EDITOR EVENING WORLD—

There seems to be a misapprehension concerning the letter in your paper on Friday last, regarding the city clerk, that I wrote the said letter.

I wish to state that I had nothing whatever to do with the communication, as the writer of the letter was H. B. Mackintosh, brother of Governor Mackintosh of this city.

Yours Sincerely,

BOUNDARY DEVELOPMENT.

It Is Now Able to Double Its Present Output

HAMPERED BY SHORTAGE OF CARS

Tactics Pursued by Canada's Great Railroad Seriously Interfering With Output of the Boundary and Rossland Shippers.

After years of work the Boundary is apparently at last in a position where it will be able to reap the fruits of the constant development carried on. The smelters, owing to the nearness of the flux and also the nature of the Boundary ores, are enabled to treat mines at a fairer rate than any other smelter in this part of the country, whether Kootenay or Washington. The Granby smelter has increased its furnaces to six, the Mother Lode smelter is about to do the same, and the Sunset reduction works, will presently have three in operation. The Dominion Copper company is having railway spurs laid to its Brooklyn and Stemwinder mines in Phoenix and will then be able to send out 400 or 500 tons a day. The Snowshoe mine, when it resumes shipment shortly will be able, and desires, to send out 500 to 800 tons daily. The Oro Denoro, the Morrison and Athelstan are in a position to double their present tonnage. The Senator and other properties are becoming shippers and many other claims are being rapidly opened up and will be ready to ship in a few months. The Granby smelter has just announced in Montreal that it proposes to double its smelter capacity and treat a tonnage of 4000 tons a day. The output last week of the Boundary mines was 17,000 tons and would have been larger had cars been available. Within two or three months, when the mines that are about to resume shipments start up, it is evident that, including the ore now being offered which the C. P. R. is unable to handle, there will be at least 27,000 tons a week ready for shipment. When the various smelter enlargements are made the tonnage offered will be over 40,000 tons a week.

All this seems well indeed, with plenty of smelter accomodation, with a cheap rate of smelting, with mines capable of indefinitely increasing their product, everything would point to a good time for the Boundary.

It must, however, be rememberad that when a mine has installed expensive machinery capable of handling 2000 tons a day, it does not like to only send out 500 tons because of insufficiency of cars. For the interest on the outlay will go just the same. The fixed charge for the payment of the men employed on the machinery will be no less. It is readily enough to be seen therefore, that with a large plant and a small production, the cost of the ore is increased. From this source of unnecessary expense it is stated on unimpeachable authority that Boundary mines are losing from 30 to 60 per cent of their profits. The inclination is therefore, to keep the properties closed down until such time as these conditions are improved, so that the cream of the profits shall not be lost to the shareholders, it increased is only a few cents, but in low grade ore, such as the Boundary, there is a small margin of profit, although a heavy outlay of capital, consequently these few cents count very much indeed.

The trouble in the Boundary at the present minute is a trouble which is more or less echoed all over Canada. it Is the lack of cars and motive power. The C, P. R. for a long time past has made persistent efforts to capture the grain trade of the Northwest. This grain trade lasts only a few months in the year, but its oansumption of cars is enormous, for in the first place cars are some time on the journey and again they are detained indefinitely at either end. Further, when once the cars get into the Northwest they never seem to be able to get out again, being kept there in a sort of railway pound apparently.

Of course the cars thus wasted are mostly ordinary freight cars, whereas dump cars are those needed by the Boundary. The C. P. R. has fallen behind with dump cars even, and consequantly any kind of cars are welcome over there just now.

The situation as to the Boundary country with regard to railway freight is short haul and a daily one with no delays at either end. The mines there are constantly complaining of the lack of cars.

If such is the case now, what will it be after the enlargement of the smelters and the opening of many new mines, together with the increase in the output of others, demands the handling of possibly double the present tonnage? The C. P. R. simply cannot do it, but unless they are able to do it the Boundary country must sit down and take a rest while the C. P. R. are thinking about it.

