WHAT A SNAP.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—The president to-day made the following appointment: Samuel L. Sheets of Colorado to be receiver of public monies at Durango, Colorado.

SPENDTHRIFT SULLIVAN.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—John L. Sullivan is reported to have squandered the $20,000 which he received as the reward for his victory over Kilrain, and is also said to be $15,000 in debt.

EARTHQUAKES AT COSTA RICA.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Central and South American mails were received to-day as follows: There was a heavy shock of earthquake at San Jose, Costa Rica, Sept. 26.

A FATAL ERROR.

BUCYRAS, Ohio, Oct. 14. — John Howard, engineer, Frank Raiser and Hynlon were instantly killed this morning at Hynlon's sorghum mills, by the bursting of a boiler. Cold water was pumped into the boiler by mistake by the engineer.

MAYOR GRANT RESTRAINED.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The Electric Power Co. and Mount Morris Co., this morning obtained injunctions restraining Mayor Grant and the board of electrical contractors from cutting their wires.

EIGHT HOURS A DAY.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 14.—The conference between the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, which embraces all the powerful trades unions on one hand, and general master workman Powderley with his executive board, representing the Knights of Labor on the other, to discuss and perfect plans for the general introduction of eight hours' work a day on May 1st next, is being held here to-day.

SERVED HIM RIGHT.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 14.—At Middleburg, Carroll county, last night, William Ebbert was flogged by "white caps" for beating his young wife.

AT 'FRISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14.—Arrived, bark Pearl, Port Hadlock; stmrs. City of Puebla, Victoria; Columbia, Portland; ship Commodore, Departure Bay.

HONORED EVERYONE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Wm. L. Page, a California newspaper man, who has just returned from a trip aboard, in speaking last night of the Paris exposition, said: "The American exhibit was considered a very small affair comparatively, yet many of the displays were awarded grand prizes. The adroit Frenchmen made very slight distinctions between the exhibits for degrees of merit. Thus we find that all the typewriter machines received gold medals, as did all the fire arm manufacturers, boot and shoe men, hatters, schools, etc. A school at Coldwater, Mich., received a gold medal, and other schools from big cities in the east and west received no higher awards, although they were greatly superior.

EDISON ON ELECTRICITY.

ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 14.—In an interview to-day Mr. Edison said there is no such thing as insulation in enormously high currents. Cable companies use only about forty volts, being afraid of injuring insulation by increasing the pressure. A cat can be killed by 220 volts alternating current, and with five volts I can throw a man into convulsions. The authorities will have to adopt similar rules to those governing gas and steam companies. There is a law against the manufacture of nitro-glycerine; let there be one against those deadly currents.

THE U. S. SUPREME COURT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 14.—The October term of the supreme court of the United States opened to-day at noon; all the justices were present. The proceedings to-day were very brief. The chief justice merely announced the opening of the fall term of the court and stated that the court to-morrow would proceed with the docket. The court then adjourned and the justices made their customary annual visit to the executive mansion to pay their respects to the president. The term opens with a crowded docket of about 1575 cases; fully 100 more than last year.

THE DEADLY WIRES MUST GO.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—At to-day's meeting of the board of electrical controllers, Mayor Grant offered a resolution reciting that the number of deaths caused by electric light and power wires furnished ample proof that such wires were not being put under ground fast enough to insure the safety of the lives of the people, and that in view of the imperative demand for greater subway facilities the board determines that the contract made with the electrical subway construction company in April, 1887, now in operation, is ineffectual for the accomplishment of its just purposes. Mr. Lauterbeck, counsel for the subway people, tried to convince the mayor that his company had done all it could to comply with the order of the board. The mayor said: "I don't concede that the company has made promises that it has not performed; the board disagrees with that resolution. The resolution rests with them." The mayor said he was going to use all his influence to put the wires under ground, no matter whose interests suffered or what other members of the board thought. "I propose to give the company," said he, "all the facilities I can for conducting their business, but the wires have to go underground. I insist on putting my resolution." The resolution was put, and all the commissioners voted against it, and it was lost.

EMERSON'S GRAVE OPENED.

CONCORD, Mass., Oct. 14.—It was discovered yesterday that during Saturday night the grave of Ralph Waldo Emerson, in Sleepy Hollow here, had been opened, exposing the casket. Whether or not the remains were removed is not known as authorities before making an examination are awaiting the arrival of the philosopher's son, Dr. Edward W. Emerson, who has been telegraphed for and is expected to-day. The general opinion is that the miscreants secured at least the skull, which was probably what they were after, and great excitement and indignation prevails here.

GHOULISH THIEVES.

CONCORD, Mass., Oct. 24.—Mr. Farrar, undertaker, is authority for the statement that the Emerson casket was not opened. The vandals uncovered it, but were frightened away before they could accomplish their purpose.

SENTENCED TO HANG.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 14.—John Weile, alias John Greedwall, twice Weeks, was to-day sentenced to be hanged on December 6th. The counsel convicted for the murder of Lyman N. moved to put aside the judgment. He also claimed that the court of sessions did not bar the jurisdiction to pass sentence.

JURY BRIBERS UNMASKED.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—At two o'clock the grand jury returned an indictment against John Graham as well as a true bill against 6 men indicted Saturday. Another startling rumor is to the effect that John F. Beggs has made a full confession which has disclosed jury bribing plot in all its details.

THAT MYSTERIOUS PRISONER.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 14.—An extra issued at 1 p. m. says that the mysterious prisoner arrested last night by Captain Schuttler and brought to Chicago Avenue station with his face muffled in a handerchief so as to conceal his identity is John Graham, a lawyer who has an office in the same room with A. S. Trude. Whether Graham has confessed and acknowledged connection with jury bribing, is not yet known, except to the state's attroney. Judge Longnecker accompanied the grand jury to their room. And this afternoon an indictment will be returned against Graham, and also two additional indictments against two of the men already in jail. More evidence is being rapidly accumulated and the probabilities are that Graham's backer and employer in the conspiracy will be arrested before night. The whole scheme is on the point of complete exposure. No startling developments are looked for. Jerry O'Connel, charged with complicity in the jury bribing case, this a. m. gave bail in $5,000.

THE CRONIN TRIAL.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—It became apparent about the middle of yesterday afternoon that something akin to a bomb had been exploded in the camp of the prosecution in the Cronin case. Whether the news was in the shape of a confession, or whether a new mine of evidence had suddenly been discovered, it was impossible to determine until several hours' watching. Never before since the day that the Carlson Cottage was discovered had the detectives and lawyers maintained such an air of secrecy. During the afternoon and until early this morning the attorney for the state and the police officials were either in conference or rushing about on mysterious business. At 2:30 o'clock this morning two men were taken out of State Attorney Longnecker's office through the door leading into the alley between Darbom avenue and Clark street. Both were handcuffed and had policemen guarding them. The men were taken to Chicago avenue station and locked up. One was said to strongly resemble "Cooney the Fox."

