BOARD OF TRADE

The regular monthly meeting of the North Vancouver Board of Trade was held in the city hall on Tuesday evening when a large amount of business was transacted and many important suggestions dealt with.

The clerk read a letter which he had sent to the Boards of Trade of Vancouver, New Westminster, Delta, South Vancouver and Burnaby relative to arranging for a joint conference of representatives from each of these bodies for the purpose of discussing matters of mutual interest. A letter from South Vancouver was to the effect that they had appointed a committee to represent them. A similar communication was received from Delta.

The President said he had arranged with President Buchan of the Vancouver Board of Trade for a joint meeting next month some time.

A letter was received from the Burrard Sash and Door factory, Nelson Mfg. Co., McDougall-Jenkins Engineers, Dickinson & Scott, and A. W. McAllister, asking that the Board's assistance and influence be given before the city council in the matter of entire exemption from taxation for ten years. The matter was referred to the commerce and industries committee.

G. S. Hanes wrote resigning from the chairmanship of the agricultural and mining committee. Mr. A. W. Sargent was appointed in his stead.

Messrs. G. R. Pierce, T. M. Heard and H. T. C. Eves were duly elected members of the Board.

The president reported that he and the secretary had prepared the documents necessary for the incorporation of the North Vancouver Board of Trade under the Dominion Boards of Trades Act. These two petitions, being required to be signed by 30 members, were to the effect that the population of the city warranted this step. On motion of E. H. Bridgman seconded by A. G. Perry, the documents were authorized to be signed by the thirty members after which they will be forwarded to Ottawa.

The president spoke in an appreciative manner of the visit of the members of the Arctic Brotherhood who had shown great delight in their visit to the North Shore and in its prospects. He said it was no passing visit as two or three of the members were interested in some of the most important railway schemes effecting North Vancouver.

Also the success that had attended the recent gathering of the members at the Board of Trade concert. He suggested a benefit concert for the North Vancouver Board which has done excellent work since its inauguration. He said he felt great pleasure at the prospect of an early arrangement in connection with a crossing under the C. P. R. tracks on the Vancouver side of the Inlet leading from the ferry.

He referred to the proposed subway now being taken in hand by the C. P. R.

The treasurer reported that there was $277 in the treasury.

The president said it was a fitting time to mention that the dues for this year was now due.

Mr. Heaven, for the commerce and industries committee, reported interviewing the Dominion Express Company relative to establishing a delivery in North Vancouver. They were not able to get any definite promise, however, as the company did not think their business warranted it. Another matter considered was the application of the Wallace Shipyards for exemption from taxation for a period of ten years. After conferring with a committee from the city council they had decided to leave the matter over to the full meeting of the Board. Mr. Devine, on behalf of Mr. Wallace, said the matter had been brought to their minds on account of the heavy taxes they had to pay. This year the taxation had been $1,900 which was three times the amount assessed such firms as Evans, Coleman and Evans in Vancouver. In view of the importance of their industry to North Vancouver, it being the first of its kind on the North Shore, and the fact that they had already spent about $75,000 in their plant here, was, they thought, sufficient reason for their request for exemption from taxation for ten years. Additional to this they contemplated making further extensions to their plant involving an expenditure of $60,000, $30,000 of which was to be spent the first year and the balance the following year. They also proposed to operate a salvage vessel slightly smaller than the one in Victoria, for which they would receive a government grant. The pay roll of the shipyards at the present time, he said, was about 6,000 a month. Asked concerning the number of employees who were living in North Vancouver Mr. Devine said that more would reside over here, but were unable to do so on account of the scarcity of houses. He assured that it was Mr. Wallace's plan to inquire into these matters when new men were taken on with a view to persuading them to live on this side of the Inlet.

Mr. Jackson said the property values on the waterfront today were largely speculative and he thought it was a hardship for new industries establishing here to have to pay this high rate of taxes. He thought a taxation of $1,900 too high and he favored entering into some arrangement whereby these firms would be allowed a rebate of five years' taxes instead of making them a direct bonus. He believed that the council should investigate each case and make necessary allowance when requirement demanded it.

Mr. G. H. Morden said that the establishment of industries in the city was the source of great gain to the city from the increased population that they brought.

The president said the city could bonus an industry if it was the first of its kind.

Mr. Jackson asked if the bonus was still in force after competition has ended the field.

The clause was read and stated that no bonus could be granted to any company competing with any established company.

Mr. McDonald, for the Burrard Sash and Door Factory and a party to the petition asking for aid in regard to exemption from taxation, said the difficulty he found in creating interest was that the most of the manufacturers were not owners, yet the former had to pay the increased taxation. His attention was brought to the subject by an article he had read where Cincinnatti had outgrown Boston, although it was a seaport town, on account of the former encouraging industries. The same state of affairs was found in Minneapolis over St. Paul.

In North Vancouver the manufacturer had to compete with Vancouver

(Express special correspondent)

There is a great deal of land clearing going on in this locality just now and work has been started on the clearing of five and one-half acres in District Lot 183 which is owned by Messrs. Simpson & Wright, florists, of North Vancouver, and which is known as Park Nursery. This is a beautiful tract of land having a gentle slope to the south and protected from the easterly winds while the soil is such that the cultivation of plants and flowers could be carried on with great success.

Messrs. A. D. Taylor and Capt. F. Nash have had a private road cleared into their property in District Lot 1037 by the Pacific Land Clearing Company, and plans have already been drawn up for the erection of two residences which will be built in the early part of next spring.

Some fine logs are being obtained by the McNair Fraser Lumber Company in their camps which are situated about three miles north of Hollyburn wharf, the same being chiefly composed of fir and cedar. The logs are hauled over a skidway from the camps to the shore by means of an engine which has quite overcome the difficult question of transportation. The average output per day is thirty thousand feet but at times the output for the day is much in excess of these figures.

The Pacific Land Clearing Company have now opened an office in Vancouver and persons who wish to get quotations for the clearing of lots or acreage should write or call on them at Suite 3, 821 Pender street.

Mr. John Lawson left Hollyburn for the east on Thursday last on a business trip and expects to be away two weeks.

Every person interested in the district which lies west of the Capilano should join the West Vancouver Improvement Association. The membership fee is 85 and those wishing to become members should communicate with Mr. W. W. Lefeaux, secretary, Hollyburn post office, B. C.

Alex. Grant is erecting a cottage on 8th street east.

MAYOR MAY TO BE A CANDIDATE

Mayor May has declared himself a candidate for the chief executive seat of the city for 1911. Interviewed by a representative of the Express he stated that notwithstanding that at the beginning of the year he made the announcement that he would not run again, he has had to succumb to the pressure which has of late been to hard and from so many of his old supporters and he has been brought to realize that he owes them a debt which no other man in North Vancouver owes and which no other man other than he can pay. That debt, he declares, is a debt of appreciation and gratitude for the confidence reposed in him for 17 years as a public servant. His supporters, he states, have especially urged him as being chairman of the ferry board with a view to the construction of another new ferry after the present one is completed.

