JACK THE RIPPER

Gets Another Victim and Mutilates the Body in a Most Horrible Manner.

As Usual, the Police are Without a Clue and The Ripper is Safe.

Great Tides on Coney Island do Immense Damage and Scare the Inhabitants.

JACK THE RIPPER.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—At half past five this morning a policeman found the body of an abandoned woman lying in the corner of the railway arch spanning Cable street, Whitechapel. An examination of the body showed the head and legs had been cut off and carried away, and the stomach ripped open leaving the bowels lying upon the ground. The police authorities immediately placed a cordon of officers around the spot, but no arrests were made. A policeman passed the place where the body was found every fifteen minutes throughout the night and saw nothing to arouse his suspicions. The physicians who examined the body believe that the murder occupied nearly an hour, and that the murderer carried the head and legs away in a bag. This murder is the most horrible of the whole Whitechapel series. The dissection of the body shows that the perpetrator possessed considerable surgical skill. The murdered woman was about 30 years of age, and was evidently addicted to the excessive use of spirituous liquors. Her clothing was shabby. As yet she has not been identified.

The murder has created tremendous excitement and a large crowd of agitated humanity surrounds the morgue where the body was taken. A further examination reveals the fact that there was no blood on the ground where the body was found, nor was there any indication of a struggle. This confirms the general belief that the woman was murdered in a house and her body taken to the spot where it was discovered. The trunk was cut and torn and a bloody chemise was lying near it. Experts are of the opinion that the woman was killed two days ago. Three sailors subsequent to the discovery of the body were found sleeping in an adjoining arch. They were arrested but convinced the police they had neither seen or heard anything of the murderer of the body lying near them and were discharged.

MR. YATES' CABLE.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—Prince Albert Victor is to attend the German autumn manœuvers next year, and also those of the Austrian-Hungarian army. The Duchess of Cumberland has arrived at Schloss on a visit to the queen of Denmark, having travelled direct from Gmunden, by way of Lubeck. This is the first visit the duchess has paid to Denmark for several years, as she has not been the guest of her parents since her illness. I hear from Copenhagen there have been some stormy scenes at Fredensburg since the arrival of the czar, who has been rendered furious by the projected betrothal of Prince Christian of Denmark, the eldest son of the crown prince, to Princess Margaret of Russia, the youngest sister of the Emperor William. No marriage could possibly be more obnoxious to the Russian court, as it will absolutely preclude all hope of Denmark taking part against Germany in case of war and the czar has always been accustomed to regard Denmark as a portion of his own dominions.

THE ROYAL YACHT.

The appointment to the command of the royal yacht Osborne, has not yet been filled. It is no secret that Prince Louis of Battenburg has been pressed to accept it. Prince Edward Saxe-Weimer is to retain the command of the troops in Ireland until Oct, 1890. He is exceedingly popular in Dublin, and is, I hear, happy and comfortable there. Although there have been more than once reports that he was likely to resign his command of the troops, nothing has transpired to justify this rumor.

THE CZAR PANICKY.

We may hear any day, after the German autumn manœuvers are over, that the czar has left Fredensberg for Potsdam. The uncertainty and mystery about his visit are due to the fact that a rumor recently reached St. Petersburg of another plot to assassinate his majesty, who consequently is in a state of panic.

THE BARBAROUS SHAH.

The emperor of Austria, the arch duke and his relations, would have been nearly mad, I am told, if the Shah had stopped in their country for another week. His ostentatious indifference was regarded in Vienna and Peath as downright barbarism.

GREAT TIDES.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The greatest tide ever experienced struck Cony Island at 6 o'clock this morning, and increased in volume and fury until long past 8 o'clock. Consternation reigned supreme everywhere. The water poured in volumes underneath the Manhattan beach hotel floor, and beds were inundated fully a foot. All of the lamp posts which bordered the path next to the sea have been literally torn from their foundations and bent and broken as if they were straws and dashed against the music stand. The concrete wall directly in front of the big building was undermined and torn away and the bulkhead has been torn up and rent asunder. The cellar of the hotel at 8 o'clock this morning had five feet of water in it. The little strips of land between the Brighton and Manhattan hotels has been eaten away, and the ocean and Sheepshead Bay is connected by fully five feet of water. The Manhattan and Oriental hotels stand by themselves on a little island that is fast being eaten away.

WIND AND WATER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Great damage was done by the winds and high tides at Coney Island on Sunday and last night. The greater part of the "Concourse" was washed away, and the water got to the basement of the Manhattan beach hotel. The marine railway was swept away last night.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—Negotiations for the termination of the strike continue. The only question is the date when the terms shall go into effect. The conference was held in the Mansion house; the lord mayor presided, and Burns and Tillett were present. The meeting adjourned until to-morrow. In the meantime the strike goes on and the situation remains unchanged.

WINDOM WILL EXPLAIN.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Secretary Windom has prepared a statement, which will be made public later, showing the purchase of bonds by this administration with the prices paid therefor, and also giving various reasons for the increase of public debt as shown by the statement of August.

GORED BY A BULL.

OTTAWA, Sept. 9.—Yesterday afternoon a fearful accident happened on the exhibition grounds. The men in charge of Mr. Reyburn's herd of Jerseys, from St. Anne, Quebec, were engaged in feeding them, and one of them, named Joe Elliott, was in the act of placing a pail of mash before an aged bull, when the brute gorged him in the side, the horn penetrating the lung. Medical aid was immediately sent for and the poor fellow was conveyed to the hospital. He is still living but can scarcely recover. Elliott is an English emigrant, being with his present employer about 2 years. He is about 28 years of age.

THE APPOINTMENT OF Q. C'S.

TORONTO, Sept. 9.—The question whether the federal or provincial governments have the right to the appointment of queen's counsels, says the Mail this morning, is at least likely to be determined. Mowat is said to be considering a case that will bring the matter to an issue. Although of special interest to the legal profession, the subject is one of far wider importance involving questions of local and federal jurisdiction under the B. N. A. act of great moment to all the provinces.

A PILGRIM CHOKED.

QUEBEC, Sept 9.—Jean Routland, a pilgrim on the way to St. Anne, from Maine, was choked to death with a piece of meat while eating his dinner.

THE G. G'S. VISIT.

OTTAWA, Sept. 9.—The governor general's private secretary has telegraphed to Mayor Grant of Victoria, B. C., that his excellency and party will be unable to arrive at Victoria before October 12th or thereabouts.

SIR JOHN A.

OTTAWA, Sept. 9.—Sir John A. Macdonald left to-day to open the exhibition at Toronto.

Between eighteen of the principal cities of Great Britain a telegraphic money order service went into operation the other day. The method varies from the regular routine of the mail money order system in that the receiving clerk endorses the order "to be sent by telegraph." At the post-office where payment is to be made the recipient identifies himself, gives the name of the remitter, and at once secures the cash. This is a great advantage in the postal service; but we can hardly expect Mr. Haggart to plagiarize it for our benefit yet.—Mail.

