The Suffrage Question Supersedes Every Other in Belgium.

GREAT CHANGES EXPECTED THERE

Italy's Military Service System to Be Reduced to Two Years.

ANTI-SEMITICISM IN AUSTRIA

Bismarck Intends to Return to Reside in the German Capital.

LONDON, March 21.—Facts are fast bearing out the prediction, that 1891 would prove a very eventful year for Belgium. Indeed the turn taken by the suffrage agitation since the Brussels house of representatives agreed on the the introduction of M. Jansen's bill for the revision of clauses 47, 73 and 56 of the constitution has been such as to startle many foreign onlookers and awaken public attention throughout Europe. Almost every week has been bringing forth some fresh and exciting incident pointing to the conclusion that the Belgian monarchy is entering upon just such a crisis as that which King Leopold's grandfather, Louis Phillippe, had to face in France from 1846 to 1848, when, through the obstinacy of the Guizot cabinet, it came to an evil end. There is no doubt that the army, recruited as it is on the conscription system from the ranks of the very classes that are clamoring for the franchise, cannot be counted on to quell any disturbances arising out of the suffrage agitation. A host of eminent but retired generals, who severely denounce the defects of the present military system and the sluggish policy of the present minister of war, General Ponthus, urge from a military point of view a wide extension of the suffrage. Their plea is that an invasion of Belgium by a French or German army would find

BELGIUM TOTALLY POWERLESS

In spite of the costly fortifications which General Brealmont is erecting in the valley of the Meuse. The military forces being neither sufficient in numbers nor strong enough in loyalty to be seriously reckoned, compulsory military service according to these high authorities has become an absolute want; but this, they contend, can only be attained through universal suffrage, seeing that the small, well-to-do class, in which political power is solely vested, will never forego its privilege of escaping military service, unless compelled to do so by the weight of popular opinion expressed at the polls. Another feature of the situation is the extraordinary steadiness of purpose, with which the workingmen's party maintain their demands for full and unconditional suffrage, and resolutely prepare for the contingency of a disappointment on that score. Their threat is that they will compel the upper ten thousand to grant their demand by a general strike of labor throughout the country; and to this end the working classes are not only saving as much as they can of their daily earnings, but steadily procuring outside resources by means of a subscription fund known as Le denier de la Greve Generale, or, Anglice, the "general strike levy."

LITTLE GREEN TICKETS

representing a receipt for a penny, are being offered throughout the country to sympathizers with the suffrage demands, and are slowly building for the laboring classes the means to carry out if need be a bitter war of the masses against the classes. Meanwhile, not a single stone do they leave unturned to attain their end by the simple force of persuasion, having resolved from the first to act on their own account, without indentifying themselves with any political party, Liberals or Clerical, Radical or Conservative. They are appealing therein to the sympathies or fear of each and all, not caring from whose hand they may secure the right to vote, so long as they do secure it. They have petitioned the king himself in his palace and have also appealed to the bishops on the ground of Christianity and social peace. Thus it will be seen, that the demand for the revision of the constitution and the establishment of universal suffrage is being conducted with astonishing resolution, deliberation and ability by a class of men, evidently intent upon receiving it by any means, gentle or violent, constitutional or not. The Conservative cabinet have made up their minds to accept the principle of revising the franchise clauses of the constitution, and while opposing universal suffrage, to suggest such a compromise, as a measure of household suffrage, somewhat on the lines of the English system. The only question that remains is, whether the measure of reform, which the house of representatives may decide upon granting, will satisfy the masses and avert the fierce struggle for which the workingmen are preparing. The social peace of Belgium, the safety of its monarch, and the present position of the "Buffer" state towards its powerful neighbors all appear staked upon the problem.

BISMARCK LOVES HOME LIFE.

The purchase by Prince Bismarck of two houses in Berlin is accepted as evidence of his intention to sit in the Reichstag. His main objection to going back to [illegible] he might have to live in a hotel. The Prince is strongly attached to home life; and if he allows himself to be called back again to the capital he will take his family with him. Of course, apart from this, the houses are a good investment. The Prince, however, shows an attachment for Friedrichsruhe, and has refused the tempting offer of a Hamburg syndicate for the erection of a number of villas on the shores of the small [illegible], the so-called mill pond behind the castle. It is the prettiest part of the estate, and the Prince wishes to keep it intact during his lifetime.

RETALIATING ON THE GERMANS.

The news that the American President has ordered Minister Phelps to notify the German Empire that the United States proposes to retaliate for the exclusion of American pork, has caused widespread consternation in Germany. The German manufacturers have not noticed any serious diminution of export to America under the McKinley Bill; and an embargo on a trade, which of late years has become very important, would be a staggering blow to German industry. The German officials affect not to believe that such instructions have been sent, but according to the latest Berlin advices, they, too, are in a state of mind. The prohibition of American pork has been enforced by the authorities with exaggerated severity. The custom house officers have watched for it with lynx eyes, and it has been the rule when any was seized to drench it with kerosene and burn it up, and not allow it to be sold for the benefit of the customs, apparently for fear the people would find out it was good to eat. The order of the American President, if actually sent, places the German Imperial government in a dilemma between the agricultural classes in whose interest the prohibition has been maintained and the industrial classes, who want the pork and also want to keep on making American goods.

A WHEEL WITHIN A WHEEL.

