POLITICAL MEETING

Premier McBride, W. J. Bowser, Thos. Taylor and W. W. Lefeaux Address a Large Throng on Politics

A large gathering of citizens of all political factions filled the Opera House on Thursday night to hear the Premier and others in speeches on the political situation. During the preliminary pauses at the beginning of the meeting, Messrs. Doyle and Veith rendered musical selections. The Premier and Mr. Bowser were heartily cheered as they appeared on the platform and were accompanied by Thos. Taylor, M. P. P., and W. W. Lefeaux Chas. Holten took the chair and opened the proceedings.

Thomas Taylor on being called upon to speak, said that he was much gratified in being once more allowed to represent the riding in the forthcoming elections and thanked the electors for the honor given to him. He had had seven years responsibility in parliamentary work and had confidence of a unanimous election. He reviewed the past work of the McBride government in the province in bringing it up to a far higher standpoint financially than ever attained before and the government felt it in duty bound to make it the banner province of the Dominion and the best colony of the British Empire. He said that some people had denounced the McBride party and he asked the audience to give close attention te the Premier and they would plainly see how the province had prospered in spite the opposition of the Liberals. He discussed the energy of the Premier in visiting the province throughout and reviewed its assets in minerals, timber and fruit growing soils, also the necessity of more adequate transportation. He said that the Lardeau needed close attention as well as the Revelstoke district, and now that the province was in a fair way to prosperity, the public works department would be liberal in its dealings and also that capital was getting more and more settled in the province. He discussed the river bank question and said that the chief engineer reported that the protection works will be begun at once. He said that some people thought that the prosperity of B. C. was due to the Liberal government at Ottawa, but this was quite wrong, it being entirely due to the McBride administration that all the industries were in such a stable condition. He discussed the mining laws and said that the American government had copied the B. C. Mining Act in framing their laws of mines. He thanked the audience for nominating him and said he was a staunch supporter of the McBride government, which had redeemed British Columbia from the drifting process.

W. W. Lefeaux, who on rising had a hearty reception, said that socialism was an international question and contained revolutionary matter that was in direct opposition to the course adopted by either government. He said that he did not wish to criticize Mr. Taylor, but what the workingmen supposed were facts, were not so at all. He said that God made the earth but had given the deeds to no one and the earth belongs to all, he referred to the commodities of life and said that profits on such should not be taken by those who have'nt worked for them; if they want luxuries then let men work for them themselves. He referred to the difference between rich and poor and said that if a man creates nothing he should have nothing and that it was only right that a man should receive the full value of his labor. He questioned whether the governments had done anything to remedy the evil, and also why armies and men should be made to fight and suffer simply because a few men had differences over matters that would make no material difference either way to the individual fighters themselves. He did'nt expect to bring in millennium, but said that the present system of government does'nt meet the case. Dividends were the result of labor, but the laborers got nothing out of them. He declared that the government must pack their blankets if they could not give what was just. In conclusion he said that he felt no anxiety for the future of socialism.

W. J. Bowser commenced his speech by complaining of the cold weather while travelling in the Kootenays. In reviewing the present situation he said it was his duty to justify Mr. McBride's actions and the duty of a public man to discuss public affairs and ask fair criticism if he expects to stand or fall in the campaign. He appealed as an honest man to the Liberals, but they had declined to meet the Premier and himself on the public platform. He referred to the socialists, but did not agree with them. He referred to the increase in the finances of the province and said that even if taxes were raised it was done for beneficial causes. The government would'nt continue to raise the taxes, but since the country needed money to develop it, it was to the interests of the people to undergo the taxation. Revelstoke would receive her share of what was just and fair according to the state of the finances. He said that the government was not tied up to corporations and had even taxed the C.P.R. 50 per cent. higher. He discussed the Columbia Railroad from Trail to Penticton, saying that the railroad had done as the government demanded and had paid dues a section in advance, and that the government had given them time to extend the line to Christina Lake, and how could the country say that government was bound by the C.P.R. The Kaien Island deal was then fully explained and he said that it was a business deal and had even been approved of by many liberals and the liberal press. The Liberal party had accused the McBride government for dealing with adventurers although there was no evidence to show it. He said that the Kain Island report was true and that the government had forced the G. T. P. railway to construct early the line from the west coast. The province as a whole were partners in the bargain and the boom when it comes.

He regretted that no Liberals were present to criticize him and referred to the remarks and comments in the grit papers, as saying that the deal was better than had been expected. He referred to the manifesto by the McDonald party who had promised to establish a bureau of labor and information. He defied the Liberals to say that the Socialists had influenced the government and said also that McInnes would do anything to carry favor. He asked why had McInnes given up $12,000 a year for $800, that is if he was elected. and why Judge Henderson had resigned the bench.

He reviewed the Labor and Natal Act, saying that the Liberals objected to the exclusion from voting of Japs and black naturalized British subjects. He touched upon the request of the G. T. P. railway for taxation exemption and concluded his speech by an appeal to the electors of the riding to support the government.

Premier McBride, who was received with much cheering on rising, said he felt assured that the riding would return Mr. Taylor to parliament and reviewed the work of the government during their past term. He said that the issue of the campaign should not be considered as only a partizan affair but as what was best for the province and he showed what the present government had done for the lumber industry, mines and soil in B. C. He knew the wants of different communities and their high mindedness in saying that commerce was good and never better, and the people were not slow to note that the government were responsible for it and he appealed to all to use impartial judgment. It was patriotism that called men to parliament and he felt that his supporters were loyal patriots. He reviewed the province before his government came into power and said that capital was shy, but that now in 1907 this would be the banner year.

In touching on better terms, he said he had not intended to make it a party issue, but he must follow his course and justify his stand. The convention of premiers at Ottawa was called only after Dunsmuir and Prior had appealed to Ottawa for better terms, and at that convention the Quebec Resolution was used which meant that subsidies to provinces should be increased respectively. Still B. C. demanded a special treatment owing to her permanent physical conditions. The special treatment proposed by the convention, only meant that B. C. would get just a trifle more than the general provincial subsidies and taking Prince Edwards Island, which is 165 times smaller than B. C, it meant that B. C. would only get $30,000 more than Prince Edward Island. Since he could'nt get his rights he had no further need of discussion and retired. He had behind him many friends and had done his best for British Columbia. B. C. pays into the Dominion treasury

FIRE IN THE CITY

The Caley House Suffers from Overheated Flues.

An alarm was turned in to No. 2 Fire Hall from Box No. 9 about half-past three on Thursday afternoon and the brigade promptly responded to the call and hurried to the scene of the outbreak. Smoke was seen pouring from the windows and curling up round the crevices and joints of the lower walls of R. Caley's City Hotel annex on First street. Entrance was effected through the upper windows and the contents of all the rooms were collected and thrown outside. The fire was discovered in the cellar near the furnace which had just been replenished by a Chinaman, and the flues getting red hot ignited the woodwork and joists and had got a good hold when the brigade arrived. A good supply of water well directed through several apertures extinguished the flames, the damage being confined to the cellar only. The close proximity of several other residences had a wind been blowing rendered the possibility of a serious conflagration.

CITY COUNCIL.

The regular meeting of the city council was held last night, it being the final session of the present civic board for the municipal year. Mayor McLeod and Ald. Abrahamson, Howson, Trimble and Palmer were present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. Very little business came up before the council there being no communications of any importance. A letter from A. Hutchison, Ontario, was received stating his acceptance of the position as night operator at the power house at a salary of $80 per month.

The question of city lighting was discussed and the best methods of having the whole city lit simultaneously instead of in sections. A resolution was passed requesting G. Lembke to report on the best methods of making satisfactory light currents throughout the city.

Touching on the sewerage question the total cost including three septic tanks and the necessary piping and labor would be approximately $81,000. On bringing the meeting to a close the mayor thanked the aldermen for their kindness and able assistance. He said that as a council they had always been fair minded; the attendance had been good and keen interest in all civic matters had been evinced and he hoped that the next council would have a successful year. He thanked H. Floyd for his able assistance as city clerk and referred to him as a man who has always the city's interests at heart. He announced his intention of running again for mayor but knew that his friend H. A. Brown would give him a contest this year. In concluding he complimented the council on their harmonious and, at the same time, individually strong action over the important subjects of the city's administration and exhorted them to attend the meeting on Saturday night and give an account of their stewardship. The aldermen each made a suitable reply, stating also their intention of contesting again, all following in the strain that the council had worked well and with harmony and forbearance. The meeting then terminated.

KNOX CHURCH

Annual Congregational Meeting

The second annual meeting of Knox Church congregation was held in the church on Wednesday night, when reports were presented from the different departments of the church, namely, the Session, Sunday School, Ladies' Auxiliary, Young People's Guild and Board of Managers. The reports all showed the church to be in a healtny and progressive condition, the work during the past year of the Ladies' Auxiliary being especially gratifying and calling forth the hearty thanks of the congregation. The report from the Session showed that the congregation had increased to about double what it was a year ago. In presenting this report on behalf of the Session the pastor, Rev. J. R. Robertson, gave a very encouraging and helpful address reviewing the work of the church during the past year, incidentally thanking the managing board for the promptness with which the pastor's salary had been paid, and thanking the members of the congregation for the many kindnesses shown during the year to himself and family. The managers' report was good, showing a substantial balance on hand after meeting all liabilities.

It was decided to increase the number of managers from six to ten, and the following were elected to fill the vacancies on the board: J. P. McLennan, R. H. Urquhart, B. A. Lawson, J. Murker, D. Nairn, D. M. Rae; the other members of the board being, W. M. Lawrence, G. M. Clark, T. A. Lewis and J. T. Telfer. B. A. Lawson was appointed superintendent of the Sunday School.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS.

The freedom of the press does not mean that any man has a right to publish in any newspaper he may select anything that he may choose to write. The editor and the proprietor have something to say about it. They have freedom to say what they shall and what they shall not publish and when it shall be published. The newspaper is not a hoarding upon which any man can post up what he chooses, but a business enterprise which those controlling it endeavor to employ to the best advantage to themselves and to the public. Every day many excellent things are offered for publication; every day editorial articles are written and destroyed; every day hard work is done and discarded and every now and then a general sweep must be made of the editorial desk of excellent clippings that have been preserved in the hope that they can be published. Yet there are people who think that the whole routine of a newspaper must be asserted in order to permit them to say something of no importance to anyone but themselves or to save themselves the expense of a two cent stamp, and to send what they have to say to some particular individual.

MUNICIPAL CAMPAIGN.

The first act in the civic election drama will commence on Monday, when the nominations for mayor and aldermen will take place, and the uncertainty as to the number and personnel of the candidates will be cleared away. Even up till now civic affairs in connection with the fight for the aldermanic chairs have been somewhat slow in unfolding themselves. Although few citizens have really stated publicly their intentions of coming forward as candidates for aldermanic honors, it is improbable that there will be any shortage of office seekers. It would be not out of the way to state that the interest in municipal affairs has taken second place to that of provincial elections and when it is remembered how important has the issue of the annual civic contest become in Revelstoke and what depends on the judgment and business ability of the men who are elected on the municipal board, it will immediately be seen why the interest in city government, which acts directly on ourselves and our homes and the welfare of the Revelstoke community as a whole, should be taken up before anything else in spite of the needs and calls of the representatives of the respective parties in the provincial elections now so close at hand.

