SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

Among the latest announcements of international congresses at Paris are one of botany during the second half of August, and one of mines and metallurgy early in September.

Dairy schools, at a cost not exceeding $55,000 a year, have increased Denmark's butter export in twenty years from $2,100,000 of poor quality to $13,000,000 of excellent quality annually.

To the perfumes of flowers M. Ungerer ascribes the power of protecting against, and even arresting, consumption. In the perfume-distilling town of La Grasse lung troubles are but little known.

A complete list of the flora of Newfoundland and Labrador, in preparation by Rev. A. C. Waghorne, will contain about 900 species of flowering plants, about 50 ferns, and over 250 mosses and lichens.

Some quartz crystals included in an exhibit of American jewel minerals, prepared for the Paris Exhibition by Tiffany & Co., are curious on account of their minute size and perfection, there being 7500 to the ounce.

A mechanician of Danzig has constructed a hand fog-horn that may be heard ten miles. With a second horn of lower pitch to mark the divisions between letters, whole sentences can be clearly transmitted by the Morse or other code of signals.

In Dr. B. W. Richardson's lethal chamber, in London, 100,000 homeless dogs have been put to death painlessly, with five affected with rabies. A lethal muzzle for dogs has been instructed, to be used in the streets by the police, and also a similar muzzle for horses.

A botanist and a chemist of Berlin, Profs. R. Hertig and R. Weber, have given two years to an investigation of the wood of the beech, cutting up in the course of their work more than 100 trees of all ages. An account of the results forms a large book of 238 pages.

In experiments by Drs. Straus and Dubarry, of Paris, the bacillus of charbon was found living in water after 131 days, where it formed spores; that of typhoid fever, after 81 days; and that of Asiatic cholera, after 39 days. Even this duration of life in these germs is probably not the maximum.

The children of women addicted to the morphine habit are stated by Erlenmeyer to be practically morphine-eaters from birth. Without morphine during the first few days of life, the violent symptoms are manifested which follow the sudden withdrawal of the drug from adult opium-eaters, and the result to the weak child is likely to be fatal.

AN IMPORTANT FOOD. The value of dried potatoes as an article of food is urged by Dr. Jakov M. Shmulevitch. Among the advantages claimed is that it keeps much better than the fresh potatoes, and, being far lighter and less bulky, is more readily transported. Before cooking, the dried potato is macerated in water for ten or twelve hours.

OXYGEN IN INDUSTRIES.—Oxygen is now prepared in London at a cost of not more than $1.75 per thousand cubic feet, and it bids fair to come into extensive use for various purposes, some of which were lately mentioned to the Society of Chemical Industry by Dr. T. L. Thorne. It is almost always the true agent in bleaching operations, and a stream of the gas applied to the bleaching of paper pulp has effected a saving of thirty per cent. It can be used in the purification of illuminating gas; and when applied to the maturing of spirits mellows them in ten days as if they had been kept for several years.

THE SEA-SERPENT.—An English naturalist, Mr. A. H. Swinton, has collected and analyzed over one hundred notices—ancient and modern, true and fictitious—relating to the great sea-serpent. He is thus forced to the conclusion that the creature is "a venerable sailor's yarn derived from ocular impression, while, quite apart from all other considerations, it is mainly impossible that a species of air-breathing serpent should lie at the bottom of the ocean and be so seldom seen." He finds that the enormously long tentacular arms of the giant squids or calamars—distinguished from the better known kuttle-fish by their cylindrical bodies—have given rise to a story of the great sea-serpent.

PAPER MATERIALS.—A writer on "the age of pulp," upon which we have entered, declares that paper-makers are not likely to suffer lack of raw material. Few fibrous substances—such as esparto grass, straw and wood—have as yet practically taken the place once occupied exclusively by rags, but pulp has been successfully obtained from East India ramie, pineapple fibres, bamboo, bagape (the refuse from sugar canes), peat, braken or common fern, flags, rushes, seaweed, tan and hop stalks. Paper has been made in Scotland from hollyhock stems; in Ireland from the mallow, red clover, hop vine, and yellow water iris; in Demarara from the plantain; and in France from leaves.

Arbor day was quietly observed at Winnipeg yesterday.

NEW COAST DEFENCE VESSEL.

WASHINGTON, May 4. — Secretary Tracy to-day awarded to the Union Iron Works, of San Francisco, the contract for constructing the great armored coast defence vessel, at a cost of $1,628,000. The new vessel is to have a length of 256 feet, with a breadth of 59 feet and 4000 tons displacement. She will be protected by a belt of steel armour, sixteen inches thick over the engines, boilers and magazines, and eight inches thick forward and aft. The specifications call for 5,400 horse power. The new vessel will be a departure in design from any vessel in the navy, will be the most formidable vessel for her displacement of any in the world, and able to cope with anything afloat. She approximates the monitor type, and is of 5000 tons displacement in cruising trim. When she goes into action, by taking on water ballast, she sinks until her deck is but eighteen inches above water level, thus diminishing the size of the target opposed to its opponent. But her most remarkable feature will be the tremendous power of her armament, on the forward barbette. Mounted on a turntable and manipulated by a hydraulic power, she will carry a sixteen inch rifle, weighing 110 tons and 49 feet long, one of the largest guns afloat. In rear of the barbette there will be a 12 inch rifle, weighing 46 and one half tons. A fifteen inch dynamite gun 50 feet long will project from the bow and in other places the vessel will carry six 23 pounders, three 9 pounders, all revolving cannon and rapid firing guns. The machine guns and electric search lights, on the hollow steel military mast, will complete the ship, which will take 3½ years to build.

AZTEC ANTIQUITIES SEIZED.

EL PASO DEL NORTE, May 4.—Some 28 cases, containing Aztec antiquities, which have been purchased by Adolph Sutro in the city of Mexico and other important places in the republic, have been seized by the Mexican customs officials. The officials claim that the antiquities are contraband, and that they will have to turn them over to the general government. Remonstrances are being made to the Mexican officials by the Americans, but the only satisfaction given by the Mexican authorities is that there is a law in Mexico which prevents the exportation of Aztec antiquities.

TO VISIT CANADA.

CHICAGO, May 4.—A visit by the interstate commerce commissioners to Canada, for the purpose of observing and studying its railways and their relations to the U. S. in the matter of traffic, is regarded as probable in the near future. It is believed such a visit would have a good effect in enlightening the people of both countries on the unity of their interests.