Dr. Hammond, of elixir fame, tells a pretty good story about himself. He had a wealthy patient who imagined he had swalowed a chicken bone, and that it had stuck in his stomach, making it sore. He knew it was there. The doctor knew it was not; he also knew that it must be removed or his patient would never recover. He injected apo-morphia hypodermically. In two or three minutes the patient was in the throes. The doctor had provided a chicken bone, and while his patient was struggling the hardest he dropped it just before him unobserved. He had "known that it was there all the time." For this the doctor never received a cent, though his enemies said he got a thousand dollars for his little deception.

One of Mr. Gladstone's conversational advantages is that he has known every celebrated person for fifty years, and has endless reminiscences of all of them. On one occasion at a dinner party somebody was illustrating the Duke of Cambridge's remarkable command of damnatory rhetoric. The Duke has a fierce temper, and at review one day he made a forcible observation about a certain officer's eyes. The officer promptly requested him to confine his objurgation to his own eyes. "Yes," said Mr. Gladstone, "but the Duke of Cambridge is mild compared with his uncles. I remember the old Duke of Cumberland, who was famous for his habit of garnishing other people's remarks with his own oaths. When the the first bill for the abolition of church rates came before the House of Lords, the Duke was asked to express to the Archbishop of Canterbury the wish of the majority that he should move its rejection. Off went the Duke with this commission. Presently he returned, and in a loud voice, for he was rather deaf, exclaimed: 'The Archbishop says he will be devoted to everlasting fire if he does not work the rejection of the bill.'" It need scarcely be said that the language which his Grace of Cumberland professed to quote from his Grace of Canterbury has been some somewhat softened.—Ex.

The Empire says the minister of marine and fisheries has received a despatch from Col. E. G. Prior, M.P., of British Columbia, which states that by the treaty of 1824 Russia had no right to anything under parallel 54° 40" latitude, and that when the United States purchased Alaska they purchased what was above this parallel. Both Ounalaska and the Aleutian Islands are below the parallel. Col. Prior asks that these statements be placed before the imperial authorities.

DEWDNEY HONORED.

Banquet to the Hon. Edgar Dewdney, Minister of the Interior, a Complete Success.

Westminster Turns Out Nobly and Does Honor to the Grand Old Timer.

A Night of Perfect Enjoyment, Brilliant Speeches, Popular Toasts, and Good Songs.

The banquet to the Hon. Edgar Dewdney last night at the Colonial Hotel was indeed a grand success, and never in the history of the Royal City did the people turn out more unanimously or more willingly than on the present occasion. It was to honor an old timer, an old Caribooite, an old citizen and an old and steadfast friend of the province at large, that the people of Westminster assembled last night; and the guest of the evening must have appreciated the feelings, spontaneous and unselfish, that prompted the many tributes of love and respect he received. It was a gathering long to be remembered in the Royal City, and to the old pioneers of the province who graced the board it was a reminder of the dangers, hardships, struggles and victories of the glorious past.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the doors of the dining room were thrown open and Mayor Townsend, escorting the guest of the evening, entered the room followed by the guests, two by two. The board was set in most convenient form, one table running the full length of the room, while at right angles to, and adjoining it, was a row of small tables. On the right of Mayor Townsend sat the guest of the evening, Hon. Edgar Dewdney, and Mr. I. B. Fisher, and on the left Mr. D. Chisholm, M.P., and Mr. W. H. Ladner, M. P. P. Ex-Mayor Dickinson filled the vice-chair, and was supported on one side by Reeve Kirkland of Ladners and by Mr. B. Douglas on the other. The scene, when all were seated, was strikingly handsome. Vases and pots of beautiful flowers graced the tables in profusion, which together with the pyramids of fruit, moulds of jellies, dishes of bright confections, and the many other attractive features with which the table was adorned, presented a picture at once novel, pretty and fascinating. The menu was large and varied, the cooking excellent, and on the whole the spread did ample justice to the well-known reputation of the Colonial.

After ample justice had been done to the more substantial part of the bill of fare the chairman proposed "the queen" and the vice-chairman the "Prince of Wales and royal family," which were drunk in the usual loyal manner. The toast next in order was the governor-general of Canada and the lieut.-governor of British Columbia, which was received with "they are jolly good fellows."

Mayor Townsend, amidst much enthusiasm rose to his feet and proposed the toast of the evening, "the Dominion government and parliament of Canada," coupled with the names of the Hon. Edgar Dewdney and Mr. D. Chisholm. In proposing the toast the chairman referred briefly to Hon. Mr. Dewdney's life in British Columbia, his good work on our behalf and the great interest he has always manifested in the province. Mr Chisholm's untiring efforts on behalf of his constituents were also handsomely acknowledged. "They are jolly good fellows" was sung with great spirit, ending with three times three and a "tiger."

