The Woman's Suffrage Bill is More Than Liable to be Shelved

BY THE WHITSUNTIME RECESS

King Humbert Gets a Gold Medal for Distinguished Bravery.

MANIPUR STORMED AND TAKEN

Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia Considered Hopelessly Insane.

LONDON, April 4. - The friends of the woman's suffrage bill are anxious about the adjournment of parliament for Whitsuntide. The bill is set down for the 12th of May, and in the ordinary course the House would adjourn for the Whitsuntide vacation on Tuesday 12th or Thursday 14th. The temptation to get rid of a difficult question would in all probability decide the government in favor of Tuesday, and in the expectation that this would be the case, the friends of the bill are contemplating its withdrawal and the substitution of a resolution which would be balloted for in the regular way. It remains, however, to be seen whether there will be any Whitsuntide holidays in the ordinary acceptance of the term. Many supporters of the government consider that the House is adjourned in July it would be better to give only a very brief recess at Whitsuntide, say from Friday the 15th until the following Thursday, and to cut off a few days at the end of the session. Mr. Smith's expression is regarded, by the opponents of assisted education at all events, as sounding the knell of the bill dealing with that subject. It is practically certain that both this measure and the small holdings bill will be laid before the House, but in the most sanguine estimate as to the course of business, they can hardly be proceeded with if the expectations of the First Lord of the Treasury are to be fulfilled. It has now been definitely arranged that the discussion in committee on the Irish land purchase bill shall commence on Thursday next. It will be continued to die in the next day or two, excepting Wednesday. It is expected that the budget will be brought in on Monday or Thursday in the week following. This is the only business which will be allowed to interrupt the proceedings of the land bill until it is disposed of.

ALREADY HEARING FRUIT.

The decision in the famous Jackson case, that a wife can live apart from her husband, if she chooses to do so, has apparently wrought a considerable change in the interpretation of English law on this subject.
The House is adjourned, and judges have frequently informed wives who applied for legal separation from their husbands that proceedings in court are unnecessary to effect the desired separation. In fully a score of such cases, the applicants have been advised by the magistrates not to incur the needless expense and notoriety of legal proceedings, but to simply leave their objectionable partners and set up a separate domicile, there being no law which they can be compelled to return to the conjugal relation against their will.

ANGLICAN SERVICES IN THE TYROL.

be observed in the church.

SEQUESTERED ECCLESIASTICAL GOODS.

AN INSANE WHIM.

A Munich dispatch says that the latest frank of the insane King Otto is that he wants a wife. His subjects are making the round of European courts in order to make a selection and his attendants are at their wits end what to do. Heretofore all his franks have been serious, and at least in appearance so. Otto has a very peculiar notion of the number of persons who have pretended to fall at the discharge of his gun he must imagine himself an emperor. A marriage of convenience would be a good thing for him. The subject and has been seized with paroxysms of rage because his orders were not obeyed. It is said that the regent, Leopold, has been requested to descend a rickety ladder let down into the party. His majesty was the first to descend, a rickety ladder let down into the party, whence the muffled cries of buried men could be heard, and while the difficult work of rescue went on he continually encouraged the unfortunate men with assurances of coming help.
One man whose head and shoulders were above the debris, but whose legs were held by the heavy beams underneath, was especially sustained by the king's words of good cheer, although the danger of a fresh fall in the ruins was considerable. King Humbert held the poor fellow by the hand and gave him wine and did not leave the premises until all were taken out alive. Silver medals have been awarded to others who assisted in the rescue.

OF DIFFERENT OPINIONS.

As about three days ago, the American difficulty with Italy was viewed differently by the government and by the people. Popular feeling is decidedly hostile to the United States, while the cabinet is anxious to get out of the matter as quietly as possible, without giving a handle to its political adversaries.
King Humbert and the premier are said to be both convinced that there was no race question in the New Orleans tragedy, and without a race question the affair loses interest for Italy. Nevertheless, they feel the necessity of gratifying the popular with some show of resentment. It may be of interest to state here that brigandage still flourishes in Sicily to a degree that makes the interior unsafe for travelers, and that it has not been entirely extinguished on the Neapolititan mainland. It is remembered that a few months ago a rich proprietor who was captured by brigands and held for a ransom offered a large bribe to the brigand who was left in charge of him may, to let him go, offering also to take the brigand with him and secure him immunity from all harm. The guard answered that he would be followed and killed. "But you might go to America," said the captive. "They would follow and kill me there, too," was the reply.

THE KAISER CONFIDENT.

The return of the Kaiser to Berlin without securing Prince Bismarck is attributed to the confidence inspired in the Kaiser, by the warmth of the reception at Lubeck. His visit to the old Hanseatic city was, says the Kaiser, the most memorable event of the week in Germany. The Lubeckers spared no effort to show their loyalty not to the Emperor's personality, but to the Empire, to which they are all the more strongly attached, because it allows them the possession of equal autonomy with the more important states, by which they would otherwise have been swallowed.

The feature which excited the deepest interest, was the trader procession. As each trade appeared with its banner and greeted the Emperor he returned the salute as cordially as he had that of the military, and he made particular enquiries from the burgomaster-president, as to the condition and history of each trade. The Kaiser visited the various places of interest in the old city and was shown the ancient armour, which the men of Lubeck wore when they defended their city against the victorious Swedes.