WHITELAW REID.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Among the passengers on the French line steamship L. Bourgogne was Hon. Whitelaw Reid, minister to France, and Mrs. Reid. He was given a farewell dinner at Delmonico's last night by the members of the Tribune staff.

POSSIBILITIES OF A R. R. WAR.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—A local railroad man, speaking to-day of the Northern Pacific and Union Pacific controversy, said: "If it should come to a war the Northern Pacific is the only road in a position to make a stubborn fight for the Puget Sound travel. The reason is very plain. In the first place the Northern Pacific has a vast amount of land that it is anxious to sell, in order that the territory through which it passes may be settled as speedily as possible. It could well afford to carry settlers for nothing for a time. Just now there is great interest throughout the east concerning the Pacific Northwest. Tacoma and Seattle are both booming, and I have no hesitancy in saying that if a war of rates should come, in six months time no less than fifty thousand people would be carried into Washington Territory by the Northern Pacific. However, I am not very apprehensive of such a war, but if it does come the chief benefit will be derived by the Northern Pacific.

ARRIVED IN SAFETY.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—The Barkentine City of Papeete, considerably overdue from Tahiti, and which it was feared had been lost in the hurricane that proved so disastrous at Samoa, came into port this morning, having been delayed by gales and adverse winds.

FESSENDON NOT A DEFAULTER.

BOSTON, May 4.—Concerning the reports circulated concerning Treasurer Fessendon, of the Cape Cod Canal, whose statement from San Francisco was published to-day, F. A. Lockwood, of the Canal Co., says he knows nothing of Fessendon's relations with the Co. that would warrent anything like the statement printed. Fessendon went to California two weeks ago. Everybody who had an interest in the matter knew when he went. "I don't know anything of his indebtedness," said Lockwood, "except he is all straight with the Cape Cod Ship Canal. His accounts as treasurer are all right." Mr. Lockwood thought the talk about Fessendon malicious and inspired by enemies. Thomas J. Marsh who had business relations with Fessendon for many years said he knew Fessendon was going to California. He went out with his wife and daughther some time ago, and leaving them there returned to Sandwich. Two weeks ago he went out again. Marsh considered Fessendon a man of integrity.

THE COPPER CONFERENCE FAILS.

BOSTON, Mass., May 4.—The morning Herald has a three column cable dispatch from Paris of the failure of the copper conference. The amount of copper held for money advanced to the syndicate, is about 175,000 tons, 150,000 of which is in Paris and the rest in London. The principle Paris holders are the Bank of France, which has 60,000 tons, and the Rothschilds have 40,000 tons. Baring Bros. are the largest English holders. The Rio Tinto Company insists that the American mines should send only twenty per cent of their output of copper to Europe. Colonel Livermore, representing the Calumet & Hecla Company, would not agree. The conference has failed to arrive at any agreement, written or verbal, and has broken up without fixing a price. The American committee has left Paris in disgust, and will sail from Liverpool for New York to-day.

THE TRACKAGE AGREEMENT

NEW YORK, May 4. — President Harris of the Northern Pacific says that Mr. Adam's general idea of a joint trackage agreement, as expressed in his letter, is this: That in eastern Oregon and eastern Washington the Northern Pacific and Union Pacific shall each have access by contract to the branch roads controlled by each other, and avoid unnecessary duplication of railroads. The matter is in condition for negotiation.

GREAT STORM AT TAHITI.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—The barkentine City of Papette, which arrived from Tahiti this morning brings news of the terrific gale which struck the Island about the same time as Samoa was visited. The storm levelled almost everything standing to the ground, but, fortunately, no lives were lost. The storm was so continuous that the Papette was unable to enter the city of Tahiti for seven days. In the city the streets were so littered with debris that business was at a standstill when the vessel left.

BRUTAL MURDERER.

TROY, N. Y., May 4.—Samuel Dunn murdered his wife this morning with a jack knife in his home, Rock Alley, Cohoes. After the murder Dunn cooly walked to a saloon and took a drink. He was then arrested. The motive is unknown.

SUICIDED.

OAKLAND, Cal., May 4.—Mrs. Alice Harwood, 28 years old, suicided at the Brunswick House, with morphine, last night. The cause is unknown but the deceased was noticed to have been despondent for some time.

ALL QUIET.

WASHINGTON May 4.—The land inspector at Kingfisher, Oklahoma, reports all quiet there, and work going on nicely.

AN ORDERLY COMMUNITY.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Land Commissioner Stockslayer, this morning received from the inspector at Guthrie Oklahoma reports showing the amount of work done there by land officials and stating everything had quieted down and that there was an orderly community.

SMUGGLED CIGARS.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 3.—Among the cargo of the steamer San Blas, which arrived yesterday from Panama were nine boxes of oranges. The boxes were from Mazatlan, and were consigned to this city. As the unloading of the vessel's cargo was in progress, the boxes excited the suspicions of the customs officers, owing to their unusual shape. The officers opened one of the boxes, and were surprised to find that the centre portion of the box was packed with cigars, which were surrounded with oranges. An examination of the other eight cases found them also filled with cigars, all of which were seized and confiscated by the customs officers. The seizure amounted in value to about $1,000.

PAUNCEFORTE AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Secretary Blaine introduced Sir Julian Pauncefort, the British minister, to the president to-day. Pauncefort's address was as follows: "Mr. president, sir, I have the honor to place in your hands, the letter from the queen, my august sovereign, accrediting me as her envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States. In fulfilling this pleasing duty I desire to express my sense of the distinguished character and special importance of the mission Her Majesty has been graciously pleased to confide to me, and assure you that no effort will be wanting on my part to worthily discharge the great trust. My utmost endeavors will be devoted to the object which Her Majesty and her people have so much at heart, the maintenance of relations of peace and friendship which happily exist between Great Britain and the United States, and to strengthen if possible the many ties which unite those two great English-speaking countries, destined to exercise the most beneficial influence for the advancement of civilization and the promotion of happiness throughout the world. I believe the citizens of the United States reciprocate the feelings of amity and good will I have expressed, and are animated by the most kindly sentiments toward Her Majesty's people. I am also convinced that in my relations with the government of the country over which you preside, I shall meet with that spirit of justice and conciliation for which its statesmen are so eminently distinguished; such qualities it will ever be my earnest wish to emulate. The circumstance that I enter upon my diplomatic functions at the time of the Washington centennial, when a national tribute is being offered by this country to the memory of the greatest of her sons, will ever be associated in my memory with the distinguished honor I have had this day, of being presented to the Chief of the States."