Hon. Edgar Dewdney on rising was greeted with a tumult of applause, and cheer after cheer made the air ring again. When the applause finally subsided the honorable gentleman said: Mr chairman and gentlemen, I have to thank you for the very kind manner in which you have received Mrs. Dewdney and myself on our present visit. After the long trip I made to-day I will not tax you with a lengthy speech, more especially as my friend Mr. Chisholm is to follow me, and whose oratorical powers are greater than mine. I am an old timer and came to the province by way of Panama, as many of my old friends came about the same time. If I recollect right I arrived in British Columbia in 1859. Many others arrived a year or two afterwards, came overland, and many of you who came across the continent by rail in a comfortable palace car can scarcely appreciate what the brave and hardy pioneers had to contend with. I well remember the day, now over 30 years ago, when I first landed in Westminster. There were only three tents on the townsite then, and these gave little evidence of the greater things in store. I take pride in this city because I came here in the early days and took my part in building its foundation of prosperity. (Applause). I assisted in the survey of the townsite, under Col. Moody, and for the time I was under military orders. For this work I was paid in $20 gold pieces, and I never was so proud in my life as when I walked down from Sapperton jingling this money—the first I had ever earned in my life (great applause). Then I decided to go into farming and formed a partnership with another green Englishman and an experienced Canadian farmer. I had the capital and the Canadian had the experience, but when the firm dissolved a little later neither of us had any capital, but both plenty of experience. We left town one night about 10 o'clock in an old canoe for our farm, down on the Delta, and had not proceeded far when our craft ran aground and there we remained until daylight. We reached our destination all right and started operations. The first thing done was to set out a small garden, but we knew nothing of spring tides and one morning the water came up and overflowed our vegetables. Then we wanted a well for fresh water and we dug one. It seemed strange that we did not have to go far for water, for lots flowed in and we found it to be salt chuck (laughter). Then we took a contract from Col. Moody to supply him with 100 tons of hay, at $100 per ton, delivered at Fort Douglas. We worked a long time on this contract and kept sending to Westminster for supplies from Mr. Sheriff Armstrong, then a leading merchant. After we had worked for weeks we thought fully a hundred tons had been cut and stacked, but when Mr. Armstrong came down and measured it and only found 6½ tons you can imagine our feelings (great laughter). Having met with so little success as a farmer, I returned to Westminster. The second sale of town lots was about to take place and a Victoria auctioneer came up to do the business. But the people of the Royal City were as loyal then as they are now and they sent the Victorian back saying they would find a local man to conduct the sale. One day while dining with Col. Moody he asked me if I had ever been an auctioneer; I said I had not but would not mind trying my hand at it. He recommended me to Governor Douglas and I was appointed to conduct the sale. The sale was a success, for I sold $360,000 worth of property in one day. (Great applause). With the profits of this sale I built an office and went into the real estate business, but this did not pan out well so I left for the mines and worked there surveying. Business was so good with me that I made $15,000 in three months. Next I took contracts from the government for road building, and built a portion of the Yale wagon road. After I was through with this work I had a lot of horses on my hands, so I went into the packing business, from Yale to Cariboo, and I never felt a prouder man in my life than when I concluded a contract to pack goods to the mines at 75 cents per pound; but I felt pretty miserable later on when I left 46 horses dead in the snow. I returned to Westminster and shortly left the province. Later you sent me to parliament to represent this district, and I did as well as I possibly could for you. While I was still representing you I was offered an important position in the Northwest, and I accepted it. The Toronto Globe said I had sold myself and my constituents (cries of no! no!). As it turned out my constituents were pleased with my promotion. I had a difficult task before me in the Northwest, but I accomplished it. The Indians were then fierce and warlike, but I went among them unarmed and without escort and in a very short time I gained their respect. I did all I could to better the conditions of the Indians and they know it and appreciated it. These Indians are now all in a prosperous condition. Before my term of office expired I was offered the governorship of the territories, which I accepted and held until I was appointed minister of the interior. When Hon. Mr. White died it was generally thought that a western man should get the vacant portfolio, one who knew the country and the people, and who would therefore know how to deal with the business of the department. Sir John was of this opinion, and although many professional politicians pressed their claims, he said "No, a western man must have the vacancy." I was given the portfolio, and now, after one year's service, I have received the kindest and most hospitable treatment at every point where I have stopped on my journey across the continent. Mr. mayor and gentlemen, I will always remember the kindness I have received since my arrival here. I have always taken a lively interest in this city and always will; and I will do all I can in the house to help you. I am glad to see the prosperity the city evinces on every side. Your industries are all in a flourishing condition. The government is only too glad to meet the wishes of the people of British Columbia in every way, and I will be back in Ottawa in a few weeks and so, gentleman, if you have any axes to grind, now is the time to speak out. Before concluding I may say if any constituents have a conscientious representative, you have in Mr. Chisholm. He works honestly and perseveringly in your behalf, and never does he neglect even the most trifling matter that affects your interest. I hope to see him in Ottawa again next session renewed in strength and spirits. (Long and continued applause.)

Mr. Chisholm on rising was greeted with cheers. He said: I am glad to see so many here to-night to honor Mr. Dewdney. I am glad also to see so many old faces present, for I, too, am an old pioneer of the province and have packed my blankets like so many more of you. The hon. minister of the interior has always done well in the many important positions he has occupied. I am satisfied he is a friend of British Columbia, and I assure you he is a warm friend too. In behalf of the parliament of Canada. I thank you for the toast, Canada may well be proud of her parliament, which is a body of men as intelligent as that which rules over the destinies of any nation, not excepting the imperial commons (applause). The great work that Canada has accomplished, under the government of Sir John A. Macdonald, the construction of the Canadian Pacific railway, is the wonder of the world. And credit must be given also to the people who were bold enough to support such a gigantic scheme. I support the present government because I believe it to be the best we could have; it is a progressive party, and a party that is rapidly bringing Canada to the front among the other nations. Mr. mayor and gentlemen, I thank you for the handsome manner in which you have drunk the toast. (Great applause.)

Ex-Mayor Dickinson proposed the health of the provincial legislature in a few complimentary remarks.

Mr. W. H. Ladner, M. P. P., responded in his usual pleasant manner. He said it did his heart good to see Mr. Dewdney; had it not been for him the C. P. R. would never have come down the Fraser River canyons, and had it gone elsewhere we might as well have been in Calcutta for all the good it would have done us (applause.) Continuing Mr. Ladner said: I have known Mr. Dewdney a long time and the acquaintance has been a pleasure. What I want to ask him now is: cannot the Dominion and provincial governments combine and build roads into some of our districts at present almost inaccessible. The provincial government says it has not the funds to do the work, so an arrangement might be arrived at between the two cabinets. It is important that the settlements should have a free outlet. After again returning thanks for the toast, Mr. Ladner took his seat amidst hearty rounds of applause.

Mr. Keary was called on and sang a comic song, which was rendered in fine voice and delighted the company.

Daily British Columbian

Tuesday Evening, Sept. 10, 1889.

Although Hon. E. Dewdney sits in the Dominion House as the representative of a Northwest constituency, he is none the less a British Columbian—and a "pioneer" at that—and this fact would be a sufficient reason for the compliment of a public dinner, which was paid him last night. The first British Columbian who has attained a seat in the Dominion cabinet, it is natural that he should be honored by British Columbians, who, although the province is only their "step-mother," generally develop a fair article of provincial patrictism (if we may so express it) before they have been long resident on the right side of the Rockies, and are by no means slow about hurrahing for their adopted country, and for those whose attainments and achievements reflect honor upon it. But while all this might be said of any British Columbian who had won his way into the central executive, there is an element in New Westminster's compliment to Mr. Dewdney which is of a personal nature. Among those whose recollection of provincial affairs goes back to the middle years of the '70s, he is not so much the minister of the interior, as the champion of New Westminster's side in the long "battle of the routes." We say New Westminster's side, because the Royal City was then the only important centre of population favorable to the adoption of the Fraser route. Outside of this city, but one newspaper (the Cariboo Sentinel) was published on the mainland, and the Sentinel advocated the Bute Inlet route. To-day, the large and influential communities of Vancouver and New Westminster, with their widely circulated daily papers, backed by the vigilant Sentinel of Kamloops, might well consider themselves more than a match for anything inimical to the interests of the lower mainland; but twelve or thirteen years ago, when one little town with a couple of semi-weekly papers of small circulation, aided only by the sympathy of a few inland villages, had to bear the brunt of the battle against the daily press and powerful influence of the capital, such an outspoken, able, and thoroughly well posted champion as Mr. Dewdney proved himself to be, counted for a whole battalion in the fight.

