Enderby Doings

The school will close on Friday for the summer holidays.

Mowat & Baidle are preparing a large list of properties for publication.

Mrs. J. Nichol, in the Jones cottage, Enderby, is prepared to do all kinds of plain sewing and mending.

If you feel your subscription is due, you may have the consoling thought that the editor feels with you.

Robt. Bailey, Esq., is sole agent for the Frost wire fence, the cheapest, staunchest and best looking wire fence made.

The death occurred last week of the 5-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Conraddi, living two miles southeast of Armstrong.

The Ladies of St. George's Guild will have an ice cream and strawberry booth on the recreation grounds on the afternoon of Wednesday, 28th.

The Armstrong creamery is each week making a satisfactory increase in the amount of its output. Some 3000 pounds of butter were made last month.

The Kootenay Mail reports that it is stated the C.P.R. contemplate building a railway from Summerland to Hedley City and other points in the Similkameen.

J. C. English received a carload of mattresses and fancy furniture this week. Call and see those handsome Morris chairs. They are quite Roycroftie—swellest thing out.

Don't wait till the 12th of July if you have a thirst. It is worth a trip to Armstrong just to have your heart feel glad at being rejuvenated by the soda alixir from R. R. Burn's tony fountain.

Save the babies: feed them milk from the Empire dairy. It is fresh, pure, wholesome and hygienic. A postal card will bring their wagon to your door. Strickland & Wellman.

Mark Hill is advertising for sale his entire stock of cattle, which includes seventy head of good grade Durhams. Mr. Hill desires to dispose of his cattle in order to more closely devote his attention to growing fruit.—Advance.

A. E. Taylor is giving nightly concerts from the balcony of the Enderby Hotel, with one of the largest made talkophone, an instrument that puts all other disc machines in the cool of the shadow. He always has an appreciative audience.

A local exchange, telling of a wedding which took place a few days ago, says "the bride was dressed" so and so, and "the groom wore a smile." Maybe this is enough in some climates, but in the Okanagan grooms are not usually so thinly attired.

This afternoon the Armstrong baseball team will play the local team on the recreation grounds, and the Mountaineers will play the Enderby football team. These games will be well worth the price of admission. Turn in and help the committee out!

Farmers state that owing to the excessively rank growth fall wheat on some of the heavier soil is going to be too heavy and fall. This is by no means a serious condition, and only speaks of the rapid growth being made this season.—Armstrong Advance.

The C.P.R. wants us to publish a local reader telling about cheap cable rates to Japan. We won't do it. If the C.P.R. wants an "ad" in THE EDENOGRAPH, the C.P.R. will have to pay for it, just like the editor has to pay his way when he rides over the C.P.R.

Posters have been distributed announcing a celebration of the First of July at Vernon. It will be held under the auspices of the Vernon Fire Brigade, and prize money amounts to one thousand dollars. There will be lacrosse and baseball matches and numerous other athletic events.

Enderby Lodge K. of P. will give their wives and sweethearts and a few guests a royal good time next Monday evening. After an early lodge meeting the members and guests will assemble at the Orange hall, where a program of song and music will be given. At its close all adjourn to the Restaurant where plates will be laid for 60.

Yes, "to the pure all things are pure," but the frequent exhibitions of "horse show" in the yard opposite the Bank of Montreal are neither elevating nor decent. If the main street is to be turned into a breeding yard the City Council should prepare a schedule of hours showing when the performance is to begin, thus obviating the scramble for front seats, side peeps and knot holes.

On Sunday recently about a score of Napinka people were out at the lake fishing, and it would be difficult to say how many fishing rods are in use along the Souris every Sabbath day, and really the only things that are hurt by the practice are the fish. "Of course," logically concludes the Hartney Star, "men might be more usefully employed, but they might also be more viciously employed if they are determined not to go to Sunday school."

Some fine samples of hay are shown in the Enderby office of H. P. Lee, from Donald Matheson's place, Salmon River Valley. The Timothy is 5 ft. 1 inch, Broom Grass 5 ft., and clover 3 ft. 6 in. Last Friday Messrs. Lee & Hale took a party of four Manitobans to see the farming country about Enderby. The visitors were greatly pleased with what they saw, and intend to return to Enderby when they have been shown the Valley by Mr. Lee.