THE DICK CUP

On exhibition in the front window of A. F. McMillan's jewellery store on Hastings street, Vancouver, is a handsome silver cup standing nearly a foot in height with three elaborately engraved handles. This cup was purchased by Mr. W. J. Dick of this city who has donated it as a trophy for a series of three hockey matches between Vancouver and North Vancouver. The winners will take absolute possession of the trophy, which should it come to North Vancouver, being not an unlikely speculation from the fact that the local team has been strengthened greatly by a couple of classy players from across the Atlantic, will be an emblem of victory to be justly proud of. The first game will be played in Vancouver on the Brockton point grounds on this coming Saturday. The match, while being one of three to decide the Dick Cup will give the local supporters a line on the material of the local aggregation and their prospects for gaining the B. C. cup.

ENGINEER IS UPHELD

The application of Messrs. J. P Fell and Lonsdale through their solicitor, Mr. Martin Griffin, for a mandamus to compel Engineer Hanes to approve of their plan of subdivision D. L. 552, came up before Mr. Justice Murphy the early part of this week. His lordship's decision was to the effect that when an engineer refuses to sign a plan of a subdivision approved by a city council the engineer's refusal shall hold so long as it is not unreasonable.

The history of the above subdivision dated back many months in the council proceedings of this city. Active steps to subdivide the subdivision were started when the B. C. Electric Railway commenced construction of its line through the property. A plan was made out and passed by the council, but when it came up to the engineer for signature he refused his approval on account of the grades and the manner in which the streets were laid out along the ravines, alleging that too much of the street width overlapped the gulleys.

In this case it was two prominent surveyors whose opinions differed as to the best method of planning out the property and in the face of this Mr. Justice Murphy held that the refusal of Mr. Hanes was not unreasonable. Mr. R. L. Reid, K. C. appeared for Mr. Hanes.

Mr. John Candlin, of Souris, Man., is one of the latest new citizens to arrive at North Vancouver. Mr. Candlin, with his family, has leased the Lonsdale block, corner of Lonsdale Ave. and Fifteenth street, and will conduct a first class rooming and boarding establishment.

OUR LOCAL THEATRE

The usual special week-end program has been arranged for his patrons by Manager Venner of the Gem theatre and the several features indicate that another big hit will be scored by this favorite house of entertainment. The program is well selected and contains a liberal supply of the humorous as well as of more serious topics, namely, An Equine Hero, Queen of the Burlesque, Examination Day at School, The Devil, the Servant and the Man, Cloisters Touch. A special feature of this exceptional program will be an old English song sung by Mrs. Venner and entitled "Dear Home Songs" introducing parts of Swanee River, Auld Lang Syne, Home Sweet Home, etc.

Manager Venner has arranged to put on at an early date "Uncle Tom's Cabin" with 3,000 feet of film, a show that should draw overflow houses. Watch for the date of this.

FERRY DIRECTORS MEET

Mayor May presided and all the directors were present at yesterday's meeting of the ferry directors. Of special moment was the announcement that the pontoons for the steel bridges would be completed in ten days and instructions were issued to Engineer Hanes to notify Messrs. Armstrong & Morrisen so that they could have the bridges ready for erection in that length of time. It was resolved to do away with the monthly pass and instead a book of 70 tickets to be sold for $2 will be issued. A slight change in the ferry time table was effected which will be of interest principally to theatre goers. The new schedule provides for a 11.30 and a 12.15 p.m. trip additional to the regular 1 a.m. ferry.

ST. JOHN'S SALE OF WORK

The Women's Auxiliary of St. John's church will hold a sale of work and supper, followed by a concert, in the parish hall on the evening of Thursday, December 1st.

HOCKEY

All hockey enthusiasts should journey to Brockton Point on Saturday to see the first encounter between Vancouver and North Vancouver for possession of the Dick cup. This magnificent trophy was recently donated for competition by Wm. J. Dick, the well known local real estate dealer, for the best of three matches between the sister cities. The game on Saturday commences at 3 o'clock sharp. Mr. W. J. Dick will kick-off with the captain of the Vancouver team. The North Shore will be represented by the strongest aggregation they have ever put on the field, their team of two weeks ago being improved by the inclusion of Mr. W. Marsden, English hockey international and Middlesex cricketer, and Mr. Chas. E. Dawson of Newport, S. Wales, Welsh International. The locals will line up as follows and are confident that they have a team capable of nailing down the mug so tightly that Vancouver will never do more than gaze at it.

Goal—H. Mattson.

Backs—R. Marsden, R. S. Worsley.

Half-Backs—S. Humphreys, E. S. Baylis, W. Montgomery.

Ratepayers' Association

The first evidences of the coming municipal campaign were brought forth on Wednesday at the general meeting of the Ratepayers' Association when the election of officers for the ensuing term was effected. The new officers are:

President—D. W. Reeves, proposed by A. J. Henderson, seconded by C. M. Kittson.

Vice-President—R. D. Rochussen, proposed by W. W. Weston, seconded by R. McKenzie.

Secretary—W. L. Boult, proposed by E. H. Bridgman, seconded by H. C. Wright.

Treasurer—R. McKenzie, proposed by W. Knowles, seconded by C. J. Jackson.

Executive Committee—A. J. Henderson, H. C. Wright, C. F. Jackson, G. J. Phillippo, W. Knowles, W. W. Weston, H. W. Young, Jas. Hay, G. T. C. Crofts, M. B. Martinson, A. E. Crickmay.

Retiring President C. J. Jackson said in opening that he had done his best to bring the association up to the proper standard and he had endeavored to oust any idea of sectionalism.

He believed that the membership was representative of all the business sections of the city and all shades of opinion in respect to the ratepayers' association allowing itself to be used as an electioneering machine he was pleased that at the beginning of the year the association had declared against favoring any particular candidate. It could not be expected that the minority should go against their opinions to fall in line with the majority in this case it would lead to diversion in the ranks and result in the ruin of the association.

He thought that the association had enough to do to bring to notice the important civic matters needing adjustment. Referring to the inaction of the ratepayers' association in the grade question he said that the reason for this was that the mayor had appointed a committee which was no reflection on the association as officials of the association were members of the committee.

Reviewing the year's work he touched on the proposed improvement to the postal system, the grade question which was settled and had passed into history, and not less important of any was a resolution allowing members of the city council to become members of the association. He considered that on account of the importance of a civic government by board of control, that an invitation should be sent to representatives from Vancouver to come over and address the association on the matter. This he recommended the new executive to be prosecuted.

The following resolution was moved by W. W. Weston and seconded by A. J. Henderson:

"That this association place on record its cordial approval of the general course of action pursued by His Worship the Mayor and Ald. McNeish and McRae during the durrent year, and to express its appreciation of their efforts to protect the interests of the ratepayers and afford proper support to civic officials in the discharge of their duty."

J. A. McNair moved an amendment to include the whole council. It was seconded by A. E. Crickmay.

Mr. C. F. Jackson thought the motion an unfortunate one. He believed that although the motion was worded to avoid reference to the coming election in substance it had such a meaning. He moved that this meeting do not express any opinion on the action of the past council. Mr. James Hay seconded the amendment to the amendment.

Mr. J. A. McNair later withdrew in favor of Mr. Jackson's amendment.

President Reeve spoke in favor of the amendment. Put to a vote the amendment carried.

