NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The French Minister of the Interior has decided to form a new body of police, whose special duty it it shall be to suppres seditious assemblies. They'll likely find plenty of work to do in la belle France.

It is said, two wealthy Californians of similar views have recently entered the field to encourage human exertion. One offers a medal for astronomical discovery: the other a purse for a prize fight. Both expect their beneficiaries to see stars.

Russian official reports now admit that the crop prospect is the worst for years. Commercial advices have been to this effect for some time past, but the offical reports were favorably colored, presumably to help out the government in negotiating loans.

The Victoria sealers are excited because one of their number has been seized in Behring Sea by a United States cutter. The greater the excitement the more likelihood of an early and authoritive settlement of the question. It is needed in the interests of American as well as British sealers.—S. F. Bulletin.

Conductor (on Staten Island Rapid Transit railway)—Madam, you must pay full fare for that boy. Lady Passanger (with a sigh)—I suppose I will have to pay full fare the balance of the way, but he was only ten years old when we left Tottenville. If we reach St. George before he has whiskers I'll not begrudge it.

Governor Swineford of Alaska recently said to a reporter:—"When I sat at my desk in Sitka I was further from Attu Island, the westernmost point in Alaska, than I was from Portland, Me. This may serve to give some idea of the prodigious distance of Alaska. But I can furnish a more striking one. If the capital of the United States were located in the centre of the United States—that is to say, at a point equidistant from Quoddyhead, Me. and Attu Island, Alaska—it would be in the Pacific Ocean, some 600 miles north by west of San Francisco."—Ex

The sensation at Berlin just now, says the Pall Mall Gazette, is a young Cossack giantess who is being exhibited at the popular "Passage Panopticum." The girl, who is eleven years old, is nearly three yards high; she weighs 280 pounds and is still growing very rapidly. She is very pretty, with large dark eyes and a pleasant face, and in the national costume of the Don Cossacks, which consists of a red skirt, blue jacket, long apron embroidered in gold, and necklace of many colors, she captures everybody's heart. But since she is still chiefly interested in her dolls and toys, she cannot be said to return the sentiments of her admirers.

Says an exchange: A royal road to learning has not yet been built, but nevertheless any person who happens to have $25 can provide himself with the degree of A. M., and for $35 he can buy a nice serviceable LL. D. Or he can have both the A. M. and LL. D. for $50. And no questions asked; that is to say, none touching the talents and accomplishments of the buyer. All degrees furnished within fifteen minutes after application for them is made. It is a Chicago "University" which so handsomly meets this want of those who yearn for the badge of scholarship rather than for scholarship itself. It would be a graceful thing for the admirers of Mr. John L. Sullivan to send $35 to Chicago and make him LL. D. And when John gets tired of it, by way of showing that he bears no ill-will toward the man whom he lately fought, he can hand it over to Kilrain.

Blakely Hall, writing from Paris to the Chicago Inter-Ocean about the way in which the Parisians are fleecing visitors to the exhibition, says:—An actor in the Gymnase one night showed me three bills of fare which he had collected in the Care de la Paix—which is one of the best known restaurants and certainly ones of the most prominently located one in Paris. The first menu was apparently intended for the French patrons of the house. It was laid on the table from 12 to 2, which are the usual breakfast hours for the business men and sportsmen who frequent this particular hostelry. At three o'clock the second menu was placed upon the table. It was precisely like the first, except that the prices were 100 per cent. greater. At seven o'clock at night the third menu, in a beautifully gilded frame, supplanted the other two, at prices that would startle a Rothschild. Such charges as 90 cents for asparagus and a similar sum for potatoes or green peas figure on the list of the last of the three bills of fare. If one is content to live in the Latin quarter, the expenses will be only about 25 per cent. more this year than last. But if he frequents the best hotels, as Americans invariably do, and lives at the restaurants, he will find that his breakfast will average about $3, dinner $6, his late supper $3, and a single room, with coffee, candles, bath, and attendants, will come mighty near $8 a day. In fact, he will have to pay about $20 a day before he begins to spend any money.

A WORLD'S FAIR.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—The executive committee of citizens, that has been appointed to forward the movement to secure the location of the world's fair in Chicago, will meet this afternoon in the council chamber. The finance committee will recommend that stock to a total of a $3,000,000 be at once issued, and the proposal will be adopted. A section of the committee, however, favors a limit of $5,000,000.

HARRISON'S LITTLE VISIT.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—President Harrison started on his visit to Secretary Blaine at Bar Harbor this morning. A special palace car was attached to the limited express on the Pennsylvania road, which left at 9:40 this morning for New York. On his arrival in New York he will proceed on board a Fall River line steamer, which will depart at once for Boston.

A FAVORED PRINCESS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—Smalley, London correspondent of the Tribune says: "No complete list of wedding presents to the Princess Louise of Wales has yet been published, and none in any case could be given here, but there is no doubt about the general desire to bestow offerings on this young lady. Before her engagement she was jewelless, and Lord Fife has no family jewels, yet now, they say, she has more than the Princess of Wales herself, whose collection is remarkable, nor has she been obliged to rebuke the zeal of her admirers, as the Duke of Portland did. It is said of the Duke of Portland that he caused some of the presents to the duchess to be returned to the donors, on the ground that their acquaintance was too slight to entitle her to accept these gifts.

EXTENSIVE FORGERIES.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 7.—Forgeries to the amount of nearly $300,000 have been committed in the name of John B. Blaisdell, one of the oldest, wealthiest and best known residents of Minneapolis. A young lawyer in this city, well known and popular, and whose father is a wealthy and prominent man, has been robbing Mr. Blaisdell for a long time by a series of systematic forgeries, and when the fact was discovered a day or two or ago the total amount of his gains was in the neighborhood of $300,000. Owing to the previous good character of the man, and the high social and business position of the young fellow's family, a settlement was agreed to on the understanding that the whole amount obtained be returned to that gentleman. The large amount of the figures, together with the social and business prominence of all parties concerned, promises to make the case one of the most sensational ever known in the Northwest. If the matter is not settled at once criminal action will be begun.

SULLIVAN IN JAIL.