As a result of a tour of inspection through the interior districts from Okanagan, the Similkameen and Nicola, says the Nicola Herald, Mr. C. Sweeney superintendent of B. C. branches, and Mr. Henderson manager of the Bank of Montreal at Vernon, have decided that Nicola is the place to have a branch bank of the institution which they represent. Accordingly Mr. Henderson arrived in town last Monday evening and announced his intentions to the people of this section, and at once set about making arrangements for suitable quarters for the bank.

Football at Huntley

Last Wednesday evening Enderby football club opposed the Mountaineers at Huntley. Carruthers opened the game by tipping the sphere to the left wing and White getting possession made ground for the visitors. The home defence was on its best behaviour, and Thomson returned with a powerful punt, which was the prelude to some lively exchanges in the visitor's territory. Smart clearing by the Bailey brothers put Enderby on the aggressive, and from ten yards out O'Grady scored.

Encouraged by this success Enderby renewed the attack, Carruthers being prominent. The teams changed goals with the score Enderby 1, Mountaineers 0. The opening feature of the second half was defensive work, in which Zettegreen and Folkard excelled for Enderby. The Mountaineers pressed the Enderby goal hard, and finally scored, Beswick putting the ball through, amid great excitement. The game resulted Enderby 2, Mountaineers 1. Enderby's team: goal, R. Bailey; backs, C. Hancock, J. Bailey, half-backs, A. Zettegreen, J. Scott, Geo. Folkard; forwards, H. White, R.

Wheeler, A. Carruthers, M. O'Grady, A. E. White. Mountaineers: goal, F. Denison; backs, W. Thompson, C. Glinton; half-backs, Rose, Jones, Rose; forwards, M. S. Bird, W. W. Morton; C. Beswick, W. Glenn, B. Hoffman. Referee, F. Folkard.

Summerland Church Opening

The new church will be opened in Summerland, on Sunday June 18th, 1905. Rev. J. H. White, D.D., and Rev. A. Henderson will deliver the sermons and addresses of the day. Services will be held at 11 a.m., 3 p.m. and 8 p.m.

On Monday the 19th, following the opening, the ladies of Summerland hold a tea meeting in Empire Hall, from 5 to 7.30 p.m., the admission to which will be 50c.

Following the meeting there will be a gathering in the church, summoned by the Summerland band, at 8 o'clock. The selections in music will include a solo by Mrs. Gartrell, a duet by the Bennet Brothers of Peachland, a duet by Mr. Logie and Mrs. Ritchie, etc.

Short addresses will be delivered by Revs. Henderson, Ritchie, Simpson, Dr. White, C. W. White, Whiting and J. M. Robinson, Esq.

The church building, site and furnishings have cost about $2000, the large part of which has been already subscribed.

Sunday Rest By-Law

That all may thoroughly understand the full purport of the Sunday observance by-law now before the City Council, we publish it in full. The preamble is sufficient. It is drawn on such high lines that it leaves no room for cant and quibble:

Whereas, it is considered desirable, in the best interests of the community, that the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, should be set apart for the purpose of worship, rest, and such quiet recreations and occupations as are conducive to physical and moral improvement.

Now, therefore, the Corporation of the City of Enderby, in council assembled, do hereby enact as follows:—

1. From and after the passing of this By-Law, it shall not be lawful for any person or persons, body or bodies corporate, within the City of Enderby, to buy or sell, or to offer or expose for sale, any goods, chattels or other personal property whatsoever, except milk, drugs and medicine, on Sunday;

2. And it shall not be lawful for any person or persons, body or bodies corporate to do any kind of work whatsoever on Sunday for profit, wages or remuneration of any description, direct or indirect; nor to employ any person or persons to work for profit, wages or remuneration of any description, direct or indirect; nor to employ any person or persons to work for profit, wages or remuneration of any description, direct or indirect, except servants, watchmen, policemen, and persons having the care of animals; always provided that in case of fire or riot, or jeopardy to life or property from any cause whatsoever, nothing in this By-Law contained shall be held to hinder or prevent any person or persons, body or bodies corporate, from working or hiring others to work, or doing whatever may be right and necessary to protect such life or property until the jeopardy be passed.

