THE LOVE FEAST

Chosen Few Who Were at the Banquet.

MENE MENE TEKEL UPHARSIN

A Series of Farewell Dinners—Some of the Toasts and Speeches—Remarkable Utterances.

We regret that the following interesting and accurate account of the first of a series of farewell banquets at the B. A. C. should have been crowded out yesterday. It is said that series will shortly be completed. Under a good deal of pressure the WORLD has decided for the present not to publish the official list of guests.

Time was when Rossland was considered a great banquetting town. Indeed, her banquets have become historical, and have always been looked forward to as epoch-making events. But lately the town has been somewhat sober, quietly sleeping off the results of its previous habits. But Thursday night Rossland proved herself true to her history by repeating herself.

In the old halcyon days, no where did the banquetting lights shine with greater effulgence than at the B. A. C.'s palatial quarters. But lately a spirit of darkness has frequently hovered about the place. Many a night as the WORLD reporter walked silently and sad, through the deserted halls, has his memory gone back again to those days of plenty and nights of joy when, "with feast of reason and flow of soul," we gathered around the friendly bowl—but alas! nothing remains but the ashes of the past or an epitaph in memory's hall, "the sad remains of lustre gone, of joys long passed away." Whilst we sighed for the days of yore, we yearned for the flesh pots too, of a new Egyptian night. These are the sweets that are now enjoyed by Count Bernardo's tongue alone, or the lips of his chosen few. It was therefore with feelings of expectant glee, and fires of memory banked low, that the WORLD reporter accepted an invitation to eat a crust and a pinch of salt with the noble count and his band of "Jolly Knowalls."

Upon my arrival at the mansion, contrary to my expectation, I found that it was a most formal affair. Not having my card with me I was compelled to forego any formal participation in the banquet and content myself with a seat in the kitchen, where through the good offices of my friend Mah Lung, I was enabled to obtain a few of the crumbs, that dropped from the board, and drink in the honied words which flowed from the lips of the distinguished company. A distinguished company they undoubtedly were, and evidently many had come from a great distance, as their faces gave sign of mental distress or corporal weariness, just which, I was unable to determine, as I was only able to get fleeting glimpses as my Chinese friend swung the door to and fro as he entered with a salmi of duck or steaming raqout. Concerning the guests I might also state that many of them were distinguished strangers, as in my long reportorial career I have never seen or heard of them participating in any local function for the public good, besides, they seemed uncertain about the roads, many of them arriving by back alleys and byways.

It may have been that their anxious expressions and circuitous routes were owing to the pressure upon the highway of bands helots, or burly fellows known as strikers, so-called from the Anglo-Saxon word Stric, meaning to hit, and Ker, the neck! They being said to have the habit of hitting opponents in the region of the neck—hence the colloquial expression—striker. There are several other local etymological questions, which would be interesting to investigate; for instance, the precise meaning and origin of the rank and function of a nobleman known as a Barren, some saying that it has reference to the unproductiveness of the land which he holds in fee to his Lord and Master, Count Bernardo, whilst others maintain that the title has been derived from the old French word Baraigne, signifying stupid, and has reference to his mental attainments.

However, time will not allow me to go into the respective merits of these commentators, as the odor following in the wake of my friend Mah, admonishes me to "return to my mutton" and report the banquet, which, by this time, was in full swing.

It would be impossible in the short space allowed to one in this life to do full justice to the varied beauties of the feast, which in cost would satisfy a Croesus, in delicacy and variety of viands would satiate the appetite of Epicures, and which in gorgeousness and prophetic import, would rival Belshazzars' feast. Everything was charming, and tho' rich and luxurious was chaste and refined. Even without the guests the banquet halls shone with life and nature, for from chiselled nitch and gilded frame looked down the face of many a belted Knight and armored Earl, whose lineaments told the ancestral tale of the noble host. At the head of the hall but overlooking the board, hung a striking oil, the working of Pretty, representing Count Bernardo himself in familiar attitude. Standing out from the canvass could be seen his Titanie brow and eye deep set, and lit with Phrygian fire. His foot encased in boot and spur rested upon the neck of a workingman, the left arm resting easily by the side supported by a pick, the right arm at extended length, held an open scroll, inscribed, "Injuncted." Indeed the painting told plainer than words the story of his life. Beneath was suspended the skin of a large St. Bernard, said to have been killed and dechided by a late friend and high official in the far Nor'-West. This appeared to have a marked fascination for the assembled guests.

The table was beautifully set with choice China and solid silver, each set bearing the separate crests of the respective guests.

