Dear Miss Pfefferkorn :

I have very much enjoyed reading the first sixteen pages of the section dealing with the library that you were kind enough to send me. Notes have been taken concerning them and they are being returned with many thanks.

So far I have not been able to trace the exact source upon which I based my statement that Dr Osler had contributed in terms of money to the establishment of the library although I have a distinct recollection of having come across an item to that effect. Under the circumstances, however, it seems wiser to omit any such reference and I will modify my manuscript accordingly. I shall also make sure that the date of publication of the Clara Weeks' text is set right.

I shall be most grateful if you will please tell me of any other errors or omissions that may come to your attention from time to time since I constantly find it a distinct disadvantage to be so far from original sources.

With kind regards,

yours very sincerely
