Linked by Fate

BY CHARLES GARVICE

Author of "The Verdict of the Heart," "A Heritage of Hate," "Nell of Shorne Mills," "Paid For," "A Modern Juliet," Etc.

Half unconscious of what she was doing, where she was going, she paced back as far as the steps, and, drawn by the stillness and darkness, went down to the garden—and saw the figure standing against the terrace wall.

She held her breath for a moment, then glided forward and laid her hand on Julian's arm. He turned and she saw his face.

"You have been listening!" she panted. "Coward! I will call to them—tell them!"

She swung round towards the house, but he caught her arm. His face was white, his eyes glowing; but, just as he had restrained himself when he found that he was dispossessed, so now he mastered his self-command.

"Wait," he said, quietly. "Do not move, do not speak! Wait!"

She stood still, stood motionless, rendered speechless by his unnatural calmness, and peered at him breathlessly.

"Yes, I have listened," he said as quietly as before. "And it is true. I love you—ah, do not speak—yet! I love you. Is it a crime to do so? Then I am the greatest of criminals, and I throw myself at your mercy. But you know I love you, you have known it since the day we first met. Do you suppose I am going to ask you if you care for me? I am not so great a fool! I know that Vane stands between us— No, not yet! Wait, I beg you to wait until I have said what I have to say. It is him you care for. I am—well, just the dirt beneath your feet. But he—ah, well, I have listened; there is no need to remind you. Vane does not count. You are less than nothing to him."

She put up her hands as if, indeed, she were about to strike him, but he did not move, and his dark eyes did not quail before the lightning in hers.

"While I—God, how I love you! You are just my whole life and soul!"

"You love me?" she said gliding closer to him. "Prove it! Prove it!"

"Tell me how—"

"Thrash him! Thrash him within an inch of his life!" she hissed.

He smiled, and the smile was like a douche of ice on her fury.

"No," he said as if in response to quite an ordinary, every-day proposition. "That would be a cheap kind of melodrama: and I should be the one who would be thrashed; Vane is a stronger man—" He shrugged his shoulders.

"You are a coward!" she said, her bosom heaving, her lips twitching. "You prate of love like—like an actor, and a bad one; but you stand by and see the woman you say you love insulted. But you want my answer to your kind proposal—your cousin's kind proposal, coward! Take it then! I will marry you the day you reign here as master instead of dependent, the hanger on you are."

He caught her by both wrists and leant forward, his breath coming as fast as hers, his eyes sinking into her own.

"I accept your conditions," he said, hoarsely. She shrank back, but he still held her. "You made it in jest, in mockery—"

She watched him closely, hungrily. "No!" she panted. "I—I am serious. It—it is you who jest, who trifle."

He smiled and, for a moment, his self-possession left him.

"Coward! The word stings! You shall see! I accept the conditions. Give me—give an earnest of your promise."

She shrank from him as he drew her closer to him; but suddenly she lifted her face, white and set.

"Take it!" she whispered.

He bent his head slowly and kissed her on the lips. With a low cry she broke from him and sped up the steps; but on the terrace she turned and looked down on him with a strange expression in her eyes, an expression in which fear and hate and the longing for revenge fought for predominance.

Julian stood looking up at her, at the spot on which she had stood, with glowing eyes, while one could count twenty; then he went softly round the house, unlocked a door in a wall and passing through the small yard—it had once been a ladies' garden, but was now moss and weed-grown—on which the laboratory looked—unlocked the laboratory door with his chub-key and entered the room.

There was an air of comfort about the apartment. The walls were colored a dark maroon, the woodwork was of walnut, beautifully polished, there were pictures on the walls, and a baby grand piano; but its scientific purpose had not been forgotten. Vane, with the generosity which characterized him at all times, but never more than in his dealings with Julian, had given him carte-blanche, and Julian had transformed the Witches' room into a model laboratory. The room was sound and air-proof, and ventilated by a casement in the roof which could be opened a quarter of an inch or thrown wide so that the fumes from the crucibles and chemical retorts couls escape in a few moments. The walls were covered with a composition which resisted the corrosive effects of the noxious fumes on which Vane so often animadverted. A draught, even a breath of air, is often fatal to a chemical experiment, so Julian had contrived that the room should be rendered absolutely hermetically sealed by the closing of the ventilator, which was worked, on the simplest principle, by a couple of ropes, passing over a pulley, which he could control by a lever fixed under his writing table.

As he entered he saw, by the light from the furnace, the bent figure of Deborah. She was moving about the room in her noiseless way, a tortoise-shell cat, which had attached itself to her, following her as noiselessly and rubbing against her. A silver tea equipage stood on a small table near the furnace, and as Julian entered she pointed to it.

Julian nodded and sank into the easy-chair near the table, and Deborah stood quite motionless and as waiting for his commands, her full grey eyes fixed on his as a dog's is fixed upon his master.

Julian wiped the sweat from his brow and poured himself out a cup of tea, as if unconscious of her presence, then he looked at her and said, on his fingers:

"Deborah, keep away from the front of the house. Sir Chandos Orme has seen you—and spoken to me."

"Yes, Mr. Julian," she replied with a swift movement of her thin fingers. "Is there anything else?"

"No, no, nothing," he signed. "You can go now."

She turned, then paused and looked as him.

"Are you sure there is nothing else? You are not looking well; you are looking as it you were ill. Is there nothing Deborah can do? You would trust me, sir?"

"Yes, yes," he said, impatiently. "What should there be? I am quite well. Have you made up the fire?"

"Yes, Mr. Julian."

"Well, then, you may go. Here—take this cat with you."

She went for the cat, but it eluded her and crept closer to Julian.

"Oh, never mind, then," he said, impatiently. "Let it be. How hot the room is! It is the fire, I suppose. Open the ventilator, please."

She went to the lever and opened with difficulty the window in the top of the wall.

"It wants a new rope," she signed.

Julian nodded irritably. "Yes, yes, I'll see to it."

She glanced at him, with the devotion of the spaniel, waited a moment to see if there were any other orders, then left the room, carefully closing the hermetically sealed door after her.