The friends of Mr. E. H. Jackson, who carried off his wife at Clitheroe, the lady having just been released by order of the appellate court, say that there is another side to the story. Mr. Jackson has a lawyer named Baldwin for a relative by marriage; that is, Baldwin is the husband of Mr. Jackson's sister. It is claimed in Jackson's behalf that influence in that direction has been brought to bear to keep her away from Jackson. Of course, with Jackson alive and apart from her, Mrs. Jackson could get no divorce under English law, no matter how he behaved elsewhere, cruelty as well as violation of the seventh commandment being required to enable a wife to get a divorce, and the courts have substantially refused to stretch the meaning of cruelty beyond personal maltreatment. Therefore Mrs. Jackson, separated from her husband, and wealthy in her own right, must remain practically a spinster, with Mrs. Baldwin as a natural heir. Hence Jackson's friends claim the furious haste of Baldwin, after the abduction, to storm Jackson's house and rescue Mrs. Jackson, as he termed it. The police were withdrawn from the house at Mrs. Jackson's request, who told the chief constable that she intended to remain until released by a court of law. During her stay in the house, which belongs to Jackson's brother, Colonel Jackson, a gentleman of excellent standing, she was treated as a guest and in no way intruded upon either by her husband or others. It is thought possible now that Mrs. Jackson has vindicated her right to freedom she may go back to her husband of her own accord. More will be heard of the case.

A Rome dispatch says that Premier Rudini is preparing for additional economies in the administration, and that his plan involves a reduction of the term of army service from three years to two. This will be generally welcomed by the people, and will release to their homes and to industry many thousands of young men in the best period of life. The efficiency of the navy, now one of the finest in the world, is to be fully maintained and to that Italy will hereafter chiefly devote attention. Italy now is strong enough to hold the mediterranean against any power except England and France, and it is for this reason that Italy is valuable in the triple alliance. There is no foundation whatever for the report that the lives of foreigners have been in danger in Italy during the past week.

ANTI-SEMITIC AGITATION.

A peculiar feature of the anti-Semitic agitation now going on in Austria is that it has its strongest hold among the purely German constituencies, in this respect differing from Russia, where the more intelligent public sentiment favors tolerance of the Jews. In Austria, too, the franchise is restricted in such a way that there can be no doubt of the more substantial class of the community having spoken in the recent elections. The verdict of German-Austria is therefore for some restriction on the Hebrews who, it is claimed, are absorbing the wealth of the country. Nevertheless, it is stated as beyond doubt that neither the Emperor nor Count Taafe will approve any measure of intolerance. The Austrian court already maintains an impassable social barrier against the Hebrew race, irrespective of wealth or condition, but it declines to go further, and anti-Semiticism in Austria can amount to nothing more than public agitation.

The German Socialists intend to be largely represented in the Socialist congress in Brussels next August.

The stokers and trimmers at Hamburg have all returned to work and the strike is over.

Prince Henry of Battenberg, son-in-law of Queen Victoria, has entirely recovered his health since he discarded his highland costume for trousers.

There is considerable excitement at Stuttgart over a police raid on the houses of men prominent in the socialist cause. Papers have been seized in several instances and two arrests have been made.

THE REBELS AUGMENTED.

A report has reached Buenos Ayres from Chili to the effect that the revolutionists have been joined by the mayor and part of the garrison of Valparaiso.

The Times publishes a dispatch from Santiago de Chili which says, "Considerable excitement has been caused here by the report which comes from Buenos Ayres that President Balmaceda's new war vessels, the Admiral Lynch and the Condell, which were at Buenos Ayres, have escaped the insurgent cruisers sent to intercept them and that they may soon be taking an active part in the struggle now going on in this country. The whole population, the nitrate syndicates, the foreign capitalists and the clergy, except [illegible] side with Senor Balmaceda. There is no analogy between the trouble now going on in the Argentine Republic and the troubles here. The President and Ministers have guaranteed that funds will be deposited in Europe for the payment of the July interest on the national debt. It is believed that the delay in the suppression of the troubles here is only due to the hesitation of the government and that the crushing out of the insurrection is only a question of a few weeks.

MORE DRIVING RACES.

English sporting men are satisfied with the decision in the Lonsdale driving case, and it is now said Earl Shrewsbury will go over the 20mile course covered by Lonsdale to see if he cannot improve upon the latter's time. The police will probably not take the trouble to arrest him now that the court has dismissed the complaint against Lord Lonsdale for fast driving.

MAD WITH DRINK

Harry Martin, a Prominent Society Man of Washington,

BREAKS INTO THE WHITE HOUSE

And is Only Secured After a Most Desperate Struggle.

END OF THE SIX DAYS RACE

California Getting More Than Her Share of Japanese Immigrants.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Harry Martin, a stepson of Senator Vance of North Carolina, jumped through the blinds and window of the red room in the executive mansion at 9 o'clock tonight in one leap, and landed upon the floor prone. The crash of breaking glass attracted the attention of Officers Dubois and Kenny on duty in the mansion, who at once rushed into the room. There, sprawling upon the floor lay a large, well formed man dressed only in his pants, undershirt and shoes. He had been slightly stunned by his fall, but upon the approach of the officers immediately began an attack upon them. After a severe struggle, in which Martin was almost divested of the few clothes he had on, he was overpowered and ropes being brought he was bound hand and foot and sent to the first precinct police station in an ambulance. The struggle in overcoming Martin created the greatest uproar, and the President rushed down stairs from the second story where he was sitting with his family, and witnessed the struggle. He had seized a heavy cane as he came and stood by ready to render the officers assistance if needed. While being bound Martin uttered the most foul language, which could be heard all over the house. The affair made Mrs. Harrison and the ladies of the mansion very nervous during the remainder of the evening. Martin is a well known young man about town and quite popular in social and club circles. He has been drinking freely of late and tonight was bordering on delirium tremens. He had escaped from some friends, scaled the fence in rear of the White House grounds, traversed the grounds in a quick run, ascended the winding stairs in rear of the executive mansion and bounded into the red room. Tonight Martin is confined in a cell in the station house. His friends express the deepest mortification at his escapade. Gen. Joseph E. Johnston died at 11:45 tonight.

Has Their Confidence.

