A MODUS VIVENDI

Premier Bond on the Fisheries Question.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE PENDING

Satisfactory Settlement Will Soon be Arrived at With France.

St. Johns, Nd., Feb. 27.—In the colonial assembly yesterday afternoon. Premier Bond moved the passage of the modus vivendi bill.

He said that important negotiations were progressing between the governments of Newfoundland, Great Britain and France, but that these were necessarily secret.

The premier also expressed his firm conviction that the fearlessness, firmness and business of Mr. Chamberlain, the British Colonial secretary, would insure a satisfactory settlement of the question in the interest of Newfoundland in the near future.

The Spitzee.

"The Spitzee," said ex-Mayor Goodeve yesterday to the Nelson Miner, "is turning out well. The intention is to put in before long a compressor plant to replace the small steam plant with which the mine for several months has been operated. When this is done shipping and development will be carried on simultaneously. A carload of Spitzee ore recently sent to the smelter gave returns of $24 per ton."

The DETROIT HOUSE, on Second avenue, has been reopened. Meals 25c. Table the best to be found.

For imported wines go to the International Liquor Store.

Idaho Continental.

Edward Baillie, auditor for the Idaho-Continental mine, near Port Hill, came in yesterday evening from the mine where he has been for the past few days. He states that 12 teams are hauling ore from the mine to the landing and they are moving about twelve tons a day. Four carloads have already been shipped. The roads have been bad this winter on account of the lack of snow and for some time it has been necessary to make transfers from the sleighs at the upper end of the road, to the wagons nearer the lake. Wm. Roberts, superintendent of the mine, has gone to Duluth to confer with eastern shareholders of the company as to additions to plant, which it is proposed to make.

ROSSLAND RANGERS

Record of the Local Corps is Hard to Beat in This Country.

The record of No. 1 Company of the Rocky Mountain Rangers is one of which so young a corps can well be proud. Enrolled barely four years ago upwards of 138 men have passed through its ranks to add the training of a soldier to their list of qualifications for good citizenship. When that qualification will be called upon, it is difficult to say. At any moment, the signs of war are so ominous, a call to arms may be made to every British subject to fight for the preservation of those liberties which the forefathers of the present generation fought to gain.

Out of a total strength of 40 men, 15 have served in South Africa, several being there at present and there are three who will stay there for ever. It is a record of which neither men nor officers may be ashamed. Moreover in a land of crack shots the Rossland team has held its own. The result of the first years' competition against all Canada showed the Rossland boys as 42nd on the list, and last year this place was battered to the seventeenth. Take them, all round, and judging them by their record the Rangers of this camp need not fear comparison with any other corps in the Dominion. Their services have entitled them to the consideration of the government and a drill hall should be provided.

Good Play at the Opera House Last Night—Fair Attendance.

The play at the Opera house last night was all right. There are people who have seen better plays and better actors in better cities, but for an ordinary travelling company that of Georgia Harper is above the average. She is neither a Sarah Bernhardt nor an Ellen Terry, and if she were it would be a cold day that saw her in Rossland. She is a talented actress who shows to advantage in melodrama. She was well supported in some of the parts, and rather weakly in others. There were two entr'actes, both of which were good. Tonight will be played Divorce, and the company declares that it is its strongest piece.

ANOTHER BOER RUSH

London, Feb. 27.—Lord Kitchener reports that 600 Boers' driving cattle, rushed the outpost line near Bothasberg, Transvaal colony, during the night of February 23rd, and that some of them got through. The Boers left 15 dead and six wounded on the field.

CROW'S NEST SHARES.

New Scrip is Issued Merging Four Shares Into One.

Yesterday an alteration was made in the par value of the shares of the Crow's Nest Coal company which gave rise to some comment as to its possible meaning. Like all great things the matter is sufficiently simple. The stock of this company had a par value of $25. Many transactions are put through on the Toronto Stock exchange. Now this exchange deals with shares having the par value of $100. Hence Crow's Nest stock was bought and sold on an unit of four shares. To obviate this inconvenience the company has merged four shares into one, calling in the old and issuing new scrip in accordance.

NO CHINESE.

