THE BROADVIEW.

WHAT THE REVELSTOKE "MAIL-HERALD HAS TO SAY ABOUT IT.

SOME INTERESTING FEATURES AND FIGURES IN CONNECTION WITH THE PROGRESS OF THIS FAMOUS PROPERTY.

"The Broadview mine has been operated since last September by Cincinnati capital.

"About $1 28,000 was spent on th is property in 1896-7 by an English company. In 1897, this company threw up the property, and it lay idle until 1905, when ten of the local men acquired it on a bond of $10000. Of this amount $1,000 was paid down, and before the bond was sold, $2.000 more. On acquiring the bond in November, the new owners began work at once, and during the winter of 1906, with four to six men employed they shipped 329 tons of ore of the average value of $40 a ton. In September 1906, after a very rigid examination, they sold the property to the Cincinati people for $35,000. Since that, the development has been carried on by an average force of twenty men. No ore has been shipped, but last month an examination was made by three engineers, who reported $12,000,000 worth of ore in actual sight, which it would cost about $8,000,000 to treat and market, leaving a net profit in sight for eight months work, of $4,000,000. A working ledge 22½ feet wide was found, which the English people said was no good.

"A concentrator with a capacity of 500 tons of rock has been started, which will give about 90 tons of shipping ore a day. The company do not propose shipping for two years, but intend going ahead with the development.

"The stock, $1,000,000. is held by sixty-eight owners, and is not for sale."

The concentrator spoken of has not yet been started, but we understand will be at an early date.

TIMBER NOT TO BE TAKEN OFF MARKET.

HON. R. G. TATLOW SAYS THE GOVERNMENT HAS ADOPTED NO POLICY FOR RESERVATION OF LIMITS.

Victoria, July 8.—There have been rumors lately that the Government intends taking all the timber off the market owing to the sharp demand for limits; the fact that British Columbia has the best timber on the continent and that speculation in limits is rampant all over this province.

It is held by some, particularly members of the Opposition, that the Government is selling its limits for absurd figures and that what remains should be retained and sold in blocks, at auction.

Hon. Capt. Tatlow, when seen this morning, stated that the Government has adopted no policy so far with reference to such reservation, except in a few instances.

One of these is on the south fork of the Fraser River, westward from Yellowhead Pass, where 125 square miles of timber has been reserved, the Government being informed that it is good and no applications have been made for it.

One or two other small reservations have been made but no general scheme has been considered by the council, according to Tatlow.

Neil O'Donnell resumed work this week on the Winslow property.

A party of Eastern shareholders in the Silver Dollar property were in, this week. J. R. Bottorff, secretary of the company, had them in charge.

A Tribute to Premier McBride.

Mr. Geo. Lawrence, M. L. A. for Killarney Man. in an interview with the Vancouver Province paid a high compliment to British Columbia's Premier. He said:

"Mr. McBride is looked upon with great favor. Mr. Roblin has told me that your Premier's course during the conference of provincial Premiers was the only one for him to take. Had he accepted the ultimatum of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, he would undoubtedly have sacrificed the province's interests, but he fought nobly, and is much admired from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and, personally, I anticipate a great future for Premier McBride."

Miss Betty exhibited not precisely a burning int rest in the adventure of the damsel fair, wandering out of the room during the second rendition, wandering back again and once more away. She had moved about the house in this fashion since early morning, wearing what Mamie described as a "peaked look." White faced and restless, with distressed eyes, to which no sleep had come in the night, she could not read. She could no more than touch her harp. She could not sleep. She could not remain quiet for three minutes together. Often she sank into a chair with an air of languor and weariness, only to start immediately out of it and seek some other part of the house or to go and pace the garden. Here in the air heavy with roses and tremulous with June as she walked rapidly up and down late in the afternoon, at the time when the faraway farm bells were calling men from the fields to supper, the climax of her restlessness came. That anguish and desperation, so old in her sex, the rebellion against the law that inaction must be her part, had fallen upon her for the first time. She came to an abrupt stop and struck her hands together despairingly and spoke aloud.