Rich Strike at Kootenay.

The latest news from Kootenay lake speaks of the new strike in the No. 1 mine as being larger and richer than was at first supposed. It is impossible to tell the extent of the ore body. As the incline penetrates the mountain it increases in size, until now, it is said, they have ore under and over the drive, and on each side. It has been found 15 feet through at one place. This ore goes up in the hundreds of ounces of silver to the ton. The No. 1 now bids fair to eclipse the Hall's mine at Toad Mountain.—Spokane Review.

Lucius Tuttle, late general passenger traffic manager of the C. P. R., severed his connection with the road April 30, and was banqueted the same night.

The Proposed Sugar Bill not Likely to Prove a Sweet Morsel to the Government.

Sir Charles Russell Decides the Vandeleur Tenants Must Pay One Year's Rent.

NOBLE WOMEN.

LONDON, May 4.—The Women's Home Rule Society, of Croyden, have made up and sent to Father MacFadden 500 garments for the people evicted in his parish.

INVITED TO DINE.

PARIS, May 4.—The ambassadors or ministers of all but three foreign powers have accepted invitations to dine with President Carnot on the 15th of May, on the occasion of the opening of the exposition.

THE SUGAR BILL.

LONDON, May 4.—The revolt of the supporters of the government against the sugar bounties bill, gains in strength every day. Something like 70 unionists members of the house of commons have decided to oppose the bill. These include Mr. Chamberlain, Lord Randolph Churchill and Lord Hartington. This means a set back for the Times unless something happens to prevent it. The powers who have sent delegates to the conference on the sugar bounties law meeting in London may relieve the government from the difficulty in which it finds itself, by serious rupture among themselves. Differences have already arisen in the conference and these are probably encouraged by Lord Salisbury. If the convention should collapse, the premier could withdraw his bill without facing the humiliation of defeat in parliament, and it is thought he is trying to bring this about. The liberals have naturally expected to weaken and embarrass the government by accomplishing the defeat of the bill by the aid of the Hartington faction and outside skirmishers, but they are likely to be disappointed. The result on the contrary will rather tend to strengthen the tories with the working men who support the measure. The government will be able to say "We desire to protect your interests, but we were not allowed to," while to the opposition it can say "We found the bill was regarded as a breach of free trade principles and therefore did not press it upon the house." The pretense in either case would be pretty thin, particularly as Lord Salisbury is probably doing his best to make the bill impossible for his own political ends, but the story in the first instance is quite likely to be swallowed.

THE VANDELEUR ESTATES.

LONDON, May 4.—Sir Chas. Russell has decided, in reference to the rental disputes on the Vandeleur estates, that tenants shall pay a year's rent to March 1889. Orders have been forwarded for the release of Wm. O'Brien and Harrington from jail, in order that they may testify before the Parnell commission.

THE PARNELL COMMISSION.

LONDON, May 3.—In his cross-examination to-day, Mr. Parnell denied knowing "Number One." either under the name of Tynan or any other. He had never heard Egan associated with the "Martyr's fund." He saw nothing criminal in the fund but rather thought it was right to assist the innocent victims of the martyrs. The sensational incident of to-day's examination occurred when Sir R. Webster quoted a statement by Mr. Parnell during the debate on Mr. Forster's bill in 1881, suspending the habeas corpus act, to the effect that secret societies had then ceased to exist in Ireland. Sir Richard asked Mr Parnell if he believed the statement when he made it? Mr. Parnell: "No; at any rate it was an exaggerated statement." Sir R. Webster: "Did you, or did you not, misstate the fact when you made that statement?" Mr Parnell admitted that he had made the statement knowing it to be wrong, or at least extravagant. He further admitted that he had never withdrawn the statement. His purpose in making it was to exaggerate the effect which the league had in eradicating secret societies.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A Voice From Surrey.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—It is generally believed that editors of papers are in the confidence of railway companies, especially if they are not opposed to them. Knowing that your paper has always heartily supported the Southern Railway scheme, perhaps you can give some idea when that railway and traffic bridge will be open for the convenience of travellers. It will be a great boon for the farmers on the south side of the Fraser when they can load their teams and pass right over to New Westminster without the fear of being swamped in the old ferry boat. It makes us feel nervous when we hear of the haste and despatch with which the C. P. R. is building a bridge over the river up at the Mission. We are beginning to fear that we will get left behind. A bridge connecting Westminster with the settlers on the south side of the river would be a mutual benefit, and would have paid both parties concerned, if they had united their credit for that purpose long ago. Cities are not built up by railway so much as they are by uninterrupted local trade with produces and consumers. Hurry up that bridge if you want the farmers' trade, which is getting of still more importance. We are not the poor isolated settlers that we used to be when the merchants of New Westminster turned up their noses at us. FARMER.

A party under Chief Grier left Rat Portage to go up the lake after Reddon, and surrounded him on a point of the mainland and secured his tent and camp outfit and arrested Joe Thompson, a canoe man, but Reddon escaped in the underbrush. The point has been surrounded and there is every hope of Reddon's capture.

Right Rev. Thomas, Joseph Dowling, D.D., bishop-elect of Hamilton, was consecrated yesterday in the presence of the leading Catholic dignitaries.

Daily British Columbian

Saturday Evening, May 4, 1889.

