The Kootenay Star

SATURDAY, AUGUST 9, 1890.

Hon. Edgar Dewdney, Minister of the Interior, returned East last Monday morning, and Messrs. Wm. Cowan and Wm. M. Brown boarded the train and went as far as the Glacier for the purpose of gaining information in regard to the land question at Revelstoke. They found the Hon. Minister quite willing to talk, and they report a very agreeable and satisfactory interview. The Government is now prepared to give deeds to all holders of titles under Mr. Farwell, and requests all such to unite and forward their deeds or evidences of ownership in a body to Ottawa. The Minister requests that an effort be made to have all claimants unite and save trouble to the Department by sending together their applications for Crown Grants, and the evidence upon which they base their claims. Deeds will then in due time be issued to all who are entitled to receive them, at a small charge for surveying and the usual Government fee for a Crown Deed.

In regard to the balance of the townsite property, the Hon. Minister states that an auction sale of lots will be held on the ground, within a short time. It is expected that this will take place as soon after his return to Ottawa as the maps and plans can be put in shape for the sale.

It is now believed that the long waiting for titles to townsite property will soon end, and that all who wish to buy lots will have an opportunity, and that building operations will spring into activity without further delay.

Judge Tunstall has received notice from the government at Victoria that the appropriation available for West Kootenay was but $10,000, instead of $12,000 as had been heretofore believed. This is exceedingly unfortunate, for the reason that improvements had been authorized and work commenced on the basis of an expenditure of $12,000, Judge Tunstall acting on information received from Col. Baker. At the monthly meeting of the Miner's Association last Monday evening, a special committee was appointed with instructions to enter into communication with Col. Baker with the view of getting the appropriation restored to $12,000, in order that the improvements may be carried out as originally planned.

It is not true, as intimated by the Miner, that anything has appeared in the STAR taking "exception to the government expending so much money in the lower end of West Kootenay District and so little in the upper end." The point of the communication referred to was, that after an appropriation of $612,000 for railroad, and $10,500 of a total of $12,000 for general purposes, had been secured for Lower Kootenay, some of the people of Nelson wished to make another draw upon the small sum of $800 which had been set apart for an "emergency fund." At the same time only $700 had been as then supposed, appropriated for the upper end of the district. The STAR wants Lower Kootenay to have all it has got and all that it requires, because it believes that its expenditure there will help to give prosperity to the entire district.

OUR DONALD LETTER.

A representative meeting of the members and adherents of the Episcopal Church was held in the edifice on Saturday evening last, His Lordship the Bishop in the chair, for the purpose of discussing arrangements looking to a more satisfactory supply of pulpits in this portion of the diocese. Much regret was expressed by the Bishop at the demoralized condition of affairs, the blame for which, however, he entirely repudiated. That there was considerable tension existing among the congregations, he was aware, but argued that this feeling had been doubly increased by a partial misunderstanding of the circumstances in connection with the securing of pastoral supply. The onus of this unsatisfactory state of affairs he held lay with the predecessor of the present incumbent in charge of the district. His Lordship, however, from information gathered at various points in the district, felt satisfied they were in a position to support three ministers. He had already made partial arrangements for the engagement of two in addition to the incumbent at Kamloops, one of whom was in full orders and could reside at Donald, holding a bimonthly service. This would entail in all an expenditure of about $2,800 for stipends, which amount had been guaranteed in proportion by the congregations throughout the district. This proposition was ultimately declared satisfactory, and the meeting adjourned, the Bishop to lay the matter before the Kamloops Advisory Board whose concurrence is necessary before the arrangement can go into effect. During the evening the Bishop admitted that he had been altogether misinformed as to the ability of Golden to support a minister. He had to depend largely upon verbal report for his information regarding many points in his extensive diocese, and this in respect to the latter had completely mislead him. He expected much from Golden in the future.

Impressive services were conducted in the church on Sunday morning and evening by his lordship.

The 600 lb. bell after much delay, is now being placed in position in the turret of the church, and will hereafter extend its inviting notes to residents of Donald at the hours of service.

Messrs. Patmore & Craige, the popular postmasters of Donald, have removed into their newly erected premises in Main street, where they intend, in addition to the P. O. business to carry an extensive line of general goods, The wishes of the boys are that success may attend them in their new departure.