The new paper has found its tongue at last, and greetings come from Church street; but the utterances are a little hazy and incoherent, and display a remarkable obtundity on some points. We have no intention of defending THE COLUMBIAN against the stupid "chestnuts" which our original (?) cotem. fires off, or indeed to notice any of its utterances with respect to this paper, but merely to correct a very muddled impression which is painfully apparent on a point or two, and which clearer brains and even a small share of common sense must have saved the editorial head from becoming tangled with. We refer to the insufferable stupidity of the new paper, displayed in its editorial this morning, in supposing that any remarks of THE COLUMBIAN referred in any sense to the personnel of the morning journal. We would say once and for all, and make it as emphatic as possible, that our rather fresh cotem. from the mountains may not repeat the palpable blunder, that THE COLUMBIAN knows nothing nor cares nothing about the religious views or private conduct of the personnel of the Truth staff, from the editor-in-chief to the devil. The paper itself is the entity we have to deal with, and the Church street print ought to have known that, and not to have made itself ridiculous, as it did this morning, by talking about the religious views of its editor and defending its staff from imaginary imputations as to their gentlemanly behavior. They may be all gentlemen for all we know, we trust they are, and are perfectly willing to believe such to be the case. Again, we say, it is with the paper Truth and its utterances that we have to do, not with the individuals that may happen to compose its staff. We would just say a word about the foolish parting fling of the new paper, that of its staff "no one of them has obtruded himself on THE COLUMBIAN." This is not so creditable to the staff in question as our cotem. imagines, and it should have known better than to have made the boast; for it could only have been through ignorance or disregard of ordinary journalistic amenities that the heads of the staff, at least, failed to make a civil call at this office, where they might have known they would have been civily received. We have no quarrel with the staff of the new paper, but we have treated the paper itself on its merits, and have given it some good advice, which we are glad to note has not been altogether thrown away, as there has already been a toning down of some "fresh" and obnoxious features. There is still "room for improvement," however. Experience teaches.

Boulanger, like last season's drowned dog, to plagiarize from Carlyle, we believe it is, continues to float up and down with the tide, and will not disappear wholly from the public view, although his odor is not now particularly savory either with his compatriots or the great disinterested world at large. The brave general, it is said, declares that he will return to France and take part in the general elections this fall, even though a visit to his beloved country may lose him his liberty of person. This sounds courageous, but hitherto the general has not been conspicuous for his bravery. It is hardly probable, it is thought, that Boulanger will carry his alleged intention into execution. The man who ran away when he was about to be tried will hardly hasten back after his conviction, unless, indeed, the means of whitewashing him, provided through a party success, are at hand. But it is difficult to understand how, if the electorate has any conscience, the necessary victory can be secured, remarks an exchange, which gives the following comprehensive resume of Boulanger's crookednesses, for all of which he has recently been condemned by the French senate: Boulanger's partisans claim, it is true, that their hero, the man who is to place the republic upon a firmer and purer foundation, is no worse than his cotemporaries on the other side. But this excuse is a poor substitute for the plea of "not guilty." It happens, however, that the charges against Boulanger have something more to back them than mere hearsay. They are not all politicians' stories. Take, for example, the evidence in the epaulette job. Gen. Lewan, minister of war, had issued an order abolishing epaulettes in the army. Boulanger was then in command at Tunis, and he had for jackal, or "heeler," a man named Buret. When the order was issued, a certain contractor named Dupuy was left with a very large stock of epaulettes on hand. It was therefore of the last importance to him to get the order rescinded or postponed. So he applied to Buret, and promised him two cents a pair on all his (Dupuy's) stock if he influenced Boulanger to get the order cancelled. Buret undertook the job and went to Boulanger, but Boulanger was apparently cautious, and wanted a guarantee, or "anchor to windward," so Dupuy wrote Buret the following letter: "I am sure you personally have complete confidence in my word, but possibly your friend"—meaning Boulanger—"may not have that confidence, and I accordingly meet all doubts by telling you that I am ready to write you a letter making a positive engagement in any terms you please." In another letter to Buret he said: "Come and see me after your visit to the great chief [le grand chef]," and in still another: "You know there will be twenty centimes a pair for you." Then Gen. Boulanger went to work, and as a result of his mediation the order was postponed, and Dupuy was enabled to sell his stock, the general, it is admitted, enjoying the commission. Then it appears that Boulanger shared in another commission—$40,000 allowed by a contractor supplying coffee to the army; that, while minister of war, he maintained an advertising bureau which distributed forty-one different chromo-portraits of himself at the public expense; that he spent $60,000 of the secret service money of the war department on party organs or journals engaged to puff him; that he spent $30,000 of the secret service money on a military club; that just before leaving the war department he took $6,000 for himself; that he paid off while in office $12,000 of debts without any visible accession of fortune, that he furnished an apartment handsomely with the public money; that he conspired with Rochefort and others to get up a riot at the Lyons station when he was leaving Paris; that he came secretly to Paris from Clermont-Ferrand without leave; that he prepared a coup d'etat when M. Grevy was going out of office; that he got up a plebiscitary campaign after leaving the army; and that he was in possession of large sums of money, the source of which he dared not reveal. Boulanger has denied some of the accusations; but those relating to the secret service money he practically admits, pleading that it is customary to steal, and further, that "part of the money was used to procure the theft by night of the private papers of the military attache of the great powers." The denials, where made, however, go for little, as evidence in support of every charge is adduced.

The man who can laugh from the very heart is not apt to be a villain who murders while he smiles. But how few men, comparatively speaking, laugh heartily? Some wear an everlasting barren simper; in the smile of others lies a cold glitter of ice; the fewest are able to laugh what can be called laughing, but only sniff and titter and snigger from the throat outward, or produce some whiffing, husky cachinnation, as if they were laughing through wool. Of none such comes good.—Ex.

And now the statistical fiends comes forward with the pleasing and immensely valuable calculation that the poet Wordsworth must have walked 180,000 miles during his life. The world has always supposed that it was 180,001 miles, and will be glad, even at this late day, to get at the exact truth. Perhaps the same able laborer in this fascinating field can inform mankind how many quarts of ink Wordsworth consumed during the same period, and how often he hurled bound copies of his works at the nocturnal cat. Who said life was not a sweet and precious thing?—Ex.

SOME CURIOUS WILLS.

A Few Modern Instances of Testamentary Eccentricity.

Testators Who Left Legacies in the Shape of Portions of Their Bodies—An Allowance Bequeathed to a Cat—A Saddler's Trade Devotion.

Modern instances of testamentary eccentricity abound, and the United States in particular seems to be singularly prolific of curious wills, writes Sidney Scrope in Once a Week. Some little time since Mr. Solomon Sanborn, of Medford, Mass., left his body to the late Prof. Agassiz and Dr. O. W. Holmes, to be prepared by them in the most scientific manner known to anatomical art, and placed in the museum of Harvard College. Two drumheads were to be made of the skin. Upon one was to be inscribed Alexander Pope's "Universal Prayer," on the other the "Declaration of Independence;" and then they were to be presented to the testator's "distinguished friend," the drummer of Cohasset. This presentation was subject to the condition that on the 17th of June, at sunrise, every year, the drummer should beat upon the drumheads at the foot of Bunker's Hill the spirit-stirring strains of "Yankee Doodle."

Another American, who died within the last few months, by way of revenge on his relations, who had neglected him, bequeathed to his brother his left arm and hand; to another brother his right arm and hand, to another his legs, nose, ears, etc. He also left one thousand dollars for the dismembering of his body.

