A ROYAL WARDROBE.

Glimpses of the Gowns of the Princess Louise and of Her Wedding Gifts.

Mr. G. W. Smalley in N. Y. Tribune.

If there be anybody who has cause to rejoice over the royal wedding it is the royal tradesmen. They not only get large orders, but they have the pleasure of seeing themselves advertised for nothing in half the newspapers in the kingdom. I say for nothing, but it is really impossible to say what is paid for and what is not. Some of the information published by the London papers comes obviously from the shopkeepers themselves. It sounds like the talk one hears from over the counter, and is meant to sell other things besides those already sold to Princess Louise or to the friends of the Princess whose gifts have turned Marlborough House into a big bazaar. Some of it, however, cannot be attributed to business houses, unless to such as "keeps a poet." It is of the most exciting character. The Princess Louise we know now, is very partial to black dresses, which is lucky since the royal family is more often than not in mourning. There are several gowns, says a chronicler in this "tint" and one of them has a skirt edged with leaf-shaped tabs, the meaning of which is, I hope, clearer to my readers than to me. Another gown—for they are not all black—"is in the soft tint "now universally known as old pink. The author drops naturally into poetry as he, or she, describes his, or her, handiwork. "In front it opens over puffings of pink crepe strewn with flowers in pink crystal passementerie." Mere English is inadequate; milliner's French comes in to fill the gaps, and" between the puffing is a revers of pink broche."

It is startling to read that another gown of beautiful citron and silver brocade has a deep accordion pleating of citron colored silk muslin in front. Musical terms occur elsewhere. Bands of pearl embroidery show an "interlude" of pink moire bows tied up with pearl tassels. Dubiln comes in for some of the honors and profits; a Dublin dressmaker has the honor of composing several evening dresses; one of them in "cardinal Irish poplin." This is, it appears, a favorite dressmaker for the Princess of Wales herself, and no wonder, if we may believe that, the front of her daughter's gown is draped in a graceful slantwise manner, The curves free but unconfined with crepe de chine of the same soft bright shade." Well may the writer say that to the feminine portion of the community nothing is more important than the "fascinating items" of the trousseau. Even to the mere man they are fascinating; the account of them also fascinating in its lyrical enthusiasm. We like to be told that compared with Irish poplin Irish point lace is an "ethereal substance" and that the gown is "confined entirely to the products of the country." Precision and enthusiasm go hand in hand. "A white satin backed and brocaded with pale pink is made absolutely plain at the back the very slight necessary fulness falling into the long ample train." Flowers are even more common than flowers of speech or than accordions. "The front of the skirt is trimmed with puffed silken muslin of pale pink hue, with here and there a tulip and foliage stimulated in pink shaded crystal laid on its soft surface." Then there is a primrose-colored satin dress, richly wrought with silver in a design of wild roses. There are flowers in yellow crystal outlined in silver, and the leaves softly stimulated in chenille

A London artist, however, gets the lion's share of these orders; she, "having made dresses for the Princesses ever since they left off infantile garb, has the coveted honor of doing the great portion of the trousseau"; and so Ireland has still another grievance. The strain rises higher than ever for the privileged creature. She has devised "a bodice with a series of pleats softly folded around it, on which are single roses with a leaf or two delicately wrought in silver thread." More than that "the skirt is draped with this wonderfully graceful hanging substance, the weight of silver gently compelling the folds downward." We shall hardly hear a more soaring note than this; still it is pleasant to read of a beautiful trimming of passementerie "used with the most perfect discretion," and of a dress "of pale blue, such as is seen in water reflecting an evening sky." The last is possibly but a plagiarism from that Chinese blue known as blue of sky after rain. Softly, you perceive, is a favorite proverb, but there are others—quaintly is one. There is a bodice made to stimulate a Spanish jacket. Another is "mellowed to a hue so sympathetically soft that it goes in harmony with the cerulean silk." Another is "of faille, the tint rather ivory than uncompromisingly snowy." It is remembered that economy has not been forgotten, many of the dresses are made with two bodices, one, suitable for balls and ceremonial occasions, being cut low and sleeveless, and the other, for quieter dinners and more private functions, with elbow sleeves and opened only in the usual V shape."

