the stock was standing there, as content as ever, chewing away at the cottonwoods and quite warm and comfortable. The air all around us was warm and still, and the big bed of coals to which the fire had burned down gave out a cheerful glow that was suggestive of dressing-gowns and slippers. There wasn't a speck of snow visible on the trees or ground. Overhead, resting on the tops of the cottonwoods and curving down to the tops of the barricades we had built and the storm had strengthened, was a conical roof of solid ice that shut us in as completely from the storm that waged outside as if we were in a stone castle. The heat of the fire and exhalations from the closely bunched steers had surrounded us with a warm atmosphere, which melted the ice in the air as fast as it came over our corral, fusing it into a continuous ceiling, which gradually grew thicker and heavier and must have fallen in on us had it not had the trees in the center and our bulwarks around the sides to rest on.

"Well, there we were, as snug as bugs in rugs, and after the novelty of the thing had worn off we had a good time, I can tell you. We killed a beef, made common stock of our pocket flasks, and were as happy as kings in our ice palaces. One of the rippingest games of poker I ever sat into was by that very fire in our frost tent. The drip was disagreeable, for the inside heat kept up a continual melting from the roof, but the storm repaired damages outside as fast, if not a good deal faster.

"When the thaw did come we came near being drowned, of course, but I think I express the sentiments of the entire party when I say we parted with a feeling of genuine regret from our wonderful corral. That was the worst blizzard known in the West since '59, we heard along our way to Deadwood. But we didn't feel any of it."

UNPLEASANT PEOPLE.

Unfortunates Who Are Constantly Doing the Wrong Thing.

They come like a whirlwind and they go as they come, says the London Queen. In their presence all things fly, and the laws of cohesion and gravitation are of no more account than those of order and prearranged harmonies. When they come into a room it is as if they brought with them a train of sticks and straws and a cloud of dust, like the disjecta membra seen on the outside of a whirlpool. They upset chairs and they knock down ornaments; they put their hats on the flowers in the vase, and they fling their sticks and umbrellas among the Venetian glass. They stumble over the head of the tiger-skin on the floor, carrom against rickety tables, mistake the mask of the looking-glass for a practicable door, set their teacups on the best-bound books, crumble their buttered cake on the Persian carpet; call Mrs. Brown, whom you wish to propitiate, Mrs. Smith, of whom she is the mortal enemy; contradict your favorite philosopher, who is accustomed to a respectful audience in your house; and throw scalding water over your friend, the poet's last production, with his wife sitting in wrath and amazement, grimly listening to this blasphemous stream pouring headlong from those uncontrollable lips.

When they greet you it is unlike the greeting of any one else. They disdain the conventional formula and ask how you are in other words than those for the most part used. Sometimes they do not ask at all, but dash into the room with their breezy ways and dust-laden atmosphere and break out with a bit of news they think will interest you to hear. "I've come to tell you of my dinner at Mrs. So-and-So's," they say in a voice which would make itself heard through the fog as clearly as the horn or the steam whistle. "Have you heard that story of Lady Deb? Such a good story; you must hear it." This is perhaps another prefatial address, the rest of your friends looking on in amazement, wondering what can be the terms of your acquaintance with this free and easy person whom they do not know, but who seems to know you so remarkably well.

Then, if they are women, they are sure to dress themselves in a manner to make you wince in private and to attract all eyes in public. They do something queer with their heads; wear their hats in an unauthorized fashion; put on startling colors; tie huge silk handkerchiefs about their shoulders—handkerchiefs as big and polychromatic as Joseph's coat; wear go wns that trail a yard in the dust, or that are so short one speculates on the color of their "clocks"; or in some way manage to make themselves the object of every one's amazed attention. Then they have fulfilled the reason of their being, and are happy in proportion.

Evangelist Moody's Offer.

Mr. Moody told one of his large audiences in Louisville that a man came to him to get aid for a charity in which he was interested. He said that he had heard that Mr. Moody was getting $100 a night. Mr. Moody told him that if he got $100 a night he would give $1,000 to his charity. Mr. Moody went on to say to the audience that he was not after money. He said: "You needn't pay me a penny if you don't want to. If you can find any committee either in Europe or America that ever got my services by offering money I'll give $1,000 to you. God delivered me from love of money when he took me from my business. I have my failing, but, thank God, it is not love of money. We want you, not yours. We want your souls."

