TRAMPS DID IT.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 13.—The Elk Grove flour mill, owned by Hill & Bauer, at Elk Grove, in this county, was totally destroyed by fire last night. Loss over $10,000; insurance about $4,000. The fire was started by tramps.

THE CATHOLIC COUNCIL.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The weather is extremely inauspicious for the dedication of the Catholic university to-day. It rained continuously. The ceremony was transferred from the west front to the interior, where at 10 o'clock Cardinal Gibbons delivered a short address. This was followed by chanting the hymn, "Veni Creator Spiritus," by 250 students of St. Mary's seminary and St. Charles' college. The ceremonies which followed included the celebration of pontificial mass of the Holy Ghost in the university chapel by Mgr. Sabolli. The sermon was preached by Bishop Gilmour, of Cleveland. The inaugural dinner was held at 3:30 in the university parlors. The board of directors will receive the addresses from a broad and marble bust of St. Thomas Aquinais, presented by the Catholics of Great Britain and Ireland, at home. The inaugural address at 4 p.m. will conclude with "Veni Sancto Spiritus" by the inaugural choir, a prayer by Cardinal Gibbons, oration by Bishop Farrell, of Trenton, and a Latin oration by Prof. Schroder.

A BROKEN DAM.

ALTON, Dak., Nov. 13.—A terrible calamity occurred here at 4:30 this morning by the breaking of a mill dam at McLelland's flouring mills, a mile west of this village. Two lives were lost, six mill dams and four bridges carried away, many houses and buildings wrecked and thousands of dollars worth of property destroyed. The inhabitants of the village were awakened by the water rushing into the streets. They speedily sought places of safety, and many narrowly escaped with their lives. One old couple named Harris were carried away and drowned. The village presents a wrecked appearance to-day. The streets are washed into holes, the sidewalks torn up, and debris of all sorts is piled up in the roadway. Among the buildings destroyed were Dick's stave foundry, Alger's woolen mill, Ward's woolen mill and many dwellings. The dams at Meeks & McKinnon's mills and at Alger and Ward's mills were carried away. The railway bridge of the Canadian Pacific Railway was wrecked. The loss is not estimated, but it will reach away up in the thousands.

HANGED.

WOODBURY, N. J., Nov. 13.—Jos. Hilman was hanged in the jail here at 10:20 this morning for murdering a Jewish pedler, Herman Siedam, Nov. 9th, 1888, for the purpose of robbery, but only got $14.09. On the scoffold Hillman, although only 20 years old, exhibited unusual nerve, said: "My dear friends, all I have to say is that my wife had nothing to do with it; I am the only Hillman that did anything; I have forgiven all and hope to meet you in heaven." When the rope was cut the knot failed to slip, and the boy hung in mid air, struggled terribly, tried to speak and groaned. Hangman Vanheser released the body within six inches of the scaffold floor and adjusted the knot. After hanging thirty minutes the body was cut down and given to the undertakers.

STRANGE SHOOTING CASE.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 13.—Miss Amelia Stegner, the 19 year old daughter of ex-assistant city treasurer Stegner, was fatally shot last night by some one unknown. The young lady was standing in the doorway of her sister's house, on Stark street, watching the festivities of a wedding party across the way, when two pistol shots were heard and Miss Stegner dropped to the floor exclaiming "I am shot." She was removed to the hospital and remained unconscious until 9:15 this morning, when she died. A young man of the neighborhood named Charles T. Howard, known to carry a revolver and fire it recklessly, was arrested to-day.

A HAPPY BEGINNING.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Miss Eva Ingersoll, daughter of Col. Bob Ingersoll, was married at her father's residence this morning in the presence of her family only, to Walter H. Brook, a wealthy lawyer of this city. There was no religious ceremony.

A GREAT SCHEME.

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—The Canadian Pacific has invited the city council of Montreal to an excursion over the "Soo" line to St. Paul, Minn., and other large western cities. The object is to boom Montreal harbor, on which $5,000,000 is about to be expended in an endeavor to divert to the St. Lawrence and Lake route the trade which now goes via Boston, New York and Baltimore. The Canadian Pacific alleges that because of lack of facilities, 750,000 tons of freight which could have been handled here, had there been the facilities, which it is proposed to provide, went to Europe through American ports instead.

ALL'S FAIR IN WAR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—It became known to-day that there were twenty-five policemen in plain clothes at last night's anarchist meeting, and in the guise of reporters they took notes of Shevitch's speech. These notes are being transcribed to-day for Superintendent Murray, who says from what he learned of the speech it was more incendiary than John Most's, which caused his imprisonment. The notes will be sent also to the district attorney.

A MYSTERY OF THE SEA.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—A dispatch to the Maritime Exchange reports the towing of the schooner Annie G, to Yarmouth, bottom up. Her captain, J. B. McNeill, and crew of St. John, N. B., are supposed to have been lost. The schooner is owned in St. John, and sailed from New York on October 28th.

THE CHAIN OF EVIDENCE.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Hatfield identified the framework of the satchel in which Dr. Cronin's clothes were found as identical with one he sold J. B. Simons on the day of the murder. Mrs. Pauline testified that she saw a man resembling Dr. Cronin enter the Carlson cottage on the evening of May 4th.

THE CRONIN MURDER TRIAL.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—In the Cronin murder trial to-day, Mrs. Pauline Hoertel swore that she saw a man resembling Dr Cronin enter the Carlson cottage on the night of May 4th. Mrs. Hoertel's story was that she was passing the Carlson cottage between seven and eight o'clock in the evening of that day, when she saw two men in a buggy drive up to the cottage. One man got out and went up the steps. He knocked, the door was opened and he went in. The man was big and broad shouldered and carried something like a satchel; it might have been a surgeon's case. The horse that drew the buggy was white. When the man entered the door of the cottage it was closed immediately, and the witness heard sounds as though heavy blows were being dealt. There was a noise as of a great struggle, and witness stopped and heard some one cry, "Oh, my God." There were a few more noises as if some one was struggling and then all was still. The witness, an unsophisticated German woman, gave her evidence with so much simplicity and straightforwardness that nearly every one in the court room was impressed with the recital. Coughlin and Burke at first turned pale and then a look of blank despair settled over their faces. The witness went on to say that after passing the cottage she went round on Roscoe street where she saw a man standing between the cottage and another house in the shadow. This was near a real estate office, where another witness to come yet will testify that O'Sullivan was on watch while the assassins were at their bloody work.

Last Sunday he and a friend did the same thing at St. Barnaba's Episcopal church. One of the ushers struck Lovett in the face, and a member of the congregation, said to be the editor of the Dominion Churchman, snatched the tracts from his hands. There was a good deal of excitement during the next few minutes.

The Italian Government Will Punish the Moors Unless They Amply Apologize.

