AWKWARD QUESTIONS

THE BACCARAT SCANDAL BY NO MEANS FINISHED YET.

The Radicals Intend to Put Some Posers to the Government—Will Cumming be Prosecuted as a Cheat or as a Perjurer?—Has the Prince of Wales and Others Compounded a Crime By Conspiring to Defeat the Ends of Justice?

LONDON, June 27.—It is stated tonight that a number of the leading Radical Members of Parliament intend bringing up the baccarat scandal before Parliament in entirely unexpected shape at an early date and in such a manner as to put the Government in an uncomfortable position. Mr. William Summers, Liberal M. P., said "that to cheat at cards is a crime is well known. Section 17 of 8 and 9 Victoria, Chapter 108, is perfectly explicit on that point. Every person causes an infraction of that section, who shall by any fraud or unlawful device or ill practice in playing at or with cards, dice or other games, win from any other person, himself, or to any other or others, any sum of money or valuable thing from such other persons by false pretence with intent to cheat or defraud each person of the same, and being convicted thereof shall be punished accordingly." Now the jury, by their verdict in the case of Sir William Gordon-Cumming vs. Wilson and others, have practically found that in their opinion Sir William Gordon-Cumming did cheat at cards. Two questions therefore arise. First, will the Government or will the public prosecutor prosecute Sir William Gordon-Cumming for cheating at cards or for perjury? And second, will the Government or will the public prosecutor take any action against those other persons who are admitted to have compounded a crime, and who appear to have been engaged in what is known in law as a conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice? The question as to whether baccarat is an unlawful game has already been decided in the affirmative by Sir Henry Hawkins in the case of Jenks vs. Turpin."

SPLENDID LACROSSE.

The Exhibition Game Yesterday at Vancouver an Especially Fine One.

A large crowd of Westminster people went over to see the lacrosse match between Westminster and Vancouver on Brockton Point grounds, Vancouver, yesterday. The ground was well filled with spectators, and the weather was perfect. The two teams were composed as follows: Westminster—Coldwell, McKenzie, Campbell, Ketchum, McQuarrie, Steuart, Van Allen, Allen, McGregor, Ryal, Brouse, Dalgleish, J. Gow, field captain; J. A. Forin, umpire. Vancouver—Draper, Suckling, H. Quigley, Rankin, Swift, Peard, Smith, Nichols Gordon, Simpson, Chub Quigley, Frost, field captain, W. Smith; J. Fullarton, umpire. Mr. Taylor acted as official time keeper and Mr. W. B. McKenzie as referee.

First game, 3:40—On starting Stewart Campbell got hold of the ball and made a fair run for the Vancouver goal. About midway opposite the grand stand he received a heavy and as the spectators judged, an unnecessary blow from Rankin of the Vancouvers. The rubber then travelled swiftly to the other side of the field, when a face-off took place. Almost immediately the ball travelled down to the Westminster goal in front of which a fierce scrimmage took place. The clever play of Coldwell, McKenzie and Campbell baffled the other side for a minute and some furious scuffles occurred in rear of the poles. Again it was passed up to the centre by a fair throw of Coldwell's stick. Another face-off. Browse now got hold of the little sphere and although strongly tackled did some splendid dodging. When he lost the ball it was next seen in the middle of a scrimmage some six feet directly in front of the Westminster goal. A stroke while in the air sent it through. Time 7 minutes. In this game Vancouver showed capital form and evidently a trifle strong for the home team.

Second game—Almost on starting the ball got in dangerous proximity to the Westminster goal but Stewart Campbell again dashed to the rescue and by a powerful twist sent it far up towards the Vancouver goal. After a face-off near the goal Ketchum made a fine catch, passed to McQuarrie who sent it on to McGregor and in a trice it was through the posts and the visitors received a hearty cheer. Time 2 minutes.

Third game—McKenzie almost instantly gathered up the rubber and made a grand throw up to centre field. Another face-off took place close to Vancouver goal. Ketchum again distinguished himself by good catching and passing. Then ensued some pretty passing behind Vancouver goal. Quigley and Suckling made strenuous efforts to rescue; the former succeeded in a beautiful throw down field. It quickly came back again and several hot scrimmages took place at centre field. A lucky throw by one of the Vancouvers landed the rubber in front of the Westminster goal, and another strike passed it through. Time 4 minutes.

Fourth game—A face-off behind Westminster goal was about the first thing. The Vancouvers had been gradually growing somewhat more than aggressive and the Westminster boys had to put up with some rough and ungentlemanly usage. This seemed to rouse their spirit for they started in on this game and from the first face-off led the Vancouvers a pretty dance around the field. The ball kept travelling back and forward from behind the goals with a rapidity that made watching it a difficult task. Dr. Gordon of the Empress of Japan showed some beautiful, quiet play full of science and finish. Some of his catches elicited great admiration. Coldwell repeatedly saved his goal in this game while Ketchum once more came in for praise for his dodging and passing. A face-off occurred near the Westminster goal; McKenzie passed the ball to Steuart, he to Allen, then to McGregor who was playing big lacrosse all through, then Ryall got hold of it dodged two Vancouvers and for a moment seemed likely to ladle in the rubber behind the goal from his own stick. This was impossible; he cleverly passed to Dalgleish who assisted the ball through the Vancouver posts. Time 18 minutes. Fifth game—Allen made a grand shot landing within ten feet of Vancouver's goal. Quigley again to the rescue, his usual long throw on centre landed on a Westminster stick and as quickly went back to where it came from. Here a piece of the most interesting play in the whole match took place. Allen, Van Allen, Browse, McGregor and Dalgleish all made fierce shots directly on the goal but they were gallantly checked by Quigley Suckling and Rankin. The battle then swept down to Westminster's goal and raged furiously a few minutes. Chub Quigley of the Vancouvers particularly distinguished himself and gave McKenzie some lively work to do. Once the ball struck the Westminster goal post and the whole team sighed with relief when they saw it rebound on to Coldwell's ever ready stick and then imitate the meteor in its flight towards Vancouver goal. Almost as soon as it landed it was shot through either by Browse or Dalgleish, it was impossible to tell which in the fray. Time, three minutes.

Sixth game—Coldwell immediately had his hands full again and discharged his duty and the ball at the same time up to centre field with a splendid strong throw. Back it came again, however, off Dr. Gordon's deadly racket and lobbed in behind Westminster's goal where any amount of scratching for possession took place, Chub Quigley, McKenzie and Coldwell making it hot for the ball. Stewart Campbell received the sphere off McKenzie's stick and passed it on towards Vancouver goal where Swift knocked it out of bounds. A face-off near the goal was followed by a lively scrimmage, the ball emerging on to Dr. Gordon's stick. A face-off occurred and on starting again the ball was rushed up the field toward Westminster goal and was carried through by main force in the midst of a struggling and confused mass of arms, legs and sticks. Time, 8 minutes.

