VOLUME I. NUMBER 21.

ENDERBY, B. C., OCTOBER 5, 1904.

PRICE, $2 A YEAR

Prizes Awarded

The Armstrong Fair, last Wednesday, was the most successful that has ever been held by the Association. The display of fruit and vegetables surpassed that of previous years, and in the divisions where the ladies exhibited their handiwork the showing could not have been better anywhere.

The attendance was large, though there were but few exhibitors from points outside of Armstrong District.

The winners of the special prizes in the various divisions were as follows: In cattle, horses, swine and sheep, the Stepney Ranch; in poultry, the honors were divided between Crozier Bros. and S. Reed; in vegetables, W. Norman; in field produce, D. Matheson; in fruit, J. W. Thompson was one better than S. Gray; in fancy work and sealed fruits, Mrs. Wolfenden. The exhibitor carrying off the greatest number of prizes was Mrs. Wolfenden. She entered 52 exhibits and was awarded 33 prizes.

In butter, Miss Hill, Sam McKee; Mrs. Lynn and Mrs. Wilson, carried the prizes.

In bread—Okanagan Mills special: Mrs. R. Daniels, H. Fraser, L. Farr; Columbia Flouring Mills special, Mrs. Fraser, Mrs. Hannel, Mrs. Lynn, Mrs. R. Daniels won the Armstrong prize.

We Must Plead Guilty.

The following letter is self explanatory:

Post Office Inspector's Office, Vancouver, B. C., 1st Oct. 1904.

Dear Sir: Again referring to your letter of the 26th ultimo, and the enclosed clipping from the issue of THE EDENOGRAPH of the 14th September, concerning the alleged blocking of the business streets, I beg to say that the matter was referred to the General Superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Railway for investigation, and I am now informed that the result shows that there is nothing to justify the statement that the road crossing is blocked by cars, nor that the public are prevented from obtaining their mail without waiting thirty or forty minutes or climbing over freight cars. Yours truly,

JOHN R. GREENFIELD, P.O. Inspector, THE EDENOGRAPH, Enderby, B.C.

Inspector Greenfield is a faithful and efficient officer. It is remarkable what he can do by saying the word. His letter, however, will be taken with a smile by the citizens of Enderby. We are prepared to acknowledge that since Friday, Sept. 23rd, there has been nothing to justify the statement that the postoffice crossing is blocked. It would not have been blocked as it has been for the past years if the postoffice department had taken the matter up and acted as promptly as Inspector Greenfield has acted.

The Weather.

Walter E. Truesdale, government observer at Enderby, furnishes the following record of the temperature, and general state of the weather for the month of September:

The Public Pulse.

[Under this head we will publish any communication sent to us on questions of interest to the public. Our only conditions are these: First, the writer's name must accompany the pen name; vituperation is not argument and will not be accepted, make your point quickly and then quit.—Ed.]

Wants to Know.

Ed. EDENOGRAPH:

Dear Sir: We can feel certain that the C. P. R. will reduce the service over the S. & O. road to every other day as soon as the fruit season is over.

We who have experienced the inconveniences of such a winter service know what that means. I want to know if the people of this Valley are not entitled to a daily mail service during the winter months? If we are then let us assert our rights and get it. Let a petition be circulated, say through the Vernon Board of Trade, demanding of the Postoffice Department immediate consideration. It will do no good to talk to the railroad company. Let us go to a higher power, the mail department of the Dominion Government.

Yours truly, ENDERBY KICKER.

Another Hotel.

Andy Falkner and Frank Long have purchased from the Kamloops Lumber Co. the large bunk and boarding house erected a short time ago and recently opened by the company, and it is now being run independent of the mill. Messrs. Falkner and Long are well and favorably known here. They have opened the boarding house to the public, and are now feeding from 40 to 50 men. They contemplate starting work in three weeks on a 34x37 addition to the building, and hope to have the annex up before snow flies, and the whole opened as an hotel, modernly equipped with electric lights, and all the conveniences of a modern hostelry.

Change in Drug Business.

D. Nairn arrived from Vancouver Monday morning to look into the possibilities of Enderby as a business centre. He is well pleased with the outlook. Mr. Nairn is a chemist and druggist of 13 years' experience, a graduate of the Ontario College of Pharmacy of Toronto. After looking over the field he has taken over the business of W. T. Broderick, (the Magnate Pharmacy) and will carry on an up-to-date drug and stationery business, moving to the new Bell block when it is completed.

