J. L. Hartwell has taken up his residence on his farm near Enderby.

J. C. Metcalfe is making room for Santa Claus. You will find him in his iron box.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Williamson, of New Denver, passed through to Vernon this morning.

Ira Jones is assisted in his contract work by his brother, who arrives this week from the East.

Miss Gracie Baker, of Vernon, is spending a few days with Mrs. F. Pyman, of our Eden.

Mrs. Crane and Mrs. Parker entertained a party of young men at their home last Wednesday evening.

The dress making parlors of the Enderby Trading Company are the busiest center of industry in the Bell block.

The ladies' Mission Study Circle will meet Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Geo. Bell.

A. Todd has called a meeting of the members of the Curling Club, at THE EDENOGRAPH office for Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

R. P. Bradley has a large stock of table lamps that will grace many an Enderby parlor before the world is a month older.

When coasting comes the boys and girls of Enderby will find the swiftest sleds at J. C. English's. He soft-soaps the runners.

Twenty men went to the lumber camps this week. Andy Falkner has started another camp about seven miles up the Mable Lake valley.

L. W. Platten is calling for tenders for digging 190 rods of irrigation ditch; plans and specifications can be seen at his residence, Grafton Farm.

A. M. Baird left for Waterloo, Ont., last Wednesday evening to attend the annual convention of the Brick Makers' Association of Canada. He will spend the holidays in the East.

Jas. R. Linton has the contract for painting the Enderby Hotel and has the work well in hand. E. H. Robinson, his sign writer, went to Armstrong last week to do some work there.

Miss Garnett has arranged to place her bread on sale at the Enderby Trading Co.'s store. She wants it to be understood that she uses nothing but Enderby flour, and her bread speaks its own worth.

H. W. Wright and Geo. R. Sharpe have purchased of Wm. Hancock the best sets of harness ever handled here. Everything is black but the reins, and these give a very stylish appearance in their natural finish.

Orchard & Crawford are finishing the interior of the handsome residence of F. H. Hale. This is the first finished job of painting that has been done on any residence in Enderby, and from cellar to garret the work is in perfect harmony.

Geo. Doyle became unconscious shortly after being removed to the Vernon hospital last Wednesday, and on Thursday night his life was despaired of. Saturday morning he rallied, and has since continued to improve. In addition to having his leg broken, the concussion brought on hemorrhage of the brain.

H. W. Harvey states that the formation of the coal company is progressing favorably, and will soon be in position to proceed with the development on a larger scale. At the mine workings indications are proving satisfactory. The coal seam increases in width and solidity as the tunnel is driven on it.

The death occurred at the City Hospital Vernon, on Wednesday, Nov. 30th, of Montie Sias, nephew of Reeve Wickersham of Surrey, and grandson of Mr. Smith of Cloverdale. The deceased was 22 years of age. Death was caused by rheumatism of the heart, from which Mr. Sias had suffered for several years, and with which he was ill for about four months before the end came.

Shattford Bros. of Vernon and Fairview, general merchants, have managed to finance the Ellis ranch deal, and the land will now be subdivided. The amount mentioned in connection with the deal is $400,000, of which $300,000 is for the land and $100,000 for the stock. The company in which the Ellis ranch is to be vested is to be capitalized at $500,000. The shareholders will comprise business men from every part of Canada, from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The New Mill at Kamloops.

Business is quiet at the head office of the Kamloops Lumber Company, at Enderby. The Enderby mill is closed down for the season. They have 80,000,000 feet of lumber piled in the yards here, and are shipping a few carloads each week.

Since the fire which destroyed the mill at Kamloops, owned by the company, some time ago, negotiations have been going on between the Lumber Co. and the city council of Kamloops towards the securing of a site for the erection of a modern mill to replace the old one. These negotiations resulted in the city securing for the company the foreshore rights owned by the Shuswap Milling Co., which will allow ample facilities for the better handling of logs as they come down the river, while the site for the new mill is on the south side of the C.P.R. track, about 100 yards west of the old refuse conveyor. The logs in the river will be conveyed to the north end of the mill building, a distance of 250 feet, by a jack-ladder, placed in a sub-way under the railway tracks.