McClellan's Monument.

Secretary of State Kelsey, of New Jersey, started a fund some months ago for a monument over the grave of General McClellan. He asked for subscriptions only of intimate friends of the dead soldier, and has received about $7,000.

Mr. T. F. Sinclair has purchased the brickyard formerly owned by Mr. Elroy O'Brien, and intends fitting it up with the latest and most approved kind of machinery. Mr. Sinclair has let the contract of making his brick to Mr. Thos. Harvey.

The salmon run last night was the best this season, but only a few boats were at work, most of the fishermen having "laid off" last evening to spend the profits of yesterday's labor. Oolachans are running freely, but not in very large schools as yet.

200 lots on the Thorne road, from $65 upwards, on monthly instalments of $10, without interest. These lots are only two blocks from the park, have a good view, are mostly cleared and are only four blocks from the new bridge. Apply to WM. REIDT, Front street. *

The merchants and business men have shown the proper spirit in petitioning the city council to have Columbia and Front streets watered regularly during the coming summer. A by-law will be introduced at the next meeting of the council to make provision for the work.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

Mr. P. Latham, of the Douglas street green house, laid on our table, this morning, a beautiful Marshal Neil rose, grown in his conservatory. A rose more fragrant and lovely we have never seen.

R. B. Bell's tender for building the new fire hall on Royal Avenue, has been accepted by the city council and work on it will be commenced at an early date. Though not a very costly affair, the building is of neat design *and will make a very creditable appear*ance.

Mr. Herbert Kinkland has been appointed manager of Messrs. Findlay, Durham & Brodie's cannery on Deas Island. Mr. Kinkland has had much experience in the salmon packing business, and his appointment is considered a good one by the cannery men in general.

Mr. John J. Jessop, Dominion immigration agent, Victoria, writes us asking to procure for him 300 or 400 of Westminster city and district "fol*ders," which he promises to distrib*ute among desirable settlers who are inquiring about this part of the province, of which Mr. Jessop adds, there are many.

Dr. Edward Beecher, aged 85 years, a brother of the late Henry Ward Beecher and an uncle of Mr. C. M. Beecher of the Royal City planing mills company, fell beneath a train at Brooklyn, on Wednesday night, and his left leg was badly crushed. Owing to his advanced age, the injury may prove fatal.

The str. Fairy Queen arrived to-day from the North Arm with a full load of farm produce and a number of passengers. The daily service is greatly appreciated by the farmers, who, so far, have made good use of the new line. The owners of the steamer are well pleased with the patronage they are receiving.

Superstition still lives, or would appear to from the action of the city council last night. The question of voting on the water works by-law came up, and it was found that Friday, May 10th, was the earliest date on which the voting could be held. Some one suggested that Friday was unlucky, and with one accord all idea of voting on that day was abandoned.

On Sunday morning Mr. Landsburg lost a $350 diamond on Carrall street, and after repeated search gave it up for gone. The same evening the light of the electric lamps exposed its whereabouts, and the owner luckily came upon it while it shone under the illumination of the incandescents. It is reported that the gleam of joy in his eye surpassed *the lustre of the dia*mond.—Vancouver News.

The Minstrels.

Goodyear, Cook and Dillon's Minstrels, have twenty-six of the best Minstrel artists known in the profess*ion. One of the greatest features of* the show is the wonderful manipulations of the clubs by "Ben Mowatt," the phenomena. The press generally say his act is indescribable, and one must see it to have the faintest idea of its splendor. The company offer a challenge of $1,000 for his equal. The minstrels appear at Herring's Opera house to-morrow night the 10th.

Dumping in the Channel

Those in charge of the dredger, which is occupied at present dredging in front of the Royal City Mills wharves, are dumping the scow loads of debris obtained in the centre of the river channel. The board of trade have objected, very properly, and, unless the scows are dumped elsewhere immediately, will have a special meeting and forward their representations to Ottawa on the subject. There is no excuse for dumping this mud in the channel and it will not likely be persisted in.

Salmon in the Willamette.