PURVIS, Miss., Aug. 7.—The feeling through the state is in favor of Sullivan in so far as the penalty of a fine is concerned, and every one appears to favor a fine without imprisonment. The general impression here is that the champion will not suffer imprisonment, or at any rate no more than the minimum penalty of ten days in jail and a fine. During his stay here, Sullivan has drank considerable ale and beer; but was at no time under the influence of liquor, and he behaved himself well. He will remain in absolute retirement at "Pass Christian" until his case comes up on Tuesday.

ANNUAL MEETING.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The annual meeting of the Pacific Postal Telegraph Company was held here to-day, Mr. John MacKay in the chair. The following directors were elected and officers appointed. John W. MacKay, W. C. Van Horne, Sir Geo. Stephens, Hector Decastro, A. B. Chandler, C. R. Hosmer, G. G. Ward, E. C. Platt, R. V. Dey. John W. MacKay, president; W. C. Van Horne, vice-president; and C. R. Hosmer general manager.

HABEAS CORPUS ISSUED.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—This morning Judge Baker issued a writ of habeas corpus, directed to Chief Hubbard, for the release of Martin Burke from the cell in the Harrison street station in which he now reposes. The writ was obtained by Lawyer Kennedy, of Appleton, Wis., who has so far been refused permission to see his client. It is returnable at 3 o'clock this afternoon, but was issued with the understanding if the officials permitted Kennedy to see Burke before that hour the matter should be dropped.

THE QUEBEC ELECTIONS.

MONTREAL, Aug. 7.—A caucus of supporters of the Quebec government was held here yesterday to consider the desirability of having the provincial elections brought on at an early date.

THE NEW MAYOR.

ST. JOHN, N. B, Aug. 7.—W. A. Lockhard was elected mayor of St. John yesterday, by 139 over Thos. R. Jones

HALIFAX RACES.

HALIFAX, Aug. 7.—The amateur boat races took place in the harbor yesterday afternoon. The 4-oared race was won by the St. John crew, with the Shawmuts of Boston second. The single sculls was won by James Beagin, of Boston, with Frank Smith, of Boston, second.

SEIZED FOR SALVAGE.

QUEBEC, Aug. 7.—The steamship Lemuria has been arrested by the vice-admiralty court at the suit of Henry Fry & Co., on an action for salvage services. The amount claimed is about $6,700.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

QUEBEC, Aug. 7.—Mr. Lowe, of the Ottawa geological survey, who is now engaged surveying the lower portion of the Jacques Cartier River Valley, while crossing a stream in a bark canoe some days ago capsized and lost all his instruments and had a very narrow escape from drowning.

A DEFEATED CONSPIRACY.

CAIRO, Aug. 6.—Startling news comes from Toski that documents have been found in the abandoned camp of Wad-El-N-Jumi and upon the dead bodies of his sheiks, which prove the existence of a wide-spread conspiracy with its central agents among high officials of the Egyptian army and prominent Egyptian leaders in Cairo itself. The invasion by Wad-El-N-Jumi with his handful of Dervishes is shown by these documents to have been merely an incident of this conspiracy, which was to have been followed by wholesale treason on the part of the conspirators who had planned to carry with them a large part of the Egyptian army. These disclosures serve to explain what has, up to this time, puzzled everybody here, how the leader of the Dervishes expected to accomplish anything with the insignificant force he brought with him across the desert. It is now clear that he expected to be joined at the Nile by the deserters from the Egyptian army itself, headed by traitors with whom he had been in correspondence, and by some of the tribes upon whose friendship the Egyptians depended. Just why the traitors at the last moment abandoned the brave Dervish leader to his fate, and how it came that their treachery was not consummated, is not yet clear. It is quite likely, however, that their plans were to throw off their masks and join the Wad-El-N-Jumi invasion after they had crossed the Nile, and that Colonel Wadehouse's determination to prevent their reaching the river at all hazards and his unexpected success in carrying out this purpose, threw them into confusion and disorganized their carefully laid plans.

Passed Out Well.

We were present yesterday when Mr. Lewis Griffiths washed out decomposed quartz, spoken of in our issue of yesterday as being brought down by him from the "Nutcracker" mine, and are pleased to state that it panned out exceedingly well, showing a great deal of fine gold dust and a few small nuggets. If this be a fair sample of what is to be obtained in the "Nutcracker," it must be evident to all that there is money in it, and for the benefit of the country we should be pleased to see the lucky owners open up the mine as rapidly as possible.—Courier.

Migrations of the Red Man.

Every year about this time Indians come down with their households to Seattle and Tacoma from all along the coast as far north as Queen Charlotte's Sound, in light cedar canoes, to engage in hop-picking in the White river, Snoqualmie and Puyallup valleys. They bring with them abalone shells and woven grass trinkets, and go back in the fall with red blankets and money. Each year fewer come to the fields, for two reasons: The hop country is becoming surrounded by a dense population, which supplies white pickers, and the whites are building up industries which employ the Indians at home. It is thought that the Indians will not return at all next year, owing to the action of the Oregon Improvement Company in covering with steel rails their favorite camp down by the Ocean dock.—Post-Intelligencer.

From the North.

The str. Barbara Boscowitz arrived down from Naas river and way ports on Sunday evening with a large passenger list, principally returning fish*ermen. She also brought 1250 cases* from the B. A. P. Co., Skeena river. The pack on this river will be only a two-third one, the canneries averaging 9000 cases apiece. On Naas river McLellan's cannery had put up 6000 cases; Findlay, Durham & Brodie 3000, and the Cascade Packing Company 1500. At Rivers Inlet the run has been unprecedentedly large, the two canneries running there having all the fish they could handle, and shutting down because they ran out of material. Shotbolt & Draney have 16,000 cases, and will also put up 600 barrels salt salmon. McDowell's cannery has a pack of 10,000 cases. The pack at Alert Bay is only fair. The war vessels were still at Fort Simpson, awaiting the arrival of the Sardonyx with coal.—Colonist.