"What shall I do? What shall I do?"

"Ma'am?" asked a surprised voice just behind her.

She wheeled quickly about to behold a shock headed urchin of ten in the path near the little clearing. He was ragged, tanned, dusty, neither shoes nor coat trammeling his independence, and he had evidently entered the garden through the gap in the hedge.

"I thought you spoke to me," he said inquiringly.

"I didn't see you," she returned. "What is it?"

"You Miss Carewe?" he asked, but before she could answer he said reassuringly: "Why, of course you are! I remember you perfect, now I git the light on you, so to speak. Don't you remember me?"

"No, I don't think I do."

"Lord!" he responded wonderingly. "I was one of the boys with you on them boxes the night of you pa's fire!" Mingled with the surprise in his tone was a respectful unction which intimated how greatly he honored her father for having been the owner of so satisfactory a conflagration.

"Were you? Perhaps I'll remember you if you give me time."

But at this point the youth recalled the fact that he had an errand to discharge, and, assuming an expression of businesslike haste too pressing to permit further parley, sought in his pocket and produced a sealed envelope with which he advanced upon her.

"Here. There's an answer. He told me not to tell anybody who sent it, and not to give it to nobody on earth but you, and how to slip in through the hedge and try and find you in the garden when nobody was lookin', and he give a pencil for you to answer on the back of it, and a dollar."

Miss Betty took the note, glancing once over her shoulder at the house, but Mrs. Tanberry was still occupied with the maiden, and no one was in sight. She read the message hastily:

I have obeyed you and shall always. You have not sent for me. Perhaps that was because there was no time when you thought it safe. Perhaps you have still felt there would be a loss of dignity. Does that weigh with you against goodby? Tell me, if you can, that you have it in your heart to let me go without seeing you once more—without goodby—for the last time. Or was it untrue that you wrote me what you did? Was that dear letter but a little fairy dream of mine? Ah, will you see me again, this once—this once—let me look at you, let me talk with you, hear your voice? The last time!

There was no signature.

Miss Betty quickly wrote a few lines upon the same sheet:

Yes—yes! I must see you—must talk with you before you go. Come at dusk. The garden—near the gap in the hedge. It will be safe for a little while. He will not be here.

She replaced the paper in its envelope, drew a line through her own name on the letter and wrote "Mr. Vanrevel" underneath.

"Do you know the gentleman who sent you?" she asked.

"No'm; but he'll be waitin' at his office, Gray & Vanrevel, on Main street, for the answer."

"Then hurry!" said Betty.

He needed no second bidding, but, with wings on his bare heels, made off through the gap in the hedge. At the corner of the street he encountered an adventure—a gentleman's legs and a heavy hand at the same time. The hand fell on his shoulder, arresting his scamper with a vicious jerk, and the boy was too awed to attempt an escape, for he knew his captor well by sight, although never before had he found himself so directly in the company of Rouen's richest citizen. The note dropped from the small trembling fingers, yet those fingers did not shake as did the man's when, like a flash, Carewe seized upon the missive with his disengaged hand and saw what two names were on the envelope.

"You were stealing, were you?" he cried savagely. "I saw you sneak through my hedge!"

"I didn't either!"

Mr. Carewe ground his teeth. "What were you doing there?"

"Nothing!"

"Nothing!" mocked Carewe. "Nothing! You didn't carry this to the young lady in there and get her answer?"

"No, sir!" answered the captive earnestly. "Cross my heart I didn't. I found it!"

Slowly the corrugations of anger were leveled from the magnate's face, the white heat cooled, and the prisoner marveled to find himself in the presence of an urbane gentleman whose placidity made the scene of a moment ago appear some trick of distorted vision. And yet, curious to behold, Mr. Carewe's fingers shook even more violently than before as he released the boy's shoulder and gave him a friendly tap on the head, at the same time smiling benevolently.