THE MISSION DRAW.

OTTAWA, Oct. 11.—At a meeting of the railway committee of the privy council held to-day, the Hon. R. N. Scott applied, on behalf of the Canadian Pacific Railway for power to build a bridge over the Fraser river at St. Mary's Mission, with a draw of a width of eighty feet, the usual draw being one hundred feet. The city of New Westminster objected to the decreased draw but Scott read a letter from Provincial Secretary Robson saying that eighty feet would be sufficient in the interest of navigation. Sir John A. Macdonald said the matter would be taken into consideration.

LATE CANADIAN NEWS.

When Donald Morrison was sentenced by Judge Brooks to eighteen years in the penitentiary, there was great excitement in the court room, and much sympathy was expressed for the prisoner. Morrison was taken to St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary Friday night.

Nobody at Halifax knows anything about the alleged sensation referred to in a despatch purporting to come from Halifax, and published in New York, about General Sir John Ross, commander of the British troops in America, and his divorce. Sir John was divorced some years ago.

Officer Holston arrested a man in Keewatin, on Friday last, for drunkenness. Two of his friends, James Steel and Joe Perran, attempted to take him from the police station, when Holston drew a revolver shooting Perran through the heart and Steel in the hand. Perran was instantly killed. Holston gave himself up and was taken to Rat Portage jail.

The Dominion government, after a full investigation of the recent insult offered by Admiral Heneage in forcibly towing a German ship from her anchorage in the harbor of Esquimalt, have communicated the result to the British government, censuring Admiral Heneage as having grossly exceeded his duty and being guilty of a grave misdemeanor, which calls for reproof. It is believed in official circles at Ottawa that Heneage will be immediately recalled from command of the Pacific squadron, and that the British authorities will at once order an apology to the German government from Canada.

The Czar Refuses to Meet Prince Ferdinand and Checkmates Bismarck's Scheme.

The Earl of Galloway is Acquitted of a Number of Very Serious Charges.

Matterson Gives Burbear, the Oarsman, a Bad Defeat on the River Thames To-day.

BISMARCK CHECKMATED.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The Paris correspondent of the Times asserts that he has discovered a trustworthy authority that the visit of Prince Ferdinand to Munich was undertaken on suggestion of Bismarck, who wished to present him to the czar. The project fell through because the czar was unwilling to receive the prince.

LIVERPOOL EXCHANGE.

BURBEAR BADLY BEATEN.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The three mile sculling race between Matterson and Bubear, on the Thames course to-day, was won by Matterson. Matterson led from the start and finished eight lengths ahead.

A RESPECTABLE STRIKE.

PARIS, Oct. 14.—Three thousand five hundred miners have struck at the men's department of the Pas De Calais.

THE DEPRAVED EARL.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The trial of Earl Galloway, under an indictment for a series of assaults upon girls of tender years, began at Dunford to-day. The court room was packed with notable persons. The prosecution was conducted by the lord advocate in person, and 6 counsel headed by John Blair Balfour, Q.C., appeared for the defence. The indictment, upon which *the earl is on trial, to-day, is for in*decently placing his hand upon a little girl of ten years, named Gibbon. The child testified to the assault as charged in the indictment, and the testimony was corroborated by other witnesses. From the statement of the earl read by his counsel deponent declared he had merely assisted the child to alight from a wall. The trial ended in a verdict of acquittal.

THE CHURCHES.

Summaries of Some of the City Sermons Spoken Sunday.

HOLY TRINITY CHURCH.

Rev. H. Irwin preached at Holy Trinity church yesterday morning from Ephesians 4th chap. and 1st verse: "I therefore, the prisoner of the Lord beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called." After all St. Paul had suffered, after the superhuman struggle he had just gone through in the cause of his master, these words of his have a special charm. At the end of great toils and troubles we find him a prisoner, but not a subject of despair or hopelessness. These words of his, "Walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called," have a good ring in them and they are not the words of a hopeless heart. What is your calling? Brethren, your vocation is the voice of God that calls you on; when we think of our vocation we should think of it as God's call. It was not for nothing that Christ spent a portion of his life working in a carpenter shop; it was for a purpose. Therefore our Maker's call should find an echo in our soul responsive of His will. Many a careworn and anxious mind has been relieved of a heavy burden, and many a life has been made to burn brighter by the vocation of life having been changed into a higher calling; and so the soul should feel when called by God. If you believe in Christ's life you must believe in your calling. No doubt life has been and will be unsatisfactory to those who would do away with *religion, for, for*get that your vocation is the call of God, and sooner or later life will be*come an agonizing mockery.* Our everyday life is a bright calling for everyone of us, and this thought should cheer us many times during the week we have just entered on. To the brethren who prefer to live like the brute creation around them and deny the person of a God, there is a terrible awakening ahead—save us from such a fate. Secular history gives us proof that our vocation is the call of God; and all the noble deeds of history, the greatest and most glorious actions, will be found to be the work of the Great Power behind them. The calling of the Christian is his duty, and his life is ennobled by Christ Himself.

METHODIST CHURCH HARVEST FESTIVAL.

At the Methodist church yesterday morning, a large congregation was present. The church had been beau*tifully decorated with evergreens and* other natural productions. In front of the platform tables were placed and each one literally groaned under the load of harvest wealth heaped upon it. Every imaginable species of garden stuff, and also the tilled and ploughed soil, were tastefully ranged around. Sacks containing oats, wheat and other cereals were placed at intervals, and interspersed were four shocks of grain, wheat, barley and oats. These bore a word each of the sentence, "Praise ye the Lord." Bouquets of flowers here and there among the fruit and vegetables very tastefully set off the display. The Rev. J. H. White was accompanied to the platform by Mr. Fisher. Mr. White, before leaving the platform to Mr. Fisher, remarked that people are too apt to take things for granted now-a-days. They seem to think the grain and fruit and flowers will grow as a matter of course because they have done so in years past. They are not so grateful as they ought to be. But anyone who did not feel grateful after this service had no gratitude in his heart. These fruits were the pro*duct of this district and province.*