The mill will in every respect be new, and will be fully equipped with all the most modern labor-saving appliances. It is estimated that the plans and equipment will involve an expenditure of $75,000. The capacity of the mill running full time will be 20,000,000 annually.

According to C. E. Kendall, the Company's constructing millwright, the mill building is to be 136x30 feet; the planer shed 60x60 feet, and the boiler house 36x50 feet. The Waterous Engine Co. of Brantford, will supply the machinery, consisting of a double cutting band-saw, steam roller, steam nigger, automatic lumber transfers, and a slash table. This last is a recent device, having 16 saws for cutting edgeings automatically into 16-inch lengths. Two 125-h.p. engines drive all the machinery in the main building and the planer shed. In the latter will be installed a heavy planer, a moulding stickler, a lightning fast-feed flooring machine and a re-saw. The steam power is to be furnished from a battery of three 125-h.p. boilers. The saw and planing mills will be equipped with refuse conveyors and blowers.

To Increase the Output.

A. M. Baird has sold a half interest in the Enderby Brick Yard to R. R. Gibbs, of Kelowna. It is the intention of the firm to largely increase the capacity of the yard, and next year the output will be three times that of the past season, and the firm will reach beyond the Okanagan Valley for business.

We can Flower if we Want To.

Our nursery friend, M. J. Henry, writes us: "I am mailing you a small parcel of bulbs to plant on that land your kickers claim you have not got Plant them in a box of earth anyway, and have some bloom in the winter."

Thanks! We are going to have some bloom if we have to pull the flipper flapper out of the gripper grabber, and throw the rocker arm around our big presses' platten ear, and get into the throw off saddle with our feet on the rocker lock!

New Governor-General.

Earl Grey, who succeeds the Earl of Minto as Governor-General of Canada, is on his way to Canada, accompanied by the Countess, their two daughters and two aides-de-camp.

Wm. J. Twiss, provincial manager of the Mutual Life of Canada, is spending a day or two in Enderby, after a most successful trip through the south end of the Valley.

Dr. Tunstall has fitted up an office in the Bell Block.

Our Jerk-Water Road

Commencing Monday, the C. P. R. instituted its regular winter jerk-water service over the Okanagan branch, from Sicamous to Okanagan Lake. And it is a jerk-water service, equal, indeed, to the best that ever ran out of Jerk Water to carry loose hay to the cattle down at Podunk. Trains are run up the Valley every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and down every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. The engineer carries the time-table in his pocket. When you start south you can feel reasonably certain that you will reach your destination before the rails rust over, and if you start north you will reach it in time to start back.

This jerk-water service is said to be necessary because the Okanagan Valley is so poor that it cannot support a better service. The C. P. R. officials tell us so, and they wouldn't lie. According to actual count, the average number of cars moved each way daily is five freights, a passenger coach and an express. This is the average for the year. The run from Sicamous to Okanagan Lake is about 50 miles. In that distance there are the towns of Enderby, Armstrong and Vernon, and smaller settlements. The aggregate population of these towns is 2,000. The whole Valley from Mara south is settled by farmers and fruit growers. On Okanagan Lake are the towns of Kelowna, Summerland, Peachland, Okanagan Mission, Penticton, and the various settlements along its shores. The population of the whole Valley numbers upwards of 3,000. Everything that is used by man or beast and has to be brought in from the main line, and the entire product of the Valley, has to be carried over this short piece of road. And yet we are told that it does not pay!

Four of these towns have newspapers, and all of them have important manufacturing industries. All are dependent on the C. P. R. for freight, express and mail. Three months in the year the company retards business and puts the whole Valley to the inconvenience of a tri-weekly service. This we are told is necessary to keep down the annual deficit in operating the road. This we know is a lie.

The railway company has an iron grip on the Valley, and is using it. Under the contract entered into by the government with the company, the C. P. R. is privileged to give us the jerk-water service. But the injustice of the thing should cause every man in the Okanagan to get up in his indignation, and do what he can to induce the government to persuade the railway company to give us a daily service throughout the year. We are ninny-hammers if we sit supinely by and see the growth of the Valley, and its business, retarded by this jerk-water schedule.