I will pause to remark that never was there a time when greater freedom of choice was known, or when women were more completely at liberty to wear what they liked, or whatever their fancy dictated becoming to their face and figure and individual style of beauty. It is not to the dressmakers or newspapers you are indebted for this observation, but to a lady who might herself set the fashion if she cared to but who is satisfied to dress herself perfectly, and to let others do as they please. "If you look about you," said she you will not see no two of these ladies are dressed alike, there is neither prevailing fashion of cut and shape, nor any one prevailing hue like the green of some months since. There are gowns with sleeves and without; there are Empire gowns, and others which look as if no Republican would wear them; some are flat and some are full; some are all of one material, some are half silk and half lace, dvided laterally, not one over the other, but each half of the dress separate. The only point in which all agree is in discarding the camel's hump at the back." I looked about me as I was bid, and saw, indeed, a pleasing variety of garments; noting most of all that one which was divided all up and down in two sharply contrasting materials.

Whether the Princess has gowns in this style does not appear. The language of our court newsman is too beautiful to be exact. It must content us to know that she possesses "a charming tea gown of white corded silk, with crepe de chine draped over it in an indescribably graceful way, the folds caught up with knots of white moire ribbon at the shoulder and one at the waist, making an effect at once classical and severely simple." Well, of course, when a thing is indescribable it cannot be described; not even by a writer capable of saying that a rough tweed riding habit is of a golden brown color "intercepted" by narrow lines much darker in tone—the whole "a dainty gentlemanlike garment." Not less gentlemanlike those waterproof boots "reaching quite to the knee," and you may if you like include under the same head a pair of field boots in porpoise leather. He is careful to add that "these lace and unlace just in front of the ankle." With that the historian pauses. His courage does not carry him so far as that American enthusiast who filled half a dozen columns with the inventory of a well-known beauty's underclothing. The more discreet Englishman thinks it sufficient to declare that the Princess Louise's lingerie—a word which pleases the prudish—"has been distributed among the various charitable institutions for providing needy persons with remunerative employment as needlewomen." He adds that "all are marked with the coronet of an English princess, through which is thrust the letter L." The same fate has befallen the handkerchiefs, "but it is probable that the table linen will bear, eventually, a ducal coronet and the united initials of the bride and bridegroom." All's well that ends well.

There have been heartburnings over the gifts; rivalries, too, and complications of a kind which are too intricate to unravel publically. The three subscriptions, even with the Duchess of Abercorn at the head of the most important, proved less productive than expected, and I believe the diamond necklace shrivelled into a diamond pendant, and two or three lists were consolidated into one; and on the whole it became clear that most persons who were entitled to offer wedding presents to the Princess Louise preferred to select their own, however modest. Rather than be one of a group at $50 a head or $25 or $10. The magnificence of Lord Fife's own gifts to his bride left nothing to be desired, yet even Lord Fife recoiled before that single string of pearls at the low price of $180,000 which a Palais Royal jeweller came over from Paris to propose to him. Lord and Lady Rothschild's chrysoberyl, or Cingalese catseye, large as a half-dollar, set in brilliants, is said to be the finest single gem given. The emeralds and diamonds which the Sassoon family clubbed together for, and the matchless diamond bracelet—composed of stones which never occur in these days—given by Lord and Lady Rosebery, come next.

No complete list has yet been published, and none, in any case, could be given here, but there is no doubt the general desire to bestow offerings on this young lady. Before her engagement to Lord Fife she was jewelless, and Lord Fife has no family jewels, yet now they say she has more than the Princess of Wales herself, whose collection is remarkable. The caprices of fashion are endless. It is one of them that jewels are now more worn than ever. Never were so many tiaras seen as this year, or not for many years, or never on any one evening, as at Lady Rothschild's ball last week, or at the Duchess of Westminster's ball on Monday. Not in the Minnesota manner, however; not in the daytime. These splendors are for the evening exclusively, and the Englishwoman does not go shopping in her diamonds, not even if a Duchess; perhaps least of all if a Duchess. So, for these two reasons and others not less good, the Princess Louise has now become the owner of an extraordinaay number of sets of precious stones. Nor has she, nor has Lord Fife, been obliged to rebuke the zeal of their admirers as the Duke of Portland did. It is said of the Duke of Portland that he caused some of the presents to the Duchess to be returned to the donors on the ground that their acquaintance was too slight to entitle them to accept these gifts.

TRAIN ROBBERS CAUGHT.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 19.—Friday afternoon James and Howe Pullen, two brokers, were arrested in this city charged with the robbery of the Wabash train on Aug. 4th. The prisoners were taken to Liberty, where they have been kept ever since. Officers state that they are certain that they have captured the right men.