Julian leant back and sipped his tea. His heart was beating fiercely, his brain was in a whirl. The melodramatic scene in which he had played a principal part danced before him. His lips had touched hers, Judith's! She had promised to be his wife! His wife! He closed his eyes and a smile curved his lips.

But the condition! That he should reign as master at Lesborough. He had accepted it in the moment of excitement, of passionate ecstacy, as he would have accepted it if it had been the advent of the millenium. Was there any condition, any stipulation, which he would not have accepted?

His! That beautiful woman he loved with a passion that absorbed his whole being. Her kiss, cold and fierce as it had been, burnt on his lips and still thrilled him. His! Judith, the loveliest woman on earth, the one woman to be desired of all others. His passion left no room for thought of Vane, who had pleaded his, Julian's, cause. Some natures are incapable of gratitude, and Julian's was one of them. He put Vane's advocacy aside as if it had not occurred. All his thoughts, his heart, were bent on Judith.

And he would call her his when he reigned as master at Lesborough! It did not occur to him to doubt her promise, for that promise had been dictated by jealousy and hate, and they are stronger and more binding than love.

When he was master! That meant when Vane was dead, and he, Julian, reigned in his stead.

But Vane was alive, was but a little the elder of Julian. No matter. He had her promise; there was hope for him. All sorts of accidents might happen, as Sir Chandos, with his worldly wisdom, had said. Vane might be killed in the hunting field; a careless shot in the—

He wiped the sweat from his forehead again and looked round the room. His eyes fell upon the crucible on the spirit furnace, and the lover gave place, for the moment, to the scientist. He rose and went to the furnace. The liquid in the pot was emitting a bluish flame, a strange and pungent odor, so dense and penetrating that, as he bent over it, it caught his breath and made it difficult.

He looked round the room. The ventilator was half closed; his hand went to the lever which admitted or closed the air; but he shut the ventilator, and stood for a moment as if considering deeply. Then he went to a cupboard, took out a length of muslin, and, after soaking it in a liquid which he prepared in a bowl, wrapped it round his mouth and nostrils.

With deliberate movements he locked the door, saw that the ventilator was tightly closed, then lifted the iron cover from the pot on the furnace. A subtle, penetrating fume arose and filled the sombre room; the air became thick and palpable.

Protected as he was by the muslin soaked in the antidoting solution he was conscious of a heavy pressure on the lungs and heart, pressure that seemed almost intolerable. But he displayed no fear or dismay; indeed, a smile of triumph shone in his eyes.

"It is the Borgia fume!" he mumbled behind his muslin mask, as the atmosphere grew thicker, more dense; a cry pierced the silence. It was a moan, a piteous moan, from the cat which had sprung upon the table and was crouching there looking at Julian entreatingly.

"Puss, poor puss!" he murmured, a cruel, pitiless light in his eyes. "You don't feel well, eh? No wonder! You can't breathe in this atmosphere? I'm not surprised. But it is going to be worse!"

Protected by the muslin bandage, he went to her and stroked her, and the wretched animal dropped on its side and wailed to him imploringly.

"Nearly gone, eh?" he said. "Let us see what a stronger dose will do."

He glided to the furnace and stirred the compound; the fumes grew thicker, denser, and the cat, with a spasmodic jerk of all her limbs, fell prone on the table, her claws extended, her mouth wide open.

HOSPITAL RELICS.

Odd Things to Be Seen In a Great London Establishment.

If the reader can imagine the cure of every one of the 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 persons living in London of some ailment or disease he holds in his mind's eye a true picture of the vast work done by Guy's hospital since its foundation. The south sea bubble, like many another financial catastrophe, ruined thousands of citizens, but it enabled Thomas Guy, who sold his investments in the stock to the great advantage of other people as well as himself to found the institution which bears his name and to restore to health (down to the present time) over 6,000,000 human beings.

Among the many curiosities exhibited in the famous museum at Guy's is a large piece of cardboard bearing the remnants of thirty-five pocketknives, which were swallowed by an American sailor. His name was John Cummings, and he was admitted to the hospital in 1822. A small book, containing also the manuscript of the printed copy, narrates the particulars of this remarkable case, and it may be perused by the privileged visitor to Guy's.

It appears that Cummings during a spree ashore challenged the feats of a conjuror who had made a pretense of swallowing knives. Encouraged by his drunken comrades, the sailor actually swallowed an opened pocketknife, to the amazement of the conjuror. Feeling no immediate pain, he put five other knives out of sight in the same way. In two years' time he had, in the course of his drunken bouts, shown sufficient bravado to enlarge his internal armory by twenty-nine additional knives. When, after his foolishness had brought him to the hospital and subsequently to his grave, a postmortem examination was made the thirty-five knives were removed from his stomach by the amazed surgeons.

These interesting relics are exhibited among others in the surgical classroom, whither the students return from the dissecting room to correct their impressions. Close by is another interesting object, a glass case containing a number of what appear to be illuminated parchments. The grewsome nature of these exhibits grows upon the visitor when he learns that they are simply patches of tattooed human skin preserved in spirits. The inscription upon each enables one to trace the occupation and character of the unfortunate patient from whom it was taken. One was a colored sailor, a native of Africa. On some twelve square inches of his skin is worked an artistic representation of the most brilliant plumaged birds known in the tropics.

Guy's anatomical wax models are said to be the finest in the world. One of these is extremely valuable, the hospital authorities having refused the sum of £5,000 offered for it by a foreign medical celebrity. It is an absolutely perfect model of the upper extremity of the body, showing every muscle, gland, vein, nerve and artery. It took Joseph Towne, a clever demonstrator at Guy's, fully two years to make it, but with him in 1879 also died the secret of the process by which the wonderful construction of the human body was reproduced in wax with such marvelous fidelity.—London Standard.

The Land of Pagodas.