Attempted Jail Delivery

The following, from yesterday's Colonist, recites the latest exploits of the celebrated O'Connor, who, our readers will remember, was released from the penitentiary here, on the expiration of his term not many months since: Thomas Healey, alias O'Connor, one of the most noted burglars in British Columbia, and who served seven years and nine months in the British Columbia penitentiary for burglary, attempted to carry out a well laid plan of escape, arranged last evening, at the provincial jail. The veteran gaoler, Mr. Muldoon, whilst attending to the wants of a sick prisoner, heard a noise in one of the cells, and upon looking about, discovered that Healey's door was tampered with. The warden and Mr. Muldoon immediately proceeded to Healey's cell, prepared for any emergency. Healey was at once removed to another cell and safely locked in. Upon examination it was found that the bolts had been drawn from the door socket and wooden pegs substituted. His bed was carefully made up to represent the prisoner asleep. A pair of moccasins were made out of a piece of blanket, and stuffed with oakum. It was Healey's intention to overpower Jailor Muldoon, take his keys and liberate the other prisoners who wished to go. Healey is the man who attempted to burglarize Gilmore & McCandless' store last February, only being out of the penitentiary ten days. He was sentenced to one year, but made his escape from the chain gang. He was recaptured by Edward North and got six months additional imprisonment. This is Healey's third attempt at escape since being in the Victoria *goal. Mr. Muldoon is to be congratu*lated on his narrow escape from such a dangerous man.

MOBBING THE WITNESSES

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 7.—The witnesses against Mrs. Maybrick were surrounded by an angry mob last night on leaving court, and sixty police had to be called to their rescue, and to preserve order.

NOTES FROM THE HUB OF THE WORLD.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—Sir Charles Tupper presented O'Connor with a flag of the Dominion, as a token of Canadian sympathy with him in the approaching contest. Sir Charles, speaking in the names of Canadians here, wished O'Connor success and presented the flag amid enthusiasm.

The Times to-day strongly supports Canada's claim regarding Behring Sea. Canadian opinion here is that the States will not venture to persist in an aggressive attitude.

Lord Dunraven has decided positively not to send the "Valkyrie" to America.

A NEW GAME.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—A St. Petersburg despatch says all the inhabitants, numbering forty, of a small village of Kursk province, are under arrest for burning the entire town to obtain insurance money. The peasants made no secret of their plans, and collected their effects in a safe place before applying the torch. They seem perfectly unconscious of having done any wrong and say their houses were old and they wished to improve by building new ones with the insurance. They cannot understand why they should be arrested.

TROUBLED WITH GOUT.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The condition of the Prince of Wales is attracting much attention. Sunday he was compelled to rest while the German emperor continued his private inspection of the fleet. It is now understood he may not take an active part in the inspection of the manœuvres at Aldershot to-day. To get him out of the predicament as skilfully as possible, Sir Oscar Clayton has stated he does not approve of the prince undergoing the fatigue inseparable from a day in the saddle. The prince is troubled with a gouty affection of the eye and with a recurrence of the venous inflamation of the leg, which he has had more or less since the attack of typhoid fever in the winter of 1871.

ENGLAND'S POLICY.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—In the house of commons to-day the recent events in Egypt became the subject of an animated discussion, and the government was questioned as to its intentions regarding that country. Mr. William Henry Smith stated that the government had no intention of following up the success of General Grenfell by occupying Dongola and Berber. The victory which had just crowned the British arms, he declared, would in no wise change the policy which England had consistently pursued in Egypt. That policy was simply to maintain the integrity of Egyptian territory and defend its present frontier. The government would engage in no adventurous plans for extending those frontiers.

OPINIONS ON THE SEIZURE.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The naval review and other stirring home events have rather diverted the public attention from the Behring's Sea crisis. The *papers to-night, however, are full of re*ports of Canadian indignation at the United States aggression and British inaction. They have good reasons for saying that the latter charge is, at least, premature. Lords Salisbury and Knutsford have been giving the subject their most earnest attention for the last few days, and have determined to put an end to what the Times today calls "a wanton outrage." The question asked by Mayor Grant and others in Victoria as to whether the British flag is any protection to Canadians at all, will find a speedy and conclusive answer. Nevertheless, no outbreak of hostilities is to be feared. It is believed firmly here that in the United States public opinion must fail to support the outrages, and that, as the Times says, England's inevitable remonstrance will open the door to a speedy and satisfactory settlement.

Where is Supt. Roycraft?

Considerable anxiety exists at the long absence of H. B. Roycraft, superintendent of provincial police. He left Victoria several weeks ago for Granite Creek on official business. It has since been learned that he was going through to Calgary to meet his daughter. It is not as yet known whether there was anything wrong in his business affairs that forced him to leave. If he has left the province for substantial reasons, it will astonish his many friends, for he was a favorite everywhere. It is hoped that there is a reasonable explanation for his abrupt departure.—Colonist.

P. V. Georgen, a prominent lawyer of Portage La Prairie, has been summoned to answer to the charge of arson.

Yesterday, the first day of the summer carnival at Halifax, was blessed with fine weather, except during a short time in the evening, when showers fell. The afternoon was devoted to a regatta, which was witnessed by an enormous crowd. Professional events only were concluded. The city is beautifully decorated.

Mr. Theo. Davie, the new attorney-general, has issued his election address to his constituents of Victoria city, the writ for the election having been issued, fixing the nomination for the 15th, and the polling, if any, for the 21st instant. Election addresses are capable of meaning very little. Mr. Davie's card to the electors, however, is short and quite pointed. He says: "In accepting a portfolio in the government, my primary object is the construction of another transcontinental railroad, which penetrating the northern part of British Columbia, and opening up the important district of Cariboo will traverse Vancouver Island, making Esquimalt or Victoria its terminus. It will be my endeavor * * * to apply the resources of the country, so far as can be legititmately done, in furtherance of this project. * * * It was upon the understanding that the Northern Railway should be a matter of government policy, that I agreed to enter the cabinet." Mr. Davie promises to enter into particulars at public meetings, so we shall see later what these rather significant utterances may definitely mean. Such declarations will undoubtedly be popular with Mr. Davie's constituents, and no reasonable person will object to having so important an undertaking as the Canadian Western vigorously pushed, but this pushing is now the business of the promoters, and not of the government. The legislacure, at its last session, provided the company with a charter, and a land subsidy of between ten and twelve million acres. What more "applying of the resources of the country" does Mr. Davie want? Unless the new attorney-general's election manifesto as above is to be taken as election claptrap, the declarations therein certainly have the merit of being candid and outspoken. But it looks as if Mr. Davie would require a check-rein on his railway enthusiasm. There are other matters besides the "Northern Railway" surely worthy of his attention, but to no other subject does he refer ever so remotely in his address. We await the "particulars" promised at the public meeting.