A SINGULAR RESCUE.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—At a picnic yesterday given by the Pioneer Relief and Aid Society for the benefit of the families of the imprisoned Anarchists, Sophia Schwab, aged two years, in some way became entangled in the strings that held a lot of toy balloons. The balloons became detached from their fastenings and sailed into the air, carrying the shrieking child with them. The mother fainted and the utmost horror prevailed as the balloons gradually rose to a height of about twenty feet, and when the breeze carried the balloons out over the lake the babe was given up for lost. About this time August Kirch, an expert rifleman who was present, rushed for his rifle and called for a boat, which was quickly provided, and with two oarsmen followed after the babe. The balloon still maintained its altitude and was fast sailing out over the lake. As soon as the boat was near enough Kirch commenced firing at the balloons, and one after another was pierced until the bunch commenced to settle. The boat was rapidly pulled further out, and when the balloons descended the child was rescued before she touched the water. Although terribly frightened the babe was uninjured.

Dock Laborers' Strike in London- Dr. Peters again Coming Before the Country.

Terribly Fatal Fire in a New York Tenement House—The Senate Committee and the Railways.

THE PRINCE IN LUCK.

London, Aug. 19.—If the Queen and her royal offspring have been very much put out over the shameful way in which the Radicals opposed their modest request for more money, the Prince of Wales at least has something with which he sooths his lacerated feelings. As a direct outcome of the agitation instituted by Radical members of parliament and their supporters, the Prince has received an anonymous letter in which the writer deplores the inconsiderable conduct of disloyal Radical sympathizers with his Royal Highness, in which their agitation placed him, and last, but by no means least, he gives a proof of the sincerity of his sympathy by enclosing ten crisp Bank of England notes each of the denomination of a thousand pounds. No name is signed to the communication and the writer has taken such pains to avoid leaving any clue to his identity that no one is prepared even to guess who it can be.

DOCK LABORER'S STRIKE.

The strike of London dock laborers which has been in progress for some time, has reached a critical stage, and one side or the other must yield within a few days. The men have so thoroughly perfected their organization that employers find it impossible to fill their places and many of the London docks work is suspended, specially is the case at the West Indies dock where some vessels have been lying a week unable to load or unload. The stevedores held a meeting and unanimously passed a resolution declaring they will never yield.

DOCTOR PETERS.

The Gazette has set itself up as the special champion of Doctor Peters, African explorer, whose vessel was seized by the British Admiral Fremont. In this position the Gazette stands almost alone. The German press has quite generally taken the ground this afternoon that the doctor and his scheme, more especially since the Emperor's visit to England, has so much improved the relations between the two people; the Gazette says everybody knows that the Chancellor's organ, the North German Gazette, is opposing Doctor Peters only because that gentleman's personal relations with Bismarck are not pleasant. It seems ridiculous that the paper's assertion that an immense province is within the sphere of British rights in Africa, and insists that it belongs to Emin to do with and dispose of as he thinks fit. The Gazette is very bitter and declares Peters deserted his country at the behest of England.

GERMANY AND AUSTRIA.

It is reported from Berlin that the conference in which the two Emperors and their ministers have taken part has resulted in a very material modification of the alliance existing between Germany and Austria. Heretofore the treaty between them proved active only in case either was attacked, the alteration just effected in the treaty making it obligatory upon either power to come to the assistance of the other when the "vital interests are menaced." This modification is a marked strengthening of the existing alliance.

BOULANGER.

Frenchmen to the number of 200 called on General Boulanger at his residence to-day and presented him with an address of sympathy and confidence. In reply he entered into the matter of his trial and conviction by the French Senate and took occasion to deny the charges upon which he was tried. He said he never, upon any occasion, made use of funds belonging to the state, except while trying to compass the safety of France. When attacked by his enemies, if they had been cited to appear before any regular tribunal in France to make answer to the outrage, he and his colleagues would have hastened to take the first steamer to France; but such a course would not suit the nefarious purpose of those who for the moment were usurping the power of the republic. They, for a tribunal, were composed of his personal and political enemies and the enemies of his colleagues, all of whom were virtually condemned before it met. Of Frenchmen he only asked that he be treated with fairness and the triumph of the present rule which belonged to himself, would soon be a thing of the past.

CARNOT SPEAKS.

Paris, Aug. 18.—The banquet given this evening by the Paris municipality to the 1,300 mayors and commercial delegates of France, was a most brilliant affair. President Carnot was present, and in reply to a toast, his honor said that such a demonstration as the present one was valuable in many ways; but probably they showed a more useful purpose than to prove national solidity at a time when the enemies of the republic were attempting to crush it. Would that there was no such thing as Nihilism among the French. This proof was welcome. The French, though crushed for a time, have shown their wonderful power of recuperation before this, but it is shown again to-day when a nationality made sovereign voice was once more heard and had laid a heavy hand on outraged law and upon parties who were aiming at the overthrow of the republic.