Fuller Particulars Regarding the Troubles of Dr. Peters' Expedition in Africa.

Edmund Yates Furnishes His Weekly Sop of English Gossip and Court News.

WANT AN APOLOGY.

PARIS, Nov. 13.—A special despatch from Rome to Figaro announces that an Italian cruiser with two torpedo boats has been despatched to Sal Jaries with an ultimatum to the Moorish authorities demanding satisfaction for the insult offered to the Marquis De Cambraggio. If this is not accorded within 48 hours the town will be bombarded.

MORE MONEY THAN SENSE.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—It is reported that Jem Smith and Jackson have been engaged to give a sparring exhibition at the Aquarium. A patron of the ring has offered a thousand pounds for Sullivan to box Jackson or any other man in England, twelve rounds.

EDMUND YATES' CABLE.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—All the stories about the betrothal of the czarewitch are the flimsiest fabrications. The emperor of Russia intends his eldest son to marry the Princess Hellene of Montenegro, a very beautiful and clever girl, who will be 17 next January.

A PRICELESS GIFT.

The sultan presented Emperor William with the famous sabre of Sultan Murad 4th, which originally belonged to Emperor Frederick of Hapsburg, who reigned during the early part of the 14th century. It is a cross-handled sword of great length, with the handle and sheath of silver superbly chased. The Damascus blade is engraved with German inscriptions and the imperial eagle is carved upon the handle. In the sixteenth century the sabre, which was an heir loom in the Hapsburg family, was given by Emperor Mathias to Count Hunyadi of that day, who was killed in battle fighting against the Turks, who captured the weapon. For more than three hundred years it has been a prominent object in the imperial armory of Constantinople.

A FAMILY SKELETON.

The queen was greatly annoyed a few months ago on the publication of the second volume of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg Gotha's memoirs, and found that her brother-in-law had printed without her permission a confidential letter which Prince Albert wrote to him when relations between the court and Lord Palmerston were seriously strained, in which his royal highness very sharply criticized the proceedings of the foreign secretary and referred to him altogether with asperity. The relations between Prince Albert and Lord Palmerston were subsequently so cordial that it was a great pity that this letter was published, but the duke probably remembers the peremptory manner in which Lord Palmerston was in the habit of dealing with the small states of Germany, of which his royal highness constituted himself champion, and was glad of the opportunity to recall the fact that the prince did not always express the confidence in Lord Palmerston which he professed during the last seven or eight years of his time. The queen is said to have protested vigorously against the publication of any more of Prince Albert's correspondence with his brother-in-law.

THE PETERS EXPEDITION.

LONDON, Nov 11.—A despatch from Zanzibar gives the substance of a report that Dr. Peters' expedition has met with disaster. The story is that a party of Somalis dispersed the German column, killing two Europeans and wounding another. The report was brought to Zanzibar by an Arab sheik. It is not generally credited there. Letters from Lieutenant Tiedemann have been received which give a graphic account of his quarrel with the natives during the ascent by Dr. Peters' expedition of the Tana river. The trouble occured while he was endeavouring to procure boats for transport purposes. The natives refused to sell and as the boats were indispensible Tiedemann tried to force the owners to dispose of them. The owners thereupon threatened Tiedemann with their javelins, and the Lieutenant was obliged to fire in self defence. The natives of several adjacent villages came to aid the assaulted villagers. The Germans being greatly outnumbered were forced to flee. They escaped their pursuers only by hiding in the banana groves in the darkness.

Columbia and Kootenay Railway.

To-day a party under Mr. D. A. Stewart, C.E., will start for Revelstoke to survey the route for the Columbia & Kootenay Railway. The proposed railway will run from Sproat's Landing to Nelson, and with steamboats on the Columbia river will form a connection via Revelstoke, between the Canadian Pacific Railway and a district which promises to become one of the richest mining camps in British Columbia. The C. P. R. Co. realizes the importance of opening up the mineral districts of the province by branch lines, which will draw the traffic to its main line and retain for the merchants of the cities of British Columbia a trade which though legitimately theirs would otherwise be diverted to the, at present, more accessible supply points on the other side of the boundary line.—News.

FALL ASSIZES.

Chief Justice Sir M. B. Begbie and Mr. Justice McCreight Presiding

Mr. Justice McCreight entered the court at 11:45 and was received with the usual honors.

The roll of the petit jurors and grand jurors was called, the latter jury being composed as follows: J. C. Armstrong, John Armstrong, John Austin, E. C. Britton, Hugh Burr, John Devine, T. Errington, T. W. Gray, D. B. Grant, H. Hoy, D. Johnson, E. H. King, J. A. Laidlaw, G. W. Weeks, A. C. Wells (foreman).

Following docket was presented:

John Ward, for house breaking and robbery at Vancouver,

Mike Brennan, for cutting and wounding at Yale.

Jim, an Indian, for murder at Vancouver.

John Rossiter, for larceny, at Vancouver.

Chu Chue, for cutting and wounding at Vancouver.

Ah Sing, for attempted murder at Chilliwack.

T. B. Spring, for larceny at Vancouver.

Bradley, for having stolen property in possession.

Martha Faber, for larceny at Vancouver.

H. Dominy, for wounding with intent.

Ching Chow, for larceny at Port Moody.

James Cavanagh, for sodomy at Westminster.

His lordship then reviewed the principal cases at length, and congratulated the grand jury on the fact that few of the cases were of a very serious nature. He explained that between 20 and 30 cases had been tried under the Speedy Trials Act, which showed that crime was not diminishing. On concluding his address his lordship announced that Chief Justice Begbie would preside over the present sitting of the court of assizes.

The grand jury retired and the court adjourned till 2 p. m.

Promptly at 2. p. m. Chief Justice Sir Matthew B. Begbie and Mr. Justice McCreight took the bench, and the clerk announced that the grand jury had returned a true bill in the case of Regina vs. Ward, for robbery. The prisoner John Ward, pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Davie, for the crown, said he regretted that the principal witness had left the country, and he thought the only course for the crown was to enter a nolle prosequi. The prisoner was discharged.

Regina vs. John Bradley, for larceny, was called and the prisoner pleaded not guilty.

His Lordship Chief Justice Begbie informed the prisoner of his privilege of challenging any of the petit jury whom he thought prejudiced, but Bradley did not take advantage of the same. One of the jurors "affirmed," and after some discussion and assuring his lordship that he believed all the bible contained, kissed the book like the others.

Mr. T. Davie and Mr. St. George Hammersley appeared for the crown. Mr. Hammersley addressed the jury and briefly recapitulated the charge describing the various items of circumstantial evidence against the prisoner as has been reported in these columns when the case appeared in the police court some days ago.

M. J. W. Harvey, sworn, said he was manager of Ellard & Co's. drygoods establishment, and had missed some goods on the 31st of Oct. The mark had been removed from the piece of black goods and it could only be recognized by the patterns.