Among other testators who have displayed this peculiar tendency to leave legacies in the shape of portions of their bodies may be mentioned Jeremy Bentham, the English writer, who bequeathed his body to the University College Hospital, with instructions that his skeleton should be prepared and cleaned, and that it should preside at the meetings of the hospital directors. Whether this provision was ever carried out is doubtful, but it is certain that the skeleton was preserved, and may be seen to this day in the hospital museum.

A wealthy German who died the other day bequeathed his effects to a poor man whom he greatly disliked on condition that he always wore linen under-clothes and dressed in white, and a short time ago Stanislaus Poltmarz, a Hungarian, left the greater part of his fortune to a notary named Lotz, forbidding him, however, to take possession until he had sung at La Scala Opera House, the parts of Verdi's "Otello" and Elvira in "Somnambula;" while John Reed, the gas-lighter of the Walnut Street Theater, Philadelphia, directed that his head, after being duly prepared, should be employed to represent the skull of Yorick in "Hamlet."

Lord Newborough, who died in November, 1888, directed that, after a certain period elapses, his body is to be exhumed and re-interred in Bardsey Island, which is reputed to have no fewer than twenty thousand saints buried in its soil, and Mr. John Browne, of Rathbane County, Limerick, required that his son, Rev. Peter Browne, should under penalty of forfeiting a considerable estate, change his Christian name, "Peter," for either "William" or "James," the old gentleman having taken an inveterate dislike to his son's name, while a rich saddler ordered in his will that his daughter should lose the whole of her fortune if she did not marry a saddler. It turned out, however, that she married the Earl of Halifax, who, in order to win the bride, actually served an apprenticeship of seven years to a saddler.

Not long since a Mr. Harper settled a hundred a year on his "young black cat," the interest to be paid to his housekeeper, Mrs. Hodges, as long as the cat remained alive; and quite recently an old Parisian dame left fifteen hundred a year to her butcher, whom she had never seen; while one man chalked his will on a corn-bin; and another inscribed his on a bed-post. Both the corn-bin and the bed-post are filed in the will office at Doctor's Commons, London. The whimsical will of the Scotch gentleman, who bequeathed to each of his daughters her weight in one-pound notes, has often been quoted. More remarkable still is the will of the New Yorker who directed that his one and seventy pairs of trousers should be sold at public auction without being examined beforehand. The sale was actually held, and the seventy-one purchasers found in the right-hand pocket the neat little sum of a thousand dollars in cash.

Another peculiar legacy was that of Colonel Nash, an English officer, who bequeathed an annuity of fifty pounds to the bell-ringers of Bath Abbey, on condition that they should muffle the clappers of the bells of the Abbey, and ring them with doleful accentuation from eight a. m. to eight p. m. on each anniversary of his wedding day; while a Mr. Luke, of Rotheringham, after leaving a penny to every child who should attend his funeral, directed that forty dozen loaves should be thrown down from the parish church steeple at noon every Christmas day forever.

RODENT AND FELINE.

The Rat Climbs Upon Tom and Pulls His Ears and Tail.

A rat and a cat may be seen playing together almost any day at a livery stable in this city, says a Louisville letter. The cat is a big black Tom, with long whiskers, a short tail, and yellow eyes. The rat is a sleek and fat specimen of the genus rodent, and has a cunning but prosperous and contented look. The cat is fierceness and savagery itself, and bears the scars of innumerable battles, not alone with rats and other felines, but with dogs as well, and he has never been whipped and never been known to decline a fight. The rat was caught in a wire trap one night last week. He was so uncommonly large and looked so ugly as he stood upon his hind legs and rattled the wires of his cage that his captors resolved to have some sport with him and Tom. The cat and he were, accordingly, taken over to a neighboring saloon, the doors closed, holes stopped up and a select few gathered to witness the fight.

When the rat was turned loose from the cage Tom was ready and pounced upon him instanter. To the surprise of all, however, he did not hurt him. His claws were sheathed and he plainly invited a romp. The rat did not understand his advances at first, but was soon reassured and would finally run from the men to the cat for protection. In a short time they became fast friends. They now play together constantly and seem to understand each other perfectly. The rat climbs all over Tom's back, pulls his ears and tail, and treats his big friend with the utmost freedom. Both spend the greater part of their time under the stove in the stable office, and large numbers of visitors go there to witness the unusual friendship between such natural enemies.

Wooden Sole Leather

The following is a description of the wooden sole leather invented by Dr. George Thenius, of Vienna. The material used is red beechwood. The best wood for the purpose is taken from fifty to sixty-year-old trees, cut in the spring, which must be worked up immediately, bark peeled off, steamed, treated with chemicals in a kettle under pressure, and exposed to several more operations which the inventor does not mention, as he wants to have them patented. From the prepared wood strong and thin pieces are made by means of heavy pressure. The inventor states that a solid sole leather can be obtained, which he claims is superior to animal in firmness and durability, and can be worked up in the same way as animal leather, nailed and sewed.

The Palatka (Fla.) Herald is responsible for the following: "A man at a small station on the Florida Southern railway the other day took down the mail sack, which was suspended on the crane, and hung himself there instead, so that he would not get left. When the fast mail came along and the route agent put out his catcher and hauled in the man instead of the mail-bag the fellow, in short breath, said: 'I've been left too many times by this narrow-gauge road and I don't intend to get left any more if it kills me or this infernal old road.'"

THE FRANKING PRIVILEGE.

Three Ladies Who Do Not Have to Buy Postage Stamps.

There are but three persons in the United States, other than those holding public office, who are allowed to receive and send mail matter free of postage, writes a Washington correspondent. These three persons are the widows of the late Presidents Polk, Garfield and Grant. An act of Congress is required to grant this privilege to any one, and it has been so granted to the widows of Presidents since 1836, when the first act was passed conferring the distinction upon Mrs. Dolly P. Madison.

According to the United States Postal Laws and Regulations, which is a compilation of the rules published for the information and guidance of postmasters and other officials, Mrs. Tyler was not entitled to the benefits of franking mail matter, and it is true that no law was ever passed in her case. She was, in a sense, a victim of one of those peculiar oversights of Congress which are of frequent occurrence. The Post-Office Department, however, appreciating the fact that Mrs. Tyler was in equity entitled to the same privilege which had by law been granted to Mrs. Polk, Mrs. Garfield and Mrs. Grant, accepted her frank in lieu of postage and collected nothing upon matter mailed to her address.

There is a rather peculiar fact connected with the case of Mrs. Polk also. The act granting her the privilege of free postage was passed in 1850. Since that date all laws conferring the franking privilege have been once or twice repealed; the last time in 1873, and no act has since been passed in favor of Mrs. Polk. There is no law on the statute books to-day, therefore, entitling her to the benefits of free postage, but it is allowed her arbitrarily by the department, and the Postal Laws and Regulations name her as one of the persons legally entitled to the benefits of the franking law.