BERNHARDT'S HUSBAND DEAL.

M. Dalata, husband of Sarah Bernhardt, is dead of cerebral congestion. He was 44 years old.

COUNT EDISON.

Paris, Aug. 19.—Thos. A. Edison was to-day presented by a special envoy from King Humbert of Italy with the insignia of a Grand Officer of the crown of Italy, This gives Mr. Edison the rank of a Count in Italy.

HE WAS DEEPLY INVOLVED.

Turin, Aug. 19.—The National Bank of Milan, Savings Bank and Bank of Naples have together advanced to Turin banks the sum of twenty-four million lire to avert the panic threatened as a result of the suicide through embarrassment of Signor Copello, a leading banker of Turin.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM GREAT BRITAIN.

London, Aug. 19.—An explosion occurred in Chell colliery at Hanly to day, by which three men were killed.

Iron workers in South Wales have demanded an advance in wages of ten per cent.

Her Lochman, editor of the London Journal, a weekly paper, printed in the German language, shot his wife and child to-day and then committed suicide.

In the Commons this evening it was stated that Mr. Conybeare, Liberal member for Cornwall, who is now in prison for violating the Crimes Act, was suffering severely from the effects of a skin disease contracted during his incarceration. Balfour declared that Conybeare's malady was not serious, and the speaker declined to entertain a motion to adjourn in order to discuss the motion. Replying to a question by Mr. Labouchere, Sir James Fergusson, under secretary, said the statement made by the Berlin National Zeitung that the recent visit of Emperor William had recalled in an identity of policy on the part of England with the triple alliance, was mere conjecture. "England," he said, "had entered into no engagements fettering her entire liberty of action."

THE IRISH RAILWAYS BILL.

London, Aug. 19.—The Irish Railways bill came up in the commons to-day, and Handel Crossham, Radical member for East Bristol, moved to recommit. In speaking in support of his motion, he advised the government to allow the measure to quietly descend into the same grave as that which now held all there was mortal of the once hurtful tithes bill. Samuel Storry, radical member for Sunderland, also spoke, violently denouncing the measure as one intended by its projectors to work the demoralization of the Irish people, and one which he had no doubt accomplish the desired result. The only people, he claimed, which could possibly be benefitted by this proposal to build railways in Ireland at the expense of English taxpayers, were Irish landlords. After considerable heated debate, the motion was rejected by a vote of 156 to 37. The minority consisted chiefly of extreme radicals.

UNITED STATES AND CANADIAN RAILROADS.

Washington Aug. 19.—Senator Pugh has just returned from a trip along the Canadian border as a member of the select senate committee to look into our commercial relations with Canada. Senator Hoar, as chairman of the committee, will superintend the preparation of a report, and it will show that a very bitter war is going on between the United States and Canadian railroads over the transportation of merchandise. The railways and steamships controlled by Canadians are at present offering most advantageous rates to the shippers of merchandise throughout the Northwest and Lake regions, consequently they are getting the greater portion of the business. A number of interesting and difficult problems are involved which will receive due attention from congress.

A HORRIBLE CALAMITY.

New York, Aug. 19.—One of the most awful horrors which this city has known for years came to light early this morning, when a crowded west side tenement house suffered a partial destruction by fire and many of the tenants lost their lives. At a quarter to 5 o'clock this morning the tenement house No. 305, 7th Avenue, near 27th Street, was discovered on fire. On the firemen reaching the place the building was ablaze from the ground floor to the roof. In the street outside there was the wildest excitement. A crowd had quickly gathered and many tenants who had made their escape in their night clothing stood among the throng weeping bitterly and almost frantic with despair. The firemen soon had the conflagration in hand, and in half an hour all danger from further destruction was over. At first it was thought that all the tenants had escaped but the rumor was spread that a woman was badly burned in one of the rooms directly over the restaurant. One of the ambulance surgeons who had been called clambered up a ladder over the fire escape and into a window through which dense clouds of smoke still penetrated. He soon appeared at the window again with a woman in his arms and carried her bodily to the sidewalk below. Although still alive she was unconscious and died almost as soon as she reached the street. The firemen then began the work of hunting for dead in earnest. On the first floor, in addition to the woman, Nellie Geoghan, 20 years old, there were found Wm. McKee, 49 years, and William Glennon, 65 years old. They were both smothered in their beds and probably were not conscious of the fire. On the second floor lived the Wells family, a mother 31 years old and her two children, Jane, aged 4, and Thomas, aged 2 years. They were all found dead in bed together, the children being clasped in each other's arms as if asleep peacefully. On the third floor were found Bertha Lustiga, 40 years old, and James Jeffery, 55 years old. The former was discovered but a few feet from a window in the front of the house and the latter in the rear room. They were both dead. On the top floor was found the body of an unknown man about 45 years old. John Snider, proprietor of the restaurant on the first floor, where the fire broke out, Walter Brooks, his cook, and Joseph Plunkitt, a waiter, have been arrested on suspicion of having set the place on fire.