A C. P. R. Loyalty Cry

It has always been the policy of the C. P. R. to wave the "loyalty" flag with one hand while it twisted the thumb-screws with the other. When it scents danger ahead in the line of competition, this great philanthropic corporation, with a soul so small it would drown in a teaspoon, sends its emissaries to Ottawa and by working the machine manages to hoodwink the people through the press and by the aid of our honest M. P.'s, and eventually secures what it wants—the shutting out of competition. There is a case now in point. For years the Similkameen country has been crying for a railroad, but to all the pleadings of that vastly rich district the C. P. R. has turned a deaf ear. Now the Great Northern Railway is building into that district and is seeking to get the V. V. & E. charter so amended that that road will be able to reach the coast cities by this route. To this the C. P. R. objects. It is a great lover of the dog in the manger policy. And from the office of the Nelson Tribune it has issued thousands of copies of a campaign booklet in which it decries "a policy that depopulates Canadian towns," endeavoring to show that the incoming of the American road would take the people out of the Canadian towns to the towns across the line. The fact is, as everybody knows, that the incoming of American roads means the incoming of American capital and American people. The Northwest has not been "depopulated" by their incoming, nor will the Similkameen be.

Recreation Field

It seems hard for some people to grasp the idea that the Recreation Grounds Committee is not a private concern. Many speak of it as if the members of that committee were holding the grounds as an investment, to enrich themselves. The facts are, the members of the Recreation Grounds Committee are holding the ground at their own cost for the city. The agreement on which the grounds were purchased from Mr. Barnes makes it impossible to use the grounds for any other purpose, and all moneys that are made are turned into the recreation grounds fund; the committee giving their time and labor gratis.

The following communication from the City Council to the committee's secretary will give a clear understanding of how the matter stands:

City Clerk's Office, Enderby, B. C., June 7th, 1905.

Jas. E. English, Esq., Secretary Recreation Grounds Committee, Enderby:

Sir: The City Council, at their last meeting, again considered this matter, and I am directed to state, for the information of the Recreation Grounds Committee, that, after obtaining legal advice, they find it is impossible for the city to issue debentures for the purchase of the recreation ground until an assessment of the municipality has been made, a Court of Revision held, all complaints and protests heard, adjustments attended to, and the assessment finally adopted by the Council.

As this process, together with the passage of the necessary by-law, would occupy a considerable amount of time and involve considerable expense; as an assessment will in any case have to be made in the early part of next year; as the unexpired term of the present Council is short, and as they have much important work on their hands, feeling that their chief duty lies in investigation, deliberation and organization—the laying of a broad and substantial foundation for the future—they are of opinion that the interests of the city will be best served by postponing the completion of the recreation ground scheme until after the regular assessment has been made next spring; in fact, they feel that this is the only practicable course.

My Council therefore trust that your committee will see their way to carry on the project and meet the obligations which it involves, until such time as the city is in a position to take a conveyance of the land, and relieve them of the responsibility.

My Council believe that the recreation ground will prove a most valuable improvement to the city, and conducive in many ways to its welfare, and they greatly appreciate the civic zeal and enterprise shown by your committee, in so promptly taking hold of the scheme at a time when they (the Council) were unable to handle it; and they feel that they are voicing not only their own, but the sentiments of the whole community, in offering to your committee their most sincere and hearty thanks for the energy and public spirit displayed by them.

I have the honor to be, Sir, Your obedient servant,

GRAHAM ROSOMAN, City Clerk.

SALMON ARM ITEMS.

The saw mill is running full time. S. McGuire is building a handsome cottage. L. Hains is finishing an addition to his house. Currie & McKay have their store about finished.

Tom Atcheson is moving to his farm nine miles up the Salmon river.

The Council met on the 10th, and made preparations for starting business by calling for tenders for Municipal Clerk at next meeting, the 17th of June.

Married—At the residence of the bride's parents, Salmon Arm, B. C., June 7th, by the Rev. J. Duncan, Mr. C. A. R. Grant, of Vernon, and Miss Amy Pratt.

