THE EDENOGRAPH

VOLUME I. NUMBER 34. ENDERBY, B. C., JANUARY 4 1905. PRICE, $2 A YEAR

Enderby Doings

The local legislature will convene on February 9th.

F. H. Hale returned from a visit of some weeks to Montana, on Friday.

Sunday the anniversary services o the Presbyterian church will be held at Armstrong.

Mrs. Moffet gave a very enjoyable New Year's dance at her home Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Smith through the New Year holidays.

A pencil mark here indicates that your subscription has expired and the editor is hard up.

Louis Gould, of the Vernon News staff, was a chip on the molasses train to the main line Tuesday evening.

Rev. J. W. Bowering B. A., of Kelowna, passed through on Tuesday's train on his way to Manitou, Man., where he is to preach for three months.

D. Nairn & Co., are manufacturing at the Enderby drug store, their own headache wafers, their own brand of liver pills, kidney pills and cough drops.

The January thaw came in on schedule time, but it didn't find anything in the Okanagan to operate upon. The roads have barely enough snow for sleighing.

J. C. English is showing a houseful of pretty things in furniture, and he is offering a liberal discount for cash. This is your opportunity. Don't miss it. You will be sorry if you do.

About 30 invited guests enjoyed a Christmas party given by Mr. and Mrs. A. Matthews at their home on Cliff street, on the evening of Dec. 26th. The usual games were participated in, followed by dancing and a bounteous supper at midnight.

George McCormick, managing director of the Kamloops Lumber Co., with Manager Beatty, of the Arrowhead Lumber Co., is in Ottawa, to press upon the government the claims of the lumbermen of the West for the imposition of a duty on rough lumber entering Canada.

The Presbyterian L. A. S. meets at the home of Mrs. Dunwoodie, Wednesday, Jan. 11, at 3 p. m.

A. L. Matthews returned to Enderby his morning, after a lengthy sojourn in the bracing climate of Manitoba.

A stereopticon performance, showing realistic, moving pictures of the Boer war, accompanied by music by the best talent obtainable, will be given in the Orange hall, Saturday evening.

Jas. Evans, of Reston, Man., arrived this morning with a car of settler's effects. Wesley Evans, his nephew, and J. L. Jordan were also of the party. They will make Enderby their home.

W. Jones has bought an interest in the hardware business of R. P. Bradley, and the firm are finishing an addition to the Bradley block, which will be occupied by them with a stock of flour and feed. They will handle flour from the Brandon, Man., mill of Alexander & Law Bros.

Messrs. Wright, Kenny, Truesdale and Bell were delegates from the Enderby Liberal Association to a convestion held in Vernon last Thursday. At the convention an organization was formed, to be known as the Okanagan Liberal Association. T. W. Fletcher of Armstrong, was chosen president; H. S. Elliott, of Kelowna, vice-president; Mr. Bridgeman, of Vernon, secretary, and S. C. Smith, of Vernon, treasurer; these gentlemen to form an executive, together with all presidents and secretaries of local associations throughout the riding.

Little Georgie Roberts spent the holidays with friends in Armstrong. Monday evening he was brought home, and on Tuesday it was discovered that he had contracted scarlet fever. It is of the mildest type. Every precaution was at once taken to prevent the spread of the disease. This is the first case of fever of any of the virulent types that has ever been known in Enderby. It has often been remarked, when the neighboring towns of the Valley have been stricken with a number of such cases, that fevers are unheard of here. A case has not been reported in the history of the town, covering a period of fifteen years or more.

Good News for Settlers

Henry T. Thrift, general secretary of the Settlers' Association of B. C., writes THE EDENOGRAPH as follows:

"Knowing the information will interest many of your readers located on Dominion lands in B. C., the executive of the Settlers' Association will feel obliged if you will please publish the fact that we are in receipt of a communication from the secretary of the Department of the Interior, which indicates that action may be taken at the coming session of parliament to grant the refund of monies paid to the government by settlers on Dominion lands in this province.

"Althcugh at one time we were informed that no "refund" could be made, the Settlers' Association, believing firmly in the justice of the cause advocated, have on every possible occasion, urged that all settlers be placed on the same bases. We have felt the discrimination against those who, many of them under the most adverse circumstances, had complied with government requirements (to their own detriment and loss) was unintentional, and that relief would be granted when the injustice was observed. This view of the matter is born out by the results so far apparent of our efforts."