Mr. Fisher chose his text from a number of passages from the psalms appropriate to the harvest season. He said man is a dependent being, dependent upon God for everything. He cannot live except through the strange process God has given him, and all are equally dependent. The bible is full of instances of miracles performed by God to succor the prophets when in distress. And of all the good gifts of God the beautiful corn is the most wonderful. It is never found in a wild state, and is the only natural product known that is not so found. The apple can be traced to the crab of the hedge, the plum is an improvement of the sloe. But corn in any form was never known to grow spontaneously. It seems to have been put into man's hand along with the curse, "By the sweat of thy brow shalt thou earn thy bread." Bread corn is the most wonderful gift of God to man; it is not the same as the fruits which will grow without care or attention, but for it the soil has to be prepared with toil and care for only after such labor will it grow; only then can come the glad shout of Harvest Home. Another strange thing, wherever man can settle corn in some form will grow. In the *bleak and frozen north the hardy bar*ley and rye find sustenance; in the temperate zone wheat and its kindred grains find favoring circumstances to grow and bear a hundredfold; and in the fierce, tropical climes, the maize or Indian corn are there to supply man's wants. Wherever man goes this gift of God goes with him in some form. And the manner of using it is so peculiar that it is still further removed from the other natural products of the earth and imbued with still more mys*tery. When the missionaries went to* New Zealand they told the natives how to sow the seed and of its value as a food. When the grain had properly ripened the savages plucked each stock up by the roots and of course found only a few tender fibres. They were very angry with the missionaries until told they had been looking on the wrong end. There is only one way to account for this mysterious product and its strange preparation for food; it must have been given specially by God to man. Wherever it is not found man is a savage. The gift of the corn makes man take the place in nature God *meant for him. It means civiliza*tion, the clearing of the plains and forests and the introduction of commerce. God has connected the bread question with all the great events of the world's history. The family loaf and the Lord's Day are bound up together. And it is better to starve than to sin. And not only that, but we must comply with the command of God, or starve. Man must obey or go without his dinner. The corn is the world's true wealth, and yet, we are within six weeks of starvation every year; on the verge of famine regularly every year of our lives. When we re*cognise the wonderful goodness of God* in averting that catastrophe during the thousands of years of man's history our daily bread becomes a sacrament; a beautiful emblem. And what more striking symbol of Jesus Christ can we have than this grain in its almost unlimited power to assuage our needs? Christ is the food of the world; He was broken and bruised and crushed. And before this grain can bless us it must die, and to be useful to us it must be broken, bruised and crushed.

From Rock Creek.

Mr. Theodore Kruger and Mr. Thos. Elliott, two well-known residents of Rock Creek, reached the city last night and are domiciled at the Oriental. They report increased activity in mining matters in their section of the country. At the Douglas mine the shaft is down 88 feet, and a contract has been given for 100 feet more at $4 per foot. The rock is ifound to be of satisfactory quality, and modern machinery, including a ten stamp mill, has been ordered from New York. The machinery will be taken to the mine as soon as winter sets in. Two shifts of eight men are steadily at work, and the company also employs an assayer who carefully examines every bucketful as it comes from the mine. At Osoyoos Lake, the Wide West is proving fully as good as the Douglas, but it, like many another good claim in the district, needs capital to properly develop it. It shows, probably, the richest rock in the whole country, the ledge 84 feet in depth and 12 in width, being well-defined and easily worked. The ore is of uniform good quality all through the ledge, it does not run in a streak. At Ruby, on the American side, the Arlington has 100 men at work, and is putting up a 100-stamp mill. The ore there is not equal to that shown by the Wide West, but the owners of the mine have capital to work it for its full worth, and consequently it is going to pay, and pay well. Already the money that is being put in circulation by the Arlington company is making its pre*sence felt for good.* The Black Bear has 25 men at work and is doing well. Altogether, Mr. Kruger thinks, in the Rock Creek district the future of British Columbia as a mineral country is centered. A great dread stares the stockmen in the face this season—that of a possible shortage in the winter food supply. Owing to the grass fires and the grasshoppers, the crop was a partial failure, and it is feared that the cattle will suffer when they come down for the winter. At present all the *stock is in prime condition.—Satur*day's Colonist.

Monday Evening, Oct. 14, 1889.

The last session of congress appropriated $50,000 to defray the expenses of an expedition to be sent under direction of the secretary of the navy to the west coast of Africa, to observe the total eclipse of the sun on December 22. It is reported that the man-of-war Pensacola will be employed for this expedition, and the preliminary details have been arranged by a board, of which Commodore John C. Walker, chief of the bureau of navigation; Capt. R. L. Phythian, superintendent of the naval observatory; Prof. Asaph Hall, of the naval observatory; and Prof. Simon Newcomb, superintendent of the nautical almanac, are members. One of the navy officers, familiar with the details says: "The expedition will be divided into two parties, one of which will be under the direction of Prof. Joseph Russel, of Washington, and the other under Prof. Todd, of Amherst. The former is an expert in solar photography, and will have charge of the corps detailed to obtain photographs of the eclipse. Permission has been obtained from the Portuguese government for the expedition to land at St. Paul de Loanda, the capital of the Portuguese possessions on the west coast of Africa. The expedition will proceed from that place inland to Maxima, on the Cuanza River, where the two parties will separate and take up stations near that point, and have all of their instruments set up before the date of the eclipse. The line of the centre of totality will strike the coast at a point about 100 miles south of St. Paul de Loanda, and pass directly over the stations. The expedition will not be absent more than three months."

Elsewhere will be found a despatch, clipped from the Victoria Times of Saturday, and by that paper credited to its Ottawa correspondent, which states that application has been made to the railway committee of the Dominion privy council, on behalf of the C.P.R., to enable that company to build a bridge over the Fraser at the Mission, with an eighty foot draw, the usual draw being one hundred feet. The despatch also states that a letter was read from the provincial secretary of this province saying that eighty feet would be sufficient in the interest of navigation. Whether this last statement is so or not, it is to be hoped that the railway committee of the privy council will not grant the request of the C.P.R. This question, it will be remembered, came up last spring for the first time, when THE COLUMBIAN drew public attention to the fact that the C.P.R. was proceeding to construct the bridge in question with a sixty foot draw, and protested against it. The Westminster board of trade, as well as the city council, immediately took the matter up and sent urgent protests to Ottawa, and the C.P.R. sought to compromise by proposing to the board of trade to put in a draw of from seventy to eighty feet in width. This the board took into consideration, and, after receiving the opinions of river captains and pilots, reaffirmed its previous resolution that the draw should be at least one hundred feet, and a resolution to that effect was forwarded to Mr. Abbott and to the minister of marine at Ottawa. It should be mentioned that the Victoria and Vancouver boards of trade, and also the district municipal councils along the river, followed up the action of the Westminster board of trade in this matter. The provincial legislature, in session at the time, also passed a resolution memorializing the Dominion authorities to the same effect. As a result of the prompt and persistent action of the Westminster board of trade and its allies, we find, by reference to our files, that, on April 20th of this year, the board of trade received a telegram from Ottawa stating that the C.P.R. had consented to make the Mission bridge draw one hundred feet in width, and had given the Dominion government a guarantee to that effect. Delays followed in the construction of the bridge, as everyone knows—in fact the work has been altogether suspended for some time—and now, when it is proposed to resume construction, the C. P. R., according to the despatch published elsewhere, has attempted to open the question again by trying to get permission from the railway committee of the privy council to build an eighty foot draw instead of one of a hundred feet, which it was definitely settled between all parties, as we have shown, should be the narrowest draw constructed on the bridge in question. The request, which, under all the circumstances, has considerable assurance behind it, should certainly not be granted.