The mining interests of the province are second to none in importance. Hitherto quartz mining, which from an industrial standpoint is by far the most important of mining operations as regards the precious and more valuable metals, has had very little development, but the era of extensive operations in this large and fruitful field has dawned, and, with the better opening up of the country by means of additional rail and wagon roads, quartz mining will take that place among the industries of the country which the almost inexhaustible mineral resources of the province, under due development, are bound to insure. A very rich quartz producing district, the development of which is being seriously hindered just now for lack of road communication, is the Kootenay district. Yesterday we published some information, obtained from authoritative sources, setting forth briefly the present position and necessities of the important mining district in question with respect to road connection with the smelter being erected at Revelstoke. It will be seen that the present conditions are almost prohibitive of mining in Kootenay, the ore having to be shipped to Montana for treatment, thus costing over $40 per ton, which, of course, excludes all but the higher grades from being handled, and besides diverts expenditures into a foreign channel that, under proper conditions, would be spent at home. A wagon road, such as we mentioned yesterday, from Sproat's Landing to Nelson, a distance of about thirty miles, is urgently needed, there can be no question about that matter, to complete the connection between the mines and Revelstoke. The only question appears to be, and there is a difference of opinion on this point, whether the wagon road should be undertaken at all, in view of the possible early construction of the Kootenay Railway, which would serve the same, or perhaps a better purpose. The question is one which should have the best consideration of the government. They should satisfy themselves as to the certain prospects of the railway in question, and act accordingly. Certainly Kootenay district should not be kept without a wagon road for another twelve months or more, waiting for a prospective railroad.

The doings of the fire fiend in the neighboring state of Washington the last two months are something alarming. Spokane, wiped out as to its business portion, on Sunday last, makes the fourth city or town in the new state practically destroyed within the period mentioned. Seattle, on the 6th of June, followed rapidly by Vancouver, then Ellensburg, and Spokane on the 4th of August, have all felt the breath of the fiery flames and succumbed almost helplessly in each case. Millions worth of property in all the towns mentioned—that which stood for years of persevering toil and represented besides vast expenditures of hard cash—reduced to smouldering ashes in a few short scorching tempestuous hours! Although in every case a cheerful philosophy has animated the discomfitted citizens to make the best of their severe visitations, such fires are tremendously serious matters, and the property destroyed, while it can be replaced, can never be restored. The results must be utterly ruinous in many individual cases, although the city or town itself may in time be built up by the importation of capital to more than its former glory. And they have a knack of doing this sort of thing lively on the other side of the line. We have hardly reached that stage yet when unlimited outside capital will come for the whistling, and a similar conflagration would be a much more serious matter for us. Plainly, Westminster can not afford to seek the distinction of being the next to perish at the stake. But are we certain that the martyrdom in question may not come unsought? What is our present position as a subject for a holocaust? It has been admitted for some time, and repeatedly urged in these columns, by correspondence and editorially, that several reforms and improvements were necessary in the fire protection service of the city. At the last meeting of the council, on Monday, the 30th ult., the fire committee submitted a report, which was adopted as to its principal clauses, recommending certain things to be done which would place the fire protection service on a safer and more efficient footing. There were four clauses in the report—all good clauses, which, we believe, should be carried out as soon as practicable—but our purpose here is to refer more particularly to clause 2, which we shall quote for reference. Said the fire committee: "We also think that for the protection of the business portion of the city, the steam fire engine should be placed on Front street, over the river, and the hand engine be brought down to the Hyack hall as soon as the new engine arrives; and that a small engine be purchased for use on the hill." Splendid idea, most people acquainted with the circumstances will say; but it follows that during every day and night which passes, and these recommendations are not carried out, the "business portion of the city" is practically unprotected. Surely it should not take long to erect a shed (if the putting up of a permanent one would consume much time, a temporary covering should be erected without delay in the meantime) on one of the fire slips on Front street, and transfer the steam engine thereto. No more time should be lost in doing so. And with respect to bringing the hand engine down to the Hyack hall, "as soon as the new engine arrives;" there are very good reasons why it should be done at once, and the new engine hurried up all that is possible. It is the "business portion of the city" that is in the most danger, it is hardly necessary to mention, and where inconceivably the greatest amount of damage would be done if a fire should once gain headway. It is perfectly right and proper to take all possible precautions to prevent even a single residence burning down, but a fire in the business portion of the city might mean the practical extinction of the whole town. Let the council hasten to carry out the good recommendations of their own committee, with this amendment, that the hand engine be brought down immediately.

OUR FISHING TRIP.

What happy hours were those when Tom
And I, some monstrous whale to win,
Went fishing in the rocking-chair
Off the piazza with a pin!

Our sails were spread, our anchors weighed,
We were the captain and the crew,
Far out from land on chasing waves
Before the gale we rocked and flew.

Now schools of mackerel passed us by,
Now dolphins came in rainbow flocks,
Now, lifted on a distant wave,
A strange mermaiden combed her locks.

Cape Finisterre, and Baffin's bay,
And Crusoe's Isle, and Red Sea shores
We left behind, and saw ahead
Van Diemen's Land and the Azores.

We breakfasted in Behring Strait,
And then, for the sweet sake orewhile
Of Moses and the bulrushes,
We caught our dinner in the Nile.

But for some reasons that we had,
Some memories of delightful scenes,
At nightfall we a harbor made
Always within the Philippines!

We boxed the compass as we pleased,
The winds from every side were blown;
Geography, and time, and space,
In that fine voyage were all our own.

Sometimes the storms about us burst,
And we went slipping round the deck,
Sometimes we rocked so near the edge
We narrowly escaped a wreck.

Far off we saw the huge whale spout
Just over the horizon's rim,
But though we sailed, and sailed, and sailed,
We never quite caught up with him.

And never shall we steal from time
Days half so glad as those wherein
We fished in the old rocking-chair
Off the piazza with a pin!

THE TALE OF A CRIME.

Ghastly Revelation of a Photographer's Experiment.

M. Theodore, chef de surete, sat in his cabinet deeply perplexed. His two elbows on his desk, his head on his hands, he was musing.

"And was it going to last, this, which had been going on for so long awhile? And these assassins, were they going to end by beating him? Were they going to compel him by adverse public opinion to send in his resignation?