"There, there," he said, bestowing a wink upon the youngster. "It's all right. It doesn't matter; only I think I see the chance of a jest in this. You wait while I read this little note, this message that you found!" He ended by winking again with the friendliest drollery.

He turned his back to the boy and opened the note, continuing to stand in that position while he read the two messages. It struck the messenger that after this there need be no great shame in his own lack of this much vaunted art of reading, since it took so famous a man as Mr. Carewe such length of time to peruse a little note. But perhaps the great gentleman was ill, for it appeared to the boy that he lurched several times, once so far that he would have gone over if he had not saved himself by a lucky stagger. And once, except for the fact that the face that had turned away had worn an expression of such genial humor, the boy would have believed that from it issued a sound like the gnashing of teeth.

But when it was turned to him again it bore the same amiable jocosity of mouth and eye, and nothing seemed to be the matter, except that those fingers still shook so wildly—too wildly, indeed—to restore the note to its envelope.

"There," said Mr. Carewe, "put it back, laddie; put it back yourself. Take it to the gentleman who sent you. I see he's ever disguised his hand a trifle—ha, ha!—and I suppose he may not have expected the young lady to write his name quite so boldly on the envelope! What do you suppose?"

"I d'know," returned the boy. "I reckon I don't hardly understand."

"No, of course not," said Mr. Carewe, laughing rather madly. "Ha, ha, ha! Of course you wouldn't. And how much did he give you?"

"Yay!" cried the other joyously. "Didn't he go and hand me a dollar!"

"How much will you take not to tell him that I stopped you and read it? How much not to speak of me at all?"

"What?"

"It's a foolish kind of joke, nothing more. I'll give you $5 never to tell any one that you saw me today."

"Don't shoot, colonel!" exclaimed the youth, with a riotous fling of bare feet in the air. "I'll come down!"

"You'll do it?"

"Five!" he shouted, dancing upon the boards. "Five! I'll cross my heart to die I never hear tell of you or ever knew they was sich a man in the world!"

Carewe bent over him. "No! Say, 'God strike me dead and condemn me eternally to the everlasting flames of hell if I ever tell!'"

This entailed quick sobriety, though only benevolence was in the face above him. The jig step stopped, and the boy pondered, frightened.

"Have I got to say that?"

Mr. Carewe produced a bank bill about which the boy beheld a halo. Clearly this was his day. Heaven showed its approval of his conduct by an outpouring of imperishable riches. And yet the oath misliked him. There was a savor of the demoniacal contract. Still that was to be borne and the plunge taken, for there fluttered the huge sum before his dazzled eyes. He took a deep breath. "'God strike me dead,'" he began slowly, "'if I ever'"—

"No. 'And condemn me to the everlasting flames of hell'"—

"Have I got to?"

"Yes."

"'And condemn me to—to the everlasting flames of—of hell if I ever tell!'"

He ran off, pale with the fear that he might grow up, take to drink and some day tell in his cups, but so resolved not to coquet with temptation that he went round a block to avoid the door of the Rouen House bar. Nevertheless the note was in his hand and the fortune in his pocket.

And Mr. Carewe was safe. He knew that the boy would never tell, and he knew another thing, for he had read the Journal, though it came no more to his house—he knew that Tom Vanrevel wore his uniform that evening and that, even in the dusk, the brass buttons on an officer's breast make a good mark for a gun steadied along the ledge of a window. As he entered the gates and went toward the house he glanced up at the window which overlooked his garden from the cupola.

CHAPTER XVIII.

CRAILEY was not the only man in Rouen who had been saying to himself all day that each accustomed thing he did was done for the last time. Many of his comrades went about with "Farewell, old friend," in their hearts, not only for the people, but for the usual things of life and the actions of habit, now become unexpectedly dear and sweet to know or to perform. So Tom Vanrevel, relieved of his hot uniform, loose as to collar, wearing a big dressing gown and stretched in a chair, watched the sunset from the western window of the dusty office, where he had dreamed through many sunsets in summers past, and now took his leave of this old habit of his in silence, with a long cigar, considering the chances largely against his ever seeing the sun go down behind the long wooden bridge at the foot of Main street again.