The Awful Havoc Ends.

Port Arthur has surrendered, and all the world rejoices that the dreadful sacrifice of lives at this point in the Far Eastern field of war has been stayed. On learning of Gen. Stoessel's offer to capitulate, the Emperor of Japan had the following order sent to General Nogi, through Marshal Yamagata, chief of general staff: "When I respectfully informed His Majesty of General Stoessel's proposal for capitulation, His Majesty was pleased to state that General Stoessel had renderad commendable service to his country in the midst of difficulties, and it is His Majesty's wish that military honors be shown him." The proposal to capitulate was sent on Jan. 1st.

General Stoessel's note read: "Judging by the general condition of the whole line of hostile positions held by you, I find further resistance at Port Arthur useless, and for the purpose of preventing needless sacrifice of lives I propose to hold negotiations with reference to capitulation." The defeated but heroic general then asked for the appointment of a commission, to which Gen. Nogi gallantly agreed.

Grip, Pass Word

Last Wednesday evening the local lodge of Orangemen entertained the public in their lodge room, Bell block, by being At Home to all and making all feel at home with them. It was the first time the public of Enderby have been entertained in this way by a secret society, and the affair proved to be so successful that others of a like nature will undoubtedly be given from time to time, and the public thus be given an opportunity to become better acquainted with the work and objects of the societies.

The lodge room was well filled by a good-natured audience when Mr. Roberts, W. M., opened the evening's program. Instrumental and vocal selections followed, interspeased by readings and short talks by representatives of the various orders doing business in Enderby. Mr. Truesdale spoke briefly for the Canadian Order of Foresters, giving a concise statement of the standing of the order and its benefits and privileges.

Will Hill followed with an interesting account of the standing and stability of the Masonic order, and gave illustrations of what service the order has been and is to its members and their families.

A. H. Ferguson of New Westminster, Grand Chancellor of the B. C. Domain, Knights of Pythias, summed up the merits of all the orders named, together with the Oddfellows and K. of P., speaking in the highest terms of all, and congratulating the people of Enderby on having the several orders established here.

Mr. Roberts, on behalf of the Orange lodge, thanked the audience for their presence; paid a glowing tribute to the order in whose honor they were gathered and wished all a happy social evening.

At the conclusion of the program refreshments were served, the chairs were knocked about, formalism melted into unrestrained pleasure and all present were mellowed by the gladness of heart and goodfellowship.

Knights of Pythias

Pythianism has its antitype of friendship and mutual confidence in that historical incident in the reign of the tyrant King Dionysius, nearly 400 years before Christ, when Damon, a senator of old Syracuse was sentenced to death for a political offense against the kingdom. Pythias besought the king to grant Damon a respite that he might go to his home and bid farewell to his wife and child, pledging himself as hostage for Damon's return. At the hour of execution Damon hurries to the scaffold to take upon himself the death penalty. This display of friendship and mutual confidence so touched the heart of Dionysius that a pardon was granted and Damon was given his liberty.

The society first took shape in the evening of January 19, 1864, when its founder, Justus H. Rathbone, gathered about him in the city of Washington, D. C., a number of gentlemen and explained to them the foundation principles of the proposed order of Knights of Pythias—the objects of which were stated to be friendship, charity and benevolence. From that little gathering the order has spread far and wide, and today its membership numbers more than 600,000, in Canada and the United States.

A lodge of the order was instituted in Enderby last Thursday night, by Grand Chancellor Ferguson, assisted by a Rank team from Coldstream lodge, Vernon. At 12 o'clock adjournment was taken to the Union Restaurant where plates were laid for 30. It was a jolly crowd that sat down to the spread, but a jollier crowd that got up from it. Thirteen applicants were given the three ranks, and it was ¼ o'clock when the gavel sounded the last time. The lodge starts with a membership of 17.

"Sing Them Over Again; Beautiful, Wonderful Words"

The newspapers of the province are having some fun with us of the Okanagan. They treat the agitation for a better train service as somewhat of a joke. The Week, a new paper of Victoria, "the only literary paper in British Columbia," with which is incorporated Progress, facetiously remarks:

"From Vernon, Armstrong, Enderby and all other points in the Okanagan gifted with voices in the form of newspapers, a cry goes up against the C. P. R. for the service given on the Shuswap & Okanagan railway. It appears that railroad business in the winter is not so brisk on this line as in the good old summer time, and the railroad officials have retrenched by reducing the daily service to a tri-weekly service and—judging by the comments of the outraged editors of the valley—the locomotive which draws the tri-weekly train is anything but a thing of beauty or a joy forever."