The Winnipeg Commercial thus compliments the British Columbia boards of trade, and our own board particularly: The advantage arising from the work of well organized and active boards of trade was recently demonstrated in the case of the C. P. R. bridge across the Fraser River in British Columbia. The C. P. R. Co. recently commenced the construction of a bridge across the Fraser River at Mission Station, a point on its main line east of Vancouver, where connection is to be made with a road running south to Puget Sound. Plans were prepared for a bridge with a draw span of only sixty feet. This soon came to the knowledge of the New Westminster board of trade, and a vigorous protest was at once made. New Westminster is, of course, the city most directly interested in the free navigation of the Fraser river. It was pointed out that so narrow a span in the bridge would be a serious impediment to navigation and a dangerous obstruction to place across the river. The C. P. R. Co. at first declined to change the plans of the bridge, and then sought a compromise. But the board remained firm, and insisted that the draw should be not less than 100 feet. The Victoria and Vancouver boards of trade followed up the action of the Westminster board. An appeal was made to Ottawa, and it is now announced that the C.P.R. has been obliged to give in to the demands of the boards. But for the timely action of the boards of trade, it is more than probable that a bridge would have been built across the river which would have proved a serious obstruction to navigation. Civic corporations cannot be depended upon to look sharply after the many questions of this nature which are continually arising, and besides in nine cases out of ten, a board of trade will carry more weight in a matter of this nature than a town council. Town councils are often the result of wire pulling and political scheming, while this is not the case with a board of trade. The latter is invariably composed of the representative men of a place, while the former frequently is not. The board of trade is therefore as a rule better qualified to give an intelligent and unbiassed decision upon questions, than is the average civic council. British Columbia is to be congratulated upon her thoroughly organized and energetically conducted boards of trade.

Mr. Slaven, president of the American Dredging Company, which has had a large contract on the Panama canal, has just returned to New York from Paris, whither he went to meet the directors and stock-holders of the canal company, says an exchange. In an interview with a Herald reporter he gave some interesting information concerning M. DeLesseps' "great ditch." The amount so far spent on the canal, he says, is about $250,000,000, and to show for this there is only about fifteen miles of completed work, thirty feet deep, on the eastern end, and the uncompleted Culebra cut. The latter is the sticking point, the highest point of the cut being over three hundred feet above sea level, and the amount of work yet to be done in it enormous. The French engineers made a sad mistake in their calculations as to the slope which it would be necessary to give the banks of the cut. It was soon found that the earth would not stand at the angle allowed it, and the result is that the amount of excavation necessary is just twice what it was first estimated at. Into the Culebra cut the company's money has been poured like water, and much of it has been wasted. The French are magnificent engineers, Mr. Slaven says, but on the Isthmus they have been hampered in every possible way by red-tapeism. Under the bureau system there are about seven chiefs and sub-chiefs to every laborer, and the maintenance of such a staff has alone cost hundreds of thousands of dollars. In the care of the plant, moreover, the utmost carelessness has been shown. Acres of machinery, much of which has never been used, is rusting away without any effort being made to protect or save it. The canal can be completed, Mr. Slaven says, for about $200,000,000 more, but the money is not forthcoming: Not that the French people have lost faith in M. DeLesseps, but their savings are all gone, and they have no more to invest in shares. The original company represented them; the second one represents the capitalists. The latter, with the Credit Foncier at their head and the Comptoir d'Escompte at their backs, would probably have been able to raise the funds required for the completion of the work, but just as the arrangements were being made the failure of the copper syndicate shook the French banks to their foundations, and the scheme has been dropped for the present. "There are no more people in France," Mr. Slaven says, "to put money up. DeLesseps 'busted' the small investors, and copper 'busted' the big ones." There would seem to be a prospect of English capitaliss taking hold of this abandoned work and putting it through—that is, if the "Monroe doctrine" and Jim Blaine will let 'em. In the event of English capital actually resuscitating the scheme, some concession would probably have to be made to American pretensions, in the premises, in the shape of a sort of partnership in working the "big ditch."

The edifying spectacle is presented just now in Great Britain of Lord Salisbury and the Conservative-Unionist government grimly determined to hold unto their seats for the remaining three years of the natural term of the present parliament—which their majority in the house, notwithstanding it is being decreased by the by-elections, will probably enable them to do—in defiance, if need be, of the sentiment of the country towards them. By that time it is devoutly hoped by these pertinacious bench-warmers that the "Grand Old Man" may have passed from earth away, and Home Rule have lost at once its redoubtable champion and chief power for striking terror and defeat into the Conservative-Unionist ranks. An exchange thinks that such hopes have the slimest sort of mud-sill, and supports the idea well, as follows: The Unionists are calculating closely upon Mr. Gladstone's chance of living three years and retaining sufficient physical and intellectual power to carry Home Rule into effect. They are overlooking the almost inevitable result which would follow his death, if the last great work of his wonderful career were left unfinished. Gambetta as premier brought forward a large measure and was defeated. Within a few months thereafter he died, and the policy which he had advocated was adopted by the Republican legislators without a struggle, almost without debate. Mr. Gladstone is the greatest figure in English public life since Chatham and Pitt. The death of so illustrious an Englishman—and Christendom unites in the hope that it may long be deferred—would be certain to impart an immediate impulse to the cause of race reconciliation with which he has been identified during his closing years. The Unionists may succeed in wearing out the veteran statesman, who is now rapidly ageing. They cannot guard against the popular reaction in favor of Home Rule which would follow his premature disappearance. Whether Mr. Gladstone lives or dies, Home Rule is something that must inevitably have a trial. An Irish parliament may not last ten years, but whether it be crowned with success and prosperity or be doomed to premature failure, with complete disenchantment of the unhappy, impoverished population who are now grounding upon it extravagant hopes, it must come. The English people, after tinkering for twenty years with the land laws and allowing themselves to become half converted to Home Rule, will be compelled to try Mr. Gladstone's experiment. Liberal advocacy of the Irish cause has done more to bring the two races together than 400 years of coercion. The English people appreciate the significance of this fact when they see Edinburgh opening its gates to Mr. Parnell and listen to the Irish members cheering with tumultuous enthusiasm when Mr. Gladstone speaks in the commons. They know that force has never been a remedy for Irish discontent. They are gradually becoming convinced that Home Rule is a remedy that must at least be tried.

JUDGE JOHN LYNCH.

The Man Who First Popularized Swift Retribution.

How the Services Which He Rendered the Proud Dominion of Virginia Are Appreciated by the Present Generation.

Says the Lynchburg (Va.) correspondent of the Inter Ocean: While chatting with an old antiquarian in his cool library this afternoon, I casually inquired how this town came by its peculiar suggestive name. "Did the original judge of dreadful fame ever live here?" I asked.

"Yes, he did," replied the old gentleman, with brightening eyes that revealed delight in the topic. "Judge Lynch might fairly be called the founder of the city, and it makes me angry to see all these newspaper stories, not only locating him in other States, but condemning his mode of procedure as infamous and brutal."