"Parbleu! it looked so, and as if they did it on purpose, passing the word from one to another to force him to get out of their way. Eight assassinations, one after another! Crimes of the worst caliber, with startling details, which peopled alike with horrifying visions the sleep of the bureaucrat and the concierge! And not an assassin, for all their skillful work, had they been able to lay their hands upon! They had fled, every man of them; they had disappeared, vanished—piff, like a puff of air. Celerity, dispatch, their motto, and to go without leaving an address behind them! Frankly, it had begun to pass the bounds of all reason.

"And now, to top off these eight other crimes, there was still another one, a ninth one, a murder, like the others, accomplished the evening before, under similar conditions, a femme-galante with her throat cut, five thousand francs' worth of jewels gone, and—not a trace of the assassins!"

Despite his robust philosophy, that had long been the admiration and emulation of his century, M. Theodore felt himself drifting into melancholy and reflection, not unmixed with anger.

"Nine murders, one after the other; nine crimes without an author; nonsense! impossible!" The chef de surete pulled himself together, threw back his head like a war horse sniffing battle, and—the door opened.

It was his secretary who presented himself, bearing a card in his fingers.

"A gentleman, monsieur, who insists upon seeing you. He declares" and the secretary smiled a little at the absurdity of the claim—"he declares himself in a position to furnish you with definite particulars regarding the crime of yesterday."

"Ah, the crime of yesterday!" The chief turned quickly. "Then bid him enter," said he, and while the secretary regained the ante-room to do his bidding M. Theodore cast his eye upon the card before him.

"Frederick Bouscal!" he read in a half voice. "Bouscal, Bouscal; it seems to me that I know that name—that I've heard it somewhere."

He scrawled a line upon a scrap of paper and handed it to the secretary who returned at the moment ushering in the visitor who had asked to see him, dismissed him with a word, and was ready for the matter in hand.

M. Theodore raised his eyes. Before him was a man simply, but neatly, clothed, and with a frank and honest countenance, though valied, as by a cloud, with sadness. The eyes were clear and open, the mustache and goatee gray and pointed; in short, there was something in his manner, something in his whole appearance of a militaire in "retreat."

"You have particulars to give me, have you not, monsieur?" questioned the chef de surete; "particulars, I believe of the crime of yesterday.

"I hope so, monsieur," simply responded the visitor.

"Ah, hope so! You are not sure, then?"

"It rests with you, M. le Chef, whether I am sure or not. All depends, in fact, upon an operation the means of which you alone are able to furnish me."

"Explain, if you please?"

"Certainly, and at once, though doubtless you have heard it spoken of, M. le Chef, a certain scientific procedure which permits under certain conditions, better even than description can do it, a reconstitution of the portrait of an assassin. Briefly, behold my meaning. You know, of course," he continued, "that in the phenomenon called vision the object which we see throws or forms upon a screen in the eyeball itself—in plain words, upon the retina of the eye—an image which remains there until displaced by another. It has been proved also that this image persists even after death. You recognize, therefore, that if a person murdered has been struck from the front, and in a light sufficiently distinct for him to see, the last thing upon which his eyes would be fixed would in all probability be the face or form of the murderer. Naturally, the image of that face or figure would be thrown upon the retina of the eye where—and this is what I came to say—it is not only possible to refind it, but also possible to reproduce it. Ah, well, monsieur, in the case which occupies us—"

The door of the cabinet opened anew, and the secretary of M. Theodore re-entered, holding in his hand a roll of papers that he laid before his chief, then turned and was gone again as quickly as he had come. M. Theodore lifted it and ran his eye over the contents.

"You are named Frederick Bouscal, are you not, monsieur!" he demanded, presently, addressing his visitor.

"Yes, M. le Chef, Frederick Bouscal."

——"your age!"

"Fifty-eight years, M. le Chef."

"Hum-m-m." M. Theodore rapidly twirled the sheets beside him; "twenty-seven years!" he murmured, as if thinking aloud. "So it was not you then who was imprisoned two years ago, and condemned for contumacy and the theft of a thousand florins."

A sudden flush empurpled the countenance of the visitor.

"No, monsieur," he responded, with effort, in a dull voice; "no, it was not I—it was—my son."

"An employe of the Credit Agricole, was he not? And—you are ignorant of what has become of him?"

"Absolutely. It is fifteen months that his mother and I have been without news of him. That child, M. le Chef, that child has been our sorrow and our shame. He has broken our hearts, dishonored our name—"

His voice was choked. He was silent, unable, evidently, to go on.

"Pardon me, monsieur," said the chef de surete, "I have reopened a painful wound, but—I listen to you—you were saying?"

The man passed his hand across his brow and eyes to clear his vision, then resumed:

"I was saying, M. le Chef, that in the case which occupies us now the reconstitution of the assassin's portrait should be entirely possible. The victim was struck in the face, the direction of the blow and the form of the wound indicates it plainly. More than this, it must have been light enough to see the murderer, and with sufficient clearness to have stamped his likeness upon the retinal screen, for the papers assert that even in death her eyes were fixed in a 'wide and frightened stare.' Thus, monsieur, we find ourselves in the presence of a half-certainty; it is probable, if not sure, that the eye of the corpse lying now upon the slab of the morgue contains the exact reproduction of the features of the one you seek. With your permission I will draw it from them."

"Draw it; but how?"

"By photography—it is my business, M. le Chef. And this matter, this subject I speak of, I have studied it long and almost with passion, for I hold it to be, in case of success, one of the most useful and beautiful applications of modern science. I know it can be done. I have myself experimented, and in one instance have reproduced the lineaments of the physician who had leaned above the bed of the dying."

The man spoke with animation, and while speaking his voice vibrated, his eyes burned, his who countenance was illuminated, irradiated with the light of a legitimate pride. M. Theodore regarded him, visibly moved himself by this ardent conviction.

"And you conclude?" he questioned, after a moment's thought.

"I conclude—but authorize me to attempt the experiment on the woman assassinated yesterday and I will tell you what I conclude. If I succeed it will be for us—my wife and me—a little glory, and also a little money—a ray of hope in our misery; if I fail—well, no matter—we are used to misfortune. A deception, more or less, need not be counted. In any event, M. le Chef, you lose nothing in the adventure but the chance of an unhoped for success."

"Then, so be it, monsieur," agreed the chef de surete. "Take your instruments to the morgue to-morrow morning at ten o'clock. I will see that the clerk is instructed. Later on I shall myself be there. I have the honor, monsieur, to wish you good-morning."