The Week can see the funny part of it; we can not. To us, the miserable service has got beyond the joke stage. It would be funny if we could afford to sit back and take it, but the business of the Valley will not permit it. The C. P. R. officials do endeavor to laugh it off, and those papers that speak for the road or not at all laugh at the press of the Okanagan for going up against a thing without a soul like the C. P. R. Perhaps it is all a joke; maybe our conception of the ridiculous is not properly developed—we do no know. But this we are pretty sure of, anyway: we can take as much fun out of exposing the shameful system and the men responsible for it, as they can in being exposed. And, if the newspapers of the Valley will stand true to the Valley's interests, they will advertise the C. P. R.'s jerk water methods every week so long as it is imposed on us. To advertise the fact that the Okanagan is pestered and hobbled by a molasses train service, is not so bad as to submit to the unwarranted service like senile slaves. We can stand the joke being on us now. It will be on somebody else after a while.

We understand the government at Victoria does not see its way clear to take a hand in the matter. Every man recognizes the injustice of the thing; the government knows what the Valley suffers by it; the post office department knows what we are deprived of by it; nobody has had the nerve to stand up and say the service is good and sufficient. The railway officials themselves will not say that. "But," they cry, "the contract; the contract!" When five or six thousand people are being deprived of what all just men recognize as their rights, it is absurd for the government to stand like a wooden man and point to the "contract." Either the Okanagan Valley is entitled to consideration or it is not. Either the jerk water service is a shameful imposition or it is not. The cry goes up from every man in the Valley that it is an outrage. The railway company nods "yes," and smiles. The government nods "yes," and—smiles. The people complain but can do nothing.

If reports are to be depended on, the local government will shortly appeal to the country for support. The citizens of the Okanagan will be asked to return a government supporter. And the people will nod "yes," and—smile.

The Vernon News presents this argument to refute the statement that the S. & O. branch is operated at a loss, as the C P. R. officials claim: "Mr. Marpole admitted that the value of the S. & O. as a feeder to the main line would far more than counterbalance the loss of operation, which he endeavored to lay so much stress upon, and which his admission clearly proved to be an apparent and not an actual loss. This will be made clear if we consider what a very large proportion of freight from this Valley goes at least as far east as Winnipeg, about 1,500 miles, and that the proportion of earnings credited to the S. & O., under the present system, (the system that, as a consequence, very naturally shows an annual loss) would be only as $50 is to $1500. On Toronto freight the earnings would be even smaller in proportion, roughly as $50 is to $2,500. And this in the case of freight originating in the Valley, and not a cent's worth of which would reach the C. P. R. main line but for the S. & O. * * * In 1894, forty per cent. of the gross earnings of the S. & O. was $3,709.12; in 1903 it was $19,571.66. That is, the government's percentage is now more than six times what it was in 1894. The company's 60 per cent. must have increased in like proportions. And yet, in spite of this tremendous increase, the C. P. R. is still crying poor mouth—still bemoaning an annual loss!"

Thank You—Many Happy Returns

It is against our principles to publish any unsigned communication, but we must make exceptions to even the best of rules, especially when a friend is so kind as to do the likes of this and modestly hide behind no name: "THE EDENOGRAPH, — To me sexualism sounds a little too spicy, and "sweetheart" a little too soft for a weekly paper, yet I have derived much pleasure and benefit from a perusal of your paper, and consider it to have been of more value to me than the subscription price; therefore, find enclosed $5 to in some measure pay for uplifts received. Wishing Hank Reklaw a very Happy New Year."

Let us make this the Happiest New Year the world has known since we budded.

OUR WEATHER

It would be difficult to find in Canada a district with a climate so fair as that of the Okanagan. Its Springs are delightful; its Summers grand; its Autumns just frosty enough to turn the leaves, and its Winters are perfection itself. No district in any country can boast of anything better. Go where you will and you will not find the seasons so marked, and yet so mild. The heat of summer is not at any time oppressive, nor is the cold of winter at all severe.

The weather report of the past month shows an even temperature throughout, with only a few days when the thermometer registered freezing weather. The days are bright and warm, and the snow fall just heavy enough to make good sleighing. By comparing the weather report of December with that of the month November, both of which are published in this issue, it will be seen that the variations have been very slight.

