COLONIAL PREFERENCE

House of Lords Discuss Scheme.

LIBERAL PARTY NOT IN FAVOR

Arguments Used on Both Sides of the House For and Against.

London, March 9.—The House of Lords spent two hours yesterday in a discussion of the question of a colonial preference. Lord Beauchamp raised the point of Mr. Chamberlain's allegation that the self governing colonies had made a definite and substantial offer to Britain which would be criminal and dangerous to refuse. More important than the attitude of the colonial Premiers disclosed in the blue book referring to the conference of 1902 was the attitude of the colonial Parliaments since Mr. Chamberlain's famous Birmingham speech. Only the Legislature of Manitoba out of 21 Parliaments had passed a resolution favoring Mr. Chamberlain's scheme. Canada's trade with Britain since the preference had increased 34 per cent, while her exports to Germany had increased during the same period 109 per cent.

The Duke of Marlborough, replying on behalf of the Government, said the colonies in general have not made us a definite offer, but they have in a practical manner incited us to enter into reciprocal relations, giving as a token of their good will preferential treatment which was neither inconsiderable nor by any means valueless. He quoted the resolutions passed at the conference of colonial Premiers and by the Boards of Trade of Montreal, Toronto, London, St. John and other cities, the preferences extended by South Africa and New Zealand and the preference leanings of Australia. He was not, he said, speaking in favor of the colonial preference idea, but simply to show that Mr. Chamberlain was correct in stating the offer of colonial support.

Lord Rosebery declared the alleged offer of the colonies, supposed to be contained in the conference resolution, was only the pious opinion of Mr. Chamberlain. He called the result of Canada's preference altogether disappointing. He would have laid more importance upon the statement of the Australian Premier in favor of an Imperial preference if he had been returned to Parliament with a substantial majority at his back. There was no reason for dislocating our fiscal system in order to meet the preferential tariffs of the colonies. He quoted Sir Wilfrid Laurier's statement that the Canadian preference was given not as a bargain, but as a matter of good will. He thought that as a mere matter of gratitude the colonies might give us a preference, because it was less than the equivalent services we rendered them in support-

JAPANESE ATTACKING PORT DALNY

Japanese Right Said to Be Against an Impossible Route—Trouble Brewing at Peking.

Tokio, March 10.—Japanese warships bombarded the forts at Taliwan, Port Dalny, on the night of March 8, and then attacked Port Arthur.

Seoul, March 10.—A party of nine Russians seized the Korean telegraph station at Yungwon today. It is reported that a fight has occurred between Koreans and Russians on the Korean side of the Tumen river.

St. Petersburg, March 10.—Cosack scouts report that the Japanese column from Plaksin bay on arriving in the snow blockaded defile of the mountains separating Korea from Manchuria, was forced to halt owing to avalanches and other obstacles.

The scouts say that one-third of the strength of this column is invalid. It is now supposed the column is returning for the purpose of seeking an easier route.

AN IMPORTANT MEETING

Silver-Lead Owners Want to Market Ore in United States:

Nelson, March 10.—The following resolution proposed by John L. Retallack and seconded by Henry Giegerich carried unanimously last night at the meeting of the Silver Lead Miners Association held in the local Board of Trade rooms.

"That this association do hereby endorse the proposal of the low grade lead miners, whereby the government is to be requested to extend the benefits of the Bounty Act to a limited amount of ore to be exported and smelted abroad—provided that such extension shall not prejudice the payments of the full bounty on ores smelted in Canada."

"Provided further, that lead ores sold and smelted in Canada during the period of such proposed extension of bounty, the maximum freight and treatment rate shall not exceed $15 per ton as per scale now in force; that the marketing charge shall not exceed $20 per 2000 lbs. of lead, as at present; and that the limit on zinc shall not decrease from ten per cent and the troops carry rifles stamped with a number and the Russian seal, and tin dishes indicating that they are soldiers licenced by Russia. Russia permits this able to remain, but demands that not only shall no more law-respecting soldiers be sent into the district but that those already there be withdrawn.

A telegraph line connects the Russian legation at Peking with the various stations along the Manchurian railway. The Russians have also seized a telephone line which heretofore has been at the disposal of the foreign residents of Newchwang. Despite the fact that the Russians are using this treaty port as a base, they are endeavoring to have Newchwang declared neutral by the powers. Such action would work serious injury to Japan.

