HAS A LARGE DEFICIT

New Provincial Arrangement of Schools is Heavy Tax on City

The school board at a meeting last night in which the expendatures and receipts for the previous year were reviewed passed a hearty vote of thanks to Chairman McCraney for the services rendered during his term of office in which it is probable they will be endorsed by the electorate.

The finances show that the children attending school cost nearly $30 per capita, that the total expenditure was over $12,000, that of this expenditure $7000 was contributed by the government, $2000 by the local school rate and that the deficiency, amounting to $3310 had to be made up by the city.

JAPANESE GO HOME

Patriots are Recalled to Their Own Home

Cheyenne, Wyoming, Jan. 8.—Several hundred Japanese trackmen and miners employed by the Union Pacific Railroad and Coal company in Wyoming, it is reported, are arranging to obey the order of the Mikado to return to their native land and enter the army.

The Minnie

The Minnie mine in Summit camp owned by Dr. Averill,is showing up well. The main shaft is down a depth of 60 feet and a crosscut at the bottom of the shaft opened up a large ore body. This mine will be added to the list of shippers at an early date.

Endorse Galliher

Cranbrook, Jan. 8.—The Liberals of Cranbrook met yesterday afternoon to select delegates to attend the nominating convention for Kootenay which is to be held at Nelson on Tuesday, January 12th. There was but one opinion prevalent, and that was that W. A. Galliher should be re-nominated unanimously. The delegates chosen will come to Nelson pledged to carry out that object.

The Senator

The Senator claim, which was recently bonded by the Granby smelter company, is proving a surprise. Enough ore is said to be in sight to make steady shipments for months, and new bodies are being stripped which are beginning to make the Senator look like a mine The ore is being quarried out of a glory hole and shipped to the company's smelter.

CONVENTION AT NELSON

Rossland Delegates Appointed to Nominate Candidate.

The Rossland Liberals held a well attended meeting last night for the purpose of electing delegotes to the convention for nomination which is to be held in Nelson next Tuesday. The following were elected delegates: Dr. D. E. Kerr, Robert W. Grigor, George W. Urquhart, A. McMillan, Henry Roy, Isodore LeBlanc, A. McNaughton, H. J. Raymer, Robert H. Anderson, Allan Lockhart, J. McSwayne, Stuart Martin, A. Goyett, W. Burns, Harry Seaman, Arthur Dutton, R. A. Laird and James Cowan.

The evening was wound up by an excellent speech from J. A. Macdonald, anterior to his departure for the legislative halls of the provincial representatives. In it he got after the premier warmly over the circumstances of the recent ten year loan for $1,000,000. He pointed out that money could not be raised under five per cent interest owing to the financial conditions of the province. Under such circumstances, Mr. Macdonald maintained, a short term loan should have been raised.

Rreferring to the assessment act the Rossland member was not at all in approval. He declared that the efiect was to tax a man upon his debts as well as upon his possessions which was hardly the way to help him in his business struggles.

Mr. Macdonald further criticized the goverment by stating that they had in raising the price of coal licences and the value of coal locations increased the difficulties to the poor prospector and averred that the men who declared that the McBride government would do the right thing about the East Kootenay coal and oil prosp ctors had now nothing to say.

Mr. Macdonald was etnhusuastically received and warmly applauded by his supporters,

THE VOTERS' LIST.

The voters' list this year amouuts to 1219 names, an increase of 141 on last year, or over 13 per cent. Last year there were 510 voters in the east ward. This year there are 580. In the west ward there are 639 voters as against 568 registered at the last election. There are many absentees on the list, but not more proportionately than was the case last year.

This is apparently unsuited to the present civic authorities who are playing at a judicial revision of the voters' list, and hundreds of citizens are disfrachised. It is condescendingly stated that those people who are struck off, will have a letter posted to them informing them of the fact. It will be unfortunate if a letter goes astray.