The ruins of the warehouses had been removed, and the river was laid clear to his sight. It ran between brown banks like a river of rubies, and at the wharf the small evening steamboat, ugly and grim enough to behold from near by, lay pink and lovely in that hour's glow, tooting imminent departure, although an hour might elapse before it would back into the current.

The sun widened, clung briefly to the horizon and dropped behind the low hills beyond the bottom lands; the stream grew purple, then took on a luster of pearl as the stars came out, while rosy distances changed to misty blue; the chatter of the birds in the Main street maples became quieter and, through lessening little choruses of twittering, fell gradually to silence. And now the blue dusk crept on the town, and the corner drug store window lights threw mottled colors on the pavement. From the hall, outside the closed office door, came the sound of quick, light footsteps. It was Crai-

It was the vain Mamie.

ley going out, but Tom only sighed to himself and did not hail him. So these light footsteps of Crailey Gray echoed but a moment in the stairway and were heard no more.

PIGS AS FASTERS.

The Wonderful Ability of Swine to Live Without Food.

Very few people have any idea of how long swine can live without food, although much has been said about the quantity they can consume. But, believe me, piggie is a record breaker when it comes to living without anything at all to eat.

The incident that I am about to relate occurred in Michigan and very well illustrates what I have above stated.

A farmer who had driven a large number of hogs into a settlement to sell after reaching his destination missed a fine black sow. Search was made in every conceivable place without discovering anything of the missing porker.

Weeks passed by, and the farmer had given up all hope of ever recovering his lost or stolen property when to his surprise it was found in the cellar of an old abandoned house.

As the house was situated at the edge of the road over which he had driven the hogs, it is supposed that she fell through the rotten flooring upon which she had stepped at some moment when the farmer's eyes had wandered in another direction.

When brought up she was a pitiable sight. The skin hung in folds upon her poor, unpadded bones.

Food was given her in small quantities at first, and it was not long berore she entirely recovered from her long fast.

On referring to the books recording the sale of the rest of the stock it was learned that three months lacking five days had elapsed, showing that she had sustained life without nourishment for as long a period as the accredited hibernating animals.

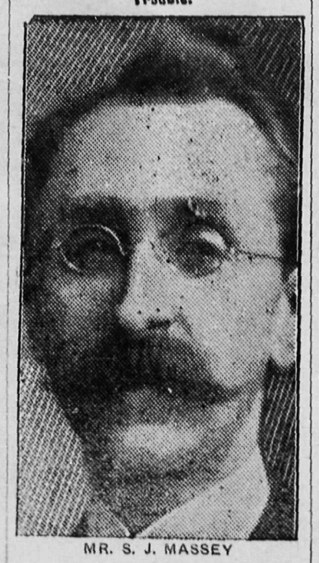
STOMACH INDIGESTION

Pe-ru-na Strikes at the Root of the Trouble.



MR. S. J. MASSEY

Mr. S. J. Massey, formerly a resident of Toronto, and a well known business man, writes from 247 Guy street, Montreal, Quebec:

"I wish to testify to the good results I have derived from the use of Peruna.

"Having been troubled for several years with catarrh of the head, I decided to give Peruna a fair trial, and I can truly say I have received great benefit from its use.

"It evidently strikes at the very root of the trouble and good results are soon noticeable.

"I have also found Peruna a very valuable remedy for stomach trouble and indigestion.

"I have no hesitancy whatever in recommending Peruna as a reliable catarrh remedy."

There are several kinds of indigestion.

The trouble may be due to sluggishness of the liver, derangements of the bowels, enlargement of the pancreas, or it may be due to the stomach itself.

In nearly all cases of stomach indigestion catarrh is the cause. The only permanent cure is to remove the catarrh.

Peruna has become well known the world over as a remedy in such cases.