The situation is all the more reprehensible as the Canadian railway has blocked every effort of the Great Northern to enter the country in competition. They cannot handle the freight themselves, they treat the Kootenay with contempt and play the dog in the manger with those who hold better opinions

Houston Gets After McBride

PREMIER IS EVERYTHING BAD

Member for Nelson is Much Dissatisfied With the Liberal Conservative Policy

Victoria, Jan. 28—John Houston resumed the debate on the budget and claimed that he alone proposed to discuss the subject from the standpoint of the Liberal-Conservative party. He was perhaps the only Liberal-Conservative in the house.

Cotton called for names when the member for Nelson said some of the speeches delivered were good and some bad, and Houston replied that the worst was that of the Attorney-General, and the next worst that of the Premier.

He charged the Government with calling for retrenchment now, but of over-running the estimates of last year by a large sum. He commended the Socialists for the practical politics they displayed in squeezing the Government when they had the opportunity.

The attitude of the banks, he declared, was that oi an exacting pawnbroker, who, when his bankrupt customer pawned his watch, pronounced him in a sound financial condition.

He asked the Government how it reconciled its promise to relax the taxes on mines with its estimate of $85,000 more from that source this year than last.

He ridiculed the Premier's reference to "me and my party." He denied the existence of any party belonging to the Premier, and when questioned by Bowser as to why he wanted to join the Government, he replied that his object was solely to compel it to come up to its pledges, and he would have done so had he entered that Government.

He suggests that if the Government wished to retrench they might cut out the department of mines altogether, and the loss to the province would be slight.

He also suggested that the ministers give earnest of their pledges of economy by cutting down their own salaries, or by decapitating some departmental officers in Victoria.

The Government's railway policy he predicted would end in provision for John Hendry's road along the flats of False creek.

He complained bitterly of the Government's failure to expend the $40,000 appropriation for a Court House in Nelson by the Prior Government, and, alluding to the Government's claim that the Lieutenant Governor stood in the way of the issue of licences in Southeast Kootenay, declared he did not believe it. He attributed the failure of the Government to give Nelson justice to the action of

THE LIGHTING FRANCHISE.

The WORLD returns thanks to Messrs. the City Council and City Solicitor Nelson. It is glad to hear at last definite legal pronouncement as when notice should be given to the Lighting company. To be sure City Solicitor Nelson did not quite know whether the notice already given was sufficient, and thought an additional one would do no harm, but we are glad to know that a notice has been given, and are also pleased to hear that the city can spend six months in examining the books of the company, and that it may at any time after after that give a two months' notice of its desire to resume the franchise. This is not quite the WORLD'S reading of the contract nor its understanding of he same, but it is the City Solicitor's. Whether it will be that of the company's solicitor, remains to be seen. But if these legal luminaries differ, it will be a case for the courts, and in such an event Rossland, like any other layman, will simply have to grin and bear it.

In this connection it may be well to remark that City Solicitor Nelson informed Alderman McDonald at the last council meeting that if the city gave notice of resumption of the franchise just now, it would be obliged, under penalty of damages, to carry out such notice. The WORLD don't believe a word of this and wants to know what damages. It has asked this question before, and under the penalty of being sat upon by the ponderosity of the present incumbent of the solicitorship, would be glad if that gentleman would air his views on this phase of the subject.

CHAMBERLAIN AND LABOR.