Had Mr. Firth, who died suddenly a week or two ago, lived but a short while longer, he would have seen the first fruits of his years of unrelaxing labors in the interests of Greater London, (as opposed to the selfishness of the city proper), in the gigantic scheme of street improvements which is shortly to be brought under operation. The Metropolitan Board of Works in its day did grand and enduring work for the improving and beautifying of London, as the Thames embankment, Shaftsbury avenue, and other equally fine thoroughfares stand to witness. But that body fell into the hands of boodlers, and so had to be snuffed out of existence. Then, and only then, when there was no other course open, was London given home rule, and what may be termed a parliament of its own. The county council is hardly a year old, and it is the child of the late Mr. Firth's years of dreaming and fighting; for whilst to him is due the credit of the scheme, the realization of it was not obtained without hard battling, and sturdy resistance from the monopolists, the guilds, and the thousand and one vested interests which saw in self government for London, a forecast of the reform which must before many years compel the city of London to make restitution to those who have the misfortune to be ratepayers in that Greater London, that "province covered with houses," outside the area whose limits are Aldgate, Finsbury, Temple Bar, and London Bridge. The county council has begun well in determining to widen the Strand its whole length; but to do this the cost will be tremendous. With the exception of a few streets in the very heart of the city, there is probably no place in London, perhaps in the world, where real estate is so valuable as in Fleet street and its continuation, the Strand. It is the main artery from the fashionable West-end to the city. It is lined by handsome stores and hotels and banking houses, and possesses nearly a dozen large theatres. To widen this thoroughfare Holywell street and probably three or four more will have to be wiped off the map. It is probable that St. Clement Danes' Church, and the monstrosity called a Griffin, set up to mark the site of old Temple Bar, will have to go likewise, and much immensely valuable property will have to be acquired and then demolished. But the new scheme is to embrace another main artery connecting the Strand with Holborn, a street long required, but never before hoped for on account of the cost. We are told through the wires that these are only the beginnings of the improvements to be effected, but if they were the end there would be immense reason for congratulation. Too long has London borne the reproach of being a dirty, dismal and ugly place, without plan or design. The improvements hinted at here, however, will go a very long way to remove this stigma, and when the Covent Garden Market is rendered approachable by broad streets, as it will be at no far distant time, and when the Duke of Bedford is made to look after his property in that vicinity, and not permitted to keep all London at a standstill for his ducal pleasure, then will the Londoner be able, like Doctor Johnson, to take pride in suggesting a walk not only down Fleet street but the Strand as well.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

A bag of peas infested with weevils was lately noticed to be surprisingly warm, when investigation showed a temperature outside of 71 degrees and inside of 96 degrees. The difference proved to be due to heat developed through the work of the weevils.

There are now seven agricultural laboratories in Belgium where gratuitous analyses of manures and feeding stuffs are made. In addition, information is freely furnished to farmers upon the best method of using the manures and feeding stuffs, and upon other questions in agricultural science.

Goss remarked that the largest animal known is the rorqual, about 100 feet long; the smallest is the twilight monad, whose dimensions are the 12,000th of an inch. The middle term is one-third of an inch, so that the common house-fly may be considered as an animal of the medium size in the creation.

VITALITY OF GERMS.—In the laboratory of the German Imperial Health Department, Dr. L. Heim has found that cholera bacilli may survive in milk from two or three to six days; in sweet butter, for a month; but in cheese curds, scarcely a day. The bacilli of typhoid fever were still visible in milk after thirty-five days; in butter they lived three weeks; and in whey and natural cheese, only three days. Milk containing the bacilli of consumption was still capable of conveying infection after ten days; butter, for four weeks; and whey and cheese, for two weeks.

WASTED WEALTH.—The most important unused product of Africa is declared to be the fibre of the banana. This is capable of being divided into threads of silky fineness, and extends the entire length of the branchless plant. In Central America the fibre with no preparation except drying, is used for shoestrings, and for cords and ropes for various purposes. So vast is the supply of excellent material now wasted in the banana plantations of the world, that the proper utilization of this fibre is asserted by a German authority to be certain to influence the value of cotton, hemp, flax, and all similar plants.

MY NEIGHBORS' CATS.

I have a cat—a Thomas cat—
Likewise has Neighbor Briggs,
And next to him is Deacon Crump,
He's one, and so has Triggs;
Nocturnes innumerable has
This feline corps begat,
And I do imprecate them all
Except my Thomas cat.

The midnight pregnant is of yaowls
That joggle my repose,
Vituperative epithets
My verbal port o'erflows.
I conjure schemes to torture 'twixt
My fiercely-uttered seats,
And vow there is no nuisance like
My neighbors' Thomas cats.

And when I come down each day to take
My matutinal meal
I hear my Tommy's tuneful purr
And stroke his back of seal.
He opes his eyes, rears up his spine
To meet my tender pats,
And quite assures me he's unlike
All other Thomas cats.

Last night the caterwauling smote
My ear till I was crazed,
I shed the quilts and savagely
The window-sash I raised.
Down on the porch below I hurled
A giant base-ball bat,
And near it in the morning found
My slaughtered Thomas-cat.

If we'd reform the neighborhood
At home we should begin;
A blindness to our own offense
Cures not another's sin.
Our dogs, our pigs, our feline pets,
Our bairns that some call "brats,"
Are very like our neighbors' dogs,
And pigs and "kids" and cats.
—Wade Whipple, in Richmond Dispatch.

JOHN SMITH, CLERK.

Once there was a man. He was a clerk in a bank at forty-five dollars a month. His name was John Smith. At a directors' meeting one day, after the discounts had been passed upon and the portly directors were laboriously getting up to go, the president, who had the ablest and most expansive vest of any of them, stopped them.

"By the way," he remarked, "I have a note from John Smith, one of our young men, you know—some of you know him—but I guess I must have lost it. Any how, he wants his salary raised. Says the business of the bank is four times what it used to be and his work has increased accordingly. Says with increase in the amount of money handled comes increase in the strain on his integrity. Seems to think he ought to be paid for not robbing us. Beside, he says he can scarcely keep his family on his salary. I suppose I can answer it without calling another board meeting," he concluded, facetiously.

"Tell him he oughtn't to have such a big family," suggested one.

"Quote the law against embezzlement to him," said another, and so on, as they buttoned their overcoats and went out about their business.