HOW TO SOW FLAX

Flax seed may be sown from the wheat sowing season on until the middle of June. All things considered, May is the best month in which to sow. A well-worked and fine seed bed should be made by using disk and harrow and sometimes roller also. Not making a seed bed is one of the commonest mistakes of flax growers. The seed is best sown usually with a press drill and to the depth of 1 1-2 to 2 1-2 inches ordinarily, according to the nature of the land. About three pecks of seed per acre are enough, a larger quantity being sown on worn land than on land in good condition.

INDIGESTION CURED

By Dr. Williams' Pink Pills After Six Doctors Had Failed to be of Benefit

That gnawing pain in the stomach, sometimes shooting up into the chest, often producing a choking sensation in the throat; fierce pains around the heart; a feeling of drowsiness and a distaste for food—that's indigestion. Its victims are numbered by the thousands. To them life is a burden. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done more towards relieving this suffering than any other medicine. Often they have cured after all other help had failed, as in the case of Mr. Willis Herman, of St. Catharines, Ont., who says: "I had been afflicted with indigestion and stomach trouble for years. At times my suffering was almost indescribable. Sometimes for whole days I was unable to touch food. I dieted and at different times was treated by six doctors but they did not help me; I only grew worse. For a time I was living in New York and while there consulted a specialist but he was unable to give me any relief. I then decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and in less than a month I felt some relief. I continued their use for a couple of months longer and gained in weight; my appetite improved; the pains left me and I now feel better than I have at any time during the past twenty-five years. I will always gladly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to other sufferers believing that they will surely do for others what they have done for me."

When you use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a blood builder and nerve tonic you are not experimenting—they have been tried and proved successful in thousands of cases. It is their power to actually make new, rich, red blood that enables them to cure such troubles as anaemia, indigestion, rheumatism, kidney trouble, St. Vitus dance, partial paralysis and those special ailments of girlhood and womanhood that causes so much misery. For sale by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

An Odd Will.

In the will of Isaiah Thomas of Worcester, Mass., drawn up in 1820, he gave to the town certain tracts of land, but stipulated that the town would have to buy drinks for the poor people of Worcester every Thanksgiving day. This stipulation, however, was omitted in a codicil.

FLY FISHING.

The Expert Angler Explains Why It Is a Humane Sport.

"Well," said Chichester, "if it comes to suffering I doubt whether the fish are conscious of any such thing as we means by it. But even if they are they suffer twice as much and a thousand times as long shut up in this hot, nasty pool as they would in being caught in proper style."

"But think of the hook!"

"Hurts about as much as a pin prick."

"But think of the fearful struggle and the long, gasping agony on the shore!"

"There's no fear in the struggle. It's just a trial of strength and skill, like a game of football. A fish isn't afraid of death, he doesn't know anything about it. And there is no gasping on the shore, but a quick rap on the head with a stick, and it's all over."

"But why should he be killed at all?"

"Well," said he, smiling, "there are reasons of taste. You eat salmon, don't you?"

"Ye-e-es," she answered a little doubtfully, then with more assurance, "but remember what Wilbur Short says in that lonely chapter on 'Communion With the Catfish'—I want them brought to the table in the simplest and most painless way."

"And that is angling with the fly," said he, still more decidedly. "The fly is not swallowed like a bait. It sticks in the skin of the lip, where there is least feeling. There is no torture in the play of a salmon. It's just a fair fight with an unknown opponent. Compare it with the other ways of bringing a fish to the table. If he's caught in a net, he hangs there for hours, slowly strangled. If he's speared, half the time the spear slips, and he struggles off badly wounded, and if the spear goes through him he is flung out on the bank to bleed to death. Even if he escapes he is sure to come to a pitiful end some day—perish by starvation when he gets too old to catch his food or be torn to pieces by a seal, an otter or a fish-hawk. Fly fishing really offers him"—

"Never mind that," said Ethel. "What does it offer you?"

"A gentleman's sport, I suppose," he answered rather slowly.—Henry van Dyke in Scribner's.