Seventh game—Draper, Vancouver's goal keeper stopped a throw on his posts and passed to Quigley who threw well up field. Three face-offs took place at the Westminster corner and when started again, Steuart got hold of it and ran nearly the whole length of the field. Suckling threw back and another tight scrimmage ensued at Westminster end. After this it was a case of up and down the field at full speed. Twice in this game Swift of the Vancouvers deliberately fouled Ryal of the home team, once by jumping on his back, another time tripping him with his stick. Field captain Smith of the Vancouvers also materially assisted his team by deliberately getting in front of Westminster men going to shoot on goal. Just as Swift fouled Ryal, Referee McKenzie blew his whistle to stop play and a couple of seconds after the whistle sounded the Vancouvers shot the ball through the undefended Westminster goal. They claimed a goal. The referee refused it and immediately a huge gang of hoodlums leaped the barriers and advanced upon him using the vilest language. Suckling of the Vancouvers, whose name one would think would be enough to keep him very quiet, made use of the most filthy, obscene and blasphemous language ever uttered by the lips of man. Even the ruffians in the howling mob turned away in disgust from his loathsome mouthings. He is is no Suckling when it comes to blackguard language. Referee McKenzie put on his coat and threatened to leave the field. It was finally decided to play the game over again. This was probably the finest piece of play of the match, although Westminster was playing only 11 men, Dalgleish having received serious injury to his arm. The call of time at 7 o'clock concluded the match.

Of the home players McKenzie, Stewart Campbell, Ketchum, Allen, Browse and Dalgleish put up magnificent lacrosse, while for the Vancouver's the Quigley brothers, Dr. Gordon, Nichols and Rankin were the best men.

A Change of Ownership.

Mr. W. R. Dunn, who for some time past has successfully conducted a hardware business at Mission City, has sold out his stock-in-trade to Thomas Kearney, who was formerly connected with Messrs. Cunningham Bros., of this city. It is announced that Mr. Kearney will carry on the business, and contemplates laying in a much larger stock, so as to do a wider range of trade.

Sapperton Schools.

On Thursday the closing examinations of the Sapperton school were held in the presence of a large number of visitors. Miss McBride, the teacher, examined the pupils of her division in the various branches taught, and the youngsters did great credit both to themselves and their teacher, showing that they had been most carefully and thoroughly taught. A short address was delivered by the Venerable Archdeacon Woods, and Miss McBride and Mr. C. H. DeBeck presented prizes. Rolls of honor were presented to Louis Sewitt, Annie Mills, and W. Debeck. Miss McBride was the recipient of a handsome gold pen, presented by the scholars as a token of their respect and esteem. The examination of the senior division, of which Mr. Strople is principal, took place immediately afterwards. The scholars came through the ordeal with much credit, both to themselves and their teacher. Rolls of honor were presented to Edith M. Devey, James Munday, and Mary J. Polland. Mr. S. J. Thompson's prize was taken by Helen F. Jackson. Mr. C. H. DeBeck's, Mary J Walmsley and Edith Devoy. Those offered by Mr. Strople went to Mary J. Polland, Alice Preston and Lawrence Smeri. Mr. Strople was presented with a handsome writing desk and gold pen by the pupils as a mark of esteem, and returned thanks in an appropriate speech. The school was then closed for the holidays.

City Police Court.

The case against Mr. Alex. Ewen yesterday morning for infraction of the city fire limit bylaw in making alterations to his premises on Begbie street, was interesting. Mr. Eckstein appeared for the defendant and put chief constable Pearce under a severe cross questioning, endeavoring to prove that the chief had laid information not knowing positively that the building was the property of Mr. Ewen or that Mr. Ewen had ordered the alterations to be made. Hearsay evidence would not be admitted, and the fact that evidence had been given a short time ago bearing on this case did not affect the present charge. His worship was satisfied that the building was the property of Mr. Ewen, and was about to give decision on the case when Mr. Eckstein again raised an objection, taking advantage of the fact that the bylaw provided the punishment; namely, removal of the alterations, and contended that his worship could not impose punishment twice; if he fined the defendant he could not order the removal of the alterations, and vice versa. Some considerable discussion ensued; the statutes were consulted; the merits and demerits of bylaws and acts discussed. His worship adjourned the case for argument until next Saturday, expressing a wish that this case should be thoroughly gone into, as it was no use playing at court if the bylaw was defective.

Charles Woodward, alias Dewett, appeared in answer to a double charge, vagrancy and contempt of court. Charles was arrested on the 11th June for vagrancy and summoned to appear on the 12th, but when the constable went to make the arrest he made himself scarce through the bush. His worship dwelt on the serious nature of the charge, contempt of court, but seeing that Woodward had given himself up he would deal leniently with him. The prisoner in defence stated he had been drinking some and had paid little attention to the summons, and he did slide out when the constable came for him. He was evidently ashamed of himself and very desirous of concealing his name under the alias. His worship advised him to drink either water or lemonade and fined him $10.00 and costs, or one month in jail.

GHASTLY DETAILS

BALMACEDA TRIES TO IMITATE NERO AND DOMITIAN.

Frightful Cruelties Inflicted on Helpless Prisoners—Sons Tortured to Death Before Their Fathers' Eyes—Prominent Citizens of Santiago Mercilessly Butchered—Workingmen Shot in Pairs—Horrors of the Sack of Iquique.

NEW YORK, June 27.—The startling stories of the cruelties and despotism practiced by Balmaceda, instigator and chief figure in the Chilian war as given exclusively in the United Press despatches of last week, are completely overshadowed by facts presented by the United Press today, which are now made public for the first time. The information is obtained from prominent Chilians, who arrived here on the steamer City of Paris last week. The most prominent of the arrivals was Don Pedro Monnet, who is the accredited representative of the revolutionist party in Chili, and who is a brother of Admiral Monnet, acting president of the revolutionary party. Don Pedro Monnet, when shown the article in the United Press dispatches referring to the Balmaceda cruelties, said that the actual truth has exceeded the published account of the affair. The whole of Chili, he said, was suffering dire distress as a result of the cruel war and all classes were losing their property whether in the city or in the country. He had no doubt of the ultimate success of the revolutionists, as the people of Chili were almost unanimously with the constitutional party. Senor Monnet did not care to talk for publication at present. He said he preferred to state his case later on, and let the American people judge as to which cause was the just one. Senor Gonzales says that Balmaceda is practising cruelties unheard of in the history of Chilli. "A friend of mine," said Gonzales, "who was a prominent citizen of Concepcion, Senor Zerrano and his son, were put in prison because they refused to obey the dictates of the tyrant. Being imprisoned failed to break their spirit, so Balmaceda had the father taken out into the yard of the jail and mercilessly tortured. After being brutally flogged, the tendons of his arms and legs were severed, rendering him helpless for life. This horrible cruelty was purposely practised within ear shot of the son, who was afterwards subjected to the same treatment before the gaze of his father, now fast dying from loss of blood and the result of the terrible ordeal. Neither of them survived the horrors of the torture which was inflicted upon them. Senor Gonzales also related a story of the fate of three prominent citizens of Santiago who were in sympathy with the revolutionists. They were arrested by order of Balmaceda, taken to prison and beheaded. The headless bodies were taken to the cemetery for interment. There having been no burial permits issued, an examination was made by the cemetery authorities, when the horrible facts were disclosed. In Pisagua, a lot of laborers who had been on a spree, and who went through the streets of the city hurrahing for the revolutionists were at once arrested by Balmaceda's soldiers and thrown into prison, every night for a week, two of these laborers were taken out and shot and their bodies thrown back into the room occupied by their comrades, who were told that such was to be the fate of two of their number each night. There were many heart-rending scenes in Iquique when Balmaceda's soldiers destroyed a portion of the city. Helpless men and women were shot down and many homes were shelled and ruined while the occupants were preparing for flight. In Santiago, Balmaceda has thrown open the prison door in order to make use of the convicts to carry out his projects, to such terrible straits is the brutal despot reduced in his race for power. Senor Gonzales deplored the fate of the Itata. He and the Monnet party were at Callao when the Charleston arrived. The fact that the Itata was not with her was noted with great joy, and they celebrated what they supposed to be the escape of the vessel in a glass of wine. Subsequently, however, the fact that the Itata had surrendered to the Charleston was learned with deep regret.