A MISERABLE DEAL

It costs the Province of B.C. in the neighborhood of $40,000 per annum to keep up the payments of the amount appropriated by the government towards the maintenance of the S. & O. road. In return for this enormous expenditure we are getting the most delightfully jerk-water service in the Okanagan. Really the C. P. R. officials, in whose heads this jerk-water system was evolved, are to be congratulated on the perfection of the service in this Valley. From the jerk-water standpoint, there isn't anything to touch it, on land or sea, nor yet in the skies. It runs like molasses in cold weather.

There does not seem to be any desire on the part of the company to accommodate the inhabitants of the Okanagan. On the contrary, it appears to be the purpose of the officials of this division to give as poor a service as it is possible to give and at the same time handle the business of the district. It is notoriously unfair.

SECRET SOCIETIES

Enderby has had its first public experience with the social side of the secret fraternal societies, and it is hoped by all that the experience will be repeated many times. The "At Home" given by the local Orange lodge last Wednesday was a most pleasant event, and afforded an opportunity for the uninitiated to get a glimpse of the work being done by the several fraternal organizations.

All the societies represented in Enderby have a work to do, all aim at the upbuilding and elevation of their members and the community. All have an important position to fill—quite as important as the church.

That all secret societies fall some short of their aims an objects, must be recognized by every thinking member. So do all churches. But that all are doing something to bring about the betterment of man, is equally certain.

The avenue through which a lodge can do its greatest and best work has been closed in Enderby so long that even the members of the lodges have drifted into the error of believing that the lodge is simply an institution for the men, to the shutting out of the women. Such a belief has restricted—will always restrict—the lodge's usefulness. When these public social functions are cut out, the lodge clips its strongest wing. Man can never be developed if he neglects to cultivate his social character. As it is with the individual, so it is with the lodge—it grows strong in exact proportion as it makes itself useful. And no man can be useful who lacks sociability.

POLITICAL QUACKERY

Let our political friends learn a lesson from the advertisements of quacks. They feel out the weaknesses of human beings, and also note the advances in intelligence. For example, you will see in the quack advertisements the statement that, "our remedies do not set up other diseases in place of those they cure." This indicates that the masses are beginning to awake to one of the worst phases of the drug-giving habit. In this there is a hint to our political quacks,—especially those of this province. So many of our provincial laws are aimed at ills which were the direct result of "remedial legislation," that most of the time of our legislature is spent in considering and passing bills that would not be necessary but for the evil effects of measures that have been passed. Why don't the political quacks paraphrase the cunning cry of their fellow-workers in the field of medical quackery.

In the approaching povincial election the people will be promised more "remedial legislation," but why shouldn't our legislators wipe out the laws that make the trouble, instead of cobbling upon legistative folly of past years.

The only great blessing that is waiting for a lazy man is Death—and when it comes the undertaker buries the lazy man and lets the world walk off with the blessing.

HANK BEKLAW IN THE DARK WOODS.

IT ON! That is a good note for each of us to enter upon the duties of the New Year with. Pass it on! Oh, that we might see the glory of passing on a good thing; an inspiring thought, a word of encouragement or of good cheer! What a treasure of good things the world has for us, if we but search for them! What a host of animating spirits hover about us, to inspire and to bless, if we would only receive them, and pass on the good they give us! It is not enough to read a good book, or think a good thought, or hear the whisperings of the spirit by your side. Pass it on!

We are ready, oh, so ready, to pass on the evil we hear! Men store their minds with stories that make sport of the weaknesses of others, and these are told and retold to anyone who will listen. But few men care to take up the good that is floating about and weave it into their lives and the lives of those about them. And what loads of happiness we miss because they will not!

A friend, writing to acknowledge the receipt of a Little Thing Done in Brown, says: "At first I intended to place it amongst my treasured possessions, but afterward, as I thought over it, I entered into the spirit of the writer and of the giver, and I attached a label, 'Pass me on to your neighbor; I pay my way as I go,' and sent it out into a large mining district through hands that will be sure to move it along, and who knows but that it may lighten the way for some tired and weary brother. I am reminded of Emerson's beautiful words:

> Only a thought, but the work it wrought!
> Can never by tongue or pen be taught.
> It passed through a life, like a thread of gold,
> And the life bore fruit an hundred fold.