William Gray an intending passenger for the coast was disagreeably surprised on Friday, the 1st inst., an arriving in Donald by the noon express, when confronted by Sheriff Redgrave with an order calling for his arrest charging him with bringing stolen money into Canada. The prisoner took the matter cooly and was at once escorted to the lockup, Gray, it appears, was engaged as baggagemaster in the employ of the express company at Hurley, Wisconsin, and absconded with $3000 of the company's funds. Conductor H. Abbey, in charge of the train upon which the prisoner was traveling, having been furnished with a description of the man, the distinctive feature of which was the partial loss of a thumb. Noticing this he telegraphed the resident sheriff of the prisoner's presence on the train. Upon being searched $2200 of the amount stolen was found upon his person. Conductor Abbey in all probability receives a large proportion of the reward of $500 offered for the man's arrest. The usual course will be taken to extradite the prisoner.

With but natural assumption the Winnipeg papers credit Chief Mcrae of the police department with issuing the order for Gray's arrest. This is given an unqualified denial by Sheriff Redgrave, who said that McRae knew nothing whatever of the man's arrest until wired from here. The credit of the arrest is due to Conductor Abbey and the local police authorities.

John Hart, an employee in the round-house, sustained a severe fracture of the collar-bone and other injuries on Friday last by falling from the boiler of an engine while engaged in repairs. The unfortunate man, who intended leaving for the coast in a few days is under treatment at the hospital.

COUNTY COURT OF KOOTENAY.

JUDGE SPINKS PRESIDING.

At the session of court held at Donald August 1st, there were eight cases tried before Judge Spinks. It was his first appearance amongst us as Judge of the County Court, and I need hardly say that his method of handling the matters brought before him shows that he has studied law advantageously to himself, and therefore it enables him to meet out justice to others. No one can be more painstaking than the judge and right through a long day's work he perused diligently every document which could be of service in the cases brought before him, and I venture to say that all who heard him feel confidence in his superior judgment and his fair and impartial decisions. We shall hail his presence among us with much pleasure whenever we have a court and knotty questions to unravel.

The first case on the docket was Stark vs. A. B. H. Cochrane and H. J. Sharp of Golden. Settled out of court, O'Brien against the same parties was also settled out of court.

Brien and Bains vs. Kinnainey, of Golden. Claim admitted, to be paid by monthly installments.

Martin O'Brien vs. J. W. Connor, $119. Claim admitted and part of it paid into court, balance in two months.

Steen vs. Gibson. After witnesses were heard on both sides, the case was dismissed with costs. Mr. Spragge for plaintiff, Mr, Fulton of Kamloops for defendant.

Milligan vs. Anderson. Judgment for plaintiff in $212. to be paid in monthly installments. O'Brien vs. same, $151, settlement to be made in same manner.

Tretheway vs. Cariboo Creek Mining Co., of Illecillewaet, claim $998.50. This case took up most of the day and many witnesses were called on both sides. Plaintiff performed contract work making tunnel in company's mining ground at Illecillewaet. Food was furnished plaintiff and men were paid a small sum. The contract price was $16 per foot, with a forfeiture of $5 per foot on failure to perform a certain amount of work, work to be measured monthly before a pay sheet could go in. Defendants failed to measure work, and plaintiff therefore contends they failed in their contract. Evidence heard on both sides and as there was a lot of documents requiring a "Philadelphia lawyer" to unravel, the judge took all papers and reserved his decision.

On the 1st of August, William Gray, an absconder from Hurley, Wisconsin, engaged in United States Express Company, was arrested by Sheriff Redgrave and Constable Lendrum, on the charge of bringing stolen money into Canada. When searched the sum of $2,127.20 was found upon his person. Telegrams were sent to Sheriff Watson of Chicago, and his arrival is expected in a few days. Meanwhile the prisoner is luxuriating on the best of food that the Sheriff's hotel at Donald affords.

Card From Sheriff Redgrave.

A paragraph in the Manitoba Daily Free Press of August 4, states that William Gray had been arrested at Donald by order of Chief McRae of Winnipeg. This is not so, I never heard Chief McRae's name in the matter till I had a telegram from him after the arrest had been made. It was Mr. G. Ford, of the Dominion Express Company, Winnipeg, who gave information which caused the arrest.