Willamette river, from Portland to the falls at Oregon City, is swarming with salmon, which have been coming up for the past month or so, and being unable to pass the falls on account of low water, have accumulated. In five days since the season opened, over 5000 salmon, the largest and finest imaginable, have been received at Portland, weighing 150,000 pounds. The supply for the local market is bought at 5 cents a pound, the remainder being shipped to the canneries down the Columbia.

Mr. Chisholm M.P., Ill.

It is with much regret we announce that Mr. Donald Chisholm, M.P., is seriously ill at the Russell House. Mr. Chisholm's affection is an aggravated liver complaint, which, with other complications, has made his condition alarming to his friends during the past few days. The crisis is, however, past, and Dr. Roome, M. P., his medical attendant, expects to see his patient convalescent in a short time. Many visitors who called were refused admission. We hope to hear of his complete recovery within a few days.

Large Real Estate Deal.

Two of the largest real estate transactions in several weeks have just been negotiated by Mr. T. J. Trapp. These are the transfer of lot 25, on the north east corner of Columbia and Lorne streets, and lot 23, on Columbia street on which the American hotel stands. The purchaser of the former is Mr. T. J. Trapp and the price paid is $15,000. Mr. D. S. Curtis is the new owner of lot 23, and the value of the transfer is $13,000. Both are cash transactions. Mr. Curtis will erect a fine business block on his property as soon as the leases on the buildings expire.

New Civic Offices.

The plans prepared by Mr. G. W. Grant, the architect, for the conversion of the agricultural hall, McKenzie street, into civic offices, were presented to the council last night. The plans, though not elaborate, indicate that *the proposed offices will be an im*mense improvement on the present quarters, and somewhat in keeping with our civic dignity. The building, when the changes are made, will contain a public hall 80x26 feet, mayor's office, city clerk's office, council chamber, two committee rooms, police office, city engineer's office, water engineer's office. The cost of putting the building in condition and the necessary furniture will cost in the neighborhood of $1,500.

An Irishman was recently heard to declare that the present state of affairs was "enough to make a man commit suicide, or perish in the attempt."

The B. C. Salmon Fisheries.

Hon. Mr. Tupper stated to an Empire representative recently that he had brought to his attention the representations of the salmon packers on the Fraser river, relative to limiting the number of boats to 350. Last year he said complaints came from the packers on the Fraser that the river was being over-fished, and that, if regulations were not adopted to limit the number of boats, the industry would be ruined; 350 was suggested as the limit, and now that the suggestion had been acceded to here came a protest that some of the large packers would be ruined if 500 boats, at the least, were not allowed for this season. He has the matter at present under con*sideration.*

Death of Mr. Dingwall.

Mr. Wm. Dingwall, ex-M.P.P., died at Comox on Wednesday last of heart affection. The deceased gentleman represented Comox district in the provincial parliament from 1882 till 1886, being a supporter of the Smithe government. At the general election of 1886 he was defeated by Mr. Stenhouse. When that gentleman resigned his constituency, Mr. Dingwall again came forward as a candidate, but was defeated by Mr. T. B. Humphreys. The deceased was a gentleman of quiet and unassuming habits, and while in parliament he was popular with both sides of the house. He was greatly esteemed by the residents of the district, and his death will be greatly regretted by all who were acquainted with him.—Colonist.

A Rich Valley.

There is no man in British Columbia who is better acquainted with the character of the country than Mr. Jas. Orr, M. P. P. He has been all over it. The information, therefore, that he gave the House on Thursday night to the effect that there was a valley lying between the Columbia and Fraser rivers capable of supplying a million people, is entitled to some attention. All it requires is railway connection to make it one of the most productive portions of the Province. The reference to the matter came up during the discussion on the Canadian Western Railway Land Subsidy bill, Mr. Orr taking the position that the transfer of so much of the Province to private control was a matter which should be submitted to the people before being consummated.—Times.

The Small Debts Act.