TREATING OATS FOR SMUT.

How to Make Smutty Seed Produce a Clean Crop.

Along with the increased interest which is being manifested in scientific corn culture and the proper saving and testing of seed greater attention is also being given to the matter of the treatment of the different grain seeds, with a view of checking the damage of various fungous diseases. The loss from smut alone has increased greatly in recent years and is widespread, the per cent. of loss running from 5 to 39 per cent. Treatment with formalin solution is entirely effective in preventing this loss, and the treatment of the seed is not difficult. Within the past year several good machines have been put on the market at about $35, which will treat any kind of small grain effectually at the rate of 100 bushels per day. Such a machine could be bought on shares by several neighbors, so that the individual expense would not be large. Where such an arrangement is not practical a simple and inexpensive yet effective method is to fill a vinegar or kerosene barrel two-thirds full of water, add a pint of 40 per cent. formalin (obtainable at any drug store), put oats in a gunny sack, immerse till wet through, take out, allow to drain back into barrel and then spread on granary or barn floor. This treatment should be given about 24 hours before sowing. Smutty seed treated in the above manner will produce a perfectly smut clean crop and will result in increasing the yield from six to eighteen bushels per acre.

Broken the Record.

In a 60-day test, a Holstein-Friesan cow, owned by W. J. Gillett, of Foud du Lac, Wis., has broken the world's butter record by 40 lbs. The official test shows 5326.1 lbs. of milk and 260.5 lbs. of butter.

The test was continued 64 days, during which period every milking was watched, the quantity of milk weighed and samples taken and tested. The phenomenal yield was such that two separate tests were ordered—the first of 24 hours and the second 48 hours—during which time additional representatives were sent from the experiment station.

The cow was under constant supervision day and night. The best day in milk was 106 lbs. The best day in butter 5.74 lbs.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpe

"I could not have believed that any medicine could do me so much good," writes this lady, whose cold was so bad her friends feared for her life.

Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shortreed, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, which cured me of a cold which a friend said would soon put me in my grave. I had not slept for three nights and would cough until I almost strangled to death. The very first night it eased the cough, and instead of coughing and irritating my throat and lungs I had a good night's rest. If I had not had the experience myself I could not have believed that any medicine could do so much good as this has done me."

Oh, innocent bystander, gaze at the auto!
This is your glorious time of the year.
Look at the auto, the fast whizzing auto.
Why do you tremble? You've nothing to fear!
Stand and admire;
Look at the tire;
Notice the spark plug, the wonderful gear;
Gaze if you will;
The thing's standing still.
Be not alarmed! There's nothing to fear!

Gaze at the auto, the wonderful auto,
Here in a place that from danger is free.
Harmless the auto, the gasoline auto.
Yes, sir; the armory's safe as can be.
Stand and behold
The cooler so cold.
This is a two cycle engine, you see.
Be not alarmed;
You cannot be harmed.
The engine's not going. You're as safe as can be.

Bystanders, hurry; come look at the auto.
Here is a chance to see what it is.
When it's in action you get but an odor;
If it goes by you it goes with a whiz.
Come; stand and admire;
Examine the tire;
Look at the auto and see what it is.
Look at the gear;
You've nothing to fear.

"Years ago I was almost a physical wreck and was suffering with lung trouble. Friends and neighbors thought I would never get better. I began to despair myself. Losing faith in my physician, I procured another one who recommended the use of PSYCHINE. It was surprising beyond description the effect it had. I seemed to gain with every dose. Inside of two weeks I was able to attend to my housework again. There are no symptoms of consumption about me now.

Do Not Delay.—When, through debilitated digestive organs, poison finds its way into the blood, the prime consideration is to get the poison out as rapidly as possible. Delay may mean disaster. Not a Crime.

It has been solemnly and officially decided by a New York court that it is not a crime to hug a girl on the front steps.

Thousands of young people who live far past such things will be pleased to hear the news, although it will take away a part of the pleasure to know that the law of the land is not in any way being fractured.