The prospect for a bumper crop makes business brisk around the Arm. Strawberries are on the move; raspberries soon to follow, with green peas and new potatoes. All these with the steady shipment of milk brings a supply of the stuff that makes the mare go.

Several contracts are being offered for clearing land ready for orchard planting. T. A. Sharp has let the contract for clearing 20 acres on his farm he purchased here last year. R. Seaford is doing extensive improvements on his fruit farm which he purchased from J. Dalzell.

T. W. Stirling, president, and W. J. Brandrith, secretary, of the B. C. Fruit Growers' Association, addressed the fruit growers of Salmon Arm on the 5th, accompanied by Maxwell Smith, Dominion Fruit Inspector; each gave valuable and practical information. Fruit growers here feel pleased that the Association has elected for its president a practical man from the Okanagan district, and feel satisfied he will give general satisfaction all over the Province.

High Pressure Realty.

H. P. Lee returned from Enderby on Saturday last. He states that the crops are in first-class condition, and was particularly pleased with the Salmon River valley, and the splendid country in the neighborhood of the sister town. He states that there is a great deal of magnificent fruit land in the northern sections of the Okanagan and along tributary valleys, and believes that it will take a great deal of emigration to settle the great areas that can be placed upon the market. His faith in this section is shown by his opening a branch office at Enderby, which he has placed in the hands of Arthur Hale.—Vernon News.

Wedding At Vernon.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. McCulloch was the scene of a pleasing event on Friday last, when their daughter Bessie was united in marriage to O. St. Clair Mabey. The wedding was very quiet, only a few intimate friends and relatives of the happy couple being present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. Muir.—News.

City Council Meeting

The lightest evening's work since the Council began business was that of last Wednesday night. All the members were present and the Mayor in the chair.

The official seal was affixed to the by-law regulating the proceedings of the Council, and the Assessment by-law. The bill of $60 for a typewriter was ordered paid. An invitation from Vernon was read, asking the city officials to be present at the Dominion Day celebration. The Sabbath Observance by-law was read the first time. The matter of appointing licence commissioners, also the securing of water records, and the appointment of a constable, were discussed and the clerk instructed to communicate with the proper officials.

SUNDAY BY-LAW.

The City Council has adopted the wise course in dealing with the question of Sunday observance in Enderby. The by-law, printed in full elsewhere in this issue, is moderate, and deals with the subject on a broad and liberal basis, yet maintaining the Sabbath as a day of rest.

In matters of this nature, no corporate body has the power to go any further than to control the actions of individuals in public places, and to forbid the employment for wage of any man or body of men. To attempt to say what shall constitute a day of rest is not in the council's jurisdiction. Or to say what a man shall do on his own grounds, within his own gate, is to set up a dictatorial form of government that would do infinitely more harm than good.

WORKING UP A SCARE.

The notorious John Houston, editor, member of parliament, Czar and boss printer; the man who walked into Nelson with his pants frayed at the heels and afterwards became its mayor, is just now in a peck of trouble. At least, he thinks he is. He thinks Editor Deane of the Nelson News wants him assassinated. John is making an awful howl about it. He seems to have scared himself into believing that Editor Deane really wants him out of the way, and is using the columns of the Tribune to advertise the fact.

Now we always did like John Houston. Ever since he let us sit on his editorial table without asking any questions. But if John really wants to work up a sensation on himself he would make a cleaner job of it if he would go out in the woods and let somebody kill him. It doesn't much matter what Editor Deane would like. His wishes do not interest the public any more than John Houston's wishes. But everybody likes a sensation, and John can make a heap better sensation dead than alive. Now is the time. Better be a dead editor—dead by the assassin's knife—than a live mayor too scared to be killed.

WHAT IT MEANS.

The San Francisco Argonaut speaking of the Japanese naval victory says: "This naval battle is more than a blow to the prestige of Russia. It is a menace to the entire white race. It is a warning to all the Western world. The steady advance of the Japanese land forces against Russia's broken battalions is also ominous. What is to save the twentieth century from seeing another Mongolian war lord—a new Genghis Khan? Certainly not the prowess of Occidental armies or navies. Would any Occidental power today enter the field against Japan single-handed without a qualm? If so, what power?"