Application was made to-day in the supreme court by Mr. Hammersley, *for a rule nisi calling upon Police Mag*istrate MacLean, of Vancouver, to show cause why a writ of prohibition should not issue in the matter of Phalen vs. Bewicke, a case tried in the small debts' court at Vancouver, restraining further proceedings therein. The constitutionality of the Small Debts Act is attacked. It is claimed that under the B. N. A. Act the powers of appointment of the judiciary of the different provinces rests solely with the Dominion government, and that therefore the act of this province is ultra vires. The Small Debts Act is a similar enactment to the "Magistrates Act," of Quebec, which, as is well known, was disallowed. Should it be decided that the act is bad all the small debts courts of the province will be abolished.

Reduction Works.

We understand that a movement is on foot for the establishment of reduction works for the smelting of gold and silver ores. It is proposed to form a joint stock company, with a capital of $100,000 for this purpose. Several outside capitalists are interested in the scheme, and we may expect before many months to have the works in full operation. The discovery of gold, silver and copper ores on Texada Island, has no doubt, been largely instrumental in causing the present movement to be set on foot. Nanaimo has unexcelled facilities for the establishment of numbers of industrial enterprises, and we believe that the proposed undertaking is a most hopeful sign that the city is awakening to a due sense of its importance as a future manufacturing centre. We can't have too many new industries started in our midst.—Courier.

Police News.

Constable Carty had a busy time this forenoon. A report came from the swamp that the notorious Charley Stark was on the rampage, and thither the constable proceeded and found that Stark was drunk and acting in a very disorderly manner. He was taken in charge and removed to the lockup. Antonio Caroli, an Italian fisherman, instead of being at work, was drunk, and inclined to be quarrelsome. He, also, was taken to the lockup.

An Indian woman named Rosie, complained to Constable Carty this morning that she had been robbed of a $5 bill and two rings by an Italian named Muriana. The constable went in search of the thief and was successful in finding him. A search of Muriana resulted in bringing the missing rings to light, but the $5 had disappeared. When arrested the prisoner had a bottle of whisky and several parcels of groceries in his possession and the presence of these goods probably account for the absence of the money.

LATE CANADIAN NEWS.

It is rumored that E. P. Leacock, ex-M.P.P., for Manitoba, will be appointed postoffice inspector for Manitoba and the Northwest.

Miss MacLellan, who was missing for a week, has been found alive in a brick kiln in the western part of Hamilton, Ont., She is insane, and appears to have fasted during the whole time.

Rev. Andrew Beattie, missionary of Toronto, who has been appointed to a station in China, was attacked by footpads Sunday night, badly beaten and relieved of his watch and a sum of money.

News has reached Regina of a terrible cyclone in the Long Lake settle*ment on Sunday last. A path of fifty* yards wide was mowed through the bluff. Many houses and barns were blown down, but no one was injured.

A party of Winnipeggers leave on a trip to the Arctic Ocean on Thursday. They go via Calgary and Edmonton and follow the route taken by Lord Lonsdale to the Mackenzie river, whence they will go direct north to the Arctic Ocean.

VICTORIA NEWS.

An Insane Miner Attempts to Commit Suicide.—A Board of Trade Formed at Nanaimo.—Good Trout Fishing.

Special to the Columbian.

VICTORIA, April 9.—A Wellington miner named John Kemper attempted suicide by cutting his throat. He is believed to be insane. He was taken in charge and will be sent to the asylum at New Westminster.

A movement is on foot to organize a cricket club at Nanaimo.

A board of trade has been organized at Nanaimo.

A gang of carpenters has been sent to Comox to construct a large number of coal cars for the Union mines.

Trout are very plentiful in the lakes and streams in the vicinity of Victoria, and along the Island Railway.

THERE'S a bower of roses by Bendemeer's stream,
And the nightingale sings round it all the day long;
'Twas sweet in the time of my childhood's young dream
To sit mid the roses and hear the birds' song.

That bower and its roses I never forget;
And oft, while alone, in the bloom of the year,
I think, "Is the nightingale singing there yet?"
Are the roses still bright by the calm Bendemeer.

No; the flowers soon withered that hung o'er the wave;
But some blossoms were gathered while freshly they shone,
And a dew was exaled from their petals which gave
All the fragrance of summer when summer was gone.

The above lines from Moore's "Lallah Rookh" are naturally recalled to mind upon catching the odors of those Matchless Quadruple Red Letter Extracts of MACPHERSON & THOMSON, the Druggists. dap8t6