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

AN extremely interesting case has been brought before the United States Interstate Commerce Commission in the shape of the complaints against the Chicago & Alton Railroad made by the Rock Island and other roads in the Interstate Railway Association. This action is the outcome of the withdrawal of the Alton road from the association and its subsequent attempts to secure traffic by concessions in rates to and from points on western lines controlled by its own competitors. The bringing of the complaints is the first formal instance of such procedure on the part of the Interstate Association. But it has further interest, from the fact that it raises the question of how far under the existing law the commission can act for the protection of railroads from alleged undue competition.

A PRESS dispatch says: "The Duke of Fife declines to permit his wife, Princess Louise of Wales, to accept any share of the parliamentary grants to the Royal family." This must be taken with a very liberal dose of salt. It is understood and believed that the Duke would have preferred making a provision for his wife generous enough to support the Royal dignity; but the Prince of Wales very properly insisted that the daughter of the heir to the English throne should not go portionless, and hence the application to parliament. The increase of thirty-six thousand sterling per annum to his income was to enable him to provide for his children, and it would be a peace of bad form on the part of His Grace of Fife, of which he is entirely incapable, to object to any settlement proposed by his Royal father-in-law.

SECRETARY WINDOM has announced in a letter to the collector of customs at Detroit that the free transit of Canadian cars across the international boundary will not be interfered with. It seems that the Solicitor of the Treasury has for a long time advocated the imposing of duties on empty freight cars entering the United States, and that material had been prepared for a decision on this line. Assistant Secretary Tichenor, indeed told a correspondent of the Boston Post July 26th, that he should probably announce the opinion the next day. Apparently, however, Secretary Windom interfered to prevent such action, and his final determination was in exact accordance with former rulings by Secretary Fairchild, Secretary Boutwell and others. The collector at Detroit, for some reason, has seemed to be particularly anxious to have a tax imposed on empty freight cars from Canada going into the United States. He raised the issue in a letter to Secretary Fairchild last December, and again early in the present administration. But Secretary Windom, in his instructions to the Detroit collector, says truly enough, that the practice of permitting cars owned in either country to pass to and fro without interruption has continued in force for over twenty years, and has never been impeached in Congress or the courts, and that "the department does not deem it conformable to the public interest to disturb the decision deliberately reached and repeatedly affirmed."

THE subject of foreign immigration has begun to attract considerable attention in England. The Board of Trade published a memorandum not long ago upon the subject, setting forth facts regarding the extent to which the competition of foreigners was felt in trade and industry. The idea which gained ground among the industrial classes that foreign immigration had a direct effect in lowering the rate of wages led to the appointment of a committee of the House of Commons to consider the subject. This committee has just submitted a report. It recommends that an annual census be taken of aliens arriving and settling in Great Britain. The action taken by the United States in reference to undesirable immigrants has attracted the attention of the committee. It regards the enforcement of laws similar to those enforced in the United States against destitute immigrants as unadvisable at present but it concludes that the country ought to contemplate the early necessity for such legislation, in view of the extreme pressure of existence among the poor, and the tendency of destitute foreigners to lower the conditions of living, especially in great towns.

SOME USEFUL HINTS.

Use common salt when sweeping carpets, and it will brighten the colors wonderfully.

To prevent a bruise becoming black and blue, rub first in sweet oil, then in spirits of turpentine.

To remove coffee stains, put thick glycerine on the wrong side of the article and wash out in lukewarm water.

To take out iron mold stains, wet with milk and cover with salt. The latter also rubs egg stains from spoons.

If your sewing machine runs hard and your oiler is empty, try as a substitute equal parts of clean lard and kerosene oil.

If there be much sickness about the neighborhood, boil the water which is used in babies' food, for boiling kills all the animalculæ contained in the water. Cool it before using.

Cabbage leaves deprived of their coarse nerves (ribs) make an excellent dressing for wounds of various kinds and obstinate ulcers. Apply night and morning with a bandage over them.