By and by John Smith got a note like this, signed by the president and written on the note paper of the bank, bearing the imposing array of directors' names in neat engraving at the head of it:

"MR. JOHN SMITH—Dear Sir: In answer to yours of even date, I am instructed by the board of directors to say that they can not agree with your view of the case. It is true that your work has largely increased with the growth of the bank under its present successful management. But it is no more than you are able to do, and no more than we can find others to do for the salary we now pay you. The other phase of the matter you present, that we should pay you for the moral wear and tear incident to resisting temptation to steal, as well as for the physical and mental work you do, has no weight. Our relations, however pleasant personally, are purely a business affair on both sides. We pay you so much money for so much work. Your honesty is presumed. If you should prove dishonest we would discharge you, and the law would send you to prison.

"With your family affairs we have nothing to do, but I may suggest to you that careful economy in small household expenditures will result in an annual saving which will, perhaps, surprise you. Without referring especially to you—for I never endeavored to pry into your private affairs, nor inquired how you lived—I may say that, in my opinion, the prevailing tendency of young people nowadays is to live too high, instead of being careful to lay up something for a rainy day.

"Yours truly, etc."

The directors hadn't been in session long the next day when John Smith opened the door, handed in a slip of paper, and walked back to his desk. There was silence for a minute, then a murmur, then the clerks outside heard a clatter of moving chairs in the board-room, and then the door opened and two or three voices called "Smith!"

"In a moment," answered Smith, cheerfully, laying a blotter between the leaves of the book he had been writing in, and carefully tucking the pen behind his ear, as though he were making his toilet.

"What do you mean by this?" they demanded when he appeared in the directors' room. "Telling us there is only $9,647.80 of available cash, and suggesting that we get some for the counter."

"It's so," responded Smith, "and I thought you ought to know it before the money is all checked out. The bank oughtn't to have to close its doors in the middle of the day."

"But according to your statement of yesterday and your showing of to-day's business there ought to be $250,648. Where is the quarter of a million? We were just discussing an investment for it?"

"I've invested it myself," responded Smith, coolly, "in a safe place—$250,000 of it. The other twenty cents I took for street-car money. I took a quarter of a million away with me last evening."

"You what?"

"I stole it, in plain English. When I got his response to my note to the president I—but really I must renew my suggestion about the advisability of getting some cash on the counter. You are very short, and you ought to attend to it at once."

Two of the directors drew their checks on other banks and sent them out, although the signatures were very shaky; and then, quite at his ease, Mr. Smith leaned up against the carved mantel-piece, read the president's note refusing his request for an increase and went on:

"When I got this note it set me to thinking whether, as our relations were a purely business affair, I couldn't do better than go on as I had been doing. There were $250,000 in convenient shape that I could get my hands on. I might have skipped to Canada with it, but I don't like the climate. I took the money away with me and concealed it"—pausing for a moment and smiling down in their eager faces, "in a place known only to myself. I shall give myself up, and as our relations, in the language of the president, have been 'personally pleasant,' I will save you the expense of a trial by pleading guilty. The maximum sentence for my offense, under the laws of the State, is ten years in the penitentiary. With the commutation off for good behavior, it will be about eight and a half years. It will be dull, but I shall not be idle. I have never had leisure to cultivate the graces of the mind. I have a taste for music. I will cultivate it. I will learn a modern language or two. I am thirty-one years old now. When I have served my term and am clear of the law, I will come out of prison thirty-nine years old, with a cultivated mind and a comfortable fortune of $250,000 awaiting me. I can afford to go away, to travel in foreign countries and enjoy life. Of course I lose the interest on my $250,000 while I am in prison, but if I were to live on air and go naked and save all my salary, I wouldn't have one-fiftieth as much at the age of thirty-nine. On the whole, I think I have made a good speculation. Don't you?"

The opinions of the directors were not very coherent just at this moment. They made various appeals to him, on the confidence they had had in him, on the good name he bore, on the dishonor he would incur, etc., but he responded that all these had not helped him to an increase in salary, and relentlessly quoted the language of the president's note to him, that "their relations were purely a business affair on both sides." Finally he said:

"Our relations have been personally pleasant, and I have no unconquerable desire to spend the next eight and a half years in jail. I will make you a proposition. If you will sign a bond not to prosecute me, and publish in the daily papers a set of resolutions setting forth that whereas your valued and trusted employe, John Smith, by the receipt of a legacy from a deceased relative, has been relieved of the necessity of further service, resolved, that you part with him with extreme regret, etc.—if you do this, I will bring back $125,000 and content myself with the other $125,000. The interest will make up a good part of the loss to me.'

It was hard to give up $125,000 and hitch it to a set of resolutions complimenting the thief, but it was a choice between getting half the loaf or nothing. Was the satisfaction of sending him to prison for eight and a half years worth $15,000 a year to them? They figured on it and agreed that it wasn't. They accepted his proposition, drew up the bond and signed it.

"You can get the resolutions in shape by to-morrow," he said, "and have them ready when I bring the money. It would scarcely be delicate for me to be present when they are adopted."

"Couldn't you bring it to-day, Mr. Smith?" asked the president, in a perspiration.

"No, I haven't time to go after it. The work at my desk always keeps me busy until the hour for closing the bank. You will have to trust me till to-morrow, and as by signing this bond you have committed yourselves to the compounding of a felony, I guess I can trust you—even as a purely business affair."

They were all on hand early next day. Smith, the cashier, said (not without some surprise at hearing the president inquire for him as "Mr." Smith), had gone out to get his lunch. He was asked for half a dozen times before he came. Every few minutes the door of the directors' room would open, a perspiring face would be thrust out and Smith would be inquired for. Then the face would be withdrawn and the directors would fall to discussing whether, after all, Smith hadn't taken their bond and given them the slip. At the stroke of twelve the door opened, and Smith walked in. He picked up the resolutions, read them with approval, and with a "Thank you, gentlemen; this is handsome," he handed a package to the president, saying:

"Here's your money."

Then he took his former stand by the mantel-piece, and watched their eager faces while they bent over to count it. A hundred crisp $1,000 bills—then $25,000, some of it in smaller denominations—$25,000 more yet—and then, to their amazement, another 100 000 bills.

"Why, it's all here—you've brought it back—"

"I never meant to steal it," said Mr. Smith, coolly. "I made you believe I did merely to convince you that you were conducting your bank on the wrong principle. In keeping a man on a starvation salary with a fortune within his grasp. I wanted to make you understand that there is something more in the relations between a bank and its trusted employes than cold business. I suppose you have no further use for me. I am ready to turn over my books as soon as you name my successor. He will find them all right. Good-day."

He walked back to his desk. Pretty soon they called him in again, and the president made a little speech. He said the lesson had been an unpleasant one, but they were disposed to take it in the spirit in which it was given. Perhaps he was right. They had no desire to punish him, but—here he hesitated and stammered a little—they were also unwilling, that is to say, they had no desire to keep a financier of his capacity in the humble place in which he had hitherto been employed. Therefore, one of their number, Mr. Wilkins, who was the agent of an insurance company, at a salary of four thousand dollars a year, had decided to resign that position, and would have Mr. Smith appointed his successor. Meanwhile, Mr. Smith could take a vacation of two weeks.—Pittsburgh Times.

