Port Simpson has adjacent to it the largest salmon canneries on the coast, and from its nearness to the seal fisheries it must also become the headquarters of the seal fishing industry and the large fleets therein engaged. It has back of it millions of acres of rich prairie land, which in time will be peopled with ranchers and farmers, who will contribute to the building up of a large city.

PORT SIMPSON

The Coming City of the North Pacific, is Now on the Market and offers one of the Best Speculations of the Day.

Port Simpson affords the same opportunity to investors today that Vancouver did ten years ago. Ten years ago Vancouver was selling for $200, and there was not so much certainty of a railroad to Vancouver at that date as there is today of a railroad to Port Simpson.

Port Simpson is five hundred miles nearer to Japan than are Vancouver and Victoria, and with the completion of the railway from Port Simpson to Port Churchill, on Hudson's Bay—a question of time—it will be on the shortest route between England and the Orient, and most certainly a large share of the trade of the Orient.

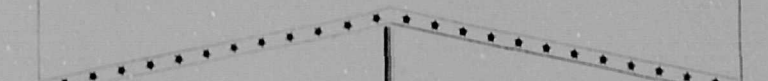

Port Simpson has five hundred miles nearer to Japan than are Vancouver and Victoria, and with the completion of the railway from Port Simpson to Port Churchill, on Hudson's Bay—a question of time—it will be on the shortest route between England and the Orient, and most certainly a large share of the trade of the Orient.

The Hudson's Bay Co. has had a trading post at Port Simpson for years, and it is the headquarters of the fur trade of that rich and powerful country. The attention of the public is called to the fact that, as a rule, wherever the Hudson's Bay Co. has planted its trading posts, there have grown up important cities. Fort William, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Victoria are illustrations of this fact.

C. R. Tuttle, author of "Our Northland," published recently, concludes his interesting work as follows: "And in respect of transcontinental transport of travel from the United Kingdom to the far east, the advantages of the Hudson's Bay route, in connection with a railroad from Churchill to Port Simpson, will not only afford a safe national route, but soverally will be the most important of the most important parts of the British Empire, and absolutely indispensable to the Mother Country. In view of these things, one may reasonably hope that England will eventually aid the Dominion in the construction of the Hudson's Bay railway. The importance of Canada to the parent country is so great that, in a few years at most, one may expect to see a disposition manifested on the part of the latter for closer federal relations. With this well surely come the means of a larger development of Canadian resources, the construction of railways in connection with Hudson's Bay, and the establishment of an extensive international commerce through channels on Canadian latitudes, and consequent national prosperity. Such are the prospects of our Northland."