S. REDGRAVE.

Mr. T. J. Lendrum returned from his 3 months visit to the old country much improved in health, and comes to Revelstoke by transfer from Donald, to fill the positions of Provincial Constable and Mining Recorder. His experience in official work and affable manner qualify him for the acceptable performance of his duties.

REVELSTOKE, B.C., AUGUST 9.

LASSOING A GRIZZLY.

"Hello, boys,there's a cow down!" said a bronze-faced man in broad-brimmed sombrero, chaperido and Mexican spurs,. He was one of a group of five. The cow-boys reined up their bronchos in order to look, and then, turning, rode in the direction to which he pointed.

They were at the foot of one of those great mesas or table-lands which, in New Mexico, extend eastward from the Rocky Mountains, and fall precipitously one down to another like vast steps, till the Gulf-coast plain in Texas is reached.

The object toward which the group was riding turned out on near inspection to be a half-grown calf, which had been recently killed in a violent and terrible fashion. Its back was broken, and its skin was torn in shreds.

Evidently the cowboys had seen something like it not long before, for after looking at it in silence for a moment, one of them remarked, "It's a bear's work, boys, dead sure!"

"It's the same brute that killed those calves for Heckle last week," said another.

"Yes, and a colt for Allison," spoke up another. "We've got to turn out and hunt him down as soon as the round-up is over."

"If we wait till then, there won't be much young stock alive on the range," said the first speaker. "He kills about a critter a night."

The party turned their horses' heads, resumed their first course, and were soon riding in single file up the narrow trail that leads to the top of the mesa.

It is not often that the grizzly bear has been found at large east of the Rocky mountains, or elsewhere on the open plain; but some large animal had lately made sad havoc among the colts and calves of the cattle ranges about the mesa. In so wide a country his ravages among the scattered herds had at first escaped notice, but they soon became apparent. No one had seen the depredator, but it was believed to be a grizzly bear which had followed the canon down from the mountains and made his lair near its mouth.

Various plans for his destruction had been discussed. There was little time to organize a hunt for him during the busy portion of the round-up and the undertaking had been deferred to a more convenient season.

It was up the long ascent of 1500 feet to the top of the Montoya mesa that our five cowboys were riding. They made occasional halts to rest their horses, and, near the top, one of the horsemen stopped to tighten his cinch. This gave the whole party an opportunity to rest, so that the horses arrived fairly fresh at the top.

As the foremost rider came upon the table-land his comrades saw him wave his sombrero. "The bear! The bear!" he yelled. "Come on, boys!"

The party pressed forward, and saw, a short distance away, a grizzly bear which was shambling across an open space toward some rocky and wooded ground beyond.

Here was a chance for cowboy sport of a most exciting kind. Owing to the law which forbids the carrying of fire-arms on the round-up, the boys were unarmed, but nevertheless they raised a yell, and rode their horses hard for the bear.

The grizzly quickened his pace at their coming, and was evidently desirous to get away; but his pursuers soon overtook and surrounded him. As some of them got before him and headed him off, he stopped, and as if taking the matter of their presence into serious consideration.

"Let's rope him, boys!" shouted Joe Hampson, as he widened the loop of his lasso. The others caught at the idea, and soon, with swinging lassos, were advancing in a circle upon the bear.

Only one of them showed no enthusiasm in this undertaking. Louis Walker, the veteran rancher and hunter, who had killed all manner of big game of the western mountain and plains, wore an expression of reserve and thoughtfulness. He did his part with the rest, but he handled his horse with great circumspection, smiled to himself with deep meaning, and cast an eye backward from time to time to examine the inequalities of ground, as if he expected shortly to ride over it in haste.