The menu had, evidently been transmitted direct from Lucullus' Chef, and consisted in part, as follows:

MENU.

Oysters, (non-union)
Raw—From Nova Scotia—500 en Route.
Soup.
Consomme—a la Stockholders of B. A. C.
Fish.
Fried Shark—a la Inside Ring.
Entrees.
Salmi of Crow—For Barney Later.
Roasts.
Beef—a la Rossland Miner.
Dessert.
Jolly Cake.

The toasts list was as follows:

The Army, Navy and Auxilliary Forces, which was spoken to in most eloquent terms the late burgomaster and prefect of police who described most particularly the mobilization and enrollment of specials. The auxilliary forces brought Bela Kadish to his feet to describe the origin of the Greek myrmidons and tell how when Greek meets Greek then comes the tug of war. His words evidently stirred the martial blood of all present, who forthwith demanded to be armed and at once enrolled under the standard of Bella Achilles—the motto of the corps is to be: "Lets run amuck and tilt at all we meet."

The Burden of Office—was the text which claimed the attention of our Norman burgomaster. He expressed his determination to do his duty and carry the burden with its added weight of £4000 per annum.

From Saloon to Salon—was the next subject of discussion, which was delivered in a most eloquent manner, by the president of the Board of Common Graft.

Native Sons—brought the first born of the Fraser to his feet. He told some good fish stories about intellectual salmons and salmon intellects. He stated that he was pleased to be present but should also think of the future, and with that well known political sagacity which has characterized his utterances in the past, he asked those present to fill their glasses and drink to the health of his political friends—the muckers. This, like the toast of absent friends was drank in silence.

A Musical Medley on Jewsharps—was also rendered by a quintette of money lenders, but owing to the many overdrafts in the room the music could not be heard.

Count Bernardo, rendered with much pathos that touching song: "There's a heap of trouble on the old man's mind."

The Federal Court—was ably handled by the company's solicitor, who paid a high tribute to its progressiveness. He claimed that he was proud to stand as the exponent of imperialism and expansion, and looked forward hopefully to the time, when federal jurisdiction would extend via Seattle, so as to embrace the whole of Canada. He concluded his powerful oration by calling in a loud voice for three cheers for Judge Hanford and sat down amidst great cheering, he leading in the applause.

A lengthy cable from W. W. was read wherein he stated that he had great confidence in Bernardos' ability to carry out his (W. W.'s) policy, and hoped that their reward would be quick and mutual. This had a most soothing effect upon the guests who evidently interpreted the concluding phase of the cablegram in a most liberal manner.

The festivities were concluded by the guests mutually assisting each other home, each vowing that the evening was a great success, and expressing their desire, under any management, to soon again have their legs under the mahogany.

Big Circus Coming.

Sells & Grays United Shows, traveling on its own special train and carrying a big menagerie, car loads of superb horses and over 100 performers, will appear in this city for an afternoon and evening performance on Tuesday, August 20th. The show comes to Rossland representative in the glittering glory of new costumes, gorgeous trappings and beautiful band wagons. Its parade and performances are described by the papers as exceptionally bright, clean, refined, interesting and entertaining. To the conventional features necessary to every tent show are added entertaining innovations, many of a startling nature, which makes the performance unique and memorable. The big tent will be pitched at the ball grounds.

A BIG EXPLOSION

Smelter at Northport Seriously Damaged Today.

HEAVY LOSS TO THE COMPANY

One Result of Employing Green Hands—Frightened Smeltermen Take to the Woods.

(Special to the WORLD.)

Northport, Aug. 10.—About 1 o'clock this morning the smelter management, which had been trying to start a second furnace in order to attempt to produce a higher grade of matte than has been obtained since the lockout, attempted to tap the second furnace, owing to the unskilled work of the green employes, the entire molten contents of the furnace was emptied on the floor of the smelter.

The fiery stream ran across the floor of the smelter and into the ditch which runs alongside the settling tank. On reaching the water the molten mass began to escape. The settling tank containing tons of matte valued at about $3000 was blown to atoms and the contents of the tank was precipitated in the ditch, also exploding. The stream of boiling metal flowing into the water ditch, causing a continuous series of gigantic explosions for some time. At each explosion a great mass of flame and fiery metal was hurled high in the air.

All the employes, both those on shift and those at sleep in the bunk house on hearing the explosion and seeing the flames in the sky, ignorant of the cause, and believing their end had come, ran for their lives into the hills. Those from the bunk house leaving in their night clothes. They have been venturing back since in small bands, but many have not been heard from, although their clothes and possessions are left behind.