Mr. C. F. Jackson moved, seconded by H. C. Wright, "Where as it is expedient to the end that ratepayers may be anabled to vote intelligently at the forthcoming municipal elections that the position and opinions of every candidate for office regarding questions of public interest should be definitely declared. Therefore, be it resolved that the executive committee shall frame a list of questions to be submitted to all such candidates and shall forward to each of them a copy of this list together with an invitation to be present at and address a special meeting of the association which shall be convened by the president on a convenient date to be arranged.

W. J. Dick said that at last election there were some questions put up and they were all agreed to by most of the candidates.

How did they fulfil their obligation? He declared that they did not come through. It is very hard to give a new man a bunch of questions to answer before election which they might find necessary to change his mind on after entering the council.

While the past councils may have not been business councils they were at least honest and he thought it was unfair to ask these candidates to answer questions previous to taking office.

Mr. Jackson pointed out that the resolution did not call for pledges but merely opinions. What is the good of an election if the ratepayers are not advised of their candidates' opinions, he asked.

Mr. Dick thought that if the ratepayers had things of importance to bring up the association should draw up a platform and the candidates could agree or disagree on the planks therein. Either drop these questions or bring out a platform, he said.

Mr. A. E. Kealy concurred with the motion to ask the opinions of each of the candidates.

He could not see any harm in asking questions and if aldermen through the year found that they should change their minds it was only the natural thing.

Mr. Dick moved an amendment that before the questions were put to the candidates that they be passed upon by general meeting after they were drawn up by the executive. C. M. Kittson seconded the amendment.

A. E. Kealy scored a point by stating that perhaps some of the members of the executive might be candidates for election and it was only fair that the questions should be passed on by the association.

Mr. Jackson agreed to add the amendment to his motion.

DRY DOCK AGREEMENT

The agreement between the Dominion government and the Vancouver Dry Dock and Shipbuilding Company whereby the latter will construct a dry dock at Roche's Point, North Vancouver involving a cost of $1,214,514, was signed this week.

The agreement was signed on behalf of the Dominion government by Mr. G. A. Keefer, resident engineer, and by Messrs. N. Thompson, president, and Frank Bennett, secretary for the Company. Work is to start within six months and be completed by December 1, 1912.

The government agrees to give a subsidy of 3½ per cent. on the estimated cost for the next twenty-five years in consideration of the fact that the plans have been drawn to their approval.

TO BUILD FINE RESIDENCE

A realty deal of some importance was put through recently by the Canadian Financiers of this city whereby four lots in the vicinity of the new district park were disposed of to Mr. W. M. H. Adams, who is occupying temporary quarters in the Stevenson Block. Mr. Adams is preparing for the immediate erection of a fine six-roomed bungalow that will be designed in the most modern fashion and will be a credit to the locality.

Bert Anson, C. Walker and F. Carrasco, three North Vancouver deer hunters who left the city about a week and a half ago on a deer hunt to Jervis Inlet and game resorts en route returned on Wednesday with a fair share of deer. The trip was made in Mr. Anson's new launch but owing to a bad storm which they ran into soon after leaving North Vancouver they were compelled to lay up for shelter for four days.

ETHICAL SOCIETY

A very instructive and entertaining lecture was given in the horticultural hall last evening under the auspices of the North Vancouver Ethical Society. The subject of the address was "Idylls of the King", the Rev. W. Stephenson of London, England, being the speaker. Mr. Stephenson is a most refined speaker and his remarks clearly emphasized the fact that he was well versed in the subject. A high class musical program was provided in connection which went to complete the success of the entertainment. Last evening was the second of the series of the Ethical Society's lectures and showed that the popularity of these occasions was fast spreading.

PATZOLD vs. BAILEY

The adjourned hearing of Roland L. Patzold, charged with assaulting A. N. Bailey causing actual bodily harm on November 3rd, came up before Magistrate Kealy Wednesday morning. E. N. Brown, of Ogilvie & Brown, appeared for the defence, and Mr. Kitto, of Tupper & Griffin, for the prosecution. Mr. Bailey was called to the stand and stated the circumstances attending the assault. On the evening in question complainant was called to the door to meet Mr. Townsley. Mr. Patzold was behind Mr. Townsley and Mr. Bailey ordered Patzold out. Patzold was carrying an umbrella. He repeated the order when Patzold made a motion towards him. Bailey did not know what happened but he saw stars and fire all around. He thought he was shot. Patzold was about 2½ feet away when Bailey was struck. Asked who struck him Bailey asserted it was Patzold, after which he (Bailey) was taken to bed and the doctor arrived shortly after. Later in the evening he was taken to the hospital. Bailey said he suffered considerable pain in his head.

Cross-examined Bailey said he made no threats except to order accused out of the house. He could not swear whether he was struck with an umbrella or was shot.

Complainaat recognized the umbrella which was put on exhibition.

The magistrate wanted to know how he could recognize the umbrella when he could not remember anything after dodging from Patzold's movement.

Mrs. Bailey's testimony corroborated her husband's evidence. She said she was talking to Mr. Townsley when she heard a crack and her husband cried out that he was shot. She then ran to his assistance. Mrs. Bailey did not see anything in Patzold's hands. She did not recognize the umbrella. Mrs. Bailey could not swear that she did not say the crack sounded like the report of a gun.

The magistrate asked Mrs. Bailey if in such a small space as the hall she could not swear whether she smelt smoke or heard the shot. The witness could not swear that she smelt smoke.

Jesse Bailey, 12 years of age, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bailey, said that when his father ordered Patzold out of the house, the latter had an umbrella similar to the one on exhibition in his hands. The boy could not say what his father was struck with except that he saw him falling with the cry that he was shot.

Dr. Verner testified that he was called to the Bailey house. On arriving he found Bailey in bed with considerable blood flowing from a wound in the head. The wound was caused by the end of an umbrella or a stick and there was a slight bruise extending from the puncture. The doctor said that Bailey was in a greatly excited condition. He stated emphatically that Bailey was not shot.

When arresting Patzold Chief Davies said the former asserted he did not shoot Bailey, but struck him with the umbrella.

Patzold, the accused, stated that he had visited the home of Mr. Townsley in relation to an alleged sale of his (Patzold's) property by Bailey to Townsley. He and Mr. Townsley went up to Bailey's house to see Bailey. When they called at the Bailey house Mr. Townsley went up first and he followed against his will. When Bailey came to the door he swore at Patzold and appeared to reach for a gun and threatened to kill him. Patzold retaliated by striking Bailey with his umbrella because he was afraid.

Mr. Townsley, a real estate man, said that he first saw the accused on the evening of November 3rd. The accused called at his house and stated he had documents showing that he owned the property which Mr. Townsley was living in. Patzold had stated that he had been advised by his solicitor that his claim was good. Mr. Townsley suggested that they go up to Mr. Bailey's house and talk the matter over. When they called at Bailey's door Mr. Townsley told Bailey that this gentleman, referring to Patzold, had a claim on the property which Bailey had sold to him. At this Bailey rushed out on Patzold. Mr. Townsley did not know what occurred, but he thought he heard a blow struck and Bailey staggered back crying that he was shot. Mr. Townsley thought it extraordinary that being so close he did not hear a sound like a shot or smell any powder.