OKANAGAN PRODUCE, 1903

Shipped by freight from:

Enderby, - 7,928 tons

Armstrong, 6,180 tons

Vernon, - 4,497 tons

Kelowna, - 3,891 tons

Other points, 265 tons

Total, 22,761 tons

Summerland is the name of a new farming country on Okanagan lake, of which not everybody has heard. As Summerland is shipping to Nelson and other portions of the province apples running a pound-and-a-quarter each, its name is likely to grow better known.—Nelson Tribune.

Doings in Eden

Harold Nelson to-night.

The sawmill was lighted by electricity for the first time Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Jalland of Sandon are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bell.

Ira Jones will build a residence for himself as soon as the lumber is on the ground.

Geo. Hale left on Saturday on an eastern trip, expecting to be absent six weeks.

Wonder how Job felt when he had to wait at an over-crowded hotel for his dinner?

Wm. Hutchison tore out his tire setting furnace at his blacksmith shop, Friday morning.

Ira Jones and wife returned to Enderby from a three month's trip in the East, Friday morning.

A. Todd has added another chair to his tonorial parlor to accommodate his fast increasing trade.

F. H. Hale left on Saturday evening for the east. His trip is said to have some political significance.

Long Louie and Short Ling are moving their store building off the lumber plantation across the street.

The C. P. R. put a gang of men to work building a crossing and sidewalk at the post office corner on Friday morning.

R. P. Bradley has the foundation laid for an addition to his hardware block, his business having out-grown his present quarters.

Wm. Elson left for the Provincial Fair on Saturday, taking a large variety of apples to place on exhibition from his Eden House orchard.

Mrs. Purdy returned to her Regina home by Thursday's train after spending several weeks with her daughters, Mrs. A. E. Roberts and Miss Purdy.

This week the mill company will wire the Enderby Hotel, and in a short time this old-time house will step from the coal oil stage to that of electric lights.

Married, Gardom-Price, on Sept. 30th, at Christ Church, Victoria, by Archdeacon Scriven, Marjorie, youngest daughter of J. W. Gardom, Victoria, to Albert Rogers.

Dr. McDonald arrived at Enderby this morning, and has re-opened his dental booth in J. C. English's furniture store. He will remain a few days to make molar repairs.

The first number of the Okanagan Herald was issued at Vernon on Oct. 1st. It is to be the mouth piece of the Liberals of the Valley, to lead them into the Promised Land. Here's to it!

Mr. William Vernon Harcourt, "the finest political gladiator of his age," died suddenly on October 1st, at Nuneham park, near Oxford, the country seat which he recently inherited from his nephew.

J. M. Townsend and Mr. Marshall have bought 150 acres of the Kerfoot property, four miles south of Enderby, and are putting up buildings on the property. They will go into fruit, vegetable and cereal raising.

Wm. Hutchison is pushing work on the new restaurant block, and expects to have it ready for occupancy by the 1st of November. It will be two-story, with rooms above. The restaurant room will be 28x45 and will be fitted up in modern style.

The Annual Autumn Dance of the Halcyon Hot Springs Sanitarium, will be held on Friday, October 21st. A cordial invitation is extended to all patrons. Hotel accommodation from Friday to Monday, including baths, dance and supper, $5 each person.

"Heart and Sword" at the town hall to-night.

Billy Howarth, type and puck teaser, was taken to Vernon by the C.P.R. this morning, where he will remain for the winter if a good hockey team is gathered together. If not he will have to move elsewhere, for "Willie the Rusher" cannot live where the puck is not a staple winter diet. He hails from Sandon, the place where pucks grow.

A beloved correspondent concludes a letter thus: "Little Dot wants to send you something." Then follows something that looks like old cross roads, with this foot-note: "You are to interpret these with your fairest subscriber." If our fairest can give us any light on the subject, we will hang a towel over the owl cage and turn the gas real low.

Advertising pays, especially when it is accompanied by rustling. E. A. Chappell is a good advertiser and a rustler. In a fruit-tree selling contest in which every agent in Canada for the Stone & Wellington company entered, Mr. Chappell was fifth on the list of prize winners, getting a valuable gold Waltham watch. He sold in a few weeks, to orchardists in and about Enderby, $1,150 worth of trees, for Fall delivery.

At the Nelson Fair last week Rev. Jas. Calvert of New Denver was awarded first prize for his photo exhibit, and was given a silver medal by special provision of the Fair Association. Mr. Calvert's photos have spread the fame of Slokan lake far and wide. Having the artistic eye his pictures have distinctness and animation that places them in a class by themselves, far ahead of the ordinary photographer, even in the professional class.