Two citizens have been mentioned as likely candidates this year and have signified their intention of running for aldermen. One is G. Knapp, a popular member of the fire brigade and R. H. Sawyer, who has been responsible for the close organization of the Independent Band. The former will run for Ward one and the latter for Ward two. F. Lewis has decided to offer himtelf again, and having had much experience in aldermanic work in past years, will no doubt receive a popular vote. Ward three has been slow in bringing out a man and the contest in that direction will be between J. Abrahamson and W. D. Law. R. Howson and E. Trimble have given it to be understood that they will again seek election.

Regarding the contest for the mayoralty, H. A. Brown and the present mayor, J. McLeod, are the only candidates who have publicly signified their intention of offering themselves. No doubt at the public meeting tonight we shall hear from others who desire to head the municipal board. Communities get the kind of government they deserve, if we deliberately put our civic business which touches our lives, homes and prosperity at many points, into hands that have not the strength to administer it however willing they may be we ourselves will induce misgovernment and are entirely responsible for it when it comes. There are some perhaps, but their number is few, who prefer amicable mediocrity to aggressive efficiency as a qualication for position as mayor. The plain citizen who is really interested in civic affairs and keeps his mind open, knows well that the municipal election this coming week is an opportunity to serve the community by voting for the best man. The ratepayers know that they need the best ability and businesslike mind that can be obtained at the city hall in the present state of affairs in Revelstoke, which as a city is growing so fast. The plain citizen's name is legion and he is found in every district in this city and in every walk in life. After he has spoken tonight, those who dreamed of building up a civic machine will recognise, after all, the real power is in the hands of the man who cast the ballot.

POLITICAL MEETING.

$20,000,000, more than she takes out. He said that better terms must be agitated not as a party affair but as wholly provincial. He reviewed the Kaien Island bargain, fully explaining with maps the extent of the land which he had gained for the province and saying that the government had acted in a businesslike way and refused to accept the G. T. P. railway's terms, thereby preventing them from owning all the north country. There had been no intermediate work done but the money had been paid first hand and the province was richer by several thousands of acres and its dues. In referring to the Columbian Western deal, he did'nt encourage paper railways, but the C. W. railroad had done a lot for the province. Regarding the Midway Vernon railroad, he produced letters from J. J. Hill and from Mr. Arthur to J. J. Hill re the negotiations for railroads and B. C. grants. He said that Hill refused to have any dealings with them. How can the grits say that he (Premier) was a C. P. R. man even if he had refused to help out the Midway & Vernon. He pointed out that the G. T. P. are taking an active part in the campaign and wanted to put out the present government for their own ends. In touching on the Columbian Western railroad he repeated what Mr. Bowser had said and concluded his speech exhorting the Revelstoke electors to remember British Columbia's splendid progress and not bring it to a stand still. On being questioned on the civil service he said that the government intends to put it on a better and sounder footing but that economy was necessary.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem. The Premier and Mr. Bowser left for Arrownead and Nelson the same night.

Election Notice!

To the Ratepayers of the City of Revelstoke:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—At the request of a large number of citizens, I have decided to offer myself as a candidate for Mayor at the election.

I have to thank you for the many expressions of appreciation of my efforts on your behalf, when I had the honor of representing you before in this office, and assure you, if you should again honor me, I will give the same care and attention to your interests.

There are several matters of vital importance to the city's welfare now pending, which I hope to have the opportunity of discussing with you in public before the election.

Respectfully yours,
H. A. BROWN.

Election Notice

To the Municipal Electors of No. One Ward, City of Revelstoke.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—

Having been solicited by a large number of electors of Ward No. 1, to offer myself for election as alderman of that ward. I have consented to accept and respectfully request your vote and influence. If elected I shall at all times consider it my duty to give my careful attention to all matters pertaining to the advancement and welfare of the city.

Yours obediently,
GEO. KNAPP.

Election Notice!

To the Municipal Electors of No. 2 Ward, City of Revelstoke.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—I have to intimate that, at the request of numerous ratepayers, I am in the field as candidate for alderman for No 2 Ward, and beg to request the favor of your support on my behalf at the poll on Thursday, Jan. 17th. If returned I can assure you it will be my endeavor to advance the best interests of the city.

Your obedient servant,
R. H. SAWYER.

To the Municipal Electors OF THE CITY OF REVELSTOKE

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I have the honor of again offering myself as a candidate for the important office of Mayor for this city.

During my term of office now expiring the growth of our city has necessitated considerable expenditure to provide street and sidewalk accommodation for those parts of the city which are being built up and settled in. Considerable expense was also entailed in repairing and strengthening the dam on the Illecillewaet river. This work was carried out according to specifications by Col. Tracey and was completed at about the original estimate of cost for it, although during the progress of the work it was discovered that more repairs were necessary than were at first contemplated.

These expensive works have been a severe tax on the annual current revenue of the city; in fact they are more than should have been financed in that manner, but the work was urgent and had to be carried out under any circumstances.

During the past year the rate for electric light has been so reduced as to be but very little more than is now charged in the city of Vancouver. Notwithstanding this, the growth of the city has been such that the revenue from the water and light department has been 30 per cen more than last year. t

Recognising the importance of a sewerage system for the city, the council has during the past year had preliminary surveys made, and this matter is now in such a shape that the incoming council can proceed with the whole or any part of it without delay.

Additional reservoirs are needed for water storage; and if re-elected I will give this matter my serious attention.

The question of the supply of electric power to the C. P. R. has been before the retiring council for some time. I am of opinion that the city council should endeavor to enter into an arrangement of mutual benefit to both parties. The advantage to a city of having the good will of large corporations is evidenced by the manner in which bonuses and tax exemptions are granted, and it is my opinion a satisfactory arrangement between the C. P. R. and the Council on this question will mean much for the future prosperity of the City.

The necessity of an auxiliary plant at the power house has been forcibly brought home to the citizens during the last two weeks. I think the city has now reached such a stage that such a plant is absolutely necessary.

Should you do me the honor of re-electing me as Mayor I will appreciate your confidence by giving the same care and attention to the various important civic matters that must arise, as I have done hitherto.

Your Obedient Servant,
J. W. McLEOD.

SUPPLEMENT

Pulled Bread and Beaten Biscuit

The crust is cut away.

ONCE upon a time there was an appendicitis patient who refused to eat, even though the after-operation periods of strict dieting were well past.

"Can't eat," she said.

"Won't!" sternly said the doctor.

So the battle raged, with coaxing and tempting delicacies on the part of a distracted nurse and wearily reiterated refusals from the patient, till one evening, as happens with invalids, a sudden craving struck her.

"I believe I could eat a beaten biscuit and a piece of very nice ham."

"Craziness!" said the nurse. "You'd die."

"But I'll die if I don't eat, and I can't eat anything but that, so why not die happy?"

As in the famous sauerkraut case, the doctor said: "Let her try it;" and try it she did, with immediate resumption of the food habit.

"Folly," say you? That only goes to show you have never tasted of the real thing or you, too, would know that combination could make you decide not to die and forego it.

For there are beaten biscuit and beaten biscuit, and some of them have a striking similarity to well-seasoned plaster-of-paris, but those you may be sure never came out of a Maryland or Virginia oven, nor felt the sounding mallet of a befo' de wah dusky cook.

As for the ham, if Moses had ever had one of the rich, deep garnet, Virginia cured and boiled and baked articles melt in his mouth there would have been a different version of the Mosaic regulations.

Which is, after all, but an aside, as this is a story of the beaten biscuit, not the much maligned pig.

Do you want to know how the genuine darky cook makes her traditional biscuit, which, like the baked bean of Boston, is endeared to every son and daughter of the South: solely and entirely with her good right arm. Her muscles are brawny and she uses them to their limit to get dough so light and flaky that no rival kitchen could touch it.

For, after all, it is not in the mixing that the real merit lies. The dough is not intricate either in material or manufacture—just a quart of flour, a tablespoonful of lard, a cup of ice water and a little salt.

Put your salt in your flour, then mix in well the shortening and add the ice water by degrees, as a wet dough will be blistered instead of flakey. Work this dough until perfectly smooth, and then get down to the real work.

A wooden mallet is a labor-saving device

If you are to the manner born, you will have a fine old hardwood block, on which the beaten biscuits of the family have been pounded for generations—but if you are merely an appreciative outsider, you may do quite as well with an ordinary hardwood board about two *inches thick, or even an old marble-*topped table.

For a pounder you must own a heavily loaded mallet, weighing six or seven pounds, but a well-scoured iron brought down again and again on the sharp edge, or even a rolling-pin, will answer quite as well.

There is much skill in this beating process; so much that it is impossible to give a definite length of time; for where one cook will have her dough light and flaky after ten minutes work, another will take over half an hour. The best test is to stop when the dough cracks. This will usually be in about twenty or twenty-five minutes.

Then roll the dough into sheets half an inch thick, cut with a rather small biscuit cutter, prick the centre of the top with a fork and bake in a very quick oven.

Beaten biscuit may be eaten hot or cold. They keep well for several weeks, and can then be made crisp by reheating in a slow oven.

If the beating proves too onerous, the dough may be made light by pulling apart and working together again until it blisters when rolled out.

Some Southerners use milk instead of water in these biscuits. An excellent recipe is one quart of flour, one large teaspoonful of butter, a tablespoonful of lard, one teaspoonful of salt, and add by degrees nearly a half pint of milk. Beat till the dough cracks.

Maryland biscuit are excellent for children and dyspeptics, as they contain nothing to overwork the digestion. They are less known however, on dietetic lists than pulled breads and zwieback.

Pulled bread, which is gaining in favor each year, is very easy to make. Take a well-baked loaf of bread, home-made preferable, remove the crusts with a sharp knife, cut into strips and then take a fork and lift it in a number of places to make it rough and porous. Put in a pan and brown in a rather quick oven.

The simplest zwieback is prepared by cutting a day-old loaf of bread into pieces and baking again till an even golden brown.

For bread sticks, use a well-risen yeast dough that has been made with milk. Shape into small balls, then roll into sticks ten or twelve inches long. Put them into a pan, without touching, to rise till very light. Then bake till crisp.

Less digestible, though very good, are fried bread sticks. Well raised dough should be shaped in small pipe-stem sticks. Allow them to rise again till very light and fry in boiling lard till a golden brown.

After the final baking.

The Housemothers' Exchange

WITH regard to a recent inquiry as to neighbor's yeast, a Kentucky correspondent writes:

Whenever I boil potatoes (peeled) I save the water in which they were cooked, adding salt and sugar in proportion, and while lukewarm, add to the yeast. In this way one always has a supply. If the yeast becomes flat, add sugar.

The bread is made in the same manner as with compressed yeast. Use a quart of neighbor's yeast for four loaves, or less yeast and add water or milk.

I hope this will explain what "Inquirer" (Pleasant Plains, Ills.), wants to know.

Mrs. G. S. (Shirley, Ky.)

I copy the recipe faithfully. Yet it seems "a monstrous deal" of yeast, no matter how mild, for four loaves. Unless, as I surmise, the neighborly compound takes the place of potato sponge in home-made bread. And, by the way, have we improved upon the potato sponge bread dear to our childhood *days? It was deliciously soft, tooth-*some and wholesome. If neighbor's yeast restores it to favor, we are doubly indebted to those who have brought it into notice.

Gasoline for Washing

One of our big family, "Mrs. J." would like to learn from me how I use gasoline in washing. I am writing this letter to her, in particular. If others would like to be informed on the same subject, you may print it, pro bono publico.