Mr. Brown submitted that no weight could be attached to the evidence of the complainants from their contradictory evidence.

Mr. Kitts, for the prosecution, based his argument on the testimony of Mr. Townsley who being an unbiased witness, did not hear any threats but heard the blow which caused Bailey to cry out that he was shot. He submitted it was clearly a case of assault. After but a brief summary the accused was let out on six months' suspended sentence.

and they were at a disadvantage with the facilities offered in the latter city.

Mr. Jackson suggested passing a resolution remitting half of the taxes on all manufacturing concerns on the waterfront.

Mr. Gladwin thought it was a bad precedent. "Rather pass a bylaw bonusing house building," he said.

Mr. Martinson wanted to know why the bonus should be confined to the waterfront. There were other manufacturing concerns up the hill. Mr. Jackson said it was the waterfront that was so highly assessed.

Ald. Irwin thought as there was so many phases to the matter it should be referred to the committee again for investigation.

Mr. Jackson moved that the city council be requested to submit a bylaw to the people remitting one-half of the taxes on manufacturing industries assessed upon a valuation of waterfront property for the year 1911 only. Mr. R. McKenzie seconded the motion.

Mr. A. E. Kealy moved an amendment, that the matter be referred to the executive committee to deal with the subject on general lines.

Mr. J. D. Fraser seconded the amendment, which carried with but two dissenting votes.

Mr. A. S. Billing, for the settlers' and tourists' committee, noted the fact that there was a proposal to build a scenic railway up Grouse mountain. He thought it might be well to interview those parties and see if they were going to start soon and if they were not it might be advisable to repair the trail.

On motion of E. H. Bridgman the matter was referred to the legislative committee to keep in touch with the progress of affairs and protect the city's interests when the charter rights were granted so that no unnecessary delay in construction be allowed and that the charter did not fall into undesirable hands.

Mr. A. J. Henderson, chairman of the Improvements committee, sent in a written report incorporated in which was a resolution to ask the city council to have prepared plans and estimates for two wharves at two conveniently situated street ends for the handling of general freight from scows and transports at reasonable rates, and also to allow for earth dumping. They also recommended that a portion of the park in D. L. 547 be cleared up for the playing of games and other sports. The committee took notice of the inefficiency of the telephone service, and it was resolved that information be obtained as to the working of municipal telephones with a view to establishing a municipal service in this city.

The question of tree planting and beautifying the city was taken up and a start on Third street was recommended. The first matter was adopted. No 2 recommendation was accepted. With regard to the inefficiency of the local telephone service the president said it was being considered by the Vancouver Board of Trade and would be taken up at the forthcoming meeting of the joint boards. It was accordingly left in abeyance for this joint meeting.

Mr. A. W. Sargent considered that tree planting was undesirable on 3rd street or on any down town street that might become a business street in the future.

Ald. Irwin believed it was early yet to start tree planting when the streets were not put to a permanent grade. The concurrence of the property owners on that street to have the work done under local improvement should first be obtained, he thought.

Mr. A. E. Kealy said that in many instances trees had been either cut down altogether or were cut to the height of a man's head. He mentioned in Vancouver where the sub-soil was shallow the roots came up under the cement walks and raised them thus necessitating the destruction of the trees. He believed, therefore, that tree planting should be well considered before action.

E. H. Bridgman moved that the committee meet the city council for the purpose of discussing the matter.

The finance committee reported at length regarding several matters, the first being the inauguration of a corps of field engineers for North Vancouver. The question of storage was the difficulty so far and the president was taking the matter up with Captain Bennett. It has now been placed in the hands of Ralph Smith to take up with the department.

In regard to members in arrears the committee recommended that all members be enrolled whether they were in arrears or not.

In regard to the price of coal the committee considered that the retail price was exorbitant and they recommended that the co-operation of the other Boards of Trade be obtained with a view to making representations to the provincial government urging that some measures be adopted to regulate the rates in a more equitable manner. This recommendation was adopted.

The committee recommended that full publicity be given to the fact that out of about 6,000 inhabitants there were only about 400 on the voters' list. This was shown to be detrimental to the interests of the city.

On the motion of E. H. Bridgman, it was resolved to advertise the names of those qualified to register voters. This could be done by a slogan, "Have you registered?"

The question of providing some information bureau for supplying data to incoming settlers was referred to the joint meeting of the Boards of Trade.

The committee had had an interview with Mr. McLeod, assistant to Inspector Greenfield, relative to a late Saturday night mail, but had not received a favorable reply. As far as the local banks were concerned Mr. Salsbury stated that cheques cashed in North Vancouver on Vancouver banks could not be passed through the clearing house till Tuesday. It was referred to the committee again.

UNDUE RESTRICTIONS RE MUNICIPAL VOTERS

The Municipal Clauses Act has acquired a great deal of prominence as a prolific source of legislative amendments, but in no respect is there more pressing need of alteration in its provisions than with regard to the manner in which it either directly imposes restrictions relative to those who are eligible to vote at municipal elections, or in which its wording is susceptible to an interpretation which greatly restricts the same. The now famous "Householders Clause" has been repeatedly discussed and condemned by councils and conventions, but it still survives. This clause excludes from the exercise of the municipal ballot all householders as such in any municipality. Under this clause, the only way by which the franchise can be extended to householders is by the municipality imposing a road tax or some similar assessment, to meet its provisions and as such an expedient appears to be considered inadvisable by those cities of the province which are incorporated under the Municipal Clauses Act, the exercise of the ballot at civic elections is restricted to property holders, except in those cities which hold a special charter.

A further restriction has appeared in the fact that the wording of the act is such as to render it uncertain whether only registered owners of property are to be allowed the ballot or whether those who own an equity in property are likewise eligible. In one municipality at any rate, it is reported that only registered owners of property are allowed to vote.

Should it occur that both these restrictions were made to apply in any municipality, the result would be somewhat startling and must assuredly work to the detriment of that municipality.

With reference to householders, it is manifestly in the interests of the municipality, that they be allowed a voice and a vote in the election of those who are to control the affairs of the community in which they reside inasmuch as they are as closely interested as the property owners themselves in all matters pertaining to the welfare of the community, with the exception, of course, of money bylaws. The householder by paying rent pays the taxes for his landlord and a fair return upon the landlord's invested capital besides. He likewise supports the local merchant and all local institutions and is in fact an essential factor in the growth and the prosperity of any community. Remove from any city all those residents who occupy rented houses or premises and it is evident that the result would be disastrous. If then the householder contributes so largely to the growth and the prosperity of the community, it is a most reasonable position that he should be given access to the ballot at municipal elections upon the most liberal basis.

With reference to the second position, namely that none but registered owners of property are to be allowed to vote, this interpretation works such great hardship that it is not for a moment conceivable that such a construction is in harmony with the spirit of the act. It involves a manifest violation of common equity inasmuch as an equity held by one man in a business lot or in a waterfront lot would amount to many times more in value than a clear title owned by another in a lot on the outskirts of the city, but under this interpretation the man who owned a lot worth perhaps four hundred dollars would have a vote whereas the owner who bought on deferred payments and owns an equity of several thousand dollars in another lot, would not be allowed to vote. So flagrant is the injustice wrought by this construction of the act that any municipality might justly refuse to accept it as within the meaning of the act and it is certainly fortunate that so far as is known, only one municipality in the entire province has considered it obligatory to do so.