LIBERAL LANDLORDS.

Why the New York Houses of the Astors Are Never Vacant.

There is an outcry in Fifth avenue against the Astors, because they are turning the houses opposite their own residences into stores; but, writes a correspondent to the Indianapolis Journal, if the Astors decide that they can stand it to look from their parlor windows right across the street into tradesmen's shops, I suppose their fashionable neighbors can not prevent it. Anyhow, the Astors are not only the biggest, but about the best, landlords in town. Their estate includes a vast number of once fashionable houses which have been converted into boarding establishments, and are slowly being altered into stores. These stand out prominently and catch the eye of the stranger at once. The iron fence in front of them always looks newly painted, the gate swings easily, the brick or brown stone wall seems to have been erected only yesterday, and the doors are massive and highly polished. Often the neighboring houses are shabby-genteel and wear an air of apology. The same contrast that exists between them and the Astor houses on the exterior is to be found on the inside. Many careless tenants have played havoc with the once beautiful interiors of many of these houses, and the owners have been less willing to make repairs now than when they themselves occupied them. The Astors, however, have steadily refused to rent to tenants who could not bring the best references, and they have kept their houses in the best possible condition. A lady who occupies one said to me: "The Astors are the model landlords of the city, and have that reputation among all classes of tenants. They are never harsh in regard to payments of the rent, but, on the contrary, are always ready to make things easy for a tenant who proves unfortunate. The only thing they insist upon is that the tenant shall be cleanly and prompt in reporting any injury to the house. Instead of delaying in making repairs, they are only too anxious to be informed of the necessity for them. No improvements desired by a tenant are too costly for them, and they seem to take great pride in making their houses as comfortable as can be. When I first moved into this house I noticed some things that I thought I would like to have changed. I hesitated about asking, though, because they had just had the house overhauled from top to bottom. I wasn't given the chance. The first time their agent came around to collect the rent he wanted to know whether any thing was desired, and the very next day the workmen were here. The second year of my stay I wanted some alterations made to suit my lodgers, and had not the slightest difficulty in obtaining them, although they cost more than a whole year's rent of the house. That was the more strange, too, because they did not add to the value of the house at all. The same spirit shown by the Astors in regard to these houses is true of all their property. I have been told by their agents that their property never lies idle, because of the great demand for houses owned by them. The agents like it, too, because they have no difficulty with tenants who are so well treated. A house belonging to the Astors will find a tenant when adjoining houses are advertised at a much lower rent. I know that I would not give up this house for any one on the block for half the rent I am now paying. If I were to move out to-day, there would be half a dozen applicants for the house to-morrow. So, you see, it pays a landlord to be liberal."

All on Account of a Dog.

In order to find the Corsica of Colomba in all its glory it is necessary to go into the mountains of Corte, and above all, into the arrondissement of Sartene. Here, out of 8,000 male inhabitants, 4,400 have charges of various sorts against them—murder or misdemeanors! They do not care, and live in freedom, practically out of any legal jurisdiction. It was here that a Tafani, by killing a dog in the vineyard, began the famous vendetta with the Rocchinai. In consequence of this no less than eighty members of the two families have taken to the woods and become bandits, seven persons have been killed, four wounded, one driven into exile and many threatened with death.

So he came to Westminster to buy him a pair.
"I'll have one pair of thick ones and one pair of thin,
If I can find J. Rousseau's," says Bryan O'Lynn.

He hunted the stores all along the main route,
Says he, "The right one I've not yet found out.
I want J. Rousseau—I'll buy only from him,
For he sells the cheapest," says Bryan O'Lynn.

He stepped a little west of McKenzie street,
He met Rousseau's sign—sure it was a great treat;
He lifted the latch, and Jim stood within.
"I've found it at last," says Bryan O'Lynn.

We showed him both Calf Boots, Kip and Cowhide,
The ones we praise mostly, without seams at the side.
We have Boots of all kinds, from Quebec and Berlin;
"Sure you have boots for the million," says Bryan O'Lynn.

He bought him his boots, which of course were no trash,
He paid down the money, for we sell only for cash;
To the public he says, "Be not taken in,
But buy from J. Rousseau," says Bryan O'Lynn.

"If there is a leak in the toe or side of your shoe,
Just take it to Rousseau, that's all you need do;
He will peg it or patch it just while you are in,
And the charge seems like nothing," says Bryan O'Lynn.

Mr. and Mrs. George Norris, of the Free Press, Nanaimo, mourn the death of their youngest son, John R. Norris, who died Friday afternoon.

Mr. Fisher conducted the religious services at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday. There was a very good attendance in spite of the attractions elsewhere.

Should the weather continue fine, the brick-work on the Bushby block will most likely be finished this week. The building presents a very solid and imposing appearance now.

Seven hundred sheep arrived from Calgary yesterday and were landed at the C. P. N. stock yards. The muttons are in fine condition and speak well for the Alberta ranchers.

The Irving is having her forward deck repaired. New planking is being laid down on the old, which, in some places, bears evidence to the amount of business transacted upon it.

The manager of the Experimental Farm at Agassiz was in town the other day and purchased for use on the farm, an end-spring top-buggy and a fine express wagon from Messrs. F. G. Strickland & Co.

The Irving yesterday brought down 90 hogs, 10 head of cattle, 200 bales hay, 200 sacks potatoes, 32 boxes apples, one horse for Victoria and a large quantity of farm produce and a number of passengers.

Invitations are out for a ball to be given by Rear Admiral Heneage and the officers of the fleet, to the governor-general on Friday evening, Nov. 1st. Many invitations have been received in this city.

Apostole Teuasse brought to this office on Saturday a tomato weighing 16ozs., which he grew in his garden on Edinburgh street. He is delighted with his success in this particular line, and with good reason.

An inmate of the Royal Columbian Hospital named Geo. McKenzie, aged 66, a native of Pictou, N. S., died last night. He had been in the province about 17 years, the last 10 of which he spent at Ladner's Landing, in the employ of Mr. T. E. Ladner.

The sidewalk on the west side of Mary street, just opposite the post office, needs looking to at once. Something has given way, probably a rotten stringer, and what is left is of the genus spring-board. Something is going to be seriously injured if it is not immediately repaired.

The church going people yesterday greatly appreciated the clean street crossings. The new crossing on Agnes and Mary streets, laid on Saturday, saved the residents of that locality a disagreeable job. They had arranged to lay a crossing themselves if the city had not taken the matter in hand.

Two boat-pullers of the mainland, McLean, of New Westminster, and Murray, of Vancouver, are anxious to pull a double scull race, and it is understood that Messrs. Bush and Paine, of this city, will accommodate them. Stakes will be fixed at not less than $250 a side, and a good race may be expected.—Times.