"Then you believe in the summary method of dealing with sinful men!"

"Not so fast, young lady, not so fast," said the fine old Virginian, smiling, "I will tell you the story just as I had it from my grandfather, who was proud of his acquaintance with that shrewd ferryman who wiped the crime of horse-stealing, for which the State was growing famous, right out. Why, Virginians were notorious for the love of other men's horses, and even taught the trade of acquiring them to the Cherokees and Chickasaws, much to the disgust and shame of the better class of citizens."

"When was this?" queried your correspondent.

"Not long before the revolutionary war, and at that time there were quite a number of that splendid race, the Scotch-Irish, settled here. Shrewd and brave, cautious, yet daring, dashing, but prudent, honest and energetic, every man of them proved a great blessing to the settlement, and not a few became famous, such as General Andrew Jackson, James K. Polk, John Calhoun, Sam Houston, David Crockett, Robert Fulton, Patrick Bronte, and later, Robert Bonner, A. T. Stewart and Horace Greeley. These names come most readily to mind, but there is still another generation of them, including ex-President Arthur and James G. Blaine."

"And the Lynches?" I ventured.

"Were from the same stalwart stock and settled in Prince William County. There were four boys in the family, and one of them, John Lynch, was a bright, quick young fellow and remarkably courageous. One day, in rambling about the head of the James river, he found a gap in the mountains on either side of the water, which, it struck him, would make a capital crossing point for travelers, and forthwith he drove his proprietory stake, and shortly after, with a few logs and a scow, established a primitive ferry. The horse-thieves were among the first to take advantage of the new convenience, and young Lynch, himself scrupulously honest, was disgusted and humiliated at having to take them across. At this time the country was sparsely settled, courts were few and jails far apart. The evil continued to increase; finally the ferry became the favorite means of escape for the stock-dealers, and John Lynch, thoroughly aroused, proposed to put an end to it."

"What could he do single-handed?"

"Well, I will tell you what he actually did. He applied to the Governor of Virginia for a commission to act as a justice of the peace. His reputation for honesty and good judgment was beyond a doubt, and his commission was granted. He was qualified and became a judge. The first use he made of his power was to appoint some special constables and engage a few sharp detectives. They at once began work with such success that gang after gang was captured."

"Did they have no trial?"

"Yes. They were brought before Judge Lynch, and he never acted until he was positive of their guilt, and his knowledge of the men and the country was an immense advantage to him.

"If he found them guilty he would, according to the law, require a good bond, which, of course, in those days a thief could never get, and when that form was complied with would start them off, well guarded, to some far-away jail. The constables knew what the order of march meant, and as soon as they found themselves in a thick wood chose a stout tree, and with a good rope which they carried created a temporary scaffold, from which the horse thieves quickly dangled. Hanging was the legal punishment for horse stealing in those days, but the promptness and dispatch with which Judge Lynch meted out justice at their very door terrorized the evil-doers of the country, and between those he hung and those who fled, in two years there was not a horse thief in Virginia."

"And what became of Judge Lynch?"

"He continued to live near the ferry, round which a large village grew up under the name of Lynch's ferry, and not until long after his death did it become Lynchburg. During his life lynch law was honored and upheld, but since then it has altogether lost its original character and meaning. Now, as I understand it, it is merely the infuriated impulse of a rough mob, who, without waiting for the law at hand to prove innocence or guilt, decide on it according to their own inclination, and take a life perhaps more unblemished than their own.

"No," concluded the old gentleman, "John Lynch did this State a service in ridding it of a lot of miscreants, whom, but for him, were out of the reach of the law; but were he living no one would be quicker than he to resent this barbarous mob fashion of putting a man to sudden death when the law, the courts, the prison and the scaffold are close at hand to mete out justice and punishment."

DEAD-SHOT JIM'S FIGHT.

A Western Hunter's Terrible Encounter with a Huge Panther.

They called him "Dead-Shot Jim." Leaning on his rifle, his bright dagger glistening in his belt, he told this story of an encounter with a panther to a San Francisco Examiner reporter: "My two dogs had treed the animal on the other side of the deep gulch which I would have to cross on a shaky fallen tree to reach him. I worked my way to the fallen tree and started to cross it. I went very slowly, as the log was quite slippery. My dogs had ceased their noise when I first came in view, but just as I was about half way across the bridge they began to bark more fiercely than ever. I thought that perhaps the animal had seen me and was about to jump out of the tree and make his escape. I stopped in my dangerous walk, and, steadying myself, looked up into the tree. Great Scott! I had seen a great many panthers before and had killed a few, but the one I saw looking at me from the branches of the oak was larger and fiercer than any I had ever seen or heard tell about. He lay crouched along a branch about midway to the top of the oak, and glared at me with great eyes that gleamed like balls of fire. From the moment he first beheld me he paid not the slightest attention to the dogs, but kept his eyes riveted on me, uttering deep, low growls, and swaying his long tail to and fro. I knew that I had no time to lose, but must act quickly, as the varmint was preparing to spring at me. Bracing myself for the shot as best I could on the slippery tree, I raised the rifle to my shoulder and aimed for the center of the brute's head. Just as I pressed the trigger a piece of rotten bark that I was standing on gave way and I slipped, at the moment when the rifle vomited its load of fire and lead. In saving myself from falling the empty gun slipped from my grasp to the rocks below, and I would have followed it had I not luckily fallen astraddle of the tree. I drew my hunting-knife from my belt, but had no sooner done so when the panther gave a shriek of mingled pain and rage, and the next moment he bounded from his perch and landed on the ground within three feet of one end of the log on which I sat. The ball from my rifle had made a slight wound in the brute's head, the blood from which ran into his eyes, making him look terrible in his maddened fury. His eyes were fastened on me, and I knew that his next spring would bring him within a foot or two of where I sat. My faithful dogs were by this time at the rear of the infuriated beast, and before he could leap upon me they attacked him boldly. He turned with a flash, and with a yell of defiance struck one of the dogs such a blow with his powerful claws that knocked the poor pup dead into the river below. The other dog had got a grip on one of the panther's hind legs and held on gamely. The next moment the dog and panther were rolling on the ground in a struggle for the mastery. The huge beast threw up clouds of earth and dead leaves with his sharp claws, and for a time the combatants were lost to view in the dust. The struggle soon ceased, and through the falling leaves I could see the writhing dog between the jaws of the panther. The jaws came together and I could hear the crunching of bones, and in another moment the limp body of the dog was thrown on the ground. The panther was now thoroughly enraged. Giving his head a shake to free his eyes from the blood and dirt, he gave a yell that nearly froze my blood, and crouched for a spring. I grasped my knife firmly in my right hand, and, steadying myself with my left, awaited the shock. It came. The long, lithe body flashed through the air, and the next moment I was sitting face to face with the infuriated beast Leaning forward quickly I plunged the keen blade once, twice into the animal's neck. The hot blood spurted into my face. I felt the breath of the panther on my cheek, and then the powerful paws, armed with the long, sharp nails, rose in the air and then descended on my chest. I felt the sharp claws burning through my flesh. The knife fell from my weakened grasp and bounded on the rocks to the river below. I felt my brain whirling. I made a desperate grab at the panther before me, and, locked in a close embrace, we rolled off the log and fell together on the rocks below. The sun was far down the horizon when I recovered consciousness. I was not very seriously hurt, for in the fall I landed on top of the panther, which saved me from having my bones broken. The huge beast lay dead on the rocks beside me. My knife had touched his heart, and no doubt he was dead before he struck the rocks."