Upon broad principles it is generally recognized that the welfare of the people in political matters will be best promoted by the free extension of the ballot to all bona fide citizens. The standard of education and of intelligence is such at the present day as to ensure the fact that all classes of citizens are capable of the intelligent exercise of the franchise and that the interests of the city, the province, the nation are safeguarded in the most effective manner by means of an expression of opinion through the ballot, upon the part of the largest possible number of adult citizens. Hence both upon broad lines and for specific reasons it is desirable that all undue restrictions whether expressed in unmistakeable terms or by implication, be removed from those clauses of the statutes which govern the ballot, and it is to be hoped that the Municipal Clauses Act of this province will speedily be brought into line with the most advanced legislation in this respect.

TRIAL BY NEWSPAPERS OR TRIAL BY JURY

Two leading newspapers in England were recently convicted of contempt of court because they published a statement to the effect that Dr. Crippen had made a confession in Canada, whereas it transpired that such was not the case. In summing up the case the Justice before whom it was tried stated, "We are determined to do nothing to substitute trials by newspapers for trial by juries". Commenting upon this statement, one of the newspapers concerned proceeds as follows:

"This is a determination which the Courts unquestionably do well to maintain. It would be an evil day for the administration of justice in this country if the newspapers were to presume, and presuming, were to be allowed with impunity, to take the trials of cases out of the hands of judges and juries, and to prejudice that fair and impartial hearing which is the right of every accused person in this land."

"Nothing should be done, we repeat, to substitute trials by newspapers for trials by juries. The functions of the Press and the Courts are separate. The business of judge and jury is to try cases; that of the Press is to supply news. The Press may sometimes be a valuable adjunct to the administration of justice. It was obviously so in the Crippen case. The police sought the aid of the Press at the very beginning, when the accused man had slipped out of their hands; and the Lord Chief Justice, in his summing-up, used as a consideration which might weigh with the jury in determining the question of Mrs. Crippen's death, the fact that the Press of the whole world had rung with the case. The publication of news, it will be seen, may sometimes be a useful, and even an indispensable, ally of justice. The Courts do well to maintain their sphere intact. The Press would fail in its duty if it did not, on its side, act up to the measure of its opportunities.

There comes a point at which the publication of news about legal proceedings is improper and contrary to the public interest. The power which the Courts have of attaching newspapers for contempt is rightly exercised to see that this point is not overstepped. We were condemned for publishing as an item of news the statement that Crippen had confessed in Canada. The statement, as it turned out, was not correct; but we desire to emphasize two points—first, that every care was taken to test the trustworthiness of the news, and, secondly, that the news was of such a character that if (as we believed) it were true, it could hardly prejudice the course of justice."

The American reader (whether of Canada or of the United States) cannot but find his attention arrested by the very great difference in the latitude allowed newspapers in England and newspapers in America with reference to criminal cases before the courts. In the United States the privileges of newspapers in this respect appear to be practically devoid of limitations inasmuch as it is quite a common occurrence for them to publish between the time at which a suspect is arrested and the date fixed for the trial, minute details of every phase of a crime, together with full particulars with reference to every probable theory with respect thereto. While this practice has called forth, at times, protests from unofficial sources, the courts do not appear to have taken cognizance thereof, so far as any endeavor to secure a commitment for contempt of court is concerned. In Canada, the newspapers are somewhat more circumspect with regard to such matters than are those of the republic to the south and yet there can not be held to exist any pronounced tendency toward restricting the prerogatives of the press in this particular. Excepting in a case of striking temerity or of gross carelessness upon the part of a newspaper it is extremely improbable that a Canadian court would take cognizance of such reports and judging from the instance to which reference is made above, the liberties of the Canadian press are considerably larger in this respect than are those of the press in the old land.

STUNG!

"We Told You So"

To the Ratepayers of North Vancouver:

Do you remember what we said in these columns some time ago about what would happen if competition were eliminated and CONCRETE sewer pipe were not allowed a chance in the city bids? Well, it has happened just as we said.

DOMINION GLAZED CEMENT SEWER PIPE was arbitrarily restricted from the bids for North Vancouver's small sized sewers----on a Purely Technichal Pretext.

STUDY THE RESULTS

Although the last number of the Express gives the impression that Dominion Cement Glazed Pipe was admitted to the bidding for the city's sewer pipe—SUCH IS NOT THE CASE.

If you will study the figures which follow and realize that the clay pipe called for must be reinforced with cement until it is of triple thickness while the prices quoted are for cement pipe of thickness fifty per cent. more than clay, you will understand the apparent discrepancy in cost.

The cost of satisfactorily re-inforcing clay pipe is about 50 cents for each 18 inch pipe and 42½ cents for 15 inch pipe.

Vancouver Prices

CONCRETE Dominion Glazed Cement Pipe Co.		CLAY Evans, Colman & Evans
18 inch	$1.20	18 inch	80½c. plus 50c=$1.30½
14 "	0.81	14 "	55c " 40c= .95
16 "	1.06	16 "	68c " 45c= 1.13

North Vancouver Prices

CONCRETE Dom. Glazed Cement Pipe Co.	CLAY C. F. Jackson & Co.	CLAY Evans, Coleman & Evans
Restricted from Bids	18 in. - $1.25 plus 50c=$1.75	18 in. - $1.50 plus 50c=$2.00
	15 " - 90c " 42½c=1.32½	15 " - 1.06 " 42½c=1.46½

NOTE:--The added charges are for the cost of re-inforcement and are conservative.

Furthermore, the total of Messrs. Jackson & Co's. bid ($3119.10) was considerably less than that of Evans, Coleman & Evans, who wanted $3,664.60, showing how the temptation to jump prices with the restraining influence of competition removed had proved too strong.

By this time we believe that the ratepayers of North Vancouver must be convinced that we are animated in this controversy fully as much by the principle involved as by the hope of financial return. We believe right down deep from the bottom of our hearts that our pipe represents better value than what the city is getting.

ALL THAT WE ASK OF ANY MAN IS EQUAL CONSIDERATION ON A FAIR, COMPETITIVE BASIS.

THE KALEIDOSCOPE OF TUNIS

MOTLEY SCENES IN THE CAPITAL OF THE BEY

I said it was garbage. My friend, being artistic, sniffed gently, and suggested the scent of jasmine—or geranium, he added, in quick afterthought. Garlic, I held that the aroma was garlic. Yes, a little, flavored with the perfume of the narcissus, said the artist. We compromised by agreeing that the odours of Tunis were Oriental.

In a photograph you get the white-washed tipsy picturesqueness of the East; you get the veiled damsels in baggy trousers; you see lecharge Moors lounging in front of cafes. But a photograph does not provide you with the thick, hot, reeking stench of the beautiful east. Not yet. Science, however, is progressive.