Will this new power content itself with taking from Russia her Asiatic holdings? Will it not the rather encourage China to lift up her head, to shake off the hated Occidental yoke, to arm and let loose her swarming millions, and to make all the Asiatic coast Mongolian again? What will become of France's holdings on the Cochin-China coast? What of Germany's "sphere of influence" around Tsing Tau? What of Great Britain's crown colonies, like Hong-kong? What of the United States holdings in the Philippine Archipelago? And if Japan should endeavor to make these ex-Asiatic holdings Mongolian again, can the United States wage a more effective war at a distance of ten thousand miles from Washington than Russia has from Petersburg? Can Germany from the Wilhelm-Strasse? Or Great Britain from Downing street?

ANOTHER KINGDOM.

Norway is now an independent kingdom. Last week a resolution was passed by the Norwegian Storting, disclaiming the sovereignty of King Oscar, and setting up the kingdom of Norway. The resolutions passed by the Storting set forth officially and definitely the cause of separation. While the consular bill is the immediate explanation, the desire for complete independence has extended for many years back. Norway did not willingly join the union with Sweden; but was powerless to resist the force of circumstances at the time it was accomplished, and ever since the yoke has been irksome. The present action, though not unexpected, is rather more sudden than was anticipated. The King of Sweden, who is now no longer recognized by the Norwegian Government, will not accept the decision, which, it is held, must have the sanction of Sweden as well. It is feared in some quarters that the crisis thus created may give rise to international complications. However, outside of Denmark and Russia, the interests of other nations are not affected—although it is possible that the Emperor of Germany may feel called upon, as the self-constituted dictator of European affairs, to interfere. Denmark naturally feels cheerful over the action of Norway, and Russia has troubles of its own. Sweden will probably find that it is best to accept the inevitable. Norway does not express any sentiments of hostility to Sweden, and asks a Swedish prince as King. Sweden will probably find it better to have a friendly ally and neighbor than an unwilling partner, and, therefore, the elements of great danger in the situation do not exist, unless it arises from outside interference.

With The Owl

WALKER REKLAW IN THE DARK WOODS.

HAT is it to be an enthusiast? I'll tell you: To be an enthusiast is to be a non-conformist—a thorn in the side of every man who won't grow. Enthusiasm in Little Bill is recognized as vigorous, open-hearted honesty. It is intensified gladness: it is life flowing out unrestrained. Enthusiasm in Big Bill is looked upon as a mild form of insanity by men who do not know. Enthusiasts are winked at.

There are persons so devoid of understanding, and so dried up by jealousy and jaundice that they fail to see what is before, behind, underneath, above, and within the man who enthuses in his work. And some men are quite alarmed when their friends hint at enthusiasm in connection with their accomplishments. If we would accept the word in its true meaning, men may well glory in the appellation.

Rightly understood, enthusiasm means quite the reverse of lunacy. It means the exercise of zeal; it means intense interest; strength and clearness of imagination; honesty and boldness of heart. A man must be mentally and morally and physically strong to be an enthusiast. He must rise above mediocrity. He must be himself at whatever cost. An enthusiast is one who has learned the secret of saving his life by losing it in his work, thus so forcing his personality into the work done that it becomes a live thing to sing the praise of the man who made it.

He who is afraid to be winked at,—afraid to brave the rules of conformity,—need never alarm himself or his friends about the perils of greatness—he scarcely will experience them. An enthusiast will find himself everlastingly a knocker of dead living men's idols. That means a life of trial, of work and fainting not.

From Christ all down the ages it has been the enthusiast who has kept the world alive; who has put Life into business, into church, into society, into home, into community—into everything that has Life and lives. The sum of all faith, all hope, all work, is enthusiasm. Enthusiasm has covered the earth with its accomplishments. Lack of enthusiasm has brought ruin to a vast army of good men.

Here's A "Whale" of a Story

"DEAR, dear, that's too bad," murmured the Ancient Mariner, shaking his grizzled head with melancholy concern. "It's a pity, but I always said trouble would come of it. When you go to fooling with nature you can't expect anything else."