H. Gordon, next called, is employed at Ellard & Co's and missed three pieces of goods from the door, and believed the piece produced in court was one of those stolen.

The chief of police was next called and told what he had done towards the arrest of the prisoner.

The prisoner asked the witness if it was not his duty to arrest suspicious characters; the chief said it was. "Then why didn't you arrest me when you saw me loitering around that door?"

"Because I could get a better opportunity later."

Officer Carty, called, described the arrest of the prisoner; the witness said he had seen prisoner going down into the swamp, and as only hard characters went there he followed him.

His lordship, "Only hard characters go down there?"

"Yes sir."

"Oh ho, and so you went there too." (Laughter).

Constable Smith next took the stand and showed that he had found a piece of cloth in the stove in the main cell of the lock-up, occupied by prisoner. This piece was found to match the main piece and there had been no other prisoner in the cell between the first and second arrest of Bradley.

Mary Monterey next occupied the box; she remembered the prisoner, and he had offered her the goods produced in court at a very low price; but she was afraid to buy it.

W. Moreaby, next on the stand, related what he had done towards the arrest of the prisoner and the recovery of the goods.

The prisoner said all he had to say was that he knew nothing whatever about that piece of cloth until it was shown him by the officer.

His lordship summed up briefly the case from beginning to end. He traced the crime from its commission, and said that Mr. Moreaby had shown a degree of intelligence not often found in a white man, as the noticing of the rotten wood on the prisoner's shoulder might only have claimed the attention of an Indian hunter. The goods were also found in contiguity to the prisoner, and if he was not guilty he was a very unfortunate man.

The jury then retired and returned with a verdict of guilty at 3:55. The prisoner when asked if he had anything to say, said he was not guilty. His lordship said he was surprised to hear him say so, as he was as certain he had stolen those goods as if he had seen him do it. He was setting the court and jury at defiance. His lordship could give him seven years for this and asked him to own up, or he would be compelled to deal severely with him. His lordship humorously commented on the loss to society in the person of Bradley, and then sentenced him to one year at hard labor.

M. Cavanagh, for sodomy, pleaded not guilty, and a jury was sworn.

Case was proceeding as we go to press.

THE Victoria Times is very much exercised, or affects to be, over the fact that both the Westminster candidates for the vacant seat in the local house are government men. As usual when our cotemporary undertakes to write on provincial politics, it throws judgment, sound sense, reason and logic to the winds and goes on a wild and hysteric rampage, insanely battering its muddled head-piece against no end of stone walls, to its own injury merely, and to the no little amusement of the spectators. The particular article to which we refer appears in the Times of Monday, and is the very worst of all the "bad breaks" which that misguided journal has made on the subject which stands for its monomania. In making this statement we do not even except "An Analogy," on which our "wretched" cotemporary got so badly thrown several "moons" since. In the article immediately under discussion, the Times begins badly to commence with. It takes its text from the Truth (save the mark). Very little is expected of that paper, but the Times should have some respect for itself and not descend to poking in an ash-barrel for tid-bits to suit its evidently depraved taste. The quotation from the local morning paper, basely charging this community with selling itself to the government, because no opposition candidate is forthcoming, and which our Victoria cotemporary rolls as a sweet morel under its tongue, constitutes not the first reviling and grossly libelous charge which the "ill bird" that roosts on Church st. has laid against its own constituency.

Having secured a text to its liking, the Times goes on to "'spound and 'splain" in this fashion (it will only be necessary to quote a sentence here and there): "New Westminster city has for years been a pronounced opposition constituency, and there is no reason to believe that the views of the people have undergone a change since they pronounced unanimously against the government. The late representative, Judge Bole, was always an uncompromising opponent of the "Honest" John party;.....the qualification which pre-eminently fitted him in the eyes of the New Westminster electors was his pronounced hostility to Robsonianism. His denunciations of the truculency of the present premier, and his abhorrence of political shams, procured him his election by acclamation to the legislature. The New Westminster of years ago is the New Westminster of to-day" (The italics and exclamation are ours.) "The sentiment of the voting population has not changed, although, apparently, some change has come over the public spirit by which they claim to be always actuated.....They are now discussing the qualifications of two candidates — Messrs. Cunningham and Corbould—both having declared their intention of according the Robson government a 'generous support.' No pronounced opposition candidate has come forward.....From a superficial glance at the situation, it would appear as though New Westminster, regreting its former opposition, had suddenly determined to transfer its allegiance to the government.....But is only in 'appearance,' as there has been no real, no bona fide conversion. On top of the altar which has been erected is a golden calf, and behind it in miniature a court house is clearly seen through the incense offered by the worshippers.....We will have to inquire into the cause," etc. After setting our flustered cotemporary right on some of the statements quoted above, we will furnish it a little food for quiet reflection as to the cause, etc., into which it innocently proposes to enquire in the next breath after blurting out its rashly impudent and calumnious statement of the cause. It is true that Westminster has been an opposition constituency for the last three years in the sense that it has been represented by a "pronounced" opposition member. The constituency, however, was never as "pronounced" as its representative by a good margin, and it is worth noting that Mr. Bole's immediate predecessor, Mr. James Cunningham, was a supporter of the Smithe-Robson government, which Mr. Bole, by his "native Irish wit and admitted talent for public life," that the Times admires, and, we might add, by his personal popularity and irresistible address, managed to get himself elected to oppose—but not by acclamation, as the Times asserts, with its usual fastidious truthfulness when discussing local politics. The statement "that the New Westminster of years ago is the New Westminster of to-day," is so glaringly absurd on the face of it, and so manifestly opposed to the notorious facts of the case, viewed in whatever respect, that it does not even require denial. A simple comparison of the voting power of this city now with what it was three years ago is sufficient to make the Times statement appear absolutely idiotic. The register then showed about 450; now there are a round 1000 on the roll.

The Times says "the sentiment of the voting population has not changed." Well it has, and it hasn't. In the first place, no such change was required as our cotemporary affects to marvel at. The divergence of sentiment between this constituency and its late representative had, with due deference to Mr. (now Judge) Bole, got to be quite "pronounced" before that gentleman resigned his seat. Then, as we have already shown, the voting population itself has greatly changed. New blood has come in, that takes no account of old personal prejudices, but sensibly judges both government and opposition on their respective and comparative merits. If any more reasons are required for what has been a most natural and reasonable, and by no means the sudden or violent, change which the Times so hysterically notes in this constituency, that journal will find it in the farcical "opposition" itself.

LOUIS the eleventh, it is said, made good political use of his barber, and history repeats itself in the election of M. Lachize, the new French deputy for the second circumscription of Ville-Franche. This tonsorial artist, it is said, speaks as well as he shaves, and quite recently was the leader of a strike among the hair dressers of Paris.