THE FAT WOMEN'S PARADISE

If you love fat women come to Tunis. Real fat, podgy, waddling, wobbling women—not ladies inclined to stoutness. The Tunisian, Moslem and Jew, likes bulk. He likes his wife to look like an overcharged balloon. He likes her to be so fat that she hobbles and rolls.

The Tunisian woman is Humpty Dumpty and Daniel Lambert reincarnated as one person. No scraggy, angular, gothic-framed girl for the Tunisian. A beauty specialist who tried to sell anti-fat in Tunis would have her establishment wrecked for attempting to diminish the mammothanian loveliness of the fat Fatimas of the land.

A Tunisian girl is slim, like other girls. As she reaches the marriageable age she takes no exercise. She gorges on cous-cous, which is farinaceous and flesh-producing. The bigger and flabbier she is, the more like a prize-fed pig she becomes, the more lusciously alluring is she in the eyes of Hamid. The Tunisian when he marries does not want learning; an athletic, golfing, hockey-playing, tennis-whacking girl would be indecent. He likes nice eyes. But he must have fat.

Most Mohammedan ladies shield their charms of countenance with a soft white veil falling from just below the eyes. The female Moslem of Tunisia has her head swaddled in black. It is just as though before she went forth to the souk to market her husband tightly tied her head in a black bag, so tight that the bag split and she can peer between the slit.

The Jewish women of Tunis do not veil. But they knock the Mohammedan women sideways in rich raiment, jewellery, and in fat. The young Tunisian Jewess is a vision of prettiness, but her mother—well, well! The Jewesses swaddle and waddle, the same as their Moslem neighbours.

Take note that Tunis has a population of 100,000 Mussulmans, 50,000 Jews, 17,000 Italians and Maltese, and 10,000 French. I copied these figures out of a book.

The French are top dog. All for the good of Tunisia they have established a Protectorate, and they have an agreement with the Bey they will clear out whenever "the local government is capable of maintaining order." That will not be just yet. French administers the country—and does it very well—collects the taxes, and gives Sidi Mohammed-en Nacer Bey £37,500 a year with which to amuse himself. Of course the Bey rules the land, like the Khedive in Egypt. But he does what the French tell him, just as the Khedive does in Egypt what the British tell him.

The Englishman when he goes to an Eastern clime fits himself into his new surroundings. The Frenchman, never. He takes a bit of his beloved Paris with him. So he has made the European quarter of Tunis like a part of the gay city by the Seine. There is a fine Avenue de France and Avenue Jules Ferry, a broad boulevard, tree-girt, with palms throwing fronds wide. The magasins, hotels, cafes are Parisian. Bands play; rubber-tyred victorias are overtaken by dashing motor-cars; the electric tramway sings; the electric light flashes in the cool of the evening charmingly-dressed Frenchwomen take promenades with their children.

The Frenchman sits in front of his favourite cafe, and sips absinthe or anisette, or amer piquant, or cognac, or has bright-coloured syrups of grenadine or citron, or framboise or groseille fantasie, or he keeps away the fever with vermouth or quinquina.

Every other Frenchman you meet has a bit of ribbon in his button-hole a little tag of red, or green edged with yellow, or mauve. They indicate the wearers have been decorated for some service to the state. The number of Frenchmen who have done service to the state is legion.

In Tunis you hear more Italian spoken than French; more Yiddish than Italian; more Arabic than Yiddish, Italian and French put together. The French look after the government and run the big shops; the Jews, as usual, are in finance, and are wealthy; the Italians, from Naples and Sicily, are the working classes, and the Moslems are everything rich and poor, and sell anything from camels to attar of roses.

IN THE MARKET PLACE

Let us saunter through the souks, the market places of the natives.

Most of them are labyrinthine, white-washed tunnels, with little holes at intervals in the roof, sufficient to let in some light, but not sufficient to let out much of the stink. Each way has its particular trade. All the shops are windowless square alcoves in the wall. All the foetid passages are thronged with the most multi-colored haggling, noisy throng imaginable.

There is a mixture of garb, as though the populace had hurriedly dressed from the contents of a jumble shop. The low class unshaven Italian is gesticulatory, collarless, has ill-fitting trousers much stained, and boots that are never cleaned. The Jew is partly Arabic and partly European—and a fine mess he makes of it. He wears a low-crowned, claret-hued fez, with a long tassle which tickles the nape of his neck. His discoloured jacket once came from Europe. His trousers are Turkish, sagging and particularly voluminous about the sitting

As a Residential Site

One of the chief perquisites of wealth is to own a house with an unobstructed view.

To combine this with all the advantages of a modern city very rarely comes within the purse limits of the ordinary man.

BUT HERE IS THE NOTABLE EXCEPTION

View Avenue has scenic slopes and more magnificent views than any other location on the North Shore.

If you do not believe it—take a trip to View Avenue some day and see for yourself.

Incidentally, did you know that Hastings street, Vancouver's principal business street, is only from twenty to thirty minutes from any part of North Vancouver?

Why not quit being a strap-hanger in an overcrowded car? The ferry is never so crowded that you cannot get a seat.

Commutation tickets make transportation exceedingly reasonable. The first of the year will see the installation of a fifteen minute service.

View Avenue commands the best view of Harbor, Gulf, Mountains and city in North Vancouver. Because of its peculiar situation this view can never be blotted out.

View Avenue is inside the city limits as outlined by the Grand Boulevard which is now being built around the city.

It faces on Twenty-third street, only one block west of the Grand Boulevard, close to the Twentieth street and Lonsdale car lines.

View Avenue is within a stone's throw of the new High School, stores and many handsome residences, which, as the result of great public improvements, are building rapidly.

View Avenue is the cheapest inside city property for the money now on the market.

If you do not buy now, you lose the last best chance for a home.

REEVE McNAUGHT declares that construction will start on the Burrard Inlet Bridge & Tunnel Company's scheme IMMEDIATELY.

--AND THIS

As a Profitable Investment

Burrard Inlet is going to be the greatest railroad centre and commercial port on the Pacific Coast.

North Vancouver will be nearer the centre of activity of "Vancouver of Tomorrow" than any of the present suburbs.

MARK THESE WORDS

Upon the completion of the various railways now projected, View Avenue will be but a short way right from the heart of the business district. The question is not how far, but how long?

The south shore of Burrard Inlet is all taken up.

New corporations are hastening to grab the waterfrontage on the North Shore.

The Second Narrows Bridge is almost ready to be started.

A scenic railroad is going to be built up Grouse Mountain back from North Vancouver.

The B. C. Electric is planning extensions of its tram lines in the city.

Forty thousand dollars worth of sanitary sewers are being installed in North Vancouver.

Concrete sidewalks and macadamized roads are rapidly extending out from the centre of North Vancouver.

New hotels, stores and business property are going up every day.

REMEMBER—
View Avenue is already within the city limits. With these projected extensions and others, it will soon be the choicest inside property in North Vancouver; worth double the price that we are asking for it.

REMEMBER—
That it is less than one mile from the waterfront.

REMEMBER—
That its beautiful view can never be obstructed.

REMEMBER—
That it can never be bought cheaper than it can be bought today.