Of course no refined young lady would like to have the multitude standing around as witnesses, but in a place like New York, where the vine covered cots in which all experts agree hugging should be done are not plentiful, she must choose between hugging with possible publicity or none at all.

We are inclined to think that the policeman who did the arresting was jealous. Surely an officer whose heart was in the right place would have been busy looking the other way.

SUFFERING BABIES

Mothers can find sure relief for their suffering little ones in Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets are a gentle laxative that do not gripe the little one, and cure all the minor ills of babies and young children. They are pleasant to take, prompt in their action, and, unlike "soothing stuffs," never do harm, and the mother has the guarantee of a Government analyst that they contain no drugs harmful to even the youngest baby. Thousands of mothers give their little ones nothing else but Baby Own Tablets when constipation, stomach trouble, indigestion, colds or worms bother the baby, or when the dreaded teething time comes. Mrs. Jos. Merlo, Pleissville, Que., says: "My baby was a great sufferer from constipation. Thanks to Baby's Own Tablets the trouble has disappeared." "I came"— began the stranger taking off his coat and rolling up his sleeves.

"What?" thundered Harker. "You didn't come in here to start anything, did you?"

"I did," replied the stranger coolly. "I"—

But he got no further. With a savage whoop Harker grabbed the intruder around the waist and deposited him on the sidewalk. Two hours later his wife returned.

"William," she said, "was there any one here during my absence?"

"Yes," snorted Harker; "there was some lunatic here who said he came to start something, but I just bundled him out on the sidewalk before he had time to make a move."

Persian Rugs.

"Antique Persian rugs," said the rug salesman, "are dyed with vegetable dyes; the new ones are dyed with aniline dyes. There's a great difference. Vegetable dyes are fifty or sixty times more expensive than anilines, and they give a color that is literally imperishable, a color that keeps growing richer and richer till the rug falls to pieces. Anilines, made out of coal tar, look well enough at first, but they fade. When a vegetable red or blue would be at its best an aniline red or blue would be nearly white. We civilized people harmed the Chinese by introducing our cheap opium among them, and now we have equally harmed the Persian rug by introducing our cheap anilines among the rug weavers."

A Small Flock of Sheep.

It is surprising how few farmers keep sheep. If they knew how little it costs to maintain a small flock, almost every general farmer would have one. Further than this, a small flock always supplies wool, which can be sold at a time when there is little ready money coming in. This income is exceedingly convenient and should always be considered. Wool and mutton can be produced at almost no cost and with very little trouble. With most farmers it is simply a matter of getting started. Begin with eight or ten sheep, and if the farm is small do not let the flock exceed thirty. One of this size can be easily maintained and will bring in more ready money and be a source of greater satisfaction than any live stock that can be kept.—Orange Judd Farmer.

What Tuberculin Is.

Tuberculin is the result of many experiments to obtain a curative antitoxin, or serum, for tuberculosis. It is a product of the growth of the tubercle organism in artificial cultures, but it is a perfectly harmless product when properly used. It will neither cure nor cause the disease to spread in an affected animal; neither will it injure a healthy one in any way. In skilled hands it is almost infallible, and with ordinary judgment the errors are only a few per cent. In Pennsylvania 4,000 animals that had given characteristic reactions were slaughtered and examined, and the presence of the disease was demonstarted in all but eight.—Farming.

Return of Romance.

The motor car, says Edith Wharton, has restored the romance of traveling.

We should say yes. What can be more romantic than to see an undersized man in great goggles and a leather coat whose hands have never been soiled by anything but perfumed ink slowly pushing a touring car through the sand to the nearest repair shop while the golden glow of the glorious sunset is tingeing the treetops, bringing out their gorgeous autumn tints in a picture that no artist could reproduce, while a sweet 200 pound lady sits complacently in the car and wonders if the neighboring farmhouse would produce an evening meal of chicken and pumpkin pie in exchange for coin of the realm!