It is not generally known that the law extending the franking privilege to these ladies also provides explicitly that mail matter, including letters, newspapers and packages addressed to them, is exempt from the payment of postage. The only explanation of this somewhat peculiar provision of law is that when Congress passed the first of these private acts it failed to notice that free postage to the senders of mail conferred no sort of benefit upon the persons addressed. Mrs. Polk, for instance, is not benefited in the slightest degree because some person who wishes to write her a letter is not required to affix a stamp to it. Yet when the laws in favor of all the President's widows who came after Mrs. Polk were passed, the same language was used and stands upon the statute books to-day.

A sort of fatality in the direction of making mistakes seems to have followed the course of law-making on the subject of the franking privilege, and the most stupendous blunder of all that Congress made in the first general act passed has never yet been corrected. This is the failure to provide a penalty for a violation of the law. Although there have been as many as fifty franking-privilege acts passed by Congress since 1879, not one of them provides any penalty for their infringement or evasion. This very singular oversight is a cause of much inconvenience and annoyance to the postal officials, and because of it very few arrests have been made, although the use of franks by unauthorized persons and on unfrankable matter is of very frequent occurrence.

FEMININE FOOT-WEAR.

Tight Shoes as Popular as Ever—A Reform Needed Badly.

"Why do women wear tight shoes?" was asked a leading State street boot-maker for the fair sex by a Chicago Tribune reporter.

"Because they are foolish," he replied. "That is the only answer I can make, but if I were to try to convince my customers of the fact I would lose their trade. The ladies are particular about their pet vanity and they pay a great deal of attention to a nobby and snug-fitting shape."

"What are the effects of wearing tight shoes?" was asked of another maker.

"The effects are corns and diseased and crippled feet and continual misery. Women buy tight shoes because they are vain. Nine out of ten of the ladies who come in here tell the clerks they want shoes that are at least one size too small for them. By dint of stretching and the use of powdered soapstone many are enabled to get on and wear away shoes that are half a size or a size too small for them; but occasionally one is compelled to take the proper size for her feet, but it is at a sacrifice of her vanity, and the physical comfort enjoyed does not seem to compensate her for her apparent mental discomfort. A great many ladies insist on having shoes from special lasts that in no wise match the shape of their feet, and, as a rule, they are the kind who want high heels, although the stilt-like underpinning has largely gone out of fashion. The evils of high heels are, of course, well known."

"Most of our lady customers buy shoes that are too small for them," said another dealer. "The habit of wearing tight shoes is as bad as the Chinese practice of bandaging and deforming the feet of their female infants. The red Indians of America and the natives of Africa can give civilization instruction in respect to proper care of the feet. The natives never toe out, but put their feet forward in a perfectly straight line when walking. Livingstone, in his writings on Africa, relates how the natives laughed at the shape of the white man's feet, which they attributed to the boots they wore. The Crow Indians make their moccasins to toe in instead of out; they walk perfectly straight and have finely formed feet. There are ladies of my acquaintance who are almost confirmed invalids, and their ailments were brought about by wearing tight, high-heeled shoes, which throw their body forward and caused them to toe outward in walking. Many of my lady customers are such sufferers from corns that they do not like to go out of the house and are in misery all of the time when walking, yet they will not forego their vanity and wear a sensible, easy-fitting, broad-soled, low-heeled shoe. Some of them do not venture to walk at all, and only go out in their carriages or upon short expeditions where the street-cars can be utilized for almost the entire distance they desire to travel. I notice that a great deal is said about dress reform for women, and hope all contemplated reforms include the important matter of foot-wear. Of course, it makes no difference to us; the prices would remain the same were the fashion to change, but we have to supply the demand or go out of business, and it is undeniable that as far as the ladies are concerned the greatest demand is for tight shoes."

The Hole in the Wall.

A gentleman who has recently returned from quite a long trip through "the land of the Aztecs" has been giving some interesting details of his experiences to his friends. Among other things he said that when he was in the City of Mexico he was shown through some ancient buildings—convents and jails—that were erected by the Spaniards several centuries ago. In the wall of one of these ancient edifices he saw a small opening; so he naturally inquired of his Mexican guide what purpose it served. He was told that it was one of those buildings in which criminals were walled up alive. "But what was the use of the hole in the wall?" he asked. "Well, senor," replied the guide, "as long as the prisoner lived his food was handed to him on a plate and he handed back the empty plate through the hole; but when the prisoner handed back the plate with the food on it untouched then the jailer knew that he was dead already and didn't give him any more."

A Reasonable Request.

The Maharajah Dhuleep Singh sends a London paper a letter, addressed to the Queen, in which, after enumerating many alleged wrongs, he insists on the restoration to him of the Koh-i-noor. He says: "It will be useless for me to demand the restoration of my kingdom, swindled from me by your Christian Government, but which I hope shortly, by the aid of Providence, to retake from my robbers. But my diamond the Koh-i-noor, I understand is entirely at your own personal disposal. [illegible] believing that your Majesty to [illegible] religious lady' that your subjects pray for every Sunday, I do not hesitate to ask that this gem be restored to me, or else that a fair price be paid for it to me out of your privy purse."

THE BRAIN (from a photograph.)
Healthy Condition. With Paresis Lesions

There are many well known men confined in our Asylums who but a short time ago were prominent among our business and social circles.

Why are they there?

Paresis!

Did it come on at once?

Not at all. It was a gradual but positive growth. They overtaxed nature. The drain on their vitality, their nerve powers, their brain tissue, was too great, and they gradually but surely sank under it. The things they did to bring this sad end about are precisely the same things being done by thousands of men and women to-day. It is not necessary to name them. They all end disastrously unless checked or regulated.

Prof. Phelps, of Dartmouth College, knew this fully when he began his experiments which resulted in the discovery of the wonderful Paine's Celery Compound. He realized that Paresis (consumption of the brain) was our great National weakness. He knew that the brain and nervous system must be fortified to meet the great strains which modern life bring upon it. He saw that men were becoming debilitated and women weakened by the pressure and demands of life, and he sought and discovered the remedy. Paine's Celery Compound, if rightly taken, will renew the brain and build up nerve tissues as fast as they become exhausted. It is not a narcotic. It contains no drugs, no nostrums. It is perfectly pure. It is absolutely harmless. The high character of its discoverer guarantees this, and the indorsement of the medical and chemical professions prove it.

Messrs. H. T. Reid & Co. have paid their $50 subscription to the exhibition fund. Next.

Walker & Co. have Sapperton Lots near New Hospital and Ross-Maclaren Mills at old prices. *

Fourteen carloads of canned salmon and 3 carloads of merchandise were shipped east over the C. P. R. to-day.

The spring salmon run still continues good, but the percentage of white fish over the red is very great.

See the three new large advs. on 1st page to-day, and also two auction sale and other advs. on the local page.

Five carloads of cattle arrived from the interior to-day, consigned to parties in Victoria, Nanaimo and Westminster.