Burma is the land of pagodas. From the summit of every mountain, of every hill or hillock, from above the cliffs and rocks and from among the woods of the islands of the broad Irawadi rise the graceful forms and gilded pinnacles of numberless pagodas. Often they are crowned by a golden htee or umbrella. Pagodas are rarely temples in the true sense. They are usually solid, tapering buildings placed over real or imitation relics. Close by, among groves of palms and bananas, are generally to be seen the carved and seven storied roofs of the kloungs, or Buddhist monasteries. Gay and light hearted as are the Burmans, they realize another and future existence as vividly as they do the present life, and the teachings of the great Buddha are ever present to their

RELATING TO IRON.

Discovery of the Metal, According to Various Authorities.

The Bible speaks of Tubal Cain as the discoverer of iron and the father of smiths. The Egyptians imputed to Hephaestus the same honor, while Pliny mentions it having been discovered by Dactyles on Mount Ida after the forests on the mountain side had been destroyed by lightning. This was about 1,432 years B. C. Jeremiah and Ezekiel both mention iron in their Scriptural writings, the latter specially mentioning two qualities of the metal and calling one bright iron, which was probably steel.

Moses mentions an iron furnace, and Job speaks of it as being taken out of the earth. Thousands of years before the opening of the Christian era the Egyptians used iron in making sickles, knives and such things. Sparta first used iron for money. Britain also used it as a medium of barter and exchange prior to the conquest by the Romans.

The Britons before the time of Christ used to export iron to Gaul, and after the Roman conquest the conquerors established extensive smelting works, which existed at least as late as the Saxon conquest.—St. James' Gazette.

Finnish Marriage Fetes.

Marriage fetes in Finland, as in Norway, are often prolonged for several days, even among folk of humble rank. One peculiarity, which may excite more surprise than approval among eligible suitors in our own country, is that the Finnish lover never himself "pops the question" to the girl of his choice. The momentous proposal is made through a third person, called the "talman," to whom the happy couple give a present when his delicate mediation proves successful and ends in a wedding. Not uncommonly their gift to the talman takes the unromantic form of a shirt.

In like manner the clergyman who presides over the nuptial service receives a simple and inexpensive present, often a handkerchief and a pair of warm hair gloves. A similar gift is bestowed upon the officiating priest at funerals. Upon these mournful occasions the service is exceedingly simple—more so than would satisfy the views of British undertakers—but the burial is, as a rule, followed by large hospitality on the part of the bereaved family.

RAINY RIVER MAN HAD TROUBLES

TILL DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED HIS KIDNEYS.

Then his Rheumatism and other pains Vanished Once and for all—His Case One of Many.

Barwick, Ont., Apr. 9,—(Special).—That Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure Rheumatism, or any other disease resulting from disordered Kidneys is the experience of many of the settlers of this Rainy River country. The case of William John Dixon, of this place is a fair sample of the work the great Canadian Kidney Remedy is doing.

"I had Rheumatism so bad I had to to use a stick to walk. I had pains in my back and right hip, and I had no comfort in sleeping.

"I could no more than dress or undress myself for nearly two months, and I was for nearly three weeks I could not lace my right shoe.

"My brother advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and I did so. After taking three boxes I could walk around and lace up my shoes and do my work. Six boxes cured me completely."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the one sure cure for sick Kidneys. Sick Kidneys are the cause of nine-tenths of the ills the human family suffers from.

Sailors Talked to Admiral.

Some years ago, while traveling from Scotland, Admiral Sir William Kennedy was joined in his carriage by two young sailors returning to their ship at Chatham, and he took the role of a commercial traveler anxious for information on nautical matters.

The sailors answered his questions as to life aboard ship, and when he asked what the officers were like, and whether the admirals and captains got drunk and used bad language, the men replied, "Oh, no, sir. At least, not in the dockyard!"

On the arrival of the train at Rugby the admiral revealed his identity, but though he was later appointed commander-in-chief at Sheerness, all his efforts to find the young sailors failed.

In telling the story in "The Army and Navy Gazette," Admiral Sir William Kennedy says: "If ever these lines should meet the eye of my traveling companions, I trust they will remember the commercial gent in the 'soap and tallow trade,' who would be glad to see them again and discuss the affairs of the navy."

A Choice of Evils.

A young Scotchman fresh from his native land had "hired out" to a western farmer as a harvest hand. He was strong, industrious and full of enthusiasm, but the mosquitoes were a revelation to him. In all his experience he had never encountered anything so fierce, bloodthirsty and persistent, and they made his life miserable.

"They won't bother you, Sandy," said one of his fellow laborers, "if you smoke a pipe when they're round you."

Sandy had never "smokit," but he procured a pipe and some tobacco and proceeded to follow the advice.

For a few moments he smoked with much zeal and earnestness. Then he became very pale. He laid the pipe down and placed the tobacco by its side.

"'Tis varra gude tae keep the mosquitoes away, nae doot," he said, with a long, quivering breath, "but I prefair the mosquitoes!"

Shakespeare and English.

There is an old, a very old, tale told of a venerable lady, who, after seeing the play of "Hamlet" for the first time, said, "It is a very good play as plays go, but it is made up of quotations." This good dame, although she was probably unaware of it, was acknowledging, in a roundabout way perhaps, the indebtedness of the English language to our national bard. Phrases, sentences and some times whole lines from his writings have been crystallized, as it were, into colloquial English, and there are probably more quotations drawn from the works of Shakespeare than from those of any other author, ancient or modern—Chambers' Journal.

An Experiment With Water.

Take a pound of water the temperature of which is 80 degrees C. and mix it with a pound of water at zero, or freezing point. The mixture will make two pounds of water the temperature of which is 40 degrees C.

Now take another pound of water at 80 degrees C. and mix with it a pound of crushed ice—that is, ice crystals—at zero C., the same temperature as the cold water in the first mixture, and the result is that we have two pounds of water at freezing point.

In both cases the weight of water at zero C. introduced into the warm water was the same, but before the ice crystals could assume a liquid condition they had to absorb a certain amount of heat. That heat was drawn from the warm water and consequently reduced its temperature, but it did not raise the temperature of the ice. It simply acted as energy in enabling the ice to become liquid and remained in that liquid in the form of latent heat, to be given up again as soon as the water reassumed a crystalline form.