Kilbourne in Trouble.

BOSTON, Mass., June 26.—Conductor Kilbourne, charged with smuggling goods over the C. P. R., upon which road he was employed, was again before the United States Customs Commissioner today. He was held in the sum of $3,000 for trial at Portsmouth in September, before the United States Supreme Court.

Sheep Killed By Hail.

DENVER, June 27.—News has just been received of a cyclone which did great damage 25 miles east of here on Thursday night. Houses were blown down, trees uprooted and crops ruined. Ten or fifteen persons were injured, but none seriously. On the ranch of C. S. Clark, three miles west of Deer Trail, 25 sheep were killed by hail and the eyes of many put out.

Only Rain Reported.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 27.—At the railway offices here there are no reports of serious trouble from the storms yesterday and last night. The Omaha officials say that heavy rains were reported from the vicinity of Omaha, but no damage was done to the track, and trains are reported on time. The heaviest rainfall of the season occurred here this afternoon.

A Washout.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 26.—The sleeper Dykinson of the Northern Pacific railroad train, which left here two days ago, left the track one mile west of Rosebud, Montana. Owing to a washout the car tipped over the track into the water. Several of the sixteen passengers in the car were more or less injured, but none seriously. Among the number were the temperance orator Francis Murphy and wife of Pittsburg, Mrs. Wm. Trole and son, Hamilton, Ont.; A. W. Shock and wife, Portland, Oregon; Major F. E. Scott and daughter, Richmond, Virginia; A. J. Wiley, Detroit; George J. Munro, Joliett, Illinois.

What a Storm Did.

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa., June 26.—This section was visited this afternoon by a wind and rain storm of unusual severity. Trees were uprooted and carried a great distance, while the rain poured down in torrents and the lightning and thunder were terrific. When the storm was at its height a heavy crash was heard above the noise of the storm, causing people to rush from their homes in terror. It was soon learned that the crash was caused by the collapse of the Patterson Coal Company's large bunker, situated two miles west of this place. The structure was a new one, and was rapidly nearing completion. Four slaters named J. N. Blossom, Richard Roberts, J. B. Dobson and William Lodge, from Shickshinny, Pa., were on the roof at the time of the accident, and were hurled to the ground, a distance of 150 feet and crushed to a jelly by the heavy timbers falling upon them. Two other workmen from Luzerner, Pa., whose names could not be learned, were also working in the building and they shared the same fate as their companions. The loss to the colliery is $150,000.

The Sluggers Meet.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Just before the Mariposa sailed today with Sullivan on board, a friend of Peter Jackson brought him down to the ship and introduced him to Sullivan. Sullivan said: "I am pleased to meet you, Mr. Jackson." A little conversation followed, and Sullivan said: "I can beat any man in the world." "I would like to have a try with you," said Jackson. "For how much?" asked Sullivan. "Well," replied Jackson, "I have not much money just now." "Raise all you can," said Sullivan, "and we'll see about it." Soon afterward the men parted on good terms, Jackson saying, "I wish you all success in Australia, Mr. Sullivan."

THEY HAVE NOT ARRIVED.

Letters received by the North American Commercial Company, bring information from Alaska that on June 10th, the revenue cutter Rush, carrying Major Williams, the special treasury agent, and party, had not arrived. The natives are reported to be in good health. Lagrippe, which has invaded Alaska, has not appeared among the islanders. The government coal ships due are reported as not having arrived at the coaling stations in Ounalaska.

Fife and Drum.

The fife and drum band in connection with the Orange Lodge at Sapperton has become one of the institutions of that growing quarter of the city. The band enjoys a regular march out every Wednesday evening, the line of march being between the penitentiary grounds and the Orange Hall. The band has a membership of nine, and discourses very sweet and lively music.

A Souvenir of the Nymphe.

A member of THE LEDGER staff has received a handsome photograph of H. M. S. Nymphe in full dress on the Queen's Birthday. The trim little fighting ship is decked with flags and streamers from stem to stern, and looks beautiful in gay trappings, white paint, and many colored bunting. A group of her men are massed together by one of the bow guns, and give the ship an animated appearance. The Nymphe sailed yesterday for Behring Sea, and will be away four or five months, and meantime the holiday picture of Westminster's favorite gun boat serves as a fitting souvenir of those who are remembered with pleasure by all the citizens of the Royal burgh.

A Weighty Opinion.

Professor T. C. Mendenhall, superintendent of the United States coast and geodetic survey, has returned from an official visit to Alaska. He says: "I doubt whether Alaska will ever prove of much value except for fisheries and furs. There are no great bodies of large timber, there are simply clumps of large trees, not large enough to make it worth while to cut them for lumbering. There may be large timber in the interior, but from all I have heard it is not likely. The failure of the Bear's Nest mine seems to have been a serious blow to mining, by frightening investers away from the territory, for no new development is being made.

United Workmen in Session.

On the 15th of July the Grand Lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen will meet in the Odd Fellows' Hall in Victoria. The proceedings will continue over three days. About 250 delegates are expected to attend from Oregon, British Columbia and Washington, and many will bring friends with them. They will arrive on the evening of the 14th, and preparations are being made for a grand reception, which will take place in the Victoria Theatre, when addresses will be delivered, and either on Thursday or Friday there will be a social entertainment. Excursions to Esquimalt and other points of interest are planned, and besides, a deal of important business will be considered.

Not Good Enough.