It is very interesting to note that another barber, Jacob Ochs (who by the way is an American), contrary to the usual custom of his confreres, does not believe that, once the hair leaves a man's cranium, it can ever be restored. Most of those who have the misfortune to show a white patch when they take off their hats know to their sorrow the insinuating overtures made by the average barber with a view to selling his particular specific for securing a fine new crop of nature's covering. There was once a man who vowed he could make hair sprout from a paving stone, but whether he succeeded in so doing is problematical. Rosemary, bay-rum, castor oil and whiskey (outward application only) have all been declared infallible remedies for the defect which even Cæsar, great as he was, had to put up with, but, so far as we know, bold-headed men remain so to the end of the chapter in spite of the fact that most of them deluge themselves at various times with washes and decoctions which, in moments of weakness, they are prevailed upon to squander their loose cash in.

The fact seems to be that we are entering upon a new development of the Darwinian theory. We all know that when the lower species of animal life finds no use for some particular portion of its being, gradually that part of itself grows beautifully less until, in the course of ages (a mere trifle to the through-going Darwinian), the part which is of no account ceases to be. Thus, those of us who are bald-headed may console ourselves with the thought that, perhaps, we are the higher developed mortals after all, in spite of the fact that the vulgar multitude as a general thing treat the bald-headed man with a certain lack of respect due, no doubt, to a want of scientific knowledge. Whether this be a correct view of the matter or not, it is a sure thing that bald-headedness is on the increase and it is equally certain that man in his vanity spares no effort to restore the downy locks, going to the length sometimes of douning a wig.

A young man, taunted with the fact that he could not grow a moustache, met the ill-natured remark by saying that he had a habit of biting off the roots inside. This may or may not have been true, we leave our readers to decide, but such an excuse for bald-headedness could hardly hold good, and, therefore, we are forced to the conclusion, if we are to retain a vestige of proper pride, that what at first appears to be a defect is in reality nothing more serious than the gradual shedding of superfluous matter in accordance with the development of species.

There are 25,000 Mormons in Idaho, and it seems as though they are going to stand between the balance of the people and self-government, for Idaho badly wishes to be a state and knows that the presence of these people will prejudice congress against her admission. But how to get rid of them is a worrisome question.—Am. paper.

Many things are reversed in Australia. It is summer there while it is winter in America. Trees shed their bark instead of their leaves; fruit has the stone or kernel outside; swans are black; there is a species of fly that kills and eats the spider, and a fish called the climbing perch walks deliberately out of the water and, with the aid of its fins, climbs the adjacent trees after the insects that infests them.—Ex.

Regarding the schoolboy strike in England and Scotland, London Youth says: What the working-class parents ought to do, is to go in boldly for making the "half-time" system universal. They will never have a better opportunity than they have now. With the half-time system established, the Education Acts will become what they were intended to be, a blessing, instead of what they now in practice are proved to be, a grevious curse to the poor. With the half-time system, the parents get some comfort and use of his boy, and the boy gets some use of his legs and arms and lungs, and some chance of growing up into a healthy man and a useful citizen. Three hours a day are as much time as a boy why will have to live by bodily labor, and who therefore wants some sort of a body to work with, can afford to spend shut up in school.

Election Address.

To the Electors of New Westminster City:

GENTLEMEN:—As you are aware, I have, in reply to a very influentially signed requisition, come forward as a candidate for the representation of this city in the Legislature of the Province, and now beg most respectfully to solicit the vote and influence of every elector.

As New Westminster is the natural centre and distributing point of the district, it will be the duty of your representative to assist in every way within his power the efforts of the district members to secure the construction of the many public works, especially roads and bridges, which the great and growing importance of the district makes necessary. In this connection I would specially mention the roads needed to connect us with the North Arm and Maple Ridge settlements, and as I intend heartily to support and hope to work cordially with the Government, I trust that, if elected, I shall be able to render important services in this direction.

Within our own constituency several important matters in the same line will demand the special attention of your representative. A court house of the size and style suitable to the dimensions which our city will certainly attain in the near future must be erected during the coming year, and it will, in my opinion, be the duty of the Government to assist liberally by subsidy in the construction of the free traffic bridge which must shortly connect us with the southern bank of the Fraser, as that bridge is certainly a work of provincial and not merely of local importance.

But the most important question is one of a different nature, and one, happily, in the treatment of which your representative will be largely favored by circumstances—I allude to the redistribution of seats. The time has fully come when that question should be dealt with in a broad and general way. In any such rearrangement, representation by population must be made the basis of re-adjustment. It will be the duty of your representative to see that this city is given its full rights in this matter, and as the settlement of this question will affect our interests for years to come, I pledge myself, if elected, to spare no effort to secure full justice to both city and district in this respect.

Should a division of the British Columbia Agricultural Association take place, it will be the duty of your representative to see that there is no reduction in the grant made to the association in aid of the Exhibition in this city; indeed, looking to the growing importance of the exhibitions, the Government should give favorable consideration to the question of increasing that grant.

The Government should, in my opinion, deed to the city all public lands within its limits not actually required for the use of the Government.

As the representative of a growing and progressive city, it would be my endeavor to watch every opportunity of attracting to New Westminster new industries and new means for the development of wealth; and to obtain for such any necessary assistance from the Government.

As this is the closing session of the present parliament, I need not detail my views as to general legislation; but there is one point which demands immediate attention. An act should be passed conferring upon every citizen the right to bring suit against the Government. As the law now stands the consent of the Government must be obtained before any such action can be brought and this confers upon the Government power that they should not possess.

With this brief expression of my views, and again soliciting your support, I am gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,
GORDON E. CORBOULD.

COLORADO CANYON.

An Account of Its Dangers and Its Unique Grandeurs.

Some Interesting Facts Furnished by Major Powell, the Only Man Who Ever Explored It—The Ill-Fated Brown Expedition.

The account of the attempt by Frank M. Brown to survey the Colorado river to as certain the feasibility of a railroad between its high banks, and the end of the enterprise in the death of Brown and two members of his party in the canyon, induced me, says a New York Tribune correspondent, to make some inquiries of Major J. W. Powell, director of the Geological Survey, the only man whose parties have ever succeeded in traversing the deadly gorge.

Asked why Brown failed Major Powell answered:

"For the same reason I think the other parties have always failed. He underestimated the perils to be encountered. The Colorado Canyon, to speak of many canyons as one, is unique. There is nothing else like it in the world; none but itself can be its parallel, and so it is difficult for the imagination to foresee and appreciate its furious whirlpools, dangerous rapids and tremendous abysses. I think that Brown failed to comprehend the significant fact that nothing can get through the Colorado Canyon that can not float. Boats are repeatedly upset and inferior boats are mashed like eggshells."