The Mexican vaqueros of the old days, who lived in the saddle, used sometimes to capture the grizzly with the lasso. Several horsemen worked in concert, and their method of operation was to get two or more lassos over the bear at once, and, by drawing them tight from different directions, to hold the beast at the mercy of his captors; but the modes of driving cattle of the present day have not served to perpetuate this marvellous skill,

The boys had often talked over the proper way in which a grizzly should be lassoed, and the undertaking had seemed quite feasible. Now that the chance to make the experiment was offered, they found unexpected difficulty in carrying out the practical details. This grizzly bear was clumsy in appearance but very active, repellant of manner and with a marked antipathy to any intrusion upon his privacy. He seemed possessed of a fixed idea, which was to gain the broken ground toward which he was making when he was discovered, and he kept pushing toward it in spite of obstacles.

Apparently he knew what he wanted and did not care to be bothered. When his assailants came too near he turned with a growl, a display of teeth and uprising of hair that made him seem portentously large.

It was no easy matter for the cowboys to get near the animal, for the horses wanted nothing of him. They snorted, plunged, and backed away; their willingness to play acrobatic tricks on their hind legs was as marked as their unwillingness to approach the bear. It was great fun—a Roman holiday in an amphitheatre infinitely grander than the Coliseum—but the bear insisted on choosing his own part, which was by no means that of victim.

Several times the bolder riders threw their lassos, but at too long range to be effective. The bear was growing impatient and seemed to care less and less about running away, as he whirled repeatedly, facing his pursuers in turn.

Presently Andre Ebel, a Mexican and a fine rider, forced his horse within twenty feet of the animal and made a fine cast of his long rope. The noose dropped over the bear's head, settled about his shoulders, and the horse instantly braced back to keep the rope taut.

The boys yelled with delight. "Hurrah! Hurrah! Andre's got him! Quick, Joe, catch him on the other side!"

"Hi! Look out! Go it, Andre, for your life! Take care, everybody! The brute's hostile!"

This remarkable change from a tone of jubilation was caused by the unforeseen behavior of the bear. Instead of tugging to get away, he no sooner felt the rope draw than, with a snarling roar and a quickness surprising in so clumsy an animal, he made a rush at his assailant.

For a short dash, no horse, however fleet, is a match for a grizzly bear. Neither horse nor rider had any intention of allowing the distance between them and the bear to be diminished, and Ebel flung the turn of his lasso from the pommel of the saddle as his horse whirled and ran. But they could not move swiftly enough to avoid the bear, which in an instant was upon them, and sprang with snapping teeth and extended claws to tear the man from the saddle.

Barely missing the saddle, the animal caught in his teeth the oil-cloth coat or 'slicker' rolled up in the rear of the saddle, and with the accompanying clutch of his claws lacerated the horse's haunch.

By a great effort, the terrified horse, though half borne down by the shock, broke loose and dashed away before the bear could repeat his attack, When Ebel had put a safe distance between himself and his antagonist, he turned about to inspect the ground and found that his companions were not far from him. They stopped then to coil up their lariats—which they had not taken time to do when in the vicinity of the bear.

The cowboys watched the grizzly. Satisfied with having put his assailants to flight, he had not followed them. With a clear field he was having it out with Ebel's slicker. The noose had fallen about his neck and under one shoulder, and his impatience would not permit him to take the necessary steps to throw it off. He bit at it with the effect only to draw it tighter. He rose on his haunches and cuffed at it savagely. His fury was tremendous. From time to time the idea seemed to strike him that the slicker was associated with the persistant attentions of the rope, and he rushed at that inoffensive and tightly strapped bundle and tore it savagely with teeth and paws. Then he renewed his struggle with the lasso.

The slicker fared badly, but the rope so far as the witnesses saw, had altogether the best of the encounter. The bear finally broke for the rough ground, and, keeping up a running fight with the rope all the way, disappeared among the rocks and trees in the direction of the canon.

The cowboys rode to the scene of the encounter. A considerable area was torn up. The slicker was in that "state of tatterment," as one of the boys afterwards expressed it, "that you couldn't have got out of it a fair-sized shoe-string." Louis Walker's inward smile had developed superficially into a full-sized grin. "I could have told you before boys, how 'twould turn out," he chuckled, "but 'twould have spoiled your fun, and you wouldn't have been so experienced as you are now."

The bear was not heard of again, but it may be remarked that thereafter he ceased to make depredations about the Montoga mesa. He probably went back to the mountains. But should he or any one of his kind reappear about the mesa it is safe to say that he will not be disturbed by the attempts of any one to capture him with a lasso.