"What is it? Why, this here case of the whaling bark Kathleen that was rammed and sunk by a sperm whale, leaving the crew and the skipper's wife and the skipper's wife's parrot adrift in open boats with no tobacco a thousand miles east of Barbados. I feel a kind of personal responsibility for that there calamity; though Lord knows it wa'n't my fault, for I done all I could to prevent it."

"Why do you suppose that there whale went for that there ship? The mate says it was revenge, because he seen his wife killed."

"Rats! There ain't but very little sentiment about a bull sperm whale. He don't emotion none as a rule in the tender emotions. He don't go in for chivalry like us—his motives is strictly practical."

"Kearney had a schooner, the Lady Mine, that used to be a pilot boat, and would sail in any kind of weather that a flyin' fish would live in. We cruised around in the northwest trades for awhile lookin' for sperm-calf, for Kearney said that to get the best results from education you must catch 'em young."

"I won't bore you tellin' about that cruise, though it would make a mighty good story itself, but at last we caught our calf and h'isted him into a tank on deck. Kearney named him Little Willie, after a kid of his own. Then we put for the reef, which had a smooth lagoon inside of it, and was altogether as well cut out for a whale academy as any place you could find in the geography."

"Kearney's idee was to use his whales mostly for rams, though sometimes for torpedo boats. So he had a harness fitted over Little Willie's head, with a steel spur in front, and he trained him to go full tilt at an old hulk that was moored for a target."

"How did he make him do it? Why, every time Little Willie would hit the hulk fair and square, Kearney would give him a lump of sugar. You don't mean to say you didn't know that whales liked sugar. Next time you meet one, you just offer him a lump and see what he does."

"Well, as things went on the experiment seemed to be a success. Little Willie absorbed education as if his father had been a college president. He would lie pointing at the target with his flukes a-quiverin' like a cat's tail when she's watching for a mouse, and then when Kearney would give the signal by proddin' him with a harpoon he would shoot forward like a bullet and hit that hulk a swipe that would rattle it like a dynamite blast. Then he would swim back, happy and proud, for his sugar, with a smile on his face that would take in a four-horse truck."

"Sometimes Kearney would rig him up with a spar torpedo, and he was trained to stop at them times and back away as soon as the spar touched the target."

"Well, I was worried all the time, for I didn't know where all this was goin' to end. Little Willie kept growin' bigger and bigger, and we had to keep fittin' him with new ram bows in place of those he'd outgrown and gettin' more hulks to take the places of those he was smashing into kindlin'. It looked to me as if there was trouble ahead, and sure enough there was."

"One day Kearney was in a bad humor and absent-minded. When he started out for target practice he jabbed Little Willie with the harpoon before he got him headed in the right direction. Off he shot, as he'd been taught."

"Kearney tried to call him back, but you know yourself it wasn't reasonable to expect he'd hear it. In another minute Little Willie had smashed clean through the side of the Lady Mine, and then he came back, innocent and self-satisfied, for his sugar."

"Well, you never saw a man so crazy with rage as what Kearney was. Although the thing was entirely his own fault, he laid it all to that poor, inoffensive beast, and when Little Willie swam up, expectin' to be praised and rewarded, as he had a perfect right to, Kearney yelled: 'Get away, you lubber!' and give him a kick."

"Well, you know Little Willie never had such an insult before, and he knocked him all in a heap. He looked at us reproachful for a minute, and then he turned around on his tail, dignified and deliberate, and put to sea. We never seen him again."

"Now you see what happened to the Kathleen, don't you? The whale was a layin' head on the ship when they run the harpoon into him. He took that for the signal, and without stoppin' to think he carried out his trainin'."

"And I'm bettin' that if those men hadn't been too flustered to look, they'd have seen that there whale had on a ram bow."—N. Y. Sun.

"The whale rammed that ship because that was what he had been trained to do. He wasn't no wild whale—he was my long lost pet Little Willie."

"I bet if I'd been there and whistled to him he'd have swum up to me smilin' and wagged his tail. Did you ever see a whale smile? Well, just go to the zoo and look at the hippopotamus through the biggest pair of spy-glasses you can find, and you can get some idea of the effect."

"How do I know he was Little Willie? How do you know a cyclone struck a town when you ain't seen it? By the results, don't you? Well, I don't need no more to identify my pet."