If the matter were properly presented to the postoffice department, we believe the justice of the demand would be recognized at once, and some effort made to give us a daily service. It is not a small matter to deprive 2,000 or 3,000 people of the daily mail. But until we do something in our own behalf, we need not expect the government to take the matter up.

Near-by Points

HULLCAR NOTES.

T. Pound has about completed a dwelling house on his preemption, at Hullcar.

Mr. Baird has been up against hard luck for a week or so, in a severe attack of eczema. We are glad to see him about again.

Mr. Geo. Parkinson has been bringing in his stock from the ranges; they are a goodly lot, and an evidence of prosperity in that line.

We should say Enderby flour was being well advertised in this district! We saw not long ago a pair of bloomers hanging on a clothes' line, with "Moffet's Best" across the big part in good broad letters.

Charles Crane and wife, from Vancouver, have been visiting their mother at Deer Park dairy farm, and renewing old acquaintances. Charley has taken on quite aldermanic proportions since we saw him last.

After listening to the very able discourse of the Rev. Marshall, at the school house on Sunday afternoon, your Hullcar Owl, in consultation with others of this district, were wondering what Mr. Steele was going to do with such a nice little cottage with five rooms for only one man. It was decided that the best and only thing to be done at present was to keep on wondering, until Mr. Steele satisfies our curiosity.

If anybody interested in fruit growing would just pay a visit to Wm. Hayhurst's neat little ranch, they would receive much valuable instruction, and see the foundation of an industry equal to an interest in the Enderby coal mine. Much credit is due Mr. Hayhurst, particularly when we consider that nearly all of his young stock is of his own growing. And while passing just give Mr. Platten a call, and see what good judgment and a little money is doing for his portion of the Grafton Farm.

SALMON ARM ITEMS.

The farmers are finishing plowing and getting ready for winter.

Wm. Dalymple is visiting his uncle at Silver Creek, and intends to locate in the Valley.

Mr. Martin of Carman, Man., arrived here last Wednesday with his family, and is moving into the McIntyre Place.

The settlers along the line through sections 13 and 14, East of here, are cutting out a road along the line where the Government was petitioned to grant last spring.

The Ladies' Aid are preparing for a Xmas tree in the Presbyterian church, with a concert by the Sunday school children. The Methodists are also preparing for one in the Valley church, and a merry time is expected.

Great is Our Canada.

Before an audience of over 3000 persons, Vice-President-elect Charles Fairbanks, of Indiana, defined the standing of the Republican party on the tariff question at the banquet of the Home Market Club, at Boston last week. Among the other guests was Dr. W. H. Montague, of Toronto.

Dr. Montague said that the sentiment of the Canadians is for Canada first, last and all the time. He then went on to discuss the general question of protection in Canada. He said that the Dominion in the past years of its existence had tried all forms of trade relations from reciprocity to free trade. All these have been dropped in favor of protection. Since the time when protection was firmly established, the country has seen more prosperity than ever before. The speaker pointed out that today the policy of Canada is to allow to come in free all the necessities of life, but to maintain and protect its own industries against the world.

"I come here to tell you," continued Dr. Montague, "that no government could exist in Canada that does not maintain the system of protection of Canada's industry."

Dr. Montague then took up the subject of reciprocity between Canada and the United States—the matter upon which those present were chiefly interested to hear his views. Dr. Montague said: "We have tried at various times to secure a reciprocity treaty, and these attempts failed. Now the conditions have changed. The United States is developing the great fields of the west, and you have a large interest in the agricultural world. Canada is making manufacturing products for her own people, and is trying also for a great market outside. In Canada there is no party and no politician who is agitating for reciprocity, and there is no great demand for it."

Mr. Long said: "So broad is her domain, so spirited is her industrial and every other growth, so swiftly springing to her opportunity, potentially so close and powerful a friend—whether she remain a mighty part of mighty Imperial Great Britain, whether she stand alone, or whether she join her fortunes with ours—Canada's great advance is sure, and we give her the glad hand across the border that after all is only an imaginary line. We already have with her the reciprocity of good-will, of mutual respect and of mutual consciousness of our common obligations for the welfare of the continent of which we two are so large a part. And whenever and wherever, by more liberal trade relations, and by mutual give-and-take tariff concessions which shall not impair the general industrial and commercial interests of either side, these general interests can be conserved and promoted, we are for reciprocity in that respect also."