SALMON ARM ITEMS.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Seifert left for an extended visit to the East.

Messrs. Owens and McCallum went to Westminster in charge of the local exhibit.

The local Orangemen will celebrate on the 4th, (not 5th) of November with a supper and entertainment.

Amongst the visitors this week were Messrs. L. Norris and W. Gardner.

Harry Pratt from Vernon is visiting his parents here this week.

A Good-bye Party.

Last Wednesday evening a large number of friends gathered at the Methodist parsonage to give Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hancock a farewell party prior to their departure for the coast, where they will spend the winter and perhaps a year or more. The occasion was one of the happiest that could be given of the kind, many of Enderby's pioneers being present to participate in the festivities.

After the usual run of games, Mr. Gray introduced the objects of the gathering, speaking feelingly of the faithful services rendered the church and community by Mr. and Mrs. Hancock. This was followed by short talks of a happy, jocular nature by Mr. Bell, Mr. Hancock, Mr. Hartwell, Mr. Marshall and others, and the evening was concluded by refreshments being served. Mr. and Mrs. Hancock, accompanied by Charles and Nellie, left Monday evening for New Westminster.

The theatrical treat of the season to-night.

PUBLIC SPIRIT.

No community can make headway where there is a lack of public spirit. If men cannot take an unselfish view of public questions, and think and act in their business relations on the broad principle of community interest against the spirit of selfish gain, there is not much hope for permanent prosperity. Selfishness is the great sin. It afflicts all men. Some overcome it, others do not. Unselfishness breeds sacrifice, selfishness breeds oppression. The unselfish soul is ever ready to put under immediate personal gain if he finds that the community's welfare demands his services or such putting under. The selfish man is not so. He prefers to sacrifice others that he might win. The community is his field. He looks at things through glasses tinted green. His first thought is of himself, not as one associated with others in the whole, but as one separate from the whole to whom all must sacrifice.

Every individual must do his part for his family, his church, his schools, and other institutions that aim to build up the best that is in us, as well as to his town, county, province and country. Every man wants to get beyond a shopkeeper, a laborer, a mechanic. These are good, and honorable, and well enough, but if a man does not have other resources and desires than a talent for money-getting he is poor indeed. Francis H. Peavey tells us that poverty of mind is the greatest of misfortunes. The environments of the public library or reading room are conducive to good morals and better intelligence. Go to any of our public libraries any evening in the winter and you will find the reading rooms crowded with old and young, quiet and orderly, who return to their homes better men for the evening thus spent. To better equip one's self for his daily work, he should improve every opportunity for study. It trains and rests the mind.

These remarks are preliminary. They lead up to the question asked last week: "What are we going to do with our winter evenings?" The communication of Mr. Rosoman last week presented a practical solution of the case. The little reading room already established, but sleeping, in Enderby can be revived and made to serve until something better can be had. According to Mr. Rosoman's statement, there is sufficient money on hand to put a room in shape to be opened to the public. The books will have to be removed from their present quarters, for we understand the government will require the room as office for the constable to be appointed for Enderby. Other rooms can be secured at a small rental more centrally located and better in every way for the purpose. In addition to the books already on the shelves application can be made for one of the libraries provided by the Government to small communities. This embraces many of the standard works, and the books are change every little while.

It remains for the moving spirits in the old committee to call the public together and let steps be taken to put the reading room in shape for the winter evenings.

Joseph Marmo of New Jersey, shot and killed his brother-in-law and then shot his sister. Then he hid in the woods. All search for him was fruitless. One day he gave himself up. The mosquitoes were so savage in the place where he was hiding that they forced him to come out. Perhaps if the C. P. R. and the Provincial Government would spend some of that $12,000 reward money for a barrel or two of the Jersey article and turn them loose in the woods they might beat the officers in finding the train robbers, who have been surrounded in four places at once for three weeks and haven't lost a wink of sleep.

IS THIS SOCIALISM?

The days of corporation-owned railroads, telegraphs, express and telephones are numbered. It is not going to be such a great while until these public utilities are taken in hand by the government to be run as the mail service is run, for the benefit of the people. Today the postoffice is the best example of applied government ownership. Nobody draws dividends on postoffice stock. Some day the people are going to be wise enough to stop the dividends on railroad, and telegraph, and telephone, and express Six Percents Preferred, by taking them over and running them. These great corporations have nothing to sell but transportation, and no one should be allowed to charge more for this than it costs to operate. Suppose we had to depend upon a private corporation for the operation of our mail service, as we do for the transportation of our hurry-up letters, our parcels and our flesh and blood. What would the cost be per letter?