Wonderful Fiddles.

One of the greatest fiddles that ever were known was to be seen at the French court at the time of Charles IX. This was a viol so large that several boys could be placed inside of it. These boys used to sit inside this queer instrument and sing the airs that the man who handled the bow was playing on the viol outside. The effect is said to have been very beautiful, though it would seem as if the presence of the lads in its interior would seriously interfere with the tone of the "great fiddle," as it was called. Many years after another huge instrument of this kind was used at concerts in Boston. It was so large that to play it the fiddler had to stand on a table to use his bow at the proper point on the strings. This instrument was called "the grandfather of fiddles."

MONSTER TORPEDO.

The New Engine of Destruction Adopted by the Navy.

The United States navy has just adopted a new engine of destruction in the shape of a high speed turbine torpedo, the Bliss-Leavitt. It is classed as one of the most powerful and deadly sea weapons in existence today.

This self propelling sea monster travels through the water at a pace of thirty-six knots and has an extreme range of 4,000 yards, 3,500 being the guaranteed contract range. Owing to its superior advantages in speed and range, being capable of going eight knots, or 25 per cent, faster and nearly double the distance of the latest Whitehead, it will supplant the latter, now considered to be obsolete. The best performance of the Whitehead is a speed of twenty-eight knots, going but 2,000 yards.

The new torpedo has an additional advantage and one especially adapted for submarines, inasmuch as it can be discharged equally well from submerged tubes as on deck, a feat never successfully accomplished with the Whitehead.

The torpedo is fired out of a tube some twenty feet in length, the interior being well greased. About twenty minutes are required to force the 2,250 pounds of compressed air into the air chamber. An impulse charge of ninety pounds starts the glistening, cigar shaped shell of steel on its course. On ships gunpowder and electricity are also used for this purpose. After making a five foot dive, striking the water nearly horizontally, the torpedo darts off on a bee line, foaming and tearing through the water to attack its imaginary foe.—The World Today.

Water Drinking.

After all the efforts of physicians to make their patients drink water copiously and of the aforesaid patients to dispose of quarts of water daily it is nothing short of discouraging to be told by a medical writer that excessive water drinking often works serious harm. Brain workers with too little muscular activity or men who have excessive muscular activity without proper hygienic supervision nearly always take a sufficient if not an excessive quantity of liquids in the form of tea, coffee, beer, milk or water, declares this author as quoted in the Woman's Medical Journal. The normal amount of water required daily is a mathematical calculation regulated by the sensation of thirst. Many conditions must be considered before water drinking is prescribed, she says further, and its effects should be as carefully noted as those of any other therapeutic measure.

Twenty Millions' Worth of Cameras.

Thirty years ago a camera was a rarity. The enthusiast who possessed one carried a mountain of traps afield and smothered in a tent during his tedious manipulation of the wet plates. Last year the United States alone made 300,000 cameras, working with the mere pressure of a bulb or button, and the photographic business reached the respectable commercial total of $20,000,000.

Such figures, too, do not even hint at the true extension of this use of the sun's aid in obtaining exact copies of anything the eye can see. If one were to tell an ordinary business man that photography has a more pervading influence on his daily life than any other one discovery of which we have an authentic record he would probably be highly incredulous, yet it is an indisputable fact.—World's Work.

The County Watchdog.

Mart Person is regarded as a safe watchdog of the treasury in Washington county, Kan., on account of an incident which happened while he was road overseer. He was working a road that separates Washington and Republic counties. Along came a wolf that had been hunted nearly to death and lay down on the Washington side of the line to die. It was so utterly gone that the presence of man seemed to have no effect on it. The force of men working on the road gathered around it. It paid no attention to them, and finally Mr. Person, seeing it was bound to die, spurred it over across the road to the other side, saying, "There, you scoundrel, if you are going to die, go over into Republic county and let them pay the bounty."—Kansas City Journal.

Somewhere Else Next Time.

Justice Pickering of Springfield does not believe in cheap labor. The other day he married a couple and indignantly spurned a tender of $1.25 for his services. "I never paid any more than that for getting married," remarked the bridegroom. "But I am not dealing in cut rate marriage services," replied the justice. Then the bridegroom offered to make it $1.50. The justice remained adamant. He said his rate was $2 and the bridegroom must produce. "Ain't I worth $2?" asked the bride. "I suppose you are," said the bridegroom, and with a heavy sigh he paid full fare, but warned the justice that he would never come to him again to get married—Jefferson City (Mo.) Tribune

SMALL ECONOMIES.

Some That Are Not Worth the Expense of Time and Energy.

Women certainly are the conservatives of the race. Long ago men learned that time was too valuable to waste on useless details. But women still cling to their idols. One reads in the correspondence column of women's magazines perfectly absurd paragraphs on small economies. One woman recommends saving the gummed ends of old letters and circulars to use in patching books, sheet music, baking tins, etc. Imagine wasting time cutting old envelopes to pieces for gummed paper which may be purchased by the yard for a few cents! A roll of passe partout paper, the thinnest kind, costs about 4 cents. One piece would last for mending purposes at least a year. Another economist writes with evident pride that she saves all the empty breakfast food boxes, pastes a white paper hinge on the flap to strengthen the cover, buys a wooden box to hold a number of the paper boxes and labels the latter empty spools, string, rubber rings and other things, mostly not worth preserving. Such small savings are not worth while at the expense of time and energy, and the sooner women get that into their heads the better.—New York Post.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

When slicing an onion to flavor a stew or salad score each slice first before cutting it off.

It is said that potted meat will keep a longer time if it is covered with mutton fat instead of melted butter.

When pies are ready for the oven, make a tube of clean paper and put in the slit in the center of the pie. It will prevent the juice from boiling over, and the pies will be nice and moist.

A French cookbook declares that freshly killed meat is better for making bouillon, as it has kept all its juices and flavor. Pieces like low and top round, the neck, the shin and the shoulder are juicy and appropriate for this famous soup.

After cutting oranges in two parts place a lemon reamer over a glass tumbler and with this extract the juice. This serve in glass punch cups beside the plate for a breakfast course. It is more enjoyable than the ordinary method of eating oranges.