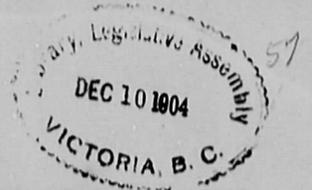

THE MARKET.

The feathered kind did some pretty good work on Friday, at New Westminster, and around the crates of birds there was always a crowd. The elder, wiser and tougher fowls seemed to be the favorites. The prices were from $6 to $7.50 per dozen. Broilers, though not so plentiful as their older relations. For the latter the price was from $4 to $5, and the sale steady. The quotations for ducks were from $7.50 to $8.50 per dozen.

Eggs for the retail trade were just about the same as on the previous Friday. The price was 55c and 60c per dozen. In the wholesale lots there was not so much business doing, and here there was a slight drop from the clouds. The general run in case lots brought in about 44c per dozen, and glad to get it. Butter was a steady factor, and nothing startling is to be reported from this place on the floor. The general 30c per lb. reigned supreme.

The vegetable tables were all doing a land office business, and the dealers here had to hustle to keep up with the demand after the market managed to get well started. Potatoes got a little lively and were bringing from $16 to $18 per ton. Carrots went at the regular 50c per sack, beets at 75c and onions at the old $1.50. Turnips and cabbage brought 50c per sack, while mangolds loomed up at $9 per ton.

LACK OF CONCEPTION.

Two Farmers' Institute lecturers were recently talking over the possibilities of the Okanagan Valley, especially in the branches of agriculture, in which they are particularly interested. "There is just one drawback to farming in this Valley," said one, "and I fear it is one that is going to hold the section back for some years yet. It is this: nature has provided such fertile soil, and the climatic conditions produce such prolific crops with so little effort on the part of man, that the farmers become lazy."

There is more truth than tickle in what this professor has said. No section in Canada offers such opportunities as the Okanagan to men who know how to farm, and are not afraid to work. And yet, no section shows so little advancement for its years of settlement. Thirty years ago the pioneers came into the Valley. Since then others have followed year after year, taking up the choicest pieces of land available and building thereon snug little homes. A small patch has been cleared sufficient to afford them a comfortable living—and there development has ceased. Crop failures have been unknown, and, as no effort was necessary, either to produce the stuff or find a market for it, the early settlers have religiously avoided exertion, until, like an unused muscle, the spirit to do things has lost its grip on them and they could not, if they would, break away from the old order of things.

The past few seasons men of new blood have come into the Valley, and their number is being augmented each week. Gradually the old settlers are being induced to part with much of the land they are not using. This is being cleared and put into crops and fruit trees, and thus the whole section is receiving a boost forward. These new comers are inducing others to come, and ultimately the old timers will have reduced their holdings and will retire to live lives of ease and pleasure on the proceeds of the sale of their farms. Then a new era of prosperity will dawn. Competition will be keener. A better quality of produce will be raised and there will be vastly more of it.

As an indication of how the emigration movement is taking hold of the people of Manitoba and the Territories it is only necessary to point to the great numbers that have come, and are coming, into the country. On last Friday's train there was a gentleman from Saskatchewan who was looking for farming land for six families besides his own, and another from Manitoba who also wanted to find homes for himself and others. These men are now in the Valley, and it is hoped they will find what they are looking for. Their success will mean that still others will follow, and it is such energetic people that the Valley needs.

ENTERPRISE AND COAL.

The finding of coal in paying quantities in the Okanagan Valley would mean much more to this section than is locally conceded. If Henry W. Harvey and friends succeed in uncovering a huge coal bed by the prospecting work now in progress, they will not only enrich themselves, but will add hundreds of thousands to the wealth of the Valley. They will organize a company with a capital of at least $200,000, and this company will operate the mine on as large a scale as the deposit will permit. Other companies will come—for one mining operation begets another—and it need not surprise anyone if in less than a year a coal field of large proportions is opened up close to Enderby.

There are those, it is true, who can see nothing but ruin in store for the company, and scoff at the idea of coal being found on ground that they have been over times without number. But every camp has had its "knocker," and Enderby need not expect to escape. Every sign is an evil omen to Mister Pessimist. He sits about and croaks, and the frog chorus chimes in.