The world progresses. The package post was only a theory with Karl Marx. The postal telegraph was an idea. Today England has both. You can send a telegram anywhere in the Kingdom for twelve cents. Canada is progressing. Every means of transportation will be owned by the government in due course. This has long been the aim of Socialists the world over. Gradually the people are beginning to realize the wisdom of it. Perhaps the reforms will not come through the political Socialistic party, yet the thing for which it has long been fighting will win, and other men will gain the glory.

Speaking at a meeting held in Orillia last week, R. L. Borden, leader of the Conservative party, said if the Conservatives were returned to power he was going to make the experiment of government ownership of railways. Just how far the party is prepared to go it would be unsafe for Mr. Borden or any one else to say, but that a step in the right direction is to be made there is not any doubt.

Cheat 'Em.

Let me relate to "Constance" the true story of one John, who had been courting a Maggie for some years without coming to the point.

At last, one leap year, Maggie's mother thought that a strong hint should be given. So one moonlight night during their walk Maggie asked, "John, do you know what all the people are saying about you?"

"What are they saying?" replied John, in his non-committal Lancashire fashion. "Why," said Maggie, "they say that you and I are going to get married."

"Are they saying that, Maggie?" said John; and then, after a pause, "Well, I tell you what—we'll just cheat all these gossips!"

With The Owl

HANK REKLAWE IN THE DARK WOODS.

HE CLIMBED the hill by the cow trails, walking ankle-deep through Autumn leaves that carpeted the ground and made a bed for us to lie upon. Only a short time ago these leaves, now so dry and without life, were fresh and green and filled with the life-giving sap of the tree. Now the sap has gone back into the trunk, leaving the leaves—the lungs—of the tree with no sustenance, and they droop and die and fall to the ground—dead, useless. But, stay! Are they useless? Are any of our deeds useless? The leaves are dead, 'tis true; they no longer give life to the tree by taking from the air its life-giving qualities, and giving back the sweet, exhilarating breath of the tree. But they are still useful. There isn't anything in this world of ours that is entirely useless, except the foibles that man has made for men to play with. Everything that Nature makes, in whatever state you find it, is filling some office in the divine plan of creation and of life. The leaves fall to earth and form a covering about the trunk and roots of the tree to protect it from Winter's biting frosts. Then in the Spring the leaves decay, giving back to the tree the enriching properties that the tree gave to them. Thus the tree lives on, each year giving more life and receiving in return more life and strength.

If we had no other school than that of Nature we might learn in it that life in the Real is made up of Service. That which is not Service is not Life. Everything in Nature is given to serve, not to command service. Our words and deeds, our sorrows and joys, our smiles and our works, are like the leaves of a tree. We sluff them as we do them, each moment one drops to earth. By them we get Life through giving it; by them we are protected from the bitter shafts of jealousy and ignorance, and through their fertilizing influence we are made to grow in strength and usefulness.

Won't Shrink

That's what those who know say of the "WOLSEY" UNDERWEAR. You can't make them shrink. It has been tried. Listen: "Dear Sir, The "Wolsey Underclothing I got from you some time ago has been thoroughly tested in my laundry. The instructions given to my flannel washer were to shrink the goods if possible, and I felt quite sure that the process to which they were subjected would shrink them, but after repeated trials I found them as large as ever, and perfectly soft. I can vouch for the fact that the "Wolsey" brand of Underwear is positively unskrinkable. Yours very truly, M. M. Pyke, proprietor Pyke's Steam Laundry, Ottawa." You can get these goods of us now. For ladies and gentlemen. All wool.

SAYINGS OF CHILDREN.

Aunt Mary—"Now, candidly, Margie, don't you think you have eaten enough pudding?" Margie (aged four) —"Well, I may think so, Aunt Mary, but I don't feel so."

"Mamma," said little Johnny at the breakfast table the other morning, "this is awful old butter, isn't it?" "Why do you think it is old, dear?" asked his mother. "'Cause," replied Johnny, "I just found a gray hair in it."

"Mamma," said three-year-old Flo-gie, "I guess you don't know much about raising children, do you?" "Why do you think that?" asked her mother. "'Because," replied the little miss, "you always send me to bed when I'm not sleepy and make me get up when I am sleepy."