A SPRING TONIC.

Weak, Tired and Depressed People Need a Tonic at This Season to Put the Blood Right.

Spring blood is bad blood. Indoor life during the winter months is responsible for weak, watery, impure blood. You need a tonic to build up the blood in the spring just as much as a tree needs new sap to give it vitality for the summer. In the spring the bad blood shows itself in many ways. In some it breeds pimples and eruptions. In others it may be through occasional headaches, a variable appetite, perhaps twinges of neuralgia,, or rheumatism, or a lazy feeling in the morning and a desire to avoid exertion. For these spring ailments it is a tonic you need, and the greatest blood-making, health-giving tonic in all the world is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose helps to make new, rich, red, health-giving blood, which reaches every nerve and every organ in the body, bringing health, strength and energy to weak, despondent, ailing men and women. Here is proof. Mrs. Chas. Blackburn, Aylesford Station, N.S., says: "For the past ten years Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only medicine I have taken when I found I needed a medicine. Last spring I was feeling poorly, was weak, easily tired and depressed. I got three boxes and they made me feel like a new person. These pills are the best medicine I know of when the blood is out of order."

Thousands of people not actually sick need a tonic in the spring, and to all these a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will bring new energy and new strength. To those who may be more seriously ailing, who are suffering from any of the ailments due to bad blood—a fair treatment with these pills will bring new health and vitality. You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., at 50 cents a box or six boxes for for $2.50.

Received the Lyell Medal.

The distinguished recipient of the Lyell medal, Dr. Frank Dawson Adams, professor of geology in McGill University, was born in Montreal, and is a graduate of the university in which he has held a professorship since 1894. Following his high standing there both in natural and applied science, Dr. Adams subsequently studied in the Sheffield Scientific School, Yale College, and at Heidelberg, where he received the degree of Ph.D., devoting himself specially to lithology and physical geology. For many years Dr. Adams was on the staff of the Canadian Geological Survey, and is the author of numerous papers, dealing especially with problems of metamorphism and the older crystalline rocks of the earth's crust. These treatises have been copied in many scientific publications in Canada, England and the United States. Dr. Adams has all the genius of the explorer and his researches have won him an authoritative repute. It is interesting to note that his predecessor in the chair of geology at McGill, Sir Wm. Dawson, was the first Canadian to win the coveted Lyell medal. Dr. Adams is the second to maintain the high standing of this professorship.

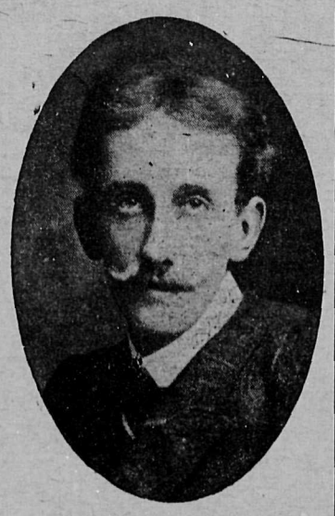
ALBERT FENNEL.



ALBERT FENNEL.
Editor of the Morris Herald.

Unequivocally independent in the policy advocated at all times, the Morris Herald has the distinction of being a cleverly edited newspaper as well as having possibly the youngest editor in the Canadian West in the managerial chair.

Recognized as one of the best advertising mediums in southern Manitoba, the Morris Herald, under the managing editorship of Mr. Albert Fennell, has not only become a factor of importance in the business life of southern Manitoba, but also is a force in the social and political affairs of the province, through the fearlessness, originality, and ability of Mr. Fennel as a writer. Mr. Fennel was born in 1882 in Birmingham, England. He began his journalistic life on the staff of the Birmingham Daily Gazette and there acquired, probably, some of that thoroughness of business method and independence of political thought that is a distinctive trait of the majority of the British press.

In the year 1901 Mr. Fennell, attracted by the opportunities offered to a trained young newspaperman, ambitious and energetic, came to Canada and determined upon the province of Manitoba as the field of his efforts.

For about three years Mr. Fennell was constantly engaged as a member of the staffs of several leading western newspapers and during that time acquired a thorough knowledge of western political, social, and business conditions.

Last September the opportunity for individual enterprise, a situation created largely through his own efforts, was given Mr. Fennell and in conjunction with Mr. James Hooper and a few residents of the town of Morris, he obtained control of the Morris Herald.

Realizing the opportunities of a bright and enterprising newspaper in Southern Manitoba, published in as favorable a position as Morris, Mr. Fennell at once saw to it that the mechanical necessities of a first-class weekly paper were adequately supplied and that the job-printing department was furnished with the best of type and the latest machinery.

The Morris Herald maintains a strictly independent course in politics and is a strong advocate of independent thought and actions and believes that the time is not far distant when much of the partizanship, or "party-ism," in politics will be done away with, and that people will think and act according to their own individual convictions.

The Morris Herald believes that Independent and Labor candidates will play a conspicuous part in Canadian politics in the near future. While the West may be rather full of newspaper men, the Morris Herald is of the opinion that there is always room at the top of the ladder.

As a leader writer Mr. Fennell has gained considerable reputation and prominence, his scathing manner of criticism and originality of expression being well known in the western newspaper world.

Mr. Fennell is an ardent supporter and advocate of manly sports.

For the Children

To succeed these days you must have plenty of grit, courage, strength. How is it with the children? Are they thin, pale, delicate? Do not forget Ayer's Sarsaparilla. You know it makes the blood pure and rich, and builds up the general health in every way.

The children cannot possibly have good health unless the bowels are in proper condition. A sluggish liver gives a coated tongue, bad breath, constipated bowels. Correct all these by giving small laxative doses of Ayer's Pills. All vegetable, sugar-coated.

DARK DAYS FOR JEWS OF RUSSIA

German Publicist, Who Has Traveled Through Empire, Fiercely Arraigns Government.