All of the coal supply at Newchwang, including 22,000 tons belonging to a British firm, has been purchased by Russia.

penalty on the excess shall not exceed 50 cents per unit. And that the executive council be and are hereby authorized to confer with the smelters, and aid the producers of low grade ore in securing their co-operation, with full power to act for the association as a whole."

THE TRUCK ACT.

Is Being Upheld in the Ymir Mining District.

A correspondent from Salmo writes the WORLD that an interesting case has just been tried there. The facts as reported to the WORLD are that the Kootenay Shingle company of that burg insisted on their men boarding with them as a condition of obtaining employment. Israel Parrish and two other men brought action against the manager who plead guilty before Justices Buckworth of Ymir and Hunner of Erie. The manager was fined $25 or one month in default, Mr. Buckworth remarking that the act was a good one and should be enforced, and Mr. Hunner added that the fine was only made so light because it was the first time a case of the kind had been brought up.

The Last Chance

Ben Stout of Northport reports that the Last Chance mine on Deep Creek, near his ranch, has been working 20 men all through the winter. The property is a silver-lead proposition and is said to run 60 to 70 per cent galena. Shipments have been made all through the winter months to the Northport smelter but now that the snow is going off the roads shipments must necessarily cease for awhile.

GENERAL MANAGER

WAR EAGLE.

The annual report of the War Eagle presented to the shareholders at the meeting of February 28 in Toronto is to hand. It is not altogether in accordance with the first reports published interestedly in this camp. The income of the mine amounted to $312,579 proceeding from the net ore sales of 60,093 tons of ore. The gross smelter value of ore, deducting the differences between the prices paid on the metal contents in New York, and that paid by the smelter, amounting to $3.13 per ton, was $9.87. The net smelter value, deducting the cost of freight and treatment, $4.56, was $5.31. This $5.31 must, therefore, pay for development and stoping, general expenses and profit.

The cost of stoping is placed at $2.90 per ton, and the cost of development at 44 cents. As there were 1410 tons remaining over from the previous year the cost of stoping and development together were $3.26. This leaves a balance of $2.05. Now the mine cleared above all expenses $68,512.31, which means a profit of $1.14 per ton on 60,093 tons of ore sold. That is to say the other expenses were $2.05, less this amount, or 91 cents per ton. Now in an elaborate table the annual report sets forth the cost of mining and compares them carefully for seven years back, and it is careful to state that these costs include general expenses. Indeed, when it comes to a question of ore production it says that the general expenses amount to 28 cents of the $2.90 per ton charged up per ton against this. The 91 cents, therefore, must have been expended in some other channel. This amounts to $54,557. In the profit and loss account it is stated that $32,407.62 were expended for interest, $1,276 for legal expenses (fighting the Miners' Union, the city and neighboring mines), $1,738.69 for investigation of ore processes and $144.56 for sundries (trips to Victoria?) But this still leaves $19,128 unaccounted for. It is true that the profit and loss account shows $8,310.04 to diamond drill prospecting, but surely this should be charged to development, as it takes the place of drifting, raising, cross-cutting and sinking. It probably is. Then again there are $2,500 charged for the managing director's salary, put together with $1,075.49 for "head office expenses," ought to be charged to general expense, and no doubt are, in the hands of so skillful accountant as that possessed by the War Eagle, who used to calculate how much the legal expenses and the stamps amounted to per ton of ore mined. Besides these there are two small items, taxes and auditors fees which amount to $464.10 which may not have been, by the expert accountant, charged to general expenses. But taking these last items altogether they only amount to something over $12,000, leaving nearly $7,000 unaccounted for. This un-accountableness may either be in the mind of the critic, who humbly awaits correction, or it may be the deficit on the working of the Miner, or the purchase of a job plant for it to play with.

Of the total amount earned, $38,000 was set down to depreciation of the plant, which is at the rate of nearly 20 per cent. This is an unusual amount, but possibly Manager Kirby knows the worth of his machinery.

On the other hand the costs of development have been brought down to 44 cents per ton mined. Now the cost of developments have been various since 1897, varying from $20.27 in 1900 to $1.74 in the year previous, disregarding the year under consideration, 1903. Taking the average for the six years preceding 1903, the amount per ton is $7.77. Taking the averages of 1901 and 1902 the amount per ton is $4.81. This would show that development work has not been done to any great extent, which is further confirmed when the public is informed that only 20,000 tons, or four months supply at the normal rate of shipping, is blocked out. This would mean that 1904 must undertake development to make up for the past year if the inference is justifiable, which is apparently the case. This would further mean that if the cost of development is assumed at $2.02, the average for the three past years, the mine must cut all such incidental as legal expenses and head office salaries and newspaper running, if it would show a profit and furthermore that the development of the ore reduction plant at Trail is vital to the mine as at present managed. The Le Roi and the Le Roi No. 2 are making handsome profits out of a very similar averaging ore, and the War Eagle should take a leaf out of the books. However there is no doubt that a step in the right direction has been taken in the Trail plant though the management has been confoundedly long winded over the matter. The Le Roi No. 2 started two years after the War Eagle and is finished two years ahead.