A little schoolgirl was told by her teacher to write the word "ferment" on her slate, together with the definition and a sentence in which the word was to be used. The following is the result: "Fer-men-ent; a verb, signifying to work. I love to do all kinds of fancy ferment."

"Mamma," said four-year-old Bobby, "what is that white stuff on my berries?" "That is what we call whipped cream," answered his mother. A few days later Bobby dined at a neighbor's and, being offered some ordinary cream, he asked: "Haven't you folks got any spanked cream?"

"Mamma," said small Harry after glancing over his Sunday school lesson, "I don't believe Solomon was half so rich as they say he was." "Why not, my dear?" queried his mother. "'Because," replied the youthful student, "it says here: 'And he slept with his fathers.' If he had been very rich I guess he would have had a bed of his own."—Chicago Daily News.

My mistress drew away from him, and standing at her fullest height looked down on him.

"How dare you!" she said. "I would dare anything for you, Allee. I love you with all my heart. You are too fine a woman to waste yourself on a creature like that husband of yours. He does not love you—I do. Leave him and come to me!"

"Go!" said my mistress, shrilly. Then a terrible thing happened. He didn't seem to see it but I did. Tears came into my mistress's eyes and fell on her cheek; then she gave a sort of sob. She was crying.

My blood began to boil. I was beside myself with fury. This nasty little man with the whiskers had made her

HOW HE RAN WHEN HE SAW ME AFTER HIM! cry! Now I knew why I had hated him. He was it—A Critic—and knowing that he could not make her cry after tomorrow he had come just once more to enjoy her distress. My master was in town, and I on the wrong side of the brook; it was shameful, horrible. I pulled and tugged at my stake, and even bit at my rope, but it would not yield.

As I watched him such an evil look came into his face. I believe he meant to kill her, for he seized her tightly in his arms, and called out:

"Go! Never more you!" I was so frightened that he would take her away where my master could never find her again that I pulled frantically at the rope.

My mistress was evidently afraid, too. She gave a great cry, freed herself, and started to run into the garden. He saw she was afraid of him, and like the coward he was, began to run after her. This was more than I could stand. I was so afraid of his hurting her that I gave a tremendous bound, and to my joy the rope broke and I was free.

In a second I was over the brook and chasing him. How he ran when he saw me after him; but I ran faster than he, and in a few moments I had caught him.

I was too angry to wait to try my new horns on him. I just jumped on his shoulders, threw him down, and rolled over and over down the bank into the brook with him. When I'd got him there I both thought me of my horns, and I horned him and trampled upon him until I had satisfied my anger, then standing over him I looked round for my dear mistress.

She was at the garden gate, clasped in my master's arms.

Seeing her so safe I felt that I could commence again on A Critic, for in the moment I paused he had tried to crawl out from between my feet. Then there was a great shouting. My master and Patrick and some men ran at me with sticks, and began beating me just for doing my duty. I was really angry at their foolishness, so I knocked Patrick down, kicked the strange men, and ran as hard as I could to my mistress, and putting my nose in her hand, asked her if I had not done well.

She understood me, for she smothered a laugh in my neck, petted me and when the men wanted to drag me away took me inside the garden, put me in—to my stall with her own hands and gave me a great feed.

As we turned away I heard my master say to A Critic:

"You're too wet to kick, you little cur; pick yourself up and be off, and if ever I find you round my premises again I'll set the dogs on you."

My master soon joined us in the barn, and then standing beside me in my stall he told my mistress what a silly fellow he had been and asked her forgiveness, and then they kissed each other and said a lot of sweet things to each other, at which James snorted and I got angry and told him to hold his tongue, and my mistress forgot that she had fed me and gave me a lot more roots, and James got some too, and then they kissed each other again and we were all so happy, only when my mistress told my master all about the little man with the whiskers she cried, and I could not understand why she should do so after I had rid her of A Critic. May be she was crying because that foolish Patrick had interfered too soon between us.

I think that I did a very good day's work when I punished A Critic, for we have all been happier since. We meet under the willows just as we used to, and what with the extra food I get, and the extra petting, my horns are growing at such a rate that should the little man with the whiskers ever disturb us again I'll be able to settle the whole business before Patrick will have time to interfere.

THE NAVAL RESERVE.

How Such a Force is Maintained and Paid in Great Britain.