I sort my clothes and put the finer by themselves. I soak all over night in warm water, with a tablespoonful of gasoline stirred into the water before they go in. Next morning they are wrung out, and the real work of washday begins.

I get up very early Monday morning and boil all the clothes (except, of course, colored things), rub out the first boilerful on the board, then throw them into clean water, and take up the second boilerful. I have but two. Then leave the second in the suds. At least, that is my "way." You may, if you like, wash all in one day. I prefer to leave No. 2 until Tuesday morning, rising early again to rub out the last lot on the board, rinsing all together in two clear, hot waters. Next I blue them, and they are all on the line before 7 o'clock. I have had no hard, hot work, and my house isn't "mussed" up all day, and myself clean worn out by night.

This is why I take two mornings—one for the boilings, while the day is cool. Then the things are put into the tubs, the lids shut close; the clothes are better for the additional bath, and I have a day in which to recover from the stress and sweat. My clothes are beautifully white, and with little severe labor.

If they are badly soiled, soap the soiled places well, and you will have no backache. I rub them to make sure they are clean, and that the streaks are out, but that is not hard work, because the dirt stays in the boiler.

This method has been such a great help to me that I hope I have succeeded in making it plain to "Mrs. J.," and to others who make a bugbear of washday, or, maybe, I ought to say they find it ready made. I boil my clothes because I think they are purer than when just washed out.

I wash the colored things in the suds, and anything that will not fade I dip into cold water and drop into the boiler. Then they are clean.

If there is anything I have not made plain, or which you would like to know, write and ask me. I shall always be glad to help a sister woman.

Mrs. A. L. (Chicago).

Chicago, or any other city, may well be proud to own you as a resident, and the Exchange is glad and proud that you are in and of it. A woman who can write a letter like that, and who takes as much pains to tell how she manages the family washing without undue fatigue to herself and discomfort to her household, as a scientific expert would take to exploit a new discovery in his line of work, has a wonderfully well-balanced head and a heart to match it.

Your division of washday's labor into two sections is novel and reasonable. If we women had a juster sense of proportion and took longer, cooler views of life and the relative value of duties, there would be fewer second wives and fewer stepmothers.

Squab and Chicken Raising

I read, not long ago, a communication in the Exchange from "F. M. B." about a squab farm. Will you kindly let me have his address? I am thinking seriously of taking up the squab and chicken-raising business. I should also like the address of some successful chicken farmer. I want to ask one where is the best place to buy ground for that purpose. Some people seem to think there is no place like New Jersey for raising chickens and squabs. Others advocate Norristown and Montgomery county, I know of three successful squab raisers in New Jersey, but I know of more who have failed in the business. If I were to buy a few acres, and were to lose on squabs, couldn't I fall back on my chickens? My health won't stand city life and I must make a change.

M. E. (Philadelphia).

Before I had seen, for myself, such egregious failures in each of the enterprises of which you speak, I should have said that you would be a wise woman to go into one or the other—perhaps both. My belief in the ability of any man or woman, who has common sense, to raise poultry and pigeons for profit has suffered severe shocks within a few months. My counsel now is to look well before you leap, or even take one step. The address of "F. M. B." has gone to you by mail. I hope to send the names of those who can advise you more intelligently than I can hope to do, after your letter is published.

The Hay Stove Again

The woman who wrote to us enthusi*astically some time ago of the improve*ment her husband has made upon the primitive "hay stove" sends in, after a longer trial of the treasure, sundry reasons why we should all follow her example in discarding the coal and gas range, as in common use, and do our cooking in a pretty chest on the kitchen or sitting room table.

1. It will save you 65 to 75 per cent. of the fuel used in cooking, be it coal, gas, oil or wood.
2. It is a time and labor saver, and does away with all odors of cooking.
3. It will cook your food better than can be done by the old method, as there is no evaporation; all the natural juices and flavor of meats and vegetables are retained.
4. If the cook wants an afternoon out, you can still have a hot dinner. All she has to do is to spend a few minutes preparing the food before she goes, place in the cooker, and when dinner time comes it will be found hot, savory and ready to serve.
5. It does away with a hot and uncomfortable kitchen in the summer time.
6. Cereals of all kinds can be started the night before and in the morning will be found deliciously cooked.
7. It will boil, roast, steam or stew better than can be done on any stove.
8. Food cannot be burned nor overdone, and the poorest of cooks must succeed.
9. By no means the least of its merits, and one which will appeal to all housewives, is that it can be used in preserving pears, quinces and all such fruits which require long and slow cooking.

Will the fortunate possessor of the "hay stove" answer the query of another correspondent?

You extoll the virtues of the fireless stove. Will it can fruit, turning it out, after so many hours of cooking, hot enough to insure it against fermentation, if it be canned without further cooking?

Dry-cleaning Silk

Will Marion Harland please tell me how to dry-clean a mantel scarf of white India silk, bordered with colored appliqué?

I think it would be well for each of us to name the State in which she lives. It would prevent confusion among ourselves.

When does Marion Harland take her much-needed rest? Or has she helpers so well trained that she goes, and we do not miss her?

A. B. C. (Chicago, Ill.).

Were the mantel scarf mine, I should clean it with gasoline, with due and prudent regard to the danger of fire.

You may dry-clean it by the following method: Brush out all the dust. Spread the scarf on a table covered with a clean cloth and rub into it all the boracic talcum it will hold. Do this with a soft brush, avoiding the colored border, un*less this, too, be very dirty. Treat both* sides of the silk in this way, shake out the loose powder and give the scarf another coating of the talcum. Leave this last on for two days, covering to exclude dust. Brush and shake in the open air.

When do I take a vacation? I ask myself the question sometimes. Recogniz*ing recreation as a sacred duty, I break* away from business bounds now and then for a flight to the mountains in summer, to the Southlands in winter. But the mail follows me always, and I keep my finger upon the pulse of the constituency I have served so long and so lovingly that I should miss them sorely were communication broken off. I am never out of touch with those who honor me with their confidence and by seeking advice and sympathy in the time of need. I thank you for asking a question that betrays affectionate solicitude for my welfare.

Bread for Dyspeptics

In your "Chats Around the Council Table" a correspondent signing himself (or herself) "H. M." asks concerning bread for dyspeptics.

Soda biscuits made with butter instead of lard are easier to digest than yeast bread. Soda biscuits made with sour cream are still better. Bake the biscuits well; when cold, slice and rebake. Do not eat till cold.

For acute indigestion bran cakes are excellent. Beat a yolk of egg and add to it same quantity of water. Sift the bran through a coarse sieve; add a level teaspoonful of salt. Use enough of the bran to make a stiff batter. Shape into small flat cakes; bake hard on buttered tins in moderate oven. Eat cold, with plenty of butter.

Delicious ice cream, frappe, mousse and cold and hot custards can be made by using condensed milk instead of sugar. Do not use cornstarch in these dishes.

I could not well take more space to give other recipes, but if "H. M." would give me an address, I would gladly and freely give recipes and other suggestions, which I feel sure would be beneficial.

F. E. W. (Oklahoma).

One who has suffered for forty years from chronic dyspepsia gives, as his deliberate conviction, the assertion that a confirmed dyspeptic is not sane. An eminent Judge once told me that he would recommend to mercy—and strongly—any murderer of whom it was proved that he was a hopeless dyspeptic. He "did not consider such a one morally responsible for his actions."

Any advice that promises to assuage the torments of the afflicted, to whom the stomach is a foe and not a friend, is a benefaction. A word from one whose knowledge of the disease is wholly impersonal, and yet the result of long and close observation, may not be amiss.

No stringency of diet will avail anything in the way of relief unless other hygienic rules be also obeyed. Plenty of sleep, gained by early retiring, regular exercise in the open air, and punctilious regard for the normal functions of the body, slow and thorough mastication, avoidance of fatigue and exciting subjects at or near mealtime are essentials to painless digestion. Thousands court dyspepsia by eating fast, and as many by eating when so tired and "empty" that the stomach loathes the offered food.

Keep on good terms with this impor*tant organ if you would be at peace with* yourself and the rest of the world.

Puzzling Problems Solved by Contributors

Various Recipes—Edited by Marion Harland

Mock Mince Pie, Without Brandy.

(Contributed.)

ONE cup of water, about three ounces of butter, one-half cup of vinegar, one cup of whole raisins, one and one-half cups of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of ground cloves, three soda crackers, rolled; two eggs, one teaspoonful of cinnamon.

Beat butter and sugar to a cream, first mixing the spices with the dry sugar; beat all together, except the beaten eggs, which stir in last. This will make three covered pies.

Some Ways of Cooking Potatoes.

FRIED POTATOES.

Pare, wash and slice raw potatoes as thin as wafers. This can be done with a sharp knife, although there is a little instrument *for the purpose, to be had at the house-*furnishing stores, which flutes prettily, as well as slices evenly. Lay in ice water for half an hour, wipe dry in two cloths, spreading them upon one, and pressing the other upon them. Have ready in the frying pan some boiling fat, fry the potatoes to a light brown, sprinkle with salt and serve in a napkin laid in a deep dish and folded over them. To rid them of the fat, take from the frying pan as soon as they are brown, with a perforated skimmer, put into a colander and shake for an instant.

POTATO SHAVINGS.

Pare and lay in ice water for an hour. Choose the largest and soundest potatoes you can get for this dish. At the end of the hour, pare with a small knife, round and round in one continuous curling strip. There is also an instrument for this purpose, which costs but a trifle, and will do the work deftly and expeditiously. Handle with care, frying a few at a time, for fear of *entanglement—in clarified fat, drain and ar-*range neatly upon a hot platter.

POTATOES IN CASES.

Take large, fair potatoes, bake until soft and cut a round piece off the top of each; scrape out the inside carefully, so as not to break the skin, and set aside the empty cases with the covers. Mash the inside very smoothly, working into it while hot butter and cream—about half a teaspoonful of each for every potato. Season with salt and pepper, work it soft with milk and put into a saucepan to heat, stirring to prevent burning. When scalding hot, stir in one well-beaten egg for six large potatoes. Boil up once, fill the skins with the mixture, replacing the caps, return them to the oven for three minutes; arrange upon a napkin in a deep dish, the caps uppermost; cover with a fold of the napkin and eat hot.

Italian Ravioli.

(Contributed by Request.)

Mash a beet and boil until done, then throw into cold water a few minutes, drain, chop and add to it four eggs, one ounce of grated Parmesan cheese and one ounce of grated Cheddar, two and a half ounces of boiled cream or milk, a pinch of nutmeg and a little salt. Mix all well together into a smooth, firm paste; roll into balls about the size of a walnut, flour them well, let them dry for half an hour, then drop carefully, one by one, into boiling stock. When they float take out with a perforated ladle, put into a deep dish, dust with Parmesan cheese and pour a good gravy over them.

Napoleon Cake.

Beat sixteen ounces of sugar with sixteen yolks of eggs until creamy; add sixteen ounces of finely chopped almonds, one ounce each of citron and orange peel, a little cinnamon, cloves and vanilla and four ounces of fine breadcrumbs. At the last fold in the whipped whites of six eggs. Bake in greased cake forms.

Fruit Cake, Without Eggs.

Take one and a half cups of brown sugar, one-half cup of New Orleans molasses, one and one-half cups of butter, two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon, one of cloves, one-half of nutmeg, one-half of allspice, two heaping teaspoonfuls of chocolate, two cups of sour milk, one pound of raisins, one pound of currants, one-fourth pound of citron, one teaspoonful of soda, two teaspoonfuls of brandy; flour, not too stiff.