A BLAZE TODAY

What Might Have Been a Big Fire Put Out by the Brigade.

What threatened to become a serious fire started at 7.20 this morning over Hartley's fruit store on Columbia avenue. Hartley and some others live over the store and a fire had been lighted in the stove in the living room. It was this stove which caused the fire. When the firemen got to the scene the flames were all through the upper portion of the building and blazing out furiously. All this section and the roof of the building was badly burned but the firemen held down the blaze from going further. Drs. Mackenzie and Stevenson own the building and it is said were not insured. Hartley had two policies in force on contents for $500 each.

R. Marsh, the assayer carried no insurance and will suffer some loss from water. He is at Gladstone. The Royal barber shop and Simpson's book store were also slightly damaged by water while Hartley's fruit store was pretty well drowned out.

GIVE UP THE GUNS.

It is a remarkable fact that all through the troubles, which commenced with the lockout at the Northport smelter on May 26th and which speak in here causing the present miners strike—the union men have invariably been found on the side of law and order while the Mining and Smelting companies have so far been the sinners and open violators of the law.

In defiance of all decency, Bela Kadish, the smelter superintendent armed himself and his followers with winchesters and revolvers and marched down the streets of the little smelter town.

Some of these armed hoboes actually invaded the magistrate's court while a trial of one of their number was in progress doubtless with the intention of intimidating the justice. Every effort possible was made to induce the lockedout smeltermen to resort to violence. President Shed seems to have had his men well in hand and the scheme failed miserably. Several of the scab gun men were arrested and fines aggregating over seven hundred dollars were imposed and obligingly paid by the company's attorney.

It is quite impossible to argue that any step taken by Bela Kadish in the matters referred to had not the sanction and approval of Bernard Macdonald and that everything which occurred, was not known by the injunction getting general manager of the Le Roi.

It requires no great stretch of imagination therefore to foresee that unless prevented Mr. Macdonald was likely to adopt the same methods here as he tried at Northport and it was a good move to convey to the American mine managers a broad hint to drop such practices in Canada.

The manager of the LeRoi may rest assured that he will not be allowed to openly break the law in this Canadian mining camp without a strong effort being made to prevent him.

What a row there would have been if arms and ammunition had been as consistently traced to Miners Union hall as they were to Mr. Kirby's possession yesterday. How the manager's paper would have raved, and demanded troops, special constables and all the rest of the legal protection sought for under such circumstances.

But it is "an outrage" to ask the modest mine managers to cough up their arsenal and to prevent them from committing murder. What necessity has there ever been in Rossland, now or at any time for the arming of any one outside of the ordinary police force of the city?

Neither Mr. Kirby nor Mr. Macdonald should be allowed to break the law and unless they are able to justify the keeping of arms before the proper authorities and obtain a legal permit for so doing, the move yesterday should be followed up until the guns are in the possession of the chief of police.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The EVENING WORLD, without a dollar behind it, is making a much better fight for the miners' union of Rossland than the Miner, with all the LeRoi company's credit backing it, is making for the mine managers. It is simply a case of brains pitted against an overdrawn bank account.—Nelson Tribune.

The man who would try and coerce the city merchants into supporting both himself and his paper would not stick at libelling Judge Townsend and grossly misrepresenting the course he felt bound to pursue.

The author of the mine owners memorial is trying to dig up the document which Dave Bogle so successfully buried last week in the Colonist. "The mining industry" in the Miner today means many more inflictions along the same lines.

NELSON'S PRIDE

A Two Hundred Thousand Dollar Building.

MANSFIELD'S MARBLE MANSION

All Marble Throughout—Only Doors and Window Sashes Made of Mere Wood.

Nelson is to have a $200,000 Mansfield marble mansion. If anyone doubts the truth of the story he should read the following from the Nelson Miner:

"A $200,000 white marble block will, in the near future, be one of the things that Nelson will have to boast of. It will be built with English and French capital represented by Ernest Mansfield. It will be of white marble throughout, the interior floors, walls and ceilings being of that material. It will be the handsomest building in the province and while many in the Dominion have cost several times $200,000 it is doubtful if any of them will be more beautiful. Work will commence within three months and it will take the best part of a year to complete the building, which will be erected on the lots on West Baker street now occupied by the offices of Mr. Mansfield and T. G. Procter.

When completed the block will be, by long odds, the most unique in Canada and it would take quite a journey in any land to find another three story building composed entirely of marble, the only woodwork in it being the doors and window sashes."

In future in the metropolis of the Kootenays in place of the national anthem on state occasions, the tune will be "I dreamt that I dwelt in marble halls" without variations.