To remove paint from windows, take strong bicarbonate of soda and dissolve it in hot water. Wash the glass, and in twenty minutes or half an hour rub thoroughly with a dry cloth.

To clean bottles, put into them some kernels of corn and a tablespoonful of ashes, half fill them with water, and after a vigorous shaking and rinsing you will find the bottles as good as new.

4. The said rates shall be due and payable by the person or persons liable for the same to the Collector of the Municipal Council at his office in the City Hall, Bastion street, Nanaimo, on the 1st day of August in each year.

5. There shall be levied upon and collected from every male person above 21 and under 60 years of age, resident in the City of Nanaimo, as and for Road Tax an annual sum of Two Dollars.

6. AN OLD HUNTER'S STORY.

Why the Gray Bearded Stranger Hated the Sight of a Wolf Skin.

He was along in years, as I saw by his iron gray beard, and I saw upon his goods that his name was Cross. He was a tall man, and his build showed that he was a man of great muscular power. He examined the wolf skin for a moment, then threw it from him, muttering a deep curse, the meaning of which I did not understand. I privately asked my friend what it meant.

"Ah!" said he, "he has a sad story to tell."

My neighbor, who had only come as a guide, went home in the afternoon, and as Mr. Cross was somewhat fatigued by the journey from the settlement, we did not leave the camp that day. I was very anxious to hear Mr. C.'s story, and after supper we sat around the fire for some time, telling about the moose and the various things that had happened during our few days' stay at the head of Bog river, which was the name of the locality where we were stopping. After my friend and I had exhausted all our tales, not forgetting that awful night's watching at the camp door, we asked Mr. Cross to tell us something of his hunting exploits.

"I have but one story," he replied, "that will much interest you, but I do not often tell it," and I saw a tear glistening in his eye.

I told him we would be pleased to hear his story, but did not wish for him to call anything to remembrance that would cause him grief. He replied: "The wound has been healed these many years, though often now it seems to bleed afresh; but my story now I will tell.

"I was born in the northern part of Vermont. My father was a farmer, and as I was the only child, my father gave me the homestead. He died quite young and the care of the farm devolved on me. My mother soon became lame and unable to do the work, and I resolved to marry. Dear Louisa, a farmer's daughter who lived but a few miles away, was the one to whom I gave my heart and hand, and, indeed, she was worthy of the love of any man. My mother soon after died, and we laid her beside her husband in the churchyard.

"Two children were born to us, Tommy and Louisa. We watched over them in their infancy, and loved them dearly. Tommy was 7, and Louie, as we called her, was 5. School was to commence the next Monday, and as they had never been to school, we made arrangements to send them. The schoolhouse was about one-half a mile off, beyond a piece of woods. I went with them the first and second day, and met them at night, as they were afraid to go through the woods alone; but the third day Tommy said, 'Papa need not go with us any more, we can go alone.' I granted their wish, and soon saw them disappear, going toward the schoolhouse, swinging their little dinner pails.

"They had been gone but a few minutes. I had taken up my ax, and was about commencing to cut some wood. I heard little Tommy scream: 'O dear, papa! O dear, papa!' burst upon my ears; and at the same moment I heard little Lulie call mamma, mamma! It is needless to say that I rushed to their rescue, tightly grasping my ax. In one minute I saw two wolves tearing my dear children to pieces. With an unearthly yell, I rushed upon them. One left my child and sprung upon me; he lay dead the next instant. I sprang upon the other that was tearing the flesh from the cheek of my little girl; but he ran swiftly away. Poor little Lulie was dead; little Tommy raised his torn and bloody hand, and faintly said: 'O papa, I wish you come fore!' It was his last words; in a few moments he breathed his last. I took my dear ones in my arms, and carried them to my house. My wife was at the barn. I lay them on the bed; my wife soon came in. She looked upon her children, uttered a fearful wail of sorrow, and fell almost lifeless upon the floor! The shock was too much for her, and indeed, more than many mothers could have stood, and within one month she died a raving maniac. She sleeps in Vermont beside her dear babes she loved so well." When he had finished his story there was not a dry eye in the camp, and for some time not a word was spoken. But the evening was far spent, and we soon retired to our beds to dream over the events of the day.—Thomas A. Crabtree in Lewiston Journal.

The Canals of Mars.

