

The Grampus is said to go up the Mouth of Jay nearly as far as the salt water reaches, almost every tide at flood, during the months of July and August, in pursuit of salmon of which it devours immense numbers.