Provincial Government Will Not Pass Accounts for Chinese Labor.

A man in search of work dropped into the editorial sanctum of the WORLD this morning declaring that he had walked up from Trail. On the road, just above the milk ranch he met a couple of Celestials digging away on the road with all their might. He asked them what they were doing, and they replied, "Makee load heap good, eh!"

On Gold Commissioner Kirkup being applied to on the matter he said that he had no men at work whatsoever, the road was under his charge, but the government would not pass a bill that even charged up the washing of a towel done with the aid of Chinese labor. What work the Chinamen were doing they were doing of their own sweet will and for their own Celestial benefit.

COAL RESERVES

Extensive Fields of East Kootenay.

VAST AREAS ARE AVAILABLE

Where the Government May Select Its 50,000 Acres of Land.

The valley of the Elk river along which, with its tributaries from the east, is situated most of the coal fields of the Crow's Nest Pass is destined to be one of the busiest portions of British Columbsa within the present decade. The main coal deposits opened up so far are on Coal creek, Michel creek and Morrissey creek. Besides these deposits there are in the coal reserve which stretches for fifty miles north of the Michel creek collieries, a number of places where the coal comes to the surface and from the indications it is believed that the whole is one vast coal bed. This reserve is bounded on the west by Elk river, on the east by the main range of the Rockies. Coal croppings are found in the foot hills running north and south. The formation is almost entirely black slate, the foothills being cut in a number of places by narrow gorges cut by streams, and along which the coal croppings are seen.

From Michel creek to Elko the valley of the Elk is narrow and heavily timbered, the coal being found on the branch streams some distance from the main river. Eighteen miles up are situated hot sulpher springs, owned by Nelson parties. From Michel to the springs a wagon road has been run, but north of this the only means of travel is by an old and only occasionally used Indian trail.

The coal varies in its quality and it is believed that the farther up the valley of the river that it is found the harder the coal is. The land on the western side is not open for the pre emption or sale, the government reserve covering these rights, but on the western side most of it has already been taken up by settlers.

From these coal lands are to be selected the 50,000 acres by the Dominion government. The region is conceded by experts to contain probably the largest deposits of coal in the world, and further exploration will likely show that all varieties of coal are to be met with in the various localities, as the fields extend from near the International boarder on the south for nearly 200 miles to the north.

EXPRESSMANS RACE.

Charlie Hayward's Team Won With a Walk-Over and one Heat.

There was to be an expressman's race this afternoon on Columbia avenue for $50 a side, between Charlie Hayward and Hugh Mcleod, for the best two out of three heats. There were lots of spectators and the event fell to the first named. The first heat was a walk-over, as Mcleod did not start. The second heat was won by Hayward, and the race was awarded accordingly to him.

MENE, MENE TEKEL.

Yesterday was published a news item emanating from a city in the United States setting forth the fact that a typographical union refused an application for membership on the ground that the applicant was a member of the local militia. In Canada such a state of things as is revealed as existing behind the scenes by this sudden lift of the veil does not at present exist. It is hoped that the unions never will become of the opinion that such a step would be necessary, as it implies an antagonism that should never have the occasion to exist in the civilization of the twentieth century. It is, however, significent to remember, in the ominous advance of trusts, that the Vancouver papers each and all found it necessary last summer, just before the opening of the fishing season when the fishers refused to accept the terms offered by the canners, to remind the militia of their oath of allegiance. No attempt was wisely made to repeat the Steveston exhibition of the mailed hand of the year before.

White men of British parentage or descent are flocking into Canada because they feel that here will be found that freedom that is denied them in their own country. Here there exists an appeal to the legislature, to the judiciary which though sometimes answered tardily has never, so far, failed of recognition. Canada wants immigrants but she wants the pick of the earth. She wants men, not abject bipeds, without even the spirit of the barn-door fowl. Let Canadian legislators understand that the interests of Canadians as a whole are before the interests of mere money or trade, and legislate accordingly, and there will never come to pass in this country that industrial, fearful warfare which is seemingly all too awfully foreshadowed in the great country to the south.

FRONTAGE.