Against Mongolians.

San Francisco, August 2.—The council of federated trades has sent the following telegram to Washington: To the Pacific Coast Representatives in Congress—The council of federated trades of the Pacific coast, representing the often expressed opinions of the great mass of working people on this side of the continent, respectfully, but firmly, request that the tonnage and mail subsidy bills now before your honorable body, be so amended as to prohibit the employment, on subsidized lines, of persons ineligible to American citizenship, notably Chinese and Japanese, as being not only prejudicial to the interests of our own seafaring people, but such service is notoriously inefficient and a perpetual source of danger to the lives of passengers and others sailing on those ships.

Winnipeg, August 5.—Fred Smith was drowned while bathing in the Red river today.

A boy named Robinson dropped dead while dancing at a picnic at Frazer's grove today.

A woman named Jenny Smith, who was disappointed in a love affair, took a large dose of laudanum this afternoon and will probably die.

It is reported that Mr. Graham, the manager of the Northern Pacific division in Manitoba, is soon to accept a position on the Northern Pacific system on the Pacific coast,

"What is the news from the western state,
And what is there from the east?
Has the blizzard blizzed or the cyclone whizzed,
Or the fire king ta'en a feast?
What is the latest name grown great,
And what may the reason be?"
The papers he'll hurl in a maddening swirl
As he gurgles a sound a glee.

With his eyes ablaze, in his furious fire,
He scatters them left and right,
Till the new swept floor is piled up with lore
Of the previous day and night.
And then when his woeful work is done,
With a manner that's light and free,
He takes, in his greed, just the papers you need,
And he gurgles a sound of glee.

Not Ready to Fight.

Washington, August 2. — There has been a good deal of warlike talk since the publication of the Behring Sea correspondence and the very stiff protest which Lord Salisbury addressed to Secretary of State Blaine, but the consensus of opinion is that the United States is hardly in a position to go to war with England. Despite the vigorous efforts which have been made during the last few years to build up a navy, this country has very few vessels which could compare with the magnificent fleets England could send over here in case of trouble, and all the great ports are in such an unprotected state that it would be no trouble for a few first-class ironclads to stand off and shell them at their leisure. The military and naval authorities have nothing to rely on as a means of harbor defence except torpedoes, and while submarine torpedoes are good enough in their way, they are, after all, a very insecure defence unless they are reinforced by forts on the land and a good fleet of cruising vessels. On the entire Atlantic coast there is not a fort worthy of the name nor is there a large modern high-powered gun. The same state of things exists on the Pacific coast, and with the exception of the half dozen cruisers which have been built in the last few years, the United States navy consists of wooden ships armed with smooth-bores which have been out of date for a quarter of a century. In the entire navy there is not a single battle-ship, and while the Philadelphia and Baltimore are good vessels, they could not stand up in an open fight for half an hour against the armored leviathans of which England has so many. Now that the correspondence has been made public, I think I may be pardoned the charge of egotism if I call attention to the fact that the first information of the very serious state of affairs was conveyed through the columns of the Star. The correspondence bears out all the statements made in my despatches, and although rival papers, which at that time did not possess the information which I had at my command, pronounced it a canard, they are now willing to admit the journalistic enterprise which gave to the public the first information of the most important national event which has happened for some years. I understand that negotiations have once more been resumed between Secretary Blaine and Sir Julian Pauncefote, and that there are hopes of arriving at a satisfactory settlement. While this settlement may be delayed, it is very certain that the United States revenue cutters will not make any seizures this season, much as some of the admirers of Mr. Blaine's jingo policy would like to see this done. This country does not want war, and it is not disposed to indulge in a war to gratify any man's political or personal ambition. Arbitration is looked on by every one as the best way out of the difficulty, and, I have no doubt, after a sufficient lapse of time the question will be referred either to a mixed commission or some neutral power for final settlement. If the decision is against the United States, the question of the liability of the U. S. government for damages for the vessels which it has seized will be brought up. Of this Mr. Blaine has been informed, although no mention of that appears in the published correspondence.—Montreal Star.

of Victoria was drowned at Seattle a few days ago.