ROME, March 21.—The Chamber of Deputies today discussed the revised budget and adopted a vote of confidence in the government 256 to 96.

A Retaliatory Measure.

MONTREAL, March 21.—It is reported that the United States authorities have issued a peremptory order that detailed invoices must accompany all shipments in bond carried through the State of Maine for inspection. This is regarded as the first retaliatory measure for the Liberals.

Talking It Over.

DUBLIN, March, 21.—Mr. Parnell is in this city conferring with the leaders of the Cork election committee in regard to Mr. Healy's challenge. The Parnell leadership committee has passed a resolution of thanks for the generosity of New York to the Parnell envoys. The convention of Irish delegates at New castle adopted resolutions of a lack of confidence in Mr. Parnell.

Better Than Chinese.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21.—The Steamer Oceanic brought 46 Japanese and 32 Chinese passengers. Japanese are flocking away from Japan and California seems to be getting more than its fair share. The China steamer rarely brought more than three or four. Now every steamer brings from 50 to 60. Forty-six who arrived this morning are laborers and their destination is Sonoma, where they will go to work in vineyards.

Green Houses Burned.

ISLIP, Long Island, March 21.—Eleven large green houses, belonging to the celebrated Idle Hour Farm of Wm. K. Vanderbilt, were burned this morning. The loss is estimated at from $75,000 to $100,000. The fire was started by an explosion of a portion of the heating apparatus. Only a few plants and ferns were saved and the most valuable were destroyed by fire. These green houses are famous. They contained many plants of ferns, some of which were 200 years old. The celebrated rose house is also included in the loss. This was said to contain the finest specimes of roses in the country.

Grip Among the Police.

NEW YORK, March 21.—The grip has again made its appearance in this city. It has taken hold of the police force in earnest; 166 of its members are on the sick list with it.

END OF WALKING MATCH.

The score at the close of the six-days' walking match was: Hughes, 558 miles, Bennet, 540 miles 6 laps, Moore, 530 miles 1 lap; Hegleman, 526 miles 3 laps; Herty, 525 miles 5 laps; Noremac, 525 miles; Peach, 300 miles.

The greatest fizzle of a six-day race that was ever held in this or any other city came to an end shortly after 10 o'clock. Hughes, the old veteran, carried off the honors, such as they were. He covered 558 miles, leading his nearest competitor by eighteen miles. During the week he had less rest than any other man in the race with the exception of Moore.

NO SURVIVORS.

The steamer Weber from Cardiff, March 3rd, for Rio Janeiro, was caught in the recent gale and dismasted. She sprung a leak and despite the efforts of the crew with the pumps she continued rapidly to sink. On the 11th she foundered and the fourteen men on board were all drowned.

A CRUSHING DEFEAT

Inflicted Yesterday By Vancouver On the Westminster Football Team.

The football match between Vancouver and Westminster was played at Queen's Park yesterday afternoon. The game was a very tame affair after the first ten minutes, during which the ball was kept about midway between the goals; but from that out the Vancouver men had it all their own way; and when half time was called the score stood in favor of Vancouver, one goal and two tries for nothing. After half time things took even a worse turn than before, and the Westminster team were outplayed at every point, the leather being perpetually at the goals of the home team, and the game ending in three goals and three tries to nothing.

Of the Vancouver team J. O. Benwell, A. G. Malcom and A. B. Williams distinguished themselves, but on the home team it would be hard to say that any very good play was made, although Morrison, Lister and Allen certainly showed that they knew something about the game. During the last half of the match F. Turner and B. Peele were injured so as to stop them from any further play, Mr. Turner having one of his ribs broken and Mr. Peele his leg badly twisted. The following gentlemen represented Vancouver: F. May, back; A. B. Williams, J. Lawrenson, A. Creery, ¾ backs; R. M. Fripp, R. E Palmer, A. P. Horner, J. Donson, R. G. Harvey, P. Evans, G. Bland, H. Alexander, A. G. Malcom (captain), forwards; E. Rossellli, ¾ back; F. M. Chaldecott, forward, reserves.

Clever Dramatic Amateurs.

The New Westminster Amateur Dramatic Club had a rehearsal last night which was very successful. This company will on the 15th and 16th of next month produce the following plays: "Box and Cox," followed by "Down by the Sea," on the 15th; and "Nan, or Good for Nothing," followed by "Down by the Sea," on the 16th. As to the actors, little need be said, as they are picked from the best of Westminster's amateurs, and all know the success of their previous productions. On both evenings the orchestra will consist of the Artillery band, the undoubted excellence of which is now well established.

The Ladies' Innings.

The Royal City Debating Society held their discussion last night in Temperance Hall, Mr. A. Hamilton in the chair. There was a full house, and the speakers were listened to with great attention. The subject was, "That the Franchise Should Be Extended to Women." And Messrs. W. W. Forrester, McMillan, Howell and Brydone-Jack ably championed their cause. The negative side was well defended by Messrs. Gordon and Merrison, and both sides maintained the wordy war with great reason and humor. At the close Mr. J. Wise, who had abstained from making a speech, was appointed judge, and after an impartial summing up decided that the affirmative had it. The verdict was received with a round of applause. The ladies' gallery was occupied by several of the fair sex, whose interested attention proved the importance of the debate to them. The subject for next Saturday is, "That in Some Cases It is Right to Sacrifice Principle to Expediency." Affirmative Mr. Gordon; Negative Mr. Brydone-Jack.

Threatened Calamity Averted.