As to the nature of the canals, it is still more difficult to suggest any satisfactory explanation. Several hypotheses have been presented, none of which appears entirely to meet the case. I have already remarked that there has not been lacking the suggestion that these curious streaks represent the lines of actual artificial water courses on Mars. The straight and undeviating course which they pursue might be regarded as lending some degree of probability to such a view; but the enormous scale on which they exist seems to compel the rejection of the hypothesis. It is true that, if we consider only the influence of the force of gravity on Mars, giants could dwell upon that planet whose mechanical achievements might vastly surpass the greatest performances of our engineers; for a body weighing a ton on the earth would weigh only seventy hundred and sixty pounds on Mars, and, on the other hand, a man on Mars possessing relatively the same activity as one of us might be fifteen feet tall and strong in proportion. But, even granting the existence of such a race of Goliaths on our neighbor world, it is not conceivable that they could have constructed a system of tremendous canals over half the surface of their planet, or that they would have done it if they could. The canals of Mars are enormously disproportioned in magnitude to the most gigantic inhabitants that a due regard for the law of gravitation would suffer us to imagine there.—Garrett P. Serviss in Popular Science Monthly.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's

CHLORODYNE.

THE ORIGINAL and ONLY GENUINE.

Advice to invalids—If you wish to obtain quiet refreshing sleep, free from headache, relief from pain and anguish, to calm and assuage the weary achings of protracted disease, invigorate the nervous media, and regulate the circulating systems of the body, you will provide yourself with that marvellous remedy discovered by Dr. J. Collis Browne (late Army Medical Staff), to which he gave the name of CHLORODYNE, and which is admitted by the profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.

CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation and Spasms.

CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c., &c.

From Symes & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists Medical Hall, Simla, January 5th, 1880: To J. T. Davenport, Esq., 33 Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, London, Dear Sir:—We embrace this opportunity of congratulating you upon the wide-spread reputation this justly esteemed medicine, Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne, has earned for itself, not only in Hindostan, but all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is imported into the country, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and judging from their salet we fancy their sojurn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances infinitum of the extraordinary efficacy of Dr. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne in Diarrhœa, and 2nd Dysentery Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general Sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Choleraic Diarrhœa, and even if the more terrible forms of Cholera itself, we have witnessed its controlling power. We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of the opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's, is A DELIBERATE BREACH OF FAITH ON THE PART OF THE CHEMIST TO PRESCRIBE AND PATIENT ALIKE. We are sir, faithfully yours, Symes & Co., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain, His Excellancy the Viceroy's Chemists.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated that Dr. J, Collis Browne was, undoubtedly, the inventor of Chlorodyne; that the story of the defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say, had been sworn to —See "The Times," July 13, 1884.

Sold in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne" on the Government stamp, Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle.

NANAIMO :-: COURIER

TUESDAY, AUGUST 20, 1889.

TO CITY SUBSCRIBERS.

THE COURIER subscription list within the city limits has been taken charge of by Mr. A. E. PLANTA, who will hereafter see that each and every subscriber gets his paper, and gets it regularly. We specially request that all complaints of subscribers be at once sent in to the business office, and they will be rectified. There may possibly be some mistakes occur during the next few days, owing to new carriers being employed.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Arm Shot Off.

On Sunday morning four young men named J. W. Thompson, J. Thompson, Thos. Leene and James Thompson went for a boat ride as far as Lighthouse Island and on arriving there they all went ashore, where they stayed for some time. During the evening they noticed a flock of duck on the Bay and James Thompson ran towards the boat and grasping the gun attempted to drag it towards him when it exploded, completely shattering his forearm, his hand only hanging to his wrist by a shred. His companions went to his assistance immediately and bound his coat around his arm, above the wound, with the effect of partially staunching the flow of blood and then jumping into the boat rowed for home as quickly as possible, the patient holding his arm above the wound the whole way The only words he said were, "this is a sad job." He neither fainted or exhibited any signs of lassitude during the ride home. On arriving at Nanaimo Dr. L. T. Davis was summoned and he said that amputation was the only thing that would save the man's life and accordingly wired for Dr. Walkem of East Wellington, who assisted him to remove the injured limb. On last enquiry the patient was doing as well as could be expected.

OUR CITY FATHERS.

The usual weekly meeting of the City Council took place last evening in the Council chamber.

Present, His Worship Mayor Bate, Ald. Nightingale, Hilbert, Webb, Abrams, Peck, Baker and Mahrer.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The San Francisco Bridge Building Co. requested to know when bids would be received for the rebuilding of the Bastion street bridge. The communication was received and filed.

A letter was received from D. S. McLeod, requesting to be allowed the use of the City Hall at the usual terms, for the purpose of a wrestling match on the 27th inst. The request was granted at the previous terms.