An accident to the Sault St. Marie canal will necessitate the closing of the canal for a week, and it is estimated that the delay will cause a loss of over one million dollars to ship owners.

Syracuse, August 2. — Joseph Fayles left a baarel of whiskey in front of his saloon yesterday. After the sun had been shining on it a while the barrel exploded. Fayles, who had been standing near, was thrown fifteen feet and had his wrist fractured and his ankle sprained. A nurse, a baby and a baby carriage were upset in a heap. After the explosion the front of Fayle's salaon looked as if it had been visited by a tornado. There was no sign of the whisky that had been in the barrel.

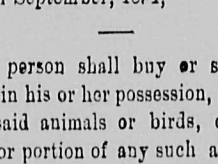
THE DAY TO CELEBRATE.

Biggs.—Well old man, you seem to be whooping it up a good deal today.

Boggs.—You bet. I'm celebrating the fourth.

Biggs.—Ain't you a little late?

Boggs.—Nope. Born last night.



PROTECTION OF GAME.

Neither cow-elk nor hen pheasants shall be hunted, taken, killed, shot at, wounded, or injured at all or at any time.

No person shall at any time buy or sell, or offer or expose for sale, any pheasant or pheasants, fawns or deer under the age of twelve months nor does of any age, until the First day of September, 1894,

CLOSE SEASON FOR CERTAIN ANIMALS.

Deer, elk, reindeer, caribou, mountain goat, mountain sheep, or hare, between the 20th day of December and the 15th day of August.

Grouse, partridge, prairie fowl, California and Virginia quail, robin, and meadow lark, between the 1st day of February and the 1st day of September; provided that robins may be destroyed in an orchard or garden at any time:

Wild duck, between the 1st day of March and the 12th day of September. Cock pheasants from 1st Feb. to 1st October.

None of these animals or birds shall be hunted, taken, killed, or shot at during any night throughout the year. Hunting deer with dogs is prohibited except east of the Cascades,

On the mainland it shall be unlawful for any person to shoot, capture, or by any means destroy, cock pheasants or quail before the First day of September, 1894,

No person shall buy or sell, or have in his or her possession, any of the said animals or birds, or any part or portion of any such animals or birds, during the close season: Provided, always, that they may be exposed for sale for three days, and no longer, immediately after the commencement of the close season; but in all cases the proof of the time of killing or taking shall be upon the party in possession.

It shall not be lawful to shoot at any gull in the following harbours, viz: Victoria, Esquimalt, New Westminster, Nanaimo or Vancouver, or in any arm, fiord, river or creek extending from or flowing into any of the said harbors at any time of the year.

It shall be unlawful to kill deer at any time for their hides alone, in any portion of this Province,

Nothing in the act shall be construed into preventing any resident farmer from killing deer that he may find depasturing within his cultivated fields at any time.

On and after 31st August, 1890, no person or corporation shall at any time purchase or have in possession, with intent to export or cause to be exported or carried out of the limits of this province, or shall at any time or in any manner export, or cause to be exported or carried out of the limits of this province, any or any portion of the animals or birds herein mentioned, in their raw state; and this provision shall apply to railway, steamship, and express companies.

It shall be lawful for any constable to search any person in any street, or public place, whom he shall have good cause to suspect of having in his possession any game unlawfully obtained, and also to stop and search any cart or other conveyance in or upon which he shall have good cause to suspect that any such game is being carried; and should such constable discover any game on any such person, cart or other conveyance, he shall seize and detain it, and shall immediately summon such person before any two Justices of the Peace, to be dealt with according to the statute.

Any person giving information leading to the conviction of any person under the act shall be entitled receive to one-half the fine inflicted.

No person who is not domiciled in this province, other than officers and men in Her Majesty's regular army, or permanent corps of Canadian Militia, shall at any time hunt, kill or take any of the following animals, viz: Deer, bull-elk, reindeer, cariboo, mountain sheep or mountain goats, unless such person is the holder of a game licence.

LOCAL NEWS.

English Church services are held regularly on each Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

Attention is called to the advertisement of Messrs. Jowett & Haig, a new firm, whose lines of business cover a wide field.

Rev. J. Turner, Methodist Minister, will preach at the church on Sunday (tomorrow) evening, at 7.30. An earnest invitation is extended to all.