British Columbia has everything that goes to make a country truly great, and she also does not possess that which makes the teeth of her editors grate—a spring poet of the "hail gentle spring, ethereal," etc., variety. It was told a MORNING LEDGER reporter yesterday that a young gentleman in this city was preparing an ode to the vernal season, and was going to have it published in one of the local papers. But this young man has reckoned without his editor. It may be asked with some show of pardonable indignation, does this young gentleman, toiling up Parnassus' brow, imagine that he can spring this ode to spring on a guileless and unsuspecting public through the columns of the city press? In the language of the average man, no, sir, not much; not while there is a good, faithful waste paper basket between the people and this dire engine of modern disquiet. The residents by Fraser's classic banks don't yearn for poetry a little bit. If they ever do, there is a whole lot of other fellows they would much rather read than Thomas', Richard's or Henry's effusions in the corner of a local paper.

Ford's Whereabouts.

It appears that when J. A. Ford, who mysteriously disappeared from this city on Sunday, arrived at New Westminster he put up his horse at Gilley Bros. stables, and said that he would leave for Blaine in the morning. After making arrangements for a man to drive over with him and bring back the rig, he went up to the Colonial Hotel, where he stayed the night. He left in the morning about 8 o'clock with a hackman, and told a friend he met on the ferry that he was going on a trip for the benefit of his health. He told the hackman that he was going to Fairhaven from Blaine, and from there to Seattle and Sumas, where he intended to purchase some acre property, after which he would return to Vancouver. Ford had only two small valises with him. On arriving at Blaine Ford paid the hackman $12 and he returned to New Westminster. [illegible] Mr. Queen, who got anxious about it and telephoned over to Gilley Bros. asking them if they had seen anything of it. On learning that it was with them he went over to New Westminster and brought back the horse and rig.

Up to the present nothing further has been heard of Ford's movements, and many conjectures are being made by people in the city.—News-Advertiser.

Spotted at Last.

CHICAGO, March 20.—Detective O'Malley of New Orleans is said to be in Chicago. He left New Orleans and is reported to have been seen at the Grand Pacific Hotel on Monday night in company with Seligman, foreman of the jury in the Hennessey case. The rumor is that O'Malley came here from Cincinnati and is hiding with one of his friends, a prominent saloonkeeper. The latter denies he is here.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The persecution of the Jews in Russia affects more than a third of the total number of known Hebrews scattered throughout the world, it being estimated that there are over nine millions of them in all, of whom more than eight millions are in Europe. Russia and Russian Poland together contain nearly four millions, whilst the Austrian Emperor rules over about three millions. At least 600,000 others are in Germany, more than 200,000 in England, and nearly 300,000 others now live in and near the ancient home of their race in Asia Minor, Syria and Palestine. Recent immigration has also greatly increased their numbers in the United States, where there must now be at least five hundred thousand, an aggregate that will ere long be more than double. The estimated number of Jews in the world probably represents far less than their real aggregate, for even in lands like England, where they enjoy perfect religious liberty, many of them decline to be known as Jews and disguise the fact in every possible way, even to changing their original names to others very remotely resembling them. Thus Moses often reappears, as Montagu, or Moss; Levy become Lewis; Solomon changes to Salmon, whilst other Hebrews anglicise their names still more completely by adopting famous patronymics. The name of Howard for example now stands for many a well to do Jew who has not the remotest blood connection with the family of which the present Duke of Norfolk is the head.

Well managed fire insurance companies pay well, despite their large occasional losses. One of them which does a good business in this city, the Manchester Fire Assurance Company, earned last year in premiums £200,204, and paid losses of £111,158, or 55 per cent. Working expenses being added to these losses, there yet remained a surplus of profit, including interest, of £40,321. This enabled a 10 per cent dividend to be paid to the shareholders. A surplus being still left, and £100,000 having also been received as premiums on new capital, the company was able, notwithstanding its large dividend, to add £179,071 to the invested funds and thus further secure insurers.

Large numbers of men are said to be only awaiting the disappearance of the snow from the hills, and the clearing of the mountain trails, to make for the Nelson district, whither there will shortly be an exodus of [illegible] workers, not only from Vancouver, but also from Spokane, Butte City, Montana and even far off Denver. Vast mounds of dumped out ore are already heaped up at many points in and about Nelson, and only await the coming of railways, the bringing of fuel, and the setting up of smelters to yield a rich harvest to their owners. Some of these owners have, it is stated, expended very large sums in obtaining claims and employing labor to unearth vast spoil heaps from them. Dr. HENDRYX, perhaps the best known among them, has thus laid out about $100,000. He is, however, confident that notwithstanding this large expenditure, he has "down in the dumps" silver treasure that will ere long smelt out to yield an abundant profit.

The Electric Tramway

Mr. B. Douglas, vice-president, and Mr. S. T. Mackintosh, secretary, of the Westminster and Vancouver Tramway Company, went over the Vancouver yesterday on business connected with the company and returned home last evening. It is the intention of the company to push the work through, and by reference to our advertising columns it will be seen that the time for receiving tenders for the clearing and grading of the line between the city and Vancouver will expire on Tuesday next.

Mr. Maxwell, of the Edison General Electric Company, has been in the city for the past week, making arrangements for the construction of the overhead work and electrical equipment of the line. He expects to begin work in the city early next week, and with a large force of men will push the work rapidly to completion. The power house will be located on Lot 96, about six miles from this city.

WHY I DID NOT BECOME A CHURCHMAN.

To the MORNING LEDGER: Sir,—In these days of cant and sham, the motives that induce people to change their religious beliefs are generally trivial and sometimes of a very questionable character. Every observer will perceive that some people attend a church because its members are wealthy or fashionable, others go where they hear good music or an eloquent speaker, and even some seek safety in sanctuaries because they think that by so doing they will bring custom to their stores or places of business. Young men often attend service because the best looking girls are, and others fall madly in love sometimes with the communication of their fathers' faith as a means to the condition of a matrimonial alliance. I have known a young lady to leave a church because its rules forbade dancing, and I did not blame her very much for not being willing to submit to such a restriction. A distant relative of mine once joined the Episcopal church because she had a good voice and there were better opportunities of displaying it in the English Church than in the Scottish.