Mr. J. S. McDonell has paid his subscription to the Exhibition Fund. Only a few names now remain on the unpaid list.

Richards, Haywood & Mackintosh have 5 acre Brownsville lots at $20 an acre; half cash, balance in 6 months, without interest. se10m1

The s.s. Irving left for up river ports this morning with 25 passengers, 20,000 shingles, 5,000 feet lumber and 20 tons of freight.

Ah Yen, the Chinaman shot at Ladners last week, has again been removed to the hospital, his condition being considerably worse.

Some one carried off a valuable bamboo walking stick from the Colonial hotel last night, and an advertisement appears in this issue requesting its return.

In another column will be found the supplementary prize list of the provincial exhibition, which will constitute an additional encouragement for exhibitors and add materially to the success of the show.

In the lacrosse match at Kamloops to-day Vancouver defeated Westminster by 2 0, after two hours' play. In the baseball match, Kamloops vs. Vancouver, the latter drew out after the fifth inning, thus giving the game to Kamloops.

It has been reported to the provincial authorities that all the Chinamen down river carry revolvers or other dangerous weapons. This is a practice that must be stopped, and it is to be hoped the proper authorities will move speedily in the matter.

The concert to be given this evening by the choir of Holy Trinity church at the Temperance hall, will be one of special merit and interest. The programmee is well chosen and the singers are all popular, which is not by any means a common combination.

Owing to the pressure on our space to-day we are obliged to omit Mr. Ewen's excellent speech on the fishing industry and its possible development, Mr. Cunningham's sound remarks on civic affairs and Mr. G. A. Kelly's sparkling reply to the toast of the press.

In the district court this morning, Capt. Pittendrigh, by request of Mr. Moresby, remanded Ah Lie, and the other Chinamen concerned in the Ladners shooting case, for eight days. The condition of Ah Yen, the wounded man, was too serious to allow of his appearing in court.

Capt Pittendrigh showed a COLUMBIAN representive to-day a fine English walnut, grown on his Pitt river ranch, that measured 3½ inches in length and 5⅞ inches in circumference. It seems from this that even English walnuts attain massive proportions when transplanted to British Columbia soil.

Guests at the Queen's: John Endicott Gardner, Victoria; Rev. Dr. Grant and wife, Kingston; Robt. Kelly, Capt. J. B. Babington, Vancouver; J. Stevens, Robt. Rankin, Victoria; Jos. Shannon, Clover Valley; J. F. Parr and wife, Nevada; W. T. Young, San Mateo, Cal.; Wm. Roxbury, Montreal; J. D. McDonald, Ottawa; J. Fraser, San Francisco; R. Roy, Tacoma.

The Times says Capt. McCulloch, who acted as pilot of the Princess Louise for two northern trips, has been transferred to the Yosemite for the present. Capt. Jagers, of the R. P. Rithet, has temporarily taken command of the Princess Louise while the salmon fleet are loading. Capt. Roberts, pilot on the Islander, has been assigned to the command of the steamer Rithet for a brief period. On Saturday there was not a single vessel belonging to the C. P. N. Co. in Victoria harbor, the entire fleet being busily engaged in different parts of the province.

The Exhibitions.

The great Toronto industrial exhibition opened yesterday, and on the same day the provincial show of Ontario had its opening also. Two of our district agricultural shows take place during this month, the Chilliwack show on the 25th and 26th, and that of the Surrey agricultural society on the 30th inst. Then on Tuesday, October 1st, comes the Delta exhibition, to be held at Ladners. These shows were all very creditable last fall, and we expect to be able to note considerable progress and improvement this season. Following immediately on the local fairs, is the provincial exhibition, at this city, on the 2nd, 3rd and 4th of next month, and this show, it is now assured, will be by far the most successful affair of the kind ever held in the province.

The Presbytery Meeting.

At the general meeting of the Presbytery in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church this afternoon the Rev. Mr. Fraser, of Victoria, took the chair until the arrival of Rev. Mr. Tait, of Langley, who was appointed moderator of the Presbytery. There were present the Reverends T. G. Thompson, Vancouver; T. Scouler, New Westminster; P. F. McLeod, Victoria; E. D. McLaren, Vancouver; John J. Jaffray, North Arm; W. W. Wright, Spallumcheen; J. Chisholm, Kamloops; A. Dunn, Whannock; R. Jamieson, city; Ross, Chilliwack; and Miller, Nanaimo. The elders present were Messrs. McKie, and J. Flett of Victoria. After the reading of the minutes, the reports of other presbyteries and the usual routine business of opening day was gone through. To-night there will be a conference held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, to which the public are cordially invited.

Another Interview.

A deputation composed of Messrs. D. Duckstoader, N. Oliver and J. M. Webster, representing Haney and Wharnock, came down and waited on the Hon. Mr. Dewdney yesterday for the purpose of placing before him the necessity of the Dominion government opening up a road from these two centres, to the vast tract of agricultural land in the Stave Lake Valley. Mr. Dewdney said it was the first request of the kind that had been made and he thought it was the business of the provincial government to build this road; but the deputation pointed out that inasmuch as these lands were in the 20-mile belt and the Dominion government was selling both lands and timber it should build this road. Mr. Chisholm M. P., also acquised in this view, and the hon. minister promised to give the matter his consideration and when in Victoria see if something could not be done by the two governments in the way of undertaking the work. The deputation left well pleased with the courteous manner in which they had been received and the way in which Mr. Chisholm had assisted them. They will at an early date bring the matter before the board of trade and ask that body to use its influence to open up this beautiful prairie section of the district.

A Wolf in Sheep's Clothing.

Wm. Harvey, janitor of the Seamen's Bethel, Port Townsend, has skipped out with considerable funds belonging to the organization. He was a man of temperate habits and his conduct appears all the more strange because he identified himself with the church some time ago and professed to having experienced conversion. He took an active part in religious and temperance meetings. He left Port Townsend last Wednesday ostensibly to pay a short visit to Victoria and to return home on Monday. On that day, however, he left on the Umatilla for San Francisco, and it was on the discovery of this that suspicion was first aroused against him. The Port Townsend Call says: "A few days before his departure for Victoria a number of sailors deposited about $325 with him for safe keeping, and a gold watch belonging to a citizen had been given to him as security for a loan of $25, the value of the watch being at least $85; it is also stated that he had two more watches in his possession, that had been entrusted to his care. The money and the gold watches he took with him to Victoria. Upon arriving in Victoria he deposited $300 with Mrs. Mitchell, late of this city, who conducts a lodging house in Victoria, for safe keeping. This money he drew before he departed for San Francisco Monday night on the Umatilla." The chief of police in San Francisco has been telegraphed to apprehend him.—Times.

PERSONAL.

Miss Cochrane, who has been visiting friends in this city and Victoria for some weeks, left for Kamloops today, via Vancouver, where she will remain a few days.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Grant, of Kingston, were in the city yesterday and guests at the Queens. Dr. Grant was invited to remain over and attend the meeting of the Presbytery and to lecture on Imperial Federation, but pressing engagements would not permit of so long a stay.