The road from Mamette Lake to Fish Lake is completed as far as Beaton's meadows. It is proposed to carry it through from that point to a point five miles from Fish Lake along the main road to Kamloops. This will make the distance from Merritt to Kamloops via Mammette Lake about fifty miles. From Beaton's Meadows to Fish Lake there is already a good wagon road thus giving the people of Nicola Valley access to a popular summer resort and fishing ground.

A Literary Column

Somewhat About Books and Writers

The science and art of millinery has its own literature, week by week or month by month in Ladies' Journals and Fashion Hints, and thereby hats have been boosted to such immense proportions as to stagger the mere man. Surely never before were such wonders seen on the earth. Never before did fair ladies bend beneath such a load of gear at the dictate of Fashion! But they have, at most times borne the load in humble subservience to women's especial deity. "Might as well be out of the world as out of fashion."

One lives in hope of the standard of revolt being raised by the ladies themselves as once in the fifteenth century after a vigorous sermon, the auditors of Thomas Conecte a Carmelite monk piled their headgear in the churchyard and set fire to them. Of which you may, if so disposed, read at length in Addison's Essay on "Female Headdress", which concludes with a florid appeal for simplicity of attire, and an eulogy of natura, graces.

In short nature seems to have designed the head as the cupola to the most glorious of her works and when we load it with such a pile of supernumerary ornaments we destroy the symmetry of the human figure, and foolishly contrive to call off the eye from great and real beauties to childish gee gaws, ribbands and bone lace."

Hon. Price Ellison and Robt. Wood have bonded the Okanagan mine near Princeton, and will actively develop the property. The mine was located in 1886 and its ore carried values up to $35 per ton in gold and silver.

Another addition to the important business and financial blocks erected in Kamloops during the past few years is now assured, as the Imperial Bank has let the contract for a fine new block which will be built on the premises purchased by them recently.

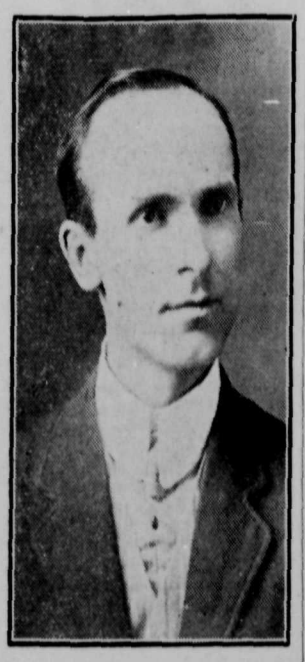
19th St. West North Vancouver

St. John, N.B. Loses Prominent Citizen to Vancouver



The irresistible attraction which the west presents to the most energetic and successful business men of the east is again forcibly exemplified in the case of Mr. J. N. Harvey, who has just disposed of his large business in St. John, New Brunswick, and has removed to Vancouver, having purchased the well known business of Johnston Kerfoot and Company on Hastings street. The Daily Telegraph of St. John in a recent issue speaks in the highest terms of Mr. Harvey in reporting his decision to remove from that city. The Daily Telegraph, among many glowing tributes declares "Mr. Harvey started in business a little over nine years ago on a comparatively small scale. Today he has four large stores in the opera house block, Union street and his business is increasing so rapidly that no one will doubt him when he says that it is no ordinary proposition that is taking him to Vancouver. He has expanded this business through persistent advertising and honest treatment of his customers. In public life the Telegraph states that Mr. Harvey was a member of the council of the Board of Trade, chairman of the New Membership and New Industries Committees and chairman of the Board of Trade committee to investigate the rates of the N. B. Telephone Company. He was likewise treasurer of the Canadian Club, a director of the provincial S.P.C.A., a governor of the Boys' Industrial Home and a director of the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Harvey was likewise active in church circles having been president of the Layman's Association for N. B. and P. E. I., as well as filling several positions in his home city. It was while in attendance at the general conference of the Methodist church held in Victoria last summer that Mr. Harvey had opportunity to personally investigate the attractions of the west with the result that he has now become one of our western business men.

Mr. Harvey arrived in Vancouver this week and is proceeding at once with active business operations along energetic lines. The old established business of which he has been fortunate enough to become the owner will doubtless accomplish even greater success under his efficient management. Before finally choosing his place of residence Mr. Harvey intends having a close look at North Vancouver and there is a possibility that he will join the contented ranks of those Vancouver business men who have established their homes on this side of the Inlet.

COST OF CRIMINALS IN CANADA

Cotton's Weekly, a Socialistic newspaper, published at Cowansville, P. Q., has the following interesting article with respect to the cost of criminals in the Dominion:

The cost of criminals comes high to Canada. There are jails and penitentiaries, reformatories and industrial schools. There are jury trials and special police officers. There are expensive judges to be paid. There are the North West Mounted Police. They are the city police and village constables. There is the cost of keeping and guarding the prisoners.

The total cost of the criminals in Canada is difficult to arrive at. The judging of criminals is done in many instances by judges who also decide civil cases. It is, therefore impossible to find out what the criminals cost.

However, some items can be given. In British Columbia the Provincial Police cost $69,495 last year. The maintenance of the jails cost $21,287. The summoning and paying of jurors and witnesses cost $20,828. Prosecution and interpreters, $7,822. Special constables and prisoners $31,210 Medical attendance on prisoners, $1,200. Miscellaneous expenses, $5,525. Jails and lockups, $9,392. These make a total of $207,988.

In Saskatchewan, criminal investigations cost $33,457. Jails, $21,450, police and prisoners $13,767, jails $17,498. These make a total of $174,112.

In the province of Quebec the criminal prosecutions, police, jails, etc., cost $525,000. In addition a new jail was built at Montreal at a cost of $412,000.

In Ontario the police, criminal prosecutions, etc., cost about $322,000 and the central prison and women's reformatory cost $170,000, making about $500,000 that the provincial authorities spent for crime.

The penitentiaries cost the Dominion government last year $545,000. The Mounted Police cost the Dominion $650,000. The cost of criminal judges to the Dominion is at least $200,000. This makes a total of $1,400,000 for the cost of crime in Canada in one year.

The provincial government has received from the Dominion fisheries department $46000, being arrears of dues for fishing licenses on the Fraser river from 1901 to 1907. The payment of this money shows now the Dominion government regards the question of who is entitled to collect license fees from fishermen. Until 1907 these license fees were collected by the Dominion, but in that year the province started collecting them under the Fisheries Act. The $46,000 is the amount collected by the Dominion prior to that date, and now acknowledged to belong to the province.

Every lady longs to have wavy hair. It is now within the reach of everyone. The wave will not wash out and damp weather will not affect it. The process leaves the hair soft and wavy. It has become the rage in Paris, London and all the large cities of the States. THE KALEIDOSCOPE OF TUNIS part. His calves are bare; but he is wearing pointed French button-up boots, and his socks are kept in place with elastic suspenders.

There is a touch of effeminacy about the Tunisian. He likes the rays of the sun. All the bright young bucks have bunches of jasmine bloom stuck over the ear. Some have delicate features and refined hands. They pick their way through the mire and step on one side, when a broad-shouldered, hairy-chested, brown-baked, and tatter-clad Arab comes surging along with a bale of goods upon his back.