Mr, J. F. Hume returned from the south on the last trip of the Lytton. Although he has high expectations as to the future of Nelson, he is still very enthusiastic in relation to the old town of Revelstoke.

An item appearing in the Miner, it will be well for the C. P. R. to look into—that is, that the freight rate on goods from Toronto to Kootenai, Idaho, "was 24 cents a hundred less than from Toronto to Revelstoke."

It will be seen by a notice published in this paper, that a public meeting will be held on next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of selecting a school site. Every man interested in the location of the school house, which is to be built as soon as a site and the title to it can be secured, should be on hand and take part in the meeting.

A meeting is called for this evening to discuss matters concerning the Revelstoke townsite, take measures to obtain deeds from the government, and to consider any other questions which may come up in relation to the present and future benefit of the town. All interested in the matter should attend.

Mr. David Woolsey returned from Kootenay Lake Thursday, having procured specimens from about 30 of the best mines of the district, weighing nearly 1500 pounds. These, and others to be got from other parts of the district, will be arranged and forwarded as an exhibit to the exhibition at Toronto.

Mr. Harold Redgrave, who has been filling the responsible positions of Provincial Constable and Mining Recorder since Constable Kirkup was transferred to Sproat, has accepted a transfer to Donald, and left for his new field of duty last Sunday morning. He has performed the functions of office whilst here with much intelligence and satisfaction.

On Friday morning about three o'clock, while the third tea train was crossing the loop-bridge near Maloney's cut, the extreme rear of the train, which was the tender of the pusher, No. 312, suddenly dropped where a span of the bridge had been undermined by the creek. The engineer was unhurt but the fireman A. Iliff, had some ribs broken. The passenger trains were delayed alout 14 hours and the fourth tea-train has been held at Albert Canyon now 20 hours.

Even Johnson is in from his ranch on the North Arm and is agitating the project of a trail connecting the Arm with Trout Lake in Lardeau Pass. He has circulated a subscription list among the business men, and has already got $110 pledged. The Government should be asked to make an appropriation for this trail.

Geo. Laforme came in from McCulloch Creek on Wednesday, and with his pack train started back today. Pierre St Laurent goes back with him. Last Sunday week the Last Chance tunnel had progressed 870 feet, in gravel and sometimes mixed clay and gravel. The shaft house, etc., at the Consolation Co. had been moved from the old and put in place at the new shaft, and work was going on steadily.

The man arrested at Donald as William Gray, admitted to Constable Lendrum that he stole the package of money from the express company and that his real name is Dobie. He had committed an offence on another railroad, which lost him a situation, and he then assumed the name of Gray. He first went to the Soo, and thence to Montreal, but finding himself shadowed by detectives, he bought a ticket to Port Arthur and from there to the coast. He will doubtless go back without a requisition, for the reason that the offence of bringing stolen property into Canada is punishable with a heavier penalty than the stealing of it would incur in Wisconsin.

Mr, F. E. Hobbs, Locomotive Foreman at Donald, has succeeded this week in bringing engine No. 409, or what remained of her, up to the main track, after a three months rest in the mud slide at Mountain Creek. It required four day's work to do it, and the laying of a switch track about four hundred feet down the mountain side. The running gear was found to be in good order, and she was brought out upon her own trucks. Although a dangerous piece of work, not an accident happened, and Mr. Hobbs, as well as the roadmaster, Mr. Newman, may be congratulated upon their success in this difficult job. It will be remembered that Engineer Van Antwerp and Fireman McDougall went down with the engine when the accident occurred, and that the fireman lived only a few hours, whilst Van Antwerp has not yet been able to return to duty.

BIRTH.

THOMSON.—On Monday, the 28th July, at Revelstoke, to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thomson, a son.

At the Glacier.

Messrs. Huber and Sulzer, of the Swiss Alpine Club, did not attempt any other ascents after climbing Sir Donald, but left on Sunday morning for Bear Creek for an exploration up the Beaver valley.

Dr. W. Bell-Campbell and Mrs. Campbell, took dinner at the hotel on Wednesday, whilst on the way to Donald.