There was a trifle more animation about the streets this morning than on Saturday. The injunctors were "strong on the wing"—and the chin—but the by-law supporters were also good on the counter and did excellent service in the interests of the city. A great deal of subdued, but strong feeling was perceptible among the little knots of citizens, here and there, holding down the sidewalk.

As Capt. Cavin, of the Rainbow, was coming down from Westminster yesterday, he picked up a boat adrift about four miles from the sand heads lighthouse. In the boat was a salmon net, about 50 fish, a cloth coat and some other articles, but there were no oars. The boat did not belong to any of the canneries, and whether the fisherman had been lost overboard or not could not be told.—Saturday's Times.

The insane man Lawson, who was recently arrested on a serious charge, was removed from the city gaol to the provincial gaol. At present there are three insane inmates in the latter institution awaiting to be taken to the asylum at New Westminster, but owing to the crowded state of the asylum no room can be found for the three patients, and the provincial gaol is doing first class service as an insane asylum in the meantime.—Times.

The steamer Princess Louise arrived from Victoria this morning with a large cargo of general merchandise and the following passengers: Bishop and Mrs. Sillitoe, Mrs. T. E. Ladner, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Lord, Miss M McKenzie, Major Wilson, J. A. Black, J. A. Clarke, W. H. Ladner, M. P., H. Bell Irving, J. W. Cotton, J. Scott, W. Tasker, Capt B. Young, W. H. London, J. Stewart, W. H. Normand, Professor H. J. Sharp, L. Guichon.

The Pumpkin Pie Social.

The pumpkin pie social at the Methodist church to-night will attract a large and hungry audience. The pies are all prepared, so is the programme of songs, reading, etc., and all that is awaited now is the hour of 8 o'clock, at which time the fight is announced to begin. Dozens of large and mellow pumpkins, boxes of lemons and barrels of sugar, to say nothing of nutmegs, flour and butter, have fallen victims to the expected demand for grated pumpkin in its most matured state. The exact state of the pumpkin harvest will be proved this evening.

A Good Clean-up.

Mr. Wm. Tietjen has received information regarding the last wash-up of the Lillooet Hydraulic Mining Co. The clean-up took place on October 1st, and dust to the value of $500 was the result of three week's work. This is considered most encouraging, and the members of the company have no doubt as to the great value of their claim. The water supply, owing to the great drought during the past few months, is more than 50 per cent short of the average, which has had the effect of confining the company's operations within narrower limits than was intended. Work will be maintained for another month when the claim will be shut down for the winter. With the spring freshet active operations will be resumed on a much larger scale than heretofore.

A Celestial Sullivan.

At the police court this morning, Ah Lim, a Chinaman, stood charged with assaulting Tin Hoon, or Tin Horn, countryman. Joe Qui acted as interpeter. Ah Lim met Mr. Tin Horn on Front street, yesterday, and requested a loan of two bits; the loan was not advanced and Lim gave Horn a hit in the eye and a severe kick in the vest, which brought Horn down on his back, howling. On the approach of Officer Terhune, Lim took to his heels and was only captured after a hot chase of half-a-mile. Lim sent down to his friend Lee Coy to come and defend him, but Coy sent up word to the authorities that Lim is a bad Chinaman. In view of this fact and the case having been fully proved against the defendant, his honor sentenced Lim to two months' imprisonment with hard labor.

The Ashcroft Fair.

Mr. W. H. Ladner, M.P.P., was in the city to-day and gave an enthusiastic account of the fair lately held at Ashcroft, and which he attended. He says the cattle and horse exhibits were very fair indeed, and better than was to be expected. The display of potatoes was superior to anything he ever saw, and the root exhibits generally were far above the average. The fruit display though small was very fine, and garden vegetables were excellent in every way. The wheat exhibits, Mr. Ladner says, were superior to those shown at the provincial exhibition in this city, and he thinks the interior farmers would do well in future to pay more attention to the provincial fair. The Ashcroft people showed great enterprise in connection with their exhibition, and the outcome of the event was satisfactory to all who took part in its success. The next exhibition will be held at Kamloops.

Mildly Insane.

On Saturday night, a man named Campbell knocked at the door of the Presbyterian manse and was admitted by Rev. Mr. Scouler. The stranger began an incoherent harangue about things in general and finished up by accusing the reverend gentleman of having, in company with two other well known citizens, defrauded him out of $10. He demanded satisfaction and said he was quite prepared to go to law about it. A police officer was sent for, and the law, in the person of Officer Smith, loomed up majestically and invited the crazy citizen to take a walk to the station. At the police office Campbell said he worked at the saw mill and had lots of rich relatives in the old country. He could not talk two minutes on one subject and gave every evidence of mild insanity. He was allowed to go, as he assured the officers he worked regularly at the mills and would go to work Monday morning.

A Sudden Death.

Mrs. Nancy Scott, wife of Mr. John Scott, who lives about four miles from Ladners Landing, was taken with violant hemorrhage of the lungs yesterday (Sunday) morning, about 8 o'clock. A doctor was procured from the landing, and arrived about 10 o'clock, and the hemorrhage was temporarily stopped. About six o'clock in the evening, however, a renewal of the hemorrhage occurred and the unfortunate lady expired about seven o'clock last night. The deceased, who is a sister of the Messrs. London Bros., of Lulu Island, was aged 38 years and 9 months, and was a native of Brantford, Ont. She has been living in this province about four years, and leaves a sorrowing husband but no children to mourn her death. The funeral, it is expected, will start tomorrow at 2 o'clock from Ladner's, for the Oddfellows' cemetery in this city.

Messrs. F. G. Strickland & Co. have just received from the east a large consignment of elegant wheeled goods. A stroll through their commodious premises is a treat that will be appreciated by anyone at all interested in beautiful carriage work. There are Gladstones with comfortable seats, on the most approved design, strong durable and elegantly finished. First class Brewster and Timkin's spring buggies; this is a new kind of spring, said to be very satisfactory on the road. Road Queens' beautiful side bar buggies, which have obtained such great popularity in the east; and end springs, Buffalo road wagons, finely finished phaetons of the latest styles and fitted with either two or three springs. These vehicles are in the highest style of the carriage builder's art and fit to appear on the streets of any city. Express, city delivery and market wagons of different sizes, besides buckboards and sulkies, complete the consignment. The prices are away down and only a trifle higher than in the east. *

Early Saturday morning, a week since, Dan McLeod, with his wife and son and two hired men, Malcolm McKay and a young man named McLeod, all of Inverhuron, Ont., left there with two fishing boats, the Sweepstakes and the Hailstorm, for Golden Valley. They have not since been heard of. Both boats were washed ashore, and it is supposed all are lost.

Park Committee Meeting.