"Of course there's a little discrepancy. The mate says the whale that struck the Kathleen was 110 feet long. Little Willie was 110 feet one inch and three-quarters. But that ain't no fatal difference."

"You don't realize unless you've seen a sperm whale in action how hard it is to take his measure within an inch or two under them circumstances. I've known men to miss it by as much as six inches—old hands at the business, too."

"With sea serpents it's worse yet. Once I heard a lookout report a sea serpent 450 feet long, and when we got him aboard we packed him into a mess-pork barrel, with room enough left for a mermaid."

"The discrepancy about the weight looks worse at first sight than the one about the length, but there really ain't nothin' in it. The mate says the Kathleen's whale weighed 100 tons. Little Willie weighed 103 tons 979 pounds 11 ounces and three-eighths the last time I saw him, but you know yourself how even people will lose flesh on poor board."

As long as Willie stayed with us we always saw that he got plenty to eat, but after he left us he had to hustle for himself. I don't count that little loss of three tons or so as any evidence against identification at all."

"Trainin' whales was Jim Kearney's fad. There never was a greater genius than what Jim Kearney was, but he was reckless and sort of unbalanced. He got the notion that trained whales was to be the great naval feature of the comin' century. It made him eloquent to talk about it."

"The battle fleets of the future," he would say, "is cruisin' by fluke power through the tropic seas. They need no coalin' stations, no dry docks, no reserves of men and ammunition. Nature is keepin' them up in inexhaustible numbers for the nation that has wit enough to use them, and that nation will have the mastery of the sea."

"Kearney was so possessed with this notion that he determined to begin tryin' experiments himself. He had a bit of a reef in the Bahamas that nobody ever visited, and he persuaded me to go down there and help him."

"I tried to get him to give the thing up, but you might as well try to flag a Vanderbilt automobile with a red necktie. He was just set, and there wasn't anything for it but to let him have his own way."

EXPENSIVE RABBITS.

The Costly Game Preserve of a Famous French Writer, and a Neighbor's Trick.

An amusing story is told by the Courrier des Etats-Unis concerning Guy de Maupassant, who once maintained near his home a rabbit-warren of a few acres in the midst of cultivated fields. The enterprise was a source of plentiful income to the Normandy peasants, who took the opportunity to plant choice vegetables in the adjoining fields. Then they demanded large compensation for the alleged damage done by their neighbor's rabbits. Every year de Maupassant had to pay heavily, and the peasants began to feel that a rabbit-warren was an excellent neighbor."

After a few years, however, the owner of the warren began to grow tired of the arrangement. He reckoned that under the existing state of things the few rabbits he shot cost him about $20 each, which was rather too much, even for an enthusiastic sportsman. So he determined to destroy the game preserve."

It was not much trouble. There were only four or five burrows in the enclosure, and a few ferrets soon killed all the occupants."

One night, after all the rabbits had been destroyed, the owner happened to visit his former preserve, and detected a man skulking along under the trees, with a large bag on his back. de Maupassant at once jumped to the conclusion that the man had come to steal wood. When he challenged him, the supposed thief took to his heels, leaving the bag behind him. It was found to be filled with rabbits of both sexes."

The man was no thief, but a neighbor of the writer, who, shrewdly reasoning that there could be no more damages if there were no rabbits, had thought it advisable to restock the warren."

Under The Olive Tree

We simplify life by living naturally.

Every man finds that the first step towards settling down is to settle up.

This is the season when you pop the question and then question pop.

The surest way to put sin out of business is to reach above him for Something better.

When love is buried under a load of selfishness it is pretty hard to pull her out unscathed.

When a man feels he has a work to do he would be the veriest coward if he refuse to step up.

How strange it is that men are so ready to kick the man who is down and boost the man who is up.

When we condemn a man unheard, we do ourselves a great injustice in that we shut our eyes to his virtues.

We do not speak from experience, but it does seem that the best club for a married man to stick to is the sitting room.

Every young lady knows the danger of compression of the waist, but is willing to take a long chance when George, dear, is near.

Thought messages are flying all about you. To get in touch, tune your receiver to catch the pure and holy—they will come to you.

Too many people pray God for His divine spirit to rest upon them with a pipe full of sin in their pocket or a bite of it in their mouth.