A Manchester, Eng., organization, entitling itself the Imperial Labor Federation, has placed itself on record, stating that it was not in favor of a duty on food stuffs until such time as the Empire could produce all the food stuffs necessary for consumption within its own limits. This is putting the cart before the horse with a vengeance. It is admitted that the Empire does not produce sufficient food stuffs within its own boundaries to support the whole of its population. The Manchester men considered, declare practically that it never shall. It is indeed difficult for a new country to start upon any trade in successful competition with an older one. This is on all fours with any business scheme of a similar nature. Hence some measure of advantage, call it protection, call it bounty, call it what you will, is provided. If Great Britain grants Greater Britain certain preferential advantages, the wheat fields of Canada and the cattle pastures of Australia will be opened up. Great Britain might possibly have to pay slightly more dearly for its food for a short length of time, but Greater Britain would be built up. Dwellers on the islands, cramped by the million in a small space can come out to the colonies, and make their fortunes in supplying the Empire with bread and beef. There are far too many in Great Britain, but in Greater Britain, land every whit as good as the long tilled soil of Greater Britain can be had for the asking, or for a mere song. Moreover if Great Britain closes its markets by reason of its system of free imports against the colonies, Great Britain will assuredly close its markets in turn against the Mother country. And as the bulk of English manufactures are now going to Greater Britain, the consequence will be that some of the men reprosented in the Manchester Imperial Labor Federation will be out a job.

MR. HAWTHORNTHWAITE.

The member for Nanaimo is evidently very sore with the Liberal party for the attacks it has made upon him and Mr. Parker, for their adherence to the McBride ministry. He points out that he owes allegiance to none but his own party. That is true enough and Mr. Hawthornthwaite is responsible to his electors and to the province at large for his conduct under such circumstances. But Mr. Hawthornthwaite goes a step further and charges the Liberal party with having done little for labor. Presumably the Nanaimo man said this in defence of his refusal to make common cause with the Liberals. Why should he so any more than with the Conservatives? If the Liberal party could claim and substantiate such a claim, that they were indeed the friends of labor, Mr. Hawthornthwaite would occupy an illogical position, no matter how the interests of his party demanded his present adherence to Premier McBride. But this is just what the Liberal party cannot do. They can, it is true, point to certain acts having been furthered by them, to certain planks of their platforms and to certain promises. But in this they are no better off than are the Conservatives who can make just such a similar assertion or assertions. Could the Liberals show, for example, that they had invited men of the stamp of Mr. Hawthornthwaite into their councils when making a nomination, the matter would have a different face But this is what they cannot do any more than can their rivals in power. Therefore there is no just ground for attacking the member for Nanaimo. He is acting on his own ideas. If they do not succeed, and it can be shown that some alternative course, easily foreseen, would have done so, Mr. Hawthorthwaite will stand condemned of his own people. But it is for them to condemn him first. After that nobody else need trouble themselves in the matter.

'It is against the canons of our order.'

'A malison on thee and thy order! Is there, then, no effigy in yon chancel, no record of her—I mean of that noble lady and those comely little ones?'

'I know of none, Sir Saint.'

'Think again. She was a franklin, she had wide lands; she reverenced thy Church, and in her grief, being woman, she would turn devout. Surely she built some shrine, or made thee a portico, or blazoned a window to shame rough Fate with the evidence of her gentleness?'

'There is none such in St. Olaf's. But, now thou speakest of shrines, I do remember one some hours' ride from here; unroofed and rotten, but nevertheless, such as you suggest, and in it there is a cenotaph, and a woman laid out straight. She is cracked across the middle and mossy, and there be two small kneeling figures by her head, but I never looked nicely to determine whether they were blessed cherubin or but common children. The shepherds who keep their flocks there and shelter from the showers under the crumbling walls call the place Voewood.'

'Enough, priest,' I said as I paced hither and tither across the hall in gloomy grief, and then taking my hasty resolution I turned to him sternly—'Make what capital thou list of tonight's adventure, but remember the next time thou sort—turn thy face to the wall!'

The frightened Abbot obeyed; I shed in a white heap upon the floor my saintly vestments, my mitre and crook on top, and then, stepping lightly down the hall, mounted upon a bench, unfastened and threw open a lattice, and placing my foot upon the sill, sprang out into the night and open world again!