"Did you know Mr. Brown?"

"Yes, somewhat. Last winter I received letters from various persons interested in locating a railroad route down the Colorado river. It was believed that a water grade for a railroad could be found, and that thus the vast coal-fields of Utah and Colorado could be connected with tide-water in the Gulf of California—a most desirable thing to accomplish. The president of the Denver company, Mr. Brown, finally visited Washington and called upon me and made inquiries about the best method of making the survey. He seemed courageous and judicious. But in my judgment the plan was quite impracticable, and I told him so and fully stated to him my reasons for such a conclusion."

"What were the reasons?"

"They can not be repeated in limits more brief than a magazine article furnishes. But I can outline them in a word. No railroad can run along the rocks at the top of the canyon, because the whole region is a labyrinth of stupendous lateral gorges from half a mile to a mile deep and running back from the Colorado for many miles on both sides, and no engineering known to man can bridge them. In the main canyon the river often rises forty to sixty feet, so that the road-bed would have to hang upon the sides of the cliff, which much of the way is perpendicular. The floods here surpass in size and suddenness any others on the globe."

"Was Brown's party overwhelmed in the most difficult part of the descent?"

"Oh, no, by no means. Brown had just begun to encounter the real difficulties when he met with disaster in Marble Canyon. It is a bad place, but he had not yet reached the most dangerous portion of the river. He had descended less than six hundred feet, while the fall of the Colorado below was more than two thousand feet."

"Was the boat a suitable one?

"I would not have gone in it, by any means. I was anxious about it even before he started. It did not seem to me adapted to canyon waters. It seemed too flat-bottomed, and must have been at the mercy of the swirling currents."

Major Powell was asked about the stories that various parties had succeeded in descending the Grand Canyon at different times and answered:

"Nobody has ever successfully traversed the Colorado Canyon but my parties. The story that a raft once lived to get through is preposterous and was long since exploded. Invariably all attempts have been suspended or have met with disaster. The boat to go down the Colorado Canyon must be sturdily built on a pattern which experience has proved the strongest and should have three air-tight compartments; the men should wear life-preservers at all places of danger, and all tools, clothing and rations should be carried in air-tight ocean mail sacks, so that they will float. If these conditions are fulfilled, if the boats are tough enough, and the men at once plucky, intelligent and prudent enough, and at the maximum of their health and strength, the canyon may yet be run again."

I could not forbear saying: "You do not seem to have been quite up to this mark, for you first attacked the canyon long after you had lost an arm at Shiloh."

Major Powell smiled whimsically and said: "I was lucky."

COLLECTING CORKS.

The Hobby in Which a Physician Interested an Indolent Patient.

The queerest hobby on record is that in which Dr. Hammond interested an indolent patient in order to occupy his mind.

"A man came to me," said the doctor to a Washington Post reporter, "who was suffering very severely from having nothing to do. He came to me bewailing his state of mind. 'I have nothing to interest me in life,' he complained. 'I have an abundance of means, and my money is so invested that I have nothing to do but cut the coupons off my bonds, and there is no trouble to take care of it. I have nothing in the world to interest me or to occupy my time. I have been gradually becoming low-spirited and melancholy, and I shun society. If you can give me something to live for I will be greatly indebted to you.'

I said: 'Collect bottle corks,' and he took to the suggestion at once, and now owns the most wonderful collection of corks of anybody in the world probably. He classifies the corks according to the character of liquor their bottles contained and the countries from which they came. He has become a marvelous expert and his collection deserves to be exhibited in the National museum. He will pick up a cork in the street and at once tell that it came from a bottle containing such and such wine and from such and such country. He carries on his specialty as does a postage-stamp collector.

"Of course that man's mind can not be of a very high order to be satisfied with doing nothing but collect bottle-corks, but the occupation is sufficient for him. What he has accomplished, however, is really remarkable, and he has the satisfaction of knowing that he knows more about this one of study than any other living man."

Charles Dickens as an Editor.

Dickens is most thought of as a novelist, but his career as editor, if less dwelt upon, was hardly less distinguished in his service, first to Household Words and then to All the Year Round. Except during his brief connection with the Daily News, he was never the editor of a daily journal, but in the record, which his son furnishes in the English Illustrated Magazine, of his methods of editing a weekly journal and of dealing with his contributors, it is found that Dickens set up the highest standard possible, and brought all of his indomitable energy and capacity for taking pains into the service of the weekly magazine. He was the model editor in his chosen field, exacting but considerate, and if his correspondence with all contributors was as kindly as it was with the American lady whose contributions he took in hand and commented on, his relations to his co-laborers must have been choice illustrations of his kindness of heart and of the conscientious discharge of his relations to others.

A good story is being told about town of an old gentleman who has lived for years at one of the Stamford hotels with his family. Several years ago his eldest daughter, who was married, died. After a suitable time the bereaved widower asked for the hand of the next daughter. Not long afterward he was left alone again, and again he sought for the hand of the third daughter of his old friend. At last, when he came for the fourth, the old man exclaimed: "Yes, take her; but, hang it all, when she's gone what'll you do? You can't have the old woman, too."

CONTEMPT OF COURT.

How the Offense Was Punished by a Georgia Justice of the Peace.

"I stopped at an out-of-the-way cabin in Georgia," said a tourist to the Arkansaw Traveler, "to git a drink of water I noticed a number of men in short sleeves and wearing bed-tick suspenders, sitting under a tree. They were gathered about a pine table upon which I noticed several volumes of patent-office reports. I did not know that the assembly was one of solemn ceremony until I asked for a drink of water. Then a gaunt man with a long neck and eyes that wore an expression of dead set looked up and said:

"'Air you from sich a uncivilized country that you don't know how to behave yourself when court is in session?'

"'Excuse me,' I answered, 'I did not know that this was a court.'

"'But it is, sah, and I want you to understand it. You have come up here an' throwd a chunk under the wheels of jestice. A man is drawd up here on trial fur his life.'

"'You don't mean to say that this is a court of such serious jurisdiction?'

"'Yes, I do mean to say it and if you even hint that I don't I'll send you to jail for contempt.'

"'Pardon me; I do not mean to be offensive.'

"'Good thing you don't, I'll tell you that.'

"'May I ask why you are trying this man?'

"'Yes; he stole a set of plow gear.'

"'But is that a capital offense?'

"'I don't know what sort of offense you call a capital, but when a man steals gear in this community why that settles it with him.'

"'Pardon me, but that isn't law.'

"'Mout not be in a uncivilized community, but it is here.'

"'Are you a circuit judge?'

"'Worse than that; I am jestice of the peace.'

"'But under the law you have no authority to sentence a man to death.'

"'Ha, you dispute my authority! Mr. Constable, arrest this man.'