Mrs. C. A. H. (Dundee, Ill.).

Broiled Mushrooms.

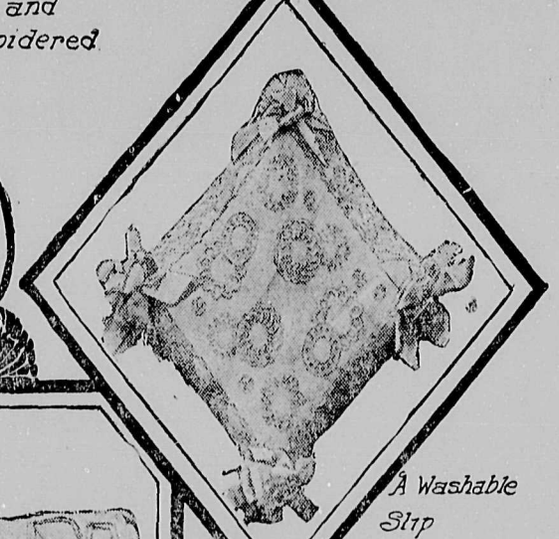
Peel the finest and freshest you can get; score the underside and cut the stems close. Put into a deep dish and anoint well, once and again, with melted butter. Salt and pepper, and let them lie in the butter an hour and a half. Then broil over a clear, hot fire, using an oyster gridiron, and turning it over as one side browns. Serve hot, well buttered, pepper and salt, and squeeze a few drops of lemon juice upon each.

Plain Boiled Spinach.

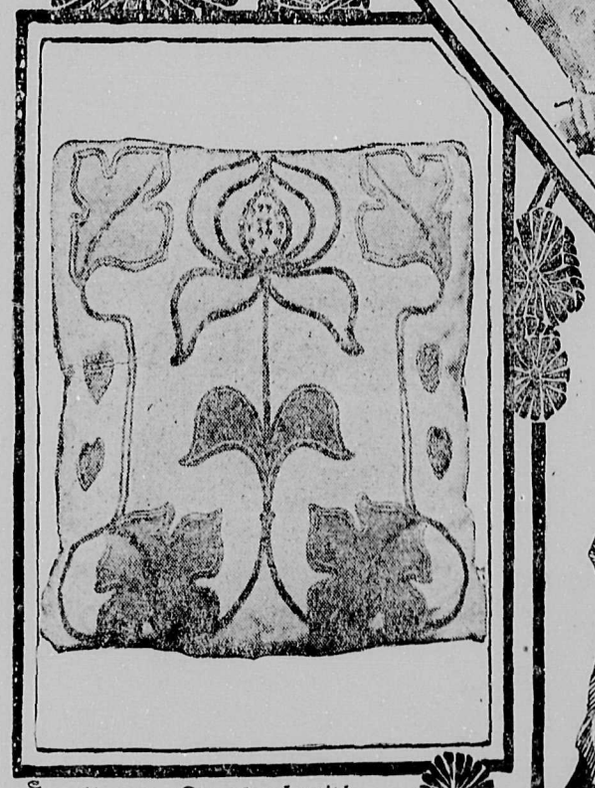
Pick over the spinach, rejecting all yellow or dried leaves. Wash in four waters, letting it soak in the last cold bath for three-quarters of an hour. Put into a large pot over the fire, with barely enough cold water to cover it. Cook for twenty minutes, or until tender. Drain in a colander, then turn into a wooden chopping bowl and chop very, very fine. Return the spinach to the saucepan, stir into it a great spoonful of butter and salt and pepper to taste. Mound the spinach on a hot platter and garnish with slices of hard-boiled eggs.

CUSHION EMBROIDERY

Printed and Embroidered



A Washable Slip



Appliques Couched with Rope-silk

NOT very many of us, in these days when fascinating lingerie and blouses are so popular a part of fancywork, indulge in the elaborate needle-pointing of sofa-pillow tops. And when you consider the hard wear and tear ninety-nine out of a hundred of those same pillow-tops get, such elaborate affairs are rather stupid things to have around. And they're a mighty long way from being works of art, and meriting a place on account of their beauty.

Arts and crafts ideas have done much to emphasize the charm of setting that crash and linen homespun and a host of other crude, interesting stuffs possess. A couple of poppies printed in red, or of red crash appliqued onto the foundation, are far more effective—far more artistic—than the same red poppies most elaborately executed upon a white or black satin (save the mark!) surface.

Perhaps the most artistic of all are the pillows of crash (or of an art-stuff that looks exactly like it to the non-artistic eye) of one of the dull neutral shades, with "art nouveau" figures cut out of deep Indian red crash (or that same double of crash), or of green or blue, and couched on with silk thread.

Such pillow-slips, if you buy them—though extremely hard to find, by the way—are pretty expensive, and they're neither hard to make nor exacting in their requirements of material or time.

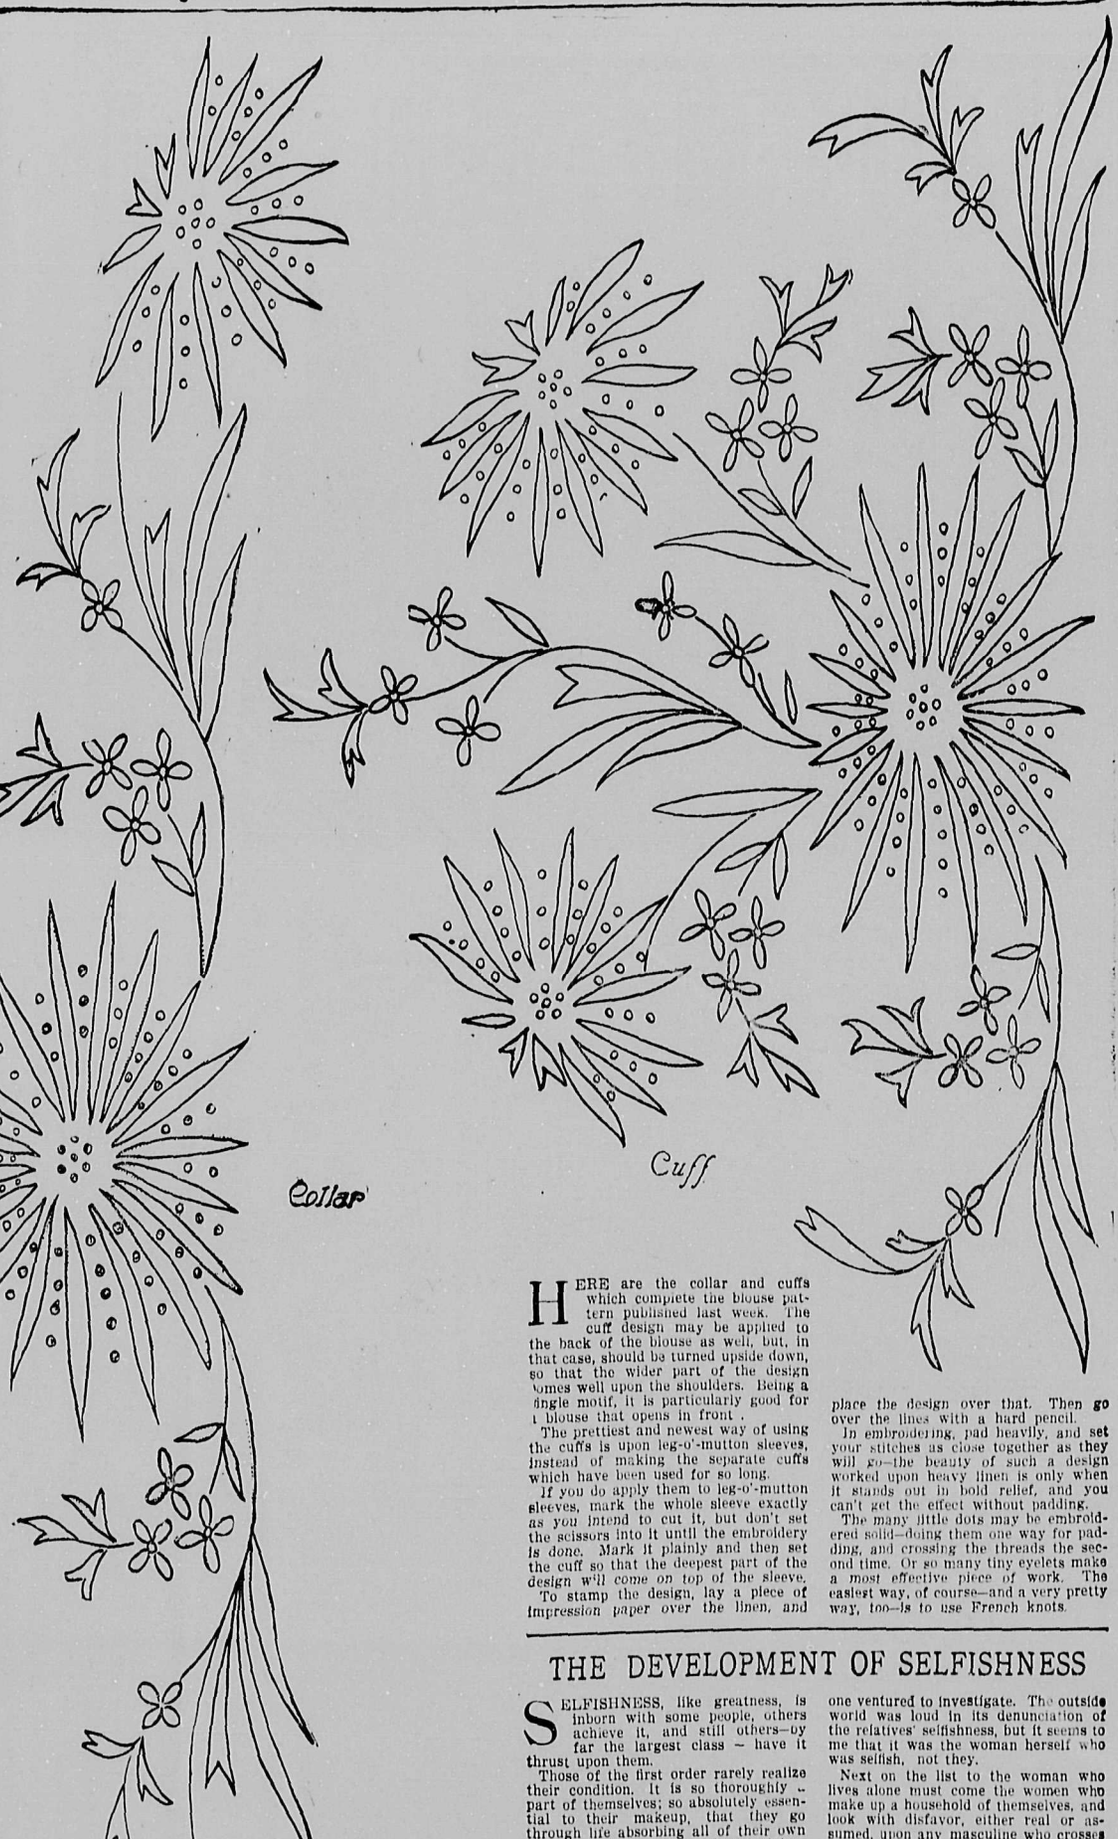
Some of them—not the real "art" ones, though—come with designs printed in color upon the same art backgrounds, which are intended to be heavily outlined in fairly coarse silk. The idea is simply to finish and emphasize the design, not to fill it out with embroidery.