HIS HAIR TURNED WHITE.

A Chicago Business Man's Experiences in the Far Northwest.

A successful Chicago business man, well known in real-estate circles, regaled a reporter for the Tribune with a bit of personal experience. They met in an office not far from the Chicago Opera-House block. Though yet middle-aged, the man's hair is gray almost to whiteness. On the reporter mentioning this, he told the following story:

"In December, 1885, I invested in a copper mine near Bisbee, A. T., and January 4, 1886, arrived at Tombstone to examine into my purchase. I hired a saddle-horse the morning of the 5th, and started for Bisbee (thirty-three miles), over the trail that leads through Carr's Canyon in the Mule Mountains. When about half the distance had been covered my horse stumbled and fell into a washout on the trail, breaking a leg. I was thrown heavily, but sustained no severe injuries. What was I to do? I was unarmed, my horse was useless, and I had no alternative but to make my way to Bisbee on foot. I pushed ahead and arrived at Sandy Bob's station on the ore road at noon. I was told that four hostile Indians from Geronimo's band had been seen in the vicinity, and that a squaw had been captured the day before. I kept on up a narrow canyon, keeping a sharp lookout. A pack train of troop I, Fourth Cavalry, passed me in single file. Shortly after it had passed I heard two shots down the canyon. Then I began to get nervous. Looking back I saw two Indians on my trail. They were trotting. Above me the cliffs towered to the heavens; below was a deep abyss. I saw the futility of hiding, and was unable to outrun the hostiles. My mind was quickly made up. I would leap from the precipice before I would surrender and undergo the devilish tortures and horrible death of an Apache prisoner. As they came nearer I backed up to the cliff and awaited them with knife in hand. To my joy, as they came nearer, I found them to be Indian scouts of the Government. I traveled with them for three miles. I took one of their rifles and, firing, hit a stump at three hundred yards. One of the Indians patted me on the back and cried: 'Bueno, bueno, Senor!' and then in broken English: 'You heap good man.' I said nothing, but kept my eyes wide open, as I was afraid of treachery. When I arrived at Bisbee my hair was white from the fright."

"And your mine?"

"Proved a whale on my hands. It was only on paper."

TWO KINDS OF COURAGE.

General Porter Shows Which Variety Is Entitled to Most Praise.

General Horace Porter contributes an article to the Century on "The Philosophy of Courage," from which we quote as follows:

"Indifference to danger is not always the form of courage which should entitle its possessor to the highest credit. It is a negative virtue as compared with the quality which enables one to perform a dangerous duty while realizing the full measure of the peril encountered.

"These two traits are best illustrated by the old story of the two soldiers whose regiment was charging up a hill in a desperate attempt to capture a battery. When halfway up, one of them turned to the other and said: 'Why, you're as pale as a sheet; you look like a ghost; I believe you're afraid.' 'Yes, I am,' was the answer; 'and if you were half as much afraid as I am you'd have run long ago.' It is something higher than physical courage, it is a species of moral courage, which recognizes the danger and yet overmasters the sense of fear. When the famous mine in front of Petersburg had been completed, and the National troops drawn up ready to charge the enemy's works as soon as the mine had done its work in creating a breach, the signal was given just before daylight, the fuse was lighted, and the command stood waiting with intense anxiety for the explosion which was to follow. But seconds, then minutes, then tens of minutes passed, and still no sound from the mine. The suspense became painful, and the gloom of disappointment overspread the anxious faces of officers and men. The fuse had been spliced about midway. It was now thought that there was a defect in the splice, and that it was at this point that the fuse was hanging fire. The day was breaking, the enemy was becoming alert at sight of our unmasked columns, there was not a moment to be lost. Lieutenant Doughty and Sergeant Rees, of the Forty-eighth Pennsylvania Infantry, now volunteered to examine the fuse. They entered the long dark gallery which led to the mine, and without stopping to calculate the chances of life, calmly exposed themselves to one of the most horrible forms of death. With no excitement to lend them its intoxication, with nothing to divert their minds from the fate which seemed to await them, they followed the course of the fuse through the long subterranean passage, found the defect at which the spark had been arrested, and made a new splice. On their return the match was again applied, and the train was now prompt to do its deadly work. These men displayed even a higher order of courage than those who afterwards charged into the breach."

Rights of Passengers.

A passenger boarded a train of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway Company, and before he learned that he could get no seat the train was going at a high rate of speed. On his fair being demanded the plaintiff refused to pay it unless a seat was provided for him, offering, however, to pay if a seat was provided. The Supreme Court of Minnesota held (Hardenburg versus the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway Company) that the passenger had a right to refuse to pay the fare, and that he did not thereby become a trespasser. The Court said that a passenger has a right to a seat, and that a railroad having the right to eject from its train one not a trespasser must do so at a regular station.

The Ladies' Central Committee will give a grand concert in the Oddfellows' Hall, on Wednesday, 8th inst., in aid of the Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. Peele advertises elsewhere instruction given in instrumental and vocal music, and French, with Parisian accent guaranteed.

The battery paraded last night at the drill shed and was put through a number of movements which were performed in a very creditable manner.