Berlin.—Startling reports of the condition and future of Russia's 6,000,000 Jews were made recently to the annual meeting of the Central Jewish relief League, of Germany, by Dr. Paul Nathan, a well known Berlin publicist, who has returned from an extensive trip through Russia as the special emissary of the Jewish philanthropists in England, America and Germany, to arrange for the distribution of the relief fund of $1,500,000 raised after the massacres last autumn.

Dr. Nathan paints a horrifying picture of the plight and prospects of his co-religionists, and forecasts at any hour renewed massacres exceeding in extent and terror all which have gone before. He left St. Petersburg with the firm conviction that the Russian Government's studied policy for the solution of the Jewish question is systematic and murderous extermination.

Dr. Nathan read to the meeting a circular addressed last week to the garrison at Odessa, calling upon the soldiers to "arise and crush the traitors who are plotting to upset the holy government of the Czar and substitute for it a Jewish empire."

Dr. Nathan concluded with a passionate appeal to the Jewish money powers of the world to arrest Russia's powers as a borrower. The financiers of the world should call a halt to Russia, not only for humanitarian reasons but for practical reasons. Russia's bankruptcy is an established fact.

Information published here states that a renewed outbreak of the Russian revolution is imminent.

The Central Revolutionary Executive Committee are distributing great quantities of arms and ammunition, particularly bombs. On this occasion the revolutionists will not fight in masses, but in small flying columns, which will employ the bombs as their principal instruments of destruction.

A Vanishing Type.

It is melancholy to think that, with all its shortcomings, the days of the bus are numbered. What motorman, with his haggard motor face, will ever take the place of that great artist in horses, who, tucked aloft on his little throne, with a flower in his buttonhole, his whip waving, his hat on one side, his improving conversation, threads his dangerous way through the traffic and yet with an alert eye on the sideshows of life? "Is Dr. Chase Your Doctor?"

Have you Learned to Cure Biliousness, Indigestion and Constipation with

A medicine, like a physician, is selected because of the actual results it is known to bring about. Most people are slow in choosing either physician or medicine until they know of cases in which they have proven successful.

In calling your attention to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills it is only necessary to point to their success in the past, for they are known in nearly every home.

By means of their direct and specific action on the liver—causing a healthful flow of bile—they regulate and enliven the action of the bowels and ensure good digestion in the intestines. At the same time they stimulate the kidneys in their work of filtering poisons from the blood.

This cleansing process set in action by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills means a thorough cure of biliousness, intestinal indigestion, torpid liver, kidney derangements and constipation.

It means a restoration of health, strength and comfort where there has been pain, weakness and suffering. It means a removal of conditions which lead to backache, rheumatism, lumbago, Bright's disease, appendicitis and diabetes.

Mr. G. Martin, Fletewode, Sask., writes.—"I desire to bear witness to the indisputable efficacy of Dr. Chase's remedies. I have not written sooner because I wished to be convinced that the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills would accomplish the desired results. In each case in which we have had occasion to use them in our family they have not only brought prompt relief, but have also effected a lasting cure. As I desire always to have Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the house in case of sickness, I am enclosing one dollar for five boxes."

Plant Premiums of Western Horticultural Society.

Following its practice of former years, the Western Horticultural Society is this spring again offering its members the choice of a number of free plant premiums. These premiums are selected with a view to introducing to the members of the Society a choice of plants that have been sufficiently tried to give an assurance of their hardiness and desirability, but that have not yet been introduced as widely as their merits warrant. The plants will be sent out with all charges prepaid.

Each member is entitled to one choice of the following plant parcels:

(a) Three seedling apple trees. These are one-year-old seedlings of the standard varieties grown from seed raised in the northwest.

(f) Six plants raspberries.

(g) Two plants gypsophila paniculata (baby's breath). Hardy perennial with tiny white flowers borne in abundance on long graceful stems.

Any person may take advantage of this distribution by sending the regular membership fee ($1.00- per year) to the secretary-treasurer, Geo. Batho, Box 1310, Winnipeg.

Chinese Opinion of America.

The Chinaman, unlike the European, regards America as only temporarily his home, preserves his national customs and peculiarities, and finally returns, carrying his savings with him. He is not attracted by our institutions and brings with him no love of American ideals. To him the United States is a field to be exploited, but nothing more. The European casts in his lot with us, mingles with the population, and in a few generations, his identity is lost in our composite race. He has neither peculiarities of thought nor of dress to distinguish him from those among he labors, and his children are soon an indistinguishable part of the community.. Not so with the Chinese. They are not only distinguished by their dress, language, and habits, but they remain entirely separate and apart from those among whom they dwell. This difference is due not only to the wide dissimilarity in history, tradition and habit, but also to the lack of any permanent or patriotic interest in the land in which they sojourn.

It would require generations to bring our people down to a plane upon which they could compete with the Chinese, and this would involve a large impairment of the efficiency of their work. It is not just to the laboring men of the United States that they should be compelled to labor upon the basis of Chinese coolie labor or stand idle and allow their places to be filled by an alien race with no thought of permanent identification with our country. The American not only produces the wealth of our nation in time of peace but he is also its sure defender in time of war—who will say that his welfare and the welfare of his family shall be subordinated to the interests of those who abide with us for but a time, who, while with us, are exempt from draft or military burden, and who, on their return, drain our country of its currency? A foreign landlord system is almost universally recognized as a curse to a nation, because the rent money is sent out of the country. Chinese immigration on a large scale would give us all the evil effects of foreign landlordism in addition to its other objectionable features. — William Jennings Bryan in "Success Magazine."

War Balloons.

Berlin.—The Kaiser has turned his attention to aerial navigation, with special reference to war.

His Majesty has been spurred to this effort by the announcement that the French Government has adopted a navigable airship, invented by M. Juillot, a French engineer, for use in war by the French army. The Emperor feels strongly that Germany ought not to lag behind in this respect, and probably owing to the difficulty he might experience in persuading the Reichstag to vote sufficient funds for the purpose, he decided to obtain money by private subscriptions.

He therefore appealed to the patriotism of four Jewish millionaires who are prominent in the commercial life of Berlin, and between them they have subscribed £50,000 to form a company to carry out the experiments necessary to ascertain which type of airship is most suitable for military purposes.