The new thing about them is the fact that the comic designs are going out of favor with a bang, and only the pretty ones, or those that, at least, have some point to their attempted wit are being used.

For dens the popularity of slips which can be removed and washed is on the increase. It's such a comfort to feel that every pillow can be made clean without having to make new covers for all of them—that the prettiest of the new den-cushions are made with an eye to their being laundered frequently.

An occasional pillow is even togged out in a white case, made with motifs of embroidery set on in imitation of the way the figures in Oriental coverings lap and balance.

The Collars and Cuffs of Last Week's Pattern



Cuff

Collar

HERE are the collar and cuffs which complete the blouse pattern published last week. The cuff design may be applied to the back of the blouse as well, but, in that case, should be turned upside down, so that the wider part of the design comes well upon the shoulders. Being a single motif, it is particularly good for a blouse that opens in front.

The prettiest and newest way of using the cuffs is upon leg-o'-mutton sleeves, instead of making the separate cuffs which have been used for so long.

If you do apply them to leg-o'-mutton sleeves, mark the whole sleeve exactly as you intend to cut it, but don't set the scissors into it until the embroidery is done. Mark it plainly and then set the cuff so that the deepest part of the design will come on top of the sleeve.

To stamp the design, lay a piece of impression paper over the linen, and place the design over that. Then go over the lines with a hard pencil.

In embroidering, pad heavily, and set your stitches as close together as they will go—the beauty of such a design worked upon heavy linen is only when it stands out in bold relief, and you can't get the effect without padding.

The many little dots may be embroidered solid—doing them one way for padding, and crossing the threads the second time. Or so many tiny eyelets make a most effective piece of work. The easiest way, of course—and a very pretty way, too—is to use French knots.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF SELFISHNESS

SELFISHNESS, like greatness, is inborn with some people, others achieve it, and still others—by far the largest class — have it thrust upon them.

Those of the first order rarely realize their condition. It is so thoroughly a part of themselves; so absolutely essential to their makeup, that they go through life absorbing all of their own and most of the other fellows' rights, with an air of such delicious sang froid that they baffle, and sometimes disarm, criticism.

Persons who achieve selfishness usually carry chips on their shoulders. They are imbued with the notion that they've got to "do" others if they don't want to be "done." They rejoice openly in every advantage that comes their way, and there is little help for them, since they don't want to be helped.

For those of the third class are reserved the heartaches and the fights. They don't mean to be selfish. In nine cases out of ten it has come from suffering or misfortune, for which they were not in the least to blame, and which, while it served to purify and strengthen their characters, has left this tiny canker behind.

The woman who was frail as a child is apt to be physically selfish. She will give the best of her heart and mind in time to others, but she is apt to accept the most comfortable chair, the most luxurious cushion, the choicest dainty, not as a privilege, but as her right.

Only children are proverbially selfish, and it can scarcely be called the fault of the child. A young mother who was lamenting this fact, said:

"I know my little girl is getting selfish, but what can I do? It would be foolish to forbid many things in her case that I would have to prohibit if I had a big family. Dorothy is not only an only child, but an only grandchild. All the favors that might be distributed among many come her way, and she has been sick so much that she has very few playmates. I hate to think of her growing up self-centred, but I see no help for it."

That mother has a pretty serious problem, for she has to contend with two great sources of selfishness—a superabundance of good things and loneliness.

People who live alone are bound to be selfish. How can it be helped, when there is no one else who must be considered?

In a quiet little New England village there was a few years ago an old woman who lived entirely alone. In her youth she had won fame as a singer. She had saved enough from her triumphs to yield her a fair income; she had relatives who would gladly have taken her to live with them, who were constant in their proffers of companionship, but she steadily refused them all. "I like to do my way," she said. "If I went to your houses, or you came to mine, I would have to change my mode of living."

When death came it came at night and found the woman alone. She had discouraged any attempts toward intimacy on the part of her neighbors, and it was only after several days of a smokeless chimney and barred shutters that anyone ventured to investigate. The outside world was loud in its denunciation of the relatives' selfishness, but it seems to me that it was the woman herself who was selfish, not they.

Next on the list to the woman who lives alone must come the women who make up a household of themselves, and look with disfavor, either real or assumed, upon any masculine who crosses their threshold.

From the beginning of time it has been conceded that men are selfish. Adam began it when he tried to blame the apple-eating episode on Eve, and certain it is that when you see a family composed of an even division of the sexes you may rest assured that that establishment is run principally from the man's viewpoint.

Who ever heard of having dinner at half past 6, when the man of the family said that it suited him to have it at seven? Who ever saw a housekeeper, with men to cater to, serving the delicacies at luncheon, and the scraps at dinner? Whose particular brand of coffee or type of newspaper finds sale in that house—the man's favorite or the woman's? Why, the man's every time, and not because he is tyrannical, or even disagreeable, but simply because it's a habit to let him have his way in small things.

Women who live alone get narrow, for they are not brought into constant touch with the outside world. Women who live alone get careless. It is so easy not to dress when there is no man to criticise, and the other women are only too glad to have encouragement for a kimona parade. Women, who live alone, sometimes get grouchy. Not that they mean to, but it is so easy to let down barriers and drop masks and pretenses when there isn't anybody that it is necessary to keep in a good humor with a smiling face; and narrowness and carelessness, and grouchiness all play their part in the development of selfishness.

PINEAPPLE FOR FALL LUNCHEON

IN THESE days of refrigerator cars to bring us California and Florida fruits, the regular seasons are so overlapped as to be almost a thing of the past. Not so many years ago pineapples were only to be had during June and early July; now there is scarcely a month in the year when they cannot be bought in any city with even ordinarily fair markets. Nor, strange to say, is this out-of-season fruit such an impossible luxury in the matter of cost as might be expected.

While no one would think of preserving or jarring pineapples in the fall or winter, or even of using them lavishly on the family menu, they are much in demand for a first course at a luncheon or dinner.

A pleasant change from the usual shredded pieces, served either plain or mixed with Maraschino cherries and white grapes in sherbet glasses, is to prepare the fruit in the way all Cubans eat it.

Remove the outside of a ripe but not soft pineapple. Then with a very sharp knife cut the slices about an eighth of an inch thick across until it is entirely cut up. Set these slices in the refrigerator until ready to be served.

On the centre of a dessert plate have a good-sized mound of powdered sugar, and around it place as many slices as you wish to serve of the fruit. Eat as you would a raw tomato, cutting the slices with a fork and dipping each piece in the sugar.

It is better to use a medium-sized pineapple, as otherwise the slices are unwieldly. Where the fruit is very large the rounds may be cut thicker, say an inch or an inch and a half, and a single slice served with the core removed. In its place may be piled the sugar, or sugar and Maraschino cherries. The latter make a very pretty dish.

If one likes, these thick rounds of pineapple, slightly powdered with sugar, may have their centres filled with French vanilla ice cream and be served as a dessert.

Marketing For Two

PROBABLY one of the most embarrassing times in a woman's housekeeping career is the first week's ordering of meals, and the consequent exposing of how great an amateur she is at it. She is as great—and as old—a joke among humorists as any they tell over and over again!

An occasional woman prepares herself for just such marketing; but, usually, even then, she does it by assuming the family marketing, which is so radically different that she is as much at sea as ever when it comes down to marketing for two.

One bright little woman put her pride into her pocket, hunted out the best butcher and grocery shops, and bravely confessed her ignorance of amounts and cuts. "If you stand by me," she said to the men she dealt with, "I shall continue to deal with you. But now I need to be told what to buy and how much."

She presented the case so simply that they saw the force of it, and helped her out, telling her which were the most economical cuts, how much was enough, and advising her upon the serious question of waste.

That was seven years ago, and she is still dealing with both men. They taught her to buy closely, but they gave her confidence in them and in the things they sold, and their investment of honesty paid.

Probably, if she had pretended to know all about it, neither man could have resisted the temptation to "do" her a little.

Getting Ready With the Christmas Spirit

MOST people who have any of the real Christmas spirit in their hearts want to do something for those who are less fortunate than themselves at that happy time, and yet often fail, simply because the "doing" is crowded out.

Christmas is such a busy season; there are so many last things to buy; so many packages to tie up; so many people to be remembered, that we are apt to say: "I did mean to carry those pictures to the hospital, and take old Mrs. Brown that jelly, but I have been so busy, and now it is too late. I will have to wait until next year."

The remedy lies in beginning a little sooner with your Christmas spirit. There are spare minutes these fall days that might be utilized in dressing the doll for the little girl who won't have one otherwise. It doesn't add much to your trouble or expense to make an extra glass of jelly or bottle of home-made wine for the invalid to whom they would come as a rare Christmas treat. The books and magazines that can be collected during the coming weeks will make a delightful surprise for some "Shut In" on Christmas morning.

There are people whose purses are slim and whose lists of friends are long, who make a habit of doing their Christmas shopping all during the year. They haunt sales of books, of pictures, of china or bric-a-brac; they take advantage of every jaunt into a new place to pick up some trifle to add to their growing hoard, and long before the 25th of December rolls round, they are able to say serenely, "I am all ready."

The idea is not a bad one at any time, but it seems peculiarly adapted to the benefit of those whose needs are greatest, and who are most apt to be forgotten.

Patterns From Spreads

THE inspiration for the embroidery pattern worked upon an unusually pretty shirtwaist came from an old-fashioned bedspread. The girl who made it happened to see a quaint, conventionalized flower spray which was part of the rather complicated design of the spread, and straightway the idea seized upon her to transfer it.

A pencil and a bit of prepared paper made the tracing easy, and the clever little design adapter laughed in her sleeve over the many compliments she received upon its originality.

Some wonderfully interesting designs can be traced from table damask as well—just parts of the pattern traced instead of the whole, usually elaborate, scheme of design.

Pretty sets of doilies are made of bits of the damask, the woven design picked out with wash twist silk, or with mercerized cotton.

A Kitchen Pin Cushion

A TEA-STRAINER formed the foundation for it—just one of the plain, ordinary ones of finely woven wires, but polished and shining as though made of some much finer metal.

It was lined with the softest of silk and stuffed with a tiny bag of bran, which, in its turn, was neatly tucked away under a coverlet of silk.

A bit of ribbon made a small bow on the handle, and at the same time furnished a loop to hang it up by. Then the wire part was thickly seeded with pins and the novel cushion put in place.

Ungreasy Frying

GREASY fried potatoes or croquettes are an abomination even to the woman who has not forsworn all fried things on general health principles.

Personally, I would never serve potatoes, much as I like them, that must be fried in lard. No matter how carefully they are done, they are bound to taste. The only exception to this is the French fried potato, which, being done in boiling lard, does not absorb grease, as is done by the slower process.

All food fried in deep lard is much nicer if a piece of bread is dropped into the boiling fat to absorb the first grease. This is also a good test of whether the lard is hot enough. If the bread at once turns a clear golden brown, the proper temperature is assured.

The use of brown paper under all fried articles before serving does much to prevent them being greasy.

A frying basket is more than a convenience; it frequently prevents bad burns for the cook, consequent to hasty lifting from boiling fat with a shallow spoon.

ROMANTIC WEDDING

Sweetheart about to Marry, He Hurries East and Regains Her Affections.

