LOCAL HOCKEY LEAGUE.

A Good Move Made In the Right Direction

The hockey chiefs of Rossland have made a move in the right direction for the promotion of hockey in this city. Recognizing that professionalism in hockey, as in any other game, but destroys it as a sport by eliminating amateurs, it has been determined to get up a series of hockey clubs in this city which will compete within themselves for a trophy.

Necessarily the players will not all be first class, but they will all be willing, and between five hockey teams, there will be plenty of material for selecting a team that will be an honor to the Golden City. Moreover there will also be plenty of material for selection, when members of the Rossland team drop out from one cause or another.

The teams which have already joined the league are those made up of the Bank of Montreal, Huntdr Brothers, West Kootenay Power and Light company, the Le Roi and the War Eagle. The first game of the series will come off nextweek on Thursday.

PITH OF OPPOSITION

The Case of the Free Importers Against Joseph Chamberlain

London, Jan. 29—The Economist commenting on his Guildhall speech, says Chamberlain has been prolific in producing plans, each for the time infallible, and equally ready in sacrificing his unhappy offspring when political exegencies for the moment demanded it. The colonies, according to his first suggestion, where to cease manufacturing, in order to provide a market for the manufactures of the mother country. That idea the colonies promptly repudiated. Chamberlain's skill as a political presti digitator promptly caused it to disappear.

The Spectator says it is not frendship that Chamberlain offers the colonies, but partnership, in which thore is not even an equality of sacrifice; for if they are to give up by preferential tariffs something of their revenue, we are to go comparatively hungry in order that they who can never even fear pangs of hunger may continue careers which are to go to produce for them that modern success which such men like Chamberlain think so supreme—success of growing rich.

The Statist says it is difficult to judge whether Chamberlain made much impression on the public or made a great mistake by devoting so much of his speeck to figures and relegated Imperialism to the end of his speeches. If he is to ultimately succeed, it will be by an appeal to Imperialism, not labouring with trade statistics, that will win him support from the public.

Hon. H. H. Asquith speaking at Southport the other day, said you may go through all the industries in Canada, certainly all those engaged in exportation to Britain of raw material or food, and you will find that, without stirring up infinite dissatisfaction, jealousy exists between different classes of producers. So far from confining yourself to the simple expedient of putting preferential duty on corn you will have to do the same all around the whole list of Canadian exporters to Britain. South Africa wool growers still want a preference equal to all Canadian wheat growers. Unless they get it you establish at once between Africa and Canada a position of invidious discrimination, under which, if material bonds are needed to unite the colonies and the mother country, will make Africa say you are giving a material bond to Canada while you withhold one from me.

BOILERS BILL REPORTED

Act Sweeping In Its Inclusions.

CURATOR IS SUPERANNUATED

Fight Arose Over Hawthornthwaite's Bill For the Protection of Deer.

Victoria, Jan. 29.—Yesterday being private members' day, there was no night sitting, and a very quiet session in the afternoon. The liveliest discussion arose over Hawthornthwaita's bill forbidding the slaughter of deer on Vancouver island. This bill was made applicable to all of British Columbia in so far as exportation of deer or deer skins is concerned, while on the island it is made unlawful to offer skins for sale.

There was a vigorous fight against the measure for different reasons. Some of the objections were that the bill was unfair to the proprietors of hide factories, that it prevented prospectors securing their venison, etc. In so far as Atlin is concerned, however, the bill will not apply, and the cariboo is the common game there.

The name of the bill was altered to that of an Act for the Protection of Fish and Game, and provision was made in it to prevent the killing of trout under six inches in length, or between November 15th and Maach 25th.

Provision was also made for the declaration when necessary of a close seasan for deer, elk, wapiti, moose, cariboo, mountain sheep and mountain goat.

The bill was then reported. It was rather a coincidence that the same afternoon in which such an act should be under consideration of the members they should also be called upon to discuss provisions for the superannuation of one whose name has been most intimately associated with the preservation of game from a taxidermist's standpoint,

Curator Fanning is in very ill health, and the Government have placed on the estimates a modest sum providing for his retirement.

One of the Opposition members took exception to this on principle, but his colleagues on the same side of the house joined hands with the Government members in advocating this provision for the veteran curator, whose name is known in the realm of natural history over the whole continent.

On the report stage of the Steam Boilers bill the section relating to the holders of fourth class service certificates was amended to cover those who had been in charge of any steam plant, no matter how small.

Judging by the programme of Paul Kauffmann's musicale at the Miners Union hall, January, 29th., the concert will certainly be worth the admission.

ROYAL ARCH MASONS

Annual Convention Election of British Columbia Officers

Toronto, Jan, 29.—The annual convention of Royal Arch Masons opened in the Temple building this morning. Reports presented showed the order to be in a very flourishing condition.