"A man stepped forward and placed his hand on my shoulder. 'You are under arrest,' said he. 'Try to git away, and I'll hurt you.'"

"I saw, by the determined faces about me, that I was in a serious predicament. 'Gentlemen,' said I, 'you surely would not harm an innocent man. You—'

"'That's enough,' the judge broke in. 'You have come along here and have tried to overthrow our local self-government. Secession was a grave offense, but nothing as compared to this. You have committed treason. Mr. Constable, have you got a rope?'

"I began to beg. I told them that I was their friend. I said I would do any thing for them.

"'I am inclined to excuse your ignorance,' said the judge, 'but what assurance can you give us—what proof that you respect our local rights, generously granted to us by the constitution of the United States?'

"'Gentlemen, I have nothing but good will. I—'

"'What have you got in your saddlebags?'

"'Nothing but two quarts of whisky that I bought for medicinal purposes.'

"'Bring it and give it to us as a pledge of good faith.'

"I did so and as I rode away I congratulated myself upon my escape. Shortly afterwards, upon arriving at a village, I told the story of my adventure. The crowd in the post-office laughed. 'That is a favorite joke of those fellows,' a man remarked. 'They never fail to get a stranger's whisky.'"

FAREWELL SPECIALIST.

How a Melancholy Loafer Makes Himself Useful to Busy Men.

The other morning, says Puck, as the departing Cunard steamship was casting off its lines and swinging out into the stream, an elderly-looking business man hastily embraced a lady who was one of the passengers and rushed down the gang-plank to the wharf.

Going hurriedly up to a melancholy loafer who was watching the busy crowd, the gentleman drew him behind a pile of freight and said:

"Want to earn a dollar?"

"You bet."

"You see that lady in black on the bridge there?" said the citizen.

"Cert."

"Well, that's my wife, going to Europe. Now, of course, she'll expect me to stand here for the next twenty minutes, while the steamship is backing and filling around, so as to wave my handkerchief and watch her out of sight. See?"

"I ketch on, boss."

"Well, I'm too busy to fool around here; stock to buy, biz to attend to. She's a little near-sighted; so I'll just hire you to wave this handkerchief instead. It's a big one with a red border, and as long as he sees it she'll think it's me. Come up to 202 Wall street when they are well off and I'll pay you."

"S'posin' she looks through a telescope or suthin'?"

"In that case you'll have to bury your face in the handkerchief and do the great weep act."

"That'll be fifty cents extra."

"All right. Time is money. Look sharp now! You can kiss your hands a few times at, say, one dime per kiss," and snapping his watch the over-driven business man rushed off.

We print this affecting little incident to call attention to the fact that the man thus employed has gone into the business regularly. He is now a professional fareweller, and business men and others can save valuable time and yet give their departing relatives an enthusiastic send-off by applying to the above specialist any steamship day. Go early to avoid the rush.

How a Little Monkey Took the Conceit Out of a Prize-Fighter.

In the old St. Louis museum we had, among other attractions, a baboon called Dick, says a writer in the New York Sun. He was a solid chunk of a fellow, good-tempered and a great favorite. He had one peculiarity, though, which we had to cater to. He took short naps twice a day, and if aroused before his time he was as ugly as sin all the rest of the day. We had him dressed up as a little boy, and when the time came to take his nap he crept into an old-fashioned cradle and the fat woman generally rocked him to sleep. That very thing was quite a draw, and plenty of people came in solely to see the baboon rocked off to slumber.

One day, soon after Dick had closed his eyes, a half-drunken chap entered the place and created considerable disturbance. He went by the name of Awful Pete and was a hard slugger. I tried to reason with him and get him out, but he unfortunately caught sight of the sleeping baboon and at once demanded that the animal be aroused and put through his tricks. I sought to explain, but he wouldn't have it, saying:

"I paid to see the bab, and I'm going to see him or bust the biler!"

"But if you wake him he'll fight."

"Then I'll wring his neck!"

Before I could stop him he dodged under the rope and lifted Dick out of the cradle. The animal woke up and took in the situation in about the tenth part of a second, and then he fastened his hands into Pete's hair, got a grip with his teeth on the slugger's nose, and we had a museum, menagerie and circus combined for the next five minutes. Pete roared and whooped and pranced around in pain and terror, and the bab pulled handfuls of hair from his head, and bit and scratched like a wildcat. When we finally got him off that slugger was a sight to behold, and had to be taken to the hospital at once. Two hours after he had had his wounds dressed I went to see him, and as soon as I spoke to him he began crying and asked:

"Was it a baboon which did this?"

"Yes."

"Big as a lion?"

"Oh, no. He weighs about twenty-six pounds. Why do you weep?"

"Hadn't I orter weep?" he savagely demanded, as the tears came afresh. "I've had thirteen fights and knocked my man out every time, and now to be downed by a weazen-faced monkey in one round has broke me all up."

There was quite a heavy frost last night but not sufficiently penetrating to injure garden flowers.

The lacrosse club meeting to-morrow night is a very important one, and every member is expected to be present.

The morning train from Vancouver to-day had an unusually heavy load of passengers, many of whom attended the assizes.

Bag-in hunters will do well to look through W. & G. Wolfenden's stock of Dry Goods, Hats and Clothing, now clearing at cost. *to

THE COLUMBIAN is indebted to Dr. DeWolf Smith for a complete list of the physicians entitled to practice in this province.

Mr L. P. Eckstein held a court of revision of the Dominion voters list at Vancouver on Monday and at Moodyville yesterday.

The Falcon arrived late last night from Nanaimo with a scow load of coal for James Wise. The coal is being unloaded at Mathers & Milligan's wharf.

The week of prayer at the Y.M.C.A. rooms has so far been a great success. Large numbers of young men have attended every evening, and displayed great fervor and attention.

Vancouver shows a brilliant record on the assize docket. Out of the twelve cases to be tried seven come from Vancouver, while the remaining five are scattered over the district.

A so called palmist is in the city and pretends to unravel anybody's past and tell the future. Palmistry is not a common handicraft, and the professors of it are both handy and crafty.

Sixty head of cattle arrived from Kamloops and the Nicola valley last night and were unloaded at the C.P.N. stock yards. They are fine beef [illegible] and up to the average from the N[illegible]

[illegible] cattle [illegible] quality received [illegible] ranches.

A rousing meeting of Mr. Cunningham's supporters was held last night, at which reports were received showing that the canvass is progressing favorably. A general committee of fifty members was appointed and the work of organization fully completed.

The str. Dunsmuir left this morning for Nanaimo with a much mixed cargo, consisting of 20 head of cattle, 100 boxes of apples and a large crowd of salvation army soldiers. The latter held a prayer meeting on the wharf before the departure of the steamer.

Quite a batch of campaign communications appears in this paper to-day. The interest in the contest is increasing, and letter-writers evidently know where to put their communications to have them read. Our columns are open for short communications on all questions of public interest.