It is just possible, of course, that the coal body may not be found to be large enough to pay to work. Every indication is favorable for the finding of a big bed of it. But whether coal is found in large enough quantities or not, Mr. Harvey and friends deserve the hearty support of every Okanaganite. They are risking their money to demonstrate that we have something that will be a boon to all.

AS BY MAGIC.

British Columbia has one telephone for every 33 people. Mr. George Johnson, the Canadian statistician, presents some remarkable figures in Cassiar's magazine in proof of Canada's electrical progress. He shows that Canada outstrips the United States in the matter of telegraph wire mileage; her total per million inhabitants is 18,250, and that of the United States 13,000. Canada's message record in 1903 was 5,313,800, or one message per man, woman and child. Canada's electric railways carried 167,000,000 passengers in 1903, or about 31 times the population; the United States lines carried between 5,000,000,000 and 6,000,000,000, or about 65 times as many as were carried by the steam-driven railways. As for telephones, Canada has one for every 65 persons—an astonishing figure when we think of the scattered character of the population; the United States has one in 40.

The Vernon news says: "Enderby advertises houses to let, while Vernon is turning people away every week for lack of rentable residences." Which is evidence that the property owners of the Okanagan metropolis are not looking after the needs of their city, as are those of Enderby.

Lowering the Lake Level.

The lowering of the level of Okanagan lake is a project which will probably be carried out during the summer of 1905, or the succeeding season. Engineers have been taking levels and conducting other necessary preliminary work, and have reported that the scheme is a feasible one, and can be accomplished at a reasonable cost.

One of the main reasons of this improvement is to relieve the town of Kelowna, which is flooded by high water every spring. The town is located on a rather low portion of land, and the spring freshets raise the level of the lake to such a degree that considerable inconvenience and damage is done. To overcome this, the river between Okanagan and Dog lakes will be dredged, and the level will be lowered four feet or more. This river is only five or six miles long, and if made more navigable will allow steamers to pass through to Dog lake and give water transportation to a portion of the district which will be soon settled.

MAXIMS OF C. P. HUNTINGTON.

The great secret of success is lying by a nest egg and adding to your little store, never spending more than you make, and being strictly economical.

False pride is an enormous obstacle. I know young men in New York who would not carry a trunk along Fifth avenue for all the frontage they could pass, because they would be afraid that they might meet some girl they knew.

Another principle I have constantly obeyed is "business before pleasure." The chances are as good to-day as they were—they are even better. But I do not think that the life of one who has accumulated a hundred millions more or less, is in the least inspiring. It dazzles, it bewilders, the struggling youth. It may inspire him for a time, but that inspiration soon wears off.

Appreciate the value of to-day. That's my advice to young men. It has been my rule through life—I am nearing the century mark now—not to look forward for the future is a blank. To-day is the all-important issue. I have never gone against the tide nor worried while my schemes were maturing. A farmer sows a field of wheat. To worry over it would merely sap his energy. The wheat requires his attention at the harvest.

In my mercantile life I have noticed the man who arrives at his post on time and not one minute later, and who leaves on the minute and not one second later. He does no more than he has to do and does not do that well. Then there is the man who arrives ahead of time and whose work is done before he takes an interest in his work and is anxious to be advanced. I have always lived within my means and always strived for advancement.

When I was a boy on my father's farm in Connecticut I worked hard, utilizing every moment, for there was plenty to do. But if I had any spare time I did chores for the neighbors. I never wanted for anything I needed! I always got it. But many buy things they do not need. When I went to New York in 1836 I had quite a sum of money, the result of my savings, judicious investments, and little tradings about the neighborhood.

Visiting brethren welcome.

With The Owl

HANK HENLAW IN THE DARK WOODS.

US go tonight to the old home and spend an hour with Mother. She's waiting there to greet us as only Mother can. Supper is over; the dishes are washed, and Mother has picked up the piece of work laid down when she was called to the table. Adjusting her glasses she bends low to see that the stitch is right and proceeds in silence. There is brother and sister; they have taken up their books to read, and lay back for a lazy evening. They have had a busy day in the city office, and want to be quiet. Mother has been alone all day, with nobody about to talk to. She wants to talk now.