Rev, A. Beanlands, of Victoria, accompanied by a venerable but vigorous friend of 70 years, arrived on Wednesday for a couple of days recreation at this mountain resort. They had previously climbed the mountain at Illecillewaet and spent a night in the camp of the Lanark mine, Mr, Beanlands returned to the coast on Friday.

Mr James Ross, one of the contractors of the Regina and Long Lake Railway, is "doing" the Rocky and Selkirk mountains on pleasure and business. His "Pullman" was attached to No, 1 at Banff last Wednesday morning, dropped at Beaver saw mills, picked up by a freight, and side tracked at the Glacier the same evening,

Professor Macoun, Dominion Naturalist, is camped here with his assistants.

A. E. Sutton, Assistant Manager of the hotel, has again been spending a few days fishing at Griffin Lake, near Revelstoke.

Wan Wau Chong, called Charley, fell Wednesday morning from a high window which he was cleaning, and was taken up in a helpless condition.

Last week the Raymond Excursion party of 90 odd persons, from Boston for Alaska, stopped a day at the Glacier, and another similar party is expected to follow in a few days.

A family of Indians with their ponies, squaws and papooses, have planted their tepee near the hotel, and when painted and posed about the place, give a picturesque and aboriginal effect to the scene.

In describing the various attractions of the Glacier Hotel, omission must not be made of its dining room, made inviting and beautified with flowers and ferns by Miss Nellie Harrison and her assistants

SPROAT ITEMS.

To the Editor of the STAR:

We are now enjoying a most delightful rain. It commenced with heavy hail about noon, and has made things cool and pleasant again.

The Kootenai arrived about 11 o'clock this forenoon with a caboose, two flat cars and a big load of steel rails.

A large party of C. P. R. officials arrived on the last trip of the Lytton, including Supt. Marpole, Messrs. Brown, Kerr, and others. Messrs. Brown, Kerr, Dr, Campbell, and another gentleman proceeded to the Little Dalles yesterday morning. I think we may look forward to a large trade being worked up between the C. P. R. at Revelstoke and the Spokane & Northern at Little Dalles.

The Colonist was right. A magnificent townsite is now opened down the Columbia, and when the road is finished to Nelson a trip up the Kootenay river will well pay a lover of fine scenery. Here at the Landing, or I should say about one mile from it, is a splendid water-fall, where Pass Creek falls some two hundred feet. The surroundings are very pretty, and if a trail were cut to it, it would make a favorite resort.

Dave Woolsey and Harry Sharon have just returned from Trail creek, and have brought some very good specimens with them. I saw a washup in a wash basin of about two handsful of decomposed quartz, and the yield was over 30 cents. Some of the ledges carry a large amount of this matter and rich sulphurets.

Phil Aspinwall and Jack Magher of Illecillewaet, have staked three or four claims, and from all reports of experienced men this is likely to be one of the richest finds in B. C. There are about 25 men in at present, and many more going down tomorrow,

V.

Wednesday, Aug. 6.

Mr, Julian Ralph, of Harper's Weekly and Monthly, has just returned from the Kootenay country, his associate, Mr. F. Remington, and wife, having gone east. He found the trip through Arrow Lake to Sproat's Landing most exquisite. The steamer Lytton was in every way complete and swift, while the scenery was grand. The sunset effects all the way were beautiful, and the sight of deer and bear swimming across the lake gave ample evidence of the forest primeval. There was no habitation in a distance of 145 miles, save where wood was cut for the boat. At Sproat's it was possible to see from the barroom into all the twenty rooms of the hotel, owing to its airy construction. He had ridden a considerable distance along a trail to one of the construction camps of the railway, which will be completed ahead of time. There is a locomotive and several flat cars on the line and evident progress is being made, particularly on Keefer's contract. The Kootenay Falls are not only extravagantly beautiful, but, in case of a strong mining impulse being experienced, are capable of supplying more power than the falls of Minneapolis or Spokane. They are almost as magnificent as those of Niagara. The sight of the angry river, said Mr. Ralph, almost makes one doubt the efficacy of Mr. Baillie Grohman's scheme, with all the power of the lake and the seven tributary rivers. On this excursion he had seen for the first time fish which never went to bed, but were ready to take bait all night. They were genuine speckled trout of large size with a red bar on each side.—Colonist.