One objection that is raised to the establishment of a frontage tax is that an injustice will accrue. Those improvements which have already been accomplished have been done all the expense of the general public. Those improvements which shall be established in future, under the frontage system, will be financed, not by the general fund, but by a special one raised by the property owners holding the land to be improved. But many people whose property is at present unimproved have contributed in times past to the betterment of the lots of others.

The objection is valid as far as it goes. Two things, however, must be remembered. First that in many cities where the frontage system has been profitably adopted certain areas, usually the central business streets, and certain main thoroughfares leading to and from the city, have been exempted from the general operation of the bylaw on the ground that the betterment of these particular streets would be for the general good of the whole city. Except in a few isolated instances the streets that have been improved, the places where the great bulk of the money has been expended lie in the heart of this city. It can be argued, and possibly successfully, that, after all, the interest of the city in these particular portions but brings an added value to the property affected as is evinced by the heavy prices demanded for central business lots. Be that as it may the fact remaius that many cities have argued the other way, and if Rossland is ever to adopt the frontage system it must tacitly accept the argument to the contrary.

This brings us to the second reason why the frontage system should be adopted. Despite the fact that future improvements would have to be paid for by men who are also paying in interest and sinking fund for improvements accomplished by general revenue and that that seems to be an injustice, the step is necessary else a greater injustice would inevitably be suffered by these very people.

For there is no money to carry out further improvements which yield no direct money return. If this injustice is thought unbearable then these people who have unimproved property will still have to keep on paying for improved portions of the city while their own property was unapproachable or lacking the facilities which an advanced civilization demands. Further, as additions are platted and domiciles erected, a certain minimum of improvements, done sparsely and niggardly from year to year, will have to be carried out at the general expense. The sufferers from injustice will see no chance of getting redress and the sum of the injustice year to year will grow even greater and greater as greater burdens are laid upon the city by it very extension. The next generation might, if the value of property largely increases, put the city into trim order but not unless the value grows in heavier ratio than the spread of population. Else there would be no catching up. And again, if the present system continues indefinitely in force, the appearance of Rossland for years to come will remain out at elbows since the money available will not be more than enough to give a very superficial attention to even the most pressing wants.

The frontage system will, on the contrary, prevent undue haste in the platting of additions. It will gradually lessen the general taxation as debt is paid off. It will beautify the city quicker than any other system and it will not cost any more money even from the very start. If the council wishes to do something that will give it a claim on the suffrages of the city, let it give this matter its gravest consideration.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Attention is being drawn to the importance of Oriental trade to this province and to the effects of the Great Northern merger to control the same. As China is the very best market for the silver of this country the matter is one well worth the consideration of the Kootenay members of the legislature.

To show how the idea of high grade rock still prevails in certain not too well informed quarters in the camp it will be sufficient to point out that the White Bear's chief claim to consideration according to the "Miner," is that picked samples of its ore run $40 to the ton. If that was the only claim to the confidence of the public possessed by the White Bear mine its shares would not be in demand.

Helmcken has asked that the premier of the Dominion be invited to discuss the question of Jap immigration at the forthcoming imperial conference in London after the coronation with a view to putting a stop to it. He had better strengthen his argument by introducing a set of measures more drastic than those that were disallowed, but framed on Chamberlain's advice. It will show the people concerned that this province is in earnest.

BRITISH WORKMEN

Great Britain as a Lender of Workers as Well as Capital.

It is a lucky thing for any country to have British interests wrapped up in her when she happens to be in trouble. She has only to apply to the British government, which strokes its chin, and says: "Well, we'll lend you a man who will put it up right for you, but you must send him back undamaged." During the past twenty years Britain has audited the books and drilled the armies of over a dozen nations.

Two years and a half ago Japan got her accounts in such a muddle that she had to borrow one of Queen Victoria's servants to help her. Britain sent them the famous accountant, John Dymock Murray, who in six weeks brought seven defaulters to book, revised the whole tax system, organized the police, and added permanently £1,000,000 to the country's yearly income.

King Chulalongkorn of Siam would have had a good many bad times had he not been able to persuade Britain to let him borrow a man or two. Besides business matters, you cannot beat Britain for policemen, and Chulalongkorn borrowed from our government a solitary man, who quashed a whole hostile nation for the king—the wandering tribe of Mekon dacoits, numbering over 200,000.