She asks a question or two, but receiving a disinterested grunt for an answer, concludes that Brother and Sister do not wish to be disturbed. Silently she works on.

A sigh comes from the heart, but she chokes it back and bends closer to her work. Her thoughts turn to the Son or Daughter out West—you and me. Green fields are far away. So are angelic daughters and affectionate sons. If you were only there! The word of love, of confidence, that her dear old ears want hear to carry joy to her lonesome heart, would not then be withheld. Her Mother Love ignores distance and starts out upon space like a Marconi ray, to be picked up by the sympathetic heart away out west tuned in harmony with her's. Into the hills through the lumber camps, up and down the village streets, and into the heights and depths of the city's dives of manlessness, the vibration of love from the signal tower of Mother's heart flits here and there. She calls and signals for the boy and girl away from home; she wants to get in touch with the one who can bring joy to her lonely heart. Perhaps that one is you!

See! There she sits, lonely, and listening with the ears of the heart, ears so delicate that the faintest wave of love flowing from you will be recorded in that heart of hearts. There is something so tender in Mother's love, something that is almost divine. There isn't a manly man that breathes who does not feel it,—and honor it. Just now, get in touch! Every thought of her flies home! It brings joy to her heart and ennobs you; and, think of it! All it costs is a thought!—just a thought.

"Is this Pyman's?"
"Hello! What antimugian is this talking?"
"I'm Santa Claus. Have you got anything for Christmas?"
"Everything! Watches and watch chains, lockets, pins, manicure sets, gold pens—anything and everything you want for jewelery presents. Santa."
"Allright! Tell my friends to make their selections. I'll be around. And, say, Francis, I want you to be ready to fix my watch when I call. Can't have the job well done here."

Good Morning! Have You Been Bamboozled?

An astonishing shrub is the bamboozle bush, as it grows in the summer-time weather; For its fruit starts to ripen as soon as the spring has escaped from her worrisome tether. And from then until late autumn there fall from its boughs such a crop 'tis amazing to see— Let us stand for a while where the things may be seen as they drop from the bamboozle tree.

There's the iceman who comes with his bamboozle weight, and the fizz-man bamboozling the kid By supplying him soda that's half an inch deep 'neath a seven-inch, bubble-formed lid; There's Santa Claus, too, with his gewgaws and glitter, bamboozling a lot such as we— These are only a few of the fruits that are borne by this wonderful bamboozle tree.

There's the shrewd summer boarder bamboozling the man who is rural in tastes and in training. By becoming indebted a hundred or more and from needful remittance refraining;

There's the Reuben who knows vastly more than you'd think and who captures the sharper— for he

Has a use of his own that he makes of the fruit that is shed by the bamboozle tree.

There's the smooth politician who lives on the dream that he's surely bamboozling the voters With his gab and his graft, till he finds in the end he's been badly bamboozled by "floaters;"

There's the weather man sagely bamboozling us all with his illy-aimed guesses, while he, Safely squats on a limb and dispenses the fruit that he finds on the bamboozle tree.

So we sit 'neath the boughs of the bamboozle bush that in all time flourished madly, And we gorge on the fruit that descends from its limbs, though it nauseates all of us sadly, There is scarcely a soul 'neath its world-shading top but is dally bamboozled—you see Such an endless assortment of fruitage is borne by the versatile bamboozle tree.

Rules for Capital and Labor.

A cold shoulder is apt to make a man think more than he works.

Don't make a beast of burden of a man—horseflesh is much cheaper.

Never hire a man you would not want to be seen speaking to in public.

A look of recognition or a kind word will do more than a raise of salary.

If you wish to shine in the owner's eyes, make your team and tools shine.

Short hours and good pay net greater profits than long hours and small pay. If you want an extra hour, pay for it.

Never quit work half an hour early because the boss is away, nor shirk when his back is turned, for "murder will out."

Don't deceive yourself by thinking that if you can get an extra hour's work out of a man it is clear gain. Most men will steal it back twice over when you turn your back.

Pious Gratitude.