A special despatch to the Toronto Globe from Woodstock, N. B., dated Dec. 31, says: A romantic wedding took place this afternoon at the home of the bride, when Miss Lena Burtt, daughter of Mr. Wilmot Burtt of Jacksonville, was married to Mr. Norval Brittain, and the couple left this evening for their future home in Revelstoke, B. C. Before the departure of Mr. Brittain for the West some years ago, he was engaged to marry Miss Burtt. Their correspondence continued until recently. In the meantime Miss Burtt became engaged to a prominent young business man of Woodstock, and the wedding was arranged for tomorrow. An announcement card was sent to Mr. Brittain in Revelstoke. He promptly sent along some presents to the bride-elect, but just as promptly followed arriving here a few days ago. He arranged another date, one day prior to the proposed wedding with the Woodstock man, and carried off his lady love to his western home.

PERSIAN SHAH DEAD

Passing Away of Muzaffar Unlikely to Cause International Difficulty.

TEHERAN, Jan. 9.—Official announcement of the death of the Shah at 11 o'clock last night was made this morning. At 5 o'clock last evening the heirapparent and the ministers were summoned. The women of the palace also began preparations for mourning. Soon after sunset the doors of the harem were closed and at 11 p.m. the Shah passed away. The news of the death of the Shah was received quietly by the people.

A proclamation announcing the accession to the throne of Mohammed Al Mietza is expected in the course of the day, after which the high clergy, ministers and public functionaries will immediately repair to the palace and recognize the new ruler. The coronation of the new Shah will probably take place shortly after the funeral.

Preliminary funeral ceremonies probably will be held at the royal palace where Muzaffar died. The body will lie in state for eight or ten days in the splendid hall where the miracle plays are annually performed.

OUR MARITIME POLICY

For Development of Canadian Mercantile Marine.

The following is a copy of a resolution adopted by the executive committee of the Navy league, Toronto branch, on December 11th, 1906:

"That it is not consistent with the true interests of Canada, either from a political or from an economic point of view, that we should continue to neglect all preparations to take our part in the naval defense of the British Empire and that it is a duty we owe to ourselves, to our floating commerce and to the Empire that we should lay the foundations of a broad national maritime policy, in which naval preparation will go hand in hand with the development of a Canadian Mercantile Marine, with the encouragement of the Canadian shipbuilding industry and with securing for Canada her fair share of the world's maritime transportation.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS'

Caution Should be Observed When Voting by Mail.

The Commercial Travellers' association is urging a proposal which will permit commercial travellers to vote by mail in parliamentary and municipal elections, says the Montreal Star. Anything which will ensure the casting of a larger percentage of the commercial traveller vote than we now get, is a project to be regarded with the most sympathetic favor; for there is no class in the community in a better position to cast an intelligent ballot. That this is not mere "hot air" but the obvious truth, will be seen the moment we remind ourselves that it is the daily business of the commercial traveller to chat with all sorts and conditions of merchants in every corner of the country. Now, no one is better informed upon local interests and opinions than the average merchant, who does his chatting ove the counter; so that the "courier of commerce" gets more side-lights thrown upon the issues of the day in a week than most voters receive in a year.

This very itinerant life, however, makes it difficult for the commercial traveller to vote. His business may call him five hundred miles away from the polling-booth on election day; and he must either sacrifice his business or his franchise. If it be possible to relieve him from the necessity of so hard a choice, that relief should certainly be given; and the country would be quite as much the gainer from such a step as the gentlemen in the "where is my wandering boy" business.

Any arrangement for the reception of mailed votes from commercial travellers must be safeguarded with the greatest care. We suffer enough from ballot frauds when we compel every man to present himself at the polling booth to be seen and examined and sworn, if necessary. The traveller away from home who votes by mail ought to be required to deposit his ballot in the place where he is before some legal officer who would then take charge of it and forward it to the returning officer of his "home" constituency. Great caution in his identification should also be exercised; and this will inflict no hardship upon a class of men who are known intimately throughout the area they cover. Special pains must also be taken to guard these sealed ballots in the mails and to make sure that they reach their destination. In fact, whatever plan be tried, it must be regarded as an experiment until it has been proven to be reasonably safe from fraud or manipulation.

PALLISER.

From our own correspondent.

On the eve of Christmas a very pleasing event took place here in the form of a Christmas tree and entertainment. It was the first thing of the kind that has ever taken place here. The little church was nicely decorated for the occasion. The programme was not long but it was excellent. The children did their part very nicely. The readings by Mrs. Finn and the songs by Mr. Ryan were especially enjoyed. Mr. McAlpine rendered a number of choice selections on the gramaphone. The success of the affair is due almost entirely to the efforts of Mrs. McAlpin and Mrs. Finn. Santa Claus was very jovial on this his first public appearance at Palliser. The children were doubtful about him at first but he soon won their confidence.

Roy Hubly has gone to his home in Marionett, Wis. He will also visit Kansas City and Mexico before his return. Fred Balzer has also gone on a visit to his home at Marionett.

NOTCH HILL

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Preparatory to moving into his new store Mr. Smith gave a dance on Friday night which was much enjoyed by his guests, who had gathered from all parts of the district to wish prosperity to the new venture. The building was brilliantly lit up, the music was good, the new well waxed floor was ideal for dancing, the ladies of the Lake settlement were present and we could not imagine an entertainment being crowned wilh anything but success where such conditions were presided over by Mr. and Mrs Smith.

A skunk, which evidently has aspirations after a higher life, has been roaming around the Lake settlement lately. It wandered into Mr. Goth's house at dinner time the other day and prepared to make itself comfortable behind the wood box. Mr. Goth had, fortunately, the presence of mind not to throw the slop basin at it, but treated it as a royal guest and put the house at its disposal by going to live with a neighbor till the lodger thought fit to vacate. The skunk stayed all night in the house starting off in the afternoon of the second day in the Montreal direction and repaying Mr. Goth for his hospitality in a kind of negative way, by refraining from indulging in the Roger & Gallett business while under his roof. Mr. Goth in his turn felt so grateful for the thing it had left undone that he abstained from speeding the parting guest with an ounce of lead. This is the second time within the last two months that presumably the same skunk has gone into a house and stayed all night.

Youngsters Who Must Sleep in Cold Rooms

PERHAPS it's due to an excess in civilization (or "divilization," as one well-known scholar contemptuously puts it), at any rate, the melancholy fact remains that every year sees more and more children who are compelled, because of ill-health, to sleep in cold rooms—out of doors, if possible; if not, in rooms made fresh by having every window open to its utmost.

Usually, at first, when such treatment was resorted to, it was for inherited tendency to consumption, or to asthma—some lung or throat weakness. But, lately, the great value of fresh air—no matter how bitter cold it may be—as medicine for almost any sort of illness, has come to be a recognized factor in the medical world. As a consequence, children who are run down and nervous, who have grown too fast for their slender strength, or who show signs of breaking down from school work, are often made to sleep in the coldest sort of rooms.

When they do sleep under such conditions, it is of the utmost importance that the beds be made so that there is no danger of draughts working through, and the covers should be fastened securely—the risk of catching cold when a restless sleeper kicks the covers off is too great to run.

First of all, look to the sleeping togs. For very little children, sleeping bags (very like those that Arctic travelers use) made of flannel are most satisfactory. They should be made like very long flannel nightgowns, which button clear up to the throat, and at the feet either button over or draw up by means of a strong tape. Be sure to get them long enough, though, to allow the little limbs full freedom of movement.

For larger children, night drawers cut with feet to them are best. They may be made of flannel, of canton flannel or of the heavier grades of flannelette. White flannelette comes in a quality that is, perhaps, nicest of all.

A screen placed at the angle where the draught seems to strike does away with the dangers which lurk in draughts.

The covers may be held in place by means of a great safety pin, deftly stuck through undersheet and all.

For midwinter, blankets should be spread under, as well as over, the child. Two, and even three, thicknesses are not too much when the weather is very cold. Spread the blankets over the mattress, and make up the bed in the usual way.

What may be indulged in during a particularly severe spell is a hot-water bottle, slipped into its elderdown bag and used as a foot warmer. But don't let the child grow dependent upon it.

Like a woman's postscript, the most important piece of advice comes at the very end: Start in now, if you expect the child to stand a cold room this winter. Put it off, and a series of severe colds, if not pneumonia, or even graver ills, will result.

When the snow or rain comes, put something on the floor (under the open windows) to absorb the moisture, and set the screen so that the bedclothes can't, by any possibility, get damp. But, beyond that, let the air come in as freely as upon other times and seasons.

ADVICE BY MRS. SYMES

Job's Tears

WILL YOU kindly inform me at the earliest possible moment where I will be able to obtain Job's Tears? I remember some time ago seeing in your space in the paper that they were beneficial to teething children. D. C.

"Job's Tears" may be obtained from any large drug establishment, and often from the smaller ones. Also, you may be able to get them at a jeweler's. These people make the "tears" into necklaces.

I could not assure you of any special value of Job's Tears other than making something hard and smooth for baby to rub his sore gums on.

Fat Across Shoulders

Please publish rules for reducing shoulders and back. I am very fat across the shoulders and up around my neck. I tried several rules you had in one of the papers, but they don't take any effect. I am very large around the waist, though not in the hips; but I don't care to be any larger. Please let me know if there is any kind of medicine I could take that would not be injurious to the system. I am very anxious to get thin. I dislike to be told I am so fat. AGNES.

I advise you to try bathing your neck and shoulders with clear alcohol or warm vinegar. Do this every day. Also, use this pomade:

Pomade to Reduce Fat.

Iodide of potassium, 3 grams.
Vaseline, 50 grams.
Tincture of benzoin, 20 drops.
Make into a pomade and rub over the fat parts twice a day.

Deep breathing will help to reduce the waist measure and enlarge the bust. The stretching exercises, too, are splendid as waist depleters. Raise the arms high above the head, then, holding knees straight, try to touch the floor with the finger tips. Stand erect, place hands on hips, bend from waist as far as possible to the right, then to the left.

To Enlarge the Legs

Will you please tell me what is good for fattening the legs? I wear my dresses kind of short, and my legs are very thin. Thank you for your advice. M. D.

Rising on your tiptoes about twenty-five times daily will develop the calves of the legs and keep the ankles slight, which is most desirable. Rubbing in cocoa butter or a good skin food will aid development.

Probably Due to Strain

I have been troubled with my eyes a great deal lately, so ask you for a little advice.

On awakening in the morning my eyes run as if they were sore, and whenever I read they become watery and hurt. My eyes have been in this condition for about two years. I have consulted an oculist. He said I needed glasses, but they do not do me any good, for I can see as well as the average person. Now if there is anything you can do for me it will be appreciated. A. F. W.

I wonder if you have been doing anything to abuse your eyes? Knowing so little of the conditions under which the trouble has arisen, I cannot be of much help to you. However, I would suggest that you bathe the eyes, using an eye-cup, twice a day with this eye lotion:

Eye Wash.

One teaspoonful of boric acid, 15 drops of camphor, 2-3 of a cup of boiling water. Cool, strain through muslin and apply with an eye cup.

Disordered Digestion

I have used the sulphur and milk for clearing the complexion, but it doesn't seem to have done any good. Would you kindly tell me about something that will surely clear it? Also what fruits are best for the complexion and blood? A. L.