In the obscure nook at the morgue where he had inclosed himself in accordance with the arrangement made at the office of the surete Frederick Bouscal, his body bent, his face drawn, watched anxiously the result of his last washing. The plate was there before him in its bath of quicksilver, into which he had dropped it awhile ago with such fear and infinite precaution.

Sensitivized! Vitalized! At least it should be, and if the conditions of the crime we such as he supposed them, and the victim before dying had really seen her murderer's face, the portrait of the assassin would be there under that bed of gelatine en traine to melt away.

His throat closed as by a grip of iron, the operator held himself immovable, hearing only with painful distinctness the gurgle of the water as it dripped upon the faces of the dead in the adjoining chamber; the plunge of his blood as it throbbed and hammered through the arteries of his heart.

And at last the moment came—the moment that was to reveal to him all or nothing. He rose, that poor, trembling photographer, rose, I say, took it carefully by its dripping edges, that plate upon which his fate was hanging, half closed his eyes, held it to the single ray of light that filtered through the yellowed pane—to stagger back with a groan of anguish, to let it crash into a thousand pieces!

"His son! Great God! The face of the murderer, the face of the son!"

Five minutes later, when Frederick Bouscal, the photographer, came from his nook, and the chef de surete, awaiting him with impatience, hurried to meet him, he saw immediately by the pallor of his face, by his somber eyes, that he had nothing good to announce to him.

"Well," said he, "nothing?"

"No," responded Bouscal, "nothing."

"Allons! no matter; try it a second time; do it over again."

"Impossible! the transparency of the cornea is destroyed. I wished to wash it, and I burned it through mistake in the vials. I salute you, M. le Chef!" And Frederick Bouscal turned away.

The next morning the commissioner of the quarter of Ternes, forwarding to the prefecture his regular report, headed it with the following item:

"To-day at ten o'clock a summons to 109 Rue Laugiere. A call from the concierge, suspicions of charcoal fumes from the room of the Bouscals, man and wife, his locataires. The door, by my order, was forced. Too late—they were dead, both of them, side by side upon the bed, a brazier of lighted charcoal plainly indicating the manner of their death. A double suicide—poverty the cause.

"From —— Commissaire, quarter of Ternes, third month, 16th day, 188—."

"Bah, these inventors!" murmured M. Theodore, as his secretary concluded the reading, "they are all alike, stupid and rash! though I, too, on this occasion, have naught to boast of. But how the deuce," he added, as the memory of that pale, sad face rose up before him, "how the deuce could I think of suicide for a cause as trifling as this?"

"A cause as trifling as this?"

Ah, my worthy chef de surete, it is not every thing that is known in that prefecture of thine!—Translated from the French by E. C. Waggener.

LUCK IN COPPER BOLTS.

A Chance Discovery Lays the Foundation of a Stevedore's Fortune.

The fortunes of some men have their foundation in very queer incidents. Elmer A. Barton, of Duluth, Minn., says the Chicago Herald, is comparatively a wealthy man, while fifteen years ago he was a day laborer getting a job whenever he could unloading vessels, or any thing, in fact, he could find, but work around the docks was what he most looked after, and this fact was indirectly the cause of his streak of luck. Lying outside the harbor of Duluth was the nearly submerged hull of a vessel. No one appeared to know how long it had been there, but "the wreck," as it was called, was considered one of the features of the place. The boys used it as a swimming station, and it was a proud day for many a Duluth boy when he could say he had been able to reach "the wreck." This was another link in the chain of Barton's luck. He had a son who, with the other boys, made daily excursions through the summer out to the old hulk, and one day this son brought back with him one of the bolts and a piece of wood that had become loosened. By chance the father saw the bolt, and he asked the boy some questions, the result being that he himself made a trip out to the wreck in a small boat, taking an axe with him. After this excursion, Mr. Barton began making inquiries about the old boat, but could get no information as to when she arrived there, or when she was sunk, or where she came from. He also managed to get permission from the authorities to remove it, the permission being the more readily given as it was in the way of some proposed harbor improvements. Mr. Barton began his work quietly—making no stir about it. He managed, by the aid of long saws, long-handled axes and hooks, to detach piece after piece and get it ashore, piling it up in the yard that surrounded his cabin. It took him nearly the entire year of 1874 to do this work, but it proved a profitable job. That bolt the boy had brought home was solid copper, and it opened the father's eyes to the possibilities. His investigation showed him that all the bolts in sight were of the same metal, and when he had completed his labor he had secured many hundreds of pounds in weight of valuable copper. Besides this, he had in the cords of wood piled up on his lot a value that proved a great surprise to him. The vessel had evidently been of foreign build, for she was composed of a number of different and valuable woods, the bulk of it being teak, a specie of oak, but there were large quantities of mahogany, some rosewood and a little ebony. Altogether it was a good year's work. He found ready market for his copper bolts, and the wood going off piece by piece brought him a nice little sum. It was this money that gave him his start in life, and he was shrewd enough to make each dollar multiply and increase.

THE BRAIN (from a photograph.)
Healthy Condition. With Paresis Lesions

There are many well known men confined in our Asylums who but a short time ago were prominent among our business and social circles.

Why are they there?

Paresis!

Did it come on at once?

Not at all. It was a gradual but positive growth. They overtaxed nature. The drain on their vitality, their nerve powers, their brain tissue, was too great, and they gradually but surely sank under it. The things they did to bring this sad end about are precisely the same things being done by thousands of men and women to-day. It is not necessary to name them. They all end disastrously unless checked or regulated.

Prof. Phelps, of Dartmouth College, knew this fully when he began his experiments which resulted in the discovery of the wonderful Paine's Celery Compound. He realized that Paresis (consumption of the brain) was our great National weakness. He knew that the brain and nervous system must be fortified to meet the great strains which modern life bring upon it. He saw that men were becoming debilitated and women weakened by the pressure and demands of life, and he sought and discovered the remedy. Paine's Celery Compound, if rightly taken, will renew the brain and build up nerve tissues as fast as they become exhausted. It is not a narcotic. It contains no drugs, no nostrums. It is perfectly pure. It is absolutely harmless. The high character of its discoverer guarantees this, and the indorsement of the medical and chemical professions prove it.