For the last twenty-two years, says the San Francisco Chronicle, Great Britain has maintained a magnificent corps of seamen called the royal naval reserve, forming a body of men under obligations to serve on her coast-defense war-ships. Liberal appropriations have been made for drilling these men in gunnery, small-arms tactics and the general duties of a war-ship, and today, were the seagoing British ironclads called out for duty on stations other than on her own coasts, the naval reserve numbers sufficient men to man the gun-boats, small turret ships and other types of vessels that are classed under the head of "coast-defense ships." In Great Britain the coast guard, doing duty as life-saving patrolmen and watching for smugglers, are all ex-man-of-war sailors, ready at a moment's notice to serve on board ship. These coast guardsmen are in receipt of a yearly stipend and pension. Many British merchant vessels—steam and sail—fly what is known as the blue ensign, in distinction from the usual red flag that is familiar all over the world. This flag on a ship denotes that her master is a lieutenant in the reserve, and at least one-third of his officers and crew also belong to that service.

Every summer the reserve, or at least as many as are to be found at home ports, are placed on board of a navy ship and accompany the fleet of war vessels during their cruise, receiving pay and rations from the Government. The obligations of a reserve man are that he shall be drilled either on board of a cruising ship, or one in harbor especially designed for the service, for at least one month every year, unless in the case of officers they can give proof of their efficiency. In time of war the naval reserve receive pay similar to the regularly enlisted men of the navy. It will thus be seen that the British navy possesses a large reserve to man its ships. Besides this body, the Government, anxious to foster its marine, has at various seaports several line-of-battle ships for the training of young men as officers in the merchant service. The management of these vessels is vested in various bodies consisting mainly of ship-owners and merchants, and the good work effected by these ships is proved by the number of masters of vessels who acknowledge their training on the Conway or Helvidere.

For many years the want of a reserve force of men has been a subject for thought among those interested in our navy and mercantile marine. Secretaries of the navy in their reports have urged upon Congress the propriety of establishing a body of seamen that could be utilized both as an auxiliary to the navy and for defending the various coast ports at which they might reside. In accordance with American institutions the force maintained by the navy is small, and any sudden demand upon its resources would be met by the creation of a naval militia.

In New York the members of the Seashwanaka Yacht Club organized a volunteer naval reserve; the United States sloop St. Mary's makes annual summer cruises with her crew of young lads, and in the winter, while in harbor, the boys not only receive a good scholastic course but are also taught seamanship. Massachusetts and New Jersey are now deeply interested in the scheme of providing the State with a naval militia, and quite recently our Chamber of Commerce took the initiative step for similar service in this State.

Under The Olive Tree

WITH HANS REKLAU

If you would have real friends, be one.
Plant flowers and men will call you blessed.
The man who enjoys life most thinks least about it.

Laziness works hand in hand with Dr. Skinem's Pink Pills for Pale People.

Some men spend so much time doing nothing that they are tired out when work comes.

Let me repeat: We can never fully grasp a thought until we give expression to it.

If you would make sure of just treatment from others do not be too anxious about it.

A clique is most harmful to the men and women engaged in it—all become of one mind.

If you are in love, don't waste time trying to get out of it. Just make the best of it.

I'll chide no man in the world but myself, 'gainst whom I know most faults.—As You Like It.

It doesn't matter much what your religion is if you do not let it get into your feet and hands.

The man who surrenders his individuality is a fool: the man who asks another to do so is a knave.

Hubbard gives good advice in these words: "Fit yourself for the best society—and then keep out of it."

A religion that makes you feel a chasm between yourself and your neighbor is more damnable than sin itself.

What a paradise Enderby would be if every home was surrounded by beds of flowers and climbing vines?

Mary had a little lamb; he was her steady beau; And everywhere that Mary went, the lamb put up the dough.—Philistine.

Some very nice Christian people that I know hate the bad so hard that they haven't any room to love the good in their neighbors.

Hell is a condition of mind. Heaven would be hell to the man whose moral nature never touched anything but the devil in man.

We are told that men and women die for the want of love. They ought to. No man can be loving to others without drawing love his way.

Catch hold of hands and let's pull together, but don't clutch so lightly as to hinder the work or stop the game. Let each have breathing space.

Perhaps it should not be mentioned, but really, sweetheart, can't we lay our theology aside long enough to spade up the weeds about the church door?

THE MARKET.