My knowledge of this insincerity in religious matters and a lurking suspicion in the mind of the sensitive proselyte may despise those who renounce the religious teachings of their parents, and may make him magnify the reasons for his change of faith and sometimes to make an apology to the public for his conduct.

Some weeks ago, in a public address delivered in this city, the Rev. Mr. Tovey gave his reasons for becoming an Anglican, and it is only by such considerations as the foregoing, that I can account for the misstatements and misarguments of that lecture. I will examine it fully and point out all the errors contained would require more space in your valuable space than you could possibly give. I will therefore deal with it piece by piece.

1. He says only one church for 1500 years, "Christ, and no dissent," said he. Now, this statement is not true. If the lecturer contradicted himself he reached the end of his tether, for he said that Cyprian, Origen and Tertullian condemned those who had dissented from their church and set up independent churches. Every reader of church history is familiar with the names of Felicissimus and Novatian, the latter of whom founded religious communities all over the Roman Empire. The Donatists were also dissenters. And is it not a fact that the educated son of an Anglican or Puritan has not heard of the Waldenses among the valleys of Savoy and Piedmont, from time immemorial, dissenters from the time of the Apostles, and a religious system at variance with the teachings of Rome. Ignorant of history and literature must that man be who knows nothing about that sorely persecuted people whose sufferings form the most sublime poet in Puritan, and immortalized in the mightiest sonnet ever written:

"Lord! thy slaughtered saints whose bones
Lie scattered on the Alpine mountains cold;
Even them who kept thy truth so pure of old
When all our fathers worshipt stocks and stones."

The opening lines of that sublime outburst of righteous indignation. All the centuries there were those who sought to bring back the church to the purity of doctrine from which it had fallen, and some of them, when they saw the task hopeless, separated from the church is right, dissent is right, and Mr. Tovey. Now, this assertion would be true if the church were free from error; but it is not. The church teaches one thing and its opposite, dissent is certainly right. For instance, if any ecclesiastical authority should declare that it is my duty to appear every morning at an early hour in a sacred edifice and ring a bell to let the world know that I am going to pray, and Christ tells me to enter my closet and pray in secret; and if I reject this spiritual teaching and obey the command of Jesus, I may be called a dissenter and I am right. An infallible church is always right; but there is no infallible institution on earth. Study the creeds of the religious denominations and if you be pleased to call Catholic, you will not find the faintest trace of infallibility. Looking backwards, I find all the institutions bearing my name stained with the blood of martyrs. Under the teaching of the church that cannot err, men, women and children, during the fanatical English Queen were put to death in the most cruel and brutal manner, on account of their religious opinions. Today I opened Foxe's "Book of Martyrs," a work whose illustrations are indelibly, and as an inefaceable impression on my memory, and as I read the doings and sayings of bishops and others when sitting as judges and those who denied the doctrine of transubstantiation, and confess to be burned to ashes, it is not to be wondered at that imagination could not even in the lowest depths of hell, or any fiends more infernal and more execrable, more lost to every feeling of humanity, than those dignitaries of the church called a true church. I believe that these men were not the spirit of Jesus, that they were not recipients of his favor, and that they could impart divine grace by the laying on of their murderous hands.

Another argument Mr. Tovey gave as an Episcopalian is that "dissent is a negation and there is no certainty in a negative." This is not an argument of the reverend gentleman, for I have seen it in a book written by Mr. Little, a man who holds different views as Mr. Tovey, and now I can partly excuse my dear friend for saying anything that I have said about. Negation is not always less than affirmation, for as the poet says, every ne hath its yea. The reverend gentleman, in the above statement, was speaking in accordance with good sense of logic and inspiration, I affirm that he is wrong in both, and all intelligent people who heard him would say there was uncertainty in my negation. If I affirm that the bread and wine of the Lord's Supper are changed into the body and blood of Christ, I assert that these two elements are still bread and wine, and I deny that the English Church and its creeds are infallible, I assert the fallible. Eight out of the ten statements are negative in form, but they are as certain in their import as if they were affirmative. So much for this sophistry.

Further, says Mr. Tovey, think for yourself on the Bible, they will be led by the aid of the Holy Spirit, to read it, and will be led into the truth, whilst he holds that the only way to arrive at truth is to accept the interpretation given by the creeds and councils of the church. The reverend gentleman herein dissents from the doctrine contained in the 39 articles, which declare that councils "may err and sometimes erred even in things pertaining unto God," and that the Church of Rome hath also "erred in matters of faith." I myself am also a dissenter in this respect, and claim the right of private judgment, because Christ tells me to search the scriptures" to "prove all things, and hold fast that which is good." But where shall we find that "concensus of opinion" on the interpretation of the scriptures, which Mr. Tovey says has existed for 1,800 years, and which, if a person accepts, he shall be like him who "emerges from dim twilight into the brightness of a summer's day?" Certainly not among the most learned bishops and divines in the Church of England. Here is the way they agree: Potter and Hall declare prelacy of divine appointment, and Bishop Stillingfleet flatly contradicts them. Hammond declares that there were no presbyters, while Dodwell teaches that all were presbyters at first, except a bishop or pope at Jerusalem, and that episcopacy was not introduced till the second century, while other divines hold there were bishops, presbyters and deacons. One set of bishops preach the doctrine of predestination, while another set denounce it. Some advocate the doctrine of original sin, others deny it. Many declare that baptismal regeneration and prayers for the dead are doctrines of the English Church, whilst others assert that it is a libel on that establishment to say it promulgates such errors. In the English Church you will find Calvinists, Arminians, Socinians, Arians, and half-papists, with many other whose religious opinion can not be defined.