Captain Lee of the Empress of Japan, says the Victoria Colonist, when asked by the pilot whether he would bring the steamship to the Outer wharf replied that "this vessel will not go into that mud hole." The water at that time was nearly high tide, or over thirty feet at the shallowest point. The steamship Batavia, drawing at the time 22 feet of water, one foot less than the Empress, came to the Outer wharf yesterday morning at the lowest stage of the tide. The public can draw their own conclusions. There is apparently little desire to have the Empresses call here, or else the water would be found to be quite deep enough to dock them, as has been found since the Batavia began sailing under new influences.

The Batavia Arrives.

The steamship Batavia arrived in Victoria on Friday morning at 9 o'clock, 14 days out from Yokohama. She is the second of the Upton line of steamers to make the passage, the first, the Zambesi, having arrived about three weeks ago. She brought four saloon passengers, 153 Chinese and 39 Japanese. The cargo consists of 2,410 tons, of which 236 tons are for Victoria, 24 tons for Vancouver, 500 for Portland and Sound ports, and 13,000 packages of tea for eastern points via Portland. The Batavia will possibly sail for Portland today. The directors of the Upton line are making arrangements for a regular monthly service between China and Victoria, and if the amount of freight carried justifies it, a tri-weekly service may be instituted. The Sussex, the next of the line, was due to leave Hong Kong yesterday.

An Incorrect Report.

Mr. John Mahrer of Nanaimo, who has been most directly concerned in working up the scheme of the consolidation of the breweries of British Columbia under an English syndicate, has given an official denial of the truth of the statements made in the Colonist to the effect that the scheme has fallen through, and says that the prospects for the formation of the syndicate and the ultimate success of the scheme are most excellent. Of all the breweries bonded for purposes of amalgamation, only one has dropped out, that of Loewen and Erb of Victoria, who would not bond for more than 30 days. At the present time, six breweries are bonded for consolidation, four in Vancouver, one in Westminster and one in Nanaimo. It will thus be seen that the supposition that the scheme is a failure, is to say the least extremely premature.

The Ledger.

A MCGREEVY APOLOGIST.

It is refreshing to be assured by the Columbian that notwithstanding the revelations of ministerial corruption made by the McGREEVY investigating committee, the Conservative party still "contains material that is just as strongly opposed to corruption and prostitution of office as any of those opposed to it." The party should bring that "material" into use without any unnecessary delay. The LANGEVINS, the McGREEVYS, the RYKERTS, et hoc genus omnes, have had the leading hand in the party for a good while too long. If our contemporary, however, had satisfied itself with the statement that there is better "material" in the party than these, it might have obtained some credit in its remarks, but when it goes on to say that the McGREEVY exposures will "result in the purification of the party, but not necessarily in its overthrow," it not only condemns its former statement, but makes itself ridiculous as well. If a party is to be purified only by a continuation of the exposure of such high crimes as the stealing of the money placed in its trust, there is indeed a sorry outlook for it. The people of the country will seek a shorter and more direct path to the purification of its government, by hurling the Conservative party from power altogether, and call in honester men to handle their money.

NEWS FROM KOOTENAY.

Small Nuggets of the Latest News From the Nelson Miners

A mining man who recently visited Goat River district says the Alice is a fine-looking prospect, with a ledge carrying fully 30 inches of good galena ore. It is understood that its owners hold it at $50,000.

The hydraulic company operating on 40 creek made a first cleanup last week. It was quite satisfactory, although the ground worked had been gone over last fall. Another cleanup will be made on Monday.

Alongside the Wild Cat is a claim called the Forest, which is owned by D. B. Campbell, the bridge contractor, and on which a number of men are at work. Mr. Campbell says the ledge is over 12 feet wide and the showing one of the best among the gold prospects on Eagle Creek.

A half interest in the Ivanhoe, the second easterly extension of the Iroquois, was purchased by R. G. Tatlow of Vancouver, and the whole of the Blalock by Richard Ashworth of Billings, Montana, for $500. The former claim is in Toad Mountain district, the latter in Hot Springs district.

The wagon road between Nelson and the mines on Toad Mountain is being rushed as fast as so good men, under the foremanship of Bob Yuill and Dan Dunn can do it. Today the gangs engaged in clearing the right-of-way and putting in crib work were but a short distance from the second crossing of Giveout Creek and not more than two miles from the Silver King mine. Superintendent Hall says he thinks the road can be finished by the middle of July; but his foremen, backed up by the faith they have in the staying qualities of their men, declare they will be through to the "greatest mine on earth" by July 4th.

The smelter at Revelstoke will be blown in as soon as the ore now sacked at the Number One mine, in Hot Springs district, can be got through to Revelstoke. The owners of the smelter have at last arrived at the conclusion, that if the smelter is to be run, the ore must come from the Lake country. The ore will be shipped as soon as the wagon road now building reaches the mine. Brenner & Watson having been awarded the contract for hauling the ore to the landing at Ainsworth. T. J Davies and the steamer Midge will transport it thence to the railway wharf at Nelson for, it is said, $1.50 a ton. A supply of coke for the smelter was procured at Tacoma. It was hoped that a supply could have been got at Canmore, Alberta, but the coke ovens built at that place were faulty in construction, and the first batch burned was unfit for use. The ovens will be rebuilt, and the superintendent now in charge hopes to have them in operation by the middle of July. The coal mined near Canmore is of superior quality and the seams large, and there is no reason why the coke needed by the smelters in British Columbia should not come from that place.

SUNSHINE AND STORMS ON THE COLUMBIA RIVER.

The above title suggested itself to me owing to the very threatening and unsatisfactory weather which prevailed for ten days previous to the time I had named for a trip up the Columbia River from Golden to the Columbia lakes. My husband being unable to leave Donald, I was fortunate enough to induce Mrs. Bell-Campbell, the wife of our well known doctor, to accompany me. It was not, as we both remarked at the station on the eve of our departure, at all the kind of weather for a water party, nor was it very encouraging to have various friends "speeding our parting" with hopeful predictions that the bad weather could not possibly last, cold winds and cloudy skies being unknown quantities in the month of June. Ten days of them were so far propitious that ten days more could not reasonably be expected. The Sunday afternoon, however, which witnessed our exit from Donald on the eastern express, was no better than its preceding week days. No sun shone upon our heads, no balmy breezes blew over us, but clad in warm garments and provided with a panoply of mackintoshes, ulsters and umbrellas, we were duly installed in the train for our 17 miles' journey to the seat of navigation in east Kootenay.