Residents of Sapperton would like to know why the extension to the Sapperton sidewalk, from the penitentiary to the new hospital, is not being constructed with more show of progress. The material has been on the ground for some time and is being scattered all over the road, with a possibility of some of it getting lost, to say nothing of obstructing the highway. The matter will stand looking into, and it is to be hoped construction will be pushed at once.

Gold Dredging.

Mr. Oliver, the assistant manager of the Fraser River Gold Dredging Co., is now located at Yale awaiting the arrival of the dredging machinery which is expected next week. Timber is being taken out for rafts and booms to be used in connection with the dredging operations, and it is expected that all will be in readiness for a start before the end of the year. It is not likely, however, that operations on an extensive scale will be commenced until spring opens.

W. C. T. U. Convention.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union annual convention will hold its meetings in the Baptist church in this city on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. The daily sessions will be from 9:30 a. m. till 12 noon, and from 1:30 to 4:30 p. m. On Wednesday evening, at the Baptist church, a social will be held, and to which all friends of the cause are invited. On Thursday a union prayer meeting will be held at the Presbyterian church at 8 p. m., and on Friday there will be a mass meeting in the Methodist church when addresses will be given by prominent speakers and a programme of music rendered by the best local talent.

Tacoma Saloons Win.

The $1,000 license on saloons recently passed by the council of Tacoma, has been vetoed by the mayor, who in support of his actions said: "I cannot give my expression or approval to any ordinance that seems to me unjust. I believe it to be my duty as a public officer to do what I can to prevent the passage of any law which seems to be an injustice, and I believe this $1,000 ordinance to be an injustice, and when a law is unjust it becomes tyrannical."

The Anniversary Social.

To-night, at the opera house, the congregation of Holy Trinity church will assemble to do honor to His Lordship Bishop Sillitoe, the occasion being the tenth anniversary of his consecration as bishop. The Church Workers, who have had the arrangements for the reception and social in hand, report every detail complete. The programme will be commenced sharp at 8 o'clock, and it is hoped that the congregation will be in the opera house before that hour so that the opening speeches may not be interrupted.

A Silly Joke.

Last night about eleven o'clock many people were alarmed by the ringing of the school bell. The misguided boy or imbecile man who perpetrated the joke gave an imitation of the fire-bell and kept it up for a few seconds. Fortunately for him the crowd could not get hold of the funny fellow, as they had a good joke to tell him which might have injured his health. The school bell hangs where any ill-disposed person can get at it, and this is not the first time that citizens have been annoyed by the pranks of boys and others with it.

Siwash Creek.

The latest reports from Siwash creek, near Yale, are to the effect that a miner named Dunn struck a 15 oz. nugget last week. This reported find is not credited by those who know the creek. Work is being shut down for the winter, and the miners are returning to Yale and the coast. Many claims that were worked for all they were worth during the past summer will be abandoned to the next enterprising prospector who may fondly imagine the yellow dust mingles thick with Siwash sands. On the whole, mining on Siwash creek has proved a failure, and the rush that was made to it last spring is not likely to be repeated.

Alaska Boundary.

Mr. Otto J. Klotz, D. L. S., of the interior department, has returned to Ottawa from his visit to Alaska. He brings important data for the government, which will greatly facilitate the interpretation by the Dominion cabinet of the boundary as laid down by existing treaties. Mr. Klotz's work this year had no connection with the work done by Mr. Wm. Ogilvie, on the Yukon. Speaking of the Alaska boundary, Mr. Klotz stated that there was nothing, of course, definitely arranged about it, but the United States had a survey up there this year. There were several United States surveys working from Mexico to Alaska, coast and geodetic surveys. Mr. Klotz is interested in the agitation going on for a triangular or geodetic survey of the Dominion on somewhat similar lines to that going on for many years in the states.

The March of Civilization.

The bar-tender in a well-known aristocratic bar was indulging in a reverie this morning, soaring off into the realms of Brownstudy, when a diminutive, shrivelled, yellow, cock-eyed son of the Flowery Kingdom, shuffled [illegible] the bar-room; placing his [illegible] nickel-plated [illegible] away [illegible] into [illegible] toot on the [illegible] footrod, and throwing [illegible] the stump of his fragrant Havana, he said, "I'll take a pousse cafe, if you please, mister," in perfectly good English. The bar-tender is a hale and stalwart man, but he grasped for breath and clutched his vest in the region of the heart, while his eyes bulged out like porcelain door handles. "To what?" he stammered. "I take a pousse-cafe, if you please," retorted his celestialship rather warmly. "Oh! lor, if this ain't the advance of civilization, I don't want a cent," murmured the striken Caucasian as he jerked the liquors around in a lively style and set the expensive gum-tickler in front of the ravished Mongolian, who stumped up the two bits like a little man, and whisked off his liquor with the air of a veteran swigger.

Police Court Notes.

Fred. Puller pleaded guilty this morning in the police court to the charge of having stolen four dollars from Joseph Hawks, a logger, at the Merchant's hotel saloon yesterday. Prisoner explained that he took the money with no felonious intention, but he was going to return it. His honor thought this was a pretty steep yarn and said it would not go down. Hawks had been treating, and his honor said that loggers like sailors when they have been away from town a long time generally get pretty well "corned" when they pay a visit to civilization. Hawks was asked to give his evidence and as he stepped forward his honor remarked. "Why, Hawks you look as if you had lost your head." "Beg yer pardon yer warship," hastily queried the plaintiff, "I say, you look as if you hadn't come to town to attend a revival meeting." "Well I guess not" rejoined Hawks amid the smiles of the court. Hawks, in his evidence, admitted that he had been as he had expressed it, "pretty well gined up." He could not tell how he got into company with Puller but he knew he had to stand all his drinks. His honor advised Hawks to be a little more exclusive in his society. Puller, who is a little four foot high Englishman, gave an amusing account of how he came to meet Hawks. His story was, however, deemed too flimsy and he was sentenced to four months at hard labor. Puller was lately arrested on a charge of vagrancy, but left town on being released. His honor was in doubt whether to send Puller up to the assizes, but after some consideration allowed the first sentence of four months to take effect.

Duly Incorporated.

On Friday last the five trustees appointed at Thursday night's meeting to incorporate the B. C. Agricultural Society engaged legal assistance and proceeded with the work, with the result that on Saturday the organization was duly incorporated under the name of the B. C. Agricultural Association. Notwithstanding the remarks of a New Westminster paper, this is the only incorporated B. C. Agricultural Association in the province.—Times.