I therefore deny that there is unity of opinion even on essential points in the denomination to which Mr. Tovey belongs. It would be hard to find a body of Christians more affected with schism than the English Church. I venture to assert that the majority of those who attend the ministrations in Trinity Church in this city do not believe in the prelatical pretensions and doctrines taught by its curate. We have two Episcopal churches in this city whose teachings are at variance. Every intelligent person must perceive that there are two great sects in the Church of England, one of which is trying to crush the evangelical spirit out of it and make Protestants "as rare as dodos," and the other, by holding to the 39 articles and the scriptures, to retain the teachings of the Reformers.

5. Mr. Tovey says that dissenters are disingenuous; that they accept only parts of the sacred writings. I deny this, for evangelical churches hold more closely to the Bible than Episcopalians, who have to some extent substituted the prayer book and traditions of men for the sacred oracles. Calvin was conscientious when he said: "Nobody has yet appeared who could prove that we have altered any one thing which God has commanded, or that we have appointed anything contrary to His Word."

6. Mr. Tovey says, "Dissent is not historical," and that Christ founded an organization resembling a monarchy with officials of different ranks. Now, the early history of the church does not show that it resembled a monarchy. It was more like a family, or a communistic society where all things were held in common. It resembled a republic, for its officers were elected by the vote of its members, and in this important respect it differed from the Episcopal Church. The apostle who took the place of Judas was elected to that bishoprick by the votes of the people, whose authority to perform such an act is ignored by Episcopalians. The fourteenth chapter of Acts describes a missionary tour of Paul and Barnabas and it says they ordained elders in every church "by show of hands," for this is the true rendering of the 23rd verse. In apostolic times there was no office similar to that of the bishops of the English Church, who are overseers of the pastors of the church. Scripture and the most learned of the Fathers teach that bishops and presbyters were the same. As Jerome in the 4th century very properly puts it: "A presbyter is the same as a bishop; and before there were, by the devil's instinct, parties in religion, the churches were governed by the common council of presbyters,"—in other words they were Presbyterian. There were no lord bishops in those days, and Timothy was reminded of the fact when Paul wrote him not to be a "lord over God's heritage, but an ensample to the flock." Christ himself rebuked those who sought preeminence among his own followers, by declaring that although those who ruled over the Gentiles were lords, it should not be so among his disciples. In fact he reversed the order of things by saying that he who is greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven must be the servant of all.

Another of Mr. Tovey's assertions is that every man who claims to be a minister must derive his authority from some prelate whose power to confer office depends on an unbroken series of ordinations reaching to the Apostles. I deny that this hypothesis is true. The reverend gentlemen is in the same error that John, the disciple was in, who thought that only himself and fellow-disciples to whom Jesus had given authority to preach and cast out devils, had a right to these things. He therefore forbade a man he saw casting out devils because this worker of miracles would not unite himself to them as a disciple. But Jesus told John to forbid him not, and said there were only two classes, those who were for him and those against him. He also added that whosoever offended one of those who believed in him, it were better that a millstone were hanged about his neck and that he were cast into the sea. This not only proves that religion is above ecclesiastical authority, but it also shows the ineffable compassion and sweet reasonableness of the divine Christ, who judges men by the intent of their hearts, not by conformity to rules or usages.

But Mr. Tovey speaks as if all the authority to preach were in him who ordains a minister. He might as well say the President of the United States derives his authority from the man who administers the oath and installs him in office, instead of from the people who elected him. Ordination was performed by the presbytery in olden times, not by a bishop. It is merely the solemn induction to office of him who has been called of God and elected to the ministry of a church by the votes of its members; and when one considers the relation that believers sustain to Christ, that they are called sons and daughters of the Almighty, as well as kings and priests, it is difficult for him to see why, under extraordinary circumstances, this rite may not be performed by members of the church, instead of by presbyters, who are merely the overseers and representatives of the people.

But Mr. Tovey was not satisfied in setting forth a specious sorites to prove the necessity of Apostolic succession; he had to deduce as a corollary from it that the Presbyterian denomination is not a church, and it has no foundation, because the authority of its ministers is derived from Luther and not through an unbroken series of ordinations from the Apostles. And here I may say, by the way of digression, this statement is neither true in point of fact nor inference. The Scottish reformers were not ordained by Luther. Knox, Gordon and others were educated as bishops and priests of the Romish church, and as such had full power to ordain. The succession, therefore, in the Scottish church is as clear and as good as in the English. Indeed, I believe all the churches in our city have Apostolic succession; so that if Mr. Tovey is to make converts to Episcopalianism, he must use other arguments.

But I deny that there is an unbroken succession in the Church of England. In order to establish this theory of apostolic succession, it is necessary to prove the validity of the baptism and of the ordination of each person in the line of descent. Cardinal Newman, who could not conscientiously hold Mr. Tovey's views and remain in the English Church, says: "What I have seen in the Anglican Church makes it very difficult for me to deny that every now and then a bishop was consecrated who had never been baptized. Some bishops have been brought up in the North as Presbyterians, others as dissenters, others as low churchmen, others have been baptized in the careless, perfunctory way once so common. There is much reason to believe that some consecrators were not bishops, for the simple reason that they were not Christians." Archbishop Whately says: "Those who are trying to vindicate the apostolic character of our church do seem to me to be removing our institutions from a foundation on a rock to place them on sand, and instead of establishing its divine claims, are substituting something self-contradictory and subversive of every church's claims." Hooker, the author of "Ecclesiastical Polity," speaks of breaks in the apostolic chain of succession, and says that it is not necessary to an effectual ordination that it be always performed by a bishop.