Golden, our destination, is beautifully situated at the junction of the Kicking Horse and Columbia rivers. It is a growing town, with a future every bit as promising as that of the better-known and more-talked-of Nelson. It possesses two hotels, numerous stores, a schoolhouse, and a huge smelter, owned by the Golden Mining and Smelting Company, round which quite a settlement is growing up, and has also a resident assayer, Mr. Pellew Harvey, who had just returned from an expedition to some quartz mines on the Columbia, of which he told us I could conscientiously speak in high terms, though he was unable to give me an analysis of the ore, such information having only just been communicated by him to the owners of the mine, for whom he was acting. All the freight shipments for the lakes and upper Kootenay country are made at Golden. With the development of mines and mining interests in the surrounding district, a large traffic must eventually centre there. Captain Armstrong, of the Kootenay Mail Line, my host, met us at the station and conducted us to a flat car, which runs over a steel tramway from the town to the river, a mile distant from the C. P. R. This means of transport had been furnished with comfortable armchairs for our reception, but it was very much exposed to the stormy winds, which still continued to blow with such threatening indications of rain that we hurriedly extracted all available wraps that we could lay hands on from our bundles and defied the elements, which consequently did not overwhelm us, as they surely would have done had we been attired in our best clothes and parasols. Our other belongings, including a saddle and bridle, which I had been requested to bring, having been collected, the horses were whipped up and away we rolled over the Kicking Horse, and through a pretty bit of wood to the steamer Duchess, which soon came into view, and proved to be a pretty stern wheel steamer much larger than I had imagined. She has a capital saloon, and excellent accommodation for 25 cabin passengers. Having been freshly painted and upholstered this season, she is spotlessly clean, and in the best of order. Her Chinese cook is quite a chef, and the Chinese waiter a most competent attendant. We found Mr. Armstrong, who is having this summer as the Duchess, on deck to greet us, and I felt exactly as if I had walked on to a houseboat on the Thames, so cosy and homelike was the aspect of the interior to which we were conducted.

Our party, some of whom had already assembled, comprised several old friends and some new acquaintances, some of whom spent the evening on board, returning to the town to sleep, as the steamer does not leave till noon on Monday. We amused ourselves by banjo playing (by ten tunes) and telling stories after the fashion of the country. The latter occupation brought forth one amusing local episode, which is worth relating, even though it tells against a fellow-resident of the upper country, of foreign extraction, of whom I have every forbearance. This individual is the proud possessor of a pink hen, which he discovered on a ranche, and secured with some trouble and expense. He considered it a natural phenomenon worthy of the defunct Barnum; indeed, I am credibly informed that he thought there was millions in it; so many millions that for some time he carefully hoarded the pink hen's eggs for the purpose of raising broods of pink chickens which should render him immortal. One day a kind friend whispered in his ear that the pink tipped owed her brilliant plumage not to the hand of God, but to the dye of man. A rancher's wife, so the story goes, was dyeing some garments one day, when the hen, animated by that spirit of curiosity peculiar to her sex, insisted upon intruding into the kitchen. After having repulsed her many times unwillingly, the good lady became aggravated; and vented her spleen finally by throwing a dipper full of the hot dye over the wretched fowl, which fled cackling and protesting to its companions. They, it was reported, far from welcoming their injured sister sympathetically, were so alarmed by her unnatural appearance that they flew promptly in all directions, and refused to associate with a bird so loud in her attire. She was left to pine alone, and her owner was very glad to part with her later as a freak of nature.

Our party broke up early, and we have sought repose in the seclusion of the nearest of cabins opening on to the upper deck. Monday morning broke dull and threatening, but it grew brighter and clearer every hour, and by the time all the freight and passengers were on board, the sun was shining brilliantly. At a quarter past twelve, final preparations for departure were made, the whistle screamed sharply, ropes were cast off, the big wheel began to revolve, and the whole vessel to pulsate as she slowly steamed away from her moorings out into the swift current of the Columbia. The far-famed river is never seen to greater advantage than in the perfection of its early summer beauty, with tender delicate greens lining its banks on both sides; alder, willow, cranberry and wild rose bushes all in full bloom, often sweeping the water with their pliant boughs, and delighting us with their sweet perfume. Truly, the scenery of the Columbia's water ways is not sufficiently well known or appreciated in British Columbia. It is an expedition so simple, so comfortable, I may even say luxurious, so well worth undertaking, and so impossible to do justice to by any description I can give. Picture yourselves floating through continual bowers, up and down avenues of green, like the most perfect English lanes, with water instead of earth for the Queen's highway; the boat winding now to the right, now to the left, as it follows the tortuous channels of the great river, from one side of the valley, with its snow-crowned Selkirks to the other with its ragged, silver-tipped Rockies. It is most difficult to realize these water ways, which are now wide, now narrow, sometimes bordered by belts of tall cotton trees, anon fringed with bulrushes, above whose tops large expanses of shallow water like lakes are occasionally visible. The contrast between the prettiness of the fore-ground and the stern grandeur of the back-ground is in itself striking in the extreme. Twenty-five miles up these green avenues we steamed to a wood pile on the bank, (a very prosaic fact in the midst of so much romantic scenery). There we tied up the Duchess for the night, it being impossible to navigate the intricate channels of the Columbia after dark.

THE PRINCE'S PRANKS.

The introduction of Lady Brooke's name into the baccarat scandal case and the subsequent divorce proceedings reported to be pending as a result of her alleged intimacy with H. R. H., have recalled to my mind the celebrated Mordaunt case, which twenty years ago was the talk of the civilized world, as well as of London society. Lady Mordaunt was one of the famous Moncrieffe sisters, whose beauty won them some of the proudest alliances in Great Britain. One became the Countess of Dudley, another the Duchess of Athole, another Lady Forbes of Newe, and another Lady Mordaunt. Among their most ardent admirers was the Prince of Wales; as a husband of course he was hopelessly ineligible, but as an admirer his enthusiasm was not altogether distasteful. Lady Dudley, who was considered the handsomest of the sisters, first attracted his attention, but she would have none of it, sensible woman that she was. It is a matter of history that she was far from gracious and showed him as plainly as a woman could that she did not desire his notice. It is a pity that Lady Mordaunt was not equally discreet. It was not only in accepting compromising attentions from H. R. H., that Lady Mordaunt showed the weakness of her moral character, but she had several other admirers whose gallantry aroused the suspicions of Sir Charles Mordaunt. The two most prominent were Viscount Cole, (eldest son of the Earl of Inniskillen) and Sir Frederick Johnstone. At last the injured husband instituted divorce proceedings against his wife. He could not involve the Prince of Wales with the other two, but when the trial came off, he was examined in the House of Lords as a witness, that being the only tribunal having power to compel him to answer upon oath. He was asked the nature of his relations with Lady Mordaunt and swore to their innocence. It was surmised and believed by many at the time that he perjured himself to shield the name of the unfortunate lady. There were two sides, of course, to the story, and it became almost as serious a topic of discussion in the clubs as the genuineness of the Tichborne claimant. The prince doubtless thought he did right, at any rate he got off scot free, while his friends had to pay the piper. Sir Charles obtained a decree of divorce and the unhappy Lady Mordaunt is said to have died insane in a private asylum. Just a year and three months ago, her daughter, the equally lovely Miss Violet Mordaunt married Lord Weymouth, the eldest son and heir of the Marquis of Bath. His family were violently opposed to the match, on account of the melancholy associations it aroused, and did everything in their power to break it off, but beyond agreeing to wait the year his father demanded of him, no impression was made upon the young Lord Weymouth. When his time of probation was up, Miss Mordaunt became his wife. The marquesate of Bath is a very rich one, and Longleat, the family seat, is one of the show places in England, so the heir to the title and estates could have made almost any match he pleased. It is quite refreshing to know that he followed the dictates of his own heart in the choice of his future countess.