On Saturday night a meeting of the park committee was held at the city hall, Ald. Cunningham in the chair. Aldermen Calbick, Ewen, Reid and Keary were present. The financial statement showing the expenditure on the park and buildings up to date had not been prepared, and a number of the committee objected to going into the subject until the material to work on was at hand. Ald. Cunningham estimated that the expenditure up to date amounted to about $21,000. He also urged that the work be fully completed no matter where the money came from. Ald. Calbick was in favor of having the lower part of the grounds completed, even if the council had to obtain another loan in order to do so. He wanted the whole work to be under way before the present council retired, which would be necessary to ensure the success of the next provincial exhibition. Alderman Reid thought the athletic grounds should be enlarged, as at present they are a little smaller than they should be. Ald. Keary objected to any definite action being taken until the financial statement had been laid before the committee, nothing could be done until then. He was of the opinion $5,000 more would be required to finish the grounds, etc. Ald. Reid was in favor of proceeding immediately with the completion of the work and he was sure the whole city would heartily support the action of the committee. Ald. Ewen supported Ald. Keary's objection to immediate action being taken, and on their advice the committee adjourned to await the presentation of the financial report.

CHANNEL IMPROVEMENTS.

What has Already Been Accomplished at the River's Mouth and What is Expected to be Done.

From Mr. Geo. Turner, C.E., it is learned that the channel improvements at the mouth of the river are being actively prosecuted at present by the contractor, Mr. T. F. Sinclair. Some 4,000 feet of mattresses are to be laid down this year, and these are now being made on the river bank a short distance below Ewen's cannery. Several hundred tons of rock have been quarried on Pitt lake and laid down at the mouth of the river, to be used in sinking and anchoring the mattresses when they are ready. Bush mattresses, the same as employed heretofore, will be used this year. A recent survey of the channel has shown that a steady improvement is in progress, and the results already obtained hold out very encouraging prospects for the future. When the improvements were commenced a few years ago there were only 5 feet of water, at low tide, over the bar, to-day there is 15 feet and it is expected that by the middle of next summer the shallowest water will be 20 feet at low tide. The channel is now 1000 feet wide across the bar, and is still widening. From these indisputable facts it can readily be seen that the method of improving the channel, introduced by Mr. F. C. Gamble, the government engineer, is a complete success. Eight thousand feet of mattresses have been laid down since the channel improvements were commenced, and when the present season's operations are complete the total number of mattresses put down will be a trifle over 12,000 feet.

The Alaskan Company.

An officer of the Richard Rush informed a Seattle Press reporter that the sealing grounds will be a source of trouble so long as the Alaska Commercial Co. is allowed to control the seal interest. The officer said the Alaska Commercial Company is purely a British institution, with one or two American stockholders. The company claims the right to all the seals in the northern waters, and a government boat is kept cruising about to keep private boats out of the company's way. The six boats seized by the Rush for being engaged in sealing during the past season all claimed to be British vessels, but the officers of the Rush are of the settled opinion that all of the vessels referred to are American boats and owned by Americans, but chartered and outfitted in Victoria because it costs less there, and then by flying the British flag they might be able to better evade the law. Possibly the schooner Black Diamond may be a British vessel, but even this is doubted. It was stated that one of the privateering sealers, an American vessel, got out of the way with 3000 skins, but she got out of the way before the Rush appeared on the grounds. This fact seems to have given a great deal of secret satisfaction to almost everyone in the upper country, none of whom particularly like the Commercial Company. There is a desire among the people of Ounalaska, as well as of Sitka, that the monopoly of the seal catch be taken from the Commercial Company and that the grounds be thrown open to everybody. There is no immediate danger of seals running out, no matter how many go to catch them, as there are only two or three months in the year when sealing can be engaged in, on account of rough weather. If the right to catch seals was extended to Americans only, the price of prepared skins would be lowered to a reasonable figure. As it now is, all the Commercial Company's skins are sent to Europe to be tanned and duty is added each way, which swells the cost to the final purchaser. It is quite certain that if the skins were kept in the United States, it would pay an enterprising man to build and operate a seal skin tannery and preparing establishment on the coast.

Unpleasant Practice.

Parties just returned from Nanaimo Lake state that some persons who had been hunting near the upper end of the lake had hung the carcasses of three deer on the trees. They were now in an advanced stage of decomposition, and the stench of the neighborhood was simply unbearable. No doubt the hunters had hung them there with the intention of returning at once and taking them away, but for some reason failed to do so. It makes it very unpleasant for hunters and fishermen to go in that neighborhood. Had the carcasses been left on the ground, then other animals or insects would soon have devoured them, leaving nothing but the bones to bleach in the sun.—Free Press.

ONCE AGAIN

The Railway Bonus By-Law is Endorsed by the People by a Large Majority.

The Solid Stand by Enthusiastic Citizens Vote Down the Opposition.

A Sturdy Fight Against the Bylaw but Progress Once More Asserts Itself.

The great railway bonus by-law was before the ratepayers of Westminster again to-day, and again the ratepayers elected to vote for the city's best interests and for its advancement and prosperity. A small but determined opposition, thoroughly organized, worked like Trojans for the defeat of the by-law, but their labors were in vain. The perfection of the organization of the opposition was not realized until to-day, when it was found that the city had been thoroughly canvassed and an accurate estimate of the vote against the by-law taken. Trusting to the apathetic manner in which the friends of the bill seemed to regard its passage, the opposition hoped to win by concealing their hand and protesting indifference. But the crafty scheme failed, well laid though it was. On Friday last a quiet meeting of the friends of the by-law was held, which resulted in a canvass of the city on Saturday. The canvass was satisfactory in every way, although it was found that many votes had been pledged to the opposition through a misrepresentation of facts.

Voting commenced early after the polls opened this morning, but at no time during the day could it be called lively. As will be seen by the annexed returns the vote was not nearly so large as was expected, the result of want of organization on the part of the friends of the by-law, who might have largely increased the majority had they entered on a thorough canvass of the city. It is safe to say that not one opposition vote remained unpolled. The neighborhood of the Colonial hotel was the battle ground for "injunctors" and railway supporters, and many amusing wordy arguments were heard, all of which, however, resulted in the complete and utter route of the opposition. Carriages were employed by both sides to convey voters to the polls, and the streets all day long were quite animated in appearance. Everything passed off quietly, barring the excited arguments. At 5 o'clock the city hall began to fill with voters and citizens generally, and by the time the returns were all in the building was packed. The success of the by-law, when announced by the returning officer, was greeted with intense enthusiasm. Following is the result of the vote:

Mr. E. Rand, of the firm of Rand Bros., real estate and insurance agents, left Westminster to-day to take up his abode permanently in Vancouver. Mr. Rand leaves the royal city sincerely regretted by the social and business circles in which he has been so prominent a figure. The Y. M. C. A. of this city counted him as one of its most zealous and unitiring supporters, and will miss him severely; although his support will not be entirely withdrawn. Mr. Arthur Rand will manage the Westminster office in future.