Kamloops is progressing rapidly in more ways than one. To-day three insane persons arrived from there for treatment at the asylum for the insane.

The woman who was sentenced by Judge Walkem, at Kamloops, to 2 years in penitentiary, arrived by the Pacific express to-day and is now under the warden's charge.

The subject at the Baptist church to-morrow morning will be "Wicked Spirits in Heavenly Places," and in the evening "Joseph in Egypt." All are cordially invited.

It is currently reported that since the recent additions to the Salvation Army, the devil has gone to Nanaimo to get clear of the noise. Lucky devil, that he can get away.—Vic. Standard.

D. J. Levy, of 61, Johnston street, Victoria, B. C., is the only agent H. L. Gabel has in British Columbia. Hold your orders; he will be in New Westminster on or about May 1st, 1889. *tc

Richards, Haywood & Mackintosh have for sale 160 acres improved farming land, with fine orchard, near Wharnock station; good roads leading to station and river. Terms easy. This is a bargain. *tc 200 lots on the Thorne road, from $65 upwards, on monthly instalments of $10, without interest. These lots are only two blocks from the park, have a good view, are mostly cleared and are only four blocks from the new store. Apply to WM. REIDT, Front street. *

Mr. Henry Kells, of Port Kells, has been in the city for a few days making arrangements about getting his new and valuable townsite on the market, and returned to-day. An advertisement of lots for sale in the new town plot will appear in this paper on Monday.

Mr. Agassiz reports that the young sockeye salmon turned loose in the Harrison river some weeks ago, are thriving nicely. They are to be found in large schools at any point of the river where the water is shallow, and they are as frisky and healthy looking as young trout.

In another column will be found the advertisement of the Central Hotel. This is a new and handsomely fitted hotel at the corner of Douglas and Columbia streets, and being conveniently situated near the C.P.R. station, and under enterprising and skilful management, will doubtless receive a large share of the public patronage.

The str. Irving left for Hope this morning with a large number of passengers and 80 tons of merchandise. She will return on Monday in time to leave on her regular trip. A large quantity of the freight will go over Hope mountain into the Similkameen country, where the supply laid in last fall is beginning to run short. This is the first trip of the season to Hope.

The fishing schooner Edward E. Webster, after a trip of five months, returned to Seattle on Wednesday with a catch of 80,000 halibut. The most of the fish were taken off at Queen Charlotte islands, where the Oscar and Hattie were also engaged in fishing. The Hattie reported a catch of 50,000 fish. The Webster disposed of her cargo to Seattle parties at 3½ cents per pound.

Installation of Officers.

The following officers of Dominion Lodge No. 4 I. O. G. T., were installed in their respective chairs last night: W. C. T., Sister Nellie Gilley; V. T., Bro. Jas. Kelly; Rec. Secty., Bro. W. C. Loye: Fin. Secty., Bro: F. H. Meyers; Treas., Bro. J. Latham; Marshall, Bro. A. E. Mann; I. G. Sister Francis Miller; Sentinel, Bro. G. Haines; Chaplain Bro. F. S. Case; Supt.—Juvenile Templars, Sister C. Wintermute. The membership of this lodge shows a total of 81, and the financial condition is steadily improving.

Munn's Cannery.

Munn & Co's. new cannery is now ready to receive the necessary machinery, which arrived a few days ago and was taken down to the cannery last night by the str. Irving. The steamer also took down a thousand boxes of tin for Munn & Co. and the can makers will be put to work immediately so as to have a good stock on hand when the run commences. Everything in connection with the building of the new cannery is progressing favorably and all that is now required is a favorable season to repay the enterprise of the energetic proprietors.

Fishing Boats on the Fraser.

Under the new fisheries law, by which only 450 fishing boats are allowed on the Fraser river, the allotment to canneries has been made as follows: Ewen's cannery, 31; Delta Canning Co., 24; Wadham's cannery, 24; Laidlaw & Co., 24; B. Young, 24; Wellington Packing Co., 24; Phoenix cannery 23; Harlock & Co., 20; Richmond Canning Co., 20; Bon Accorde Canning Co., 22; Beaver cannery, 18; Sea Island Canning Co., 18; Canoe Pass Canning Co., 18; Hobson & Co, 18; Fraser River Fishery, 20. One hundred boats have been allowed to outside fishermen, and of this number 44 have been licensed up to date.

Fourth of July Illumination.

Several young gentlemen, residents of Seattle, have on foot the proposition of organizing a party and ascending and illuminating Mount Rainier on the coming Fourth of July. The party will ascend from the south side of the mountain and cross to the north peak, which is to be the place illuminated. It is calculated to reach the top of the mountain about 12 o'clock, or a little after, on the day of the Fourth, so that ample time will be had for preparing the red fire for ignition. It will be touched off at about 11 o'clock that evening. It is expected that in case the weather is clear the red fire will be plainly seen from all points on the Sound from which a view of Rainier is obtainable.

Miss Peters' Concert.

The concert given at the Oddfellows' Hall last night by Miss Peters and her pupils, was a complete success in every way, many present being of the opinion that it was the best amateur entertainment given this season. The hall was comfortably filled and the audience was most appreciative. The singing and instrumental selections were most pleasing in every instance, and the ladies are to be heartily congratulated on the success they achieved. The stage was handsomely arranged, and, with the actors, formed a pretty picture. Miss Peters' work as an instructor was made plainly manifest last night, and it is to be hoped the second concert, which is to be given at Vancouver on Monday evening, will be patronized as richly as its merits deserve.

The Keefer Divorce.

The Keefer divorce case which will come up at the next session of parliament, is a complicated affair. Some seven years ago Mrs. Keefer procured a divorce in a Buffalo court, her husband making no defense, and subsequently married Mr. Simpson, a well known civil engineer. Mr. Keefer for some time had been in British Columbia engaged in various public works. He owns a magnificent mansion, one of the finest in Niagara district, situated in Thorold. All the parties to the suit are well known throughout the Niagara peninsula, and it is supposed that the present suit is brought principally to settle legal complications, and consequently that little or no defense will be made to the petition which, in this instance, is brought by Mr. Hugh Forbes Keefer himself.

Going Back on the "Perfect's."