Ald. Nightingale moved that Superintendent Hunter of the E. & N. R. R., send up a carload of gravel for the inspection of the City Council. Carried.

REPORT OF STREET COMMITTEE.

The corporation workmen have been employed taking out stumps and grading on the Esplanade.

Report received and filed.

Ald. Abrams—I would like to ask the street committee what time they intend to occupy on the Esplanade.

Ald. Nightingale as chairman of the street committee replied that as there was only a small gang employed it might possibly take a month as there were several stumps to take out, not to mention grading.

Ald. Abrams said that his object in asking the question was that he did not wish the street committee to start any new work as they have already sufficient to do.

Ald. Nightingale remarked that it was about time the men working on the City Hall bestirred themselves; they had been taking matters pretty easily lately.

Ald. Hilbert wished to know who had charge of the city gas lamps, as they had not been lighted for several nights when it was dark. I may say that a man who was walking with me fell into the gutter on one occasion.

Ald. Abrams—In reply to Ald. Hilbert, I would like to state that the Gas Company had only two retorts in working order for the last few weeks.

The Mayor—The street lighting committee should see to this matter.

Ald. Abrams—There were only five or six lamps lighted in the city during the last few dark nights.

Ald Hilbert thought that the company ought to insert notices in the COURIER when there was a doubt of their being able to supply gas to the people.

Ald. Peck moved that the lighting committee do not pay for the period during which they have not received light.

Ald. Nightingale—Mr. Crowe says that he will endeavor to do better in the future.

Ald. Baker said that the Gas Company had never given satisfaction, and that if they did not light up the lamps the city had no right to pay them. The company has always received the money they have called for, notwithstanding the "growling" that has occurred among the citizens. It is a matter of impossibility for the lighting committee to find out the true state of affairs for themselves; they have to be governed by the voice of the people.

Ald. Hilbert—We ought not to take any action in the matter this time, as the company may not charge for the lamps not used.

Ald. Peck moved, seconded by Ald. Webb, that the street lighting committee do not pay for the lamps not used during the said days that they were not lighted. Passed.

Ald. Webb wished to know if the street committee intended to drain Lubbock Square.

Ald. Webb—That place has to be drained, or something will happen.

Ald. Baker: The place can easily be drained. I still maintain there is as good gravel there as anywhere else.

Ald. Nightingale: I put a man screening one day last week and he worked out about two loads, that is to say, he made a fair day's wages at the rate we are being charged by the railway company. It might be as well to put down a wooden tramway from the square to truck the gravel to its destination.

Ald. Baker: I think it would be a good idea to let the offer of the E. & N. R. R. stand over for a time.

Ald. Webb: When are the sidewalks on Victoria Crescent to be fixed up. There is only one month in which to do the work.

Ald. Hilbert: Is the street committee looking after the lumber that is being taken from the sidewalks under repair?

Ald. Nightingale, on behalf the street committee, said he thought it would take lots of planks to repair the sidewalks.

The council then adjourned.

The Wrestling Match.

A great deal of interest is being manifested in the coming wrestling match between D. S. McLeod and P. Schumacher which will take place on the 22nd inst., probably at the Institute Hall. D. S. McLeod, the local man, is not so well-known in sporting circles as his opponent, Peter Schumacher, who has a world-wide reputation, but still the balance of the money is placed on McLeod by his friends in town and as freely taken by the believers in Schumacher's oft-tried skill. *

His system of treatment is based on new principles, using no medicine, no surgical operation and no pain. Office Central Hotel.

PROCLAMATION.

NOTICE

IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT CHANcellor Browning, Commissioner for the C. P. R. has this, the 26th day of July, 1889, issued a proclamation warning all persons from purchasing lots from Samuel Greer in Lot 526, Group One. Now, may it please Your Lordship, I have offered for sale any lots in said Lot 526, for that would be deception on the public, as the highest legal authority in British Columbia pronounced the title to that lot straw—not one cent as consideration having been given. Now, if Your Lordship will adjust your wig and recover from your deep studies of Blackstone and the laws of estoppal, you will be able to see that the four Judges who threw your case out of Court last April were fully able to comprehend the difference between 526 and Pre-emption Record 1003, this being the REGISTERED NUMBER of may land on English Bay. Come down and see us. I have a few corner lots (with a smattering of coal) yet left. I mean to sell, and the public will persist in buying them, notwithstanding Your Lordship's decision. Things will move just the same at English Bay.

All parties are hereby warned that Angus and Smith have no title to Lot 526 till confirmed by the Legislature, and all sales will be void.