MRS. WHEELER'S ART ENTERPRISE.

A short time before the Centennial exhibition at Philadelphia, embroidery, in England at least, was practically a lost art. One or two firms produced, it is true, what was called church needle work, and a few of the Anglican sisterhoods embroidery, of a kind; but as art, it was all miserably bad, the designs stereotyped, the coloring crude, and the execution inferior. In 1872, an energetic lady, influenced partly by artistic feeling, partly by the desire of giving employment to the rapidly increasing number of indigent gentlewomen, began to interest her friends in restoring and copying old pieces of embroidery. She established in one room in a back street of London, what was destined to become the Royal School of Art Needlework, better known as the South Kensington School. The opportunity of showing what could be done to rival the embroidery of past ages was given at the Philadelphia Exhibition, and the school, which by this time had enlisted royalty in its ranks, astonished everyone by the success of its efforts. America felt the influence of the beautiful examples of needlework exhibited at her Centennial. Schools and societies of decorative art sprang up in almost all the large cities and many small towns, but it remained for Mrs. Wheeler and the Society of Associated Artists to form a society and develop schemes and principles of their own, influenced by freer methods than the English, drawing inspiration from the field of nature, rather than from that of tradition. Nine years ago Mrs. Candace Wheeler united with Mrs. Louis Tiffany and the Society of Associated Artists, in New York, in fact, it was owing to her energy and enterprise that the association was organized at all. The members are all trained artists, who have transferred their talents from painting to decoration on which they bring to bear a real and thorough art education and experience, under the direction of Mrs. Wheeler, who is the best art needle woman in the United States today. Not only has this society brought out a quantity of new and original materials of its own manufacture, but it has also introduced various novel methods of work, such as embroidery of various kinds, embroidery and painting combined, darned silk back-grounds, applique, undercutting and outlining. To attain the effects it desires, it uses any methods without regard to past examples. The associated artists make a speciality of their own designs, which are all covered by patents. These, with their materials and dyes are prepared and manufactured by Cheney Bros., the celebrated American silk manufacturers. Last year, I attended the first and only exhibition of these art goods ever held in Canada, and was perfectly bewildered by the beauty and delicacy of their designs and fabrics. Besides a number of soft silks, Indian, pongee, Verona, plain and figured, they showed cloth of gold, silk canvas, silk brocade, shadow silks, thistle silks, chamois cloths, cotton plushes, plain and stamped plushes, the latter guaranteed of durable quality. Nor did they disdain to make use of less costly stuffs, such as denims, nolland, ducks, light chintzes, heavy chintzes, cotton canvas, etc. Some of these materials, of course, were high priced. The silk brocades, for instance, were $10 per yard; cloth of gold $12; thistle silks $9; silk canvas and shadow silks, $5; but then, the cotton plushes, which were wonderfully effective, were but $2.75; the beautiful Florentine and Verona silks, $1.80; the chamois cloths $1.75; the figured denims, $1.25, and all the plain Indian and pongee silks, 75 cents per yard.

WEATHER MARKS.

This is the season when most of my active readers among the fair sex are liable to be afflicted with sunburn and freckles. A fellow feeling, we all know, makes us woudrous kind, and my own skin being prone, from a very limited exposure to the elements, to become like a baked brick, I am naturally interested in the appearance of my fellow sufferers, especially as in my humble opinion, life behind a veil is not worth living in the summer time. Few mild remedies will remove deeply imprinted freckles, but the lighter surface tan, whether in the form of red or brown sunburn, or detached freckles, does frequently yield to lotions and washes. An admirable lotion for sun burn is made as follows: Six grains of borax, one ounce of lime water, and half an ounce each of oil of jasmine and oil of almonds. Lemon juice has a great effect upon all sun spots, and if used pure directly the freckles form, will soon remove them. An excellent wash for a freckled or burnt skin is made with honey. One ounce of honey, dissolved in half a pint of warm water; into this squeeze the juice of two lemons; and then strain through flannels; add two ounces of strong brandy, one drachm bitter almonds; shake thoroughly and apply at night with a camel's hair brush. Elder flower water is capital as a summer lotion for a heated skin, or to apply before or after exposure in the sun, and may be made from the elder blossoms when fully in bloom. Place these in an earthenware jar or large jug and cover with hot water, which should not reach the boiling point. Naturally, this will not keep good like the distilled water sold by chemists, but when strained and bottled, two or three ounces of spirits of wine added to each bottle will help to preserve the liquid and also make it the more valuable as a face wash. Simpler lotions for sunburn are made a quarter ounce of borax to one half pint of elder flower water, an ounce of honey, the juice of one lemon, and half an ounce of glycerine. For skin eruptions of all kinds, I can confidently recommend "Cuticura," the great skin cure prepared by the Potter Drug and Chemical Co., Boston, Mass. It is perfectly harmless, and I have known it to subdue and cure the most irritating skin diseases.

PRETTY GARDENS.

Peeping In And Out Amongst the City's Flower Beds

A walk around the residential streets of the city quickly reveals to even the most superficial observer the fact that there are many among our citizens who are versed in the art of horticulture. Perhaps one of the most notable of our city gardens is that of Mr. A. J. McColl on Blackwood street, where is gathered together probably the choicest and most valuable collection of rare flowers and plants in the city. Conspicuous in the collection are two fine specimens of the aloe, a tropical tree, which bears flowers only at the age of one hundred years. These in question are yet some years off the time of flowering, but give every promise of soon doing so. The roses here are very fine, and embrace some of the best known varieties, such as Marechal Niel, Gloire de Dijon, etc., and also one or two which are as nearly a deep black as it is possible for roses to be. In the conservatory are plants from every quarter of the globe. Rare orchids, some valued at hundreds of dollars, cactus, begonias, beautiful gloxinias of a deep royal purple fading out into a spotless white, giant hydrangeas, cacti of various shapes, one called a serpent cactus, coiled and knotted up into fantastic folds, which if straightened out would total up about 20 feet. Fuschias over five feet high, and covered with flowers, geraniums a flaming mass of color, and the scarcer varieties of narcissus, lilies and late blooming tulips, kept in flower so late in the year by the gardener's skill. Besides these, there are some fine specimens of tropical fruit trees, including figs, bananas, oranges and the West Indian guava, which two last will bear fruit in profusion in another year. The fine collection of ferns here, too, can hardly be passed unnoticed, comprising as it does the graceful and delicate maidenhair, in great bunches a foot high, the slender hart's tongue, and many which come from far lands, which are only known by tongue twisting Latin names.