The professional race at Victoria on the 24th is off. At a meeting of the general committee held Wednesday evening the following resolution was carried unanimously: Moved by Mr. J. H. Seeley, seconded by Mr. R. P. Rithet, that the understanding with Mr. Hamm for a professional race on the 24th of May celebration having been that three other professional oarsmen were to row here before rowing at any point on the coast north of San Francisco, and from a telegram and letter just read from O'Connor they now intend to row at Tacoma on the 18th of May, which would be likely to seriously detract from the attraction which a contest of oarsmen would be; Resolved, therefore, that the programme arranged at the last meeting of the committee be amended by omitting therefrom the professional prize of $1,000

Unexpected Sockeye Run.

If every fisherman on the Fraser river had caught a whale in his net, he could not have been more surprised than he was with the results of last night's fishing. A small run of sockeye salmon commenced last night and every fisherman made excellent catches. Vianen's boats brought in this morning over 400 fish, by far the largest number since the season opened. To say the fishermen were surprised scarcely expresses their feelings, the run being so unexpected and unprecedented at this season of the year. A few sockeyes are annually caught in the months of May and June, but the fish are not usually numerous till July. The fishermen freely expressed the opinion that these fish are some more of the good work of the hatchery, otherwise the run would not have commenced till the usual time. How long the run will last, and the dimensions it will asume, are questions which excite considerable speculation, and the results will be watched with keen interest.

Sir Leonard Tilley, lieutenant-governor of New Brunswick, was to leave Fredericton about May 1st on a two months trip to the Pacific coast.

VICTORIA NEWS.

The Nyanza Sails for Alaska. The Str. Maude Breaks Her Mainmast. Sealers for the North.

Special to the Columbian.

VICTORIA, May 4.—The Yacht Nyanza sailed for Alaska this morning.

The steamer Maude broke her mainmast to-day.

The excursion to Port Angeles is postponed as no steamer was on hand.

The sealers Viva and Annie C. Moore sailed for the north to-day.

The base ball match, May Flower vs. Maple Leafs, is in progress on Beacon hill this afternoon.

The McLaren-Ross Mills.

The directors of the McLaren-Ross Lumber Co. went up by steamer this morning to the McInnes farm, the site of their new mill, to inspect the ground and to examine into the practicability of the proposed plans. In conversation with Mr. D. MacLaren, a representative of THE COLUMBIAN gleaned the fact that the building of the mills is now arranged beyond a doubt. The only hindrance to active operations commencing immediately is the necessity of having the plans complete in every detail so that no useless labor will be expended. Mr. MacLaren would not say what the exact capacity of the mills will be, but intimated that they would at least equal any in the province. A second mill will be built somewhere up the coast, but its location has not yet been chosen and may not be for some little time. Mr. MacLaren is favorably impressed with Westminster as a business centre, and considers her situation excellent for shipping and commercial purposes. Speaking of British Columbia timber, he said it certainly was magnificient, and superior to anything he had ever seen of its kind, but he was positive in declaring that the Canadian white pine was a better all-round marketable lumber. The Messrs. MacLaren will remain in the city till Monday.

Since writing the above the directors have returned from inspecting the mill site, and it is understood, on the very best authority, that the plans have been adopted and Mr. Kendall has been instructed to commence work on the new mills forthwith. The mill building will be 455 feet long by 72 feet wide, and it will be furnished with the most modern machinery. Mr. Kendall will commence active operations on Monday.

Spring Assizes.

(Mr. Justice McCreight Presiding.)

Saturday, May 4.

His lordship took the bench at 11 o'clock to pronounce sentence on the prisoners convicted.

James L. Sprouster, convicted of larceny, asked that sentence be deferred as he had a witness as to character who would arrive by Tuesday's train. Remanded till Wednesday, May 8th.

Michael Hanley, convicted of uttering forged notes.

Mr. Atkinson, on behalf of the prisoner asked for a remand till certain letters of character were received from Vancouver.

Request granted and sentence deferred till May 8th.

J. R. McNeill, convicted of uttering forged notes.

Mr. Atkinson appeared for the prisoner and stated that he, personally, knew a number of people who could give evidence as to McNeill's character, and he would ask a remand till they could be produced in court.

Remanded till May 8th.

Henry Juillot, convicted of assault, was remanded till May 8th for sentence.

The court then adjourned till May 8th.

A Would-be Duellist.

Just after the Colonist had gone to press yesterday, the report of a revolver shot was heard on the street, and almost opposite the office. Investigation showed the street to be deserted, but a hack rattled away in the distance led to the belief that its occupants were the parties who aroused the neighborhood. During the day the facts of the case were discovered to be briefly as follows: The occupants of the carriage were three young gentlemen (?) who have recently been amusing themselves about Victoria by attempting to run the city in defiance of law and order. Two of them passed a few hard words, the younger of the two being under the influence of liquor and rather quarrelsome. He finally challenged his friend to a duel, and produced two loaded revolvers as the carriage was rattling along Government street. The friend took one, and extracting the cartridges handed to the other occupant of the hack, informing him that he could act as second. He replied that he would look after the matter, and pocketing pistol No. 1, reached out his hand for the other, ostensibly to see that it was properly loaded. The young man handed it over, and the third party was drawing its contents when the challenging party objected and attempted to take the weapon from him, in the scuffle the revolver was discharged, the bullet piercing the palm of the young man's hand, which he will carry in a sling for some days to come. The bullet was extracted by Dr. Helmcken, and no serious results are anticipated. —Colonist.

PERSONAL.

John MacLaren, of Ottawa, arrived in the city this morning.

James Leamy took a trip to the terminal city this afternoon.

J. M. Lawrence, of the West Shore, is in the city, and registered at the Queens.

A. H. McBride, warden of the penitentiary, returned from Ladners this morning.

Ben. Douglas, president of the Southern Railway Co., paid Vancouver a visit to-day.

Bishop Lemmens is at present engaged in a very worthy work. From 9 o'clock in the morning till late in the afternoon he finds a pleasure in instructing a class of young Indians in a small house situated in the reserve, in religious and worldly subjects. The work is purely a labor of love on his part, and it is gratifying to learn that he is meeting with success.—Times.

The body of John H. Kelly, of Chicago, a victim of the Hamilton railway disaster, has been identified. L. Oratt, a student of the college of physicians, New York, was among the killed. Jno. A. Murray, a tailor of Oshawa, Ont., is being inquired for. Adam Forepaugh's agent is missing.