Anent the ease with which some politicians, both Grit and Tory, ignore the principles of their party, yet claim to be loyal thereto when there are spoils to be divided, the following story from Georgia is good:

"An old negro down my way arose at prayer meeting one night and delivered himself thus: 'Brederin an' sisterin, I'se been a mighty mean nigger in my time. I'se had er heap er ups an' downs—specially downs—since I jined de church. I'se stole chickens an' watah millins. I'se cussed. I'se got drunk. I'se shot craps. I'se slashed udder coons wid my razah, an' I'se done er sight er udder things, but, thank de good Lawd, brederin an' sisterin, I'se nebbet yet los' my religion.'"

WITH HANK REKLAU

Truth is repelling to those who do not seek it.

'Taint no use to stand aloof from Life and say things about it.

'Tis better to accept Life as it is and make the best of it than to imagine what it isn't and cry about it.

When we see a man who makes mistakes we ought to love him the more—it gives us the joy of putting him straight.

All good bookkeepers have a high respect for a man of figures, but a man of letters!—trust him only as far as you could toss Taurus by the tail!

Yes, the man who thinks the kind thing may sometimes be mistaken, but he will not be deceived so often as the man who always thinks the cruel thing.

There are weaknesses in every person and thing, but there are also sources of strength, and it is a foolish thing to center upon one and forget the other.

A mother once called to her little boy to come into the house. He replied, "I won't do it!" "Stay out, then," the mother kindly but firmly returned. The boy soon came in.

Ten men are ready to point out the "bad signs" in a coal mine (or anything else) where there is one to bring out the good—and then they wonder why the country is so slow to develop!

The spleen in man is for the manufacture of the red blood corpuscles, as well as their final disintegration. Some men forget its prime function and use it only to disintegrate the good in themselves and others.

Schopenhauer the wee but great German philosopher, looked upon life from its brink. He did not really taste it. As one standing on the bank of a turbulent stream, he only imagined the feelings of those out upon the water.

When another asserts boldly some thought or truth that you have known but feared to express, you fling at him charges of plagiarism, pretense, bombast, insincerity and fraud, don't you, sweet-heart? And isn't it strange that you do?

It sometimes so happens that a man's enemies are first to discover him and give him to the world. Christ would not have been crucified if the work was left to such hands as those of Pilate the coward—and think of what the world would have missed!

"As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." That is physiologically true. Can't escape it. Think that you are going to be sick and you will be; think evil of yourself or another and you will see it; think that the world is against you and it will be; think that men are rogues and you will become like them.

Needful Rest for Women.

It is as cheap to rest half a day Thursday, says A. M., in the St. Louis Word and Works, as to be sick all day Friday, and it is decidedly cheaper to rest than to pay doctors' bills. Multitudes of women drag out their lives, never doing their work easily and pleasantly, because they are overworked.

Many a woman stands when she might sit down, and keeps on her feet, when, if she were watchful of her opportunities, she could often take a little rest. It requires much more muscular strength to stand than it does to sit down, and more strength to remain in a sitting position than it does to lie down. If weary women would sit when it is possible, instead of standing, and if they would take time to rest in the middle of the week, instead of taking the time to be sick at the end of the week, they would doubtless find themselves able to do more work in the course of a year, and do it better and more easily than they can by their present method.

Papa Won't Kick.

In a neighboring town there is a boy whose mother is bringing him up according to the most correct ideas. He came in the other day with his pockets quite full of marbles—glasses, crockies, jaspers and all the other kinds boys hold dear. His mother asked where they all came from.

"I won 'em playing keeps," answered the boy.

The mother was properly shocked.

"Why," said she, "don't you know it's wrong to play for keeps? It's nothing but gambling, and gambling is wicked. You must give them all back or I shall speak to your father about it."

"Oh, that'll be all right, answered the boy. Speak to

Canadian Politics

Canadians are not bad people. Our's is a land of churches. We like to do the fair thing. But our political parties are so rotten that the name of Canadian is becoming synonymous with theft and political jobbery. It is no longer an honor to be mixed up in Canadian politics. Money is king. In the crooked ballot box business at Belleville, a Bible class teacher has been arrested as the chief culprit. What a delightful state of affairs!