Port Kells

This Fine Townsite, at the Fresh-Water Junction of the Southern Railw'y

——WITH THE——

FRASER RIVER

12 Miles Above Westminster,

Has just been Surveyed, and the Lots are for sale by

WOODS, TURNER & GAMBLE

——AND——

ALBERT J. HILL & COMPANY

Of New Westminster, B. C.

The advantages and prospects of this Plot for a future thriving Town are many.

The Land in the vicinity is good.

There are inexhaustible IRON ORE DEPOSITS, of a superior quality, immediately adjacent, as well as vast strata of the finest BUILDING SAND and POTTERY CLAY.

On the Townsite are a number of valuable MINERAL SPRINGS.

Communication by land and water is unequalled, by reason of the location of the Townsite on the Fraser River and the Southern Railway, while the natural elevation and lay of the land can not be excelled as a situation for a fine town.

The ground is open and clear of heavy timber.

The site has been selected as one of the most important stations on the Southern Railway, and with the completion of the road, in the near future, must, with all its other advantages, spring into prominence at once.

Those who apply early will have the pick of the Lots.

A clear title given with every purchase.

Parties wishing Lots can apply as well, on the premises, to

The first exhibition of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association was opened to-day at Vancouver. A large number of exhibits were on view, and the show, on the whole, is certain to prove a great success.

The smoke from bush fires to-day was worse than ever, and for the first time it proved a nuisance to the people in town. It is feared that if rain does not come soon and quench the fires, navigation on the gulf will be interfered with.

The writ for the election of a candidate to fill the vacany in the representation of Victoria city consequent upon Hon. Mr. Davie's acceptance of a portfolio has been issued. The nomination will take place on the 15th inst., and polling, if any, on the 21st.

The Y. M. C. A. class in gymnastics met for practice in the drill shed last night. They will give an exhibition on Wednesday evening August 21st. An interesting programme is being prepared, and no means will be spared to make it a first class athletic exhibition.

All members of the Hyack Fire Company are requested to meet at the Hyack hall this evening at 7 o'clock for drill. In future when practices or meetings are to be held the flag will be hoisted to notify the members, and this will be considered a sufficient notification.

Scoullar's old building on Columbia street, which was recently occupied by McRae, the tailor, was torn down to-day as it was found to be too weak to stand removal. As it was, the building had to be braced inside and out, in order to stand the strain of being pulled down and to allow the men to work in safety.

It will be learned with a great deal of satisfaction by the public generally and people of Scottish birth in particular, that Dr. Blackie, formerly of Edinburgh University, will arrive here this week and will occupy the pulpit in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church on next Sunday. Dr. Blackie has long been noted as one of the leaders in the world of thought. In addition to being one of the first theologians of his day he is also a writer with a reputation extending to wherever the English language is spoken and read.—Times.

Inspecting the Line.

Mr. J. J. Donavan, chief engineer of the Fairhaven Southern Railway, started from Fairhaven a few days ago for Westminster, and will make a thorough inspection of the proposed line, en route, besides inspecting the work already completed on the Southern Railway between Westminster and the boundary. Mr. Donavan will arrive in Westminster within a day or two. Mr. Bennet is reported to be actively prosecuting construction on the southern end of the line, and operations on this side of the border are still progressing steadily.

Andrew Welch's Will.

The will of the late Andrew Welch, of Welch & Co., of San Francisco, and Welch, Rithet & Co., Victoria, who died at Portland, Or., on July 5th, has been filed for probate. The principal beneficiaries under it are the Roman Catholic orphan asylum, St. Joseph's Roman Catholic infant asylum, Hebrew orphan asylum, and St. Vincent's orphan asylum, all of California, $5,000 each. To his wife, Bertha Louise Welch, a decree confirms the right to one-half of all his common property, and also one-half of all his other property, subject, however, to the payment of all his debts and the legacies above mentioned. The residue of the estate is left in trust to Mr. R. Welch, Robert Paterson Rithet of Victoria, A Alexander, and H. Longsboro, for the benefit of the children of deceased. Robert P. Rithet has been appointed special administrator of the estate, which is believed to be worth $750,000.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria

From Chilliwack.

Harvesting at Chilliwack and Sumas is well advanced, and magnificent crops are being reaped. A little more rain would have improved the crops, but as it is they are over the average. On Friday last threshing commenced and is now in progress on half a dozen farms. Small quantities of this year's crop of wheat have already been marketed, and another week will see regular shipments of grain reaching this city. Fruit growers are busy picking and packing fruit, and shipping it to market. Although an immense quantity of fruit is being exported daily, the shipping season cannot be said to be in full swing yet.

Death of Mrs. F. J. Barnard.

Mrs. Ellen Stillman, relict of the late Mr. F. J. Barnard, died at her residence early yesterday morning, after but a few days' illness. The deceased lady was a native of Quebec, and was 64 years of age. She arrived in this province in 1860 to join her late husband, and has since resided here. During her long residence in the province she made many friends, all of whom will grieve to hear of her death, which followed so soon after the demise of her husband. Her children, bereft in such a short time of both father and mother, will have the sympathy of the entire community. The funeral will take place to-morrow.—Colonist of yesterday.

The Big Run.

Last night's salmon catch beats the previous records for this season, and, to say the least, it was something wonderful. Every boat came in this morning loaded to the water's edge, and the fishermen well nigh exhausted from their exertions. The day shift went out at 5 o clock this morning, and the first drift made by one of W. H. Vianen's boats resulted in a catch of 640 fish, the largest catch made in one drift this year and probably the largest ever made on the river. It required three boats to haul the fish in, and each was well loaded. Such fishing as this was unexpected, and is surprising to even the oldest fishermen. This is the third week of the "big run," but there is no sign of the fish lessening in numbers. It is probable the pack will be the largest ever made on the river.

High Prices for Salmon.

A despatch from San Francisco says: Commission merchants who make a specialty of the salmon interests say there is every indication of a rise in the prices of canned salmon this season. The large catch of last year was, contrary to general supposition, consumed, and when jobbers looked for stocks in the eastern markets in figuring on this year's catch, they were surprised to find that there was little available there. Everything was bought up before the arrival of the first shipment from the north in this city and there are still large orders to be filled which dealers can see no way of getting around. The fish ran late this year and the shortage in the catch was at first attributed to this fact, but now it is believed that the amount yet to come will not suffice to meet the demands already filled. Discouraging reports from the north have caused the jobbers here to be energetic for supplies to meet their eastern and foreign demands. They say nearly all the pack has gone east or abroad, which leaves this market without enough for consumption. The scarcity will cause prices, which have already shown a stiffness, to advance.