The Miner does not say so of course but when the Mansfield marble mansion is built and completed it will be carefully enclosed and visitors from the surrounding country will be allowed inside for a consideration.

In future "marbles" will be the only game played in Nelson.

A Minstrel Show.

The Nelson papers for some reason have been roasting the minstrel show which has been giving entertainments there this week. The Tribune gives a long account of a fake base ball match gotten up by the gentlemen of color in which the hat was passed round after the first innings and the crown of spectators present resenting the holdup, left the grounds in disgust.

The Nelson Miner also has an account of a row on Tuesday last. The Miner says:

"On Tuesday evening after the performance one of the members of the minstrels went down town and entering a saloon got into an altercation with a well known prospector named Charles Cameron. He finally struck Cameron in the side of the head. Cameron fell, striking his ear against a corner of the bar and received an ugly gash."

COMMUNICATIONS.

Editor EVENING WORLD.

Sir:—I was inclined to think that certain of your correspondents were rather hard upon Mr. Bernard Macdonald, who manages the Le Roi properties, when criticising his vanity and his journalistic aspirations. Circumstances, however, compel me to apologise for doubting the bona fides of these correspondents. And why? Because I read in his newspaper, just received, "Mr. Macdonald is endeavouring to conduct his business on business principles, regardless of sentiment." Could assurance further go? Is it possible that an employee of British investors could thus travesty the meaning of servant and duty? It may be that some London directors have followed his advice and been misled or deceived. If Mr. Macdonald withheld certain information from these, he violated all the principles usually characteristic of a good and faithful custodian of other people's money. With brazen effrontery he seeks to make trusting shareholders pay for his vendetta against Miners' Unions. And now through his newspaper he puts his back up against his position of manager and defies the men who pay him!

Bernard Macdonald' "business!" If drawing a large salary and jeopardising the interests of thousands of people is his business, verily, he should be proud of his achievements!

MINOR MENTION.

E. Hatrup of Hunter Bros. has gone over to the firm's branch store at Greenwood.

G. H. Bayne of the Homestake has gone to Halcyon.

C. Brock of Portland Ore. is in town.

Hon. C. H. Mackintosh has returned from a ten days visit to Halcyon Springs.

David Lawson has moved to Ymir camp.

John S. Baker of Tacoma, one of the chief owners in the I. X. L. returned home yesterday after inspecting the mine.

Mr. Bratnober, the mining man left for the south on the noon train.

The Nelson tennis men are playing the Rossland club here this afternoon.

Hon. J. D. Prentice, provincial minister of education, Hon. Mr. Justice Dubuc, of the Manitoba bench, and A. A. C. LaRiviere, of St. Boniface, Man., M. P., for Provencher, Man., were taken over several of the mines on Red Mountain this morning.

R. Bergman left for Robson today where he has located a creek which he intends to stock with trout eggs and start a fish ranch during the strike season.

D. M. Crowley will give a public lecture in the lower hall of the Miners' Union building, on Monday evening. Subject—"A talk on the situation from a business man." Admission free.

The application for the interim water rights on little Sheep creek made by the Le Roi company this morning was adjourned for a month at the request of the Giant Mining company.

The betting on the avenue this morning was in favor of a complete settlement of all strike troubles within the next ten days and those who offered to bet appeared to know what is coming.

Have Returned.

Messrs. H. Fletcher, John Calder and H. Williams, returned yesterday from Sheep lake where they had been endeavoring to capture members of the finny tribe. They were very successful in their efforts, in fact, so much so that, like a porcupine, it is impossible to get very close to them.

The GRAND UNION HOTEL it is easily seen, is splendidly run by Proprietor Green;

Buy one glass of beer and a free lunch you'll get, Such as sometimes you've heard of but not often met; Neat and clean furnished rooms can always be had At such low prices as will make the workingman glad.

.. WHERE ..

IS MORGAN?

MORGAN is a new town on the railway now under construction from Marcus to Grand Forks, Republic Midway and Phoenix.

MORGAN is situated on Kettle River, half way between Marcus and Cascade.

MORGAN is an ideal townsite in that it has a large mining district and a big agricultural, stock and fruit raising country tributary to it.

MORGAN has no rivals and will be the largest town between Spokane and Grand Forks.

MORGAN is the shipping point for the great First Thought mine, which is developed by 1900 feet of tunnels and shafts, and has over $1,000,000 worth of ore in sight.

MORGAN is the headquarters for the Pierre Lake and Flat Creek mining districts which contain more partially developed mines and prospects showing bodies of sulphide ores averaging over $10 a ton than any similar area in the northwest