BUYING AND SELLING

We make our way up the noisome clamorous Rue de le Kasbah. The shops are busy. There are no fixed prices; all purchasing is done by squabbling. Up passages, looking from the gloom into a sea of eastern sunshine, are mosques, square-towered and radiant-tiled, or with slim, needle-like minarets; there are notices prohibiting the entrance of any dog of a Christian.

There is the clang of hammers in the metal market. In the Souk Lekajine saddlers are energetic, making gigh-pommelled yellow saddles and adorning them with ruby silks and threads of gold. A shout and we skip aside, for a lad is running forward with little pans of thick coffee—a customer is to be entertained whilst he buys. Thud, thud, thud, and you are in the street of shoemakers, yellow leathered shoes, with the heel beaten down slouchwise.

The fezmakers are pressing the rep caps into shape. A tremendous rabble in the jewellery market; barbaric ornaments are being hawked. Sellers and buyers screech at one another. Here is the Souk-en-Trount, bright with silks. Round a corner and we are in the Souk des Femmes. Fat women, hundreds of fat women, shrouded in white, and the Moslem women with their heads in tight black bags, fingering the fineries dear to the heart.

What? Yes, round this corner and the air is laden with aroma—strong, virile aroma. It is a slumbrous rich aroma. This is the Street of Perfumes. The essence of flowers, mainly jasmine, is in delicate slim phials. The light is soft and it filters. Here is a morsel of the romantic east.

A BEY'S PALACE

The Bey, with his ladies, is at Marsa—a white heap of garden-embowered residences on the fringe of Tunis Bay, just beyond the crumbled heap of stones which tell where glorious Carthage was. So there is no trouble in visiting the Dar-el-Bey, the town palace of his highness.

No gorgeousness from without. The outer walls are as simple as the walls of a barn. That is where the poetry comes in—the blank silent wall and the mind dancing in wonder concerning things that happen in the scented courts of a great pasha.

The picture is of a bulbous-paunched and rheum-eyed old reprobate lounging on silken cushions, sucking a long-tubed water pipe and watching dusky maidens in diaphanous attire dancing on the rare carpets which decorate the marble. Musicians play lusciously. The waters of the fountain fall rythmically. The sunshine is like a bath of warmth. The snowed sherbet is the most exquisite beverage. It must be a grand thing to be a rich Bey. This is the picture.

And yet, allowing for the mystic charm of life in a land where it is constant afternoon, I venture the thought that life was rather boresome within these marbled and fantastic Moorish halls. It must have been particularly boresome to the stout ladies who never went to the opera, nor the theatre, nor the races, nor picniced, nor dined at restaurants, nor sat outside cafes and chatted with their husband's friends.

Through square-set doors, crowned with black and white marble, I passed from marble court to marble court. The sun blazed from the bluest of skies—but a soft coolness prevailed. No hours were there to trip in dance, only a smoke-soaked old Arab who knew one word of English and three words of French, and who, I was well aware, was interested in the Baksheesh he was likely to receive.

The October afternoon was palpitating. The heat was sucking all the strength that was in me, and there were moments I would have given much for the shadow of a tree.

I was fascinated. I stood on the cactus strewn, brown highland, and looked about on all that remained of Carthage, the city of the Phoenicians, the heritage of Rome, the place where lovely Dido wept, where Salambo loved, the city which was ravished by the Vandals, reduced to ruins by the Arabs—lay forgotten through the centuries. Fifteen years had glided from my life since last I stood on the dust Carthage, and the old emotions swept over me again.

A VISION OF CARTHAGE

In my vision, that hot, sweltering, eye-aching afternoon, I saw the ships of the Phoenicians beating across the blue waters of the bay twenty-seven hundred years ago. There are modern villas now by the harbor where the Phoenicians made.

I have been in the Musee Alaoui—once the harem of Mohammed Bey—and there I saw much that has been recovered of the prime of Carthage. Time falls away. I ignore the defacements of the marbles, the marble gods reduced to torsos, the goddesses with chipped noses and limbness. I see the fine mailed figures of Roman warriors, and I cannot think two thousand years have gone since a chisel carved them. The mosaics, hunting scenes, scenes of the seasons, laughing nymphs from the sea, features of conquerors, are as bright as done yesterday. A bronze youth laughs. A blind, old man, wrinkle-browed, raises his sightless eyes in supplication. There is the bust of a woman, matronly, her hair wavy and sweeping from a broad forehead. I am positive I have recently met her somewhere in a London drawing-room. There is a mosaic of Virgil dictating the Iliad. There are masques of comedy and tragedy. There are marble urns with gay figures dancing round them. There are shy, nude women with dainty limbs. I look into the quiet marble countenances and wonder if the little models were happy women—two thousand years ago.

My reverie is broken. An Arab boy comes up and inquires if I will buy two live ducks for four francs? What do I want with two live ducks? I glance at my watch, run down the hill and catch the electric car back to Tunis.

SCENES IN THE SLUMS

It was in what is called the "low quarter" of Tunis. The folk were of the mongrel type you find on the African coast; a mixture of Arab, Greek, Italian, Turk and Maltese. Features were coarse and skins were blotchy brown-black, and lips were lecherous and eyes sensual. The men looked ruffians and the shapeless women were slatterns. It was a place where the waters of the Mediterraneau had cast up the human scum of centuries.

Pirates, warriors, slaves, desperate outcasts—the drift of many lands. Who were their sires and from whence did their mothers come?

They were drinking deeply and laughing loudly in that hot, steamy room. A great bull-like man, in the baggy trousers of the east, his shirt loose and showing a knotted throat, a man whose skin had no colour in it, but had the sallowness of many races, whose eyes were black and blood-streaked, whose hair was crimpy like that of a Numidian and whose beard was short-cropped—the man I would select as a real specimen of the Barbary pirate—he brought the drinks, and the coffee and the bubble-bubble water pipes.

The air is putrid. A Jew-faced man is hammering at a piano. A Turk-bellied individual is scratching a violin between his knees. A sickly-faced smudge-eyed Maltese, dressed like a Moor, is rattling his fingers against a tom-tom. An odd man spasmodically shakes a tambourine. They are playing an Oriental air.

Six women are on a platform, and they are shrieking in song—and much of it is like the cry of agony they would give if red-hot hatpins were being stuck in their plumpness.

They are disgustingly plump—no, fat is the word. They are in reds and greens and golds, and their coin-decked caps are bright, and their great trousers of startling stripes are like caricatures of sailors' belongings.

The men leer at the fat women and the women, who are sweating profusely, show their teeth, and catch cigarettes thrown at them.

The din of the music crashes, and the women shake their finery and throw back their heads and howl.

A tall, heavy-featured woman rises. She stands sullen, with arms akimbo, like an athlete showing his form. Then she dances a shuffle. Then she writhes her body. But it is the dance of the East. It is the dance of the pasha's harem; it is the dance of the disreputable cafe; it is the dance which every little Arab girl tries to learn—long years before she knows its meaning.

The scum men of the Orient, from anaemic pale face to thick-lipped ebony negro, lean forward. With drowsy blear-eyes they watch the woman. They are not enthusiastic. They never applaud. They drink and smoke and spit and keep their eyes on the gyrations of the shuffling dancer.