The conditions on the fowl portion of the Westminster market were A-1 last week, and both buyers and vendors went away well satisfied with the volume of trade that had been transacted. All the older birds cleared out at the quotations, which were from $6 to $7 per dozen. The broilers also were very much in evidence. The prices were from $3.50 to $5 per dozen. Of ducks there were a fair number of offerings, but the condition of most of the birds here was not very good, and nearly all were small and poor. The prices here were from $5.50 to $7 per dozen.

The vegetable tables were again a centre of attraction, and once more the dealers did themselves proud. Favorable prices reigned for all the table articles, and the volume of trade was most satisfactory. The old standbys, the potatoes, found a slow sale at $16 per ton, while the onions cleared out in small lots at $1.50 per sack.

A fitting phrase to describe the condition of the egg market on Friday would be "scarce and in demand." The retail price of the eggs was steady at 40c per dozen, while in wholesale lots they were sold at 35c per dozen in case lots. Butter was fairly plentiful, not too heavy in the supply, but well able to take care of the demand. The prices for butter were 25c to 30c per lb., according to the quality and the special arrangements with customers.

The fruits did their share of the work on Friday, at least the apples did. The supply of apples was very large, and the demand was consequently limited to those of better grade, and the non-cooking varieties. The prices were from 50c to 90c per box. Pears were represented fairly well, but the demand, though steady, was not quite as heavy as might have been expected. The pears offered were very good, and all managed to clear at 75c to $1 per box.

Canada's Pulp Industry.

The figures issued by the Dominion Statistician in regard to the pulp industry in Canada have been summarized by the Canadian Manufacturer and show a remarkable development in a comparatively new field. The industry during the calendar year 1903 was carried on by 39 mills, which had an output of 275,619 tons of wood pulp. Of this quantity 187,871 tons were mechanical pulp, 84,808 sulphite, and 2,940 soda. The corresponding quantities for 1902 were: mechanical 155,210 tons, sulphite 76,735 tons, and soda 9,044.

In the Pulpits

What the Local Pastors
Talked About
Sunday

The topic of the sermon delivered by Rev. Mr. Campbell Sunday morning was "the health of the soul," taking for his text John's words to Galus: "Beloved, I wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth." This is the wish of every man for his friend. To wish a man prosperity in outward things without an accompanying prosperity of the soul, would be the worst wish we could express, for when outward prosperity outruns the prosperity of the soul, it means the moral and spiritual undoing of the man.

The soul's prosperity is gauged by the same things that give physical health to the body: atmosphere (or environment), food and exercise. We might live in the best atmosphere; our surroundings may be the most spiritual; we may leave alone the evil and take heartily of the good things that feed the soul, but without the exercise of the graces that soul-life is made of there cannot be the soul's prosperity. Our environments will influence us in spite of ourselves, but it is not necessary that we should lend our efforts to make them less healthy than they are. We are surrounded by many things that are unhealthy foods for the soul, but every man can leave them alone, and choose to take only the good. What exercise is to the health of our physical bodies, so is it to the health of our souls. Without it our physical strength diminishes, and so with our strength of soul.

Taking for his text the first verse in the Bible Rev. Mr. Venables spoke on Sunday morning of the wondrous works of God and his nearness to man. After referring to the wonders of nature that we are in touch with every moment, and the wonders of the starry kingdom, Mr. Venables expressed this striking truth: "Let us not study God's works apart from God, as 'is so often done.' Men do not realize that when they are weighing the very elements of which

This shows an increase of 34,630 tons in 1903. The increase in sulphite was 8,073, and in mechanical 32,661 tons, soda showing a decrease of 6,104 tons. The total value of the output of 1903 was $5,219,892. Nine of the thirty-nine mills manufacture mechanical pulp, five make both chemical and mechanical. Taking the returns of thirty-nine mills, the average time the mills ran during the year was nearly nine months. The value of the production was $5,219,892, the amount exported $3,013,441, leaving $2,206,541 for home use. These figures show that we export about 57 per cent of our production. Of the $3,013,441 worth exported by Canada in 1903, Great Britain took $865,826, the United States $1,890,448, and other countries $248,107. With excellent water power and abundance of raw material, Canada should take the lead in the pulp-making industry.

Grand Trunk Pacific Deal.

Now that the elections are positively to come off on the third of November, we do not think there should be any doubt about the question as to whether the Grand Trunk Pacific is to commence construction at this end or not. As has been fully demonstrated in these columns the matter of the construction of the Grand Pacific in this province is one of immense importance to us from many points of view. It is one upon which we do not propose that, so far as we are concerned, the electors are to be permitted to be deceived.