The Oldest Woman.

In a refuge for the aged in Madrid there is now a woman who has claims to being the oldest of her sex in the world. She is an Andalusian and was born in Granada in 1781. She has lived in Madrid for 103 years and has been the mother of twenty-one children, all of whom are dead, though most of them lived to a fairly old age. There is nothing emaciated or cadaverous about the old woman. The skin has a healthy appearance, there is color in the cheeks, and her eye is still clear and bright. The surgeon in charge of the home thinks she may still live a considerable time. --New York Tribune.

MINERAL WEALTH OF NORTH.

Copper Chopped Out of the Rocks in Large Chunks by Eskimos.

In view of Ontario's claim to a large tract of land lying along the shores of the Hudson's Bay, and the possibility that the Temiscaming railway may be extended into the territory, information on the resources of that vast northern country is of unusual interest. The latest news is that brought by William Beech, of Winnipeg, a prospector, who has just returned from an exploration trip of several months' duration. Samples of copper, mica, plumbago, and iron he has brought back, and reports having seen particles of gold in the possession of a Hudson's Bay Company factor. Copper, he says, abounds in the vicinity of Chesterfield's Inlet, and is chopped out of the rocks in large chunks by the Eskimos and explorers. The natives hammer it into pipes, trinkets and dishes, or use it to patch guns.

The plumbago deposits in the neighborhood of Fort Churchill he declares to be very valuable, and a Winnipeg newspaper pronounces his samples of very fine grade. Mica is also very common, both white and brown. Near Churchill also he found samples of iron ore, but the value of the deposit is not yet known. One important point is that the ore is on the shores of the bay, and could be loaded on vessels direct from the mines. Mr. Beech says that several prospectors are at work in the district, among them J. W. Tyrell, late of the Geological Survey, and Lieut. Col. Turnbull, but to Beech belongs the distinction of staking the first mining claim on Hudson Bay and registering it with the Dominion Government.

Both Got Annuity.

A Scottish life officer sold an annuity to Mr. Patrick Maloney, and paid, and paid until they reckoned his age about 100, when they sent an inspector to Tipperary to interview the annuitant, and to make sure they were paying the annuity to the proper person. The emissary called at the cottage and asked if Mr. Pat Maloney was in. No, he was in the field plowing. A centenarian working plowman seemed rather an anomaly. The insurance man found the field, and a man about 60 at work. "Are you Mr. Patrick Maloney?" "Yes," he said, "I am." "Are you the Mr. Maloney who draws the annuity from the ——— Insurance Company?" "Yis, bedad, and mi father before me."

Some persons are more susceptible to colds than others, contracting derangements of the pulmonary organs from the slightest causes. These should always have at hand a bottle of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, the present day sovereign remedy for coughs, catarrh and inflammation of the lungs. It will effect a cure no matter how severe the cold may be. You cannot afford to be without a remedy like Bickle's, for it is the best.

HIS WIFE'S LUNGS BOTH AFFECTED

But the Great Consumptive Preventative brought Health and Happiness to his Home

"Our doctor said there was no cure for my wife as both her lungs were affected," says Mr. L. H. Walter, of Pearl Street, Brockville, Ont. "It was a sad disappointment to us both, just starting out in life, only married a short time. But before she had finished the first bottle of Psychine the pain in her lungs quickly went away, and after taking six bottles Mrs. Walter was a new creature and perfectly well again."

That is just one of the many families into which Psychine has brought hope, health and happiness. It is a living proof that Psychine cures Consumption. But don't wait for Consumption. Cure your LaGrippe, your Cough, your Bronchitis, your Catarrh, or your Pneumonia with the remedy that never fails—

The Origin of the Garter.

Somebody has been trying to disprove the old story about the origin of the British Order of the Garter. The legend has it that Edward III. of England picked up the garter of the Countess of Salisbury, and handed it to her with the famous words:—"Honi soit qui mal y pense," the motto of the order. There has been recently found in the Bibliotheque Nationale in Paris a written account made by command of Henry VIII. when he bestowed the order on Francis I. of France. This story is that Richard Couer de Leon, while in the Holy land, fastened leather thongs around the knees of his allies or followers who had distinguished themslves by gallantry. The story does not fit the motto of the order, which is a tribute to the character of the fair fourteenth century countess, of whom and Edward, alas, the French chroniclers tell their tales.

For Inflammation of the Eyes.—Among the many good qualities which Parmelee's Vegetable Pills possess, besides regulating the digestive organs, is their efficacy in reducing inflammation of the eyes. It has called forth many letters of recommendation from those who were afflicted with this complaint and found a cure in the pills. They affect the nerve centres and the blood in a surprisingly active way, and the result is almost immediately seen.

Rheumatism—What's the Cause? — Where's the Cure?—The active irritating cause of this most painful of diseases is poisonous uric acid in the blood. South American Rheumatic Cure neutralizes the acid poison. Relieves in six hours and cures in one to three days.—90

They Drive Pimples Away.—A face covered with pimples is unsightly. It tells of internal irregularities which should long since have been corrected. The liver and the kidneys are not performing their functions in the healthy way they should, and these pimples are to let you know that the blood protests. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will drive them all away, and will leave the skin clear and clean. Try them, and there will be another witness to their excellence.

VANCOUVER, B. C., JUNE 9, 1906.

It is a great satisfaction to Mt. Pleasant residents to know that the Board of Works have recommended new bridges across False Creek. "The Advocate" has repeatedly called the attention of the City Council to the unsafe condition of Westminster avenue bridge, and we hope the building of new bridges will not be delayed until an accident may have occurred.

We are pleased to learn through the report of Alderman Heaps' declaration, that an effort to change the Market site from the Mt. Pleasant side of False Creek to Cordova street had never been considered by the Market Committee. An evening daily is responsible for the statement that a movement to change the site had been started by Cordova street merchants, and "The Advocate" in its issue of May 26th, opposed such a movement and cited why the site decided on by plebiscite is the best location in Vancouver.