Mr. Tovey himself seems to me to be one of the greatest dissenters in the city. He dissents from Protestantism and rejects some of the teachings of the Reformers. He also dissents from the Church of Rome on points which, according to the "concensus of opinion" in that establishment, places him outside of the fold of Christ. To use his own dictum, if the Romish Church is right the English is wrong, and if the bishops and councils of that church are infallible, Mr. Tovey is a heretic and a schismatic. It does not require much perspicacity to perceive the unenviable position the reverend gentleman occupies. He is neither Romanist nor Protestant. Like the bird of which Æsop wrote, he has arrayed himself in the plumage of Rome but not sufficiently well to deceive the keen eyes that watch him from the banks of the Tiber.

10. Will any Protestant in Westminster say that I am unjust or too severe in writing this about the curate of Trinity Church? Then let him remember that on the 4th of March in this year of grace 1891, Mr. Tovey stood up in St. Leonard's Hall and declared that you have no foundation for your religion whatever.

If the followers of Christ are to be judged by their spirit and works, is it not an affront to every right-minded person in this city to say that the humane, tolerant Protestants of Westminster are "grasping at shadows," that they are heretics and schismatics, and if they would join themselves to a Russian organization, the head of which is the most relentless tyrant in Christendom, they would be the true followers of him who was meek and lowly in spirit? For such sentiments I can hardly conceal my contempt, and, for the man who uttered them, my pity. INA.

The Property of this Company

Will be placed on the market on the 1st MARCH next, and consists of upwards of 400 Acres of the most desirable land at the New Town of Liverpool, including the whole of the deep water frontage which extends one and a half miles on the Fraser River, from the N.W.S. Railway wharf east, and is the only really desirable location for Manufacturing and Shipping Industries near New Westminster.

Liverpool is the terminus of the New Westminster Southern Railway Company, who have bought 30 acres of the Company's land. Extensive buildings have been located at this point by the Railway Company. The Yale Road has been surveyed to this point and an excellent grade secured through sections 19 and 1, and profiles prepared for the work. This road will be opened up and graded as soon as permission can be secured. Streets running through the Company's property will also be cleared and graded, which work will be well under way before any of the property is offered for sale.

Sections 2, 3, 4 and 10 have been laid out and staked on the ground. The lots are all 66 feet wide and front on streets one chain wide. Every inducement will be offered to manufacturers and investors. Whoever has money to invest will do well to consider Liverpool before investing elsewhere.

LIVERPOOL is considered by parties who are authorities on the subject to be The Best Speculative Property in sight today.

Liverpool is the terminus in B. C. of the American system of railways. In two years, if present arrangements are matured, three railways will terminate at Liverpool. In a few weeks all traffic for Sound points over the C. P. R. will go by way of Liverpool.

Seattle, in a few days, will be reached by an all-rail route in seven hours from Westminster, via Liverpool, without the inconvenience of a sea voyage.

Freight for the Sound points, over the C. P. R., can be shipped by Liverpool without breaking bulk. Lumber and all manufactures can be shipped from mills at Liverpool to all points in the Northwest at the same rates as from New Westminster.

Capitalists have a better and surer chance of making money at Liverpool than at any other point.

The steamship Batavia ran aground on the mud at St. Helen's Bar on the Willamette River on Thursday morning whilst coming down from Portland to this port. She managed to get off at high tide, and is expected to arrive in Vancouver this morning. The steamship Mongkut got aground at the same place a short time ago.

The little son of Mrs. W. E. Dickenson of the Cleveland Hotel was stricken yesterday with paralysis. The child is only two years old and the case is puzzling. Some hopes of his ultimate recovery are entertained, but it will be some time before he recovers his normal state. The parents were much alarmed. The best medical skill in the city is being exerted in the child's behalf.

Messrs. Lennie & Co., the City Music Store, have removed their stock to their new place of business on Douglas Street near Columbia, where they will be happy to greet all their customers. *

Chinese Gamblers.

Chief Pearce was hot footed on the track of the Chinese gamblers last night. A celebrated gaming house in the west end was watched with the greatest care. The Chinese gambling dens begin work at a certain hour every night, including Sunday, and from that hour is kept up until far on in the morning. Many a poor John is ruined and up to his eyebrows in debt in one night, but they don't suicide like their brother fools at Monaco and Monte Carlo. They get to work and make the deficit good.

Police Court.

(Before T. C. Atkinson, P. M.)

P. Coughan, charged with being drunk and incapable, pleaded guilty. The prisoner, whose face was much cut and bruised, had the general appearance of having had a "good time." He stated that he had just drawn his wages amounting to $40, and that all that and more had gone, as whiskey was a very expensive thing. His honor after administering a caution dismissed the case.

F. Stockham, charged on the information of A. Tanasse, with using abusive language, etc., made no appearance and his honor made out a warrant for his arrest.

District Court.

(Before Captain Pittendrigh, J. P.)

John and Margaret Lee, an aged married couple, were charged before Captain Pittendrigh, in the City Hall yesterday, with stealing coin and other property valued at $70 from Anna Peck of the Delta, on or about May 1, 1890. It appears that the prosecutrix being for a time without a home left some trunks on premises owned by John Lee, and that after the trunks were taken away it was found that some goods, etc., had been removed. Constable Anderson on searching the house of the prisoners found what is said to be a portion of the missing property. At the request of the Crown the case was adjourned until the 28th instant.

Worthy of Patronage.

In another column will be found an advertisement of the new steam laundry just started in Sapperton and as the heading aptly says it is "just what is wanted. In a short description of this new undertaking, published in THE MORNING LEDGER some days ago, it was pointed out that the machinery used is less harmful to even the most delicate fabric than the best hand washing, and everyone must acknowledge that it is a grand thing to be able to have one's clothes washed, and know that they have not been handled in some filthy Chinese den, to say nothing of the matter from a sanitary point of view, and it is to be hoped that the proprietors will have the good encouragement which they richly deserve for displaying so much energy in instituting this business here, and forming a new opposition to what is practically a Chinese monopoly in this city.