Finds himself a sleeping saint in an Abbey. Visits shrine of his Saxon wife. Joins the knights going to the French war. The daughter of a Norman Baron falls in love with him.

So presently she come to her point, and, fingering that scroll she had, very downcast and blushing, said, 'You are a good knight, Sir Stranger, and strong and experienced in arms.'

'Your Ladyship's description wakes my ambition to deserve your words.'

'And generous, I have noticed, and as indulgent to page and squire of tender years are the contrary to stronger folk.'

'And if this were so, Madam,' I asked, 'what then.'

'Oh! only,' she said, wondrous shy and frightened, 'that I have here a cartel from a friend of mine, a youth of noble family, who has heard of thee, and would go to the wars in your company—as your comrade, I mean: that is, if you would take him.'

'Why, damsel, the wars are free to everyone; but I am in no mood just now to tutor a young gallant in slitting Frenchmen's throats!'

'But this one, Sir, very particularly wishes to travel with you, of whose powers he is so convinced. He has, alas! quarrelled with those as whose side he should most naturally ride—he will be no trouble; for my sake you must take him. And,' said that cunning girl, standing on tiptoe to be the nearer to my ear, 'he is rich, though friendless by a rash love—he will gladly see to both horses and disburse your passage over to France, even for the honor of remembering that he did it.'

Now, this touched me very nearly. One by one my rings had gone, and that morning, after paying scores and largesse, in truth I had found my wallet completely empty once again! If this youth had money, ever though it were but sufficient to buy corn for our chargers on the way, and pay the ferry over to yonder fair field of adventure, why, there was no denying he would be a very convenient traveling companion, and it would go hard but that I could teach him something in return. Thinking this, I lifted my eyes, and found those of Isobel watching the workings of my face with pretty cunning.

'In truth, maid, if thy friend has so much gold as would safely land us with King Edward in Flanders, why, I must confess that just at present that does greatly commend him to me. What sort of a man is he?'

This question seemed to overwhelm the lady, who blushed and hung her head like a poppy that has stood a week's drought.

'In truth, Sir,' she murmured, 'I do not know.'

'Not know! Why, but, you said he was your friend!'

'Oh! so I did. And, now I come to think of it he is a tall youth—about my size and make.'
'Gads! but he will be a shapely, if somewhat gallant,' I laughed, letting my eye roam over the supple maiden figure before me.
'But though he be so slim,' the girl hastened to add, as if she feared she had been indiscreet, 'you will find the youth a rare good horseman, and clever in many things. He can cook (if thou art ever belated) like a Frenchman, and can read missals to thee, and write like a monk—thy comrade, Sir knight, will be one in a thousand—he can sing like a mavis on a fir-top.'

'I like not these singing knights, fair maid: their verses are both too smooth for soldiers ears, and too licentious for maidens.'

'Ah! but my friend,' quoth Isobel, with a blush, 'never sang an ungentle song in his life; you will find him a most civil, most simple spoken companion.'

That Typewriting
W. J. Robinson called alone yesterday afternoon at the editorial office of the WORLD and requested that an item be published contradicting the letter written to the city council wanting payment for typewriting certain copies of the procedure by-laws, adding that the writer was willing to acknowledge the letter in question to be an error. He was informed by the editor, to whom the Miner so courteously refers this morning in the gentlemanly manner which invariably distinguishes it, being to the manner born, that this being the case it was absolutely necessary that an assurance to that effect must come to him from the writer personally and nothing could be published unless this were done. This was the end of the matter.

Were the Miner to adopt this course, followed by all newspaper men who know their profession, it would have fewer mistakes to apologize for or libel suits to settle.

Seriously Injured.

Theo. Manhire, who was hurt a few days ago by a piece of rock flying into the left eye, is under medical treatment at his residence on Second avenue. Mr. Manhire is suffering considerably from the injury which is so serious that the sight of the eye, though not lost altogether, may be permanently impaired.