A Serious Charge.

An item appeared in the News-Advertiser this morning that reflects very seriously on the charactors of the gentlemen who are at the head of Southern Railway affairs. It states that the course adopted by them was not straightforward, and that their intention was "to get the city's money and at the same time be able to drop the scheme into the hands of some other party when convenient for them to do so, but keep a tight hold of the money, which, in reality, was all they wanted." The item also says "the scheme was cunningly planned and cunningly operated." The writer of the paragraph in question was evidently ignorant of the fact that under the agreement with the city the money could only, under any circumstances, be paid out as the work on the railway progressed, and that, also, only on certificate of an engineer, appointed by the city, that the work had been performed according to the terms of the contract. The whole item is a malicious libel, and barren of a vestige of truth. Mr. B. Douglas, president of the Southern Railway Co., informed a representative of THE COLUMBIAN to-day that the company had placed the matter in the hands of their legal advisers, and instructed them to take the necessary steps to obtain legal redress.

The Fairhaven Railroad.

A Post-Intelligencer reporter interviewed Nelson Bennett, the railroad builder, at Tacoma, on Saturday, and learned the following facts concerning the Fairhaven & Southern railroad: "We have in our employ about 700 men at present. The right of way from New Westminster south has been secured and fifty miles of it is already cleared. Twenty miles of the roadbed is graded south from Fairhaven and fifteen miles south from New Westminster. The iron for thirty miles of roadbed is already on the ground, and we have two sixty-five-ton locomotives, a caboose and twenty-five cars of 40,000 pounds capacity each at Fairhaven for use in construction.

"This road is not under the control of the Northern Pacific or any other. We, the stockholders, own the road, and are paying our way as we build. We do not owe a dollar and are independent of everybody.

"The object of the road is to connect the transcontinental roads of British America with those of the United States, but I calculate that the trade of the country tapped will pay the running expenses of the road. It skirts fifteen miles of coal beds south from Fairhaven, and runs through as fine a belt of timber as there is in the United States.

"Where will be the terminus? I have got one eye on the Arctic circle and the other on the Antarctic. I have not decided whether we will run through Blaine or not. It all depends on what arrangements can be made."

P. Moore, late clerk in the Kingaton, Ont., post office, charged with unlawfully opening a letter, was tried yesterday afternoon before Judge Price, and fined $25 and costs.

The Lord Milton Estate.

By a large advertisement on the first page of the paper it will be seen the fine property known as the "Lord Milton Estate" in this city, has been placed upon the market. With Westminster's present advantages and immediate outlook, any property in or near the city constitutes one of the best possible investments, and the property which the enterprising firm of Rand Bros. advertise to-day comprises some of the choicest residential sites in the city, being centrally located and easy of access, and its value for residence purposes is being largely increased by the extensive street improvements which are being carried out by the city. Persons wishing to build or to secure property for speculative purposes cannot do better than invest in this property, and the "early bird" will get the worm, as Messrs. Rand Bros. announce that they are authorized to allow ten per cent. discount off present prices on all sales made during the month of August, and also furnish intending purchasers with free carriage drives to the property. There's your chance, gentle reader. Get in and ride!

The Asylum Addition.

The addition to the provincial asylum for the insane, which is now under the process of construction, is a work of a much greater magnitude than many of our citizen are aware of. The old buildings, with the exception of the female department, are being almost completely rebuilt in order to bring them into conformity with the new plans. The center, or main building will have a frontage of 66 feet by 40 feet deep, and 3 stories high with basement, with a kitchen addition in rear 30x40 feet, one story high. On either side of the centre building will be a wing each with a frontage of 137 feet, by 40 feet deep, and two stories high. This will give the building a total frontage of 340 feet. The main building stands out 22 feet farther than the wings. Each wing will be a complete building in itself, being furnished with dining room, sitting room and patients' quarters, lavatories, etc. Over the centre of each wing will be a handsome cupola, which will give a striking appearance to the building. The roof will be of tin and the cornices of iron, and the building throughout will be made as nearly fire proof as possible. Messrs. Turnbull & Co., the contractors, are pushing the work forward with the utmost vigor, and expect to have the contract finished considerably within the specified time. They have sixty men employed at present on the foundation, which is just about completed. Teams are hauling bricks for the walls, and the bricklayers will be hard at work in a few days. Mr. G. W. Grant, the architect, is superintending the contract for the government, and expresses himself as perfectly pleased with the progress being made. When completed the asylum will have ample accommodations for 200 patients.

B. C. R. A. Prize Meeting.

Competition No. 2 was finished last evening and the lieut.-governor's match commenced, but not finished owing to the lateness of the hour at which it was begun. This morning the smoke on the range was so thick that the targets were almost invisible at 500 yards, and the finish of the governor's match had to be postponed. Competition No. 4, Westminster stakes, being short ranges, was commenced. The attendance was a little larger than yesterday.

Police Court.

(Before T. C. Atkinson, P.M.)

Thos. K. Jones, charged with being drunk and incapable within the city limits, pleaded guilty, and said in extenuation that he had been locked out of his hotel and not being able to get in got drunk. Fined $2.50 and costs, or 10 days.

Billy, a Chinaman, who has been notorious for years as an Indian whisky peddler, and who is also one of the worst and most depraved celestials unhung, was charged with supplying liquor to Jack, a Fort Rupert Indian. He vehemently denied the charge, and got so excited in his harangue that he forgot himself and used such vile language that the magistrate was about to commit him for contempt of court. It took four Siwashes to arrest Billy yesterday, and even then he made a terrible struggle for freedom. The evidence adduced for the prosecution was good and trustworthy, and the magistrate sent Billy to the provincial gaol for 4 months with hard labor.

LATE CANADIAN NEWS.

Hon. Premier Mercier is confined to his house in Montreal on account of illness.

A rousing reception was given to Dalton McCarthy, M. P., in the town hall, Portage La Prairie, Monday night. Mr. McCarthy reviewed the history of the Jesuit question, speaking nearly an hour and a half. He was glad to see the announcement of a measure in the Manitoba legislature next session dealing with the dual language from the Northwest territories act.