Commenting on this shameful condition of Canada's public life, the Montreal Gazette says: "The crooked ballot box business has startled the Englishmen, judging by the comments of the newspapers. They only got a mild dose, too. If they had known of ballots being burned by government officials on the eve of the day they were to be produced in court to settle the title to a legislative seat, of the traveling schools of instructors in the art of spoiling and stealing ballots, of the subornation of perjury by successful applicants for public office in efforts to rob honestly elected members of their seats, of cases like that of the Minnie M., when steamer loads of whisky-loaded scoundrels were carried from place to place to personate absent voters—then might the Englishmen know what rottenness in politics may be."

In the Pulpits What the Local Pastor Talked About Sunday

2 Peter 3: 18, "Grow in Grace," was the text chosen by Mr. Roberts, Sunday evening. The word "grace" in the text gives the idea of divine power, and the word "growth" adds the idea of the divine power developing itself in the individual life. Grace is an element of the spiritual life, and there is no spiritual growth apart from the divine grace. Notice, (1) the command: Grow in Grace. Growth is a sign of a healthy life, and if there is no growth it is for us to look for the cause. There is something wrong, and we must alter the conditions of life. In the physical life we grow stronger and stronger up to a certain point, then comes decline and decay. But in the spiritual life we never pass the meridian, but may continue to grow until we are lost in glories of heaven. The way to avoid all error of thought and difficulty of living is to place ourselves in that condition that allows of continuous growth. If we do not grow we cannot be fruit bearing disciples, and we cannot serve as we should. (2) Hindrances to growth. These are: secret sin, the harboring of doubt in the mind, the spirit of fault finding and criticism, refusing to learn of Christ and neglect to use the spiritual powers with which we have been endowed. (3) How shall we grow, and by what means? The secret of all spiritual growth is abiding in Christ. "As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself except it abide in the vine, no more can ye except ye abide in me." For spiritual growth we need greater prayerfulness, a more careful study of the scriptures, a firmer trust in God and greater love towards others. These will lead us to a more Christ-like life, and we shall be in such a condition that we cannot help but grow in the things of God. The full stature of manhood in Christ Jesus awaits everyone who believes on Him.

Timothy, writing to the Christian Hebrews from Italy, said, "Make you perfect in every good work to do His will, working in you that which is well-pleasing in His sight, through Jesus Christ." This was taken by Rev. Mr. Campbell as the subject for his Sunday morning discourse in the Presbyterian church. After all searching and questioning, said he, we have to go to the Bible when we want to have character perfectly defined. It is not so much a question of what we do or think as what we are and may be. Nor can we profit by attempting to prove by reasoning all that Timothy meant or did not mean by perfection in every good work. Whatever else the term might mean, we know it means this: whole-heartedness and sincerity of purpose. Without these there cannot be any "working within you that which is well pleasing in His sight;" and unless we do the things that are pleasing in God's sight, we cannot experience the indwelling of His spirit.

In all questions of life there is the parting of the ways—the right and the wrong. It is not for us to wait until the crisis is upon us before deciding what course to pursue. We must have a principle, and must decide all questions independent of other men and on the simple basis of right and wrong. If we do so, we are assured that God's presence will be with us, and that behind us individually is the whole power of nature and of God.

From the text John 14: 18, "I will come unto you," Rev. Mr. Venables preached Sunday evening in the St. George's church. Christ came once to save the world, he will come again to judge the world. Taking the preaching of St. John, his whole message to the people then was incorporated in that one word "repent." We can imagine many of those standing by would say: What means this? What have I to repent of. But he spoke the same word to all because all needed it. Repentance is the only path that leads to Christ. If the Jews had followed the preaching of St. John that verse would never have been written which says: "He came unto his own, and His own received him not."

It is the same with all of us. We have to learn the lesson of St. John before we can receive Christ. This is the Advent season, when our thoughts are turned to the coming of Christ. We hear the words: "Now it is the high time to awake out of sleep." And so now, before we hear the glad Xmas tidings of a Saviour, let us try and flee from those sins which would check our repentance.

We may often be very sorry for our sins, and yet very soon forget it again, and again fall into the same sins. That is not repentance. We may be very sorry for the consequences of our sins, just as a drunkard may be ashamed of himself, but that is not repentance. True repentance proves its sincerity in a new life, in the turning over of a new leaf and in an earnest effort to keep that leaf clean for the future.