Or, if that isn't romantic enough to suit the most exacting, we might turn to the picture of a pair of legs waving in the air while the owner was down under the machine busy regretting that he had not learned to swear in youth. Oh, there is plenty of romance if one just goes about it right.

Don't wait for anybody. If there's waiting to be done, let the other fellow do it.

Lots of people just seem to worry to give an air of importance to their personality.

Besides himself there's only one other created thing that is in love with a man, and that's some woman.

All most men need to show people is just to be a few years younger.

There's always somebody to be surprised when anybody gets married.

If you don't look after your business, it doesn't take you long to get the short end of it.

Some people like to play the fool if they can be stage manager and star performer to a picked audience.

When you get six weeks behind, don't try to catch even. Just jump accounts with Father Time and tell him you are square.

Rest at Last.

Morrell—It is true, as has been said, that we do not appreciate our blessings until they take their flight.

Popley—Of course. They keep up such a racket during the day that we enjoy them most when the nurse has tucked them in their little beds.—Philadelphia Press.

A World of Dangers.

"Spirituous beverages," says Mrs. Cumrox, "have wrecked many happy dispositions."

"Yes," answered her husband, "and so have salad, ice cream and coffee taken after 10 o'clock at night."—Washington Star.

Mrs. Newed—The cook is an impudent thing, so she is!

Battle With Hawk.

After a desperate battle, in which he narrowly escaped losing his eyesight, Jacob C. Smith, an old farmer whose home is in North Babylon, succeeded in killing a large and hunger-crazed chicken hawk, which chased his chickens into the chicken house and then followed them in to feast upon them at leisure. Time and again the feathered marauder flew at the eyes of Smith, who had hurried into the chicken house to save his pets and closed the door after him to prevent the hawk flying out and escaping. It was only by covering his face and eyes with his arms and letting the beak and talons of the infuriated bird sink into his forearm and hands that the doughty old farmer saved his sight and killed the hawk. It was measured the other day. The stretch of its wings from tip to tip was three feet. Its beak and talons were long and almost as hard as steel.

Disproportionate.

"See here," cried the cat, "are you really determined to drown me?"

"I am," replied the man. "You killed our canary, and I believe in 'a life for a life.'"

"But you're bent upon taking nine lives for a life."—Catholic Standard and Times.

THE REVERSE

"Did I understand you to say that my appearance has improved?

"No; I said you looked more like yourself."—Life.

TROUT LAKE CITY

THERE have been fortunes made by judicious investment in Real Estate, and more fortunes will be made than ever the next two or three years. The one who reaps the harvest is the original investor, for he has his money on a certainty.

Now let us point out to you that there is no better spot on the Continent to buy Real Estate than TROUT LAKE.

Trout Lake is the prettiest spot in the Kootenays; as a pleasure resort it has no equal. Boating and fishing may be indulged in the year round; while big game in abundance is to the found on the hills. Its climate is superb, there being no great extremes, it being mild in winter and cool in summer. It can boast of some of the finest hotels and residences in British Columbia. Its streets are well laid out and graded. There are two excellent general stores, and a glance at the advertisements in this journal will show that all trades are fairly well represented. Write with confidence to Agents.

IT has never had a "boom"—its growth has been steady. It is the head of navigation, and the terminal of the Lardo branch of the C.P.R. All roads (in the Lardeau) lead to Trout Lake. It is the commercial centre of the richest mineral district on the continent, and has banking facilities provided by the Imperial Bank of Canada; first class school accommodation under the direction of S. Shannon, B.A.; a good water system; government offices; County Court sittings; Methodist Episcopal and Anglican churches and cottage hospital.

There are valuable ranch lands on the outskirts awaiting settlers. Its lumber resources are magnificent, and a band saw mill with a capacity of 60,000 ft. per day is at the head of the lake. The mines tributary are proving out bigger producers every year, with new prospects opening up rich bodies of ore.

There will be a big rush this year, so if you would know more, write at once to either of the agents at the addresses below.