The greatest feature of Mr. H. V. Edmonds' grounds is the magnificent tennis lawn, lying on the south-eastern side of the house. Though recently put down, the turf has that soft, springy feel and close texture that usually only comes of years of cultivation. The fine foliage trees scattered here and there show the owner's good taste in arboriculture, while the flower beds contain many choice and handsome flowers, among which some fine specimens of roses and geraniums are particularly noticeable.

The grounds attached to Mr. Hendry's fine residence on the corner of Queen's avenue and Douglas road are well known for their wealth of flowers and rare foliage plants, and are usually considered the handsomest in the city. The great point is the fine collection of foliage trees, which has been gathered from all parts of the world at a considerable expense of time and money. Some of the trees here are of the rarest native kinds, and others again are from far countries. At the present time, some which bear flowers, are simply great masses of white, and backed up by the green leaves of the others, look very pretty. The flower beds are occupied by many plants, conspicuous among which are some remarkably fine specimens of the common fox glove, some of which are full six feet in height. The collection of roses, too, is very large, and embraces many unique, little known kinds, which, with scarlet and white geraniums, begonias, red and white carnations, and well known English cottage plants, load the air with their sweet odour. The conservatories attached to the house are mostly used for propagating purposes and contain many valuable orchids and tropical plants too delicate to bear the open air.

Most flower lovers carry away pleasant memories of Mr. W. H. Townsend's home. Recently Mr. Townsend has imported a large number of rare Californian roses, which, for beauty of color and shape have few equals, and are justly prized by their owner. Some Japanese hydrangeas, a not too common product of the floral kingdom, also claim attention, and evoke many expressions of admiration from those who see them. Mr. Townsend's collection of geraniums, too, is about the best in the city, indeed, almost the only one that embraces many known varieties. The various kinds are well represented, and the colors are impossible to describe in mere words, ranging from snowy white to a dozen shades of bright red and scarlet. Some of the rose bushes by the side of the house bear flowers so profusely that the leaves can scarcely be seen, and the bush at a little distance presents the appearance of a white bank.

Passing along Pelham street, visitors notice a small house with a verandah, which is almost concealed from view by roses which grow, climb and trail all over it in lavish profusion, white, yellow, golden, cream colored, pink, and a dozen shades of scarlet and crimson. It is the residence of Mr. T. Stoddard. They give this part of the street a very bright appearance, and their sweet odour fills the air.

A little farther on is the house of Mr. T. Cunningham, on the corner of Third street, the fine fruit garden attached to

LULU ISLAND LULU ISLAND

This property is being sold in blocks of the convenient size of five acres, which is about the right area for a fruit or market garden.

The gravel road running westward from the new Lulu Island bridge leads up to this property, thus placing it within a few minutes drive from the centre of the city.

The land is all cleared and under cultivation. There is no better soil in the world for general garden and fruit purposes and its closeness to a live market renders it particularly eligible for gardening purposes.

An acre of this delta land faithfully tilled will produce more money in a year than ten or twenty acres of ordinary farming land cultivated after the ordinary farm method. Its extraordinary productiveness is a positive wonder.

Here is an opportunity for any man to acquire what will afford him a lucrative living and a good deal more. It is an opportunity not likely to occur again for a long time. It is far cheaper than uncleared bush land at $5 an acre. Get some of it.

Notice to builders—G. W. Grant	2

LOCAL BREVITIES.

The Harrison excursion promises to be a huge success. July 1st. *

Yesterday was an ideal day for sailing boats.

The salmon catch yesterday was light but fishermen say the run is improving steadily.

A pair of California blue birds were observed flitting about in Queen's Park on Friday.

During church enlargement don't forget Bapist services in the City Hall tomorrow. *

Cherries of native growth are now becoming plentiful on the markets, and sell at fair prices.

The government snagboat Samson is tied up at the government wharf on West Columbia street.

Capt Powers of Moodyville, with characteristic liberality, has donated $500 to the proposed home for aged British Columbians at Victoria.

Stamping done at Lennie's. *

The steamer Dunsmuir came in from Nanaimo last night with a few passengers and a cargo of general merchandise. She goes out again tomorrow morning.

The eleventh annual convocation of Episcopal clergymen and lay delegates of the State of Washington was held at St. Mark's Church, Seattle, last week.

The salmon run in the Skagit River has begun, and fishermen are confident of a good season. Nearly all the canneries on the Skagit have started putting up fish.

Fine stock of stationery at Lennie & Co.'s, Douglas Street. *

The ferry steamer Surrey is lying at the Westminster Foundry wharf, to have her engines adjusted. She will probably be fit to resume business some time next week.

Davis Bros. will shortly commence to build a large ice house on the other side of the river. They intend to enter into the ice trade on an extensive scale next summer.

H. H. Lennie & Co. have just received a fine stock of Violins, Accordeons, etc. *

E. V. Winch, who has recently opened a branch store here, is now handling fresh salmon in large quantities. The firm report business to be rapidly increasing.

Mr. G. W. Grant is calling for tenders for the erection of a two-storey dwelling house for Judge Bole on the corner of Agnes and Clement street.

Bonanza cake, doughnuts, fresh fruit, pies at the Bonanza. *

The dust on Columbia street, in spite of repeated protests from press and public is getting worse every day, and yet the street sprinkler tarries.

"Mr. F. L. Carter-Cotton, M. P. P., D. F.," is the way the editor of the World writes the editor of the News-Advertiser down. "You pays your money," etc.

If you want a policeman or oyster stew at any hour call up the Bonanza. *

Vancouver is considering the matter of giving a bonus of $20,000 to Major Kelly of Brandon to assist him in establishing a flour mill at Vancouver with a capacity of 200 barrels per day.

W. J. Taylor, undertaker, died at Vancouver yesterday in great agony from blood poisoning occasioned by a nail in the sole of a boot he had been wearing. The funeral takes place today.

Strawberries and cream, ice cream and cake for 10 cents at the Bonanza. *

Grading on the Chilliwack railway will commence in about ten days from now. Mr. D. McGillivray, the veteran contractor, has charge of the work, and it will be rushed forward with all possible speed.

The Duke of Argyll was tied up close to the wharf about six o'clock yesterday morning, and the work of unloading started in earnest. The wharf is already piled with freight and merchandise of various kinds.

For rent—A store room and upper flat on Front Street, adjoining Mathers & Milligan's. Apply to F. J. Coulthard & Co. *

Brick and tile yards are shortly to be started on an extensive scale at Chilliwack by Mr. F. W. Lambert, a manufacturer of several years experience, who has recently arrived there from Washington.

There was not such a general close-up of stores and business houses yesterday afternoon as had been anticipated. Most of the dry-goods stores remained open, but it is said that next Saturday will see nearly every store in town closed.

For well arranged private rooms and first-class waiters go to the Bonanza. *

The shipping men of Tacoma are vigorously protesting against the fact that there is no ship commissioner resident there, and in consequence of this the business of the port is seriously hindered, as the ships are unable to take their crews on board.