Sir M. B. Begbie and Mr. Theodore Davie, attorney-general, are at the Queen's Hotel.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Misunderstood.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN: Sir—Mr. Cunnigham came to our store and presented a book signed by my father; and I being busy at the time signed it without reading it. I did not authorize Mr. Cunningham to use it as he did, nor did I know that Messrs. Major and Gamble were mentioned in the book. When these gentlemen asked me to sign for Mr. Corbould they did not mention Mr. Cunningham's name. WM. MCRAE, Jr.

Schemes.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—Sir:—Can you tell me if Mr. Tom Cunningham really expects people to believe what he says about the "schemes" and "designs" for the injury, of New Westminster entertained by men like Corbould and Major, who have twice as much at stake in New Westminster as he has? Cunningham's own supporters will laugh and say "Oh, the new comers, who don't know the men, will think there is something in it!" And yet the men who thus acknowledge that Cunningham is printing deliberate falsehoods to catch votes, will keep on supporting him. R. L.

Mr. Greer's Candidate.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—Sir: In your issue of last night "Observer" strings out a woful wail against the election of Ald. Cunningham, if for no other reason than that he is supported by the great Samuel Greer. If Samuel Greer shoves himself forward unasked, and where he is not wanted, it can be no fault of Mr. Cunningham's but so far as I can learn the great Indian lands owner is not so much in favor of Mr. Cunningham as he is bitterly opposed to Mr. Corbould, who, with the Hon. John Robson, it is said, owns 100 acres of land adjoining Greer's property, and which will prove immensely valuable if Greer can be ousted and possession gained by the C. P. R. so that the company can begin its long deferred operations on English Bay. By the way, Mr. Editor, how strange it is that none but Mr. Corbould's supporters can see opposition to the government in Mr. Cunningham's candidacy? And again, Mr. Editor, how exceedingly strange it is that the leading supporters of Mr. Corbould were nearly all bitter opposionists six months ago. Truly time brings great changes, so great that even the political leopards of the royal city can change their spots with the same ease and freedom that they would their socks. ANTI-BOSH.

Another from Mr. Major.

EDITOR COLUMBIAN—Sir:—Although Mr. Cunningham has evaded the point at issue between us, a reply to his letter in your last night's paper seems necessary.

His oily gammon about consideration for the governor-general, and so forth, is introduced to cover the real reason of his delay, which was two-fold. In the first place, he wanted to wait until [illegible] had lost sight to a [illegible] real point [illegible] the public [illegible] certain extent of the [illegible] at issue; and, in the second place, he wanted to go around town and hunt up something which could be used as evidence.

Let us briefly refer to his witnesses. In canvassing Mr. W. E. Townsend, I told him distinctly that I asked him to sign for Mr. Corbould as an opponent of Mr. Cunningham. The Messrs. McRae had signed a requisition to the late Mr. Dickinson, and we told them that he had withdrawn in Mr. Corbould's favor. To Mr. Gilley, I said, as well as I can remember, not one word about the matter. He came along when some others were signing, and I believe Mr. Gamble called him and showed him the requisition, which he signed. It is possible that he may have so far misunderstood some fragment of the talk going on as to believe himself justified in making the noncommital and evasive statement printed in Mr. Cunningham's letter.

I say it is possible, because I have made no secret of the fact that Mr. Cunningham VOLUNTEERED to withdraw in favor of Mr. Corbould, and took it back; and that he acknowledged these facts in the presence of a witness. This is the point.

The vulgar, impertinent "bounce" of Mr. Cunningham's last paragraph, and its reckless misrepresentation of facts, are alike characteristic of the man. We waited upon him in his store, which can be entered by any one without an invitation, because we felt that, as he had volunteered to withdraw in Mr. Corbould's favor, courtesy required us to let him know that Mr. Corbould was in the field, so that he might have a chance to redeem his word. It is painfully evident, however, that he is one upon whom courtesy is thrown away.

C. C. MAJOR.

Westminster, Nov. 13th, 1889.

Visiting the Amphion.

The Times says hundreds of people visited Esquimalt on Monday to view H. M. S. Amphion in the dry dock. The road was fairly alive with pedestrians, every hack was brought into use and the stages were filled. A number of the Amphion's men were on hand to show visitors over the vessel, and the ship and her appointments, armament, etc., were greatly admired. The Amphion is a fine speciman of naval achitecture and shows up well in the dock. The injuries to her sides and one twisted propeller are the only things as a reminder of the treacherous rocks at Keelet bluff.

Admiral Heneage.

Rear-Admiral Heneage, commander-in-chief on the Pacific station, is now at the top of his list, and may any day be promoted to vice-admiral. He will have to give up his command at once, which, however, he has held for over two years, which is something over the average, and it is reported he will be succeeded by rear-admiral C. F. Hotham, C.B., at present acting as junior sea lord of the admiralty. Admiral Hotham is by far the youngest flag officer in the service, being only 45 years of age. Only one more captain can be promoted this year, as seven is the authorized number, and six have already obtained their flags. London World.

Election Address.

To the Electors of the City of New Westminster:

GENTLEMEN:—Having been nominated to fill the vacancy in the Provincial Legislature occasioned by the resignation of Judge Bole, it is proper and right that I should give you a clear and distinct statement of the measures which I shall support, if elected.

1. I shall support the present government as long as I am convinced of its honest intention to administer public affairs with justice and discretion.

2. Redistribution of seats in the Legislature, with a view of placing this city and district in the front rank, a position to which they are honestly entitled by virtue of increased wealth, population and extensive manufactures. You may rest assured that when this question comes up, as it surely must, I shall carefully guard your interests, which I am thankful to know are identical with my own.

3. An appropriation for a District Court House to be erected in this city, and of such character and dimensions as will meet the present and prospective requirements of our rapidly increasing population.

4. A new Central School House, to be constructed on modern hygienic principles, and of sufficient size to accommodate the vast number of school children in this city.

5. A bonus for the first fruit canning and packing establishment in successful operation.

6. A liberal grant in lands or money, or both, in aid of the construction of a railway and free traffic bridge across the Fraser river within the corporate limits of this city.

7. Government aid toward the following:

(a.) A trunk road through the entire length of Lulu Island to connect this city with the railway and free traffic bridge to be built by the New Westminster Southern Railway Co.

(b.) A road from this city down the mainland shore of the North Arm of Fraser river.

(c.) Repairing the New Westminster and Yale wagon road.

(d.) Wagon roads leading from this city to the municipalities of Surrey, Delta and Maple Ridge.

8. Our agricultural and horticultural societies shall of necessity receive every assistance that I can render. My past conduct in this regard must be my guarantee for future faithfulness.

Westminster may not receive all she requires and which she is justly entitled to during the coming session, but I am confident that by proper representation much can be accomplished, and if you honor me with your confidence and support I shall faithfully contend for your rights on all occasions, and all measures affecting your interests will receive my intelligent support.

I have the honor to be,
Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
THOMAS CUNNINGHAM.