"And in wishing you a bright and happy New Year, I also most earnestly wish that both you and I, at its close, may be able to truly say, that we have arrived at a fuller intelligence, and a higher and grander spiritual position."

There is the true ring to this friend's words. He has set us a good example for the New Year. Let us pass it on!

WITH HANK REKLAW

Virtue is its own reward—must be.

I have seen people who had so got in the habit of being miserable that they could not be happy in any other state.

The soil that gives the richest harvest is that that is well tilled. The soul that is richest and sweetest is the one that has drunken deepest of life's cup of sorrow.

Very few men and women have reached that state of unselfishness that they will credit another with purity of thought and purpose who dares to think ahead of them.

Perhaps I am mistaken—I do not know; but I believe the only conversion or the only creed that is worth while is the one we create afresh each day, face to face with God.

Some men are so foolish as to think that they can become better men merely by apeing some other good man. It is a well known truth that as we do better work we become better people—and in no other way.

A geological fault is not a sin. A sin is—bless my soul! I ought to know; but really I don't exactly understand just what a sin is. I guess nobody does—excepting the man who never committed one.—Elbert Hubbard.

"Keep away from the dangerous places." This splendid bit of advice is conspicuously posted in all places that are dangerous in a zoological garden. The same warning is needed in all of life's ways. The reason people fall is because they walk into the zoos of life and play marbles with the attendants.

The good thoughts and good deeds of yesterday—of an hour, a moment, ago—will not do for today—for now. Nor am I justified in thinking that I am "right with God" just now because yesterday I felt I was; truth is, I don't know that I've got any right to think anything about it. I only know that just now I am trying to do my duty: that's enough.

"Tell Them"

"Why don't you tell people to place marriage on a high chivalric basis, and let communication be a blessed privilege, not a matter of rights. The way to keep love is not to be anxious about it. The woman who stickles for the word obey is already in rebellion—she has sniffed the battle from afar—of her I do not speak—I am talking about the big, brave, fine, beautiful, honest men and women, who marry for love and find it servitude. A woman's husband should vitalize her thought germs—and could—until she reaches her grand climacteric at eighty-four, if they only lived rightly.

"Why don't you tell the world that marriage is only the beginning of life—not its end: and that a man must win his wife every day; and that a woman must be worthy of a great love—otherwise it will never be hers. Above all, tell them that only great individuals can make great couples; and tell them that in order to be great individuals, you must cultivate the solitude a part of the time.

"No woman wants her soul married to a man—she wants him occasionally for sweet, spiritual communion—but all souls are individuals and must ever be. They must be free. No good and strong woman can be caged—inwardly she resents captivity. We must recognize each other's divinity—that each is a separate personality. No man should seek to crush his wife into his own way of thinking, and no woman should try to own her husband, body and soul. You should tell the women of America that in matrimony the strangle-hold is barred; and that to sit on a husband is not the best way to hold him true; that the advice to give a woman who wants to manage a man is 'don't try!'"
—The Philestine.

Be "Honor Bright"

M. Loth expresses a good thought is this: "Kindle within yourself the sacred fire that burns up all allurements, all lower considerations, and become truly "honor bright." With honor bright within yourself as a guide on the path of life, complete failure is impossible. You will give your work not the leavings of your mind, but your whole mind. You will put mind, heart and soul in your work, and such efforts will, sooner or later, bring success.

Open your heart and soul to truth and set your face resolutely against all falsehood and cant. Justice loves truth and abhores all falsehood. The practice of justice is essential to individual and social happiness. Uphold the truth, and justice will uphold itself.

Those who live only for show usually do not amount to anything in the real work to benefit humanity.

What the Local Pastors Talked About Sunday

Rev. Mr. Campbell gave a New Year sermon in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning, taking for his text the words of Paul: "I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Men may strive to overcome their failures, and start anew to make their lives more useful, but if they live the present in the shadow of the past, they will find that failure will again be their's. The apostle Paul speaks of forgetting the past, and that is what all of us must do if we are to press forward and reach higher. Not only are we to forget our failures—leaving them in God's hands,—but we must also leave our successes there. The remembrance of repeated failures disheartens and unmans one, retarding progress. The remembrance of our successes is equally liable to exercise an influence for evil over us, checking growth by making us rest satisfied with ourselves. To-day's successes are preparing us for greater things tomorrow. All progress is marked by successive failures and successes. The past has been our's. It is not our's now. It is in God's hands. Let us leave it there. All that is or can be our's is in the present and the future. No man has ever achieved all that was possible for him. All have fallen short. Let us leave the past behind and press on in life's work, seeking to forget what has been, and determining to win "the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