The election of officers was as follows: Abraham Shaw, of Kington, Ont., grand Z., re-elected by acclamation; grand superintendent ior district No. 16, British Columbia, J. W. Prescott, Vancouver; No. 17, Alberta, E. L. Baker, Medicine Hat; No. 18, Kootenay, Rev. C. A. Procunier, Revelstoke, formerly of Rossland.

TO HAVE A HOT TIME

Conservatives are Going For the Scalp of John Houston

Victoria, Jan. 29.— The provincial Conservative Convention will meet here on Monday next. The special object of the meeting is to give attention to provincial affairs with a view to strengthening the party, if possible, throughout the province. From recent rumblings heard on the floor of the house, it is certain that John Houston, M. L. A. for Nelson, will be ousted from the chairmanship.

Hon Robert Green has his knife ready and is anxious to put Mr. Houston outside of the pale of party. "Ballot Box" Ross is out gunning after the Nelson member. Premier McBride and his ministers finds Mr. Houston to be a source of chronic irritation. Houston keeps up his fire of sarcasm and invective whenever the opportunity presents itself and the entire party is in arms against him. It is probable that besides removing him from the chairmanship that he may be asked to resign his seat in the house, though it is very doubtful if he would pay the least bit of attention to such a request. Under the circumstances there promises to be a hot old time when the Conservative convention is in session.

The original intention was to hold the convention in Revelstoke, but the executive committee finally decided to have the meeting in Victoria. This will give the delegates an opportunity to see the lawmakers at work.

ROSSLAND AND BOUNDARY.

An article appearing in yesterday's WORLD pointed out the vital necessity of having a competitive railroad from this camp into the Boundary country. The real basis of such a statement is the fact that the Boundary smelters can treat ore cheaper than certainly the Trail, and possibly the Northport, reduction works. The latter is excepted, inasmuch as its lime flux is very much cheaper. But Rossland is much at the mercy of the C. P. R. in sending its ores from this camp to be treated at the Boundary. The C. P. R. at the present minute is hauling the ores of the Le Roi No. 2 to Greenwood. To enable it to do so the Great Northern has made a nominal charge for the transportation of those ores from the mine to the C P. R. switch in this camp, a distance of about a mile.

Formerly the Le Roi No. 2 ores were sent to Northport, and the Great Northern had the haulage of the whole. Notwithstanding this fact it has adopted a broad policy. Let the converse of the case be looked at. The Great Northern is hauling ores from Rossland to the Granby smelter via Marcus and Grand Forks. The Railway Committee has so far prevented the Great Northern or its tributaries from extending their lines beyond Grand Forks four or five miles into the Granby smelter; consequently this four or five miles has to be covered by the C. P. R. This action was got principally upon the ground that if the V. V. & E. branch of the Great Northern was being built into the Boundary to carry Canadian ores out of the country for smelting in Washington or other points. Having got their way in this matter, with the true patriotism characteristic of the C. P. R., it proceeds to make a charge of 75 or 80 cents for the haulage of that ore from Grand Forks to the Granby smelter, notwithstanding the courtesy extended to the C. P. R. by the Great Northern, in the case of the Le Roi No. 2 ore in Rossland, and notwithstanding the fact that the C. P, R. is only charging 32½ cents for the haulage of ore from Phoenix to Granby, a distance of 30 miles. Nor is this all. It is the intention of the Great Northern or its tributaries to build along the Kettle River from Grand Forks to the Boundary Falls and Greenwood smelters and to tap Phoenix camp. The question came up in 1902 and was opposed by the C. P, R. in the name of the Kettle Valley railroad. Again on patriotic grounds, connection was prevented, and with the injunctive aid of the British Columbia courts, doubtless will be opposed again this season under the same flag-flapping policy. But the construction of such a line will not only mean great things for the Boundary country, but will also provide Rossland with three smelters, besides those of Trail and Northport, at which it may get its ores smelted at a reasonable rate The WORLD would recommend this matter to the local Board of Trade, and also to candidates Mackintosh and Galliher who are seeking the suffrages of this camp, for their earnest attention. Especially as it is the opinion of smelter experts that on account of the lime contents of the low grade ores of the Boundary containg so much lime and being rather short in iron, the pyritic ores and concentrates of Rossland are destined, with reasonable freight rates, such as the Great Northern, is in marked contradistinction to the C. P. R., already offering Rossland mine owners, to be eventually all treated in the Boundary smelters. The excess of sulphur in Rossland ores is not an insuperable difficulty, but will yield to the hot blast instead of the cold blast, now being used in the Boundary. Let Rossland citizens and mine owners without delay become alive to the fact that the future of the city depends largely upon its alliance with the Boundary mining interests, and act accordingly. The Great Northern railway has already shown that it is not extending its system merely to steal away the British Columbia ores for treatment in the United States, but that it is ready to facilitate the treatment not only of British Columbia ores in British Columbia, but to bring those of Republic into British Columbia, because the commercial development of the country demands it. Would to goodness the so-called national railway were operated in the same broad spirit, rather than as an annex of the Trail smelter, in which, it is hoped, only the C. P. R. Company, and not a band of its officials are interested.