Noxious weeds are only plants that we do not understand. Like all of God's creation, when understood rightly they have their virtues.

It is easier to damn than to forgive; and since "man makes God in his own image," he teaches that God is more ready to do the lesser thing than the greater.

Our conception of fairness is all a matter of perspective. When we have tasted of the flesh pots it is a difficult matter to see things from a totally unprejudiced stand point.

We have heard from President Roosevelt about the "strenuous life." Rev. Wagner tells the world about the "simple life," and now our friend Wm. J. Twiss is radiating the sublimity of the Canada Life! We do hear much about life!

Sometimes we meet a man so sot agin the Truth that he won't recognize it if it doesn't come down the chute of dogma. Speaking of dogma reminds me: A young lady school marm wanted to see what the word dogma meant to the children in her class, and she asked them to compose a sentence with the word properly used in the sentence. One bright little fellow came at it this way: "Our dogma has seven pups."

In the Pulpits

What the Local Pastors Talked About Sunday

Rev. Mr. Campbell preached a sermon to young men Sunday morning in the Presbyterian church, taking his text from I John 2:14. Of all men from whom we may take advice it is such a man as the Apostle John, who in his close touch with Jesus, and his sympathy for his fellows, was given a keener insight into mankind than was the privilege of any of the inspired writers. The young men to whom the apostle wrote, and of whom he spoke as being strong, were not those of great physical strength, nor yet those of great literary genius, but rather, he spoke to those who were strong in the strength of God, and "had overcome the wicked one." The true test of strength was not on the athletic field, nor yet in the literary. It is found in the place where the young man has to stand for principle and truth in the face of scoffings and ridicule from his friends. Behind the man in whom the word of God abides there is a strength that never fails; he is strong in every position of life; he will be found performing his duty regardless of the abuse or the applause of those about him. The man who is attempting to go through life in his own strength will one day collapse; whereas the man living in fellowship with God will never waver, no matter in what position he finds himself placed.

"For the love of Christ constraineth us," was the text of Rev. Mr. Miller's discourse in the Methodist church Sunday evening. He illustrated by the life of Paul the fruitfulness of a Christian's life when the love of Christ is the constraining power of that life. In the face of rebuffs and ridicule the apostle still fought for the souls of men, but he fought always in love. When the love of Christ is in one's heart there is such a hungering for souls that one cannot find any rest outside of the work for souls. If we as Christians do not feel that longing to aid in the bringing of others to Christ; if we have become indifferent to the welfare of our friends and neighbors we have not the love of Christ in us. There is nothing so precious as the soul; nothing can recompense for its loss. We may win honor, fame and riches but if one's soul is lost in the winning life has been a failure. No life can be fruitful in soul winning that has not love in it. Christ's kingdom is founded on love, and His life work was one of love. No life is so potential as that constrained by the love of Christ, and none so sure of results. We may have the wealth of the world, and the knowledge of the sages, but if Christ's love is lacking our efforts will not avail.

A License Cannot Be Revived

The Department of Lands and Works, Victoria, has just issued a notice of importance regarding the renewal of timber and coal prospecting licenses. The notice is to the effect that all applications for renewals of licenses must be made to the department, accompanied by the requisite fee, before the date of the expiration of the existing license in order that the renewals may be granted. No renewal can be granted in the cases of licenses which have expired.

It is announced that the reason for this state of affairs is that according to the law as it now stands the department has power only to renew licenses—it cannot revive any. Therefore, once a license has expired it is dead for all time.

Must Select This Month

The grants of land made by the provincial government to the volunteers for the South African war must be selected on or before July 1 next, according to the terms of the act. Notice to this effect has been issued by Hon. R. F. Green, chief commissioner of lands and works. There has been no special movement in the transfer of scrip authorized under this act recently; in fact, it seems rather a drug on the market. The highest point it has touched was $275 and

Bear this in Mind

There may be, no doubt there are, features about other parts of the Okanagan that will equal anything we have about Enderby in the way of nature's provisions for home-life, but certainly none can excell us. Climatic conditions are perfect; and for health and beauty, Enderby's location is unsurpassed. No cold, damp weather, or hot sultry days.