I am sure that the difficulties with your complexion are due to a disordered digestion and impure blood. All fruits are beneficial, if there is no tendency to diarrhoea. Try this blood purifier.

Blood Purifier.

Sodium sulphovinate, 1 av. ounce; compound syrup of sarsaparilla, 4 fluid ounces; fluid extract of dandelion, 2 fluid ounces; syrup of orange, 1½ fluid ounces; water, enough to make 16 fluid ounces.
Mix and filter.

Consult a Specialist

If there is a remedy for lengthening the legs will you please publish an article in your column in the near future? A READER.

I am sorry that I can suggest no method by which you can lengthen your legs. But I have heard that such things have been done by specialists. I would advise you to consult one of these people.

Try Massage

E. S.—Try massage with orange-flower cream, frequently published in these columns.

POINTS OF VALUE ON THE CARE OF THE HAIR

To Bleach a Switch

HOW would peroxide of hydrogen do to whiten a hair switch that has a light yellow tinge? Please give directions for using. The switch is made of combings from my own hair, and I find it has a yellow tinge. My hair is silvery white. BEVERLY.

Peroxide of hydrogen is an excellent bleaching agent, and I advise you to try it on the switch. Apply the pure peroxide, undiluted, by means of a fine brush—a toothbrush is good. Give the switch these bleaching baths every day until the yellow tinge has disappeared.

A Hair Tonic

SMOOTH FACE.—I suggest that you try this formula, though I cannot guarantee that it will be efficacious under these circumstances:

Hair Grower.

Bay rum, 7 ounces; distilled witch hazel, 9 ounces; common salt, 1 dram; hydrochloric acid (5 per cent.), 1 drop; magnesia, sufficient.

Mix the bay rum and distilled extract of witch hazel and shake with a little magnesia. Filter, and in the filtrate dissolve the salt and add one drop of hydrochloric acid.

The magnesia will cause the preparation to turn quite yellow, but the yellow will disappear when the hydrochloric acid is added.

Apply at night to the roots, with friction.

Gray Hair

I would like to have you give me the prescription for restoring gray hair. I have looked over the paper carefully, but could not find the prescription. G. J.

To Restore the Natural Color of the Hair.

(A physician's prescription.)

Sugar of lead, ¼ ounce; lac sulphur, ½ ounce; essence of bergamot, ½ ounce; alcohol, ½ gill; glycerine, 1 ounce; tincture of cantharides, ½ ounce; ammonia, ½ ounce.

Mix all in one pint of soft water. Apply to the roots of the hair, which must be clean.

The dye should never be applied if there is any irritation or abrasion of the scalp.

Apply to the roots of the hair with a small brush, then spread it evenly downward through the tresses with an ordinary hairbrush.

Asks for Recipe

Please publish the doctor's recipe for restoring gray hair to its natural color. M. S.

You will find your query answered under head of "G. J."

Harmless Hair Stain.

The hair tonic I wrote you about some time ago I wanted for the coloring part. You said henna was a harmless dye, being purely vegetable. My hair is a rather light shade of brown, and I do not wish to darken it. There is a light streak on the temples, and I wanted to try your formula, provided it was not injurious. A SUBSCRIBER.

The henna stain that you speak of gives the hair a reddish tinge, and darkens it somewhat. It depends upon the exact shade of your hair whether or not this is suitable. The walnut stain frequently published in these columns gives a brown color.

I give you the henna formula to use if you think best

Henna Hair Stain.

Take one ounce of henna leaves, steep in a pint of boiling water for twenty minutes. Let stand until it gets cold. Strain the liquid. Apply to the hair by the aid of a small sponge. The henna will sometimes stain the scalp, but the stain can easily be eradicated.

Oily Hair.

Will you kindly print a formula for keeping the hair in curl? My hair is very oily. It troubles me greatly in not retaining the curl after it has been done up over night.

I am troubled also by a scar on my neck. It is the result of an abscess that was lanced last December. It is a small scar, but still remains very red. Can you suggest treatment which would restore that place to its natural color? H. C. B.

Try this lotion for oily hair, and if the trouble is thus corrected I think your hair will curl more easily:

Lotion for Oily, Damp Hair.

For greasy, moist hair the following is an excellent dry lotion. If used daily it tends to produce a crispy condition and an auburn shade:

Powdered bicarbonate of soda, borate of soda (also powdered), ¼ ounce of each; eau de cologne, 1 fluid ounce; alcohol, 2 fluid ounces; tincture of cochineal, ¼ fluid ounce; distilled water, 16 ounces.

Mix and agitate until solution is complete for general usage.

Very often scars may be removed by gentle massage with cold cream. But if such should not prove effective, try this formula:

To Remove Scars.

Lanolin, 2 drams; ointment of biniodide of mercury, 1 dram. Rub in well once a day.

Hair Growing Thin

Kindly give me a good remedy for thin, falling hair. It seems to have stopped growing. Also advise me if I should consult a masseur. F. B.

It is not necessary to consult a specialist. Try to correct the trouble yourself by applying this tonic with gentle and regular massage of the scalp:

For Falling Hair.

Cologne, 8 ounces; tincture of cantharides, 1 ounce; oil of English lavender, oil of rosemary, ½ dram each.

Apply to the roots of the hair once or twice a day. It is positively necessary that the scalp should be kept clean. Shampoo at least once a week.

Dandruff After Fever

Last April I was very sick with the measles. I had a very high fever (106 7-10), and now I am having a bad time with my head, caused by the fever. I expected to lose some of my hair, but was not prepared for the dandruff. My scalp seems to be dried and caked with a white scale. I never experienced anything like it before, and am afraid it will prevent the young hair from growing in again.

I have been in town for treatment, but find it expensive, as they want me to buy this thing and that; so I copied one of your formulas for stubborn dandruff, and am using that at the present time. I have had it only three days. Do you think that is all right, or have you something better? My hair comes out in big handfuls at each combing. Mrs. S. C.

Continue the dandruff cure, but alternate it with this tonic. The latter is especially good for a dry scalp.

Tonic for Falling Hair.

Phenic acid, 2 grams; tincture of nux vomica, 7½ grams; tincture of red cinchona, 30 grams; tincture of cantharides, 2 grams; cologne, 120 grams; sweet almond oil, 60 grams.

Apply to the roots of the hair with a soft sponge once or twice a day.

Gentle massage at least twice a day is very invigorating to the scalp.

Before Curling

Will you kindly publish at as early a date as possible your formula for preparation to keep hair in curl, the one containing sugar, gum, etc.?

I have used it and found it good. K. M.

Solution to Keep Hair Curled.

Take gum arabic, 1 ounce; good moist sugar, ½ ounce; pure hot water, ¾ pint. Dissolve. When this solution is cold add alcohol, 2 fluid ounces; bichlorate of mercury and salammoniac, 6 grains each. The last two should be dissolved in the alcohol before admixture. Lastly, add enough water to make the whole measure one pint. Perfume with cologne or lavender water. Moisten the hair with the fluid before putting in papers or pins.

Tea Hair Tonic

I would like to know the recipe that was published some time ago. It consists of boracic acid, rose water and alcohol; but I don't remember the amount of each. J. R.

The recipe you mention is as follows:

Blackheads of the Skin.

Boracic acid, 2 drams; alcohol, 2 ounces; rosewater, 4 ounces.

Use with friction twice a day on the skin affected.

Superfluous Hair

I have the most miserable growth of superfluous hair on my arms and hands. Have tried the pumice stone, peroxide of hydrogen and aqua ammonia. Now will you tell me something that will take it off beside the electric needle? I cannot afford that, and if persistence is all that is necessary, I do want to know. Will you please tell me just what to do? A. C.

I should next try this depilatory:

Old Depilatory.

One of the oldest depilatories manufactured, and which has a very large sale, is as follows:

Sulphate of soda, 100 grains; chalk, 300 grains.

Mix thoroughly and keep dry in well-corked bottles until wanted for use. Take enough to make a paste and add warm water to it until the proper consistency is secured. Spread over the hairy surface and allow to remain for from one to five minutes, according to the nature of the growth and the susceptibility of the skin, then scrape off with a blunt blade—a paper knife, for example. It should be removed, as in every case with a depilatory, when the burning sensation is produced. Too long contact with the skin should be avoided, as I immediately after the hair has been removed the denuded surface should be gently washed with warm water and a cold cream or a bland oil applied to prevent irritation.

Not Harmful in Any Way

My hair is turning gray prematurely. Kindly give me through the page the walnut hair stain formula. Will it burn or cause the hair to fall out? L. O.

This hair stain is not harmful in any way:

Walnut Stain for the Hair.

Four ounces of walnut skins beaten to a pulp, to which is added pure alcohol, 16 ounces. Let stand eight days and strain.

Before using any dye the hair should be freed from grease by a thorough shampoo. The dye should be applied to the hair by means of a toothbrush and occasional combing with a new comb; contact with the scalp should be avoided.

TO BEAUTIFY THE FACE

Cure the Blackheads First

I AM greatly troubled with blackheads and large pores, also pimples. I have never tried anything for them, but would like to know what to use to get rid of them. I have a good many hairs on my arms and a few on my upper lip. Would you kindly advise me what treatment to use?

Would you please tell me what is the cause of my face turning red? It turns red at anything especially when any one speaks to me. I am very healthy. A FAITHFUL READER.

Cure the blackheads first, then consider the enlarged pores. If you treat the latter before the blackheads are eradicated troublesome complications will result.

Green Soap Treatment for Blackheads.

Tincture of green soap, 2 ounces; distilled witch hazel, 2 ounces; let this mixture stay on only a few moments, then wash off with hot water.

If the green soap irritates the skin, as it sometimes will, use it every other day. Apply a cold cream.

Green soap may be purchased at any drug store. It is not a regular "cake soap," but it is about the consistency of custard.

Try this method of removing the superfluous hair on your arms and lips:

Pumice Treatment for Superfluous Hair.

Get an ordinary 5-cent cake of pumice stone. This is not pumice soap, but the regular old-fashioned pumice stone. To remove the hair, rub the skin afflicted with the superfluous growth, and the pumice stone will wear the hair off. Be careful not to be too heroic and irritate the skin. In case the arms are made red by this treatment, use a little cold cream. The pumice stone is best used at night before retiring.

I regret that I cannot suggest something to correct this unpleasant tendency to blush, as I should call it. The usual redness of face that troubles people can be cured, but I fear this is a peculiar nervous disorder for which I cannot prescribe.

Formula Repeated

Will you kindly give me the formula for your orange flower skin food? A READER.

Orange Flower Skin Food.

Oil of sweet almonds, 4 ounces; white wax, 6 drams; spermaceti, 6 drams; borax, 2 drams; glycerine, 1½ ounces; orange-flower water, 2 ounces; oil of neroli, 15 drops; oil of bigarade (orange skin), 15 drops; oil of petit grain, 15 drops. Melt the first three ingredients, add the glycerine to the orange-flower water and dissolve the borax in the mixture, then pour it slowly into the blended fats, stirring continuously.

Mislaid Recipe Repeated

I have mislaid the recipe for "orange-flower cream." Will you kindly repeat it? K. L. B.

Orange Flower Cream.

White wax, 1 ounce; spermaceti, 1 ounce; lanolin, 2 ounces; cocoanut oil, 2 ounces; orange flower water, 2 ounces; oil of sweet almonds, 4 ounces; tincture of benzoin, 30 drops.