In the Methodist church, Sunday evening, Rev. Mr. Roberts took Luke 5:4 for his text, and preached an inspiring sermon for the New Year. Looking back over the past year we can recount many blessings that have been our's. But whether we are prepared to acknowledge them as blessings or not, we all do recognize this truth: we are spending this life—not the interest, but the capital. Every day we live is spent for good; it cannot be recalled. What use are we making of life? We glorify life when we yield it to Jesus. Our talents are then used by Him.

The command of Jesus to Peter was to push out from the shore with his boat. It was only a fisherman's boat, but it was glorified in the use Jesus made of it. Had Simon begun to make excuses, that his boat was not good enough, wait until it could be made ready, etc., Jesus would have selected some other boat; his work must be done. If we shirk the work, somebody else will do it.

Jesus wants us to launch out: attempt great things; do not hug the shore. In church work, in citizenship, in personal life, we must act boldly, and with a steady purpose move straight to the goal. Discouragement comes, we feel our labor is empty of results, or that we are misunderstood. Let us never give up; keep on obeying; yield to God, venture more. Success is sure. Success is of two sorts—success of character, and success of accomplishment. May the New Year see us living this life. The opportunity is now and here.

The heart of the present is the hope of the future.

The Ridiculous Optimist

There was a man who smiled
Because the day was bright;
Because he slept at night;
Because God gave him sight
To gaze upon his child!
Because his little one
Could leap and laugh and run;
Because the distant sun
Smiled on the earth, he smiled.

He toiled and still was glad
Because the air was free;
Because he loved, and she
That claimed his love, and he Shared all the joys they had!
Because the grasses grew;
Because the sweet wind blew;
Because that he could hew
And hammer he was glad.

Because he lived he smiled,
And did not look ahead
With bitterness and dread,
But nightly sought his bed
As calmly as a child.
And people called him mad
For being always glad
With such things as he had,
And shook their heads and smiled.
—S. E. Kiser, in Ballads of the Days.

Early Adjustment Possible

The B. C. Lumberman, discussing the matter of tariff on lumber, says: "The present agitation is not confined to B. C. alone, although this province is the worst sufferer for the lack of a duty on lumber. Information is to hand from nearly every part of the Dominion that representations have been made to the government for the early adjustment of the tariff on lumber importations. Manitoba and the Northwest Territories have hitherto been the strongest opponents of the lumbermen's appeal to the government for relief from unfair competition. That section is now beginning to feel the effect of the stagnation of our industry in the falling off of the B. C. market for its produce, and even the press of that district has within the past few months been strongly advocating the endorsation of the petition for the imposition of a duty on imported lumber, realizing, no doubt, the value of a home market.

The Lumber Industry

While the Ottawa policy of refusing protection to lumber has made it unprofitable to operate the mills of this province to anything like their capacity, American investors profit in two directions. They are selling in the Canadian market in the Northwest, and they are buying the B. C. limits that our mill men would like to have if they could use the timber.

The Revelstoke Herald mentions the case of a Philadelphia lumber company about to erect a fifty or sixty thousand dollar mill in this province merely in order to hold timber for a few years, until it becomes much more valuable on account of scarcity across the border. The Herald believes that the prospect is that lumbering in B. C. will in a few years be exceedingly profitable, even without the assistance of tariff protection, and protests that it would be unfair that those who have invested large sums of money, employed large numbers of men and helped to create a good market for Manitoba and Territorial produce, should be allowed to suffer the full force of a temporary depression, during which it is probable many will be squeezed out.—Columbian.

THE MARKET.

On the New Westminster market poultry, last Friday, brought the usual good prices. Large birds sold from $6 to $7 per dozen. Broilers were not up to the mark and cleared out early at $4 to $5 per dozen. Ducks sold at $8 to $10 per dozen. Geese did a little business at $1 and $1.25 each. A few dressed turkeys retailed at 25c a pound. In vegetables potatoes sold at $18 a ton, carrots 50c per sack, beets 75c, onions $1.50, turnips 50c. The price for eggs remained at 35c wholesale, and 40c retail. Butter remains firm at 30c.