The khedive of Egypt owes the existence of one of the best black armies in the world to a handful of plain noncoms, which Britain has lent him for a time—drill-sergeants from our regiments of the line.

Four years ago the United States thought it wasn't any business of ours to lend Mexico a scientist to cope with the yellow fever plague, fancying that if we got our finger in it we might go too far.

But Britain lent Mexico Sir Allan Stavely, the famous vaccinationist and sanitary expert. He cured over 3000 babies of the disease, besides numberless other people, mostly against their will, and he reduced the fever casualties by 55 per cent per annum. He is even now in the temporary service of Brazil, working to stamp out a destructive disease that is derived from drinking bad water. He is succeeding too, hand over fist.

Portugal had so much trouble with her merchant service steamers eight years ago that she had to come to us. We lent Portugal for twelve months Chief Engineer Bailie Coulson, who started in that country a government engineer's college for merchantmen, and now the graduates of that institution keep Portugal's steamers going strong. Most of her railroads, too are engineered by British taught men.

Britain has got rather tired of lending men to Turkey, who would borrow the whole cabinet and privy council if we would let her have them; but she drew a prize when the British government allowed her to borrow Barton Evans, to whose work the whole of Turkey's present customs and revenue are due. The sultan owes the increase of £500,000 a year to his income solely to his luck in being able to borrow Evans for the short space of two years.

MINOR MENTION

A. M. Whiteside returns to Greenwood today.

The tramp juggler Greenway at the International is all right and one of the best features of a fair program.

Mrs. J. G. McLean and children left yesterday for Phoenix to join Mr. McLean. They will reside there in future.

The Ladies' Aid tonight will give their friends a good time at the Baptist church. No admission fee is being charged.

E. D. Ogle and family, late of Hunter Bros., leaves today with his family for Toronto where he has accepted a position.

Pate de foie gras aux truffes and huitres au naturel are currently reported to the fare at the pest house. Must be the best table in town.

The Eagles are going to give a swagger dinner to W. J. Venner who has been connected with J W. Spring's jewelry store for the past three years on the occasion of his leaving Rossland for Sudbury.

Ald. Embleton says that at the last meeting of the board of health he objected to the bill for whiskey which apparently forms an integral part of Dr Reddick's treatment. The bill was only $18 and of course if that were the only matter there would be little kick coming.

Sergeant Bradshaw went down to Northport yesterday and secured the greatest portion of the booty taken from the Allan Hotel. It was in the possession of a confederate of Thamas Kennedy. The confederate will be prosecuted by the United States authorities for bringing stolen goods into that country.

OLIVER'S LAMBS

Northport Smelter Rewards an Employe--Friends Grateful.

The following newspaper extract and original letter referring to the lambs that were brought into this city in contravention of the alien labor law is a singular commentary on the class of immigrants that Rossland is indebted to law breaking mine owners for their introduction here and the consequent increase of the cost of police administration and the destruction of its character as a city of law abiding people. The raw ignorance displayed by the letter writer is sufficient to debar a Jap from entering the province, were the law carried out. The charming light thrown upon the methods of the importers of this class of degraded labor is also instructive.

"Coyville, Aug. 21, 1901.—Oliver Lamb, of North Port, Wash., visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Lamb, of this place, Monday. He is in the employ of a smelter company at North Port and is an expert miner; he inspects and reports on mines before they are purchased by his company. For his services lately his company presented him with a solid gold watch and chain. Oliver was raised in this county; he is also cating as deputy U. S. Marshal."

"Coyvlle Septem 1 1901 My dear boy i thought i would rite you a feu lines that i coulden wait & hear from you i was so glad that you got & see Sam and Sallie i wish you could be hear next friday all the Lambs is going & the lake a fishing if you could be hear the party would be compleat rite and tell us how you got along with your men i am afraid that will have trouble when you get home. The strike has been settled a the Le Roi mine, but it it is still in force at the other mines as before.

Negotiations are being carried on with the other mining companies of the camp which have been effected by the strike but they are not yet completed.