Melt the first five ingredients together. Take off the fire and beat until nearly cold, adding little by little the benzoin, and, lastly, orange flower water.

Explicit Directions

Will you please tell me how to use ammonia for removing hair from the face? Do you let the solution dry on the face? Will it injure the skin? How long before it has any effect, and is it permanent? Also, can you use it in connection with the peroxide of hydrogen? L. H.

Make a solution of ammonia of about one tablespoonful to a glass of water. Bathe the parts with it once a day. It is destructive to the growth of hair, though is not permanent, since, in the course of time, new hair will grow. However, it is easy to keep this in subjection. The length of time required depends upon your individual case. A few weeks should show results. Peroxide of hydrogen is excellent to use with it, though the peroxide should be used more frequently.

This Cream is Better

Have been using the Vaucaire system, and am now on my third bottle, and am also drinking the malt, but as yet have found no results.

If you think I should use the orange-flower cream, please give the recipe, or do you think by perseverance I will get good results? Miss A.

The quantity of the Vaucaire remedy depends upon the individual using it. I would advise you to continue the treatment faithfully for a while longer.

Have you followed the directions carefully (two soupspoonfuls with water before each meal)? Dr. Vaucaire also advises the drinking of malt extract during meals.

The orange-flower cream is not so beneficial in this instance as—

Massage Cream for the Bust.

Lanolin, 5 ounces; spermaceti, ½ ounce; mutton tallow (freshly tried), 5 ounces; cocoanut oil, 4 ounces; oil of sweet almonds, 4 ounces; tincture of benzoin, 1 dram; extract of Portugal, 4 ounces; oil of neroli, 20 drops.

Mix as you would any cream of the sort. Rub on gently at night.

Almond Meal

Some few weeks ago you advised me to use almond meal instead of soap. I write to ask you how I can use it in connection with the complexion brush, as I use that every night and do not like to discontinue doing so. Will I sprinkle some on the brush? H. B.

The almond meal need not interfere in any way with the use of the brush. Apply the former as you would a soap powder.

A Liquid Complexion Beautifier

Will you please publish the recipe for a liquid complexion beautifier that does not contain chalk, zinc or lead? I once used a beautifier that had the appearance of clear water, and it was excellent for beautifying the skin. I applied it to the face, and it left my skin soft and velvety. It also gave it a whitish appearance, as though I had used powder. I have lost the recipe, and don't know where to get it. L. B. B.

The nearest that I can come to granting your request is to give you the formula for "old fashioned skin lotion." It is perfectly harmless, and makes the skin soft and white.

Old-Fashioned Skin Lotion.

Spermaceti, 13 grains; white soap, in powder, ¾ dram; white wax (pulverized), ¾ dram; almond oil (sweet), ¾ dram; Jordan almonds, 3 ounces; pure alcohol, 2 ounces; distilled water, 8 ounces; attar of roses, 3 drops; oil of neroli, 5 drops; essence of jasmine, ½ dram; essence of white rose, ½ dram.

Blanch the almonds and beat them into a smooth paste, adding some water gradually to form a thin cream. Melt the wax, spermaceti and almond oil together, and to this add the soap, previously rubbed down with one-half ounce of water. To this add, in small quantities, the remainder of the water, assiduously stirring. Then add the strained almond cream and finally the alcohol and the perfumes.

A little of this milk may be rubbed into the skin several times during the day. The effect is permanently beneficial.

Roughened Skin

For some time past I have been troubled with pimples, which after they went away would leave large holes in my skin. I tried the lotion for enlarged pores recommended by you, but it did not seem to do any good. You will also oblige me by telling me what to do for rough, red skin. Do you think the orange-flower cream would tend to soften it? ANXIOUS.

Did you tamper with the pimples in any way? The holes you describe may be small scars, caused by the pimples having been improperly opened. If that were the case I would suggest a remedy for them, but cannot unless I am sure that that is the trouble.

The orange-flower cream is an excellent skin food; but before beginning its use try this lotion:

Lotion for Inflamed Skin.

Boracic acid, 1 dram; distilled witch hazel, 2 ounces; rosewater, 2 ounces.
Use as a wash two or three times a day.

Muddy Skin

Would you kindly give me advice as to how to have a better complexion? My skin is very yellow and muddy-looking, and my neck is very brown, with the sun, I guess. I also have a good many pimples. There isn't a bit of color in my face.

I would be very much obliged to you if you could help me. J. H.

Very evidently your bad complexion is due to some internal disturbance, probably a disordered liver. Consult a physician, and when these troubles are remedied your skin without doubt will be in much better shape. There is little use for me to prescribe external remedies until this is accomplished.

Face Paste

I would thank you very much if you would give me a formula for paste—something to use on the face instead of a powder or liquid whitener. Kindly tell me how to make it pink or flesh color. Can a paste of this kind be made without white lead? M. K.

I think the following is what you want. As you see, there is no white lead in it. All the ingredients are harmless. Carmine is the coloring matter.

Sultana Cream Make-Up.

Sweet almond oil, 4 ounces; white wax, melted, 320 grains; spermaceti, 320 grains; benzoin (finely powdered), 160 grains; tincture of ambergris, 60 grains; rice powder, 320 grains; pure carmine, 15 grains.

Blend the fats in the inside receptacle of a custard boiler; add benzoin while they are heating, the rice powder and carmine while cooling, and tincture last of all. Spread it on the face and throat, gently and carefully rubbing it into the skin, and avoid its getting into the eyebrows or close to the eyes. Powder with any flesh-colored powder or velouting, applying freely with a puff, and after a little while wipe off with a bit of chamois. This masks as effectually as a plaster of pastes and paints all slight imperfections of the skin without having the repulsively artificial look which they give. By artificial light it is imperceptible.

Stop Using the Flesh Brush

Can you tell me how I could get my face in a good condition? My cheeks, chin and forehead are covered with what looks like white lumps, or a kind of a blackhead without the head. Some fester, while others seem to multiply. Is there not a salve that could be used to make them all come to the surface? Then don't you think if they were removed and a lotion used to dry them up they could be got rid of? Do you approve of the electric needle?

Have dieted until I am starved. Use the flesh brush and take all kinds of long walks. It is most embarrassing to have my complexion this way. If you give me any advice I will follow it all. M. L.

Try this simple treatment for the skin trouble:

Whiteheads (Acne Molluscum).

Open each seed acne with the point of a fine cauotic needle. The hardened mass may be pressed or picked out. The empty sac of the gland should then be bathed with a little toilet vinegar and water, or with a very weak solution of carbolic acid and water. Sterilize the needle before using it by dipping into boiling water.

The electric needle is good for some purposes, but not this. Discontinue using the flesh brush, for with your skin in such a condition it only aggravates matters. Continue your dieting and long walks, though take plenty of nourishing food. There is no occasion to starve yourself.

A Basket Social will be held in the Selkirk Hall on Tuesday, Feb. 19th, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Church.

A masquerade ball was held in the Selkirk Hall on Wednesday night under the auspices of the Forget-Me-Not Club and proved a very successful event.

The water tank at the depot burst the other day and the waters gushed out, but froze almost as rapidly. The tank had certainly an Arctic appearance that day.

A third daily paper will be established in Calgary on the 20th. The plant will cost $25,000 and Dan McGillicuddy of the department of the interior will be the moving spirit. The paper will be independent in politics.

The holding of the time-honored line-up of civic candidates at the public meeting prior to municipal elections will be observed to-night. All who have declared themselves for the respective posts will doubtless be on hand and from the talk on the streets there will be something lively doing when some of them get talking and to-night's addresses are likely to be remarkably pointed.

The news value of a newspaper is not decreased as erroneously stated by some by a large volume of advertisements any more than its circulation is decreased by it. In fact, both are increased to a great extent. The rule is that big circulations and big advertising patronage usually go together.

Mr. Aylmer, the government engineer, was expected up this week to look over the wing dam construction works and the new channel. His presence is looked for to dispel the rumor that is about town just now that the works may close down shortly.

Peter Ball, Canadian government commercial agent at Birmingham, Eng., has had so many letters from Canada, the writers of which wish to get married to English girls, that he is thinking of opening a matrimonial agency. Mr. Ball says he has many orders, but cannot deliver the goods.

A very quiet wedding took place on Thuredsy afternoon at the residence of Rev. J. R. Robertson, B.D., on Second Street, Frank G. Brown and Miss Betty Jane Boyd being the contracting parties. Only the relatives and intimate friends of both were present. The happy couple will spend their honeymoon in town.

Mr. R. Morphett, of Bristol, Eng., is spending a few days in Revelstoke and will be delighted to meet with any folks from the Old Country if they will call and see him at the Y.M.C.A. building, especially Saturday evening after 8 o'clock. Mr. Morphett gives an address to men at 3.30 p. m. Sunday.

Gold Range Lodge No. 26 held their installation of officers on Wednesday night, for the ensuing term. The convention was well attended, much regret being felt that owing to the steamer being aground in the Arrow lakes the Arrowhead contingent were unable to attend. The regular business of the lodge was first disposed of and the installation ceremonies, which are impressive and at the same time impressive, were commenced. Deputy Grand Chancellor J. B. Scott, assisted by Stewart McDonald, acting Grand Master at Arms, officiated as installing officer. The following officers were installed:

J. A. Leslie, C. C.; T. W. Bradshaw, V. C.; A. J. Howe, Prel.; P. C. Ainsli M. of W.; H. A. Brown, M. of F.; E. G. Burridge, M. of Ex; G. H. Brock, K. of R. & S.; H. Cunningham Morris, M. at A.; T. P. Smith, I.G.; J. Mathie, O. G.

After the ceremonies were concluded the lodge sat down to a banquet, during which many toasts were honored and speeches delivered, and a most sociable and enjoyable evening was spent.

HOW TO BUY YOUR OWN HOME WITH THE RENT.

"X" pays $20 a month rent and saves $10 a month. At the end of 7½ years he has paid his landlord $1800 as rent and has saved $900 in the bank.

"Y" pays $20 as rent and takes two contracts with The Pacific Loan Company thus saving $10 a month. In 26 months his contracts mature and he buys or builds a home. He then ceases to pay rent but repays the Company $30 per month of which $28 applies directly to the repayment of the $2000 borrowed.

In five years and four months he owns his own home, clear from any mortgage or other encumbrance, and is now able to save the whole of his $30 per month, having no rent to pay.

"X" in 7½ years paid $1800 rent and saved, at $10 per month, $900 in the bank, making his landlord a present of $1800 and is only $900 ahead and owns nothing.

"Y" in 7½ years owns his own $2000 home and for the rest of his days lives rent free, and the whole cost of his loan expense to him during the whole 7½ years in which his contract was running before and after maturity, has been just $95.

CANADIAN TRADE

Outlook Very Bright—A Steady Increase Throughout Dominion.

The situation is one of quiet confidence, says Bradstreet in the weekly report, in Canadian trade. Stock taking returns have been favorable, large orders ahead are on the books of the wholesalers and the opening of the regular spring season is awaited with sanguine hope. Montreal reports some manufacturer's books full for the entire season's output. The collections are good and the country trade is quiet. Toronto reports unseasonable weather affecting country trade, Retail trade is slow, although the interior cities of British Columbia report doing well. Preparations are making for an unusually heavy spring trade. Industry is very active all over the west. Less complaint of land speculation is heard and collections are good. The bank clearings in the Dominion compare very favorably with the corresponding period of last year and the Dominion is taking a steady rise which augurs well for the future.