WANT OTHER COTTON

Europe Does Not Like the Rise Engineered in American Cotton.

Washington, Jan. 29.—"A revolt against American cotton," is the title of a long report just received at the American state department from United States Consul General Mason at Berlin, Germany.

Mr. Mason says there is a simultaneous effort on the part of Great Britain, France and Germany to emancipate their textile industries from dependence on America. No only In Germany, but throughout Europe, he says, there is a growing feeling of resentment against this dependence, and experiments are being made in the British colonies in cotton cultivation.

SYNOPSIS

Phra, who dies and lives again in Britain, begins to recount his early adventures—He buys a British slave girl and sails on a trading voyage to Cornwall and marries a British princess. Is attacked and captured by the Romans. Escapes and is murdered by the Druids. Is born again in later Roman Britain. Finds a tattooed record by his wife on his body. CHAPTER IX

I am not of a nature to be long overwhelmed. All that night and far into next day I lay upon Voewood, alternately sleeping and bewailing the chance which tossed me to and fro upon the restless ocean of time, and then I arose. I threw my arms round each in turn of thoes dear, callous ones in the chapel, and pushed back the brambles from them, and wept a little, and told myself the pleasure of life was now surely spent to the very last coin—then, with a mighty effort, tore myself away. Again and again, while the smooth swell the grassy mound under which the foundations of the long destroyed Saxon homestead with the little chapel by the rivulet were in sight, I turned and turned, loth and sad. But no sooner had the leafy screen hid them than I set off and ran whither I knew not, nor cared—indeed, I was so terribly drawn by that spot—so close in the meshes of its association, so thralled by the presence of the dust of all I had had to lose or live for, that I feared, if the best haste were not made that I should neither haste nor fly from that terribly sweet hillock of lamentations for ever.

What could it matter where my wandering feet were turned? All the world was void and vapid, east and west alike indifferent, to one so homeless, and thus I stalked on through glades and coppice for hours and days, with my chin upon my chest, and feeling marvellously cheap and lonely. But enough of this. Never yet did I crave sympathy of any man: why should I seem to seek it of you—sceptical and remote?

There were those who appeared at that time to take compassion on me unasked, and I remember the countrywomen at whose cottage doors I hesitated a moment—yearning with pent up affection over their curly headed little ones—added to the draught of water I begged such food as their slender stores provided. One of these gave me a solid green forester's cape and jerkin; another put shoes of leather upon my feet; and a third robbed her husband's pegs to find me headwear, and as through the gifts of their unspoken good will I came by degrees into the raiment of the time.

But nothing seemed to hide the inexpressible strangeness I began to carry about with me. No sorry apparel, no woodman's cap drawn down over my brows, no rustic clogs upon my wandering feet, masked me for a moment from the awe and wonder of those good English people. None of them dared ask me a question, how I come or where I went, but everywhere it was the same. They had but to look upon me, and up they rose, and in silence, and, drawn involuntarily by that stern history of mine they knew not of, they ministered to me according to their means. The women dropped their courtesies, and—unasked, unasking—fed the grim and ragged stranger from their cleanest platter, the men stood by and uncapped them to my threadbare russet, and whole groups would watch spellbound upon the village mounds as I paced moodily away.

In course of time my grief began to mend, so that it was presently possible to take a calmer view of the situation, and to bend my thoughts upon what it were best to do next. Though I love the greenwood, and am never so happy as when solitary, yet my nature was not made, alas! for sylvan idleness. I felt I had brotherhood with those who are recluse and shun the noisy struggles of the world; yet had I always been a leader of men, I now remembered, as all the pages of my past history came one by one before me and I meditated upon them day and night. No, I was not made to walk these woods alone, and, if another argnment were wanting, it were found in the fact that I was here exposed to every weather, hungry and shelterless! I could not be for ever begging from door to door, eternally throwing my awe inspiring shadow across the lintels of these gentle mannered woodland folk, and my tastes, though never gluttonous, rebelled most strongly against the perpetual dietary of herbs and limpid brooks.

THE MASONIC BALL.

A Pleasant Evening Was Spent and Many Were Amused

The Masons gave a ball last night in their Temple which was well attended by their friends, and an excellent time was had. The music was supplied by Schorlemmer's orchestra, and was much enjeyed. A Masonic dance is somewhat of a rarity in the camp, and the guests were loud in their desire that their courteous hosts might soon have another snch occasion.

I wish to state that I had nothing whatever to do with the communication, as the writer of the letter was H. B. Mackintosh, brother of Governor Mackintosh of this city.