If the construction is not to commence on the Pacific side and continue towards the line from the East at Winnipeg, it means that the railroad for which the people of British Columbia will assume a large share of liability in common with all other parts of Canada will not in its construction benefit this province practically to the extent of one cent. Labor and supplies will all come from Winnipeg, and the money disbursed in connection therewith will all flow back to that source.

It is without any doubt a grave scandal that the bill providing for the construction of the railway should have been permitted to have passed through Parliament without provision having been made for the time and place of all things are made, they are adding proof to proof of the wonderful wisdom of God.

Man is the greatest work of God's hand, for he is made in the very image of God. He is marked out from the whole creation because he has an immortal soul. It is the soul, the immortality of man, that sets him so high above God's other works. That is why God is so mindful of us, and visits us with his blessings each day we live. God is present everywhere and takes as much notice of the least of his creation as the greatest.

Rev. Mr. Marshall occupied the pulpit in the Methodist Church Sunday evening. He took the 9th verse of the 10th chapter of John as a text upon which to build a calm, thoughtful sermon on "Christian Perfection."

Everything in the plan of nature is perfect; all work harmoniously together. And so it also is with the stars; each runs its course, year after year, in the space allotted to it by the Divine Hand. Man is the only created thing that failed to fulfill the requirements of God.

God's plan of salvation is perfect as his plan of nature. Christ's coming, his life and his death, all worked out the will of God. There is no mistake taking the way, the plan is perfect: "I am the door; by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and out, and find pasture." There can be nothing more simple than these words of Christ. See how clear the plan is: "I am the door," enter in and ye shall be saved. Ye shall go in and out and find pastures green.

The fulfillment of these promises is consequent upon the action of each individual. Man must do his part. The way is plain. There is not a variety of ways, so numerous that man is lost in them. If we are to experience the perfect fulfillment of Christ's promises, we must comply perfectly with the conditions.

commencement in this province. To avoid the consequences of such deliberate neglect, when Hon. Mr. Prefontaine came to the Province he gave his solemn promise that the road would be begun on the Pacific and be continued eastward simultaneously with construction from Winnipeg. His word for the time being was accepted as the word of a Minister of the Crown, which was worthy of belief. When Mr. Hays came to the Province a few days afterwards he refused to confirm any such arrangement as that having been made. We have the very best reason for believing that the Grand Trunk Pacific

This is the finest material in the world for cooking utensils; it makes them so light, so serviceable and always so bright and clean. First cost is some greater than agate ware, but there is no comparison in the service rendered. Pretty Table Pieces: Salt and Pepper Shakers, Sugar Bowls, Spoon Holders, Milk Pitchers, etc. Also everything to cook in. Call and see them.

Would U?

Like a life insurance policy providing for the payment of from $1,000 to $100,000 to your wife if you die within 20 years, and that if you live 20 years guarantees more to you in cash than you have paid on it? Your answer is very likely to be, "Yes, but it can't be done." On receipt of your name, age, and address, we will prove to you that it can. The Assets of The Mutual Life of Canada of $7,000,000 will convince you Address—

Prosperity

Seems to have taken hold of Enderby by the heels, and is pushing things along at a lively pace. To keep ahead of the demand, we have just placed in stock a carload of household goods. Parlor Pieces, Hall Racks, Tables, Desks, Book Cases, Fancy Dining Room Pieces—all of excellent quality. We are selling them, too.

Also wish you to remember that we have the agency for Mason-Risch Pianos. Terms and prices on application.

Get Ready

Now is the time to put your Harness in shape for Winter service. Don't wait till it goes to pieces. Bring it in for small repairs and make the big ones unnecessary.

Are you thinking of travelling? We can furnish the Trunk or Valise.

Wm. Hancock, Enderby

Isn't there something you would like to have in the printing line? We can give satisfaction at this office.

Parenthetical Remarks

With apologies to S. P. Baller

A well known Nelson paper man
One dark night last week,
Went to the cellar with a match
In search of a gas leak.

(He found it.)

Brier Wilfred by curiosity
(Dispatches state) was goaded.
He squinted in his political gun
To see if it was loaded.

(It was.)

Ralph Borden stopped to watch
An R. R. bonus clipper;
He wondered if his finger was
Not quicker than the nipper.

(It wasn't.)

Our butcher read that human eyes
Of hypnotism were full;
He went to see if it would work
Upon an angry bull.

(It wouldn't.)