The Kaiser said he hoped to see the day, when Lubeck and all the Hansetowns would again be the great depots of European commerce, trading successfully with the most distant parts of the world, as they once did within the narrow domain of medieval commerce.
He said that he would spare no labor on his part to build up the commercial interests of the Empire, and also to create what was indispensable for a prosperous commerce, a powerful and efficient navy.

Sensor Mann, chief of the Senatorial committee on navigation and commerce, returned a hearty approval of the Kaiser's sentiments, and an expression of confidence that the Imperial policy would be crowned with the greatest success. The whole incident must have been to the Kaiser, in its civic surroundings and comparative freedom from military pomp and display, a pleasant relief from his continuous round of inspecting garrisons and ironclads. It is stated that the Kaiser has requested his mother to return from England.

NOW A DUTIFUL SON.

One of the remarkable features of German politics is the ascendancy which the Emperor Frederick has acquired over his son. That she was her husband's guide and counselor is well known, and between the two there subsisted deep attachment as well as the respectful regard which Bismarck drove her and tried to drive her into retirement; she was the only person he feared, for he understood her. The effort to separate her from her son and make the son the tool of Bismarck failed, and the general belief is that the Empress mother has succeeded to Bismarck's ascendancy, and that her son depends on her largely for counsel and guidance.
As a politician she is considered far superior to her mother, Queen Victoria, whose good qualities are rather negative, while the Empress Frederick is positive and original. It is a saying in Berlin that her presence is the best security for the peace of Europe. It is also said that Queen Victoria relies far more upon the advice of her daughter than upon that of the Prince of Wales.
The fact that the Kaiser requested his mother's return is believed to indicate that he meditates some serious movement in domestic or foreign policy.

Active Operations.
Protection Island is no longer a scene of beautiful solitude, nor shunned by humanity. There is bustle and activity everywhere, consequent upon the sinking of the shaft to connect with the works in mine No. 1 of the new V.C. Co. Messrs. Richards and Bray, Nanaimo are the contractors and have already gone down 60 feet. A strong sulphur spring, which hurt the eyes of the workmen, was the principal difficulty they had to contend with. The company are working three eight men shifts daily.

Presbyterian Mission.
From advices received from Toronto, says the Colonist, it is learned that the Home Mission Committee of the Presbyterian Church at its meeting last week granted all that was asked, $7,000 in aid of work charges within the bounds of the Presbyterian of Columbia for next year. This will secure the continuance of all the laborers now in the field, and the appointment of ordained missionaries to the following new points, North and Ashcroft, Kettle River and Rock Creek, Surrey and Mud Bay, Northfield and Alberni. The Presbyterian of Calgary has charge of the work in British Columbia as far west as Revelstoke. The sum of $7,000 was granted in aid of work charges in the territory, extending from Quebec to Victoria, B.C.

To Reclaim Land.
The petition of Messrs. McGillivray, Chadsey and other owners of land in the district of New Westminster, recently presented to the Legislature in favor of the B. C. Improvement company's bill, sets forth that they are desirous that the company should be incorporated with the powers and privileges asked for, and are willing to contribute and pay towards the said works for all lands under the level of the high water of 1882 (which is the highest known water), the aggregate amount of $5 per acre for prairie lands, and $10 per acre for bush lands. They are further willing to pay interest on the several amounts at the rate of seven per cent., from the completion of the dyke. They further expect that the waters of creek known as Yoder creek shall be turned into some other channel to prevent any of said waters flowing into Sumas Prairie.

Will Worth Listening To.
The Victoria Colonist thus speaks of the performance of the Weber Quartet company, who appeared there on Friday evening last, and who are to occupy Herring's Opera House on Tuesday evening:
The Weber Quartet company, like the preceding entertainers in the Star course, was well worth listening to. There were ten members on the programme last evening, all of which were loudly enjoyed. The quartets are all good singers, their voices blend in perfect harmony. Mr. H. D. Andrew, second bass, has particularly sweet melody. The soprano soloist, Master Harry Trux, took the house by storm. The young gentleman's voice differs but little from a lady's, and is perfectly cultivated. Master Harry Trux is a little the expert on the violin. He is about the best young violinist that has ever played before a Victoria audience. Not too much praise can be given the pianist, Miss Anna Bannan Andrew.

She is a Clipper.
As she was "born" here, the following very interesting item about the steamer Calcedonia, published in the Victoria Colonist, will be read with interest by Westminster people: The Hudson's Bay company steamer Calcedonia, which will ply between Port Simpson and Hamilton, on the Skeena River, will make her trial trip on Tuesday, the 11th inst. The Calcedonia is a little vessel, but she is a clipper. She is in all probability, turn out to be the fastest boat ever built in this Province. The captain says she will discount the Gertrude, the fastest boat that ever sailed on Northern waters. The steamer has a five foot boiler, 3 feet in diameter and 20 feet all over. She has a stern wheel, 16 1/2 feet in diameter, with 15 foot bucket, and her engines are 6 foot stroke, with two 16 inch cylinders, and her other dimensions are: Beam, 24 1/2 feet; draught, 5 feet. A steam capitan and pair of five inch cylinders, with seven inch stroke, will be used, with this extra power, that she will overcome any current that she may encounter. The Calcedonia is the first steamer that will attempt to go through Oster Lane Canoe. The Calcedonia will leave about the 15th inst. for the North, and will deliver supplies to the Hudson's Bay Company stations along her route.