Yesterday morning a horse harnessed to an express wagon bolted up Columbia street from the depot. Opposite Cunningham Bros.' store, one wheel of the wagon caught a pile of bricks and the rig was overturned, when the animal was secured. No damage was done.

List your property with us if you want to sell it. E. H. Port & Co. *

The commencement exercises of the Puget Sound University were held in Tacoma last week at the First Methodist Church. An able opening address was delivered by Rev. Levi Gilbert of Grace Church, Seattle with an address on "Christ and Letters."

The Vancouver Board of Trade has passed a resolution urging the Fisheries Department to appoint a Royal Commission to enquire into the salmon fisheries of the Fraser River, to take evidence as to the proper method of dealing with the license question and all other matters affecting the fisheries.

Davidson Bros.—Skilful watch repairer and manufacturing jeweller. *

The Pacific liners are timed to leave Vancouver for Japan and China as follows: Empress of India, July 29th; Parthia, August 19th; Empress of Japan, September 9th; Empress of India, September 30th; Empress of China, October 23rd; Empress of Japan, November 18th; Empress of India, December 16th.

Fruit growing is a staple and profitable industry at Ladner's Landing. On the ranch of Mr. E. Hutcherson there is a strawberry bed of one and a half acres, which is expected to yield this season about seven tons of strawberries. The whole of this fruit has been contracted for by the Vancouver Canning Co., at $140 per ton, making a total of about $1,000. On the same farm there are 2,000 currant bushes in full bearing, and the apples, pears and other fruit raised on Mr. Hutcherson's property are known all over the Mainland.

Look over P. M. Watson & Co.'s list of property on second page of this paper. *

The road from Chilliwack to Elk Creek has been completed, enabling the lime kiln recently erected and the marble quarry discovered there to be worked to good advantage. The marble is of a mottled and gray variety, and is described as being quite equal to that imported from Vermont by local dealers.

Contrary to official statements, H. M. S. Nymphe did not sail for Behring Sea on Friday, but waited until yesterday in order to catch the last English mails. The Nymphe was to have sailed at 9 o'clock yesterday morning and by this time is probably far on her way to the north. The Pheasant will follow her on Tuesday.

Guy W. Walker, Merchant Tailor, having dissolved with Mr. W. F. Beggs, is now at his old stand, 26 McKenzie Street. Clothes cleaned, repaired and dyed as usual. The store will be closed from 1 to 6 on Saturday. *

When the ship Thermopylæ entered port in Victoria and was being docked yesterday, she had too much headway and ran into the dock. Her port rail and bulwarks forward were torn off and considerable damage was done, which will take several hundred dollars to repair. The dock also received some damage, but who was to blame for the accident has not yet been determined.

The large steam collier Hounslow arrived from the south and entered Esquimalt dock for painting and overhauling yesterday. In view of his unpleasant experiences with the Union at San Diego, Capt. Norman requested the presence of police on board during his stay in Victoria, and his request was granted, although there is no sign of trouble. From Victoria the Hounslow goes to Nanaimo to load coal for San Francisco.

I have just received a nice stock of Gent's., Ladie's, Misses' and Children's boots, shoes and slippers which I am prepared to furnish at prices lower than the lowest. James Rousseau, Front Street, rear Bank B. C. *

CRICKET.

The Visiting Team Wins by a Small Majority.

The match played yesterday afternoon in the Queen's Park in this city between the second elevens of the Westminster and Vancouver cricket clubs, attracted quite a crowd of spectators to the grounds. Wickets were pitched about noon, the visitors going first to the bat. The play throughout the day was fast enough to make it interesting. The scoring was not heavy on either side. Rev. Mr. Irwin made the top figure, his contribution of 30 in the second innings being made by careful and steady play and an almost faultless innings. He received a round of applause from the stand on retiring, after being neatly bowled by Miles. Mr. Blaker's three and twenty were rapidly scored, and this, with Mr. Kinny's ten and six, was the only other stand of any account made against Vancouver's strong and effective bowling. It is notable that all the home wickets were bowled with the exception of four, and one of these latter was a run out. The honors were well distributed among the bats on the Vancouver side, and the combination probably possesses greater run getting powers than were manifested yesterday. Amongst the Westminster trundlers Mr. Owen was most successful, keeping up a steady excellence throughout the two innings. That capital all round cricketer, Mr. Green, for Vancouver, did most effective service in the bowling in the first innings, and he was well supported by Messrs. Miles and Nelson. The bright bit of work of the day was Mr. Wyld's success in stumping successively the last two bats of the Vancouver team. The match was a victory for Vancouver by the narrow margin of 6 runs. PRETTY GARDENS.

CONCLUDED FROM THIRD PAGE

which has often excited much admiration. The various trees here carry a very heavy crop. They are all well proportioned and in full bearing. The ground between them is occupied with strawberries and small fruit bushes. The strawberries raised here are very large, and equal in flavor and color to anything grown in the district. The exhibition of fruit on the trees here in the late fall is one of the notable features of Pelham street and many visitors stop to admire the display. Beyond this again, is a garden distinguished by a large number of bee hives, which, to patriotic Englishmen, presents the very picture of an old English cottage garden. Here are growing thickly in lavish quantity, old time English plants, most of them imported, such as Canterbury bells, snapdragon, foxgloves, white and red, sweet peas, pansies, roses, wall flower, sweet williams, stocks, dahlias, and other plants distinctively English, all apparently jumbled together into a brightly colored, sweet-smelling heap. The bee hives, too, with their busy occupants buzzing around, extracting the sweets so handily near to them, give the place a very attractive, home-like look, hence little wonder that so many stay to look over the fence a moment. On Columbia street east, just west of the asylum, is a residence occupied by Mr. James Miller, particularly notable for its beautiful shade trees. The house is set some distance back from the street, and looking up to it through a vista of massive trunks, far spreading branches, green leaves and cool shadows, broken by stray beams of sunshine, it presents a perfect picture of an old Colonial residence, such a one as is read about in novels, and has been described by magazine writers since magazines were first printed. Brief as this sketch is, it necessarily compels the omission of many deserving of mention, but those briefly described in the foregoing account may, it is hoped, serve to give residents in far places an idea of the horticultural beauties of New Westminster.

New Westminster, June 23, 1891. *

A Pointer to the Public.

District Lot No. 28 lies immediately adjoining the city limits. The continuation of Mary Street goes directly through it, and the Electric Tramway will in a couple of months be running its cars every hour of the day through the centre of this property. The lot (No. 28) is composed of 128 acres of land as level as a table. Contracts have been let to clear and grub the ground, and leave it in perfect condition for building purposes. Already six citizens have decided to erect handsome residences there, ranging in price from $4,000 to $7,000 each. The whole of this splendid piece of property (except some limited portions already disposed of) will be put on the market in a few weeks. One great advantage in buying a lot and erecting a residence on this property is that the owner will avoid heavy municipal taxation. Make a note of it, and wait till the property is put on the market before buying. *