The only person responsible for the voters' list is the city clerk. and those who are pretending to act have as much authority, no more, no less, than the first man off the street. He has to certify to the correctness of his list today. He and no one else. If any man finds out that he is no longer on the list, despite the fact that his name was registered during December, he can make an application to a judge, supposing he can find one, any time before the election which is next Thurday. Now Judge Forin is in Revelstoke today and is not due in Rossland for the county court sittings, until the very day of election. If it is found then that application cannot be made to him it can be made to the Police Magistrate. Now the Police Magistrate in his capacity as City Solicitor has been kindly helping the City Clerk. If disfranchised voters don't like that they can go to Stipendiary Magistrate Kirkup. They have no kick coming any way, in the estimation of the Pooh Bahs who are trying to run the town.

A POLICY IS ADOPTED

Kootenay Mine Authorized to Erect a Reduction Plant.

The following excerpts made from the speeches of the chairman, C. Williamson Milne, of the annual meeting of the Rossland Kootenay mine, held recently in London, speak for themselves. Rosslanders may now take it for granted that the mine will proceed along the lines outlined by Mr. Milne, and accepted by the shareholders:

"For the most part, this mine is of low grade, and our anxiety during the past year has been to ascertain if it were possible to arrange some process whereby this ore could be economically treated so as to yield a profit. I should say that numerous tests have been made in different directions. It would, perhaps, be hardly fair for me in public meeting to ment in all the different processes which have been tried by our manager and condemned, but I may say at the present time Mr. Thompson has been carrying on tests in considerable bulk with a process in Spokane, which gives promise of enabling us to treat the Kootenay ores at a profit, and of putting up a plant at a comparatively small cost sufficient to enable us to deal with our ore on the spot, and yield a profit on it. The main thing we have to direct attention to when we have settled the process, is the development of the ore bodies at the lowest level of all—that is to say, 400 ft., below our principal adit tunnel. We have done all the heavier prospecting work, and we now propose to limit our operations for the most part to prospecting by diamond drill. With the mine opened up to such an enormous extent, and so much of this tunnel being in ore matter, we feel there is every probability of the diamond drill discovering other ore bodies which may yet make the Kootenay one of the great mines of British Columbia."

"Before seperating I want to propose a vote of thanks to Mr. Wm. Thompson, our general manager in Rossland, and his staff, for the work they have done on our behalf. That work, I assure you, is not confined to stipulated hours, but those hours are extended as occasion arises. They are at work early and late in your interests, and if any siaff of men can bring the company to success, the gentlemen who are serving you in British Columbia at the present time can do so. I want you to express a vote of confidence in our staff as it at present exists on the spot."

The motion was carried by acclamation.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

Said Pasha Well Rendered to a Good Audience

The Olympia Opera company ought to have such good houses for the remainder of the week, that they will be persuaded never to leave this camp out of their itinerary in the future. They staged Said Pasha last night in a manner which gave them the sympathy of the audience from the very start. Everything went without a hitch. There were no vexatious delays. The singers were amply competent and one or two far above the average. The clowning was funny and what is more, original to some extent. The choruses were excellent and some of the solos, especially one by Eleanor Jenkins and another by Leo Adde carried the audience, already with the players, away.

Tonight will be produced Olivette which is one of the most charming of all bright operas, and ought to bring an even better house than that of last night, although that was good.

The great forest stags stayed the fraying of their antlers against the tree trunks in the dark coppices as we flew by, and the startled wolf yelped and snarled upon our path as our fleeting shadows o'ertook him; and then, there, ever behind, low, remorseless, stern, came the murmuring hoof beats of our pursuers, now rising and now falling upon the light breath of the night wind, but ever, as our panting steeds strode shorter and shorter coming nearer and nearer, clearer and clearer.

Had this sombre race, whereof Death held the stakes, continued so as it began, straight on end, I do not think we could have got away. But when we had ridden many an hour and the heavy streaks of white foam were marking Editha's horse with dreadful suggestion, and his breath was coming hot and husky through his wide red nostrils, for a moment or two the sound of the pursuers stopped. Blessed respite! They had missed the woodland road—but for all too short a space. We had hardly made good four or five hundred yards of advantage when, terribly near us, sounded the call of one of their horsemen, and soon all the others were in his footsteps again. This one, he who now led the pursuers by, perhaps, a quarter of a mile, gained on us stride by stride, until I could stand the thud of his horsehoofs on the turf behind no more. 'Here!' I said fiercely to Editha, 'take Gurth,' and put him with his sister in her arms, then, bidding them ride slowly forward, turned my charger and paced him slowly back towards the oncoming knights, with stern anger smouldering in my heart.