Native Slate.

Samples of slate from the Jervis Inlet slate quarries of the Westminster Slate Company may be seen at the office of Messrs. Woods & Gamble, Columbia Street. This slate has been carefully examined by experts and they state that it compares very favorably with the celebrated slate of Bangor, Maine. It has the advantage, however, of being lighter than that fine slate and is therefore much more valuable to builders. The slate is beautifully clear and free from knots and gnarls and the color is very pretty. The Westminster Slate Company's quarries at Jarvis Inlet are the only establishments of the kind in the Province and the material taken from them has warranted the most flattering anticipations of its success. The company feel confident that they will be able to put the slate on the market at equally reasonable rates with the Bangor slate, and within the reach of the smallest builder.

Should Not Be Missed.

Seats for the Frank Beard artistic entertainment in Herring's Opera House Tuesday evening, are selling well. There is sure to be an overflowing house to see the great artist, who will keep everybody in good humor with his wonderful pencil and comical remarks for two hours. It seems that the more critical the audience the greater the success of this gifted man has been. At Chautauqua, Boston and New York he is received with the utmost enthusiasm by audiences which represent the culture and intellectual aristocracy of America. It is after performing before such audiences with applause, that artists of all kinds can feel satisfied that their work is good. As Mr. Beard is invariably received there with storms of applause it proves that his work is very good. No one should miss the opportunity of seeing and hearing a gentleman whose name is familiar from Atlantic to Pacific, and who has done so much to amuse and edify the people of a thousand cities and towns. The way to avoid disappointment is to take Time by the forelock by dropping into Curtis's drug store, examining the reserved plan and selecting those seats without delay.

STILL IN DOUBT.

The Inquest on the Death of M. Davy Adjourned Sine Die.

The adjourned inquest on the death of M. Davy, was resumed at 2:30 p. m. yesterday in the City Hall before Captain Pittendrigh. William Stillman of Clover Valley, sworn said: I have not seen Davy more than four times during the last year; a year ago he told me he was afraid of being poisoned before he could get the deeds of his ranch. He was afraid that Mr. Punch would poison him in order to get the ranch.

J. Wilson of Surrey, the next witness, said: On Tuesday, March 2nd., Davy on leaving me said that he had never felt in better condition; he was going to Westminster; this was in the forenoon; I have never seen him since; he never told me that any one had ever threatened him; I am acquainted with both Mr. Devine and Wilson; I never to my knowledge brought any barbary bark or other medicine to Devine's house.

John Quto examined under former oath, deposed: I took some rum to Devine's house; he drank twice out of the bottle; this was on the morning of March 6th; I did not hand it to Davy as I thought he was asleep; I never touched the bed at all; I was about two feet from the bed, but did not notice any motion of the body; I took the remainder of the rum away with me; I stopped at Devine's about ten minutes; to the best of my knowledge Devine said nothing about Davy except the reference he made to the bottle they had drunk; I do not remember Devine saying that day that his legs were paralysed when he got out of bed and that he fell on his face; I don't remember saying that I would not give Davy a drink as he had refused to give me one, and was then listening to what I was saying.

J. Stein of Brownsville was the next deponent. On Friday morning about 7 o'clock my little boy, who was on the way to school, ran back and said that Mr. Devine wanted me to go down there quickly; in a few minutes I went out and heard Devine calling me to come down; I went down and asked him what was the trouble, and he asked me if I could tell him what was the matter with Davy; I looked at the latter and said he was dead, and asked who he was, for I did not recognize him; I felt the hands and forehead and found them stiff and cold in death, and a very disagreeable odor came from the body as I stooped over his face; I think the man had been dead some time; I asked Devine what this meant, and called to my son to tell Mr. Beaton, the constable, to come up; just then Mr. Wallace passed and I called him in, and he failed to recognize the body; I then went to the corpse and straightened the face and recognized the features of M. Davy; I again asked Devine how it came that Davy was dead; he seemed to be in great trouble; he would make such utterances as this, "I don't know how I can stay here;" "This leaves me in a bad fix;" "I can't stay in the house where a dead man is;" and he proposed to leave all in my care and go away; I told him he must not go until he had taken care of Davy; in the meantime I tried to find out if he would give me any account of how Davy died, and he said that Davy had made a noise only a little while before he (Devine) called me; Devine had breakfast prepared on a table near the bed, and said he was just going to call Davy to have something to eat; he then fumbled about in the bottom of an old cupboard and drew out the flask of liquor which I handed to the police; he said, "There is something here, Mr. Stein, which I don't understand," and went on to say, as near as I can remember, "It seems to me like poison; it tastes to me like barbary bark." I secured the bottle in the presence of the constable, who had now arrived, and after leaving two parties with Devine and the corpse, Mr. Beaton went to notify the authorities; Mr. Devine further stated that the flask was left there by G. Wilkinson, who had poured some liquor out of one of Davy's bottles into the flask, saying that this would be a drink for them when they got up; I also understood him to remark that Wilkinson had said that Davy was a "d——d hog," and "here was something for him," or words to that effect; Devine also said that Mr. Quible had been in a little while before and that Davy was not dead then; Devine said that Quible had given him three drinks, but could not give Davy any; I told Mr. Beaton to have Mr. Quible and Mr. Wilkinson brought over as witnesses in the case; during all the time I was with Devine, he was very excited and would often exclaim, "What shall I do?" and "how can I stay here?" I should judge that Davy had been dead some hours.

A Beaton, examined on his former oath, said: I found the body cold and stiff; I tried to straighten the arms, but could not; I think he had been dead about two hours.

The case was then adjourned sine die. The stomach of the deceased will be subjected to a thorough analytical examination, and reported upon at the resumption of the inquest.