Hon. Edgar Dewdney, accompanied by Mrs. Dewdney, left for Victoria this afternoon, via. Vancouver. A large number of Mr. Dewdney's old friends gathered at the station, and as the train rolled out they gave him a hearty farewell in the shape of three ringing cheers.

LATE CANADIAN NEWS.

P. S. Stevenson, president of the New Brunswick Railway Company, died yesterday, aged 64.

A. M. Davidson, a prominent organ manufacturer, of Ridgetown, Ont., died Sunday evening of heart disease.

The Fort McLeod Gazette reports the discovery of a rich deposit of silver in the mountains north of the boundary line which will assay $250 per ton; also the discovery of cannel coal in another part of the mountain.

An Indian arrived at Selkirk from Lake Winnipeg Sunday night and reported that he found two bodies that had been washed ashore. One of the bodies he recognized as that of James Burkett who had been working at Crowes' Mills, Fisher river. About two weeks ago several of the mill hands started for Winnipeg in sail boats, accompanied by Rev. Mr. McHaffie, but up to the present have not arrived and it is feared they were caught in a storm on last Sunday night. No trace of the Indian can be found to get exact particulars and much anxiety is felt. Rev. Mr. McHaffie is the Methodist missionary at Fisher river.

[From First Page]

Hon. Mr. Dewdney proposed the healths of the mayor and corporation, and asked everyone to fill his glass and drink heartily, for it was a well managed city, stood well in financial circles and bore an excellent reputation abroad.

Mayor Townsend said it afforded him great pleasure to reply to this toast. Westminster had launched out pretty extensively this year, but it was necessary. Water works were required and other improvements were in progress which would result in the city keeping pace with its enterprising neighbors. Mr. Townsend said he also was an old pioneer, having arrived in the province 32 years ago, and he prided himself on being classed as one of the old timers of the early days. His worship was loudly cheered on taking his seat.

Ex-Mayor Dickinson said the old corporation of Westminster had no reason to be ashamed of its record. It had paved the way for the improvements now going on. He had always worked hard for Westminster (a voice: "you have"), and would always interest himself in everything tending to the benefit and welfare of the city.

Aldermen Curtis, Ewen, Jaques, Cunningham, Calbick and Keary also responded to the toast

Mr. J. C. Armstrong proposed the toast "The pioneers of British Columbia," coupled with the name of Mr. Dewdney. He said: But for one man the Canadian Pacific Railway would have gone by the Bute Inlet route. Victoria worked for it, the government engineers favored it and but one man held out in favor of the Fraser river route, and that man was the Hon. Edgar Dewdney. He fought what is known as the "battle of the routes," stuck to his convictions and finally had the satisfaction to win the fight. Had it not been for him where would Westminster be to-day? It is hard to tell. He fought that fight alone and gave us the road, and now the whole world knows his theories were right. (Great applause).

Hon. Mr. Dewdney: I thank you again, gentlemen, for drinking my health, but there are so many of the good old pioneers round the board that I will leave it to them to reply to the toast. I might say regarding Mr. J. C. Armstrong that he is my old Cariboo partner—and that partnership was the only profitable one I had in the mines. We owned a claim together and it was not panning out well and I was willing to part with my interest in it for a few hundred dollars, Mr. Armstrong told me to hold on and not sell out, and I took his advice. A few evenings afterwards he came to me and drawing his hand from his pocket showed me a handful of nuggets. "There," said he, "didn't I tell you it would pan out rich?" It did pan out rich and in 13 months I cleared $15,000 from this mine. As regards my action at Ottawa in regard to railway matters, I can only say I acted conscientiously. I think the time will come when other railroads, apart from the Southern Railway, will be built in this province. British Columbia is the greatest province in the wide Dominion, and it must be developed (cheers). The only way the immense tracts of splendid country, lying to the north, can be laid open for settlement is by railroad construction—that alone will do it, and I predict that before many years you will have other large railway lines running across the breadth of the province. After paying a glowing tribute to the district of New Westminster the speaker took his seat amidst thunders of applause.

Mr. Jas. A. Laidlaw and Mr. T. E. Ladner also responded, the latter in a very happy little speech.

The agricultural, mining, manufacturing, lumbering, fishing and banking institutions of the country were proposed by Mayor Townsend.

Mr. W. H. Ladner, M. P. P., replied for the agricultural industry, Mr. Jaques for the mining industry, Mr. Ewen for the fishing industry and Mr. Brymner for the banking institutions.

The "Press" was received, and Mr. Ladner favored the toast with a cheerful little song.

The toast was responded to by Mr. G. A. Kelly and Mr. F. R. Glover.

The "Ladies" elicited an unusually happy speech from Mr. Peter Grant, and Mr. M. Sinclair also proved himself an able champion of the gentler sex.

Mayor Townsend and Mr. Moresby each favored the company with songs which were well received.

The Army and Navy and Volunteers, brought Capt. Peele to his feet, and a very neat and appropriate reply to the toast was given by him. Lieut. Mowat also did justice to the toast in a few well chosen remarks concerning volunteer service.

A very laughable song, "Donnybrook Fair," by Mr. Levi, kept the company in roars of laughter for a quarter of an hour.

Cheers for Mr. Dewdney, "God save the Queen" and "Auld Lang Syne" brought this most successful and enjoyable banquet to an end.

Chilliwack Council.

The municipal council of Chilliwack held their regular meeting, Sept. 2nd 1889. Present—Councillors Reece, Armstrong, Lickman, Kennesly and Bayly. The reeve being absent, Coun. Reece was voted to the chair. Minutes of previous meeting read and adopted. Communications from W. S. Gore, surveyor-general, and John Sprott, road superintendent, regarding repairs to the Trunk road, ordered on file. From G. R. Ashwell and J. T. Wilkinson, protesting against the grading on Landing road. On motion the pathmaster was instructed to stop the grading where damage to property would be sustained. The following accounts were received and ordered paid: H. Ransay $85, contract for corduroy on McGuire road; M. Hilton $7.50, constructing two culverts on Sumas Landing road. Tenders for brushing 20 chains on Trunk road, Wm. Solomon $54, J. Hamilton $60, J. Ford $70, Bramick, Allen & McLean $56. On motion Wm. Solomon's tender was accepted. There were two tenders for ditch on Lickman road, viz: Geo. Rutherford 75 cts. per rod, Felix Rush $1.25 per rod. On motion Rutherford's tender was accepted. Rev. T. W. Hall presented a petition, asking the council to cancel the license issued to restaurants in Chilliwack. On motion the petition was referred to the board of licensing commissioners, which will meet on the 11th inst. at 10 o'clock, a.m. On motion the council adjourned to meet on the 11th of Sept. at 2 o'clock p.m.

The announcement that Mr. H. Ashley, clerk of the division court and ex-warden, will sue for a divorce from his wife, on the ground of adultery, causes much comment in Belleville, Ont. The offence is alleged to have occurred three years ago.