Many Mt. Pleasant subscribers of the B. C. Telephone Company have been the victims of great inconvenience and loss from the cutting of a cable to Mt Pleasant on Monday evening. In the dispute between the Company and strikers many citizens sympathized with the strikers and have publicaly expressed their sentiments, but the lawless acts of cutting the lines hurts the strikers and the subscribers to the Telephone Company for more than it does the Company All law-abiding citizees condemn and deplore such outrages

However, from the treatment the public is compelled to submit to from the present set of operators it is no marvel that business men and women are eager for a girl-less telephone system.

Brass Band for Mt. Pleasant.

There was an enthusiastic meeting in Oddfellows' Hall on Wednesday evening for the purpose of discussing the advisability of organizing a Brass Band for Mt. Pleasant. Those attending were Messrs. W. R. Owens J. P., Fen Steele, W. T. Ward, S. Conway, W. H. Caldwell, E. Timms, Fred Wade, J. H. Grant, — Maddams, H. Kemp, Fred Crocker, R. S. Cummings and Messrs. Thompson. Of these twelve were enrolled as members of the band, and with the names added of those who intend to join, a total of 18 players is assured. A committee was appointed—Messrs. Ben Steele, E. Timms, F. Wade, W. H. Caldwell—to canvas for players, ascertain the cost of instruments and as to what support would probably be given to the proposed band by local merchants and residents. Nearly all of the players who have joined the band own their own musical instruments and the cost of starting the band will not be very great. The object is to afford profitable pleasure and instruction to players, and provide music for this part of the city. The band will give concerts and play at garden parties on Mt. Pleasant. It is worthy of the hearty support of this locality. By next year it is expected the band will be able to secure a portion of the grant given by the City Council to bands—for concerts in Mt. Pleasant and Fairview.

On Monday evening there will be an organization meeting in the Oddfellows' Hall, when officers will be elected and bandmaster chosen. The meeting will start at 8 o'clock sharp All players of brass and reed instruments are earnestly requested to attend and take part in the organizing of the Mt. Pleasant Band.

READ AND YOU WILL LEARN

That the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice endorse and recommend, in the strongest terms possible, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, "liver complaint," torpid liver, or biliousness, chronic bowel affections, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region, name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their resultants, as bronchial, throat and lung diseases (except consumption) accompanied with severe coughs. It is not so good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherrybark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College; Prof. Hare, of the Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., late of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago, and scores of others equally eminent in their several schools of practice.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes, that has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any number of ordinary testimonials. Open publicity of its formula on the bottle wrapper is the best possible guaranty of its merits. A glance at this published formula will show that "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no poisonous or harmful agents and no alcohol—chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead. Glycerine is entirely unobjectionable and besides is a most useful ingredient in the cure of all stomach as well as bronchial, throat and lung affections. There is the highest medical authority for its use in all such cases. The "Discovery" is a concentrated glyceric extract of native, medicinal roots and is safe and reliable.

A Good Bargain.

The Georgia genius, Sam Jones, never said a better, truer thing than when he declared: "God alone knows how much damnation there is in A GOOD TRADE."

When you say that you have got "a bargain" in a horse, you mean that you have paid less than the horse was worth. Therefore, you paid the owner only a part of its value. Therefore, you got part of the horse for nothing. Therefore you cheated your neighbor. Therefore, you feel good, and you boast of your "bargain." It was "a good trade," and contains much damnation

Yet you are not the meanest man on earth. Everyone of us is just about as mean; and when we abuse you for swindling your neighbor out of his horse we are only covering, with fine words, our envy and regret—our envy of your luck and our regret that we didn't get that horse.

(Ah me!—and that's the sort of human nature that the Socialist tells us ONLY A CHANCE to turn earth into heaven and men into clarionet angels.)

It is the same way all along the line. We want to get "something for nothing." When we make a trade, we don't feel proud unless we have got the better of the other fellow. No man "points with pride" to the fact that he honestly paid full value. But let him get the property at less than half its worth, and he will glow with happiness for weeks and month.

The craving for "a good trade" will never leave the blood of man. We are born gamblers, we are chock full of the lusts of the flesh, and we dearly love to cheat and fight. But while inherent traits can not be entirely cast out, they can be curbed and mastered.

If proper conditions were restored there would be the fewest number of chances for "a good trade."

If every laborer were paid a just wage, if public utilities were used for the public good, if the necessaries of life were untaxed, if wealth were compelled to bear the expenses of extravagant government, if the people took charge of things by Direct Legislation and ran the government in the interest of all, if Special Privilege were cut up, root and branch—there would be enough for all, and few industrious citizens would ever find themselves in such a helpless condition that they would surrender their own to some other at "a bargain."

Mr. and Mrs E. P. Eppinger have moved from Seventh avenue to corner of Thirteenth and Scott. Mr. Eppinger will build a modern dwelling at his new location in the near future.

Woman's Realm.

Shoulder scarfs of flowered ribbon with long stole ends and edgings of lace are worn over white or plain colored summer frocks, Valenciennes lace is employed as a finish on the edge.

Once more a bit of orange is seen on many gowns. It is not being overdone, as it was a few seasons ago. Just the faintest suggestion—a tiny piping or a touch in embroidery—is permissible.

Delicate color combinations are noted in some of the new trimmings. So much has been done recently in monotone trimmings that the newer suggestion of color combinations in trimmings will be gladly welcomed.

A new material, half veiling, half netting, but silkier than either, is marquisette, which is in all the new shades of green, dull stone, Alice and imperial blue, lavender and grey, and is in great favor for dressy gowns and suits.

HOT WATER FOR THE BATH.

After a hard day's work there is nothing so refreshing as a hot bath. During the warm weather one reluctantly builds a hot fire in the range and consequently the bath is often neglected.
This difficulty can be easily overcome by the use of gas for fuel, with one of our

DEASY HOT WATER BOILERS.

The "Deasy" IS A COMBINATION BOILER and can be attached to your ordinary range also.
If you intend buying a NEW boiler, you should see the Combination "Deasy" before making a purchase. If you don't, you will be sorry after you have seen one in operation that you had not taken our advice.