There was a smooth, wide bit of grassy road between us in that centre, midnight Saxon forest. And never a gleam of light fell upon that ancient throughfare; never the faintest, thin white finger of a star pierced the black canopy of boughs overhead; it was black as the kennel of Cerberus, and as I sat my panting war horse I could not see my own hand stretched out before me—yet there, in that grim blackness, I met the Norman lance to lance, and sent his spirit whirling into the outer space!

I let him come within two hundred yards, then suddenly rose in my stirrups and, shouting Harold's warcry, I did not deign to fall upon him unawares, 'Out! Out! England! England!' awaited his answer. It came in a moment, strange and inhuman in the black stillness, 'Roul Ha Roul Notre Dame!' and then—muttering between my tight set teeth that surely that road was the road to hell for one of us—I bent my head down almost to my horse's ears, drove the spurs into him, and gripping my long keen spear, thundered back upon my unseen foeman. With a shock that startled the browsing hinds a mile away, we were together. The Norman spear broke into splinters athwart my body—but mine, more truly held, struck him fair and full—I felt him like a great dead weight upon it, I felt his saddle girths burst and fly, and then, as my own strong haft bent like a willow wand and snapped close by my hand, that midnight rider and his visionary steed went crashing to the ground. Bitterly I laughed as I turned my horse northwards once more, and from a black cavernmouth on the hillside an owl echoed my grim merriment with ghastly glee.

MINOR MENTION.

Fred Empey returned to camp last night.

Every woman cut off the voters list is going to persuade her male friends to vote for Dean.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Ansen returned last night from a two months visit to Vancouver.

The Olympia Company enjoyed themselves sleigh driving last night They came out all right but the driver didn't.

All the old married men in town were rubbering on Courthouse hill this afternoon to watch the ballet girls coasting. Shocking!

Rossland Liberals have passed a resolution calling upon the Dominion government to place concentrating oil on the free list.

Murdock A. Henderson has been disfranchised for using Father Pat's fountain for watering his horses without paying for its use

For unpaid road tax 55 voters have been disfranchised. And the city has lost $110. Mayor Dean is making the city pay heavily for his toy whistle.

Lodgers who were not cut off the voter list are having great fun with those who have been. To make fish of one and flesh of the other is really good politics and is apt to pay.

Atttention!

All voters who have paid their road taxes and sanitary rates, who have been struck off the lists are requested to call at once at the Municipal Reform Party's, rooms, next to Tailor & McQuarrie's.

HAVE YET A CHANCE

Judge Forin Will Come to Rosslaud.

VOTERS DISFRANCHISED APPEAL

Full List of Those Who Have Been Struck Off the Voters' List.

The wholesale slaughter in the voters list has caused quite a commotion among the voters and many of those who are by the dictates of the presents "powers" struck off are going to apply for their rights according to law. Today Mr. C. E. Gillan, who is representing many of those who are wrongfully struck off, phoned to Judge Forin asking him to come before election day to hear applications but as the Judge holds Court in Nelson on Monday next he could not say at what time he could be here but, if the list can be got through in Nelson in time, will in all probability come on Wednesday next in order to dispose of all matters so as not to interfere with the sittings of the County Court on Thursday next.

Due notice will be given in the WORLD as to the time when the Judge will be here so that all who are wrongfully deprived of their franchise may apply for their rights.

Judge Forin will send a notice as to the time when he can be here, so as to allow all a fair chance.

For the benefit of those who have been wrongfully struck off the list we give the definition of "householder" from the statutes. "'Householder' shall extend to and include every person who holds and occupies a messuage, dwelling or tenement, or any part or portion of a messuage, dwelling or tenement within a municipality yielding and paying therefor a rental or rent value of not less than sixty dollars per annum."