I walked and ran until the day came, southwards constantly, and asking my way of an astonished hind, but for the most part guided by some strange instinct, and before the following noon I was at my old Saxon homestead.

But could it be Voewood? Not a vestige of a house anywhere in that wide grassy glade where Voewood stood, not a sign of life, not a sound to break the stillness! Near by there ran a little brook, and against it, just as the monk had said were the four grey walls of a lonely roofless shrine. Over the shrine, on the very spot where Voewood stood—alas! alas!—was a long grassy knoll, crowded with hawthorns and little flowers shining in the sunlight. I went into the ruined chapel, and there, stained and lichened and broken, in the thorny embrace of the brambles, lay the marble figure of my sweet Saxon wife, and by the pillow—green velveted with the tapestry of nature—knelt her little ones on either side. I dropped upon my knee and buried my face in her crumbling bosom and wept. What mattered the eclipse while I slept of all those kingly planets that had shone in the English firmament compared to the setting of this one white star of mine? I rushed outside to the mound that hid the forgotten foundations of my home, and, as the passion swept up and engulfed my heart, I buried my head in my arms and hurled myself upon the ground and cursed that tender green moss that should have been so hard—cursed that golden English sunlight that suited so ill with my sorrows—and cursed again and again in my bitterness those lying blossoms overhead that showered down their petals on me, saying it was spring, when it was the blackest winter of desolation, the night time of my disappointment.

Plenty of Fuel

There seem to be little chance of a fuel famine for Bouedary smelters for the present. It is stated that in one day last week there were 161 cars of coal and coke enrout from the East Kootenay coal mines, on the Kootenay-Boundary division of the C. P. R.

Judging by the programme of Paul Kauffmann's musicale at the Miners Union hall, January, 29th., the concert will certainly be worth the admission.

The Rossland Aerie of Eagles is making a great showing.

The band concert at the rink tonight ought to attract a large number of skaters.

Satisfactory progress has been made to date with the new plant at the White Bear.

The new motor at the Le Roi No 2 Elmore mill is in course of installation.

The Le Roi and the Le Roi No 2 will hold their annual meetings in London next week.

Percy Wilkinson has left for Nelson where he will reside in the future.

It is understood that the Miner is going to cut of all dead heads on its circulation list. Where will its subscribers be?

Harry McIntosh is hoarding the town with pictures of his hotel. This is as a set off to Mayor Clute's asboretum.

The Miner is apparently so driven by lack of subscribers that it is wanting subscriptions from its exchanges. Cheerful news for its advertisers.

It is reported fom Trail that the War Eagle reduction works are nearing completion despite the severity of the weather. They occupy much ground.

There will be a congregational meeting in St. Andrew's church on Sunday next for the purpose of extending a call to the Rev. Hugh Grant now of Pincher creek.

The new armoury will not be available for public gatherings otherwise than for charitable purposes, at the pleasure of the local officer commanding.

Beating The Clergy

Montreal, Jan. 28—Last September Archbishop Bruchesi placed Les'bats, a Sunday newspaper published in the French language, under the ban of his displeasure, forbidding the faithful to read it. The paper promptly changed its name to Le Combat, continuing its attacks upon the clergy. Yesterday a pastoral letter was read in the Roman Catholic churches placing the ban upon Le Combat. The paper had evidently learned that this was to be be done, for its last issue announced that it was the last of Le Combat, but L'Action will appear next Sunday and that the present directors of the Le Combat will not be connected with it.

Boundary Development,

of our mines and are wishful to help in their development.

But this dog in the manger polico is now vitally affecting Rossland. The Boundary smelters are able to offer a better rate for many ores at Rossland than the smelters at Northport and Trail are willing or able to give, conseguently the situation in the Boundary is one that affects Rossland to a very considerable extent, and an extent that is likely to increase than to decrease. Hence their cause in this, as in other matters, is the cause of Rossland.
